THE SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Stack .....
Case ....
Shelf.....
San Anselmo.

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF CALIFORNIA
ORGANIZED 1900
NO.....

DONATED BY REV WM. SPEER

Complete — 98

The Christian.

PRESBYTERIAN ... CALIFORNIA

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

PRESBYTERIAN DIST. SYN. OF CALIFORNIA

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

A SLEEPING CHURCH.
By Mr. R. RADCLIFFE.
Page 16.

THE WITHERED SOUL.
By MAJOR WHITTLE.
Page 23.

[Rev. George Rogers.]

CONTENTS.

PRINCIPAL
The New Year, by Rev. W. GUEST	11
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition	12
ISABELLA MACPHERSON.—Chapter VIII.	14
"The Royal Niger Company"	15
Dr. PENTECOST in Dundee	17
The Vatican and Liberty	18
A Message from Madagascar	18
Child Conversion, by Rev. E. P. HAMMOND	19
A Mission at Elgin	19
New Year Sonnets	20
Dr. BARNARDO and his Children	20
Portrait and Sketch of Rev. GEORGE ROGERS	21
Romanists and Poor Chiloren	22
Wild Australian Aborigines	23
The Gospel in Belgium	24
Some Scottish Missions.—X.	25
Notes on Central Africa	26
The Late Bishop of Durham	26

No. 1040.] FRIDAY, JAN. 3, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

THE HERALD OF MERCY
ANNUAL VOLUME.

OVER SIXTY ILLUSTRATIONS.

Attractively Bound in Illustrated Covers,

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

SUITABLE AS A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

"This volume is full of everything that can gratify, instruct, and elevate the human heart. It is remarkably cheap. The papers are short, pithy, pointed, and interesting. . . . Would suit admirably for a gift book."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

"It is beautifully Illustrated, strikingly written, and full of the Gospel."
Sword and Trowel.

"Its sound Gospel teachings, apt illustrations, and beautiful pictures are bright and charming. This volume is quite equal to preceding ones, and those who are desirous of circulating sound Christian literature, cannot do better than help to circulate this shilling book."—Baptist Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

An Attractive Quarto Volume of Music and Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and JAMES McGRANAHAN.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in TONIC SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions when all the mists have rolled away."—Baptist Messenger.

WORDS ONLY—LARGE TYPE.
Price Sixpence, in Tinted Covers.
Price Ninepence, in Limp Cloth.
Price One Shilling, in Cloth Bds., gilt edges.

WORDS ONLY.
Price One Penny, Tinted Covers.
Price Twopence, in Cloth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FIELD LANE REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS.

Rev. F. B. MEYER says:—"I had great pleasure in visiting this Institution. . . . I have gone through the whole thing, and I can commend the Institution to you."

The Committee Urgently Appeal for Funds

£600 is still required to meet expenses for the year 1889.

Will the readers of "The Christian" please send a contribution towards this sum.

WEEKLY—
300 Persons maintained.
500 Free Breakfasts.
800 Free Dinners to Children.
430 Portions of Broken Food given.
2,500 Attendances at Mission Meetings.

FUNDS ARE EARNESTLY SOLICITED, AND WILL BE GRATEFULLY ACKNOWLEDGED.

Treasurer—WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.
Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Secretary—Mr. PEREGRINE PLATT,
Field Lane Institution, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

THE BENEVOLENT OR
STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 104 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board Schools, soup kitchen, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.—For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widows and other needy people with Food, Coals, and Clothing. Bankers: L. & County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION, Whitecross-street, needs funds. 150 patients seen weekly. Gospel services held. Subscriptions received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, 45, Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

BRAUGHING VILLAGE HALL, COFFEE AND READING-ROOM.—The Rev. W. Barnes will be very grateful to Christian friends who may be changing furniture, mirrors, chairs, &c., if they will aid him in furnishing the above; which (D.V.) will be ready for opening in a few weeks. Consignments may be addressed to him, Braughing, Herts. £230 is still urgently needed for the building. Cheques and donations will be gladly acknowledged by G. H. WILLIAMS, Esq., St. Kilda, North Finchley, N.; or Rev. B. T. HALLOWES, Hertford, County Secretary, who warmly commend this much needed undertaking.

NEW YEAR'S GIFTS. — Special Donations in money, for the purpose of sending New Year's Gifts to the poorer of the patients, are earnestly solicited by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, W.C. Contributions of clothing, bread or coal tickets, will also be thankfully received.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.—President, Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird; Treasurer, Samuel Hope Morley, Esq.—The Committee earnestly appeal to the friends of religious education for help in the furtherance of the Sunday School cause, in this and other countries. The principles of the Sunday School Union are strictly evangelical, and its constitution thoroughly undenominational. Donations and subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mr. JOHN EDWARD TRESIDDER, Hon. Financial Secretary, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in Clerkenwell.—600 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, James-street, Buckingham Gate. The services next Sunday, and during January, will be conducted morning and evening by the Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D., of Philadelphia. Service commences, morning 11, evening 7. To augment the choir during these special services, friends willing to assist in singing will be welcomed at the practices at 8 o'clock in the Lecture-hall, January 2, and following Thursdays.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

TWO DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN would be received at half usual fees, to fill vacancies in superior old-established School, near London. Fine house and grounds. Liberal table, home care and comfort. Lectures and lessons from best professors and masters.—A. P., Relfe Bros., School Stationer, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate, E.C.

SUPERIOR HOME SCHOOL for Girls, from five guineas per term. Successful preparation for all exams. Little boys also received, with separate supervision, by Mr. E. J. H. Churcher, M.R.C.P., & F.S.Sc., London. Highest references and testimonials. Health resort.
PRINCIPAL, Broomfield Villa, Henfield, Sussex.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to the PRINCIPAL. The next term will commence January 21.

PROTESTANT BOARDING SCHOOL for Gentlewomen. Sound instruction; firm, yet loving discipline. Every home comfort. Special advantages in languages and accomplishments.—Miss ESSER (formerly Miss Penn's partner), Rockfield, Lansdowne-road, Croydon.

AN OFFICER desires to recommend a Christian Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters at Southsea. Thorough teaching. Vacancies at Christmas. Terms very moderate.—Inspector-General GORDON, South Esk, Victoria-road, Southsea.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Girls. Comfortable home, with careful training and thorough education. Governess-Pupil required, with premium.—PRINCIPAL, Glebe-place School, Stoke Newington, N.

IVY HOUSE SCHOOL, Haddenham, Cambs.—The Misses RYLAND, daughters of the late Rev. J. M. Ryland, have vacancies for young Ladies. Sound modern education, Christian training, home comforts. Highest references. Prospectus.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON.—High School system. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHERY and Mrs. ALBERT SMITH.

A CHRISTIAN LADY would receive a Gentleman's Daughter as Resident Pupil (finishing or otherwise) on half terms (36 guineas). Superior advantages. Beautiful situation. Highest references.
PRINCIPAL, West Hill, Newmarket-rd., Norwich

OAK HOUSE SCHOOL,
BEXLEY HEATH, KENT.
Principal: G. E. OXLEY, M.A.
Terms moderate.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

MARGATE. — Alresford House School, Queen's-avenue.—High Class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for University Local and Public School Examinations. Comforts of a Christian home. Special care taken of Indian and delicate children.—For prospectus, address, The PRINCIPAL.

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough modern education with decided Christian training. Delicate or backward boys receive special attention. Prospectus, references, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A., Vice-Principals: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A. Trinity College, Dublin; G. E. W. CRANAGE, Esq., B.A. Trinity College, Oxon.

Dr. Cranage's constant, prayerful aim is to bring his pupils to Christ as their Saviour, and to help them to walk like Jesus as their example. He offers a refined Christian home and superior Education for Gentlemen's Sons.

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY.—Moravian School for Boys. Pupils successfully prepared for Public Exams. Cricket field 10 acres; large swimming bath; hot baths in the house. Milk from school farm. Playground sheltered from north and east winds.
Rev. J. MALLALIEU, Head Master.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION at St. Budeaux Vicarage, South Devon. Modern languages, acquired upon the Continent. Tutors are Oxford graduates in honours. Younger boys taken by London undergraduate. Individual attention to each pupil. High land and sea air. Inclusive terms 19 guineas per school term. The Vicar of St. Budeaux was Clerical Association Secretary of the London City Mission from 1878 to 1886. References—Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man; Ven. Archdeacon Wilkinson, D.D., Plymouth; Rev. J. Milner, M.A., Chaplain in Ordinary to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh; F. Cleeve, Esq., C.B.; E. Vallack, Esq., War Office, Pall-mall, S.W.; Rev. T. S. Hutchinson, M.A., Secretary, London City Mission, Mission House, Ludgate-circus, E.C., and others. Full particulars of Mr. J. E. GREEN, The Vicarage, St. Budeaux, (post town) Saltash, Devon.

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE, for Sons of Gentlemen. Thorough preparation for commercial or professional life.
WALTER J. KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS
"The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH
SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

George Yard Ragged Schools & Mission,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND has received with much thankfulness, from Mrs. Milliard, 2s.; H.A.E.O.E.F., 12s. 6d.; "Anonymous," £1; G.D., Yes, £1; "A Sinner saved by Grace," 10s.; "Camperdown," £3 10s.

Agencies in Operation amongst the Children of the Very Poor.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Clothing lent to wear out. Day Nursery for Infants. Free Ragged Day Schools. Sending Children into the Country. Penny Bank. Toy Classes for Neglected Little Ones. Band of Hope. Bible Classes for Street Boys. Industrial Classes. Sunday Schools. Clubs, &c. Orphanage.

Agencies at Work amongst the Very Poorest Men and Women.

Evangelistic Services. Bible Classes. Gospel Temperance Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Common Lodging House Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Room to Room Visitation. Benefit Club. Prayer Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Boots, Coals, &c. Sewing Classes for Poor Women. The Weary, the Worn sent into the Country for Change of Air.

The Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women.

Classes. Meetings. Saturday Bible Class. Sunday Bible Classes. Library. Parlour. Clothing Clubs. Penny Bank. Tea-room. Prayer Meetings.

Amongst Young Men and Lads.

Bible Classes. Prayer Meetings. Tract Distribution. Library. Tea-room. Parlour. Rambling Club, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

SOUTH DEVON.—Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Thorough education, combined with every home comfort and Christian training. Resident English and foreign governesses and visiting masters. Preparation for examination. Healthy situation; liberal table; and sanitary arrangements unexceptionable. Terms moderate. To fill vacancies, two young Ladies will be received at the half term at reduced fees (35 guineas per annum inclusive). Prospectuses and references on application.—Miss MORLEY, Mount Vale, Courtenay-park, Newton Abbot.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

OXFORD COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Clacton-on-Sea. Principals: The Misses BEARD. Thorough education, every comfort. Large house, warm, south, sea aspect. Dancing. Local examinations. Governess-Pupil required (with premium).

MENTONE, CHALET VICTORIA.—The Misses WHITBY, formerly Principals of Mansfield House School, Colchester, offer a refined Home for delicate girls. Every advantage for health, and Christian training. Summer in Swiss mountains if desired.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive fees, 60 guineas. Highest references.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy, Cambridge, and other Local Exams. Moderate terms.
Miss L. VON SCHENCK, Fulneck, near Leeds.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commences January 21.

EDUCATION.—In a small select School, two Pupils can be received on moderate terms. Comfortable home; thorough education. Careful training.
ESTELLA, Hiscoke's Library, Richmond, Surrey.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master. E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

HEALTHY BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.—Good commercial education in careful Christian home. Evangelical ministry. Local and other examinations. Buxton is a most desirable residence for delicate boys. 12 guineas per term; extras, French and music.—Prospectus, apply,
PRINCIPAL, Ashbourne House, Buxton.

HIGH-CLASS PREPARATORY SCHOOL, well recommended by clergymen and parents, for kind Christian training, combined with sound elementary teaching. Preparation for all public schools. Home comforts. Maternal care. Healthy situation. Moderate terms.
PRINCIPAL, 1, Woodville, Gravesend.

SOUTH OF FRANCE.—Protestant Minister would receive one or two young men of delicate health. Family life. Instruction in French. References: The Very Rev. the Dean of Ripon; or the Hon. and Rev. W. H. Fremantle, Canon of Canterbury.—Apply to WILLIAM MILSOM, Pasteur, La Roque d'Antheron, near Aix in Provence, France.

£10 PER TERM.—Education at old endowed Grammar School in South-west of England. Successful at Locals. Scholarships, exhibitions.—SCHOLE, c/o Relfe Brothers, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester. Sloyd taught. For prospectus of Ladies' School apply to Miss Kofler; or to Rev. J. D. Libbey. For Boys' School, to Rev. W. J. Birtill.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the School) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.
The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for out-door recreation.
Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate.
Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

A GRADUATE, residing in Cambridge, wishes to receive a Pupil into his house, and to prepare him for University or other examinations. Excellent opportunities. There is a meeting for worship (open) in the town.
Z., 14, Regent-street, Cambridge.

MATRICULATION (London).—A student for this Exam. can be received at nominal fees to read with another pupil. Special coaching. Comfortable home.
PRINCIPAL, Stanley House School, Margate.

REQUIRED AT ONCE, in a Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen, a young Christian Lady to take the junior class and music pupils. A most comfortable home, board, laundress, and small salary offered. One just leaving school preferred. Good music and singing essential.
PRINCIPAL, 8, Adelaide-terrace, Windsor.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted by a Lady, a Governess to teach three children, 14, 10, and 8. Please state accomplishments and salary, denomination, and all particulars to Mrs. S., Sunnyside, Blackwater-road, Eastbourne.

GOVERNESS-PUPIL.—Young Lady wishes to be received as above in a good school, on reciprocal terms, or for small premium.—Address, with full particulars,
BETA, 14, Stamer-street, Dublin.

GOVERNESS OR COMPANION.—Re-engagement desired by young Lady. Thorough English, French, advanced music. Good needlewoman and children's dressmaker. Entire charge. Long, excellent references.
L., 21, Shellgrove-road, Stoke Newington, N.

GOVERNESS.—A Christian Governess is required in a Ladies' School in the North of England.
A. D., c/o Messrs. Thurnam & Sons, Carlisle.

GOVERNESS-STUDENT required, immediately, in select finishing school near London. English, music, French, German, and drawing under first-class professors. Premium 18 guineas. Duties light. Home comforts.—PRINCIPAL, Clarendon College, 16, Dalmeny-road, Tufnell-park, London, N.

GOVERNESS (22) requires re-engagement. 3½ years' experience. Senior Oxford certificate. Church of England. Thorough English, French, elementary German, music, drawing.—JESSIE, 9, Grosvenor-gardens, Muswell-hill, London, N.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Can any Lady recommend a good Nursery Governess for two little girls, one 6 and the other nearly 4. Must be over 25 in age, good needlewoman, Church of England, total abstainer, and a decided Christian.—Mrs. WENTWORTH FAWKES, The Vicarage, Harrogate, Yorkshire.

HORNER'S LATEST PENNY STORIES.

No. 47. RUN DOWN. By SYDNEY WATSON. [Ready.

No. 48. LOYAL & TRUE. By M. E. L. [Ready.

No. 49. The WHITE SLAVES of LONDON. By FANNIE EDEN. [Shortly.

FRENCH.—The Pasteur of a French Church at the West End has a vacancy for a young Gentleman desirous of learning French. Only two received.
French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Two elder Girls can be received, on special terms, at once. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters, &c.
PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

COACH wanted for six months, well up in mathematics and classics, &c.—Address, with terms and references, MATRICULATE, Messrs. Deacon's, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

YOUR BOYS will receive sound educational and thorough Christian training with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. 18 to 25 guineas. Entrance any time.

A COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME required by a young French Lady, who in return would give Companionship and lessons in French. Musical.—A. D., 143, Fentiman-road, S.W.

A CHRISTIAN TEACHER wanted in small seaside Orphanage, willing to undertake general care of children and needlework.
B., Mr. Drew, Stationer, 664, Holloway-road, N.

TWO LADIES receive a small number of Pupils, who enjoy a superior education, with constant, loving care. Vacancy for little one at half terms, 25 guineas. References in India and England.
BERTINI, Phillipson's Library, Kingston, Surrey.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS seeks employment. Highly educated and accomplished. Good Bible teacher, loving disciplinarian. £60; less, if a warm, comfortable home, no walking, and free evenings.—W. Z., 6, Mill-street, Bedford.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

EVANGELISTIC MISSIONS.—Wherever Christians will combine for united effort in town or country, Mr. Lancelot Middleton and Mr. Thomas Hogben are prepared to conduct services, either together or separately.—For vacant dates, &c., apply to W. BAKER, Esq., M.A., Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, London, S.E.

MIDDLE-AGED ENGLISH LADY, widow, musical, with small private income, who speaks French, Italian, Swedish, and has long experience of evangelistic work in England and on the Continent, seeks post of Christian labour in Southern Europe or Algeria, with some remuneration. Good references.
Mrs. F. W., 2, Quai Pierre Fatio, Geneva.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE.—T. TUSTING HOLTTUM is prepared to Lecture, address meetings, conduct missions, or organise fresh ground. Easy terms.—Wembley, Harrow.

COACHMAN, one or a pair. Married; no family. Eight years' personal character. Town or country. A decided Christian. Total abstainer.
D. W., 9, South-parade, Chelsea, S.W.

FARMING.—A young Gentleman of some experience, desires position with Christian man as Improver on a Fruit, Poultry, or Dairy Farm with a view to partnership. Home Counties or Channel Islands preferred. Highest references.
AGRICOLA, 35, Outer Temple, London, W.C.

YOUNG MAN.—Wanted, by a Christian young Man, abstainer, situation (under butler) to help in house, or (under groom) in stables.—H. WELLS, Stanhope-court, Salisbury-street, Blandford.

TO HELP IN GOSPEL WORK, or as Governess, or Companion. Good references.
Miss M. E. WIGMORE, 97, High-st., Sandown, I.W.

YOUNG MARRIED MAN, Christian, abstainer, seeks engagement as Manager of Coffee Bar and Mission, or any aggressive Mission work.
C., 70, York-road, Lambeth, London, S.E.

MISS HOOPER'S OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.—For supplying families with Governesses, Companions, Housekeepers, Sick Nurses. Also Superior Domestic Servants. Hours, 10 till 5.

YOUNG LADY (21) earnestly desires an engagement, either as Companion to a Lady, or Governess to children under 12. English, French, music R.A.M. and Trin. Coll.
N., Mrs. Hadlow, Belgrave Lodge, Margate.

AS COMPANION, Governess-Companion, or Assistant Housekeeper, by middle-aged Christian Lady. Educated; good reader and needlewoman. Very domesticated, cheerful, and obliging. Church of England. Excellent references.
M. B., 3, Lower Moira-place, Southampton.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES, Companions, and Lady Housekeepers of high principles are frequently supplied to Ladies seeking such, by application to the Governess Registry, Soho Bazaar, Soho-square, London, W. Testimonials never dispensed with. Free of all expense to parents.

LADIES NEEDING SERVANTS should apply to, and SERVANTS seeking situations should lodge at the Homes of the Female Servants' Home Society; 21, Nutford-place, Edgware-road, W.; 205, Great Portland-street, W.; and 143, Camden-road, N.W.

A LADY seeks a situation as Companion to a blind Lady or Gentleman. Good reader, and cheerful.
C., 34, Duke-street, Manchester-square, W.

AN ORPHAN (young) seeks situation in a comfortable home as Lady Help or Useful Companion. Small remuneration necessary.
M. L. S., c/o Mrs. Scrivens, 9, Royal-crescent, Jersey.

AS HOUSEKEEPER OR COMPANION.—A Lady seeks a comfortable home. No salary. Highest references.
G., 62, Lancaster-road, Notting-hill, W.

A CHRISTIAN LADY is desirous of engagement either as Assistant Governess for juniors, or Matron Housekeeper in a well-established school. South or south-west counties preferred. In return she requires the preparation of her daughter, aged 14, for the higher exams. Good references.—A. B., Employment Agency, 12, Portland-terrace, N.W.

MATRON, OR SUB-MATRON, in college or school, by Widow, 45 years. Good personal references. Excellent needlewoman and manageress.
MATRON, c/o Mrs. Walters, Strand, Calne, Wilts.

RE-ENGAGEMENT as Companion to a Christian Lady, by companionable Widow, with small salary or otherwise. Duties must be very light. South.
H., 59, Queen's-walk, Nottingham.

A GENTLEWOMAN (abstainer), paying a small sum weekly, and willing to assist in domestic work, may have a refined, quiet home in a healthy locality, near sea, country, and town.—Address, by letter,
1, Watford-road, Anfield, Liverpool.

MISS MEREDITH BROWN wishes to find situations as Kitchenmaids and Under Housemaids in Christian families, for Girls trained in the Shaftesbury Institute.—HON. SUPERINTENDENT, Shaftesbury Institute, Harrow-street, Lissongrove, N.W.

NURSE.—Lady recommends as Nurse to one or two children, Country Girl (20). Christian, abstainer, quiet and willing, but not very strong.
Willowdene, King's-road, Clapham-park.

A LADY strongly recommends an experienced person as Matron of Convalescent Home or Orphanage, or Companion to an Invalid. A good reader and writer.
E. E., Nonington Lodge, Bromley, Kent.

AS USEFUL HELP.—A young Lady (aged 20) desires an engagement.—L. S., c/o Miss Blankart, Wingfield, Finchley-lane, Hendon, N.W.

NURSERY-MAID, well brought up in most respectable home. Some experience of service. Good needlewoman. Desires place under head nurse only. Age 16.
Mrs. BURTON ALEXANDER, Pavenham, Bedford.

AS UNDER-HOUSEMAID.—A Lady desires to obtain situation for a Girl (16). Has been out before. Careful Christian training desired.
S., 157, Sutherland-avenue, W.

AS PLAIN COOK in a family.
MARY GARDINER, 336, Camden-road, London, N.

WANTED, for a General Servant or good plain Cook, in Christian, total abstainer's family only.—Refer to Mrs. LAYCOCK, Charles' Vicarage, Plymouth.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS.—Situations required for young Women who have reclaimed their character.—MATRON, Cottage Home, 229, Shirley-road, Southampton.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

TRAVELLING SECRETARY wanted by the Central Association for Stopping the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday, to organise and address meetings and collect subscriptions. Applicants must state age, previous occupation, and salary required; also send copy of testimonials, or give references, to THE HONORARY SECRETARIES, 14, Brown-street, Manchester.

AN ASSISTANT MATRON wanted (lady). A trained nurse, with some knowledge of housekeeping, preferred. Must be a member of some Protestant Evangelical Church, and a total abstainer.—All applications to be made in writing, enclosing photo and testimonials, with stamped envelope for return, addressed, MATRON, H.M. Hospital, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, E.

FREEST SCOPE for bringing the masses into touch with Christ offered to spiritual Men, experienced in evangelistic work, and willing to become Evangelists in the Church Army. Training free. Allowance to family where needed. Salary guaranteed, and fairly sufficient. Long service much preferred, but capable men offering two or three years only would also be accepted. Honourable posts outside the C.A. usually obtainable after long service. Women needed as Mission Nurses. Foreign service voluntary.—SECRETARY, 128, Edgware-road, London. Funds urgently needed for training.

INDOOR SERVANT.—Wanted, a Christian Man, abstainer (single), as Indoor Servant. Footman is kept.—Apply with references, and stating wages required, to Mr. L. M., 2, Deeside-villas, Sea-road, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

UNDER-GARDENER.—A strong and industrious single young Man wanted, as Under Gardener. Must have good character. Wages 18s. to 20s.—Apply by letter only to J., 2, Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

SECRETARY.—Wanted for a London Branch Young Men's Christian Association, an active, intelligent young Man, as Secretary. Required to devote the whole of his time to the duties.—Apply by letter, stating age, salary, and all particulars, to WOOLLARD, 42, Cheapside, E.C.

A STEADY MAN wanted, for garden, stable, and indoor work. Single. Churchman; abstainer.—MACFARLANE, Olney, Bucks.

APPRENTICE.—One young Lady, daughter of Christians preferred, as Apprentice in Large Drapery Concern. Will live under Principal's roof and control in villa residence in suburbs. Beautiful North of England watering-place.—BROADBENT & CO., Southport.

VACANCY FOR GENTLEMANLY YOUTH of Christian character, suitably educated, as Articled Pupil, in an old-established Architect and Surveyor's office, West London. Premium moderate.—GORDON, Keeping's Library, Westbourne-grove, Bayswater.

LADY MISSIONARY wanted, with spirit fully consecrated, about 25, for peculiar and delicate work in Lord's vineyard. Must be generally clever, bright, energetic, sympathetic, possessing tact, musical, and able to hold small Bible classes and do some visiting. Remuneration. Application by letter only.
BETA, Golf House, Lewisham-hill.

MATRON.—Working Housekeeper and Manageress for a London Branch of Young Men's Christian Association. Will be required to act as Cook and take general supervision of the home. Must be of decided Christian principles.—Apply by letter, stating age, salary, and full particulars.—WOOLLARD, 42, Cheapside, E.C.

VACANCIES IN THE CIVIL SERVICE. Salaries £80 to £800. Ages 14 to 30; ladies under 20. Constant employment, short hours, promotion, pension. Preparation for the examinations.—PETER LEE, 146, Fleet-street, London. Missionaries also prepared for exams.

COMPANION.—A Lady, living very quietly, wishes for a useful, thoroughly domesticated Companion, accustomed to sick nursing. One meeting with Open Brethren preferred.—1, Howcroft-villas, West Drayton, Yiewsley, Middlesex.

A LADY HOUSEKEEPER wanted, to manage a Widower's house, teach five boys under 10. Must have held similar position. Highest references given and required.
Mrs. DUNCAN, 68, Dyke-road, Brighton.

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted, abstainer, as Matron of a Crèche, and to do some visiting in connection with an unsectarian mission.
Miss THOMPSON, 11, Adair-road, Kensal Town, W.

SWISS OR FRENCH NURSE wanted for four children, eldest 5½. Must be a Christian, and experienced. A Lady willing to undertake the above would be valued and considerately treated.—Dr. COOMBS, Worcester.

ASSISTANT NURSE required.—Apply to the MATRON, Lock Hospital, Harrow-road, W., any day before 12.

NURSE WANTED (experienced) for middle of January, to take charge of young baby, wardrobes of three elder children, and nurseries. Age 25 to 30. Good needlewoman. Dissenter preferred.
Mrs. BROWN, Isleham, The Glebe, Blackheath, S.E.

SECOND NURSE.—Can a Lady recommend a good Second Nurse who has already had experience with young children, and is strong and a good needlewoman. Wages £12. No agents need apply.
Mrs. CROWDER, 45, Chester-square, S.W.

PARLOURMAID.—Can any Lady thoroughly recommend good Parlourmaid.—Capt. BARING, 2, Mount Ephraim, Tunbridge Wells.

TWO RELIABLE SERVANTS wanted to take the work of a small house in London, as Cook (good plain), and House-Parlourmaid. Good health essential. Must be active and obliging, and thoroughly trustworthy. Christians greatly valued, Church of England preferred. Board wages.—Apply by letter in first instance, to N., 40, Eaton-terrace, London, S.W.

A DOMESTICATED CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted, 35 to 40, an abstainer.—Apply by letter to Mrs. PHILBRICK, 33, Mile End-road, E. Only those in or near London need write.

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted.
Mrs. SMYLY, Vicarage, Penge.

COOK.—Can any Lady recommend a capable plain Cook, good manager, clean, early riser, and active. Also good HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID. Good wages. Kind home, Christian privileges.—ALPHA, 202, Lewisham-road.

GOOD PLAIN COOK, not under 30, wanted, 12 miles from London. Assistance after one o'clock. No dairy work.—Address, stating age, wages required, length of character, and all particulars,
Mrs. MICKLEM, Yew House, Hoddesdon, Herts.

ATTENDANT required for aged invalid Lady, great weight, helpless. Abstainer, tall, and experienced.—Address by letter,
Y., North's Library, Brighton.

UNDER-HOUSEMAID wanted. Must be over 17 years of age, have had some experience. Wages £10. Everything found except beer.—Mrs. HORNOR, Halstead, Essex.

WANTED, EARLY IN JANUARY, for a family of four Ladies, a good Plain Cook, also a Housemaid who understands her work. Abstainers preferred.
51, Lansdowne-road, Notting-hill.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Respectable young girl wanted. Must understand plain cooking. Also HOUSEMAID. Comfortable Christian home.—11, Wolseley-road, Crouch-end.

AS KITCHENMAID in a small family in London. A young Woman wanted, well recommended, who has been out before, of good health, and not under 18 years. A country girl preferred.—HOUSEKEEPER, 53, Leinster-square, W.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, good, trustworthy, and experienced. Family of two. Plain cooking, little washing. Wages £12 to £14. Christian preferred.—Mrs. TYLER, 3, Rose Bank, Ulundi-road, Blackheath, S.E.

CLEVER COOKS can add to their list of dishes the preparation of choice dainties for the Dinner and Supper Table, by consulting the pages of a little book entitled "Pastry and Sweets," given to all Cooks sending their addresses to ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham. Every Lady and Housekeeper in the land should have "Pastry and Sweets" handy for reference. There is nothing to pay, and the book will be sent by return of post, free to any address.

A GOOD COOK wanted, the beginning of January. A Christian and total abstainer, with a good character. Age about 40. Wages £30.
Miss TIGHE, Christchurch, Hants.

NURSES, COOKS, Parlourmaids, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Good Generals wanted. All servants of good character requiring situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situations.—Miss MAULDEN, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.
First-class Private. Under new management. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing-room, bath-room. Largely patronised by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to
Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 52, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Octacamund, St. Peter's-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 35s. per week.
Miss BEARL, Eversley, Bournemouth.

THE SOUTH DEVON
BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest station.) HEALTH RESORT
Sea and Moorland Air.
Turkish and other baths. Beautiful private grounds. Strongly recommended for those who need rest, and pleasant, healthful change. "Has all the comfort and charm of a gentleman's country home.
For Terms and Testimonials, apply to C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Most comfortable Boarding House in this mild sunny climate for those seeking winter residence. Splendid sea views. Liberal table. Late dinner. Special arrangements with clergymen and ministers. Terms moderate.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI (wife of Rev. P. Warschawski), 45, West-hill.

HASTINGS BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, Cornwallis House, 28, Cornwallis-gardens, Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table, late dinner. Smoking-room. Good winter home. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.
The Misses WOOD.

HARROGATE BEECH WOOD PRIVATE HOTEL.
For Terms apply to Miss C. LORD.

The clear, bracing air of Harrogate strongly recommends it as a Summer and Winter
HEALTH RESORT.
Visitors will find in Beech Wood a warm and well ventilated house, with home comforts and liberal table.

WINTER HOME.—A Lady highly recommends the house of a Homœopathic Physician at St. Leonards as a superior Home for visitors or invalids requiring extra care.—M. D., 69, Church-road, Warrior-square, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

INTEMPERANCE, OR NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Private Home for a limited number in a delightful winter and spring locality, where the above has been long and successfully treated with or without massage. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts. Highest references.—MEDICUS, c/o Messrs. Pascoe, 28, Stoke's Croft, Bristol.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Branksome Temperance Hotel and Boarding House and Private Apartments. Under new management. Central. A home for Christians away from home. Terms moderate.—G. B. WILLIS, Proprietor.

INTEMPERANCE.
Buxton House, Earl's Colne, Essex.
PRIVATE HOME FOR SIX LADIES.
Fourteen years' experience. Very satisfactory results. Excellent references. Inspection by applicants welcomed. Terms, 2 and 3 guineas weekly. Medical attendant, J. Taylor, M.R.C.S. Lond.
Address, Miss PUDNEY.

BOURNEMOUTH.—A Clergyman's Widow would gladly receive two or three Ladies in her comfortable home. Moderate charges. South aspect.—Mrs. H., Estens, Surrey-road South.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Gainsborough, West Cliff. High-class Boarding Establishment. Near sea, choice position. Moderate and inclusive terms. Good references.—Address PROPRIETOR.

BOURNEMOUTH, Melbourne, East Cliff.—Quiet Boarding-house. Comfortable winter home. Good position. South aspect; near sea, pines, and town. Terms from 31s. 6d. Reduction for lengthened period.
Lansdowne and Madeira-roads.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Vacancies for a few Boarders (or private apartments if preferred). Several south rooms. Near town and sea. Very moderate terms.
Miss LEIGH, Leightonhurst, St. John's Wood-road.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable, well-furnished Apartments. South aspect, near cliffs, pines, town, and pleasure grounds. Bed-room and sitting-room from 21s. Good cooking and attendance.
Linden House, St. John's-wood-road.

HASTINGS. — Home of Rest for Christian workers and others. Clergymen and ministers will find this a desirable home. Central, lovely position. Near sea and rail. Terms moderate. — PROPRIETRESS, Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

THE ALEXANDRA HOME, Southend-on-Sea (in connection with Y.W.C.A.).—Ladies desiring a Home for the winter months or for a short period, with complete rest and home comforts, on moderate terms (15s. to 20s. a week), are requested to apply to Mrs AMAND ROUTH, 14A, Manchester-square, London, W.; or to the Lady Superintendent, Miss WITHERS, at the Home.

LITTLEHAMPTON. — Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and ease of family life. Climate bracing, not severe. Board and lodging, 12s. 6d. weekly.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope,
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

HOME.—The Friends of a Lady or Gentleman, mentally or physically weak, or otherwise, requiring care and supervision (not insane) are offered a comfortable Home, with every medical and other attention, by a married total abstainer of great experience, living in the South-West of England, within easy access of London.
SUCCESS, Taylor's, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

AN ENGLISH FARMER, lately settled in Fredericton, will be glad to communicate with any who, from economic or business reasons, may wish for Residence in or near this charming city. Every religious and social advantage, combined with opportunity for investment, for securing improved farms, or for cheap housekeeping. Registry of farms, mercantile property, &c., on application to Mr. WM. H. BOYCE (late of Norfolk, England), Fredericton, New Brunswick.

FARMING ABROAD.—It is desired to place a Youth with a Christian Farmer abroad, where he will have kind but firm treatment and be under good influences. Highest references absolutely necessary.—Apply, stating full particulars, terms, &c., to
B. J., c/o Mr. Hull, 22, Chancery-lane, W.C.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and Residence for Ladies. Good central position, near the Downs, and places of worship.—Miss HARRIS, Worcester House, Worcester-terrace, Clifton-park.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for Christians. Close to, but not facing sea. Good garden. Every comfort. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME wanted, for Boy of 16 just leaving school for business in London, where he would receive a little kind care and supervision. Terms moderate.
NEWMAN, Selhurst, Chichester.

HAMPSTEAD.—Furnished front Sitting-room and large front Bedroom for Christian Gentleman, or two friends, engaged daily. Near three stations. References.
15, Lithos-road, Finchley-road, Hampstead, N.W.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a quiet Boarding-house in Tunbridge Wells. Another Lady now residing there, has done so for seven years, and the Advertiser has spent most of her time there during the last two years, and received much kindness. There are Holiness meetings in the near vicinity.—M. W., Mr. Evans, Union-street, Ryde.

SMALL HOUSE wanted, with bath-room, about £25 per year, within easy distance of City. Advertiser wishes to reside where he could take Sunday evangelistic services (undenominational).
T. TUSTING HOLTTUM, Wembley, Harrow.

A LADY, trained in hospital, desires to receive an Invalid into her home at the seaside; or a temporary engagement as Nurse would be accepted.
C., 1, Vineyard-terrace, Richmond, Surrey.

CAN ANY READER of THE CHRISTIAN recommend a small appartement in the neighbourhood of the Porte St. Denis, Paris, containing one, or two rooms if required. Terms moderate. References given.
H., 156, Norwich-road, Ipswich, England.

PLEASANT SEASIDE HOME offered to holiday Workers on very moderate terms; or permanent boarders taken. Every comfort.
H., 3, St. George's-terrace, Herne Bay, Kent.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS.—Two very comfortable Rooms, suitable for one or two young Gentlemen. Pleasantly situated near the park.—24, Ham Park-road, West Ham, E. Terms moderate.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, rent free (not including attendance), offered in return for tuition for a boy of 11. Near Richmond.—R.S.V.P., Bruton & Co., 28, Tenter-street, Moorfields, E.C.

A COMFORTABLE and, if desired, permanent Home offered to married couple and others. Attendance and cooking good. Locality healthy. Bed-room fires, &c. Terms moderate.
Mrs. BEVERLEY, Stratford St. Mary, Suffolk.

WILLESDEN, LONDON.—Full or partial Board, in comfortable Christian home. Easy access all parts of London or country. Healthy suburb. Moderate terms. Excellent references.—H., 13, Crown-hill-villas.

Death.

POPPLEWELL. — On 26th inst., at 11, Spurstowe-road, Hackney, CHARLES JOHN POPPLEWELL, aged 54.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. Romans v. 8.

TWO IRON MISSION ROOMS (new) for sale. Will accommodate 150 and 200 persons. Floored, lined, and varnished. — Price, R. C. HARRIS, Iron Buildings Manufacturer, 7 and 8, Idol-lane, London, E.C. Please mention this paper.

TO GET HOLD OF PEOPLE NOW, there is nothing like good Dissolving Views. Experienced Christian Exhibitors wanted. Lanterns and slides on sale or hire.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London.

£6 MONTHLY added to income by selling our celebrated Teas in Packets, French Coffee in Tins, and Cocoa.—Write for particulars to OLIVER, OLIVER & CO., 222, Southgate-road, London.

TEA FROM GARDEN DIRECT.—R. MORTON, planter, Toonbarri Estate, sells his Tea in 10-lb. package for £1 cash. Required, as agents for above, Ladies of social position. Liberal commission.—C/o Colonel MORTON, 2, Priory-parade, Cheltenham.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s.; gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s.; gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d.; gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

AGENTS wanted everywhere, to push sale of first-class religious periodical. Large profits, which can be applied to missions, church funds, or own use.—Apply 2758, c/o C. Vernon, Advertising Agent, 120, Newgate-street, London, E.C.

FOR SALE.—Cottage Piano by Cramer. Full compass, good condition, little used, £12.—GUNNER, 10, Queen's-road, Notting-hill, London, W.

HIGH-CLASS WASHING. — The Mayfield Laundry Company is now prepared to undertake the work of several more families. Send post-card for prices and particulars.
MANAGERESS, 93, Gillespie-rd., Finsbury-park.

WORK FOR WOMEN. — Wanted, Agents to Sell articles constantly required by Women. None but trustworthy, energetic persons need apply.
20, W. H. SMITH & SON, The Bookstall, Ilkley.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

EGYPT, THE NILE, AND PALESTINE.—GAZE'S Conducted Tour, January 23, for the Nile to First Cataract, with optional extension to Palestine.—GAZE'S Spring Tour, February 13, for Alexandria, Cairo, Pyramids, Tel-el-Kebir, Suez Canal, and Grand Thirty Days' Camping Tour in the Holy Land, returning via Asia Minor, Greece, Constantinople, and Danube. Detailed Programmes for stamp.
H. GAZE & SON, 142, Strand, London.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7½s. Organs from 8½s. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

"BELL" AMERICAN ORGAN, eleven stops, four sets of reeds, new this year. Great bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

INFANTS' FIRST SHIRTS.—Beautifully fine cambric, six, 5s. Artistic Newspaper Knife, 1s. 3d. Invalid Lady earnestly asks for orders.—M. M., 27, Margaret-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

WILL SOMEONE kindly assist a promising Christian young Man to become a City Missionary, hereafter, by influence, or preparation. Could devote some time to Mission work, &c.
Mrs. KUSS, 20, Shepherd's Bush Green, W.

TO THOSE GOING ABROAD. — Kindness to Animals Cards. Interesting, illustrated. French, German, Italian, English. 20, 1s.; 100, 3s. 9d.; 500, 12s.; carriage free.
C. BARROW, Ampton-road, Birmingham.

COMFORT FOR THE SICK.—Invaluable for Consumptives and others. Legg's New Iron Bedrest. It having a curved back fitted with good wool cushion. Light and strong. Carriage free, 15s.—J. LEGG, Artificial Limb Maker, Woodford, Essex.

CUTTINGS.—A few handsome Scraps for Sale, in fancy velvets, silks, and mixed goods, 6s. per lb. ½-lb. weighed. Carriage free. Cash with order. Cottons, 1s. per lb.
20, W. H. SMITH & SON, The Bookstall, Ilkley.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one seems beyond all doubt. The medicine he prescribes does not lower, but builds up and tones the system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.

F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London. W.

UNIVERSAL WEEK of PRAYER STEINWAY HALL MEETINGS.—The Council of the Evangenical Alliance have arranged, as usual, for Meetings daily, at 11.30, during the week commencing MONDAY, JANUARY 6, at STEINWAY HALL, LOWER SEYMOUR STREET, PORTMAN SQUARE. Brief addresses will be given by the following:—The Revs. H. W. Webb Peploe, Richard Roberts, W. Fuller Gooch E. W. Moore, Dr. Monro Gibson, and Dr. A. T. Pierson.

Christians generally are earnestly invited to attend these meetings. The programme of arrangements, and other information regarding the Week of Prayer, may be had of the Secretaries of the Evangelical Alliance, 7, Adam Street, Strand, London, W.C.

Publications.

Now ready. Price Two Shillings.

SOME THOUGHTS ON BAPTISM.

By Rev W. BARRY COLE, Incumbent of Shanklin Old Church, Isle of Wight.—London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT & Co

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets, and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1890. Cheapest English. 1s. 6d. 100: foreign, 1s. per 100 or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE MORAL REFORM UNION (Established 1821, in the interests of pure Family Life), and Price Lists, to be had at the office, 2, Leinster-place, Bayswater, London, W.

NEAVE'S
FOR INFANTS
INVALIDS,
AND THE AGED.
FOOD.

MADE WITH BOILING WATER.
EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
MADE WITH BOILING MILK.

THE YOUNG CHURCHMAN'S SEARCHING AND FINDING ALMANACK.

Six Texts selected from each Sunday Service A.M., with space left for references. Price 1d. Sold for work among Factory Girls, by M. A. E. W. Bramford, Ipswich.

"This almanack meets the need of a special and large class."—Christian.

Recommended for Mothers' Meetings, Sunday Schools, &c.

DAILY LIGHT ON THE DAILY PATH.
A Text Book in the very Words of Scripture.

Two Vols. Morning and Evening. Sold separately or in sets. Small Edition, from 1s. to 12s. 6d. Large Type Edition, 16mo., from 2s. 6d. to 10s.

"They are very precious little books, and few more suitable gifts could be [illegible]

New Edition with Red Lines, for presentation, prices from 1s. 9d.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, LTD. 15, Paternoster Row, London.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

Weldon's Ladies' Journal says: "Lewis's Fast Pile Velveteen is the finest imitation of Real Silk Velvet ever shown."

LADIES ARE INVITED TO SEND FOR PATTERNS OF THE WONDERFUL VELVETEEN
at 2/- a Yard.

LEWIS'S Wonderful Velveteen is well known all over the world. It is Fast Pile and Fast Dyed, and every inch is GUARANTEED.

If a Dress should wear badly, or be in any respect faulty, LEWIS'S will give a NEW DRESS for NOTHING [illegible] TRIMMING. The price of this Beautiful Velveteen, in Black, and all the most Beautiful Colours now worn, is 2s. a Yard. This quality Velveteen is sold by the best Drapers at 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. a Yard.

LEWIS'S Manufacture this Velveteen and sell it direct to the public, and LADIES SHOULD WRITE FOR PATTERNS OF THIS EXTRAORDINARY VELVETEEN and judge for themselves of the wonderful quality. Carriage paid on all orders to all parts of Great Britain and Ireland. Write for Patterns on an ordinary Post Card.

BEAUTIFUL AND WARM DRESS MATERIALS. Ladies should write to LEWIS'S for Patterns of new Dress Materials; they will be astonished at the value offered

Please mention this paper, and address—

LEWIS'S IN MARKET STREET, MANCHESTER.

GOSPEL TRACTS. By CHEYNE BRADY.—"Mr. Brady's style is quite to our heart. He is 'direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam.'"—C. H. Spurgeon in Sword and Trowel.—Send for list.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall court.

Price 3d.
PROTESTANT CHURCH REFORM.
By BISHOP GREGG, D.D.—London: E. Marlborough & Co., 51, Old Bailey; and, by order, of all Booksellers

BOOKS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

"SIMPLY TRUSTING EVERMORE." By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Illustrated. 32 pp. 1s. per dozen.

READING AND RUNNING. By LADY BEAUJOLOIS DENT. 32 pp. 1s. per dozen.

"REMEMBER THE AN HUNDREDS." For the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF. Illustrated. 1s. per dozen.

"HIS STAR." By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in Two Colours. 1s. per dozen.

MY GARDEN. By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in Two Colours. 1s. per dozen.

[illegible] TRACT DEPOT, Stirling;
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisements must arrive not later than FIRST POST MONDAY to be inserted in the following issue.

IMPORTANT WORK for TEACHERS of the YOUNG.

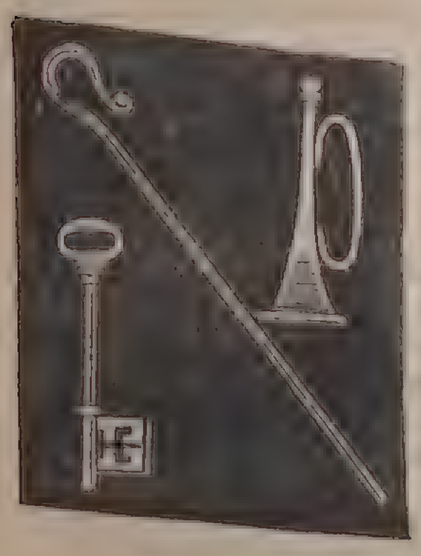
220 pages, Crown 8vo. Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

CHILDREN'S MEETINGS:
AND HOW TO CONDUCT THEM.
BY LUCY J. RIDER AND NELLIE M. CARMAN.

CONTAINS

FOURTH THOUSAND.

Sixty Outline Lessons for the Class,
Forty-three Diagrams for the Black-board,
Twenty-five attractive Children's Hymns.



"A thoroughly practical book, by teachers who have learned by experience the best methods. Teachers will find it most helpful, especially in blackboard word-work. The Addresses are teachings—which very many Children's Addresses are not."—The Teacher at Work.

"We do not remember meeting with any better book than this for help in Children's Meetings. It is first-rate. There are objects to be drawn on the blackboard; but there are also capital lessons to go with them. Blackboards get very, very black; and the children are very bored, when it is all chalk and no sound sense. Many of these Addresses would make sermons of the first water—and what more can we say of Addresses?"

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in The Sword and Trowel.

"We have no hesitation in advising all who are engaged in the good work of teaching children and young people in Gospel principles, and the way of salvation, to possess themselves of a copy of this work. It will be found to be a very valuable and suggestive book, and helpful to the teacher of the Infant—as well as to the teacher of the Bible-class."—Baptist Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S SERIES OF PENNY BOOKS

Well printed, in attractive covers. Suitable for giving or lending.
ONE PENNY per copy. 100 copies for SEVEN SHILLINGS
(either Assorted or of any one sort).

ROBERT ANNAN: The Christian Hero.
By Rev. J. MACPHERSON. ILLUSTRATED. (150,000.)

"A striking example of the power of divine grace, exhibited in the conversion and devoted life of Robert Annan—a Christian Hero indeed."—Gospel Magazine.

"It is a book to be read by all, but especially adapted to do good to the working-classes."
Baptist Messenger.

In speaking of the MARATHAI TRANSLATION the Bombay Guardian says:—

"It is the memoir of a man who for many years was the slave of sin, was powerfully converted to God, and during the remainder of his life was characterised by singular devotedness to the service of God and his fellow-men."

TELL JESUS: Recollections of Emily Gosse.
By ANNA SHIPTON. ILLUSTRATED. (50,000.)

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord. . . . We have read the book with deep interest. We would that indolent professors might read it and be quickened, and that suffering saints might read it and be comforted."—Christian Times.

"Calculated to produce a certain impression upon the hearts of true Christians that will be greatly beneficial to them."—Sword and Trowel.

"We have read this work with interest. It contains much that is suggestive and important."
Gospel Magazine.

JOHN B. GOUGH, The Great Temperance Orator.
ILLUSTRATED. (50,000.)

"An admirable pennyworth, giving a clear and well told account of Mr. Gough's early sorrows and sins, and the great deliverance God wrought for him."—Christian Miscellany.

"An illustrated sketch of this remarkable man. It is a marvellous pennyworth, and ought to sell by scores of thousands."—Gospel Magazine.

"This brief sketch has all the charm of a romance, combined with the force of argument and impassioned appeal."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This should command an immense circulation, and should do immense good."—Baptist Messenger.

"A capital illustrated Life of the great temperance orator for ONE PENNY."
Presbyterian Messenger.

"It is written in an attractive style; large in size; clearly printed in readable type; and contains several Illustrations. It is a wonderful pennyworth, and deserves to be distributed by thousands."
Nonconformist.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BACK OF VOLUME.

The Christian Portrait Gallery:

VERY SUITABLE FOR A PRESENT.

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED well-executed Portraits of well-known Christian Men and Women of the present day. Each Portrait is accompanied by a well-written Biographic Sketch.

Over 400 pages of Letterpress. Demy Quarto, Attractively Bound, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

As a CHRISTMAS or NEW YEAR'S Present.

"This is certainly a splendid volume. The Portraits are beautifully executed: and in all the instances in which we can speak from personal knowledge, are like. To each Portrait a written Biographical Notice is appended. Paper, printing, and binding are superb. This is a volume which would ornament any drawing-room table. What an elegant Christmas or New Year present it will make!"

Christian Age, October 25, 1889.

"These Portraits and Biographies of over one hundred noteworthy Christian men and women are here collected into a handsomely-bound quarto volume, such as would make a splendid present for Christmas."

Methodist Times, November 7, 1889.

"This 'Portrait Gallery' can claim a high artistic value, and yet the smallness of its price brings it within the reach of many. What a capital Christmas-box it would make!"

Sword and Trowel, December, 1889.

"This handsome volume will form a most appropriate and acceptable Christmas present."

Irish Baptist Magazine, November, 1889.

"No more beautiful or more acceptable book has recently been issued from the press than The Christian Portrait Gallery. Whether one regards it merely as a work of art, or as helpful and stimulating literature, it alike gives the greatest satisfaction. There are over one hundred portraits of ministers and Christian men of all classes and creeds, and they are real likenesses, finished in the best style. And the letterpress is in every respect worthy of the portraiture work. Nothing could be more fit for a gift-book than this beautiful volume."

Christian Commonwealth, November 21, 1889.

"A handsome book. A collection of about one hundred fine portraits of leading Christian men, about two-thirds of whom are living. A biographic sketch is given of each. A good book for a present to a friend."—The Freeman, October 25, 1889.

For the Drawing-room Table.

"A beautifully-bound volume in good type, on [illegible] paper. It will be much valued as a nice accompaniment to a drawing-room table, and a useful book of reference. It is a good thing at a glance at the faces of so many men and women, all of whom, in various ways, have been widely known as having worked for the establishment of God's kingdom during the present decade."

The Friend, November, 1889.

"All who can purchase the volume will be very pleased with it. It is beautifully printed and bound. A real drawing-room book!"

Christian Progress, December, 1889.

As a Volume for the Library.

"Next to the study of God's Word, there is [illegible] to edifying and stimulating as the careful reading of faithful biography. A work like the present has, therefore, a distinct aim in stimulating spiritual life by the presentation of striking examples; and we hope this useful mission may be largely fulfilled. The binding of the volume renders it an ornament to the table, while its contents make it a valuable addition to the library."—Footsteps of Truth, November, 1889.

As a Present to a Minister, Sunday-school Superintendent, or Teacher.

"Rev. Frederick Brown, who recently resigned his pastorate of twenty-four years at M——, . . . received from the children of the Sunday-school a richly-bound copy of THE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY."—British Weekly, November 1, 1889.

For Sending to Friends Abroad.

"The features and history of workers whose names have become familiar in connection with many noble causes possess an especial interest in many distant lands as well as at home; and on this ground, as well as on its intrinsic merits, THE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY should command a ready sale."—Literary World, October 25, 1889.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in Great Britain or the Colonies.

PEOPLE'S BIBLE UNION.

CALENDARS FOR 1890 NOW READY. Especially adapted for Working People. For particulars send stamped and addressed envelope to

Rev. HERBERT H. DIBBEN,
The Rectory,
Brierley Hill.

Local Secretaries wanted.

FRIENDS OF

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES

Visiting in the South of France, may forward CHRISTMAS GIFTS or NEW YEAR'S OFFERINGS towards the support of the 3,250 Homeless and Destitute Boys and Girls now resident in the Homes, to

CHEYNE BRADY, Esq.,
Les Syrphes, Cannes;

or, to the Office of the Homes, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

SILENT SUFFERING IN EAST LONDON.—During the recent cold weather, with severe frost in London, one of the most afflictive homes we visited was that of a respectable Christian widow, over sixty years of age, who had only just got about from an attack of Bronchitis, and was this bitter cold day making match-boxes at 2¼d. per gross (288 pieces), without a particle of fire in her grate, or means to procure it. We could well distribute a few tons of coal just now.

NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSION.

F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer.
WILLIAM CHORLEY, Director.
2, Marquess Grove, Canonbury, London, N.

BY FAR THE LARGEST

TEMPERANCE MUSIC SELLERS

ARE

J. CURWEN & SONS,

8 & 9, Warwick-lane, London, E.C. Send for List.

Sixth Edition. Just Out, in New Type, price 2s. 6d.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

AN EIGHTFOLD ANSWER.

By JOHN CLIFFORD, M.A., D.D.

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON says: "A fine book. . . . His work is well done, and is of a high order of literary effort; but we like best its firm faith and bright encouragement to souls half blinded by the smoke of life's fierce battle."

MARLBOROUGH & Co., Old Bailey, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed under carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in the large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where permitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are now seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings on board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is supported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

PRESIDENT—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

ARE for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught Trades as Tailors, Shoemakers, Carpenters, Engineers, Bakers, Steam Printers, and Gardeners; and then provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

Are for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruction in Lithography, Telegraphy, Photography, Chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS.—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1,000 have already been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be thankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary.

Offices—BANK BUILDINGS, LUDGATE CIRCUS, E.C. BENJAMIN CLARKE.

Bankers—Messrs. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

SEAMEN'S CHRISTIAN FRIEND SOCIETY.

President:—GEORGE WILLIAMS, Esq.

This Society supports Bethels, Sailors' Rests, Reading-rooms, Schools, Mission Boats, and Bible Carriage.

It employs twenty missionaries and agents among Seamen and Fishermen in London and twenty other ports.

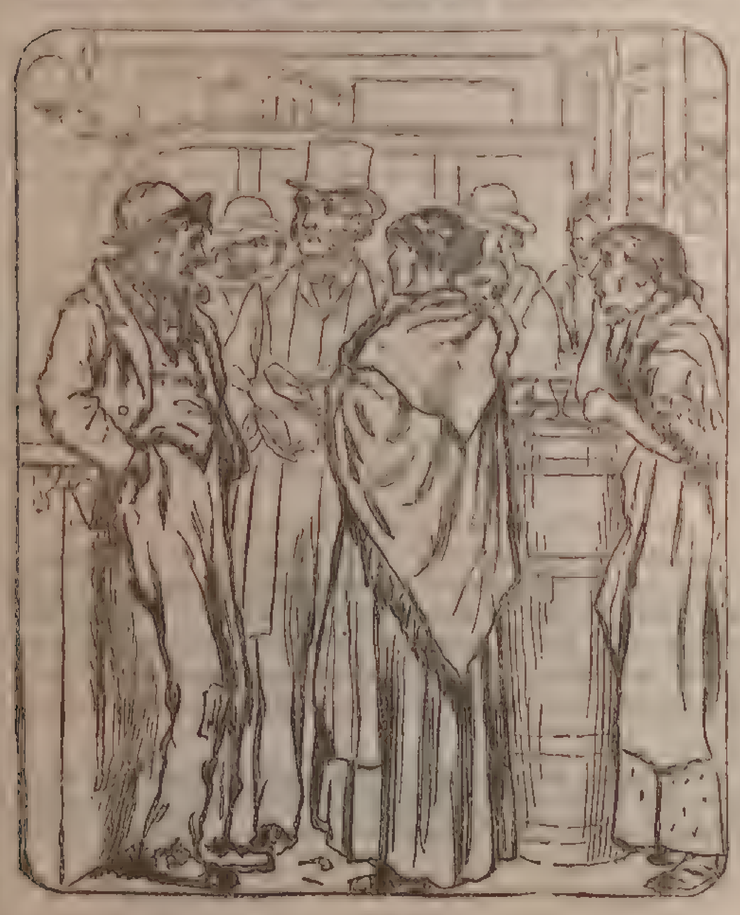
It carries on a large Gospel-Temperance work, provides ships with Loan Libraries, Corresponds with Seamen abroad, and affords relief to distressed Seamen.

The work has been signally blessed throughout the past year, and has resulted in the conversion of large numbers of Seamen, and the reclamation of many of the intemperate.

Owing to enlargement of the work and the purchase of a New Sailors' Rest, the banking account is overdrawn to the amount of nearly £600!

Help is therefore most urgently needed, and will be gratefully received, by GEORGE JOHN HILL, Secretary, 255, Burdett-road, Limehouse, E.; or, by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, at the Offices of THE CHRISTIAN.

WORK AMONGST MEN.



THERE are large bodies of men among the myriads of toilers in our metropolis who entirely neglect public worship.

Left to themselves, these masses of men become unchristianised, infidel and depraved, adding largely to the dangerous classes.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

in addition to its 393 Missionaries on ordinary districts, by its staff of 105 special and well-qualified Missionaries, is bringing large numbers of these men under the upraising influence of the Gospel of Christ.

Last year 72,827 visits were paid to poor Foreigners in our City, and 1,049 religious services were held for them in their various languages.

In upwards of 10,000 public-houses, quite 200,000 persons were reasoned with upon religion and temperance. Upwards of 85,000 factory people were instructed in the Gospel, and many attended the 1,782 meetings held for their benefit.

The Sabbathless tram-car, omnibus and railway-men received upwards of 200,000 visits in the public ways, at the stations, and in their homes.

The known results of this earnest seeking to save the lost is most satisfactory. Tens of thousands have been rightly influenced, and during the past year, 486 communicants have been won from amongst them, hundreds of drunkards have been reformed, and many thousands who have sunk back from the hard struggle of life have, in the time of sickness and approaching death, received consolation.

To support and extend this great work for the Lord Jesus, large funds are urgently needed. Further and full particulars will be gladly given, and contributions will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or by the Secretaries, 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.; or by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR SUNDAY TRAINS?

IN the letter addressed to the Angel of the Church in Pergamos, in the second chapter of Revelation, after words in commendation of the Church's faithfulness, we read: "But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine (teaching) of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a stumblingblock before the children of Israel."

Balak was king of Moab, at the time when the Israelites, after their forty years' wandering in the wilderness, were about to enter the land of Canaan. They had already defeated and slain the two most formidable kings east of the Jordan—Sihon and Og. Balak saw that there was no possibility of resisting such enemies by force of arms. He sought, therefore, to overcome them with other weapons. He called Balaam to his aid.

Balaam was one of those who, though not of the family of Abraham, yet had knowledge of the true God. He was a prophet. From his distant home beyond the Euphrates the fame of him had reached Balak. His blessing and his curse, it was believed, were alike all-powerful. If Balak can induce him to come and curse Israel, that will be the surest and easiest way of escape from the impending danger.

He sends messengers to Balaam accordingly, and although Balaam declares that he will do only what God tells him to do, and say only what God tells him to say, yet the temptation held out by Balak proves too strong for him, and he goes away with the princes of Moab, notwithstanding repeated indications of God's displeasure.

The narrative that follows in the Book of Numbers is one of the strangest in the Old Testament. It shows us these two men conspiring together in a vain attempt to resist the Almighty. Over and over again they build their altars and offer their sacrifices. Over and over again, with hotter anger and louder entreaty, Balak urges Balaam to curse. And over and over again, Balaam, willing enough to curse, is constrained to bless.

To understand the full significance of this narrative, we must bear in mind the difference between these two men. This difference is very strikingly shown in the brief conversation between them recorded by the prophet Micah. Balak inquires of Balaam, "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?" To which Balaam replies, "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Balak was an idolater. Balaam was a worshipper of the true God. Balak knew no way of securing God's favour but by sacrifice, and was willing, apparently, to do what his successor long afterwards, in the time of Jehoshaphat, actually did—offer up his own eldest son. Balaam knew that such a sacrifice would not be acceptable to God, and was even so far enlightened as to understand that in any case "to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

And yet here we find this same Balaam endeavouring, under cover of multiplied sacrifices, to curse those whom God had declared to be blessed. Balaam is a conspicuous example of the folly of trying to "serve God and mammon." He knows what is the better course, and he follows the worse. His religious conviction points him in one direction, but his selfish ambition draws him in the opposite. He would fain persuade himself, and for a while he does persuade himself, that he is acting under the divine sanction and with the divine approval. The blindness of Balak is the blindness of helpless ignorance. The blindness of Balaam is the blindness of wilful self-deception. The sin of Balak is the sin of a man who has never had an opportunity of knowing the true God. The sin of Balaam is the sin of a man who knows the true God and yet chooses his own pleasure in preference to God's.

But the passage in the letter to the Angel of the Church in Pergamos refers to something that happened after this first visit of Balaam to Balak. Finding that his power to curse had failed him, Balaam devised another method of working the ruin of Israel. His plan now was to induce the children of Israel to join in the idolatrous rites and licentious practices of the Moabites, in order that God's anger might on account of these iniquities be kindled against them. The plan was communicated to Balak, and forthwith put into execution. It proved only too successful. The children of Israel fell into the snare. They sinned. The anger of the Lord was kindled against them. A plague broke out in the camp, and twenty-four thousand of the people perished. They who could not be overcome by force of arms were overcome by temptations to sin.

Thus Balaam "taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel."

It is well to distinguish here again between different degrees of guilt. The children of Israel were unquestionably guilty. The temptation may explain the sin, but it does not in the least degree excuse the sin. But the guilt of Balak was greater than that of the Israelites. He placed the temptation in their way purposely that they might fall into it. And greatest of all was the guilt of Balaam. The plan was of his invention. The whole train of evil had its starting-point in him. He knew that sin was hateful in God's sight, and he used that knowledge for the accomplishment of his own diabolical purpose. In proportion to the higher enlightenment possessed by him as compared with Balak, in that proportion was his sin blacker than the sin of Balak.

There is a solemn warning here to all persons who for their own aggrandisement lead others to break God's commandments. Every man is responsible, not only for the sins he himself commits, but also for the sins he induces others to commit. When Adam and Eve sinned, the first words of judgment were pronounced, not on them, but on the tempter who had tempted them to sin. Whatever the guilt of the transgressor in any case may be, the guilt of the man who leads him into the transgression is greater.

This is a principle that finds many applications in modern social life. One of these calls for special mention.

Among the numerous evils that prevail in Christian lands, one of the most deplorable is SABBATH-DESECRATION. It is dishonouring to God. It is injurious to man. It weakens the bulwarks of religion and virtue. It gives encouragement to every kind of wickedness.

Now a large proportion of the sabbath-desecration takes place on railways, steamboats, and other means of conveyance. Who is most responsible for this? On whom does the blame chiefly lie? Take a railway company, for example, that runs trains on the Lord's Day, and observe how the above principle applies to it.

The servants of the Company are doing wrong, no doubt. They are doing work on the day on which God commands them to do no work. A railway servant may try to excuse himself by saying that if he were to refuse to work on the sabbath he would lose his situation. But considerations of that kind do not justify in the slightest degree disobedience to God's command. He is bound to do right, no matter what may be the consequences.

More blameworthy than the railway servants are the passengers. They do not "remember the sabbath day to keep it holy;" and thus they break the commandment themselves. But besides that, they give their sanction and encouragement to the violation of the Lord's Day by others. To say that the trains will run in any case, whether they travel by them or not, is no excuse whatever. The statement is not even true. If there were no passengers, there would be no trains. But apart from this, every man is responsible for the influence he exercises, for the effect which his example has on his neighbours. If he travels by rail on the Lord's Day, he not only fails himself to keep the day holy, but also does something to confirm and carry on a sabbath-breaking system.

Most blameworthy of all, however, are the shareholders and directors. It is by them that the sabbath-breaking system is owned and managed. It is they who offer the inducements to sabbath desecration. It is they who require the railway servants to work on the Lord's Day, in disobedience to the divine command, and perhaps also in violation of conscientious scruples. It is they who place the stumbling-block before men, tempting them to sin against God.

What can they say in self-defence? I am not referring now to those who make no profession of religion, and who do not regard the sabbath as possessing any peculiar sanctity. I am referring to those who claim membership in the Christian church. As a shareholder or director in a railway company that runs trains on the Lord's Day, what can a Christian man say in self-defence?

(1) He may say, perhaps, that he does not himself travel by rail on the Lord's Day, and is not responsible for the conduct of others who do. Balaam might have said the same thing. He did not himself participate in the idolatrous rites and licentious practices in which the Israelites became involved, and he was not responsible for their wrong-doing. The Bible, however, plainly declares that he was responsible; and common sense not less plainly says so too; and Balaam's own conscience, had he but given it fair play, would have convinced him of it. Equally plain is it that if railway servants and passengers are guilty of breaking the Fourth Commandment, those who tempt the latter, and practically compel the former to do this, are not less guilty.

But, in addition to this, it should be remembered that the Fourth Commandment expressly enjoins that neither "thou nor . . . . thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant," shall do any work on the sabbath. Masters are thus explicitly held accountable for the right observance of the day by their servants. And thus shareholders in railways are bound, not merely on the general principle that it is wrong to tempt any one to sin, but by the very wording of the commandment itself, to see to it that no work is required of their employés on the sabbath.

(2) Again, it may be said by our Christian shareholder, that Sunday trains are needed, and that a certain amount of Sunday-work on railways is justifiable on the ground of necessity. Trains must run to carry the mails. Trains must run, in London for example, to take people to church, and tramcars, in many another place, for the same reason.

This last argument can hardly be meant seriously. That sabbath-desecration should be necessary to enable people to observe the sabbath, is surely the height of absurdity. Those who travel to church by train or tram might, in nearly all cases, attend some other place of worship belonging to their own denomination nearer home. If they pass by a church that is near and easy of access, and choose in preference one that is distant, they have no right to gratify this preference at the expense of disobedience to God's command.

As to the carrying of the mails, the idea that that is indispensable is a mere fancy springing from the haste and hurry characteristic of these modern times. The indispensability of a thing depends very much on the point of view from which it is regarded. To a burglar, a "jemmy" is indispensable, but that does not prove that he is justified in using it.

The truth is, the supposed necessity for Sunday trains has been created by Sunday trains. The demand has arisen out of the supply. But the demand does not in any degree justify the supply.

(3) Once more. Our Christian shareholder may declare that he himself disapproves of sabbath trains, and would gladly discontinue them, but he is in a minority, and therefore cannot give effect to his wishes.

In that case he ought certainly to try by all means to bring over the majority to his way of thinking, and if he finds his efforts in that direction fruitless, then he ought to withdraw from the Company. It is true some one else will take his place, whose influence may be no better or no more external than his. But so long as he remains a shareholder, the acts of the Company are his acts, and the sins of the Company are sins of which he shares the responsibility. "It is impossible but that offences will come—but woe unto him through whom they come!"

In short, there is no possible justification for the proprietors of railway and other companies that carry on their business on the sabbath as on other days. Like Balaam, they are placing a stumbling-block before the people to cause them to sin.

But there is something worse still. Not only do trains and steamboats run on the sabbath as on other days, but, in many cases, special inducements in the way of excursions and cheap fares are held out on the Lord's Day, such as are not provided on other days. Here the evil appears in its most aggravated form. Not content with putting temptation in men's way, the railway companies invite men to fall into it. Not content with placing the stumblingblock before the people, they do what they can to make the stumbling block as attractive as possible.

And this, be it observed, is done from a purely self-interested motive—for the sake of gain—for the sake of a larger dividend. Now and then, perhaps, we may hear some philanthropic remark about the people needing facilities for recreation; but the philanthropy that would hinder or destroy the welfare of the soul for the sake of promoting the welfare of the body, is surely of a very questionable kind. No one believes that railway companies, in running excursion trains on the sabbath, are prompted thereto by motives of philanthropy. Their object is the same as that of Balaam—to advance their own private interests.

The thirteenth chapter of first Kings contains a very singular narrative, that is worth pondering by everyone who is tempted to disobey God's commandments: the narrative of the man of God who came out of Judah to Bethel to prophesy against the altar that Jeroboam had erected there. He was sent on this mission by the Lord, and he was enjoined further to accept no hospitality from anyone in going or returning. It was a mission involving no small personal risk, and the execution of it brought upon him the anger of the king. But he did execute it notwithstanding; and when the king, convinced of his error, invited him to partake of refreshment, he refused. Evidently this man was sincerely and earnestly devoted to the Lord's service. And yet, immediately afterwards, when the old prophet of Bethel overtook him and gave him an invitation to eat and drink at his house, silencing the other's scruples by declaring falsely that he was acting under direction of an angel, the man of God went with him and ate and drank at his house. Thus he disobeyed the Lord, and [illegible] lion slew him as he went on his journey.

If ever disobedience was excusable, this was. Plainly the teaching of the Bible is, that when God gives us a command we are bound to obey it. No matter how our own self-interest, or the perverted ingenuity of others, may suggest limitations or exceptions to the command, when God gives us a command we are bound to obey it. "To obey is better than sacrifice." [illegible] that, though he did not act upon it. The man of God from Judah knew it, though he was entertaining and entertaining it. What befel them should warn us of the danger of tampering with [illegible] God.

The ninth chapter of Ezekiel conveys a similar warning in a different way. It sets before us the Lord's judgment of the righteous and the wicked—acquittal for the former, vengeance on the latter. Seven men are sent forth through the city of Jerusalem, one carrying an inkhorn, the others armed with weapons of destruction. The one with the inkhorn is told to set a mark on the foreheads of all who sigh and cry for the abominations that are done in the city. The others are to follow him and slay everyone who has not this mark, showing no mercy to either age or sex. They are directed moreover to begin at the Lord's sanctuary, and they begin accordingly "at the ancient men which were before the house." And when all is over, the man with the inkhorn makes his report: "I have done as Thou hast commanded me."

The city, be it observed, is Jerusalem, the city of God, the holy city. Among those who dwell in Christian lands and bear the Christian name, there are many who do things that are "abominations" in the eyes of the Lord. His judgment shall fall on them, notwithstanding their privileges. Nay, all the swifter and surer shall His judgment on them be, just because of their privileges. "Begin at My sanctuary," He says. Begin with those who stand highest in privilege. Begin with those who have enjoyed fullest enlightenment. Begin with those who have defiled the stream at its fountain head. They are the guiltiest of all. They have misused their advantages. They have sinned themselves, and they have led others into sin as well.

Would that these words of Him who came to save the lost might find a lodgment in men's memories and hearts—"Whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea."

J. H. M.

January 3, 1890.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Rev. S. A. Selwyn, of St. James's Church, Hatcham, New Cross.

Not in any mere conventional sense, but with heartfelt sincerity, we wish for all our friends a very happy and prosperous New Year. While thanking them, contributors and readers alike, for their kind help in the past, we desire a continued interest in their individual and family intercessions with God, that much wisdom and discretion may be vouchsafed in the editing of this journal. This is all the more needful, in view of the growing movements and the thickening controversies of the time.

Among the communications that cheered with hope the close of the year, was one by Mr. Gaze, which was written from Jerusalem. After seven visits to the Holy City, he speaks of the suggestive changes he now observes. Instead of the old dreariness on the western side, the whole plain is covered with private Jewish residences; instead of being impassable, the principal streets are now paved with stone, and good roads are in course of construction to chief places in Palestine. Unfailing sources of water are being supplied; factories erected; and a railway planned between Jerusalem and the coast, which is to be connected with the ports of the Mediterranean steamers.

Mr. Joseph Thomson's book, which has recently been published, "Travels in the Atlas and Southern Morocco," records experiences of much value. It rebukes, so far as these Moorish Mohammedans go, the sentimental fashion of praising the religion of Islam. The traveller describes these Moslems as the most punctilious people for religious observance on the face of the earth, and at the same time the most immoral. Moral conduct, indeed, counts for nothing; murder, rapine, lying, and unnatural vices, exist among the highest and lowest in an extraordinary degree.

The Jews in the villages and towns of the Atlas are spoken of as very numerous. They are degraded, sordid, and hated. But this is favourable for missionary efforts among them. They have not the pride of many European Jews. They regard their heavy sufferings as brought on them for the sins of their fathers, and the events at hand may find many of them more prepared than other Israelites.

If only the new Labour Regulation Bill, which has been laid before the French Senate by Monsieur de Munn, receives sanction, a great revolution will be effected in France. The bill provides for the abolition of Sunday work, a reduction of the hours of labour to ten per day, and the appointment in each large industrial centre of a central committee to deal with questions affecting labour and capital. Important as each of these points is, the clause affecting Sunday work is the most remarkable, and if the people only studied their own interest they would exercise all their influence in support of it. In any case the movement is valuable as showing in what direction popular feeling is going.

The late Mr. Robert Browning, in his last volume of poems, thus expressed his contempt for the vivisector:—

> I, who would have no end of brutes
> Cut up alive to guess what suits
> My case, and saves my toe from shoots.

Referring to the renewed discussion of this question, The Hospital says:—

> Most of our active vivisectors are young men who have fame still to win, and who hope to win it by discovery. In Germany and France, no doubt, the case is different. But Great Britain has seldom taken her cue from any Continental nation without regretting it. Our own homely common sense, and simplicity of conscience, have always been our best guides. We ought to consider whether a more careful and thorough use of clinical methods will not really advance the healing art more than vivisection.

In a recent sermon, the Bishop of Chester, after remarking upon the superstition and ultra-ceremonial of the Middle Ages, and reminding his hearers that both as a Church and as a nation they ought to be deeply thankful for the Reformation, said that Popery would sooner or later breed Puritanism, and that Puritanism would sooner or later breed Popery. Whilst declining to endorse this sentiment, especially the latter portion of it, it may be worth while to note what the much-maligned Puritanism really was. Briefly, on its public or political side it was a protest against despotism; on its social side, against immorality; on its ecclesiastical side, against the corruptions, the intolerance, the coquetting with Rome, which characterised certain leaders of the Anglican Church. On its religious side it was a practical plea for spiritual earnestness and vigour, and for a pure and simple form of worship, and a protest against ceremonialism, mediæval tradition, and formalism.

It was not a bare abstract theory of government, nor a mere fortuitous concourse of fanatical sectaries, nor a petrified dogmatism. It was, as has been well said, "not so much a creed or a code, but a life"—a life, moreover, which was lived "on the sides of eternity." Such a life will never breed Popery. It would be well if the England of to day were infused with more of the spirit of moral purity, sobriety, steadiness, and thoroughness, which characterised the true Puritan.

For some time it has been recognised that licentiates for the ministry in connection with the Irish Presbyterian Church received no adequate training, previous to their ordination, in congregational work. To remedy this defect, a system of apprenticeship is proposed, by which licentiates will be placed under the care of senior ministers, from whom they can have the opportunity of learning much that will be helpful to them in future ministerial work. The plan seems an excellent one.

A prominent Baptist Church in Philadelphia has in time past made use of entertainments of various kinds to raise funds. It has come to realise that besides the time and labour thus spent, the method has been attended with a loss of spiritual power, and has led to the obtaining of a revenue for the Lord's work by considerations of material and worldly advantage. It has therefore adopted the resolution—"That hereafter no entertainments, such as suppers, festivals, fairs, concerts, &c., shall be given by this church, or held in this house for the purpose of raising money."

The years come and go, but the Romish Apostasy consistently continues to be the troubler of the nations and the families of the earth. It has sometimes been suggested by sanguinely simple writers that the Pope should be recognised as a universal mediator and peacemaker—the arch-arbitrator of the world. A more foolish and futile proposal was never hatched in the human brain. Our columns to-day bear ample evidence that the system of which the Pope is the apex, is responsible for much, if not most, of the national and social unrest that we find around us. Whether in Brazil, Africa, or the South Sea Island of Maré; whether in Belgium, Ireland, America, or Italy; whether in London or in Glasgow, the schemings and plottings of this intolerant and inquisitorial confederacy are doing their best or their worst to upset the reign of peace and goodwill that Christ came to inaugurate.

It is scarcely surprising that Brazil does not at once settle down to a stable and permanent form of government. In that country there are all the elements that have made other Latin States in the Western Hemisphere notorious for frequent revolutions. Besides, there is in Brazil a dissatisfied and grasping Roman Catholic priesthood, eager to encourage change of political rule, in the hope of regaining that supremacy which will tolerate no other form of religion.

The London Missionary Society has published a pamphlet giving a full and detailed account of the efforts made to induce the French Government to investigate the circumstance connected with the expulsion of Rev. John Jones from the island of Maré two years ago, and the failure of those efforts. The English Government has laudably sought to aid the Society in this endeavour to obtain simple justice, but in vain. The result is not creditable to our Gallic neighbours, and is but another instance of the working of the cloven foot of Rome.

All true friends of freedom in the sister isle should get the January issue of The Christian Irishman (1d. Mecredy & Kyle, Middle Abbey-street, Dublin), and read Rev. Thomas Connellan's chapters on "Ireland and Toleration." America speaks loudly enough through the "Nun of Kenmare's" new book, "Life inside the Church of Rome," just published by Messrs. Hodder &

Stoughton: to the tremendous indictment of Popery embodied in that volume we hope to refer more fully in an early issue.

Our readers will see from an article on another page that the Romanists are pursuing the same tactics with Mr. Quarrier in Scotland as with Dr. Barnardo in England. We earnestly hope that our readers will procure and study Dr. Barnardo's supplement to Night and Day for December, containing the correspondence he has had with Cardinal Manning's secretary. This correspondence proves to demonstration, on the one hand, the injustice of the charge of proselytism, which has been brought against Dr. Barnardo, and on the other hand, the truth of the charge of conspiracy which Dr. Barnardo has brought against the Roman Catholics.

We also beg the attention of our readers to the article by M. Emile de Laveleye, reprinted from The Pall Mall Gazette, showing the tyrannous character of the Romish Apostasy by a recital of recent acts, and making manifest the utter hopelessness of the Quixotic endeavour of the Special Commissioner of the newspaper mentioned, to place the Vatican in the van of Christianity, or even of humanitarianism.

On another page we give the detailed announcements relating to the observance of the Week of Prayer in London, in the arrangement of which the Evangelical Alliance rightly takes a leading place. The list of gatherings this year is larger than ever; we trust that may be regarded as indicative of a growing spirit of prayerful union and co-operation among Christians of every name. Nothing, humanly speaking, can be reckoned upon as the sure harbinger of spiritual revival, like a widespread unity of heart and purpose among all the true believing children of the King.

In this connection we would also draw attention to the sermon by Rev. H. C. G. Moule, of Cambridge, to be delivered at St. Paul's Church, Onslow-square, S.W., at 7.30 p.m., on Wednesday, January 15. We understand that Mr. Moule's discourse will have special reference to present day difficulties, and to the duty of evangelical Christians in the face of the tendencies and signs of the time.

We heartily hail the presence of Dr. Pierson amongst us in London during this month as an omen of good for the opening year. After the Week of Prayer, which has long borne such a close connection with the advance of foreign missions, it is right that London Christians should take counsel together about this important matter. The wide knowledge and burning advocacy of Dr. Pierson must materially aid in setting the work of the Christian Church in its proper light. The stirring article on another page from our evergreen friend, Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, has a special interest at this crisis.

We hear it whispered in various quarters that the sharp political divisions of the time are doing much damage to the temperance cause, in preventing united effort. If this is really true to any great extent, it is a deplorable state of things. Why should not those who are at variance, conscientiously enough, on questions of national "politics," agree to differ on that point, and at the same time agree to unite in fighting a great social enemy like the demon alcohol?

The closing of the old year has brought with it sore and heavy trials to the Salvation Army. In addition to the illness of Mrs. Booth, which, it is feared, must be fatal, we hear with regret that Mr. Bramwell Booth, her eldest son, is laid up with a severe inflammatory attack. Then, close on the fire at the Queen Victoria-street headquarters, there came a disastrous conflagration at Charterhouse-square, in which the volumes of the Annual Report of the Army for 1889 were almost entirely destroyed. Those subscribers who are expecting copies will therefore have to exercise some forbearance, in view of the time needed for reprinting. We feel sure we may ask the sympathetic and prayerful interest of our readers for the leaders and operations of the Army in this time of trial.

LORD RADSTOCK addressed a large gathering at the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, Apollo Bunder, Bombay, on Dec. 1, kindly opening up the subject of sanctification. He also spoke at the Bombay Missionary Conference, enlarging upon the progress of evangelical religion on the Continent of Europe. On following days he addressed seamen, English-speaking natives (Parsees, Hindus, and Mohammedans), and others. "Man's Need of God," and the difference between religiousness and true religion, were the topics of two of the addresses.

THE LATE RICHARD JEFFERIES.—A writer in The Girl's Own Paper for January, tells of this lamented and gifted lover of nature, how, in his latest days, "after all his blind and passionate struggles towards the fuller life, he learnt what it is to rest in the fulness of Him that filleth all in all. At last he turned away from all the mists of doubt to the Light of Life, and it was no grudging half-hearted allegiance that his proud and lofty spirit yielded to its Lord. Throughout the weary months that preceded his death, his Bible was his constant companion, nor was he ashamed to confess with his mouth the change wrought in him."

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a mission by Rev. W. Haslam, at St. Paul's Church, Blackburn, beginning Jan. 4.——For blessing on special services at Gloucester, on Sunday next, by Mr. Opie Rodway.——For blessing on the Perthshire Christian Union Conference at Dunning, on Saturday, Jan. 4.——For blessing on a fortnight's mission at Dartmouth, by Mr. J. Harris.——For blessing on a month's mission by Messrs. Middleton and Hogben, at the Great Hall, Hanley, commencing Jan. 4.——For blessing on a mission at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Kensington Park-road, Notting Hill, commencing Sunday, Jan. 5, by Charles Cook.——For a great blessing on the Christmas Letter Mission.——For the visit (on evangelistic work) of Miss Smith and Miss Bax, to Ireland, commencing on Sunday next.——For blessing on a mission conducted by Rev. W. A. Meaton, at Tiverton, from Jan. 4 to 12.

An admirable engraving of the late Robert Browning, well suited for framing, recently appeared as a supplement to The Illustrated London News.

BE AS HAPPY AS YOU CAN. In this "holiday word of counsel" to lads, Rev. Charles Bullock expatiates in an appropriate vein on the true sources and conditions of lasting happiness (1d. Home Words Office.).

CROSSES, CRUCIFIXES, AND MUSICAL SERVICES. By Rev. A. Metcalfe, vicar of Gorsley, Gloucestershire. 1d. Kensit. The facts and arguments in this tract ought to be widely disseminated at the present time, when there is so much confounding of the cross with the Christ who died thereon.

PRAY. This is the title of a booklet, 6d. per dozen. It not only shows the way to end all evil, and obtain all good, it also contains precious truth on the oneness of all believers, and would be a very suitable New Year's present to church members and other Christians. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling.

MAIDENHOOD. By "Doris." 2d. Iliffe & Son, 3, St. Bride-street, Ludgate-circus. A booklet of which we cannot speak too highly. Sound sense and a spiritual tone characterise every page. The contents include gracious counsels on subjects of prime importance. We trust this excellent little work will find its way into the hands of thousands of young women.

A Mischievous Attempt at Retrograde Legislation.

SERVANTS of Satan not only love darkness, but exert themselves with great diligence to escape from reaping the evil fruit of their doings. Therefore, though it is, on more grounds than one, a fact sad to contemplate, it is not altogether surprising that endeavours are at present in progress in the Straits Settlements to over-ride the decision of the British Parliament, whereby the hateful Contagious Diseases Ordinance was summarily repealed. The several Municipal Governments are being urged to formulate and enforce regulations precisely similar to those which the Imperial Government, by force of Christian public opinion, was compelled to abandon.

We have received from Singapore the following letter, signed by the acting colonial chaplain and a number of missionaries:—

Singapore.

DEAR SIR,—Your readers, and particularly those among them who are members of the National Vigilance Committee, or Members of Parliament, will note that an attempt is to be made amongst us of over-riding the decisions of the English Parliament, whereby the C. D. Ordinance was summarily repealed. By changing the source of legislation in this matter from the Imperial to the Municipal Governments, it is sought to defeat the will of the nation in England's dependencies, and thus to re-enforce those odious laws which the conscience of the English people has declared shall not be enforced in any part of England's world-wide territory.

We can do nothing to help ourselves, except to draw your attention to the state of affairs, and to beg that you may not, from inattention to the question of this remote Colony, allow the thin edge of the wedge to be re-introduced. If the C. D. Ordinance be re-enforced here, Hong Kong, Ceylon, and India will follow, and we would therefore raise the cry of Io Pæan! or the whole battle will have to be fought over again.

In the interests of pure legislation by British officials in heathen lands,

We are, Dear Sir, Yours sincerely,
JOHN PERHAM, Acting Colonial Chaplain, Singapore.

[I sign this, because I believe it to be an effort to promote public morality; at the same time, I believe it to be the duty of Government to use all means to prevent the spread of contagious diseases whatever be their origin.
J. P.]

W. F. OLDHAM, Superintendent Methodist Missions, Malaysia.
WM. N. BREWSTER, Pastor, Methodist Episcopal Church, Singapore.
RALPH W. MUNSON, Methodist Missionary.
B. F. WEST, M.D., Methodist Missionary.
WM. MACDONALD, Penang, twenty-three years a missionary in the Straits Settlements.

[It is my opinion that legislation to promote marriage and prevent prostitution is the duty of Government. W. M.]

JOHN HAFFENDEN, Agent, British and Foreign Bible Society (for Malaysia).

For the misdeeds of colonial municipalities English Christians cannot hold themselves responsible in the same measure as for the deeds of the Imperial Government. Nevertheless, it is to be hoped that all that is possible will be done to save the minor powers from putting a premium upon impurity, and thus sinning against God.

The New Year.

BY REV. WILLIAM GUEST, F.G.S.

WITH a loud summons to faithful witnessing on the part of the followers of Christ, and to renewed demonstration of loyalty to Him, another year of this troubled and portentous century has opened. Grand beyond words is the influence during past ages of those who were "called into the fellowship" of the Lord Jesus Christ. He who in his exaltation "fails not nor is discouraged till He has set judgment in the earth" has inspired a devotion in his servants, the issues of which historians have neither discerned nor conceived. And the same heroic endurance, the same sacrifice of human aim and interest to advance his cause against world-powers of evil, must be the mark of those who are drawing nearer the day of his revelation. The decisive conflict has yet to come, and for aught we know the Second Advent is delayed that the crowning exemplars of unappalled faith and magnanimity may be manifested, and the number of those completed who will be with Christ as the chosen and faithful in his complete overthrowing of the Adversary, and his final putting down of "all rule, and all authority and power." Supreme consummation and most blessed privilege, to be permitted to be identified with Him in delivering up a restored kingdom to his Father!

To assure us, to awaken boldness, to animate to new demonstrations of the strength of godliness, and to sustain in faithful witnessing, by life and lip, in these last years of the century, there are now given to us unlocked and powerful of the things we have believed. It is not many years since believers in the Biblical account of man's origin were scorned and ridiculed. They were told to go to science for man's beginning, and not to Scripture. Science, they were informed, taught one certain lesson, and that was a continuous, unbroken evolution of organic life from the inorganic. Certainly if this were true there would be no need for any objective cause of man's origin: all is natural development. But let it be noted: it is science that has broken this assumed chain of continuity. Three conclusions are now patent: There is no trustworthy evidence whatever of life ever evolving itself from the inorganic; nor is the "proanthropos," or intermediate link between man, with his erect stature and intellectual faculties, and the animals, anywhere to be found; nor is there forthcoming any proof that the rude savagism, in which, according to such a view, man began his history, has ever, when unaided from without, advanced to civilisation and culture. The contrary is the fact: such unaided savagism sinks to ruder conditions.

CONFIRMATIONS

These are scientific conclusions. Their importance is immense. The ape-theory of the origin of man which was proclaimed twenty-five years ago is shown to have been a delusion. The deepest thinkers of our time come back to the old genesis of man, and the "last words of science which seal up the sum of its knowledge" proclaim that the true philosophy of the universe is that of a first Great Cause, the Creator, in whose will all rational creatures ought to move.

ACCUMULATING EVIDENCES.

The well-known geologist, Sir Wm. Dawson, a late President of the British Association, thus wrote a few weeks ago: "Christianity founds itself, its Founder Himself being witness, on the early chapters of the Bible, and the treatment which these ancient and inspired records have met with in modern times is doing its worst in aid of the anti-Christian tendencies of the time." To rebuke these tendencies and the reckless utterances of even Christian advocates, the earth has opened her hidden treasures to prove that these primitive records are veritable and genuine.

Marvellous are the results of topographical explorations now proceeding. To sceptics of former days Troy and its heroes were historical, and the histories of Scripture fabulous. Now, on the contrary, it is the former which are shown to be fabulous, and the latter authentic. Old classic stories are proved to be myths; while those of the Bible stand every test. Archæological investigations in Egypt, Babylonia, and Palestine are revealing confirmations of an historical exactness in Scripture, an accuracy in minutest details, which, instead of discrediting the Pentateuch and later books, promise verifications that will totally silence much of the rash criticism of these years, and convey an overwhelming testimony to the truthfulness of the Old Testament.

NEW TESTAMENT CRITICISM.

German critics—as Paulus, Strauss, and Baur—once formidable, now carry no authority. Naturalistic, mythical, and tendency theories, which were held to account for the origin of the New Testament, are shown to be baseless. It was said a few years ago that the four Gospels were legends brought out a century or two after the recorded events. Alas, for such a theory! Late scholarship is proving that the narratives of the Evangelists were sent forth during the life of many among whom the events occurred. It is the same also with the Epistles. The last and most triumphant corroboration of our faith justifies this conclusion: It would have been an absolute impossibility for Paul to have preached the great facts he proclaimed, and to have embodied them in letters which went through one half the cities of the Roman Empire, if those facts were not true.

Strong then, yea impregnable, is the vantage ground we now occupy. It was intended that the foundation of Christianity should be laid in words of the Great Teacher and of his Apostles, which would survive all controversies, which should be for the after ages the guide and the test of doctrine, and against which the gates of hell would not prevail. It becomes us, therefore, to enter on the demands of the last years of the century with HOPE IN GOD.

Let us glance for a moment at the secret of the destined witness of Israel in its noblest days. Placed in the very centre of geographical contact with the world, its influence was to be that of a people who set their hope in God. With what grandeur do Old Testament writers enter into this design! GOD, incomparable and beyond expression or even thought, in his almightiness and loving-kindness, is their perpetual theme. How is He magnified and exalted! How is He set forth as in every way perfect, filling all places, unchangeably faithful, and of boundless adequacy to every condition of man! The summit of Old Testament religion was glorying in God, making boast alone of God, never dismayed because of God, and making Him the portion of the soul. There was none like unto Him; wisdom and might were his; none could make trouble when He gave quietness; and, enwrapt in the all-sufficiency of God, his people might shout for joy of heart. Amid all darknesses, mysteries, and Gentile hostilities, the Temple song was sounded out, "Jehovah is King"; "He reigns," and "his foes will be his footstool." In their best days the people exulted with an unutterable and mighty joy: "This God is our God for ever and ever."

OUR KING AND HEAD.

Sometimes thought muses on what our race would have been had God made no revelation, either through a prophet or his Son. But we turn away appalled, and the imagination dare not rest upon the picture. Eternal praise be ours, and exultation higher than Israel could have known, as we take up the strain, "Thou, O Christ, hast made us most blessed for ever." At his coming his victory commenced over strongholds that comprehended legions of unclean spirits. His atoning death made demonstration before the universe of the rights of God and the infinite wrongs of sin; secured for us the abiding grace of the Spirit; and obtained for us a redemption of spirit, soul, and body inconceivable in its eternal blessedness.

The vision rises before the mind of the writer that the present drawing to one another of the Lord's servants will, ere the century closes, witness gatherings together, not to protest against error, however needful in its season; nor for exhortation, which has its place, but for expressing by songs and thanksgiving their joy in Christ. He is hidden from men by sensuous shows and teachings of unenlightened men. Who will inaugurate a period when believers come together exclusively to proclaim with united voice, Thou art the only Deliverer and King of Glory, O Christ!

Meanwhile, would that the younger preachers who are wearied with modern intellectualities and entertainments would make experiment of what prolonged waiting on God, time for contemplation strenuously rescued from the hurry of the age, and glowing testimonies of the love of Christ, would do for this generation. Ten thousand voices are crying out for this, and promising success to him who will conclusively break with new methods and try Paul's of magnifying Jesus Christ and Him crucified.*

THE NEEDED RESTORATION.

Amid the agitations and dissatisfactions of the times, three movements arise. They have great significance. The first is an attempt to formulate a felicitous combination between the cardinal truths of the Christian Scriptures and the human additions which have grown up during eighteen centuries in the form of administrations and dogmas. An endeavour of this nature has recently been made. Thirteen distinguished Episcopalians and Congregationalists have met, and during twelve conferences have sought to arrive at a nominal brotherhood. The outcome has been pitiable and we shall probably hear no more of it. The second bears the attractive promise of progress; it means an adaptation of Christianity to present intellectual and social developments. No mortal can define this, because there is no common understanding among its advocates: and to many who observe there seems nothing before it, through its lack of an ultimate standard and authority, but a progress to simple deism, and a powerless natural religion. The third attempt is to restore the influence of primitive Christianity. Spite of scoffings and disparagements, those who in their different localities are working to bring back the simplicity that is in Christ, comprise men and women of all ranks, of all degrees of culture, and of rare piety and consecration.

* The Spectator, a semi-secular journal, lately protested against what it termed, "The Gospel of Amusement." It pointed, among other examples, to the sons of the Pilgrim Fathers, to whom the United States owe what is noblest in their history, and who were not bred on amusements. Scotchmen could say the same of their great ones. Twenty years will show what young men have done for their times whose hunger of soul goes no further than to be fed on a diet of entertainment.

TROUBLOUS SIGNS.

Doubtless the foreview, as we near the last years of the century, is exceedingly serious. Nations are groaning under annual demands of hundreds of millions sterling in preparations for war. Between masters and workmen the feud is deep in many directions, and will, if not healed, dislocate society. In many places the Christianity in vogue, where it is not a superstition, has been made a negation, and the moral indignation of the Lord God against evil has been withdrawn from public teaching. Instead of men being drawn to religion thereby there is a presumptuous corruption in higher circles; among the lower, in cities, there have grown up seed-plots of hell; while over pastimes, art, trade, and fashions there has been written "without God."

Meanwhile, in pulpits the strange notion has been acted on that man is swayed in life by his intellect and not by his affections; heads have spoken to heads, and not hearts to hearts; the old pathway between the closet and the pulpit has been effaced, and public services turned into a concert or a performance. Can any deliverance come to us, and to the nations, but from the restoration of primitive Christianity? Can anything else prepare for the events at hand? We must be in co-operation with Christ's providential working in the heavenlies if we would triumph. Thank God, our Christianity comprehends all times, and all sequents of sinful conditions. No social developments can be ahead of it, and no intellectual advancement can exhaust it. It unites the link that has been sundered between man and his Maker, and without this restoration there can be neither healing nor obedience. With this there is not an evil that threatens the age which has not an antidote.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

The call is urgent, and the summons is enforced by the gravest perils, that all who belong to Christ should be united as one man. A union of denominations will do little. Churches are too much composed of unsaved and carnal men for such a unity to suffice. In these churches separateness from "the course of this world" is no longer an obligation. Religious earnestness is called vulgar and "out of form." Broad theology is, in many of them, becoming a craving and a fashion, and this is, as has been said, the breadth of a river which is no longer a clear stream, but has broken down its banks and flows over pestilent swamps. The apex of apostasy is being reached in Christian teaching and worldly living; a superstructure of attractiveness with no foundation of sustaining strength. No: the supreme and most urgent demand of the times is not a union of churches, as such, but a Christian unity.

O ye that love the Lord, hear the call of the Spirit. "Whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule" (Phil. iii. 16). Put from you Pharisaic isolation. In view of the seriousness of the times, let your essential oneness be made manifest. Unsifted prejudices are grieving your Lord. Ye are a great army, be not weakened by the divisions you create. In the churches where you are found brave odium by your firm witness on behalf of spiritual worship, sound doctrine, and unworldly methods and lives. And with this stand by your brethren everywhere, who need the strength of a wider sympathy, co-operation, and brotherhood. And do Thou, our glorified Redeemer, help us in these days when evil powers and forces grow desperate in purpose and subtlety. Inspire us with wisdom. Pitifully guide us in our present perplexities. Preserve us from perilous compromises. Give us the clear-seeing and single eye. In love may we labour and bear for Thee; and on this new period Thou hast given, feed us from "Thine exhaustless urn," so that we may stand together, like unto the virgins of whom Thou didst speak to us, illuminated and illuminating with our well-trimmed and burning lamps.

Tunbridge Wells.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XVI.—WOMAN'S PLACE IN THE HOME.

1 Peter iii. 1—7.

There were pure and virtuous homes in the old classic world, of which the fragrant memory lingers to this day. Who can forget Panthea, who, as her husband left her to fight under the renowned Cyrus, said, "If ever there was a woman that regarded her husband more than her own soul, I am that woman"? Who can forget the refusal of Cornelia to accept one of her many and even royal suitors, because she insisted that her marriage with her noble husband, Titus Gracchus, was not annulled by his death? Who will be untouched by that exquisite description from the hand of the great Pliny, who, speaking of his wife, said, "She loves me, the surest pledge of her virtue; and adds to this a wonderful disposition to learning, which she has acquired from her love to me. She reads my writings, studies them, and even gets them by heart. You would smile to see the concern she is in when I have a cause to plead, and her joy when it is over. She finds means to have the first news brought her of the success I meet with in court. She accompanies my verses with the lute, with no master but love, the best of instructors. Her affection is not founded on my worth or person, but she is in love with the immortal part of me"?

But these were isolated instances, canonised in history because so exceptionally rare. The poets and historians of the Roman Empire paint in the blackest colours the utter disregard of the marriage tie, the abominable and shameless immorality which sapped the foundations of the State, and led with inevitable exactness to its fall. These descriptions are more than substantiated by the revelations of the walls of Pompeii. Into such a world of stygian darkness, lit by a few stars, came the religion of our Lord, and among its very first creations was that of the family and the home. For these, its earliest and most precious gifts to the age of its inception, and to all ages, mankind must ever own itself indebted to the Gospel of the Lord Jesus.

Even the Jewish people had become grossly lax in their notions of the obligations of wedded love. The rabbis permitted divorce on the most trivial pretexts. If the husband were not pleased with his wife's behaviour, or if she spoilt his food in cooking, or were stricken with a grievous bodily affliction, he might put her away. It was held indeed that this facility was a special privilege granted to Israel, but not to other nations. That such was the state of society brings into startling emphasis the words of Christ, who repeatedly went back to the primeval institution of marriage, one woman for one man, and insisted that these two must live together in the home, in a relationship which could only be dissolved by death or by one unnameable act of sin.

It is necessary that these words of Christ and his Church should again speak in the ears of the world. The growing revolt of the classes and the masses from the simplicities of Christianity is being followed closely by an increasing disregard of the ties of marriage and the bonds of home. How rapidly the business of the divorce courts is increasing. We must have, forsooth, looser divorce laws. We must not be too puritanic. We must admit with Strauss that the New Testament contains "ascetic" notions concerning marriage, that the Sermon on the Mount is deficient in the knowledge of human nature, that the scientific method is in collision with the Biblical ideal. And we are asked to condone the offences of certain great thinkers and brilliant writers of our time against the sacrament of marriage, as if their genius relieved them of moral obligation, or put them under some special régime.

From such lamentable laxity, which is doing its best to dislodge from its position the keystone of our national greatness, little heeding the lessons of the past, or realising the full measure of disaster which must crown the success of its endeavour, we turn with relief to the high, pure, and divine conception of the place of woman in the Christian home, her adorning, and her treatment.

I. Her Position.—It is true that she is bidden to be in subjection. But then we must also remember the peculiar circumstances under which these Epistles were written, and the revolution which was afoot.

Women had been degraded for centuries, as they are degraded now throughout the Orient, and where Christianity has not come—supposed to be destitute of souls; the drudge and slave, or toy; a piece of property, valuable or not, as the case might be. But, like a ray of dawn, there came the teaching of the Gospel. Woman was shown the helpmeet of man, taken not from his head or feet, but from his side, to be his companion. In Christ was neither male nor female. The Holy Spirit showed no partiality in his operations, but endowed the women of the early Church equally with the men. The Lord Himself had admitted women to the inner circle of his blessed friendship, and had called out their noblest attributes. Before the eyes of the world there hung the memory of the Virgin Mother, of the women who ministered to Him, broke their alabaster boxes on his person, were last at his cross, first at his grave. The miracle at the peasants' marriage was a sign of the Master's smile on this holy rite. And, as these visions passed before the retina of woman's heart, she responded to the call of Jesus with glad delight; she flung herself at his feet with the rapturous cry, "Rabboni"; she pressed into his Church, where she was welcome; and there was a danger lest in the new-found ecstasy she might break loose from those sacred obligations which were as old as Paradise, and which no Gospel could sever or relax. Christ had not come to destroy the primeval rite, but to fulfil, and to show that it was a pattern of that eternal and indissoluble union into which He enters with his Church.

This was the origin of the command to be in subjection. It was, primarily, addressed to those who since their marriage had become Christians. There was considerable hesitancy in the early Church, as to their duty under such circumstances. "Should they leave their husbands?" "Should they alter their behaviour to them?" "Should they assume any superiority?" "No," said the Apostles, "stay where you are, however trying your position, and uncongenial your surroundings, and unbearable your husbands' conduct. Be chaste, gentle, loving, submissive, winsome, so that hearts may be softened, which have never heard a word of Gospel preaching, and may be won by the beauty of your holy and unselfish lives."

Of course, where true love subsists between husband and wife, and where both are Christians, such a command as this is hardly needed. There is no room for subjection, where there are no masterful commands, no standing up for rights, no jealous strife for independence. The sensitive instincts of love define exactly, as no words could do, the respective position of husband and wife; and, altogether apart from such an injuction as this, it is perhaps rather the nature of woman's love to yield, to lean on one stronger than itself, and to give itself away in deeds of loving ministry.

If all Christian women would live like this, there would be less need of preaching to their unconverted husbands. "Without a word, they would be won by the conversation of their wives." Won! "A soul converted is gained to itself, gained to the pastor, or friend, or wife, or husband, who sought it, and gained to Jesus Christ; added to his treasury, who thought not his own precious blood too dear to lay out for this gain." And what more precious guerdon could reward a wife's chaste and God-fearing behaviour than to know that her husband was to be a jewel in her crown, won for her Lord.

There is nothing here for those who desire to marry out of the Lord. They are clearly forbidden to be unequally yoked with unbelievers, and they will find, to their cost, how bitter a thing it is to disobey a distinct command. No hope is held out of either winning the other, where from the first God's Word has been set at nought. But where conversion has taken place after marriage in the case of one partner, there is every reason to cherish hope for the other.

On, brokenhearted women, disappointed and of sorrowful spirit, ready to despair, disposed to abandon heart and hope, be not weary in well-doing; be yours the love that never faileth; remember that you are to exemplify that love in dark places for the sake of the dear Master, who is looking on and will not let you be tempted beyond what you are able to bear; dare to trust Him for the future, and believe that God will yet give you your dearest that sail in the ship with you over the stormy waves.

What a lesson is here for all! We cannot all preach by lip, but we can by life. And such preaching is mighty in results; whilst the effect of it abides long after the life has passed from view into the ministries of the upper sanctuary.

II. HER ADORNING.—It does not seem that the Apostle forbids plaiting the hair, or wearing of gold, any more than he does the putting on of apparel. Religion does not consist in the presence or absence of these things. If we wear them, we are not better; if we abjure them, we are not worse. It makes surely very little difference to the Saviour whether we dress in silk or calico, in colours or drab. The one law is to dress as becomes the station in which He has placed us, and in such a way as not to attract notice to ourselves.

Of course if a certain style of dress is associated only with the worldly and irreligious; or if it exercises an injurious effect on those who minutely watch and exaggerate what they see in us; or if it attracts excessive remark, and makes us self-conscious, we do well to discard it, and lay it aside. But where this is not the case, it is well to keep moderately in the wake of custom and usage, lest we attract as much attention by our prudery as our pride, and so minister to our accursed love of singularity. But it is very pitiful when the Christian conscience becomes morbid on these points. Some are so constantly questioning what dress their Lord would have them wear, that they miss much of his company. Of course, we ought to select our attire under his eye, asking for his guidance in our choice, and his grace to indicate his taste for us. Surely the Master has a right to say what his slaves should wear, and how they should spend his money! And He will indicate his will in the gentlest and most delicate manner. Cast the responsibility more utterly on Him, and then occupy yourselves much more with Himself than with your attire, so occupied with Him as to be almost oblivious of it.

The great point with each of us should be: Where is my adorning? If it be without, then indeed we are in evil case. But if it be within—in the hidden man of the heart, in the cultivation of a meek and quiet spirit—we may leave outward matters to shape themselves very much as they may, and they will cease to attract an undue share of our attention or thought. Great is he, says Seneca, who enjoys his earthenware as if it were plate, and not less great is the man to whom all his plate is no more than earthenware. Plenty are there whose outward body is richly decked, but whose inner being is clothed in rags; whilst others, whose garments are worn and threadbare, are all glorious within. It is a solemn question: What are our garments in the sight of God? Do we know anything of this meek and quiet spirit, so precious in his esteem, so restful and blessed amid the tumult of the world?

The clue to its possession seems hidden in the suggestion that the holy women in the old time trusted in God. Turn your heart towards God, and the result will show itself in such wholesomeness of behaviour, such consistency in well-doing, such freedom from sudden fear, as will commend the Gospel, and attract the smile of God.

III. HER TREATMENT.—These words to husbands may well be extended by the addition of the words spoken to them in the Epistle to the Ephesians, in which they are bidden to love their wives as Christ has loved the Church, nourishing and cherishing them as their own body.

But three striking and beautiful suggestions are made here which will suffice:—

(1) Give honour to the wife as the weaker vessel.—All bear on their nature the touch of the great Potter's moulding hand, but some are stronger than others, and the obligation to consider the other always rests with the stronger, in Christ's code. Politeness, high-breeding, chivalry, courtesy—these are mimicked in society; but their original types are found only where Christianity has wrought her perfect work. No man can fully acquire them until this Gospel is written in his heart; they pass from within outwards, not from without inwards. And many who have never been admitted to so-called good society are God's own gentlepeople.

(2) Remember that you are heirs together of the grace of life.—There is no such union as that of those who are wedded in the love of God, and to whose love his love gives depth and meaning and a touch of infinitude. Of a relationship like this we may well repeat the motto on Charles Kingsley's grave, summing up a life of exquisite married bliss: we love; we loved; we will love. Let thoughts of the common grace of life attemper and ennoble your relations.

(3) See that your prayers be not hindered.—There is no test so subtle as a good man's prayers. When he kneels before his God, He will know in a moment whether or not he has contracted defilement during the preceding hours; and, if so, where. And he is bidden to leave his gift at the altar, and go to seek reconciliation, ere he returns to offer it. Whatever then arises in the hour of prayer, and breathes on the mirror of the heart, is thereby proved to be injurious and wrong, and must be put away. Whatever makes husband and wife unable to pray together alone, or at the family altar, must be dealt with mercilessly as a hindrance. And if only we are faithful and true in these daily particulars of conduct, our prayers will not only be unhindered but helped, and we shall gain such conceptions of the love of Christ to us, amid all our failures and imperfections, as will make the wedding bells ring out a perpetual chime of love within our hearts, and we shall understand another phase of his love which passeth knowledge.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

Dr. Dunlop, medical officer, St. Pancras Workhouse, endorses Dr. Norman Kerr that guardians of the poor should be empowered to pay for the detention and treatment of pauper inebriates.

Mr. Winterbotham, M.P., says, when any measure affecting the liquor trade is before Parliament, there is an usually large attendance, owing to so many M.P.'s holding shares in brewery companies.

Rev. W. Paterson, Congregational minister, New Castleton, Scotland, originator of the Board School Temperance and Prohibition Band, has conducted missions under eights Boards since the beginning of October. Fifty schools have been visited, and about 22,000 children addressed.

FOREIGN.

A temperance league has been formed for Canada.

The Transvaal Commission has issued a proclamation forbidding the sale of liquor to natives.

A native movement has begun in Bombay, one of the rules of which is that no man must drink spirits except under medical advice.

Two important drink Bills have been before the Danish Parliament. One, a Government proposal for increased taxation on drink, has become a party question.

Duke Town, the port of Old Calabar, is seldom without one steamer discharging thousands of gallons of gin and rum. The steamers in the trade are termed "gin-shops," and are owned by British firms.

The Government of Victoria are endeavouring to prevent the importation and sale of opium. A Chinese gentleman first drew the Government's attention to the evil it was working among his fellow-countrymen in the colony.

THE LATE LORD A. CECIL has bequeathed £2000 to the British and Foreign Bible Society; £500 to the China Inland Mission; and £9000 in trust for such poor Christians everywhere as his executors may select.

SOUL WINNING AND PRAYER UNION.—Text for Jan. 10 (Deut. xxxi. 8):—"And the Lord, He it is that doth go before thee; He will be with thee, He will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear thou not, neither be dismayed."

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER VIII.—THE BOLTED DOOR, AND HOW IT WAS OPENED.

"How long shall I keep going to a house where they will not let me in?" inquires a young visitor.

"As long as the house stands, or your feet will carry you to it," is Isabella's answer.

That was her own practice. She went again, and again, and again, to the same bolted door; knocked, apologised, entreated, and sometimes even said to the angry housewife, "If I should come to your door by mistake, I hope you won't be angry." This lowly gentleness was the key by which she opened many a door after weary months of unsuccessful visiting. Driven away with imprecations and threatenings, she renewed the attack again and again until courage and patience, the big guns of her battery, made a breach, and the house was captured.

Several years were spent by her in visiting and evangelising Hadden's land, a long range of three-storied houses, old, dingy and squalid—a huge Black Hole with inhabitants to match. Here in those days dwelt the rowdy, the drunkard, the prostitute, the thief, the blasphemer, the atheist, the general "ne'er do weel"—a desperate crew, with a mixture of a better sort, though very poor. Here drunkenness and revelry reigned every Saturday night; the ground-swell of the sin storm lasting usually till Monday. Now and again for a whole week or longer the entire community—with the exception of a few quiet decent creatures, some of whom indulged in laudanum as their only solace—went utterly mad with drink and rioting, the revel coming to a close only when the last stick of furniture and the last rag of clothes were pawned.

Isabella visited every house—in other words, almost every room in the block—once or twice a week, sometimes oftener; kindly received by some, fiercely rejected by others. Frequently her approach was the signal for locking the door, and absolute silence; the only response to her pleading for admission was the plain intimation that she was not wanted. At one time she is rudely told to go away and never return; at another time her tracts are handed back or flung in her face, or torn to shreds before her eyes. Disgusting language was sometimes used on purpose doubtless to drive her from the door for ever. Several times her life was threatened, knives were brandished in her face, and she was forced to run for safety. So debased was the locality, so lawless were the inhabitants, that for years I dared not enter Hadden's land except under the wing of the lady visitor. Once when passing that way in broad daylight and in the open street, I was knocked down by a blow on the head dealt me from behind by an Irish navvy, one of the choice spirits of the place. In the face of shocking spectacles, drunken orgies, brutal fights, infamous villainies, our visitor held on her way, until, by the grace of God, Hadden's land was laid at her feet.

One room was occupied by Peter ———, an old soldier, and his family. This man, drunken, fierce, a sworn enemy to all religion, sternly refused our visitor admission to his house. For a period of some two years she knocked at the door at least once, sometimes twice every week, without success. Frequently the door was slammed in her face with such a volley of oaths as only an old blackguard soldier can command. Sometimes she opened the door stealthily, and thrust in her foot between the door and doorpost to keep it open; the squeezed and endangered limb thus keeping a chink clear for a little special pleading. In this way a kind word was spoken; a tract handed in; and a slight opening made for friendly intercourse with the wife and children. Peter himself was often furious, and threatened to take the visitor's life if she dared show her face there again; and more than once chased her out of the house with an open knife in his hand, swearing by all his gods he would never be happy until he saw her dead. Dreading the worst, Isabella's friends endeavoured to dissuade her from perilling her life, but in vain; she still faced the forlorn hope. Many a time she went up the stairs trembling and praying on every step; many a time when she knocked at that door her heart knocked loudly in her breast, and more loudly still she knocked at heaven's gate for help. At length she was admitted: Peter's wife became friendly; his children loved the visitor; himself, though often fierce and always sulky, grew more tolerant; and a ray of hope fell athwart that miserable home.

Peter had his seasons of comparative temperance, which invariably closed with a wild round of drunkenness. This meant that he went on drinking until neither chair nor blanket was left in the house. On one occasion our visitor met him with a table on his head: he was on the way to drink it. Next day she met him carrying away the grate, which he laughingly said he was going to "melt." Wife and children had fled. Venturing to call, Isabella found the wretched man lying on the bare boards, starving into sobriety. He begged for shoes.

"Ye see, Miss Eesabell," he said, "I waukened awfu' cauld in the nicht; an' it's no a good job to be without claes in the winter, and I saw a wee peckie o' fire on the stanes" (here he winced under the visitor's glance, which suggested thoughts of the vanished grate), "and I got up and put twa lumps o' coal on the fire, as I thocht; but when I rose in the mornin' I got the remains o' my boots amon' the ashes. Ye see, I had mista'en my boots for lumps o' coal."

There, among the ashes, were the two shining iron heels and fragments of leather; at the sight of which Isabella laughed outright, the old warrior, despite his misery, joining in the laughter. Words of chiding followed—and boots also. Peter was set a-going again; wife and children returned; grate and table and bedclothes were procured, bit by bit; and a gleam of better things to come was felt.

The old clothes department is indispensable in home mission work. Look into the room, and if you did not know you were in a minister's house, you would think you were in a pawnshop. What a collection of things old and curious!—men's, women's, and children's apparel in all stages of dissolution and decay; hats, caps, bonnets, shoes, shawls, blankets; things of marvellous shape and remote antiquity; rags of gentility, once the glory of their wearers; things wearable, indicating the more generous donor; things past mending, the gifts of the miserly; a chaotic mass, needing a creative genius to evoke order and to fashion into use. It needs much wisdom to administer such home mission grants. By a judicious use of old clothes, Isabella succeeded in saving whole families from utter wreck. An old suit became a choice means of grace; a cast-off coat or gown inspired the grateful wearer with a desire for the garments of salvation. From the sublimities of the spiritual down to old clothes may seem a great descent; but the mingling of the heavenly and the earthly in this way is a fine discipline. After all, rags and religion are well met, sinners and grace are fitly matched.

For long Isabella failed to induce Peter to attend the meeting in Hadden's land. At length he was caught in this way. He had been making excuses and lying promises as usual, bidding her go, and he would follow, when she said:—

"I'll wait for you."

"Well, if you are not ashamed to walk down the street in my company, I'll go to the meeting." This he said, fully believing she would not consent to accompany him.

"Oh yes, Peter, I'll go down the street with you."

"But I have na a coat to put on; you surely would na like to be seen wi' a ragged chiel like me?"

"Just you come away, and you will see."

To his astonishment she went with him: and when at last he would have drawn back, she appealed to his sense of honour as an old soldier, and thus succeeded in getting him to attend the meeting. From this time the influence of Isabella was established in his family, and in a remarkable degree over himself. He began to attend the church, and to encourage his wife and children in a similar course. But he had many a fall through strong drink. On one occasion, after a long bout of drinking, he fell into despair, and resolved to commit suicide. This terrible purpose would have been effected but for the timely intervention of our visitor. Abandoned by everyone, [illegible] by God, he was about to launch himself into eternity, when she providentially discovered the desperate project. By her bold, commanding bearing he was arrested in the very nick of time. After an intense effort of mingled pleading and remonstrance, a struggle, in which her courage, tact, and patience were strained to the uttermost, the self-willed rebel gave way. Bursting into tears, he delivered up to Isabella the rope with which he was to have ended his miserable life, and promised to abandon his evil design. To her intrepidity and compassion he owes his life, as he often says; and he thinks he was saved from that crime that he might be saved from all sin. But intemperance has continued to be his sin and snare; and although there are not wanting signs of penitence, evidence of saving grace is not yet clear. His wife and family, however, were happily recovered, and admitted into the fellowship of the Church: nor have they ceased ever since to do well.

Sinners of this class often fall, even when grace has begun a work of recovery. Like infants, they are only learning to walk. The worker should not despair. The memory of a few weeks, or even days, of a happy, sober life, is often the magnet to draw [illegible] back. The recollection of that sunny [illegible] amidst the darkness sometimes prevents the final, fatal plunge. In restoring those [illegible] much wisdom and patience is needed. A chilling word may send them to destruction: but unwearied alone can heal them. I have recall an instance.

In the revival [illegible] described in the last chapter, a man notorious in the district for drunkenness and profanity was [illegible] converted. From beating his wife and dragging her about the [illegible] by the hair of her head whenever he found her on her knees, he became [illegible] loving companion in duty and every good work. He joined the fellowship of the Church, and for two years continued steadfast, until one Saturday night, when he was tempted by drink and fell. Next day was a sorrowful Sabbath to his friends. Having taken counsel together, his Christian comrades met in their fallen brother's room in the evening, and spent the night in prayer, continuing on their knees until five o'clock on Monday morning. The man was restored; and ever since has lived in harmony with his profession, filling an honourable position both in the Church and the world.

Hadden's land was subsiding into decent tranquillity: rays of hope were beginning to gild the horizon of its troubled life. After a long season of heroic labour, Isabella and her fellow-workers began to be in good heart. Prayer was being answered: the first-fruits of harvest seemed to be within their grasp. Unexpectedly a storm of sin swept over the place. Drink was again in power, with all its attendant horrors—mad rioting, impurity, defiance of God and man, and all the elements of high pandemonium. At first Isabella, ever on the watch, strove to check the rising spirit of diabolical hilarity and license: but in vain—it was only speaking to the winds. At length the hell storm spent itself, leaving unsightly wrecks of humanity and home to tell the tale. On entering Hadden's land one day, she found the women huddled together in utter shameless nakedness, only one of them having retained clothing enough to enable her to carry everything that would sell to the pawn-shop and fetch the drink. The furniture is gone. The children are running about naked and crying for bread. The women are semi-delirious, weeping, singing, or roaring for more drink. Some are blaspheming, while others are cursing their husbands and all men, or belching out horribly foul language. Most are without any clothes, and the rest indecently clad. Thus the little ones receive their baptism of mingled bestiality and devilry.

* This slightly abridged narrative is published in complete form (with Portrait), at 2s 6d. and 3s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.

Isabella stood aghast at the sight: it was too much, she broke down and wept. Waving her hand, she commanded silence, while, with choking utterance, she cried: "Oh dear! dear! Shame! shame! What shall I do? God help us! God have mercy on us!" Then the whole company burst into crying, howling, yelling, and beseeching help. Hastening home, her countenance pale as death, she lost no time in collecting castaway clothes of some sort, and, with incredible celerity, she succeeded in restoring the entire community to decency. This passage in her life-work she never could refer to without visible signs of distress. She never could tell, she said, more than the half. But the victory in Hadden's land was won: after this her influence was paramount.

"Oh, she's a rale [illegible], Miss Isabell is!" said another.

"Ay, she's a brave lass!" adds another; "she's nane o' your stooka dames; she's a real lady! Guid bless her! Eesabell's a blessin' tae's a'!"

"The Royal Niger Company."

DEAR SIR,—We, who have been residing in the Soudanese districts of the River Niger for the express purpose of seeking the conversion of Mohammedans, have read with feelings of pain and surprise an attack by "R. N. C.," in your last issue, on the Royal Niger Company, Chartered and Limited, to whose unceasing courtesy and kindness we are both deeply indebted. While we are sure that "R. N. C." was impelled by his warm interest in the missionary cause to write as he did, and would be the last intentionally to wrong such true friends of the missionaries as the Royal Niger Company have proved themselves, yet we feel that it would not be right for us, who know the true state of affairs from actual residence on the spot, not to point out to your readers that his information, as shown by his letter, has been very fragmentary and imperfect.

The "public notice" of the Royal Niger Company, to which he refers, has been welcomed by all of us who have been, or expect to be, engaged in preaching to Moslems on that river; and was, indeed, in general outline, suggested to the Company by us, as affording in our opinion the only possible solution to the grave social and political difficulties of the situation. We sincerely regret that "R. N. C." did not see his way to inquire into the actual facts from some of the people concerned, who would have been only too glad to supply him with the information.

This public notice does not promise that the Royal Niger Company "will obstruct missionaries," but simply states that they cannot take the responsibility of taking them into a fanatical Moslem country, and that if they go in of their own accord, they do so at their own risk, and must not expect the British Government to interfere to rescue them from dangers which they have called down on themselves; and since our entering these territories, with the intention of turning Mohammedans to Christ, is in itself a defiance of the Mohammedan law of these lands, we who are going out believe this notice to be only what is fair and just to these Mohammedan allies of the British Government.

Beyond this public notice there is no foundation for "R. N. C.'s" assertions. The "treaties with several negro Mohammedan Powers in the Soudan of Africa," which are "no longer a secret, close or open," in spite of his assertion, seem to be known to nobody but himself. One treaty with one Sultan explained that the Royal Niger Company did not themselves proselytise. Is this different from the attitude of the Government of India? It does not say a word about hindering missionaries. We must also point out that the comparison between the Moslems under the independent Sultans of the Soudan, and those under the rule or immediate influence of the powerful Indian Government with its vast armies, upon which comparison the entire argument of his letter rests, is wholly misleading, and unsupported by the actual facts. It is a very elementary truth in Mohammedan politics that a Moslem ruler of a "country of Islam," such as the Soudan empires are, is obliged in virtue of his office to attempt to suppress all efforts to proselytise Moslems in his dominions. But no rational Indian prince considers India to be a "country of Islam" in the full technical sense of the word.

Nor again are "the Mohammedans of the Soudan pigmies in strength or population in comparison to the fifty millions of British India." What Mohammedan prince in India could defy the British Empire as the Mahdi does; or what Indian race could treat as equals with a first-rate European Power as the magnificent Fulah warriors of the Upper Niger have done with the French?

As regards population, the Moslems of the Soudan are at least as numerous as those of British India.

In conclusion, then, as those who have been appointed leaders of the C.M.S. Mission to the Soudan, we most earnestly deprecate "R.N.C.'s" interpretation of this public notice of the Royal Niger Company as "open war of so-called Christian men with the Gospel." We feel, on the contrary, that it saves us from many political dangers, and gives our message great moral strength. In thus writing we are glad to bear testimony to the cordial assistance which the Company has always rendered to us in our work, to the thoughtful kindness and personal care rendered to us in sickness by their officers, and to the pains taken by the heads of the Company on the river to further the interests of the mission work in which we were engaged.—Yours faithfully,

J. ALFRED ROBINSON,
GRAHAM WILMOT BROOKE.

Church Missionary House,
Salisbury-square, E.C.

EVANGELICAL MISSION, BORDESLEY, BIRMINGHAM.—Mr. W. J. Mehew, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a fifteen days' mission in connection with this work. He spent a similar period in the month of July, and each visit has been greatly blessed. Many distinguished ministers and gentlemen of the city have taken a great interest in the work by addressing special meetings during the year, and assisting the Mission to minister to the spiritual needs of thousands in that district. The superintendent is Mr. J. Stead, of 221, St. Andrew's-road, Bordesley.

CHRISTIAN PUBLICATIONS IN CEYLON.—From the combined report of the Christian Vernacular Education and Religious Tract Societies, at Colombo, it appears that 333,306 publications were issued during the year, mostly in Cingalese, and some in Tamil. In addition to these, over 37,000 English publications were issued for English readers, who are increasing year by year. A sign of the importance attached by the natives to the power of the Press is to be found in the fact that a Buddhist Tract Society has been formed. Prayer is desired that the truth may become more and more powerful through this great Christian publication work.

LORD'S DAY OBSERVANCE IN PARIS.

EVERY Christian visitor to the gay metropolis of France must have been painfully struck with the open desecration of the day of rest—business going on as usual, markets crowded, shops open (with some rare exceptions), building operations in full swing, and, where pleasure offers its attractions, balls, concerts and theatres, multitudes of votaries pressing in through the open doors, especially the young men and women of Paris, with a certain proportion, alas! of our own fellow-countrymen and women. What permanent good can be done by the various missions here if the Sabbath is to be continually desecrated? No greater reform can take place in France than creating a respect for God's day and liberating the slaves of the Sabbath.

Every true Christian must rejoice that a Congress on Weekly Rest was held in the grounds of the Exhibition, and as a result of its deliberations a "Popular League for Sunday Rest" has been founded in Paris. The French Society for Lord's day rest, whose active secretary is Pasteur E. Bauzet, has issued an address to shopkeepers and manufacturers, urging them to close their places of business on Sundays, and to abstain from employing labour on that day. This address is actively circulated by the agents of the Paris City Mission, with a view to obtaining additional signatures to over three hundred who have already given their adhesion to the Society. The missionaries enter shops and reason with the proprietors on the subject of closing; they leave a book on loan containing prize essays, written by French workmen, on the Sunday question; also a list of Protestant places of worship in Paris at all the Hotels. But as visits have to be made to the poor, the agents of the Paris City Mission can only devote a part of their time to this special work; consequently the committee of the Paris City Mission are most desirous to employ a missionary, under the superintendence of Pasteur Bauzet, whose whole time shall be devoted to the object of promoting Sunday closing; £50 per annum would be necessary for his support.

One of our missionaries reports:—"I went into a number of shops and left these addresses, saying, 'This is an invitation for you to close on Sundays.' A large number replied, 'We would be delighted to do so, provided our fellow-tradesmen would come to an understanding with us.' In one shop, a small grocery, the shopkeeper said, 'My father was a grocer in a small provincial town where an effort was made in this direction, and by common consent all the tradesmen closed their shops on Sundays. For some time all went well, but one of the shopkeepers, overcome by the desire of gain at the expense of his neighbours, opened on Sundays an inner door of his shop leading into a court, where he admitted his customers secretly. He continued his sly traffic until his treason was discovered, and then his fellow-tradesmen broke their engagement, and opened on Sunday as before. As to myself,' said the grocer, 'I would like to be free to go to church and to take a little country air, but it cannot be done unless all will agree to close.' I spoke of the blessing which results to those who keep the fourth commandment, and left the prize essays on the Sunday rest." Mr. J. M. Weyland is the hon. sec. of the Paris City Mission, 31, Carlton-hill, St. John's Wood, N.W.

INSOMNIA.—It is one of the most portentous facts in the life of this generation that sound sleep is becoming less and less common, both with men and women, and even with children. . . . Undoubtedly the increased development of brain, and brain functions, tends to the production of nervous disorders; and the only rational way of dealing with the new circumstances is to recognise them promptly, and to counteract them by intelligent regularity of living, and ordered moderation of work.—The Hospital.

Is the Church Aroused?

SHALL the three brave young men of Fred Arnot's band have laid down their lives in Africa for nought?

The tidings that three healthy men, out of this small band of missionaries intended for the interior of Africa, have so soon died of fever before reaching their stations, will be read with deep concern. One of them, Mr. Morris, leaves a widow and four young children. He had been much used of God in England. It may be remembered that these children were unable to accompany their parents into the interior, on account of the difficulty of obtaining carriers from the coast, and so had to remain at home. These orphan children will now be looking out for the return of their widowed mother. I believe each of the three missionaries is supposed to have taken the fever upon the coast. If so, does it not show that every reasonable precaution should be taken in future at the coast, and every preventible death saved?

But have these greatly honoured brothers given their lives for nothing? Nay, Livingstone himself, by his lonely death, perhaps contributed more to arouse a disobedient slumbering Church to see its guilt in neglecting poor Africa than if his wholly devoted life had been prolonged for years.

But how little are we yet aroused to obedience to the Saviour's repeated command to "go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Mr. Morris, though being so much used in England, did not hesitate to go out with his wife and children, intending to penetrate into the interior, and live amongst the heathen savages, who had never once heard of Christ; expecting, doubtless, as God had enabled him to win souls in England, that so it might be in Africa. Why shall this not be true still, and of all three in far greater numbers than any of them had ever expected? You say, How can this be true, when their tongues are silent in the grave? Is it not after a grain of wheat has fallen into the ground that it brings forth an abundant harvest? True, the bodies of this truly noble vanguard are beneath the African soil; but how many shall their early deaths call forth to follow, not only of men, but of brave, blessed women also?

I declare what I know when I affirm that, notwithstanding all that has been said and printed, and notwithstanding the tragic deaths of Livingstone and of Hannington, and the martyring of the converts of Uganda, the horrid slavery, and the unnatural eating of human flesh, and notwithstanding the great encouragement in converts, yet the Church of Christ in Britain is not half aroused to keep the parting commandment of Christ, though it is as plain as "Thou shalt not steal," or "Thou shalt do no murder" (Mark xvi. 15).

Is the Church in America aroused? About a year ago I saw young men and women in America rising up at once to quit their occupations and accompany Mr. Hudson Taylor to go across the Pacific to China. Out of that band there was one young sister destined to be buried in heathen China soon after her arrival, but not through any fault of climate. Her father, in consenting to her going to China, stood up publicly, and tenderly said, "Susie is very precious to us, but I have nothing too precious for Jesus." On Mr. Hudson Taylor's returning to America, after her death, this bereaved father could still say, "I have nothing too precious for Jesus."

I remember well a time when America was roused, but not on behalf of the heathen, yet on behalf of other slaves; and when lately in the States I was told how enthusiastically the country had then responded, and that when Abraham Lincoln, in a great emergency in the war, called for extraordinary reinforcements, the recruits came marching forward, singing, "We are coming, Father Abraham, we are coming ten hundred thousand strong."

But for the present war for the emancipation of the heathen, we rely not on numbers, nor on sentiment, nor on mere enthusiasm, but on men and women (however few and feeble) filled with the Holy Spirit, and wholly surrendered in glad obedience to Christ. God often works his greatest victories by the smallest minorities. Gideon recruited far too many for God to work with, "lest the people should vaunt themselves against Me, and say, Mine own hand hath saved me." So, after Gideon had recruited many thousands, he had to have his painful disrecruiting. Yet he was helped to get through it speedily. Still, it must have been an unpleasant proceeding. But to discover you have got out missionaries amongst the heathen from mere enthusiasm, or for a living, or position, or men or women unfitted by the Holy Ghost for the work, must be a deplorable burden, and very hard to get removed.

Let us pray for men like the three that were not careful to answer the king, and ready to be thrown, tied up, into his fire, when a fourth walked with them in the midst of the fire. These are the men, when so walked with, to "subdue kingdoms."

But those men had made a business of united prayer (Dan. ii. 17). Let us, then, begin 1890 big with expectation. Let us make a business of prayer; that the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ may arouse us, and arouse the Church of Christ throughout the world, to do whatever and go wheresoever our Saviour will lead us; and, surely, then He will lead not a few of us to the uttermost parts of the earth. For it is, indeed, very unorthodox and a superstitious tradition of the dark ages to suppose that this business of going into all the world and carrying the Gospel to every creature, is to be confined to learned persons, or cultured persons, or to ministers, or even to colleges or universities, or even to men, to the exclusion of women.

Our beloved American brother, now in this country, Rev. Dr. Pierson, editor of The Missionary Review of the World, well says that such was the ancient method in the first century, and alleges that the Gospel has never spread so fast in any succeeding century on account of the departure from this primitive practice.

The great bulk of the earth's population is not cultured, not learned, and the great bulk of the followers of Christ is not cultured or learned. Let, then, the whole Church be at it, cultured and uncultured, and whatever true work is accomplished, it will be only by the Spirit of God.

Brothers, at the commencement of 1890, let us take courage by the vastly enlarged move now planned by the China Inland Mission for sending forth an immense increase of one thousand additional missionaries, at the rate of 200 a year, for this year and for each of the following four years. That Mission accepts women as well as men, laymen, as they are called, or ministers, vicars, curates, carpenters, mechanics, commercial travellers, young men from the universities or from the plough, clerks, &c. Other foreign missions now adopt the same plan. The Salvation Army also adopts a similar plan, and in this respect is not the Salvation Army very orthodox? There is no doubt it has learned and cultured men and women among its helpers, yet it is unquestionable that a large proportion of its excellent workers are unlearned and uncultured. But in this particular is it not exactly like the early churches of the New Testament?

However, the time has come for an advance in any way and every way most pleasing to the Lord, to Jew and Gentile, and all along the line.

REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

December 30, 1889.

DR. PENTECOST.—We have received from Mr. Moffat, 125, Princes-street, Edinburgh, an admirable and artistically finished cabinet photograph of this evangelist.

THREE HUNDRED ORIGINAL HYMNS

An important contribution to our hymnology [illegible] by Rev. Dr. A. B. C[illegible] in his recently-issued volume, "Songs of the Day and Night."* [illegible] hymns breathing high and holy thoughts on many sacred events and points of doctrine, but a number of points which will be read with delight by such as have the happy privilege of [illegible]. The author admirably endeavours, in a brief preface, that hymns should [illegible] for the expression of personally existing thoughts or experience, but should [illegible] and common [illegible] which [illegible] Many of the hymns in this [illegible] tly successful attempts [illegible] these intentions. So beautiful are many of [illegible] that we find it difficult to decide upon a selection. Here, however, are two which will assuredly meet with high appreciation:—

CHRIST ALL IN ALL.

Col. iii. 11.

All the world for Christ, and Christ for all the world;
Hoist this watchword flag, and let it ne'er be furled;
Wide as human need, and wide as human sin,
[illegible] and free salvation [illegible].

Christ for all the world, and all the world for Christ;
Tell it fully—of redeeming love unprie'd;
Tell it bravely—tell, whoever be the foes;
Tell it plainly—God's one cure for [illegible].

All the world for Christ, and Christ for all the world;
Tell it proudly—from its throne sin hurled;
Tell it strongly—that none may e'er despair;
[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] ALL.

Rom. xv. 30.

O Holy Ghost! come as the DEW,
Softly, stilly, this quiet eve;
Our first love's joy do Thou renew,
As to those who did first believe.

O Holy Ghost! come as [illegible]
Kindle in all our hearts thy flame;
That, touched of Thee, we may aspire,
[illegible]

O Holy Ghost! come as the WIND,
Shake Thou ev'ry barrier down;
That, restfully on [illegible]
We Him, He us, may gracious own.

O Holy Ghost, come as the RAIN,
[illegible];
Refresh and strengthen, that [illegible]
We on our upward way may pass.

O Holy Ghost! come as the LIGHT,
[illegible]y, brightly, as [illegible];
[illegible]

O Holy Ghost! be Thou our LIFE—
Our life that's hid with Christ in God;
Make Thou us strong in the sore strife,
[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] hymns [illegible] with peculiar value. The majority of these may easily be sung to well-known tunes, and sometimes a goodly number will [illegible] this manner may church hymnals. The author [illegible] expression to [illegible] views. In a note on one hymn [illegible] well says: "Many evangelicalists think it unscriptural to speak of sinners as 'poor sinners,' and often pronounce individuals to have been 'converted' on merely hearing certain favoured words. It is no [illegible] that we have truly the sinfulness of sin, the [illegible] of sin, and how can we have a righteous (God-given) hatred to, and sense of [illegible] toward it of 'overcoming love.' I fear multitudes of so-called converts are [illegible] to conceive of God as [illegible] and [illegible], easy-going forgiveness: whereas He is [illegible] to be administering righteousness.

---

* Songs of the Day and Night; or, Three Centuries of Original Hymns for Public and Private Devotion and Reading. By Rev. Alexander B. Grosart, D.D., St. George's, Blackburn. Large paper edition, printed for private circulation only.

Dr. Pentecost in Dundee.

(By a Special Correspondent.)

PEOPLE who are afraid of sporadic revivals will have no occasion to refer to the recent mission in Dundee as an example. The whole mission has been as devoid of so-called "excitement" as any usual Sabbath service. Indeed, the only criticism I have heard has been that there was not enough excitement. For instance, one minister said to another: "I have listened to most of these addresses, and I may say that any one of them might have been preached by an earnest minister to his Sabbath congregation." On the other hand, another leading minister said: "That kind of preaching is just what the stated teaching of our ministry needs as a supplement. It brings the sharpness and heat of truth to bear on the heart and conscience, which most of our preaching lacks." Dr. Pentecost, like every other evangelist, preaches for results. He expects them, and is surprised and pained when they do not follow immediately. The ordinary minister, it is to be feared, too often preaches with the hope that, sometime or other, the seed he sows will spring up and be reaped.

Quiet as the meetings have been, there has been a steady, deep, and cumulative interest. The growing seriousness of the congregations has been most marked. The eager attention given to the words of the preacher has grown from night to night. The audiences have been pervaded at times in a marked degree with that kind of stillness which indicates suppressed and pent-up feeling. There have been times when one almost expected that some phenomenal outbreak of power would manifest itself, as of a "rushing mighty wind," or the falling of tongues as of fire.

THE AFTER MEETINGS.

The after meetings as conducted by Dr. Pentecost are almost unique. Many have remarked that he is at his best on these occasions. He takes his stand on the floor of the church, usually on a front bench or pew. With Bible in hand, he gives a simple and lucid explanation of the way of life—telling his hearers "how they may become Christians, not next week or next year, but now—to-night." These addresses are usually ten minutes in length, and always close with some apt illustration in which the teaching takes a concrete shape. Some have said that if he would give the second address from the pulpit and "draw the net" before dismissing the congregation he would probably get many more "fish." The doctor holds steadily to the belief that if the Spirit has not convicted men of sin, it is useless to persuade them into a confession of faith. On the other hand, if the Spirit has convicted them they will come without too much urging. "I would rather have one sinner confess Christ moved thereto by the inward pressure of the Spirit than twenty persuaded thereto by the entreaty of men."

CLOSING DAYS.

The closing week was the best of all. As usual, there were four meetings on the Sabbath, all crowded with eager hearers. The morning address was an exposition of the truth that it was the will of Christ that the whole Church should be evangelisers; that the Spirit was poured out upon all; and that all "spoke of Jesus and the resurrection," and were the means of bringing about that marvellous spread of Christianity down to the close of the second century. The theory that ministers are the only Divinely-appointed soul-winners, as distinct from the "laity," is most disastrous to the Church, to the unsaved, and to Christians themselves. The churches are now working on the theory of a ministry paid to do all the spiritual work, while the great body of believers are dismissed to the business of money making and worldly living.

Old St. Andrew's Church (Established) was crowded to the doors at eleven o'clock, and Rev. J. Inglis' (Free) more than crowded in the afternoon. The Kinnaird Hall was fuller, if possible, than ever before (of men only) to hear the evangelist's last address to them. About fifty made a public confession of faith at the close; this was the largest harvest of any of the men's meetings.

BUSINESS MEN'S MEETINGS.

The three addresses to business men in the closing week were most marked; on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the merchants crowded into the Congregational Church to hear of "a Bad Risk," "a Good Investment," and "Profit and Loss." The last meeting was the largest and the best. Not less than 500 were present, which means a great deal in a city like Dundee. It was not a promiscuous audience, but one literally made up of merchants, manufacturers, tradesmen, and professional men. The Doctor addressed his hearers in a direct manner, and yet with such courtesy and fairness that once and again his most pointed propositions and completest demonstrations were greeted with more than silent approval.

At the close of the last of these meetings ex-Provost Moncur and Mr. Buest, two leading citizens, expressed the hearty thanks of the merchants. They rejoiced that Christ had been lifted up before them in the market-place, and that they had been so solemnly called to remember their spiritual interests and obligations in the midst of engrossing worldly interests. When Mr. Moncur proposed that the Doctor should return to Dundee at some future time, promising him the warm greeting and practical co-operation of the merchants of Dundee, the whole audience broke into applause.

The closing meeting in the Steeple Church was one of great power. Every seat and all the standing room was occupied, and the impression upon the audience was marked by tears, and even sobs and heartfelt "Amens," as the discourse proceeded, and the glories and realities of the life to come were unfolded from the Scriptures. Dr. Pentecost has gone to London for a fortnight's rest, I am sorry to say with a very bad cold, contracted on the very last day of his meetings here. He returns to Broughty Ferry in January.

THE TRAMPS' MISSION.

DURING the past twelve months, this Mission has been extended considerably. The poor tramps will now find, when seeking shelter in the Unions, that the sympathy of Christ has found expression through his people, and that the walls of the casual wards have been made to tell out the love of the Lord Jesus to the prodigal, while the invitation to return to the Father's house will be pressed home to them by the chaplains and visitors.

Small libraries of Bibles and books, calculated to be most helpful, have been presented to one hundred and forty unions, and placed in charge of the casual ward masters, and, with the permission of the authorities, gentlemen and several ladies visit and speak to the tramps. The Gospel addresses are much appreciated. Many conversions have taken place, and the authorities speak warmly of the good results in the way of discipline, decorum, and quietness.

Help is needed for the supply of libraries to five hundred and seven unions in England and Wales, and for general expenses: Miss Barnett, 2, Eldon Villas, Battledown, Cheltenham, will attend to communications.

J. FIELD, Gen. C.B.

ENGLISH-EGYPTIAN MISSION.

OUR schools at Cairo are now attended by upwards of six hundred children, boys and girls, most of whom are Mohammedans. They all enjoy the advantage of a sound education, and the plain Christian teaching they receive is often carried by them into their humble homes where in the person of a mother or sister they find a ready listener to the blessed truths they have been taught in school. Our large school for boys has been lately so overcrowded that we have been obliged to take two extra rooms for the use of the junior classes.

Many recent visitors to our schools have been much pleased to see how advanced the pupils are in their studies, and to hear with what ease and fluency most of them are able to translate any passage in their Arabic reading books into English, and again from English into French. Several of the senior pupils have obtained good positions as clerks in banks, and different offices. In the school for native girls we have at present a good attendance of very promising young pupils. In addition to Arabic, many of them learn English and French, and all are taught plain needlework and the beautiful Egyptian embroidery in gold, silver, and coloured silks.

Our young pupils obtained a diploma for some of their embroidery which was sent to the Glasgow Exhibition.

At the Medical Mission, Dr. Azoury has much to do, there being on an average a daily attendance of sixty patients. Many of them suffer from ophthalmia which is very prevalent this year on account of the high Nile. During the months of September and October the atmosphere was very damp, owing to the large amount of evaporation, and many severe cases of ophthalmia incurred then are only now getting better under the skilful treatment of the doctor. The amount of suffering relieved by him is very large, and many of the afflicted have been saved from blindness. We minister to the spiritual as well as the bodily wants of the patients, and while they are waiting in the antiroom of the dispensary, I read the Bible to them, explaining as I go on each passage in very simple language, so that all may understand.

The gratitude they feel for the kindness shown to them here, and for the medical aid they receive, predisposes them to have confidence in us, and to give a ready ear to our teaching.

Latterly our expenses have been very heavy, and at present we experience a time of great difficulty. We therefore ask our kind friends for their support. Miss E. J. Whately, 21, Belmont Park, Lee, London, S.E., will attend to all communications. F. SHAKOOR.

Cairo, Egypt.

THE HIGHWAY AND HEDGEROW MISSION.—The work of the New Forest branch of this Mission is full of interest. The missionary, Mr. Bullen, and his devoted wife, find their time more than occupied in helping and instructing the gipsies and wanderers. Hundreds of young and old have been taught not only how to read and write, but also how to provide for their temporal needs; and, of course, endeavours have been made to enlighten them as to Him who is the "Bread of Life." In his last report the missionary refers to the sad destitution of many of the gipsies, and shows that their condition calls loudly for the display of Christian sympathy. Mr. and Mrs. Westlake, of Fordingbridge, have presented the workers with a portable tent, which greatly facilitates their efforts. The hope is that the young, having been trained in the way in which they should go, will grow up to a more useful and happy maturity than their parents. Captain H. A. Bruce Moorhouse deserves a helping hand in his direction of this labour of love. Communications to him may be addressed to the care of the Open-air Mission, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, W.C.

The Vatican and Liberty.

BY M. EMILE DE LAVELEYE.

I HAVE read The Pall Mall Gazette Commissioner's letters on Rome with the utmost interest, but also, I cannot disguise it, with a certain amount of regret that a man of good faith should be led astray by a misunderstanding. It is quite comprehensible that he should have visited the Vatican in order to form some idea of what that great power, the Roman Church, could do for the cause of civilisation. I am not surprised that he was fascinated by the grand ideal which filled great men's minds with enthusiasm in the Middle Ages; the Pope, as the representative of the Prince of Peace, by his high and disinterested arbitration settling all quarrels between hostile nations, between masters and workmen; being everywhere the leader of progress; stretching out a helping hand to all those in need—to women and all oppressed nationalities—and preaching to mankind at large equality, fraternity, and charity; in fact, making the triumph of the Divine principles of the Gospel his great aim and object. This would, indeed, be easy for the Church. She has only to bear in mind the conduct of her founders and the precepts of her fathers. Did not the Apostles and the first Christians go so far as to have all their possessions in common? And did not the prophets and the sacred writers defend the rights of the poor? What, indeed, is the Gospel save the good tidings, Euangelion, announced to the destitute? Cannot every dispute between States be submitted to the Pope, as has been done recently for the contention between Spain and Germany, at the request of Prince Bismarck? Did not Cardinal Parocchi say to The Pall Mall Gazette Commissioner that he is for "liberty everywhere, as in New York"?

But, alas! the lessons of history forbid us to indulge in this admirable Utopia. The Pall Mall Gazette Commissioner, not having lived in a Catholic country, does not know that for the Roman Church liberty means liberty for the good—that is, Catholics—and suppression of evil—that is, of all heretics. He has forgotten that quite recently Leo XIII., when complaining to the whole world of the outrages to which he was subjected, mentioned, as the worst of all, the erection of Protestant chapels and the exercise of Protestant worship in the city of the Popes? In Protestant countries, and in those where a Liberal Government is in power, the Church of Rome favours liberty; but wherever she has it in her power to do so she stipulates for the absolute exclusion of dissent.

A very distinguished French writer, most highly approved at Rome, M. Louis Veuillot, said: "When there is a Protestant majority we claim religious liberty because such is their principle; but when we are in the majority we refuse it because that is ours."

Pius IX., a very good and even a holy man, obedient to the doctrines of his faith, inscribed each time he could in his Concordat that all dissenting worship should be suppressed.

When, in 1815, the King of Holland granted to his realm a constitution according freedom of worship, the Belgian bishops had it thrown out, because, they said, this liberty is directly opposed to the principles of the Roman Church. In 1830 Belgium adopted a constitution with all the modern liberties; immediately, in 1832, Gregory XVI. condemned it in a celebrated encyclical letter.

In the Concordat concluded with Spain (1850) by Pius IX., one of the articles is as follows:—"The Catholic religion shall be maintained as the exclusive religion of the realm, in such sort that the practice of all other worship shall be forbidden and prevented." And, in fact, till the revolution of 1869, the Spanish Protestants were condemned to prison.

In the Concordat with the Republic of Ecuador (1862) there is the following stipulation:—"The Roman Catholic and apostolic religion is to continue to be the religion of the Republic of the Ecuador. Consequently no other worship may be practised or any other sect tolerated in the Republic." When freedom of worship was proclaimed in Mexico, the encyclical letter of December 15, 1856, denounced it to the world as an abominable act destined to corrupt men's minds and to root out the holy religion. Leo XIII. strongly insists that St. Thomas's works should be the basis of philosophical and moral instruction. Here is what the "last Father of the Church" says on religious liberty: "If heretics did not corrupt their fellows, they could, nevertheless, be suppressed. By secular justice they can legitimately be put to death ("judicio seculari possunt licite occidi"), and deprived of their possessions, even if they do no not corrupt others; for they are blasphemers against God and observers of a false faith, so that they deserve more severe punishment than those who are guilty of high treason or of coining false money" Sententiæ, lib. iv. D. 13, quest. ii. art. 3).

Pius IX. and Leo XIII. are only trying to put in force a constant doctrine of the Roman Church, enforced over and over again by Popes and Councils. Listen to what Bossuet says on this subject, who has not been disposed to magnify the authority of the Pope or of Ultramontanism: "I declare that I have always been of opinion that princes have the right to pass penal laws to compel heretics to conform to the rites and observances of the Catholic Church; and, secondly, that this doctrine is a standing one in the Church, which has not only followed, but also requested from princes the enaction of, such ordinances" (Letter, November 12, 1700, being a debate with the Bishop of Montauban as to whether Protestants converted by the dragoons were to be compelled to attend mass). Bossuet is of opinion that they should not be compelled, from any consideration for their liberty of conscience, but out of respect for the mass. This curious correspondence where all the authorities for intolerance are quoted, should be read in order clearly to understand what Catholicism means by the word liberty.

Has The Pall Mall Gazette Commissioner before leaving the Vatican not asked Cardinal Parocchi to show him the Sala Regia, near the Capella Sistina, where Vasari's pictures represent the triumphs of the Roman Church? Four of these frescoes show the horrors of the massacre of the Huguenots on St. Bartholomew's Eve and the death of Coligny. Pope Gregory XIII. ordered the perpetuation on the walls of his palace of the memory of this crime, the anniversary of which drew tears from the eyes of old Voltaire. As Stendahl has said, in his well-known "Promenades dans Rome," "The residence of the Papacy is the only place in the world where murder is publicly glorified."—Pall Mall Gazette.

ROSS BIBLE-CARRIAGE.—During the past year the workers of the carriage stall have been greatly cheered in sowing the seed of eternal life by books and word of mouth. Since the carriage and stall commenced operations forty-three towns and villages, chiefly in the counties of Herefordshire and Gloucestershire, have been visited. Communications may be addressed to Mr. John Coates, Landseer House, Ross, Herefordshire.

EVANGELISATION IN FRANCE.—M. Réveillaud has been writing vigorously in Le Signal on the present mission of French Protestantism, urging, with Professor Pédézert, that evangelisation is, for the Reformed Church of France, not only a duty but a necessity. M. Réveillaud says: "The time of liberty in which we live is the acceptable year of the Lord—the time in which he is mustering his people. Oh, that his people may answer to the call, and be up and ready! The present task—the pressing duty of French Protestantism—is bold testimony, victorious mission work, religious reform. Our churches must be missionary, or may God take away their light stand, and raise other churches in their place!"

A MESSAGE FROM MADAGASCAR.

DEAR SIR,—For nearly two years in this lonely, isolated spot my wife and I have enjoyed the reading of your paper, which has been regularly (for Madagascar) received with our other mail matter. I desire to tender our thanks to the kind unknown who sends it to us. Your paper is very much enhanced in value by the time it reaches us, where we have seen but two Europeans in two years (nearly). Here in the south-east of Madagascar, a week's journey from our next European neighbour, we have been endeavouring to commence new work for the Master, and establish a mission for the spreading of his Gospel and extending his kingdom among some tribes far removed both from Christianity and civilisation.

For many months success seemed very doubtful, and the frequent inter-tribal wars gave promise of barring our work altogether. All our small beginnings appeared to be doomed, and utter lawlessness prevailed, with fear on every side. With the burning villages close at hand, and war news and rumours constantly coming to us, there seemed little prospect of winning our way with these people. Two or three times we were ourselves in imminent [illegible] but how short-sighted we are was proved by the event, inasmuch as these wars did more to make us known far and wide to the people than anything we could have done in double the time by preaching, itinerating, and teaching.

It soon became known that medical and surgical treatment could be had here, and so [illegible] and bullets extracted, &c. They would all, we trust, carry home with them some, if only a slight, impression of the motives which had constrain[illegible] [illegible] Even that time the work, though slow, has been steadily progressing. Another thousand we would able by timely and prayerful ministries to [illegible] and, though all deep feeling was not banished [illegible]

Churches have been erected in a goodly number of villages, and schools collected in which there are now over three thousand scholars. This is a most interesting branch of our work, and that to which we look most ardently for ultimate success. Most of the tribes, although steeped in superstition, do not seem to be consumed with zeal for them to the extent of caring much whether or not their children imbibe them. Hence there is just the same indifference as to what we may be pleased to teach their young ones; in fact, the children in some instances are the masters of the situation. A woman came lately and said she wished to join the inquirers' class, and when asked her reasons, the best she could give was that "she wanted to go the same way as her child; and as we were teaching it the new religion in the school, she wished to learn all about it too, as she could not by separated from her child."

A week or two since we had the first baptism of an adult. She is the wife of one of the chief men in a distant village, which I have frequently visited in my itinerating journeys. She had for some time professed to me her desire for baptism, and showed a considerable knowledge of the things she had been taught. After appointing a term of probation, and finding her still in the same mind, the rite was performed before all the villagers, and for the first time in this hitherto almost unknown quarter of Madagascar. May this one be a harbinger of many who shall yet be gathered out of the darkness and superstition, to sit in the glorious light of the Gospel of truth. For this we work and suffer, and for this we pray. May your prayers be added to ours.—With kind regards, yours sincerely, G. A. SHAW, F.Z.S.

Farafangana, Madagascar, Oct. 26.

For the Young.

CHILD CONVERSION.

BY E. P. HAMMOND.

I MET in New Britain, Connecticut, a lady who told me that when a child she often heard Rev. Edward D. Griffin preach in Williamstown. Her face glowed with enthusiasm as she spoke of the power with which he preached Jesus Christ and Him crucified. She said that he believed in the conversion of children, and that she, now more than eighty years of age, was truly converted at the age of ten. This fact she had never doubted. I was once a guest for several weeks of Mr. Matthew W. Baldwin, the well-known builder of churches, as well as locomotives. He told me that when he was a child he was led to Christ by the preaching of Dr. Griffin.

In speaking of those services Dr. Griffin says, "One Sabbath, when I had dismissed the children, they gathered around me weeping and asking what they should do to be saved. I know not but a hundred were in tears at once. The scene was as affecting as it was unexpected. With all my entreaties I could not prevail on them to depart till night came on, and then I was obliged to go out with them, and literally force them from me."

I have recently received a letter from Rev. E. N. Phelps. The testimony he gives of his conversion in childhood may encourage parents and Sabbath-school teachers to labour with stronger faith for the early conversion of the young. He says:—

"I send you an account of my conversion. I was three years old when we left the house where I was born. I remember my mother talking to me about God while we lived there. In Sunday-school and day-school, being much given to thoughts of God and the wish to be a Christian, I used to wonder whether the children around me felt as I did. At one Sunday-school session, while I was quite young, those present that wished to be Christians were asked to rise. A number of older people rose. The good Spirit told me to rise, but I did not. I have often felt that if I had risen then, I should have become a Christian. I remember once, when eight years old, sobbing while I sang—

> This sinful world is not my rest;
> I long to lean on Jesus' breast.

And near the same time I took comfort in these words:—

> When the pangs of trial seize us,
> When the waves of sorrow roll,
> I will lay my head on Jesus,
> Pillow of the troubled soul.

"One Sunday in my tenth year, Rev. Chas. York Swan preached in our church and gave in the evening an account of the religious interest in Bristol. I stayed away from that service, because I was afraid someone might see me weep. Three weeks later, my father's morning sermon made me weep so much that I did not feel able to stay to Sunday-school, but went home. Yet when asked by my sister and father why I wept, I did not tell them. The following Sunday, I was at a young people's meeting where those that would see Jesus were asked to rise. I felt I ought to rise, but I did not, and for two weeks the unwillingness to do so kept me from being a Christian.

"One Sunday night, my sister rose by my side, but I remained seated. That week, on Friday night, three boys of my acquaintance rose, while I seemed to be nailed to the seat. Oh how I felt! When Sunday night came, I as usual failed to rise. But when it was too late, I was very, very sorry I had not. Just then someone proposed that a second invitation be given. It was quite out of the customary course, and seemed to be from God for me. I rose. At home that evening, when my mother had come into the library and found me sobbing, she asked me if I wished to be a Christian. She prayed and had me pray. On the morrow the dreadful burden I had had was gone. The next evening I was at a meeting where many had told of a Saviour they had lately found. And when one after another, among them my sister, had said, 'I too have found Christ,' oh, the joy this gave me! I did not speak; but when my mother asked if I had found hope that I was a Christian, I told her I had. The next morning was the most glorious morning I had ever known. I was a new being in a new world. Jesus is still my hope and comfort."

MR. SPURGEON AND THE ORPHANS.

IT was a pretty sight on Christmas morning when the large family of nearly 500 orphan children assembled for dinner; and one could not avoid contrasting the spectacle with the scenes and surroundings of the many homes from which the children had come. As usual, friends had sent an abundance of good things to brighten these young lives.

Since Mr. Spurgeon has been compelled to seek rest and repose in the Sunny South during our dark December days, the children have missed his cheery smile and voice at the Christmas festival, but, ever mindful of his charge, the post bore the following letter, which was read by Mr. W. Olney:—

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS (or should it be Girls and Boys?),—

A MERRY CHRISTMAS to you. May you heartily enjoy yourselves; and when you do so, be sure that in your hearts you praise the Lord God, who calls Himself your Father. How good it is of Him to lead good people to build an Orphanage, and then to send means to feed, and clothe, and teach five hundred of you. I feel as if I must put my hand over my eyes, and whisper, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, for taking such care of the little army at Stockwell."

I stopped in my writing to do this, and I want all of you, when this note is read to you, to stop a moment, and be very still, and then praise God in your hearts.

When this is done, I want to give you all my love. My throat is sore, and so I cannot say much; but I propose that we give three cheers for the vice-president and the trustees, and then for Mr. Charlesworth and all the matrons, teachers, and so forth. Love them all, and obey them, and try to make the Orphanage the happiest place in the world. We must not forget the kind friends who send us in special gifts for Christmas. No, no! We would pray God to bless them, and send to them great happiness at Christmas in return for their thoughts of us.

I think I like the girls best when the boys are away; but I shall not like the boys best till the girls are away; may boys and girls be much in love with the dear old Orphanage, and in years to come, if people say: "That was one of Spurgeon's children at Stockwell," I hope I may be able to say: "Yes, and I feel proud of him or her."

God bless you all. Rejoice and be glad. Be thankful and praise God.—Your loving friend,

C. H. SPURGEON.

Mentone, Monday, December 23, 1889.

As Mr. Charlesworth led off the cheers, the happy little guests obeyed his injunction not to let it be their fault if the echoes did not reach the President in his retreat at Mentone. At the point indicated, the reader paused, and in profound silence the children "praised God in their hearts." Our readers will unite with us in the prayer that Mr. Spurgeon may reap in his own soul the blessings of which it has been his privilege and his joy to be the bearer, not only to his orphan family but to thousands throughout the world.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Jan. 5, Ps. v. 1—12; Mon., Jan. 6, Ps. vi. 1—10; Tues., Jan. 7, Ps. vii. 1—17; Wed., Jan. 8, Ps. viii. 1—9; Thurs., Jan. 9, Ps. ix. 1—20; Fri., Jan. 10, Ps. x. 1—18; Sat., Jan. 11, Ps. xi. 1—7.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Gordon Hall, Liverpool, to Jan. 20. Mr. James S. Tyler, Leytonstone, Jan. 6—11, at 4; Northcote-road, Wandsworth, Jan. 13—17. Messrs. C. de Candole and R. Callender, Arthur-road, Beckenham, to Jan. 5. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Corn Exchange, Ross, Herefordshire, Jan. 12—19. Mr. Armitage, Holy Trinity School, Leicester, Jan. 11—20.

THE REVOLUTION IN BRAZIL.

REV. E. VANORDEN writes from San Paulo, Brazil:—The Republic has unexpectedly been proclaimed without the loss of a single life. Order and tranquility reign everywhere. The religious atmosphere, unhappily, will be more or less the same as in France, and the responsibilities of Christian workers will be increased. Renewed efforts must be made to counteract infidel influences, and to teach the people the simple precepts of the Gospel.

Friends in the United States are raising a fund of £40,000 to enlarge the American College of San Paulo, in order to make it equal in extent and usefulness to Robert College, of Constantinople.

Last Sunday I preached in a small country place, and seven women stood up and asked the prayers of God's people. It is so everywhere when the Gospel is preached. Will our friends come to our help? Mr. M. H. Hodder, 27, Paternoster-row, London, will gladly receive communications.

A MISSION AT ELGIN.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT.]

NOTICE was taken a few weeks ago of a series of evangelistic meetings held here, which have resulted in a number of conversions mostly from among the intelligent church-going class. Quite a number of Christians have got such a blessing that it looks (as one expressed it) like a second conversion. For some time prior to the meetings there was a strong yearning among Christians for a time of blessing. Much prayer was made for a work of grace. The ladies and gentlemen whose names have already been given in your paper came here unasked by us. We verily believe God sent them. They came for a few days, and were with us for some weeks. The expense of the mission was born entirely by the visitors. Many believers threw themselves heart and soul into the work, and the mission has been one which will not easily be forgotten.

Morning Bible-readings were held in the lodgings of the missioners, and frequently lasted a couple of hours; they were attended by a number of women and occasionally a few men. An afternoon Bible-reading was held in the hall. It was indeed a privilege to meet with men and women who have a marvellous grasp of Divine truth, and who have the peculiar gift of passing it on to others. The evening meetings were evangelistic; a noticeable feature was that there was no set order of proceeding. Sometimes one address was given, and at other times three or four addresses, just as the Lord gave the word.

Some of the Christians in the town have arranged to hold a weekly meeting for prayer and fellowship, and hope by this means to nourish the young believers. All who were influenced for good were encouraged at once to affiliate themselves in the Church work of the particular congregation to which they belonged.

Some New Year Sonnets.

A NEW YEAR'S DESIRE.

"Whatsoever."—JOHN ii. 5.

"WHATSOEVER!" Blessed Lord,
Am I ready for that word?
Is thy will so dear to mine
  That the whispers of thy love—
  Heard all other calls above—
Claim me, keep me wholly thine?
Search me, teach me, hold my heart.
  Draw me to thy blessed feet:
  There, in hush or service sweet,
I would live "the better part."

Help me, Christ, my Lord, to show
  That I love Thee first and best.
  "Whatsoever" be the test
That my stewardship shall know.
Let this year my truest be,
Filled with Christ's reality.

M. BUTLER GERDS.

THE NEW YEAR.

PSALM i. 6.

TO-DAY starts forth the decade's final year,
  Whose secret course no mortal can foretell.
  Nor they, perchance, who in the Glory dwell,
And thence look down upon our earthly sphere,
But One there is, to whom the whole is clear—
  The Mighty One, whose voice its storms can quell—
  The Loving One, whose hand doth all things well—
The Holy One, to whom each saint is dear.

Then let us watch the year, which starts to-day
  Upon its hidden course, with fearless eyes.
  Trusting each hour in God the only wise,
Whose ear is open when his children pray;
  And thus, whate'er its course may bring of woe,
  Our peace shall as a tideless river flow.

Edlaston Rectory, January 1. W. S.

"GO FORWARD."

EXOD. xiv. 15; PHIL. iii. 13. 14.

NOT looking back, but pressing towards the mark,
Although the road be rough, the night be dark.
  Go forward!
Not looking round, but pressing towards the prize,
Although the blinding spray, and billows rise.
  Go forward!
Though mountain path be high, and steep, and long;
Though thunder-voices gather loud and strong;
  Go forward!
High above all the clamour and the din,
The crosses, losses, turmoil, and the sin,
  Go forward!
For One is watching, waiting near the goal,
Who beckons, "Come to Me for rest of soul;
  Come forward!"
Faith sees the victory won through every strife,
Knows no defeat, but, straight with vigorous life,
  Goes forward!
Leaping the torrent where it cannot swim;
Spanning the gulf, and seeing only Him.
  Cries, "Forward!"
Reaches its object through the blinding rain;
Through mist and mirage, misery and pain,
  Straight forward!
Forward! where weary hearts are sighing, breaking!
Forward! where sin-sick souls are dying, aching!
Forward! where He, our Lord and Master trod;
Clothed in the armour of our living God!
  Go forward!

ROSE BENN.

EARTH'S GLAD NEW YEAR.

COME, O glory of the ages!
  Jubilee's prophetic morn,— Deadlier strife the earth engages,
  Dark'ning years in sadness born:
Dawn, Millennial day of peace!
Bid the nations' war-note cease!

Come, thou gladsome Proclamation!
  Sound the sweet Sabbatic strain,—
Liberty to every nation
  Long enthrall'd by Satan's chain;
Wake the anthem of release,
Echoing o'er the hills of peace!

Liberate the souls that anguish
  'Neath the iron rod of hell;
Bind the broken hearts that languish:
  Sorrow's sigh for ever quell:
Hail, iniquity's decease!
Welcome, Morning Star of Peace!

Brighter than the glowing noonday
  Be the advent of the King,
Swifter than the swiftest sunray
  Let the tidings earthward ring:
Break the rod of Satan's lease!
Take the sceptre, Prince of Peace!

FRANK COCKREM.

THE EVERLASTING ARMS.

"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."—DEUT. xxxiii. 27.

ETERNAL LORD, my refuge be
  All through this mortal strife:
I fear no ill if I have Thee;
  For, in the midst of life,
This truth my weary spirit calms—
"Beneath are everlasting arms."

What though I seem to bear alone
  The burden and the heat,
Though faith and hope be almost gone,
  My God will keep my feet;
He holds me up, my fear disarms,
And underneath me are his arms.

O Jesu Christ, when Thou shalt call
  My waiting soul away,
Grant me to find in Thee my all;
  Be Thou my strength and stay:
This, then, shall silence all alarms—
Beneath are thine almighty arms.

And when, beyond this fleeting scene,
  I serve God day and night;
My joy shall be on Him to lean,
  While shining in his light:
Around me, Heaven's eternal charms,
Beneath, the everlasting arms.

WILLIAM A. BATHURST.

Holy Trinity, Eastbourne, Jan. 1.

ROMAN CATHOLICISM.—The news that Miss Pringle, matron of St. Thomas's Hospital, has joined the Church of Rome has (says a correspondent) occasioned quite a little flutter among the nurses at the London hospitals. Miss Pringle's is the third secession to Rome amongst hospital matrons during the present year.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—DEAR SIR,—Your paper is being kindly sent to me, I have enjoyed its contents, and have given it to others so that its usefulness may be as great as possible. My wife and I go to the prison every third Sunday morning to conduct services, and I frequently leave some Christian literature for the prisoners, THE CHRISTIAN among the rest. The jailer informed me that it was much valued and read and re-read by all who were able to read. There are also many people scattered about in isolated places to whom I give tracts, &c., when they come to town. I find THE CHRISTIAN very suitable for that purpose. There is great need of such literature here. We require to be held up at the throne of grace, as we have not so much here to stimulate us to new zeal in the Master's service.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN MUCKERSIE.

Manse, Belize, British Honduras.

Dr. Barnardo and his Children

IN his "Personal Notes" in Night and Day for December, Dr. Barnardo thus writes:—

I have now ready for publication, as a supplement to Night and Day,* the whole of my correspondence with Cardinal Manning's secretary, begun in May, 1887, which reveals the history of the secret Romish attempts to lay hands on my children, and at the same time gives proof of her gross neglect of the waifs and strays of Roman Catholic parentage now in the slums of our great cities. These letters were never written with a view to publication, and would not now see the light, but that it has become necessary, in the interests of the truth, to show how baseless is the charge of proselytism recently hurled at me, and how earnestly but vainly I once sought to establish with the Roman Catholic authorities a modus vivendi by which their own destitute waifs might be rescued without their becoming a charge upon the funds of Protestant institutions.

With the publication of this supplement my share in the controversy is brought for the present to a close. I have acted on the defensive so far, against my will, in the defence of the children committed to my care. But if compelled by a sense of duty to do so, I can, and will by God's help, return to the subject. I possess yet another correspondence (although with other persons) which throws even a more lurid light upon the aims and methods of that Apostolic Church whose boasted motto is Semper eadem.

Throughout the length and breadth of England there is no one in sympathy with the aims and methods of our work for Christ a more cordial, gracious, evangelical, Protestant sympathy, than has never yet been fully aroused, but I believe only awaits the occasion to make itself powerfully felt. Relying upon no human arm, but on God alone, I am prepared if needful to appeal to the nation, with which much I do not agree. Recent years have been very eventful for Rome: the English people are not "good haters," and have shown a general willingness to forget, perhaps too quickly, the story of Romish intolerance and oppression. Must they be reminded? A quiet policy would seem to be at present Rome's best tactics. I wonder if she will have wisdom enough to choose it.

Spite of the storm which has been raging so wildly around my Institutions, in the press, in the Courts of Justice, and in society, we have kept steadily at the old work of rescuing and saving lost and homeless children. Preoccupied and absorbed as I have personally been, my valued and loyal helpers have stepped nobly in the breach to supply any lack of service. Through these means rather more than three hundred, during the single month of November, 158 homeless and destitute boys and girls, many of them snatched from the vilest of conditions, from the custody of degraded people and from infamous associations, have been gathered into the Mildly Christian shelter of our Homes. Let us unite to thank God for every poor waif thus saved from present suffering and prospective ruin!

* Post free 6d., post free 5d.

BEULAH MISSION, ISLINGTON.—This Mission, held in what was formerly Providence-place Baptist Chapel, is entirely unsectarian. The workers give their services gratuitously. "The Devil's Mile" is a name by which the Upper-street is known, and a census of church connection now being taken by the workers reveals a state of spiritual destitution which is truly appalling. A chief feature of the work, and one that has been signally blessed, is house-to-house visitation. There are Sabbath-school, mothers' meeting, and clothing club, working boys' class, Band of Hope, Bible-Reading Union, and evangelistic services. The work is exceedingly difficult and trying, and the workers ask the prayers of your readers. Tracts and booklets for distribution may be sent to me at 5, Gibson-square, Islington, London.

R. CALDWELL, Superintendent.

REV. GEORGE ROGERS,

Late Tutor of the Pastors' College.

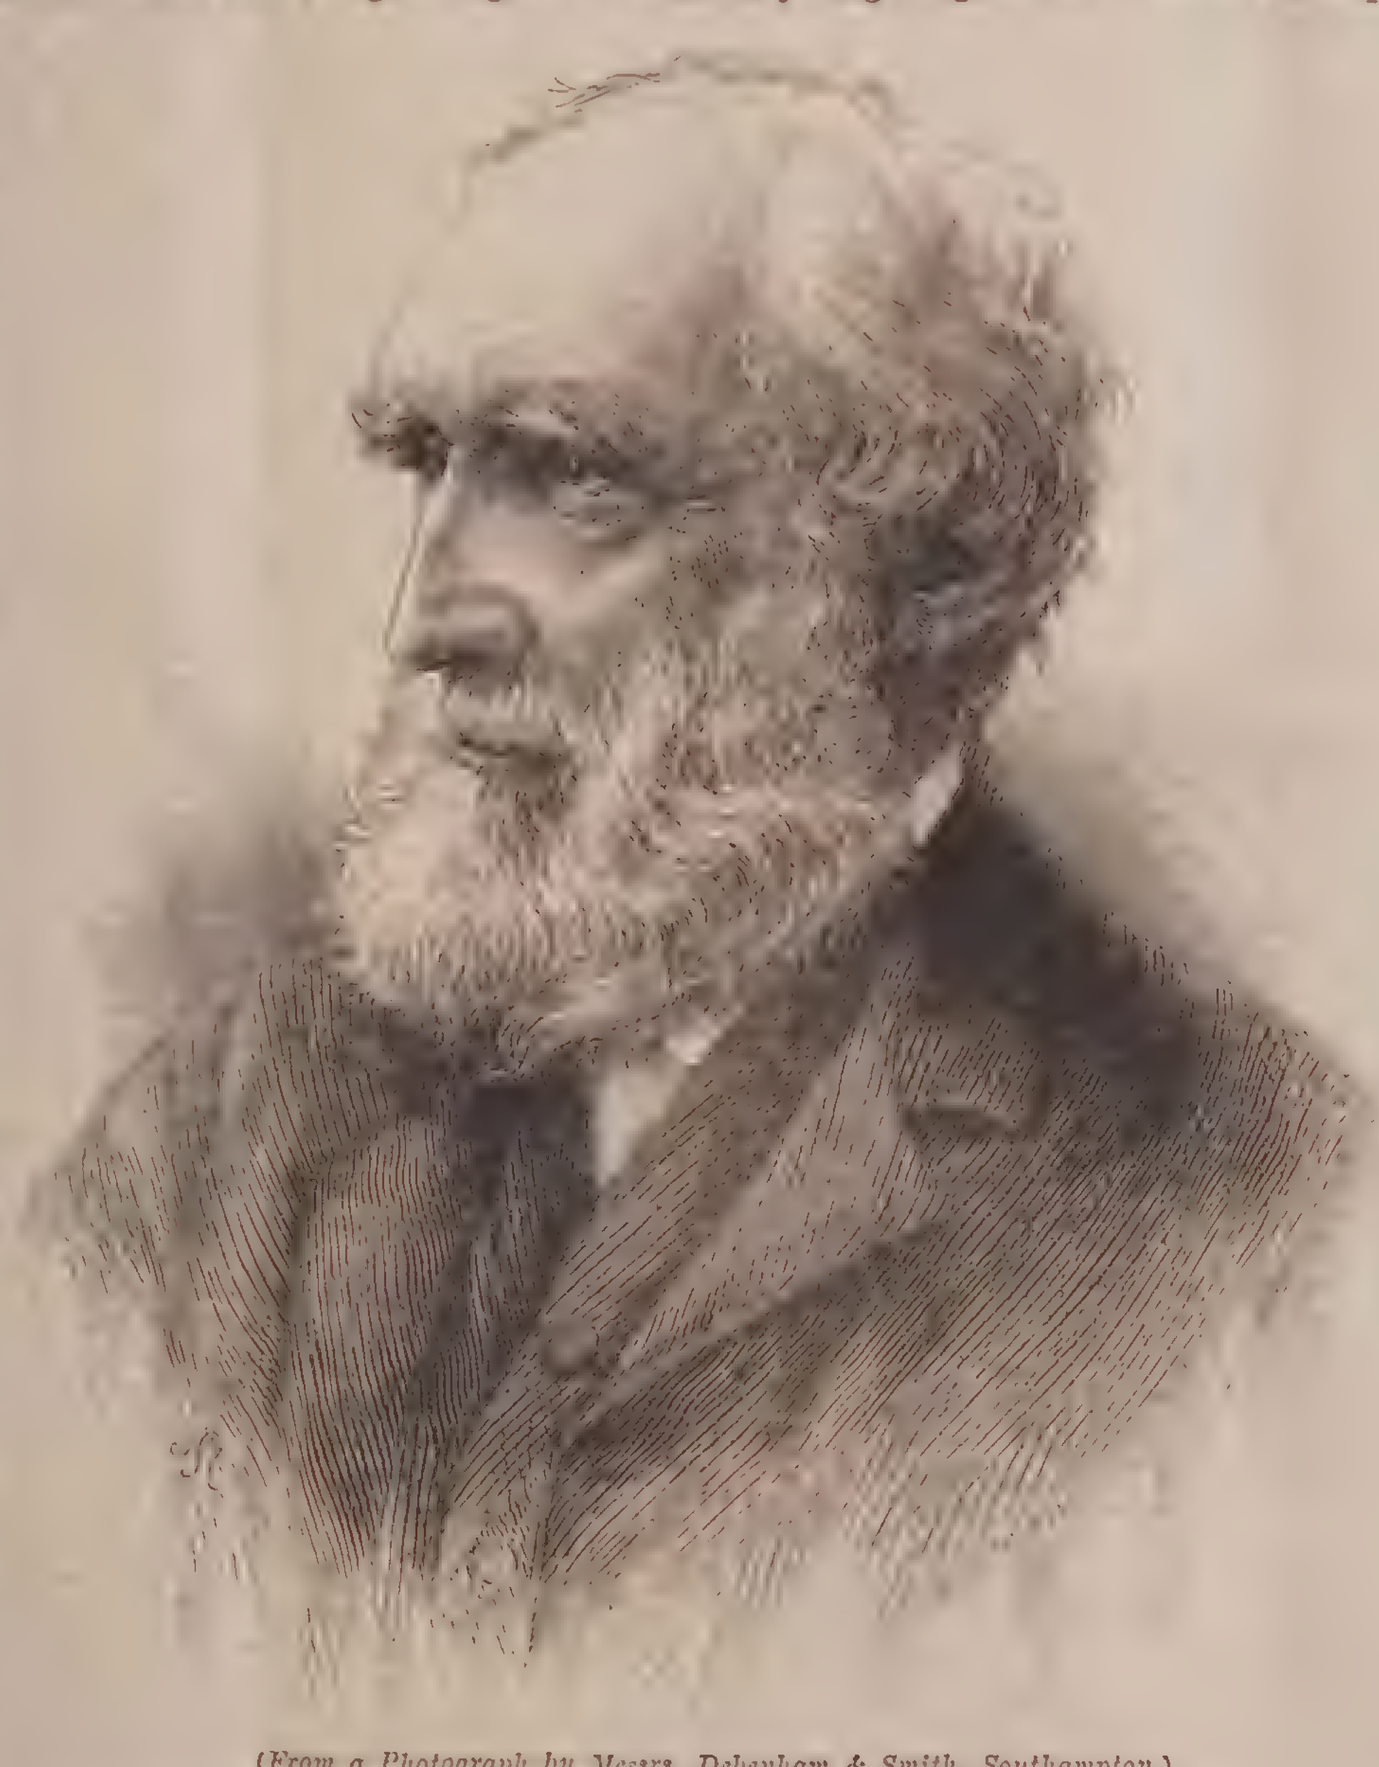
THAT truth is stranger than fiction is a truism which has received abundant confirmation in the history of the Pastors' College, which came into existence to meet a want in the case of young men who had already begun to preach the Gospel, but who needed instruction in systematic theology and training in the use of their mother-tongue. Said Mr. Spurgeon:—

It was not in my heart to bid them cease their preaching, and, had I done so, they would in all probability have ignored my recommendation. As it seemed that preach they would, though their attainments were very slender, no other course was open but to give them an opportunity to educate themselves for the work.

Here, then, we have the genius of the Pastors' College defined by its founder, who says, "When it was commenced I had not even a remote idea of whereunto it would grow." The day of small things is always full of promise, and workers together with God may cherish the largest hopes. That the growth of the College has so far exceeded the most sanguine hopes of the founder proves how really the work was of God.

It was impossible for Mr. Spurgeon, burdened as he was, to engage in the laborious work of teaching, and his anxiety was to find a man fully qualified and willing to become his alter ego. He had not long to wait before he found, in the person of Rev. GEORGE ROGERS, the ideal man, who, not knowing the specific sphere to which he would be called, had diligently prepared himself for such a work.

A man of Puritanic stamp, deeply learned, orthodox in doctrine, judicious, witty, devout, earnest, liberal in spirit, and, withal, juvenile in heart to an extent most remarkable in one of his years.



(From a Photograph by Messrs. Debenham & Smith, Southampton.)

Such is Mr. Spurgeon's characteristic summary of his friend, and he adds:—

My connection with him has been one of uninterrupted comfort and delight. The most sincere affection exists between us, we are of one mind and of one heart, and, what is equally important, he has in every case secured not merely the respect but the filial love of every student!

Now that Mr. Rogers is "such an one as Paul the aged," awaiting the call which shall terminate his well-earned repose after the labours of a busy life, a brief sketch of his career will prove acceptable to our readers.

Mr. Rogers saw the dawn of the present century, and Mr. Spurgeon's native county of Essex may well be proud to reckon him as amongst her most distinguished sons. His father occupied Ardleigh Hall, and was a fine specimen of the sturdy type of England's Puritanic yeomen who were careful to instruct their children in Calvinistic theology. It was to the influence of the home training that the family of twelve children owed their early and most lasting impressions, and which led George to desire to become a minister.

In the grammar school of the neighbouring village of Dedham, young Rogers laid the foundation of a classical education, and was distinguished by his devotion to his studies. On leaving school he was placed under a Congregational minister in Northamptonshire preparatory to entering Rotherham College as a student for the ministry. Completing his college course, a University career at Edinburgh was open to him; but he was led to commence his ministry at Manchester, and was successful in forming a church and building a place of worship.

From Manchester he removed to London to become co-pastor with Rev. John Clayton at the King's Weigh House Chapel, afterwards the scene of Rev. Thomas Binney's ministry. On the retirement of Mr. Clayton into private life, Mr. Rogers became the first minister of the church at Upminster, Essex, in the near neighbourhood of Mr. Clayton's country retreat, and only resigned to accept a call to establish a new church at Camberwell.

That his services were held in high repute is evident from the fact that he was a frequent preacher in the leading Nonconformist chapels, and was invited to become the minister of Camden Chapel, Camberwell, an honour he declined, as he could not approve a liturgical service. As is well known, Camden Chapel became the scene of the ministry of Rev. Henry Melvill, whose fame is perpetuated in his masterpieces of pulpit eloquence.

An intimate friend of Rev. William Jay, Mr. Rogers occupied his pulpit on many occasions, and was selected to conduct Mrs. Jay's funeral service, and to preach the memorial sermon.

For thirty-six years Mr. Rogers maintained the pastorate of Albany Chapel, and only resigned to give himself entirely to the work of the Pastor's College.

By the hundreds of students who came under his influence, Mr. Rogers was esteemed to the point of reverence. The men loved him, and ever found in him a personal friend, whose counsels were at their command. In spirit he was as juvenile as the youngest tyro, and regarded his students with a father's solicitude. The mention of his name will awaken memories of college days, and will to-day draw from hundreds of ministers in many parts expressions of tender and grateful emotion.

As an author he had the pen of a ready writer, and contributed largely to current magazine literature. The results of his homiletical treatment of the Book of Revelation were published in four volumes, and evinced considerable power as an expositor. The book has been out of print for some years, but is well worthy of reproduction. His latest volume consists of a selection of the addresses delivered at the conferences of the Pastors' College; it is entitled "Conference Addresses." So impressed was Mr. Spurgeon with the value of these addresses that he published the book at his own cost. As embodying the results of the thoughts and experiences of such a remarkable man, the book will prove a valuable treasure to an earnest Christian worker or an aspirant for the ministry.

In 1885 Mr. Rogers delivered a sermon at the jubilee of the Albany-road Chapel, which he had founded, from the text, "I have kept the faith." His closing words were very significant, and should be pondered in this present hour of unrest, when the hunger for novelty is fraught with so much peril. He said:—

I have occasionally heard during my lifetime of one minister and another of the modern school of thought, lamenting greatly in his last hours that he had not kept to his first faith, and I have no doubt but this has been the case with many others. If I have any consolation in reference to my own ministry it is in the fact that, with all its imperfections, it has been consecrated to the one Gospel of the grace of God. My first sermon, which was preached sixty-nine years ago, was from the words: "In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace." And from that time

Redeeming love has been my theme,
And shall be till I die.

I have not been unmindful of the many departures from the simplicity of the Gospel by men of superior talents and laborious research, first in Germany and then by a host of imitators in this country and in America; but it has only served to endear to me the more my first faith.

A testimony such as this should not be allowed to die into silence. The conviction, faith, and experience, of such a man may be set over against the conjectures of those who substitute their own formulated philosophy for the statements of Divine revelation.

Now, with an unimpaired intellect and a restful heart, he looks back upon a finished course with humble gratitude; and with calm composure and a confident hope he awaits the promised crown. To look upon the venerable saint and to hear him speak of the "things touching the King" is a means of grace to the privileged visitor. With nothing to sadden, and with no other burden than that of the feebleness of age, there is no disturbing element to the peace of the dear old man. His children who survive are devoted to his every wish, and the sanctuary of his Norwood home is as the vestibule of heaven. His spirit has caught and his countenance reflects the splendours of an unsetting sun, and there is borne to his wistful heart the music of a distant sphere. Not long ago he told his experience in a few verses which came to him in the hours of a wakeful night:—

The music of heaven I hear,
It cannot be music of earth;
Its notes are so soft and so clear,
They must be of heavenly birth.

The music of heaven I hear,
It tells me life's sorrows are past,
It tells me the angels are near,
And heaven is coming at last.

The music of heaven I hear,
It fills me with rapture and love;
It brings me in ecstasy near
The glorified spirits above.

The music of heaven I hear,
From voices unnumbered and sweet,
And feel that I too must be there,
To render the chorus complete.

A CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life is arranged for by a united committee to be held in the Assembly Rooms, Cork, from April 28 to May 2, 1890.

Romanists and Mr. Quarrier.

The work of child rescue is surrounded with many difficulties, some of which are illustrated by two cases decided by Sheriff Guthrie, of Glasgow. There can be no doubt but that the sympathy of the general public, which Mr. Quarrier always enjoys, will be on his side in regard to these two actions. In the first case, a woman afflicted with hip-joint disease, and so poor that she had been two or three times an inmate of Barony Poorhouse, had in March last appealed to Mr. Quarrier to take charge of her illegitimate daughter, six years of age. She was told that illegitimate children could not be received into the Orphan Homes—obviously a very necessary rule—but Mr. Quarrier offered to find a home for the little girl, and did so as soon as the mother had brought forward a person who appeared to confirm her story. The child was adopted by persons residing at Motherwell, whom Mr. Quarrier knows to be worthy Christian people, and by whom it is admitted that the child would be well cared for. But towards the end of April the mother wanted the child back again, saying she was going to the poorhouse to die. To have taken the child from a comfortable home on such a pretext would have been cruel. Proceedings were taken by the mother, or on her behalf, which culminated in the action just ended.

It is satisfactory, at all events, to see that, so far as any question of mere personal caprice was concerned on the part of the parent, the child was safe. Interference with parental rights over children is a delicate matter. The law as laid down in the Court of Session strikes a balance between the authority of the parent and the interests of the child, and if the latter are seriously threatened the former may be set aside. The Sheriff might, therefore, in this case have refused to comply with the mother's demand, on the ground that the child's health would be injured by relegating it again to the slums. But then at the last moment the question of religion is brought into the case, and the mother's demand is based on the plea that she wants to have the child brought up in her own religion, and not as a Protestant. Mr. Quarrier had, it appears, been told at the outset that both she and the father were Protestants. In dealing with the religion of a child the law gives precedence to the religion of the parents, and, accordingly, on the strength of a statement made on the mother's behalf to the effect that the child will be taken charge of by the managers of a Roman Catholic Orphanage or Home, the Sheriff gave his decision, allowing the child to be transferred to such an institution. At the same time he found the pursuer liable in expenses to Mr. Quarrier.

In the second case the Sheriff found that the father of the boy in question was a Protestant, and held that "the mere fact that the children were baptized, in circumstances and for reasons unknown, by Roman Catholic clergy, is not enough to make any difference, or to infer that the father wished them to be brought up in that communion." Since the pursuer was admittedly unfit to have charge of the boy, and no good reason had been shown for removing him from the Orphan Homes, the Sheriff decided in this case against the mother, and found Mr. Quarrier entitled to expenses. But what chance has Mr. Quarrier of getting his expenses from persons in the position of the pursuers in these cases?

It is, of course, idle to blink the fact, which is perfectly patent, that the real pursuers were not the mothers, but certain clergymen of the Roman Catholic Church. They ought to pay the expenses, in common fairness. Roman Catholic clergy have a perfect right to look after children belonging to their own denomination. But they [illegible] from the slums themselves in the first place, or else allow a fair field for others to do so. Mr. Quarrier's Homes are an entirely unsectarian institution. If the children are taught as Protestants, it is simply because they live in a Protestant country. The object of the Homes is purely to save life, not to make proselytes. But Mr. Quarrier, like Dr. Barnardo, has found the religious question in the case of these Catholic children one of much difficulty. Only lately could some religious [illegible] of a step to push work on that on which he is engaged. But there are certain Roman Catholic clergymen who have publicly declared that it would be better for a child to lie in the gutter, or even die of starvation, than be brought up in a Protestant institution. Of course, from their peculiar point of view, the child's soul, being of more value than the body, is doomed to eternal destruction on the latter alternative. But that any such inhuman proposition represents the feeling of the general body of intelligent Roman Catholics either in Glasgow or anywhere else we do not for one moment believe.

—North British Daily Mail.

THEATRICAL MISSION.—The claims of "Macready House" upon the liberality and Christian sympathy of the public at this season are unusually strong. Thousands of young professionals gather within its walls, and thus are brought under evangelical influences. The Gospel meetings on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday have been more than crowded the past few weeks. Mr. S. B. Pearce has taken a lively interest in the work among the boys, which he has himself carried on week by week for over seven years. Kind friends and advisers are ever ready to befriend them, the work in London being the model for that carried on throughout the provinces. Many a girl and child whose life on the stage exposes her to peculiar temptation has learned at Macready House that there is "One" "able to succour them that are tempted."

THE ELMSLIE MEMORIAL.—A circular has been issued asking for contributions to the fund to be raised in memory of the late Rev. Dr. Elmslie, Professor of Old Testament Literature in the Presbyterian College, London. As has been already stated, the sense of a common loss has led the Presbyterian, Independent, and Baptist denominations to this united effort. The memorial will take the form of a fund (say £1000) to be administered by trustees for the education and advancement of Dr. Elmslie's only child, and "Elmslie Scholarships" for the promotion of Old Testament and Semitic learning, and open to the students of all the colleges of the three denominations. A total sum of at least £5000 is asked for, and contributions, varying from £100 to £1, have already been received. Rev. Dr. Donald Fraser is the chairman of the committee. Donations should be sent to Mr. G. Walter Knox, the deputy treasurer, at 16, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

The Withered Soul.

NOTES OF AN EVANGELISTIC ADDRESS
BY MAJOR WHITTLE.

A GREAT calamity it must be, to have an arm withered, a limb, or any other member, powerless and lifeless. I have a friend in America, whose arm hangs useless by his side. It was shot in the war, and he wouldn't have it amputated: it healed up, in a sort of way, but there it hangs, withered and useless. It strikes me as such a calamity, whenever I see him.

But how much greater the calamity when it concerns the soul! A withered soul, with no response to the love of God, no heart-purpose to obey Him, no repentance or sorrow for sin, no desire to give it up, no real yearning for holiness—how awful! DEAD, the Bible says such a soul is. What a calamity—a dead soul! Yet this is the natural condition of each one of us, and unless we come in contact with the Son of God we have no life in us. "He that hath not the Son of God hath not life." He says, "I am the life"; and again—"The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live." And we, thank God, are still living in that "hour"—eighteen hundred years to us, an hour to Him, for "a thousand years are with the Lord as one day." But there is no saying when it may end, for you. It may be that, if you don't believe on the Lord Jesus Christ within the next thirty minutes, you will never be pleaded with again.

However, I want to use the incident of the man with the withered arm, as an illustration of how we, with our withered souls, may come to Christ and have life.

The first point which had to be settled, you will note, was: Was it lawful to heal, under the given circumstances? And for us, also, that had to be settled before our souls could be healed—before God could forgive us and heal us and receive us to be his children. Strictly speaking, under justice, we were condemned, and ought to have died. You will find the whole scheme of it—God's way of making the sinner right before Him—in Rom. iii. 19—26. You know it all, and have heard it again and again; but has it got into your heart yet? Salvation is not to be had by any righteousness of your own, but by throwing yourself entirely upon Him. This is true: it is not a theory, but the TRUTH. Any relief from sin or its consequences is quite unlawful for us, except it be given us by that Redeemer who was foreshadowed by the types of the law, and made under the law, that He might redeem us from under the law. It is lawful for Him to save us—lawful because He has fulfilled the law.

The man's heart is drawn out in faith in this Redeemer. It is beautiful. He probably would not have been in that synagogue but for the Saviour. The Pharisees, he knew, had little sympathy with him. They did not want men with infirmities in their synagogues, regarding such as under God's special curse. The tower of Siloam falling, the man born blind—these, to them, are signs of special sin. But as the man looks at the Lord it is so different: he can scarcely help putting faith in Him. Poor wreck, with nobody to stand up for him!—the Lord has come to bless just such as he. "He came not to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved." Your family may condemn you, and perhaps got out of patience with you long ago. You may condemn yourself, disgusted with your frequent failures and deep-rooted sin. Of course you are a failure. Of course you are self-condemned. Couldn't be otherwise, without the Saviour. But He has come to save you.

Now that the question as to the lawfulness of salvation has been settled, it becomes a personal matter. The man must come right into contact with the loving Saviour. He needs forgiveness, and Divine grace and power to lift him up out of his sin and make him in harmony with God. He must "stand forth" and then "stretch out his hand."

You must take the place of confession and supplication. You will never be a Christian until you want to be one, and never until your wanting goes the length of being willing to confess it. You will never be, as it were, swept in with the crowd. You will need to come to the point where you stand out alone, quite independent of your surroundings, realising that it is a personal matter with God, a matter of eternity, and not caring whether the people look on or not.

Humanly speaking, it must have been a bit unpleasant for that man to be called upon to stretch forth the worst member that he had. Doubtless he was keeping it out of sight as much as he could. "Which hand?" he might have said. "This one? A nice hand, you see! Can do a lot of work. Nice and clean, too. Get my good wife to wash it for me. Oh yes, I've got a nice hand!" And so on, always anything or everything except that bad arm. Oh, you're willing enough to talk about yourself, to expatiate on this virtue, or that success of yours—anything except these few things that you know in your soul are wrong. That jealousy, that vanity, conceit, evil temper, covetousness—hide them away! But sometimes, when you are alone at night, up they come in spite of you, and make the blood spring to the roots of your hair; and you're glad enough to chase the thought of them away as soon as possible.

But that won't do here. Christ requires you to stretch forth just the very member that needs healing. You must come as a sinner. No dressing of yourself up in your best suit and coming round on communion Sunday to show what a respectable Christian you are. He "came not to call the righteous." This beautiful clean hand, will He not be satisfied with it? These many excellent characteristics of yours, are they not enough? No, "stretch out thy hand!"—just that one which is all ugly and shapeless and withered away, which you are trying to hide under your mantle. Hard? Yes, but unless you do it there is no healing.

The stretching out of this hand implied faith in the grace and power of Christ. The prodigal would never have come home unless he had had faith that his father would receive him, even if to a very low place. And you must believe just now in the power and willingness of Christ to save your soul. How can you doubt it, when He died for you? Now He commands you to put faith in Him, and what He commands you He gives you power to do. His call to you to put forth your hand means, that, in spite of your feelings, He gives you grace to do it.

Now, stir yourself up, and will to put faith in Him. No longer treat his word as a lie, and Jesus Christ as one who is false to his promises. He is not false. He is faithful and just, if you confess your sins, to forgive you your sins and to cleanse you from all unrighteousness. We find that this man got the power to do it as soon as he obeyed. Of course he did. Did you ever know one who sought the Lord wholeheartedly and failed to find Him? This man was decided to obey, and made real earnest work of it. The consequence was, he went away with two good hands.

See how happy he is, as he hurries home to tell it to his wife! Then away to his work and his friends, to show this wonder. "See what a beautiful hand the Lord Jesus has given me!—the poor, old, dead hand restored whole as the other." Show a change of life? Of course he will! But his hand had to be healed first. Here you see where works come in, not before, but after conversion. First, life; then the manifestation of the life in words and actions for the glory of God. The good works evidence the reality of the Spirit in the soul. The man didn't go to work with his withered arm. He couldn't have, for there was no life or power in it. But now that the Lord has healed it, how faithfully it will serve him! His ledger, his carpenter's tools, all will be handled with the greatest care and zeal and faithfulness, to show what a good hand he has got and glorify Him who has given it to him. We ought to show forth the praises of Him who has called us out of darkness into light, and our lives be running over with—"Unto Him who hath loved us and washed us from sin, Unto Him be the glory, for ever, Amen."

Now, friend, in closing, let me urge DECISION. Perhaps you have been saying this is not your way of salvation. You have a certain natural timidity and modesty, and would much prefer to have it done in a quiet way without anyone knowing anything about it. It is foolish and wicked of you to think thus. Stretch out your hand, for the good of the other poor fellows around, and for the glory of Christ. Let your little world know all about it. It is cowardly and wicked of you, to keep it concealed in order to save your feelings. No man is saved just for himself. You must take a public stand for Christ. Oh, there are men and women and boys and girls around you, who, when they see you are saved, will also come to Christ, Stop arguing and contending for your own way! No matter if you haven't much feeling, yield to this appeal. How awful to neglect it! If the truth is but clear to you, and if the Spirit of God calls you, then, oh, stretch forth thy hand, while God is calling, and your blessed Redeemer stands ready to save you!

Oh, stretch out thy hand to God! "Unto Thee, O God, do I lift up my soul." Come as you are, without waiting to feel. Stretch out that poor, dead, withered soul towards Him, in obedience to his call; and as you obey, the power will come.

THE ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE.

ABUNDANT testimony as to the thoroughly practical and valuable work accomplished through the instrumentality of this institution was borne at the annual meeting, which recently took place in Exeter Hall. Dr. Griffith, the hon. sec., submitted an encouraging report of work both at home and abroad. During the past year there have been many applications from ladies desiring training; many had to be declined, from lack of the needful resources. Eleven fresh students availed themselves of the advantages offered by the College. During the year more than 150 maternity cases have been visited among the poor of the surrounding district.

Canon FLEMING, who occupied the chair, eloquently urged the claims of the Mission, and pleaded for more widespread support of Zenana work. As one of the official visitors, he testified to the excellent management of the College.

Rev. F. E. WIGRAM, of the C.M.S., spoke highly, from personal observation, of the work of a number of the ladies who had passed through the College, and who are now labouring in different parts of the foreign field. Even those who have but a partial training in medicine have an important work in the foreign land. He regarded the proclamation, issued recently by Moslem Moulvies, in the Punjaub, against female missionaries entering the homes of the people, because many Mahommedan women and girls were being led to accept the Christian faith, as a strong testimony, and an unanswerable refutation to those who have been doubting and denying the reality of mission work, more especially among Mahommedans.

Mr. W. S. CAINE, M.P., said he became more and more convinced that medical knowledge is the key to unlock doors, and win confidence and favour in heathen lands. One of the best dispensaries in the North-west Provinces of India is under the charge of a former student of the College. Rev. James Sadler, of Amoy, Rev. J. Hiles Hitchen, D.D., and Rev. Richard Roberts, followed with brief, sympathetic speeches.

WILD AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINES.

HAVING just received, through Mr. George Williams, of St. Paul's-churchyard, London, money contributions from well-wishers in the dear old land, I feel constrained to pen a few lines for your columns on the work of God amongst our poor Australian aborigines.

Since I last wrote my scene of labour has been changed from the far north to this the extreme south-western portion of New South Wales, or about 700 miles from the position I occupied on the Culgon in January last. In consequence of the state of my wife's health I was most reluctantly compelled to accept the offer of parish work from that worthy and earnest man of God, the Bishop of Goulburn, with the distinct understanding that I should be free to do all in my power for the miserable remnants of once powerful tribes inhabiting this part of the colony. Since my settlement in this parish, which covers an immense area of country, much has been done both amongst whites and blacks. At Brungle, which is one hundred miles distant, I have paid several missionary visits, preaching to the blacks there encamped, who number upwards of one hundred.

In company with my faithful and devoted black fellow, Peter Murray, a short time since I made a missionary tour. Meetings were held in several large towns, Peter, as well as myself, pleading the cause of the poor blacks. At a place on the Lachlan river we got a large number of them to one meeting, and earnestly pressed upon the white portion of the audience the woes and needs of the dusky creatures of God in their presence. At one camp during this journey we found a exposed not only to hunger and semi-nakedness, but, alas! to all the evils of the worst side of our colonial civilisation. My heart was deeply touched for them, and I have made the necessary start to their being properly cared for. I hope to get them comfortably quartered under my own supervision.

LARGE NUMBER OF HELPLESS CHILDREN,

I have prevailed on the Government to appoint one of my former co-workers at the Warangesda mission station as teacher of the settlement of blacks at Brungle. One of my objects here at "Illaville" is to gather in native children who are entirely destitute, and train them under duly qualified Christian instructors, so that they may turn out good domestics and station and farm labourers.

When I came here only eight months ago nothing of this Home existed. But already, through the mercy and faithfulness of God, not only has a prosperous white parish been organised, but initiatory steps have thus far been taken for future permanent benefit to the unfortunate aboriginal children of whom, sad indeed to say, we have no less than 3300 in the colony, and of that number not more than 400 cared for. In Queensland efforts are being made by a band of sincere Christian people to convey to the tens of thousands of blacks in that colony the blessings of the Gospel of "peace and goodwill." They have met with some discouragements, inasmuch as the Government have not shown much interest hitherto in missionary efforts. But as soon as the matter of native reserves is settled, a practicable scheme will be inaugurated. What we want to reach the

NEEDY THOUSANDS OF BLACK HEATHEN

in this land is the Christianity of Christ and the Apostles, pure and simple—men and women moved by the Holy Ghost to go out into the wilds, without hope of present reward, and make known the love and mercy of God in Christ. I would again reiterate my former statement, that in Australia we have not less than 200,000 blacks, and not more than 5000 of them are being reached by missionary operations (Catholic or Protestant). This harvest field is "great, but the labourers are few."

As regards Western Australia, where I spent the two most eventful years of my life, from 1885 to 1887, notwithstanding the great agitation in reference to the cruel treatment of the natives by pearlers and settlers (and which resulted in the rapid passing of a protective enactment), the most shocking cases are reported from time to time. I need only quote from The Christian Colonist, an Adelaide newspaper, bearing date Oct. 18 of this year, to give your readers an idea of the state of things in the far West. The Colonist says:—

"The Chief Justice (Acting) of Western Australia has held that natives in the service of white men may be flogged by their masters. Several persons who had killed natives in this way were acquitted."

Cannot something be done in England to prevent such

INHUMAN TREATMENT OF HUMAN BEINGS,

who are subjects of our Queen, and who certainly ought to be the objects of our deepest commiseration? Since my retirement from the Gascoyne region, no Protestant missionary has laboured in that part of Australia; but I entertain the fond hope of re-entering that field.—Yours in faith and service,

JOHN B. GRIBBLE,
Missionary to the Aborigines.

"Illaville," Temora, N.S.W., Nov. 1.

THE GOSPEL IN BELGIUM.

FROM the fifty-first report of the Belgian Christian Missionary Church, it is made abundantly clear that the Gospel in its purity is the spiritual food of which the people of Belgium are hungering and thirsting at the present time. The work of sowing the seed progresses, and the establishment of churches and mission centres proceeds in a cheering manner.

Our readers have learned from time to time of the advance of the movement in Paifve. In spite of the threats of excommunication thrown out by the Bishop of Liège, the Roman Catholics have assembled in goodly numbers, and listened to the open-air addresses. Contempt of Rome is, in some quarters, assuming a more defiant form than ever, and the mental freedom of the people of Paifve may be inferred from the fact that, with the exception of three, all the householders of the town signed a memorial in favour of the erection of a Protestant place of worship. A Sunday-school has already been established, and classes for religious instruction organised.

An interesting incident is reported from Nil-St.-Vincent, near Court-St.-Etienne. The inhabitants, about 1500 in number, discontented with the priest into whose charge they had been unwillingly given, made overtures to M. Lockert, the evangelist. Looking at the motives underlying this action, M. Lockert was cautious in his response. One of the Society's colporteurs entered the field, however, and sold about thirty New Testaments, whereupon M. Lockert commenced meetings in a hall lent for the purpose by one of the inhabitants. The beginning was full of promise, as many as two hundred persons attending the gatherings. At this stage, however, the Romish clergy found means whereby pressure could be brought to bear; and so successful were their plans that the audience gradually diminished, and finally the hall was denied to the evangelist. This story is an outline, in general detail, of the way in which more than one commune in Belgium has been opened up to the Gospel. Some of the people of Nil-St.-Vincent have expressed a desire to hear more of the kind of preaching which the evangelist gave them, and it is hoped that they will not have to wait long for that which they so sorely need. The report remarks: "This district had not been sufficiently prepared by colportage. Nevertheless, M. Ermel, in his rounds, met an old man, of ninety-four years, who said, 'I have been a good Catholic, and I have read much; but only one thing has become engraved upon my memory, and that is, "Jesus came to save sinners." That is all I need. I found that great truth in the Gospel, and I have ever since left off trying to save myself. I have lived in the fear of the Lord, and now that I am no longer of service, may his will be done!'"

Tract distribution is vigorously prosecuted under the auspices of the Society. Though there are still evidences of priestly domination, it is yet true that confidence in "Mother Church" is weaker than ever in Belgium. The past twenty years have witnessed a remarkable change in public religious sentiment in the entire kingdom. To-day religious liberty is unlimited; every form of worship is allowed, and any attempt to disturb a religious assembly would be immediately checked. The Missionary Church is improving the opportunities thus afforded. It has the active sympathy of many friends at home and abroad, and we trust that as time goes on its efforts will be better supported and shall more richly bless. The general secretary is M. Kennedy Aret, Pasteur, 123 Chaussée d'Ixelles, Brussels.

A HOSPITAL FOR ASIA MINOR.

DEAR SIR,—Madame Thoumaian, a Swiss lady (wife of Pastor Thoumaian, of Marsovan in Anatolia, the ancient Pontus), has come to England seeking help to erect and maintain a small hospital at Marsovan, where her husband labours in connection with the American Board for Foreign Missions. Poverty and disease and ignorance of the laws of health combine to render the condition of the people of Marsovan and the adjoining regions exceedingly wretched. Madame Thoumaian enjoys opportunities of making known the needs of the people of her adopted country, and she is accredited by Protestant Christians in Marsovan, and by ministers of Christ in Switzerland. Communications may be addressed to her at 57, Fyfield Road, N.; or to, yours sincerely,

JAMES E. MATHIESON.

Wesleyan Conference Office, N.

THE HON. AND REV. R. MORETON'S evangelistic work in Hamilton, Ontario, is increasing in interest and blessing. Captain W. D. Chapman writes from Lipwood, Westmoreland: "In a letter dated Dec. 5, he says, 'I would be glad of help, for our people are poor. We are now full, and many men attend the Word as preached: this has greatly encouraged me.' I shall be very glad to remit any sums sent to me at the above address."

MEETINGS FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS and seekers for pardon and purity will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings, at 7 o'clock, at Temperance Hotel, 86, Southampton-row, W.C. The meetings will be for baptism of the Spirit for holiness and service. There will be Bible Studies in Gal. v. 22: "Fruits of the Spirit." One half hour will be spent in silent waiting on God. Meetings of a similar character at Florence Mission, N.Y., have resulted in bringing hundreds to the Lord. The London meeting will be in charge of Mr. William Peck Smith, of New York, U.S.A.

A MISSION TO JEWS AT PLYMOUTH.—Rev. J. M. Eppstein, head of the London Jews' Society's Metropolitan and Southern Missions, recently conducted a mission to the Jews of Plymouth, Devonport, and Stonehouse. The clergy co-operated with the utmost willingness, so that by Sunday sermons in the churches, as well as day addresses in the schoolrooms, Jesus was, in a manner calculated to meet and answer Jewish prejudices, set forth as the true Christ of God. This was the first mission of the kind held in the Three Towns, and the entire Jewish community (about 300 souls) was thoroughly reached through the various services and lectures, and by the circulars and tracts that were distributed. The Christians were stirred up to an increased interest in God's ancient people, and it is fully believed that the good seed thus prayerfully sown will, in due season, bring forth fruit to the praise of the Lord's name.

Some Scottish Missions.—X.

WORK AMONG SAILORS, GLASGOW.

SEEING the dangers which beset a sailor's life, and considering the extent to which Great Britain is dependent for her prosperity upon her seamen, there is scarcely any class of men who have a greater claim upon the sympathy of their countrymen than have our seafaring braves the world over.

This was realised in Glasgow some sixty-seven years ago, when the

SEAMEN'S FRIEND SOCIETY

was founded, in 1822. What the form and scope of the work was in those days is beyond my ken; but no one can visit the spacious premises now in use without being impressed with their eminent suitability and capacity for the prosecution of far-extending and important missionary effort.

There are two centres, one on the north or city side of the river, and one on the south. The former comprises an Institute, reading and recreation rooms, a few beds, coffee tavern, depository for British and foreign Scriptures, home for distressed seamen, and a seamen's chapel; the latter a Bethel, with reading and recreation rooms. I was only able to visit the premises on the north side, which form and extend for some distance along both sides of the angle. Facing the quay are the Institute and coffee tavern (the latter being formerly a publichouse), while down the side street the chapel adjoins the other buildings. This chapel in its present form dates from 1860, when it superseded an older edifice erected in 1821. But it is only within the last three years that the premises adjoining have been secured, the original Institute being further along the quay. The advantage of having all the branches of the work consolidated in one block is obviously very important.

AN IMPOSING CORNER BLOCK,

As regards the methods of work, they are very much those which characterise other "Sailors' Rests." The following summary gives, in as brief a form as is possible, a very good idea of the extent of the work done.

Religious Services held, including open-air service, north and south	1,927
Seamen and their friends attending the in-door Gospel Meetings	8,673
Tea Meetings and Lime Light Entertainments	17
Visits made by Seamen to Institute, north side	76,165
Visits made by Seamen to Reading Rooms, south side	31,665
Letters written by Seamen	5,650
Number who have signed the Total Abstinence Pledge	672
Bibles and Testaments sold, English, Gaelic and Foreign	770
Tracts distributed, English, Gaelic and Foreign	152,150
Libraries placed on board ships	107
Bags and Parcels of Reading placed on board ships	865
Ships boarded by Agents on arrival	4,661
Families visited by Agents	2,551
Visits made to Boarding Houses by Agents	1,587
Lodgings given to Destitute Seamen	328
Shipwrecked Fishermen's Society Tickets issued	230

Figures and statistics are proverbially "rather dry," but whoever will devote a few minutes of careful study to the above table, cannot fail, by "reading between the lines" to see that they represent an immense amount of work, very diversified in character, and, thank God, very fruitful in result.

It is the personal and individual phase of the work that is most needful. "Jack," wherever he is, needs friends; and, while he will often sit quietly enough in a meeting with his fellows, yet it is when he is personally dealt with that his decision for Christ is made. Hence the staff of workers make a special feature of private conversation, and individual influence which, under God, is greatly blessed. I could give many cases which were related to me illustrating this; for it is a great joy to the workers to record definite, and often remarkable, which have attended their endeavours. It requires no erratic flight of imagination to picture scores of men once wild, reckless, and drunken, now "clothed and in their right mind," rejoicing in the pardon of their sins. These going forth to other lands in the pursuit of their calling, spread the good news of the Saviour's love among their native and foreign mates.

CASES OF CONVERSION

A man came in to a meeting one day who had evidently been drinking hard, and was half ashamed of being noticed. "I'm not fit to come to Christ," he said, "but I'll sign the pledge." After conversation and prayer with one of the workers, he seemed quite broken down; and, falling on his knees, surrendered himself to Christ. Soon after that he got a berth in a ship as cook and steward, and was absent for several months. On his return, he brought his wife and child to the Institute, all looking very respectable and happy, and declaring they had not been so comfortable for years. At the first opportunity he gave his testimony in one of the meetings, telling how he had been in a good situation as head cook in a hotel in Edinburgh; how he and two other servants had all lost their situations through drink; but coming to Glasgow, he found his way into the Seamen's Institute, where he had been led to trust in Jesus, and a very precious Friend he had found Him to be. Now he was going off on a twelve-months' voyage, with a Christian captain and a Christian mate, and they were asking the Lord to make them a blessing to the rest of the crew. This may be taken as a fairly typical case.

The Christian men are formed into a band, called the

"GOSPEL SHIP'S CREW."

Taking Rom. x. 9 as their motto, they are ready at any time to speak or sing for their Master. The members remember one another in prayer continually, and many a man far off on the lonely ocean, is strengthened and encouraged by the knowledge that his friends are praying for him.

At Christmas time there is always an interesting gathering in the Bethel. The Christmas boat, which was formerly used on the river for boarding vessels, has been transformed into a beautiful model steamship. Every Christmas she is placed on the platform of the large hall and loaded with useful articles, such as mufflers, socks, mittens, brushes and combs, flannel shirts, Bibles, and books. The literature placed on board of vessels proves a great boon, and many a silent messenger has been the means of bringing peace to a sin-troubled heart.

Chief among the directors is Mr. Alexander Allan, of the "Allan Line," and perhaps the credit of being the leading spirit may belong to Mr. Richard Hunter, who combines the offices of hon. treasurer and secretary, as well as being a director and a trustee. To work among foreign sailors Mr. F. Hermans is engaged; in him I recognised an old friend whom I had met a few years ago at the Home at Havre, where he was then located. Mr. Hermans has recently suffered the loss of his devoted wife, who, first at Ratcliff-highway, then at Havre, and subsequently in Glasgow, had been greatly blessed in her labours, from which she is now at rest—but her works follow her.

ANOTHER GREAT LOSS

was sustained by the Society when Miss Tina Gibson—an earnest helper—exchanged this sphere of labour to go out, as the wife of Rev. Dr. Kerr Cross, to settle in Livingstonia (Central Africa). The sequel was an inexpressibly sad one, for she had not been there long ere she succumbed to the climate, leaving her husband (whose name has been prominently to the front of late in connection with the African Lakes Company's troubles with the Arab-slavers at Karonga) to mourn her loss—and not him only, but hundreds of sailors all over the world, to whom her memory is very dear. Her sister carries on her share of the work in Glasgow.

An important adjunct of the Society is the

LADIES' AUXILIARY,

which exists for the purpose of visiting seamen's families, many of which are in necessitous circumstances, and reporting to the Society such cases as merit assistance. They sympathise with the widow, helping and encouraging her in the support of herself and children. Once a month they meet to report upon their work, and, unhappily, scarcely a meeting takes place without some more widows being added to the roll. Sometimes the sad tale is that the husband has been washed overboard, or he has fallen from the yard, or died of fever far from home and kindred; or it may be he comes home to languish and die from disease contracted by exposure during some storm. Truly this phase of the work is a part fulfilment of St. James's definition of "true religion" (James i. 27).

While writing of work among sailors, I may also mention the established only a month or two ago. This is another of the good works in which Mr. Alexander Allan and Mr. Richard Hunter have a hand. Indeed, they are prime movers in it, having withdrawn from their association with Mr. Quarrier's Homes to enter upon this new and special sphere of service.

SAILORS' ORPHAN SOCIETY,

Some four thousand sailors are annually lost from, or die on board, British ships; and the sailor's income, as a rule, not being such as to enable him to make any great provision for a family, in thousands of cases the death of the father at sea means destitution to the family on shore. It is to provide for those left behind that this Society is formed, and it is one which deserves the wide and hearty sympathy of the Christian public.

The method of rendering assistance is as follows: (1) If the mother is alive, and in all respects a suitable person to bring up her family well, a yearly grant may be made for one or more of her children. (2) If the mother is not in a position to properly look after her children, or is dead, a good home in the country will be sought out, where the child will receive a Christian training. (3) In other cases, not suitable for above plans, an effort will be made to have them provided for in some already existing institution.

SOME FORTY CHILDREN

are enjoying the benefits of one or other of these plans, and applications are being made from various parts of Scotland. It is encouraging to find that many Scottish Christians have come forward to help, and scarcely a more deserving object could be commended to their liberal consideration. Fuller particulars may be obtained from Mr. Hunter, whose address is 27, Jamaica-street, Glasgow.

I learn from Mr. Quarrier that "a Christmas gift of £1500 has been received for the erection of another cottage in his 'Children's City.'" The building is to be called "The Lincoln and Garfield Home," and is in memory of a beloved brother and sister "gone home."

The "£30 per day" needed (as stated in my notice of his Homes) is to support all the children under Mr. Quarrier's care, not only those in the "village" at Bridge of Weir. I may also mention, for distinction's sake, that Mr. Quarrier's Canada Home, "Fairknowe," is at Brockville, Ontario. G. E. M.

ITALIAN CONFRATERNITIES.—The law which places the property of the religious confraternities in the kingdom of Italy under the control and administration of the Government and the local authorities has received the sanction of the Italian Parliament. Under its powers the State will take over the accumulations of 8487 such confraternities, representing over £4,400,000 in value.

NOTES ON CENTRAL AFRICA.

THE PORTUGUESE INVASION

is a serious matter. According to the British contention, which seems just, the Portuguese had no right to survey for a railway on a road made and used by British traders since 1875; still less had she any right to tear down two British flags. A paper, by Captain Lugard in Blackwood for this month, gives valuable information on this matter. Our Foreign Office is taking at length sufficiently firm action; but we cannot forget that this invasion has been made in the face of distinct claims made by Lord Salisbury in May last. The importance of Major Serpa Pinto's action lies in this, that he now holds for Portugal the only way into Nyasa land. Thus the Northern portion of the territory given by the Royal Charter, published in last week's Gazette, to the Duke of Fife's Company, is no longer British; and three missions—that of the Church of Scotland on the Shiré Highlands, that of the English Universities on the eastern shores of Nyasa, and the Livingstonia Mission of the Free Church of Scotland on the western side of the Lake—are required to acknowledge the sovereignty of an intensely Romish power. The mission of priests sent up in the wake of Serpa Pinto may be taken as revealing the purpose of the whole operation.

STANLEY'S LETTER

to Sir Francis de Winton vindicating himself, presents the hero in the least favourable light. There is much to be said on Emin's side, and his friends will not be slow to open their mouths for one who is perforce dumb at present. The friends of Major Barttelot also will speak out—indeed, have already begun to do so. For the first time Stanley has broken silence about his great blunder touching Tippoo Tib, and the defence seems sadly lame. The Standard of December 21 says: "The general impression will be that there is a false chord in this heroic strain;" and that opinion is likely to prevail. More must be said on this point some day; but it would probably have been better if a letter written so long ago as August 31 had been withheld, now that the writer is within reach of fuller information. The only satisfactory paragraph in the letter is the first, where he speaks of Mr. Mackay as "the modern Livingstone," "an able and reliable man." "When I saw him and some of his work about here," —Msalala—"then I recognised the man I had pleaded, in the name of Mtesa, should be sent to him in 1875, the very type of man I had described as necessary to confirm Mtesa in his growing love for the white man's creed." Some day we shall get Stanley's opinion about Mtesa's successor and the present condition of Uganda.

THE RAILWAY

from Mombasa to the Victoria Nyanza, at which we recently hinted, seems likely to be promptly undertaken. Stanley has spoken of it in terms of strong approval, and the first forty miles will be ready for opening in two months. Scarcely anything is of more importance for Africa than the pushing in of such means of swift and safe communication; and the proposal of railways on both sides of the Dark Continent, and in the centre from Kimberley to the Zambesi, must be gratefully regarded as part of the preparation which He, who has "all power on earth," is making for the entrance of his Gospel.

THE MISSION AT BLANTYRE

in the Shiré Highlands is described in graphic terms by Captain Lugard in the article above referred to, and one can see how hopeful a work for the regeneration of Africa is about to be trampled under the hoof of Romanism unless Britain at length takes action to protect the most deserving of her subjects. The same may be said of BANDAWE, ON LAKE NYASA.

"Dr. and Mrs. Laws," writes Captain Lugard, "have effected wonders here; their schools are thronged, and the practical nature of the work is invaluable." Must all these hopeful beginnings, and those of the Universities' Mission on the eastern side of the lake, be abandoned to the tender mercies of the man-stealers and the Romanists, for want of a little effort on the part of our Government?

We must, as Christians, cherish love and goodwill toward both Arabs and Portuguese; on the other hand, our faith not only permits, but requires us to hate falsehood and injustice, and still more a system which justifies these on account of the gain they may bring to it.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

In harmony with the cheerful character of the season, much was done last week to brighten the lives of the poor and destitute. On all hands Christian workers found pleasure in the service of love. We can only afford space for condensed notices of a few special accounts that have reached us:—

Upwards of three hundred persons were provided with a dinner on Christmas Day by the workers at Clapton Park Tabernacle. Parcels of clothing were also given to the most needy cases, and a sack (two cwt.) of coals to thirty widows.

Free meals for "the poor, the lame, and the blind" were provided at St. James's Hall, George-street, Lisson-grove, on Thursday and Friday. On the first evening all the guests were over fifty years of age. During both evenings a band of helpers sang the Gospel, and addresses were delivered by Messrs. Sprunt (superintendent), Frost, Mitchener, and others. Bibles were given to all persons who did not possess a copy.

Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Babcock about 200 young men living in lodgings in Liverpool were invited to a substantial dinner at the Young Men's Christian Association, Mount-pleasant, on Friday last. The guests partook of dinner in the large reading-room. Addresses were afterwards given by the host and Dr. Nevins, and the secretary (Mr. T. Jameson), and the proceedings closed with a service. The object of the gathering was to form a pleasant change during this festive season in the lives of those young men who were prevented from going to their homes in the country for the Christmas holidays.

About sixty of the inmates of the Homes for Aged Christian Blind Men and Women, situated in the Hanley-road, Crouch-hill, N., sat down to a substantial dinner on Friday. Revs. J. R. Wood, J. F. Osborne, and Thornley Smith, Messrs. Mummery, Hawkins, P. Terry (treasurer of the Maintenance Fund), and W. G. Wilkins (treasurer of Home Extension Fund), were among those who afforded pleasure to the inmates by kind and cheering words.

The Christian public of Manchester responded heartily to the appeal to provide the annual supper for the poor of the city. About 3000 toilers, from the ranks of the deserving poor, were entertained on Christmas Eve, in the Free Trade Hall. A band of missionaries, deaconesses, and other helpers did much to promote the happiness of the company, Mr. J. Wakefield MacGill, secretary of the Manchester City Mission, heartily commended the Christmas message.

Christmas Day found the Strangers' Rest, Ratcliff-highway, E., crowded with sailors from all lands. The story of salvation was told in several tongues, the occasion being made suggestive of ever-timely truth. A hearty tea was served between the afternoon and evening meetings, at which ladies and gentlemen delivered addresses. There was lively singing, and a number of the men testified to the saving grace of God. Afterwards a large Christmas tree was stripped. Each sailor received a present of mufflers, mittens, and helmet, all of which had been worked by kind ladies living far and near. Books and oranges were also distributed, and a very happy evening was spent. On Boxing Day the usual feast of roast beef and plum pudding was given. Those who had charge of the efforts were cheered, not only by observing the joy of the men, but by contemplating the pleasure of the sailors' friends at home when thinking of the goings on at the Rest and kindred institutions.

The Annual Christmas Breakfast was held at the Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C., Mr. George Williams presiding. After prayer, a reading from the Gospel of Luke concerning the nativity, and the singing of Christmas hymns, the Chairman made a cheery, seasonable speech. A considerable array of speakers followed, each giving a brief and appropriate word. In closing, the Chairman referred to the prayer of Jabez, "Enlarge our borders," as the desire of all Association workers on entering upon the New Year.

An interesting evening was spent on Saturday, at the "Welcome Home," Ratcliff-highway. The contents of a dingy, well laden with Christmas presents, were distributed among a large number of sailors by Miss Tuck, Mr. W. Luff, and Mr. Herbert Paton. The last named and Colonel McGregor and Mr. Seagram, delivered stirring Gospel addresses, and peace and goodwill prevailed throughout the evening.

Similar efforts to comfort and cheer were made by Dr. Barnardo, Miss Macpherson, Rev. W. Evans Hurndall, and many other well-known Christian workers.

OBITUARY.

DR. LIGHTFOOT, BISHOP OF DURHAM.

THE death of Rev. Dr. Joseph Barber Lightfoot, Bishop of Durham, which took place on Dec. 21, removes from the scene of human activity one who has left his mark upon the religious history of the nineteenth century. Having been in a weak state of health for some time, the bishop was staying at Bournemouth, where he succumbed to the effects of a chill.

Born at Liverpool in 1828, the deceased had a distinguished career as a student, a University leader, an author, and a bishop. It was by his writings, however, that he was most widely known. "There can be no doubt whatever," says The Record, "that an increasing belief in the Faith, and in the Bible as a Divine revelation, has for its support from history and scholarship and philosophy than it had twenty-five years ago, when Lightfoot began to publish, and when it was becoming fashionable to assume that the German professors had annihilated the Bible by treatises of unanswerable learning and logic." The Bishop planned a series of commentaries on the Epistles of St. Paul, but with the appearance of three only—Galatians, Philippians, and Colossians (with Philemon)—which last he lived to complete. Dr. Lightfoot's investigations relative to the writings of the Apostolic Fathers were eminently thorough, and serviceable in a high degree to a true understanding of early Church life and thought. As a member of the New Testament Revision Committee, and the author of a powerful reply to the destructive book entitled "Supernatural Religion," the Bishop also rendered an important service to the Church of Christ.

Though in some respects differing from the evangelical party, the Bishop was tenacious of evangelical truth, and did much to discredit the High Church assumption of apostolical succession. He initiated the White Cross Army with "Purity" for its motto; and, being a total abstainer, did much to advance temperance principles. Aggressive Christianity was quite according to his mind, and his sympathies were not confined to the Church of which he was a true pillar and ornament. The Newcastle journals state that he was in the habit of spending his entire Episcopal income on church, educational, and philanthropic effort.

EVANGELICALISM.*

THIS little book contains the sermon delivered in Argyle Chapel, Bath, in celebration of its hundredth anniversary. It contains some interesting bits of religious biography, including the conversion of Mr. Tuppen, the first minister of the church. This man attended one of Mr. Whitfield's services, his pockets filled with stones, with which he intended to pelt the preacher, "but," he adds, "I had not heard long before the stone was taken out of my heart of flesh, and then the other stones, with shame and weeping, were dropped, one by one, out upon the ground." The second minister was Mr. Jay, whose conversion, though more gradual in its character, also resulted from the same evangelical revival; and who afterwards, for a period of sixty-two years, remained the pastor of the church.

The aim of the sermon is to compare the evangelicalism of the last century with that which is found in the churches called evangelical to-day. Dr. Dale conducts the inquiry thoughtfully and earnestly, and with much fairness.

No one who knows anything of his theological position would expect him to be too severe upon the new evangelicalism; yet his questions are often so searching as to arouse anxious thought. For example, the Doctor describes the spirit of the older evangelicalism as that of individualism, manifesting itself in supreme regard for evangelical truth, not for its own sake, but as "a necessary instrument for converting men to God, and placing them permanently in a right relation to Him." For the newer evangelicalism he claims that it possesses a disinterested love of truth, leading to an interest in Biblical criticism, and in questions relating to the nature of inspiration. Men learned to study truth for its own sake. "But," asks the Doctor, "if we care more for truth than our fathers cared, do we care for men less?"..."Do we, as the result of the passion for truth, know the real meaning of the Bible better than our fathers knew it a hundred years ago?"..."If we have lost something of the passion for men which characterised the Revival, is there adequate compensation in the results of the passion for truth?"

We commend these questions to all to whom they may be supposed to refer. For ourselves we are convinced that the change is for the worse, not for the better; that the only way to know the truth is to use it for the purpose for which it was intended; that he who makes use of it for this purpose will conceive a passionate fondness for the truth itself which years of mere study can never give; and that to "do the will of God" in seeking to win men to Him, is one essential condition of "knowing the doctrine." The new method will neither learn the truth so well, nor bless men so much.

Contrasting the doctrines of the old evangelicalism with those of the new, Dr. Dale shews plainly enough the inevitable tendency of modern teaching upon the subject of the doom of the lost. The earnestness of the old evangelical preachers arose from "the tremendous consideration that, within the limits of these mortal years, those to whom they were preaching were determining their destiny in the life which lies beyond death." The uncertainty which prevails in the minds of many modern evangelicals upon the duration of the penalty of sin, has been followed by "doubt as to whether there is any penalty from which to save them." In this matter we have no hesitation in affirming our conviction that the cause of evangelicalism has lost immensely by the change.

The Doctor has much to say about the more prominent position now given to the fact of the Incarnation. Without denying the death of Christ for the sins of men, that fact is by many modern evangelicals relegated to a position secondary to that given to the Incarnation. The statement that the Incarnation was a part of God's eternal purpose concerning men even if they had never sinned—that "the Son of God would have shared the life of man, and man would have shared the life of God in Him," may be true. But that is all that can be said of it. We certainly do not find any warrant in Scripture for such an idea, and are therefore hardly willing to recognise, in a gratuitous hypothesis, a reason for exalting the Incarnation to a position above that of the death of Christ for the sins of men. Not only the old evangelicalism, but the teaching of the Epistles and of the Apocalypse, gives the most prominent position to the Cross of Christ; and we fear that it is an undoubtedly "Down Grade" movement that relegates that stupendous fact to a secondary position.

Upon the doctrine of Justification by Faith, Dr. Dale speaks clearly and warmly. Referring to the modern idea which teaches that "we are justified by faith, because through faith we became personally righteous—and the personal righteousness which is the fruit of faith is the ground of our justification," he says, that "If this idea has produced any effect on the thought and faith of those who still describe themselves as evangelicals, we have to fight the great battle of the Reformation over again." While thus vigorously assailing this modern view of the doctrine, he does not attempt to explain what righteousness it is by means of which we are justified. The supreme importance of this doctrine renders it necessary that very clear and scriptural views should be held concerning it.

One other matter especially is deserving of notice, viz., the unsectarian spirit to which the older evangelicalism led. We quote the following:—"The evangelical movement encouraged what is called an undenominational temper. It emphasised the vital importance of the evangelical creed, but it regarded almost with indifference all forms of church polity that were not in apparent and irreconcilable antagonism to that creed." How earnestly may we long and pray for a revival of similar evangelicalism to-day. We too often content ourselves with saying that our denominational distinctions are indifferent, that the matters which separate us are little indeed compared with those great evangelical truths which unite us; but for the most part we are content with saying these things. With the increase of the Spirit's life and power, our distinctions are bound to become less. Church organisations there may and must be, but denominational names and separate denominational interests shall cease. "His name"—and only his—"shall endure for ever."

* THE OLD EVANGELICALISM AND THE NEW. By R. W. Dale, D.D. Hodder & Stoughton.

Appeals.

East-end Gospel Mission.—It is proposed to give some free meals, with Christmas trees, to poor children. Any articles of clothing, toys, and also funds would be most thankfully received. Kindly send parcels early to GEORGE FULLER, Superintendent, Brunswick Hall, Brunswick-road, Poplar, E.

The "Drift" Children's Mission.—Mr. C. L. Boyer is engaged in brightening the lives of the poorest children of East London, who are very miserable during the present cold season. He collects the little ones under eight years of age in church schoolrooms, and distributes oranges, nuts, and toys among them. A good influence is thus exerted. As many as 150 children may in this way be cheered for £1. Contributions sent to Mr. SIMEON CLAYTON, New Era Works, Bow Common-lane, E., will be duly acknowledged.

Children's Aid Society (32, Charing-cross, S.W.).—By means of a boys' beadle and five rescue officers, this Society is engaged night and day in rescuing neglected and outcast children. Last year 430 were placed in Homes, and in many other cases help was rendered. Grants were made towards the maintenance of about 5000 children in Industrial Homes. An agency has been established in Manitoba for the reception of lads sent out from England. This will involve considerable expense. The secretary, Mr. A. J. S. MADDISON, asks for liberal aid from the Christian public towards the varied operations of the Society.

THE EXPOSITOR'S BIBLE.*

A MOST valuable addition has been made to this important series of Bible studies. The author's method of treating Judges and Ruth is far—perhaps too far—removed from what some would deem the fanciful. He refuses to read the Gospel into the narrative; and very seldom recognises an illustrative, much less a typical, reference to it. Whether this method is to be commended or blamed will depend upon the habit of thought of the individual reader. The author's aim has been to present vividly and accurately the historical narrative, and to deduce practical lessons affecting daily life at almost every point. The manner in which he has accomplished this task is worthy of all praise.

The language of the book is so clear and forcible, and its style is so graphic, that it is impossible to read it without getting a better realisation of the interesting incidents described. We seem to be taken back to the very scenes themselves. We get a truer estimate of the character of the people among whom the Israelites settled in Canaan, and by contact with whom their own life degenerated, until God sold them into bondage. As one deliverer after another is raised up in answer to the people's cry, we are made to witness the gathering of the forces of both armies, to hear the iron chariots hurtling along the valleys, and the clash of arms as the battle rages, until the enemies of the people of God are discomfited. The problem of how to reconcile these destructive wars with the goodness and mercy of God is fairly faced and patiently answered.

The lessons the author deduces are all of the most practical character. He has no love for mere speculations; but he shows considerable skill in making these incidents bear upon questions of present-day interest. From many passages worth quoting we mention only the following:—

> There is a strain of modern talk which defends the worldly ambition of Christian men...We hear from a thousand tongues the gospel of Christianised commerce, of sanctified success, of making business a religion...Let them be less anxious for speedy success than some they know; not quite so eager to add factory to factory, and field to field; more careful to interpret bargains fairly, and do good work; let them figure often as benefactors, and be free with their money to the Church, and the residue of worldly ambition is glorified, being sufficient, perhaps, to develop a merchant prince, a railway king, a "millionaire" of the kind the age adores...It is upon Christianity as approving all this that the Moabites and Ammonites of our day are falling...They believe in wealth...It is too bad, they feel, to have their sphere and hopes curtailed by men who profess no respect for the world, no desire for its glory but a constant preference for things unseen...Or, the frank heathen finds that in business a man professing Christianity in the customary way is as little cumbered as himself by any disdain of tarnished profits and "smart" devices. What else can be expected but that, driven back and back by the energy of Christians so called, the others shall begin to think Christianity itself largely a pretence? (pp. 79—81).

Upon worldly connections, the unequal yoke of believers with unbelievers, the author speaks vigorously. And with equal wisdom and force he deals with the claims of science (111—114); sectarian divisions in the Church (123); mistaken use of the popular Religious Conventions (130); of the fulfilment of the Church's mission as essential to her own life (137); and many other subjects not less practical and important.

While we may not agree with every opinion advanced, we yet warmly commend the book as a valuable and able exposition.

* JUDGES AND RUTH. By Rev. R. A. Watson, M.A. Hodder & Stoughton.

MR. AND MRS. SOMERSET GARDNER recently paid a visit to Bures, Suffolk. Services were conducted in the afternoon by Mrs. Gardner for women only, and in the evening by Mr. Gardner. At the close of each evening service several, including many young men, came forward as inquirers, and at the close of the mission not a few were rejoicing in Christ as their Saviour.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The steady extension of the influence of the Commercial Travellers' Christian Association is matter for devout thankfulness to God. At the annual meeting of the Association, held on Monday, in Exeter Hall, a report of a highly satisfactory character was presented. There is a continued accession of new members, and, what is specially noteworthy, the aims and objects of the Association seem to be pursued with increasing earnestness alike by old friends and novitiates. Mr. George Williams, who presided over the proceedings in the evening, referred with joy to the growth of the Institution.

Bishop Barry delivered a weighty address on the Christian profession. If it has any vitality about it, the Christian profession means that a man lives in a supreme relation to God, coming into that relation knowingly, through the mediation of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the indwelling and inworking power of the Holy Spirit. This tells upon the man in two different aspects of his being—affecting him in his trade or profession, and also in his deep underlying humanity. In commercial life we act as independent individuals. The one duty of men so considered is absolute truth and honesty—never condescending to anything partaking in the slightest degree of the character of deceit. It might be said that such principles are difficult of application in business; his reply to that objection was that in the path of duty difficulties are not things to be yielded to, but rather things to be overcome.

Certain it is that a man cannot take up the Christian profession in one place, and leave it behind him when he enters the world of business. Christian obligation may indeed go further than straightforwardness in commercial dealings. St. Paul writes: "Owe no man anything, but to love one another." The first clause expresses the principle of truth and justice; the second implies that that can never be adequately paid. And even in the world of business there is sometimes room for something beyond strict and unswerving justice—room for something like liberality and forbearance, and also forgiveness. To those who might prophesy loss and failure as a result of following such principles, the Bishop said: I give you the teaching of our Master, the Lord Jesus Christ, and you must know that though in Him there was infinite mercy and forbearance of sinners, there was never any condonation of evil or sin.

LOVE IS THE ONE DEBT

As to the deeper humanity, the Bishop recommended its careful culture, in such a way as to supply that element which the life of business leaves uncultivated. There is much repose in change of work, but the real repose, after all, is the rest in God. A quiet, thoughtful, and prayerful study of the holy Scriptures, with the world shut out, is specially helpful in the religious life. Another element is the Lord's Day rest, on which the Bishop said: "I do most earnestly press upon you that you let nothing short of absolute necessity trench upon this, which is of incalculable value to your souls. I think that in time past, the repose of the Lord's Day has been one of the great sources of the deep-seated strength of the English character. I grieve to say that in the days in which we live, there is a laxity in recognising the religious benefit of the day." Among other means of grace the Bishop mentioned public worship. He proceeded to show that, though viewed in two aspects, public and private, man's life is essentially one. Dwelling then upon the benefits of association, the Bishop spoke kindly of the C.T.C.A., and expressed a hope that it would prosper, and be greatly blessed.

Rev. J. B. Meharry followed with a speech alternately grave and gay. The broad basis and evangelical character of the Association gave him much pleasure. The meeting was stimulating throughout. We sincerely trust that the achievements of the new year will grandly eclipse those which have invested the past with so much interest.

MAJOR WHITTLE AT NORWOOD.

After a week of earnest and well rewarded effort, Major Whittle closed his brief mission at Auckland Hall, West Norwood, on Sunday week. In the morning he preached a stirring discourse to Christians in Chatsworth-road Church (Pastor W. Fuller Gooch). In the afternoon there was a crowded gathering of children at Auckland Hall, when much interest was manifested by the youthful hearers in the Major's earnest and loving appeals.

Notwithstanding very inclement weather in the evening, there was a good congregation for the closing service. The evangelist's address was based on the Gospel incident of Peter's walking on the water and being upheld by the strong arm of the Master. The various points were very forcibly and strenuously applied, and the impression made on the hearers was very evident. In the after-meetings the responses to Major Whittle's invitation were numerous, and the last service was probably the most manifestly fruitful of all.

Before and after the addresses, the Gospel message was charmingly and effectively sung by Miss Whittle, assisted in one case by Mrs. Whittle. The evangelist is happy in having such helpful coadjutors in his work. He was heartily supported in this mission by Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton, and a strong band of workers, who visited the neighbourhood, and gave personal invitations to the people. On a preceding page we give condensed notes of the address delivered at the first service.

We warmly commend the evangelist and his family to God, and to the hearty co-operation of Christians wherever their lot may be cast throughout another year of service.

NEW MISSIONARIES FOR INDIA.—There was an interesting gathering on December 1, at the Bombay Guardian premises, to welcome to India Mr. Joseph Taylor, of Sunderland; Miss Sarah Pike, of Dublin; Miss Kate Murphy, of Bolton; and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, of London, all new missionaries from the Friends' Foreign Mission Association; also to welcome Mr. and Mrs. John H. Williams, of the same Association, returning to India after some months' furlough; and Mr. Frederick Sessions, a member of the Committee, who is on a visit to India in order to study mission work, and the many problems which in various ways affect the interest of the people of the country. Missionaries representing several societies, and a number of native Christian workers, attended the meeting, and pledged their hearty Christian sympathy with the new comers.

MISS BESSIE TYSON AT DUNDEE.—At a meeting, the other day, of the committee of Dr. Pentecost's recent mission work in Dundee, a report was submitted regarding the meetings for young people conducted by Miss Tyson. The meetings were held, during the entire three weeks, in Chapelshade Free Church, and by clever chalk drawings and printed texts, Miss Tyson set forth the truths of the Gospel in a very vivid and engaging manner. The lower church was usually full of boys and girls, and on Sunday evenings the galleries also were filled. Such as knew the object of the after-meetings, and desired spiritual counsel, stayed, and children over ten years of age were dealt with as inquirers. The last few meetings were devoted to the large number of children who had professed to experience blessing in the course of the mission. An arrangement has been made to carry on a weekly prayer-meeting for them in the rooms of the Y.M.C.A.

DR. PIERSON IN LONDON.

Dear Sir,—We are glad to inform you that we have been able to take advantage of the visit of Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D, of Philadelphia, to London during the month of January, to arrange for holding a series of united meetings for the purpose of stimulating and deepening the spirit of consecration and prayer in relation to Foreign Missions.

The meetings will be held on January 15, 16, and 17, as follows:—

Wednesday, January 15.—Westminster Chapel, St. James-street, Buckingham-gate.

4 p.m.—Meeting of ministers and office-bearers. Rev. Charles H. Kelly (President of the Wesleyan Conference) in the chair.

7 p.m.—Public meeting. Mr. H. M. Matheson (Convener of Foreign Missions Committee, English Presbyterian Church) in the chair. Rev. D. J. East, of Jamaica, and others will take part.

Thursday, January 16—Clapton-downs Chapel (Rev. T. Vincent Tymms).

7.30.—Mr. S. R. Scott (Chairman of the Board of Directors of the London Missionary Society) in the chair. Rev. E. E. Jenkins, M.A., LL.D., and others will take part.

Friday, January 17—Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street, Bryanston-square (Rev. Donald Fraser, D.D.)

8 p.m.—Mr. W. R. Rickett (Treasurer of the Baptist Missionary Society) will take the chair. Rev. W. E. Cousins, of Madagascar, and others will take part.

Trusting that you may be able to attend one or more of these meetings, and that you will kindly make them as widely known as possible.—Yours faithfully, [illegible], J. B. [illegible] (Baptist Missionary Society).

H. M. Matheson, W. S. Swanson (English Presbyterian Missions).
R. Wardlaw Thompson, Edward H. Jones (London Missionary Society).
[illegible], Marshall C. Osborn, George W. Olver, Marshall Hartley (Wesleyan Missionary Society).

Dr. Pierson will preach in Westminster Chapel, St. James-street, Buckingham-gate, each Lord's Day in January. The evening services will be mainly evangelistic.

Notices.

A Well-Wisher of India.—No facts have been brought to our knowledge proving that injustice was done to the Indian official referred to.

Mr. W. A. Redwood, of Malvalli, India, tenders his thanks to the friend who kindly sends him The Christian, and desires him to note that his present address is Dulwich House, North Malvern, Worcestershire.

N. Clay, Walton.—If you refer to the "Christian Union for the severance of the Connection of the British Empire with the Opium Traffic," the annual subscription is 1s. The Secretary is Dr. J. L. Maxwell, 104, Petherton-road, London, N.

Applicants for Tracts.—Captain E. Tyler, Low Valley, Darfield, York; Miss E. S. Kenny, care of Mrs. Crook, Beulah, 30, Princes-avenue, Princes Gate, Liverpool; G. Bowes, 20, St. Mary's-place, Dundee; R. Gardiner, 107, Hamilton-square, Bermondsey, S.E.; J. Brenton, Kingsbridge, Devon; W. Forman, 105, Green-lane-road, New Evington, Leicester; J. Harris, evangelist, Horley, Surrey.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

Communications Received with Thanks.—J.E.M. M.A.P. S.O. E.W.F.S. W.T.F. H.A.W. A.P. W.C.P. R.B. J.S.M. J.M.E. J.M.H. J.H.D. W.M. R.C. W.J. A.E.W. E.S.L. W.C. W.G. R.S.A. E.W.M. R.S. G.K. S.L. W.M. W.P. T.S. J.D. W.P.S. J.F.M. G.F. J.H. A.W. E.H. G.A.S. W.D.C. G.F.B. W.B. A.C. J.B. E.J.B. W.A.B. E.H.H. T.W. J.C. E.S.K. W.C.W. J.R. H.D. N.J. F.W. J.C.C. J.E. A.J.S M. W.A.S. W.F. J.F. J.H.S. T.J. V.M.S. W.B.D. R.G. J.S. W.C. R.B. E.H.G. J.A.L.K. A.S.C. F.E.M. V.J.C. G.M. M.C. N.A.P. J.F. W.P.S. J.P.H. C.T. D.J.E. A.J.C. T.P. D.J. H.B. R.P. M.H. T.J.

MR. GEORGE MULLER, by latest accounts from India, had spent three weeks at Agra, greatly to the help and quickening of the Church there. He then proceeded to Cawnpore.

The Book World.

The Variorum Reference Bible.

[illegible]ves us peculiar pleasure to announce the [illegible]ation of this very useful edition of the Holy [illegible]ures. The first issue of the Variorum Bible [illegible]s in large type and without references; the [illegible]ond issue had references, but the type was less [illegible]; large type and references combine to render [illegible]is edition, which is suitably called THE VARIORUM REFERENCE BIBLE, a work which careful [illegible] of the Bible will prize in proportion as they [illegible]y use it. Within the covers of this hand- [illegible] [illegible]ern research as affecting [illegible]. This information is [illegible] views of scholars of [illegible] [illegible]ing of [illegible] [illegible]mentators have been consulted with regard to Old Testament, and upwards of seventy on the w. Every opinion is authenticated by the name writers supporting it, and the results of the estminster Revision have been collated through- t. The poetical portions of the text are [illegible]y set out in lines. Drs. Cheyne, Driver, Sanday, the editors, merit the gratitude of [illegible]udents for such an industrious application [illegible]ning and reading. While the cultured ill find this edition very serviceable, it is no less rtain that plain people may study it to great ivantage. Eyre & Spottiswoode.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BIBLE HISTORY FOR CHILDREN. By Lady ennett Barrington. 1s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. Conlering how much it contains, this is a very useful tle book. The main points of Old and New estament History are collected in convenient sec- ons. The very words of Scripture are wisely re- ined in many graphic scenes, and the character- ic teachings of chief Apostles. At the close is a ort but well-arranged account of post apostolic ristianity, and the spreading of the Gospel ongst the heathen. The wood engravings are w and excellent.

THE LIVES OF THREE BISHOPS. By Rev. C. allock. 3s. 6d. Home Words Office. Well ritten, well printed, well timed; few readers ll, we think, withhold this verdict. Three men ore different in character, circumstances, and in [illegible] of opinion than James Fraser, [illegible] of Manchester, Robert Bickersteth, Bishop Ripon, and James Hannington, first Bishop of st Equatorial Africa, could hardly be found. et in essentials they were one. Each was a ristian who put Christ above all human stems, and made God's Word his rule of faith and actice.

"[illegible] MINE INHERITANCE." This title has [illegible] been given to a volume contain- [illegible] addresses at the Jewish Convention held Mildmay-park in October last. About thirty in ber. The addresses deal with the various [illegible] of Scripture history and teaching con- ed. Much information is given as to the [illegible]nt condition of the Jewish people, and to- ching evangelistic endeavour among them. The k will be specially welcome to such as study the [illegible]phetic Scriptures in their bearing upon the times which we live, while persons desiring an intro- ction to Bible teaching likely to the Jews will [illegible] some of the papers more instructive than ny volumes. J. F. Shaw & Co.

HISTORY OF CHRISTIAN ETHICS. Vol. i. Be- the Reformation. By Dr. Chr. Ernst [illegible]hardt. Translated from the German by W. [illegible]ie, B.D. 10s. 6d. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. [illegible]ther volume of the "Foreign Theological brary." After a preliminary survey of the [illegible]nd ideas of Pagan antiquity, the author re- [illegible]rds the moral doctrine of the Old Testament, [illegible] the ethics of a later period among the Jewish people. Coming to Christian times, he [illegible]hibits New Testament teachings, and then [illegible]rges upon the many developments which stand [illegible] in the history of the ancient and mediæval urch. Every page evinces great research, and [illegible]ws a well-balanced judgment. The ethics of [illegible]ist, and those who learned from his lips, present [illegible]rtiful contrast with many of the miserable [illegible]ctrines and ordinances of those who, in later [illegible]s, have claimed to teach in his name.

HOLD FAST BY YOUR SUNDAYS, with introductory note by Rev. Charles Bullock. 1s. 6d. Home Words Office. This is a new edition of an eminently readable tale, enforcing regard for the Lord's Day. The treatment is as practical as the subject is important; and we trust the book will be placed in the hands of many Sabbath-breakers, and prove a great popular blessing, by making clear the duty and privilege with which the fourth commandment deals in such unequivocal terms.

THE KINGS OF THE WORLD, AND OTHER POEMS. By Robert Smith. 6s. Nisbet. Here is much excellent verse, in varied metre, on many and lofty themes. The great benefactors of the race are "the kings of the world," and their praise is sung in generous lines. The author does not tire of honouring those who, in years gone by, laboured so bravely for the abolition of slavery in America. Moreover, he devotes many a page to songs of praise to God and h s Christ. Readers of poetry will find in this goodly volume much to admire, the composition displaying exalted aspirations as well as broad and deep sympathies.

NONE OF SELF AND ALL OF THEE. By Miss S. S. Hewlett, of St. Catherine's Hospital, Church of England Zenana Missionary Society. With illustrations. 5s. Nisbet & Co. A delightful book for ladies' working parties, combining the interest of missionary reports with the charm of an Eastern story. The home trials of a Mahommedan Hannah: the questionings and conflicts of a Sikh moralist; the victory of Gospel grace over these and other characters, form the framework of an admirable picture of Indian life. Miss Hewlett has not only wide experience of Zenana work, but a skilful [illegible]n; wherever her story is thoughtfully read and listened to, there must be a strong impetus given to Christian efforts for "our sisters in India." There are fourteen graphic illustrations from life.

GOD'S JEWELS. By W. Y. Fullerton. 1s. 6d. Passmore & Alabaster. The well-known evangelist here sets forth, in a very helpful manner, the dignity and destiny of God's children. The symbolism of various precious stones is made to illustrate and enforce many practical phases of Christian truth. Antiquarian and historical lore are laid under contribution, and Mr. Fullerton appears to be a good mineralogist as well as a reliable interpreter of the things of the Spirit. The chapters, twelve in number, deal with spiritual character and experience, in time and eternity; and the simplicity of the book is one of its charms. We heartily commend this work to all who are able to appreciate the following opening words by Mr. Spurgeon: "Jesus not only says 'They are mine,' but 'they shall be mine.' He bought us, sought us, brought us in, and has so far wrought us to his image, and we shall be fought for by Him with all his might.'

SOME STORY BOOKS. A capital tale for boys, showing that God's ways are not our ways, is ARTHUR EGERTON'S ORDEAL, by Emma Leslie (1s. Partridge).—THE LINE OF BEAUTY, by Emma Marshall (2s. 6d. Home Words Office), is lively in style, and healthful in tone. The path of duty is commended with a force worthy of the accomplished author of the book.—The Wesleyan Methodist Sunday-school Union has published three excellent story books—ELISE FONTAINE (1s.), a story of life in Belgium, by Alice Briggs; TATTERS AND JENNIE'S SCHOOL DAYS (1s. 6d.), by Lillie Pethybridge; and ERIC'S HYMN AND OTHER STORIES (1s.), by Edith Greeves. These are all simple and wholesome, and so attractive in get-up that they cannot fail to be specially acceptable as presents to children. The last-named book is charming in a high degree, and has a good and definite aim.—OLD FIPPENCE AND THE LITTLE STICK GIRL, by J. J. E., is a short, interesting story, illustrative of the ministry of children.

THE PROPHECIES OF JEREMIAH. Expounded by Dr. C. Von Orelli, Basel. Translated from the German by Rev. J. S. Banks. 10s. 6d. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. This is a valuable addition to the publishers' well-known "Foreign Theological Library." The prophecy is divided into sections, according to subject-matter, and, following a new translation, accompanied by critical notes, comes a valuable commentary. The many problems which cluster round the book are dealt with in an introduction which is able, though brief. After examining the claims of the Septuagint text, which differs in a remarkable degree from the Hebrew, and has by some been given the preference, the author says: "Instead of two texts, we have but one Hebrew recension, and an utterly untrustworthy version, which can only serve, at best, as a secondary or tertiary source in settling the text." The work is characterised by thoroughness and precision, and students of the original will find it helpful, as it is essentially scholarly and reverent.

THE WORD. By Rev. T. Mozley, M.A. 7s. 6d. Longmans. This is a treatise on the being, character, and spiritual operations of God. Though advanced in years, the author is still a keen thinker. Greek thought and Jewish theology are analysed in explanation of the word "Logos," which is ultimately defined to be "whatever reminds us of God and of duty to Him." These reminders, it is maintained, varied with the occasion, usually taking the form of the "still small voice." God's only begotten Son was the Word in a sense far transcending all former communications from heaven. From these sentences it will be correctly inferred that the work is not primarily expository of Holy Writ, but rather is religio-philosophic in character. While admitting that some of the chapters are suggestive of important truths, we regret to say that the book, as a whole, does little to assist the reader of the written Word to fathom the mystery of the Word made flesh.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

THE CHURCH MISSIONARY GLEANER, vol. xvi. Large pages, beautifully printed and capitally illustrated, renders this a magazine which, in volume form, will prove very attractive in village libraries. The Gleaner gives an eminently readable digest of extensive varied operations in many lands. Church Missionary House, Salisbury-square.

THE CHURCH MISSIONARY JUVENILE INSTRUCTOR. New series, vol. x. This should be a welcome book in many homes where the world-wide mission of the Gospel is, as it should be, kept to the fore. The illustrations are suited to secure the attention of the young, and the articles are always brief and telling. Church Missionary House, Salisbury-square.

THE INDIAN FEMALE EVANGELIST, 1889. The year's parts of this quarterly—which is the organ of the Indian Female Normal School of Instruction Society—have been bound in a handsome volume. As a record of effort among the women of India, it will interest many labourers for Christ; while the special articles which are scattered up and down its pages, relating to questions affecting the highest welfare of our great Eastern dependency, give the book a value which the friends of missions will not be slow to appreciate. 2s. 6d. Office: 2, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C.

FOOTSTEPS OF TRUTH. Vol. vii. 5s. Shaw & Co. Avoiding controversy, Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, the editor of this magazine, endeavours to advance the cause of truth by the presentation of sound doctrine and positively helpful exposition. His efforts have been attended with much success, and the periodical may be warmly commended to young believers and Christian readers in general. The contributors are of one mind in regard for God's Holy Word, and in aspiration after true progress in the life of faith and holiness. The Bible-readings, of which the volume contains many, are a feature which will prove specially serviceable to mission workers.

CHINA'S MILLIONS, 1889. Boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth gilt, 2s. 6d. Morgan & Scott. Prefaced by an excellent map, this volume gives a large amount of information respecting the progress of the work of God in the Chinese Empire. The reports of many workers from the various provinces are full of interest, and the articles of the editor, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, are always helpful to those whose aim it is to live in close communion with God, and work in harmony with his will. The volume preserves in a handy form a large mass of matter with regard to Gospel effort in China. Some of the missionaries' letters are very graphic; all of them describe evangelistic work full of promise though in the midst of many discouragements. A number of illustrations add to the attractiveness of the book.

THE PASTOR'S DIARY AND CLERICAL RECORD, prepared by Rev. L. H. Jordan, contains tables of reference, and forms on which to record visitations, sermons preached, and other matters coming within the range of pastoral duty. Edinburgh: James Gemmell.

THE CHURCH MISSIONARY POCKET ALMANAC AND KALENDAR FOR 1890 will prove of special service to those who have the claims of the C.M.S. near at heart. There are many pages of information, tabular and otherwise, regarding the work of the Society, and the daily lessons are given throughout. Church Missionary House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

THE PROTESTANT DISSENTERS' ALMANAC AND POLITICAL ANNUAL FOR 1890. 6d. R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. This is the forty-fourth annual issue of a useful publication. There is a ministers' list and directory of Nonconformist churches and chapels in and around London. An excellent portrait of the late Professor Elmslie is accompanied by a warmly appreciative sketch.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. William Nobbs asks prayer for a visit to Hotwells, Bristol, where he commenced a mission on Sunday last.

Mr. Charles Garnett, the Wesleyan mission preacher, has recently conducted a very successful ten days' mission at Carlton, Worksop.

Miss Smith and Miss Bax are at present visiting Ireland for a long stay. The first mission commences on Sunday next, at Moyallon.

Kirkcaldy.—A stirring series of evangelistic meetings have lately been held in Raith Parish Church, Kirkcaldy. Many have professed decision for Christ.

Enfield.—Special services in connection with Bush Hill Park (Enfield) Christian Mission, were recently conducted by Rev. H. E. Sampson, late of Margate. Much blessing resulted.

Rev. R. Balgarnie has conducted a week's mission at the Congregational Church, Batley, with the happiest results. It is expected that there will be a large accession to the membership of the church from among those who have attended the services.

Mr. Start, of the London Evangelisation Society, has held a very successful fortnight's mission in the village of Lower Winchendon. Bucks. The mission hall was well attended. Christians have been built up and much refreshed, while sinners have been brought to the Lord.

Broomhill, Northumberland.—Evangelistic services have been held in the mission-hall here for five weeks, by Mr. Charles Boyall, of the Evangelisation Society. Many have decided for Christ, and the members have been greatly blessed. The mission-hall, which seats 300, has been opened about one year and eight months; there were 18 members to commence with, there are now 120.

Pirbright, near Woking, is a small and out-of-the-way village, but it has recently been favoured with the Divine blessing in connection with a visit of Mr. G. D. Shipley. After a fortnight's labour at St. John's, Woking, Mr. Shipley, his daughter, and a female helper came to Pirbright for a fortnight's mission. The meetings increased in interest and power till the close. Several persons professed to decide for Christ. Mr. Shipley seems eminently qualified to arrest the unconcerned, to bring the wavering to decision, and to revive and strengthen those who already believe.—JOB FIFIELD, Congregational Minister.

Mr. E. P. Telford has been holding evangelistic meetings in Gloversville (U.S.A). His visit has been a great blessing to our Church and to the community. Although he has been with us only two weeks, and another evangelistic meeting has been going on under the auspices of the W.C.T.U. at the same time, he has seen more than sixty persons at the altar seeking salvation. Mr. Telford has preached many very powerful sermons, and has struck tremendous blows against the great sins of our day, and we believe that great good will result from these earnest efforts. It is sincerely regretted that this good man and his wife must leave us so soon.—C. W. ROWLEY, Pastor First M.E. Church.

Ireland.—A fortnight's series of Gospel services has been conducted in Lurgan, by Mr. Jas. Dixon. There were several striking cases of conversion, and the meetings were made a great blessing to believers. Mr. John T. Dorland, jun., from Canada, has held a very successful series of evangelistic meetings in Lisburn, and Rev. Jas. Stewart, Methodist Conference evangelist, has held a similar series at Donaghadee. During the last few weeks Mr. Wm. Smith, of the Irish Evangelisation Society, has been labouring with much acceptance in connection with several stations of the Belfast Town Mission. Mr. Smith's services have given a marked impetus to the work of the missionaries.—A twelve days' Gospel mission has been held in Clonakilty, co. Cork, by Rev. James Oliver, of Youghal, and others. The noon-day meetings were seasons of great blessing, and the evening services were attended with much of the Divine presence. A similar mission has been held by Mr. J. Townsend Trench, J.P., in Stewartstown, where, for some months, God has been giving showers of blessing. Mr. Trench's sermons and addresses were delivered with great power and earnestness, and several interesting cases of conversion were met with.

Church Parochial Mission Society.—The following missions have been arranged for the month of January. It is hoped they will be made a subject of prayer by our readers:—Rev. W. Hay Aitken and J. P. Cushing: Jan. 16 to 26, St. Mary's, Bury St. Edmunds. Rev. Canon Atherton: Jan. 15 to 18, St. Paul's, Canonbury, N.; 20 to 23, Stoodleigh, Tiverton; 25 to 28, North Molton. Rev. A. R. D'Arcy: Jan. 18 to 26, Market Rasen, Lincoln. Rev. Sholto D. C. Douglas: Jan. 19 to 27, St. Nicholas', Durham. Rev. W. Haslam: Jan. 4 to 14, St. Paul's, Blackburn; 18 to 28, Chilthorn Domer, Yeovil. Rev. J. H. Haslam: Jan. 25 to 28, Cobham, Gravesend. Rev. G. Howell: Jan. 25 to Feb. 4, St. James', Dublin. Rev. R. D. Monro: to Jan. 9, Chiselborough with West Chinnock; 18 to 29, Bathford, Bath. Rev. Dr. Morris: Jan. 4 to 20, St. Nathaniel, West Derby, Liverpool. Rev. G. J. Watts: Jan. 4 to 12, Naseby, Rugby.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

A special service for children, an annual institution, was held in Westminster Abbey on Saturday afternoon, when a large congregation assembled. The service was availed of, as in previous years, for putting forward the claims to support of the Destitute Children's Dinner Society. The sermon was preached by Dean Bradley, being addressed to the young people present, and founded upon the words:—"Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us."

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Peter Carmichael, co-pastor with Dr. Edmond, at Highbury Presbyterian Church, has declined a call from Anderston United Presbyterian Church, Glasgow.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. Robert Mackay, secretary of the Self-Help Emigration Society, has been recognised as pastor of Sion Church, Whitechapel-road.

Rev. J. F. B. Tinling, on resigning the pastorate of East Finchley, where he has ministered for three years, has been presented with an address and a cheque for £122. The address testified to the faithfulness with which Mr. Tinling has discharged the duties of the pastorate. "Three years of more solid, earnest, and unceasing work it would not be easy to find in the records of any ministry."

SALVATION ARMY.

The conversion of three Mohammedans and several Singalese ladies is reported from Ceylon.

The large premises, 98 and 100, Clerkenwell-road, also the Oriental Billiard Saloons, over Blackfriars Metropolitan Station, have been secured for the purposes of the Army.

Another party of thirteen officers has been despatched to South Africa. Major Tyler goes specially with a view of extending and organising the work amongst the Dutch colonists.

METHODIST.

A united meeting of Methodist bodies in Manchester has been arranged for January 14.

Rev. S. Blenkin, Primitive Methodist missionary, lately received six native converts into the church at George's Bay, Fernando Po.

The Southwark branch of the London Mission, which is under the direction of Rev. Joseph H. Hopkins, is reported to be making encouraging progress. The morning attendance on Sunday has more than doubled, and conversions are taking place at almost every service.

Some weeks since an appeal was made by Rev. A. Jones, secretary of the Evangelistic Scheme of the United Methodist Free Churches, for funds to provide a Gospel van, through which healthful literature might be disseminated, and evangelistic work carried on. Mr. J. Duckworth, of Rochdale, has now intimated his intention to provide such a van as a jubilee thank-offering. The funds already contributed are to be held in reserve for a second van.

BAPTIST.

Rev. J. E. Cracknell has accepted a very hearty invitation to the pastorate of Arthur-street Baptist Chapel, Gray's Inn-road, and will enter upon his stated labours on the first Sunday in the New Year.

The yearly statistical returns of the Baptist Union of Great Britain show that in England, Scotland, and Ireland, there are 3781 chapels and mission stations, providing accommodation for 1,227,476 persons. In comparison with last year's returns these figures evidence a steady rate of progression in the United Kingdom.

The Baptist Magazine for January gives a portrait of Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's-park Chapel, and in a biographical sketch draws attention to his work at Melbourne Hall, Leicester, which admirably qualified him for that which he has now undertaken as honorary superintendent of the Forward Movement of the London Baptist Association.

Rev. W. R. Skerry, late of Woodberry Down, Stamford-hill, N., has received a hearty welcome on entering upon the pastorate of Denmark-place Chapel, Camberwell, so long associated with the name of Dr. Charles Stanford. Since the death of Dr. Stanford in March, 1886, until recently, the church has been under the charge of Rev. S. B. Rees, now of Highgate.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

The Friends' Review, of the 14th ult., says: "With much regret we learn that Henry Stanley Newman has been seriously injured by a runaway accident, near Grand River, Indian Territory, where he remains under the care of Jeremiah Hubbard."

A work in Douglas City, Alaska, and that had been set apart American Friends are giving it hearty support, and year a Training School is to be erected on the 640 acres thus used, for the natives, white and black.

Friends and other Christian Endeavour Societies have been opened in Pickering, Kirbymoorside, and workers are thus uniting against ignorance, intemperance, and vice in every form.

Joseph F. Radley, of Lisburn, has been welcomed at Antananarivo as a needed addition to the mission staff in Madagascar. Ellen Clayton has again returned to Brumana, on Mount Lebanon, accompanied by her niece, E. Marriage. The toiling workers in distant fields are thus cheered and gladdened, and increased working power will bless them.

"The Society of Christian Endeavour," organisation, is Anne in The Christian. Adelia Hobson describes the in Indianapolis last month, and states that Friends' Societies were represented there. In a previous issue of the same paper Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler sends a "Brotherly greeting to my fellow Christians in Society of Friends." After many kind and appreciative words, he concludes as follows: "As a humble member of the Presbyterian brotherhood of Christians, I here reach out to you the right hand of loving fellowship in the glorious work of bringing souls to the feet of our Redeemer. May a Pentecostal outpouring of the Holy Spirit bring great clearness of vision, great power to your ministers and meetings, great devotion and consecration in missionary labour, and great harvests of souls for all eternity."

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

Rev. Charles A. Salmond, of Rothesay, has intimated his willingness to accept the call addressed to him by the congregation of South Morningside Free Church, Edinburgh.

At a public meeting in of all denominations, resolutions were adopted protesting against the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Vatican, the Government concessions to the Irish priesthood concerning education, and the growth of Ritualism in the Church of England.

According to a correspondent of The Scotsman, a private conference of ministers and elders of the Free Synod of Glasgow and Ayr met in Glasgow last week to consider the "Published Prelections" of Dr. Dods and Dr. A. B. Bruce. It is stated that the conference was one of great solemnity, and that the deliberations were of such a nature as showed a just appreciation of the gravity of the matter submitted. The conference expressed regret that "men untrue to the well-known creed and doctrines of the Church had found their way into some of the theological chairs."

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

During the past year a very considerable number were added to the membership of Windsor Presbyterian Church, Belfast, of which Rev. J. C. Pinkerton is pastor.

No work is carried on more earnestly or energetically in Belfast than the Prison Gate Mission for Women, which has been the means of rescuing not a few from the paths of destruction.

The Fleming Stevenson Memorial, which has for its important object the raising of a fund for the training of native pastors and evangelists in India, has already reached the sum of £3000.

The Dundalk Union Prayer Meeting, which has been in existence for thirty years, had its week of prayer in Rev. [illegible] Presbyterian, this year. Special study.

work in these industries among the members of the district.

The "Forward Movement" is the Methodists of Belfast. The Hermon Hall by Messrs. Jo and D. very largely blessed. Steps are erection of new buildings in two districts of the city.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. John [illegible], for [illegible] years governor and chaplain of the Shrewsbury [illegible], Shrewsbury.—Rev. G. F. Andrew, formerly [illegible] Church, Shipton.—Rev. J. C. Salisbury, D.D., for thirty-eight years in the Congregational ministry, and for twenty-four years pastor at Cratfield, Suffolk.—Mrs. Rigg, wife of Rev. Dr. Rigg, the well-known Wesleyan minister, principal of Westminster Training College.—Rev. T. Jenkins, for fifteen years pastor of Penuel Baptist Church, Pentyrch, near Cardiff.—Mr. Stephen Nicholls, of Mangotsfield, Bristol, a Wesleyan local preacher for thirty-five years.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

[illegible] Mile End-road, London, E., of [illegible] for 1d., and Monthly Notes, [illegible] himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our [illegible] become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," [illegible] Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, JAN. 5.—1 Chron. XVI.

It was a joyous day to David when the ark was safely placed in the tent he had pitched for it. His joy found expression in sacrifice to God (1), which expressed the people's consecration to Him, and their delight in his fellowship; in generous gifts among the people (2, 3); and in the better arrangements made for the service of praise (4—6). Religious joy should find similar modes of expression. God blesses us that we may not only bless Him with our praises, but bless others by our gifts.

David not only appointed singers and musicians for the house of the Lord, but he composed their songs (7—36). This psalm includes extracts from several others. Comp. 8—23 with Ps. cv. 15; 24—33 with Ps. xcvi.; and 34—36 with Ps. cvi. 1, 47, 48. A detailed notice of the whole psalm is impossible. The theme of it, as suggested by its first words (8), is threefold—thanksgiving to God; calling upon God; making known to others the mighty works of God. Take the first of these three, then through the whole psalm to discover how many reasons we are exhorted to praise God for—his name (10), his marvellous works (12), his judgments (14), his covenant (15, 16), his faithfulness [illegible], his greatness (25), his coming again (33). How truly instructive is this psalm as to how the thanksgiving must be rendered (9, 12, 23, 34). In the [illegible] part of the song, [illegible] the whole psalm, to learn how that is to be done. It is full of instruction as to how and for what we may call upon Him (11, 29, 35). The third part of the theme of the song may be treated similarly. To whom must our testimony be declared (13, 24, 30)? What shall be the subject of our testimony (9, 14, 31)? It was not [illegible] for the occasion; the [illegible] and to practise its teaching.

Before dismissing the people arrangements were made for the work of every day before the ark (37), while the ceremonial service in the Tabernacle at Gibeon was not neglected (39—42). So the day closed. The ark was worthy of a better habitation than a tent; but Matthew Henry's words are worth quoting: "David, who pitched a tent for the ark, and continued steadfast to it, did far better than Solomon, who built a temple for it, and yet, in his latter end, turned his back upon it." God thinks more of the heart of the worshipper than of the place of worship.

MONDAY, JAN. 6.—1 Chron. XVII.

This chapter is almost identical with 2 Sam. vii. It contains:—

(1) David's purpose met by God's promise (1—15).—Ever since David came to the throne the glory of his kingdom has been increasing. But now, as he sits in his house of cedar, his thoughts turn to the ark of God. Why should that symbol of the Divine presence continue to dwell within curtains? It is well when those whom God has prospered continue to be concerned for the work of God. "Those who are asking where to bestow their gains and their goods would do well to inquire what condition the ark is in." The purpose of David, though approved by Nathan (2), was not allowed to be fulfilled (3, 4). The best judgment even of the best men may be at fault. In nothing should we lean to our own understanding. Yet God recognised and accepted David's purpose. His will was good, though the time for building the house had not come. The promise with which God meets David's purpose includes the further prosperity of his people (9, 10), the establishing of David's seed on the throne (10, 11), the building of the Temple by his son (12, 13), and the setting up of the kingdom of the Messiah, of which that under Solomon was only a type (14). Whether Nathan meant it or not, it is clear that the promise he delivered was intended by the Spirit of God to apply to One greater than Solomon.

(2) The promise of God answered by David's prayer (16—27).—"He sat before the Lord." The restful attitude of the body represented the attitude of the spirit. He is at home with God—is familiar without being irreverent. David's first utterance expresses his humility (16), and his astonishment, that God should have found him in the sheepfold (7), and yet should treat him as one of "high degree" (17). The promise is so great that David's imagination can think of nothing greater to ask for (18). He therefore, first, magnifies the goodness of God thus revealed (19—22); then converts God's promise into a prayer (22—27), and confidently expects the answer in fulfilment of the Divine word (23, 25, 26). There is no better way of treating the promises of God than to make them the theme of our prayers. Learn to plead God's "I wills" as David did. He will not fail to honour his own word.

TUESDAY, JAN. 7.—1 Chron. XVIII.

What a contrast between this and the former chapter! How soon we pass from communion with God, calm and restful, to the field of battle. The connection between the two is not found here alone—every devoted life witnesses to it. Only he who knows the quiet of communion receives the strength for conflict. Remember Moses (Exod. xxxii.), and Jesus (Mark ix. 1—14).

We considered these victories in 2 Sam. viii., so that brief notes only are needed. Note, against whom they were gained—Philistines (1), Moabites (2), King of Zobah (3), the Syrians (5), and the Edomites (12, 13). There is something suggestive in the defeat of Hadarezer, at the time when he thought to establish his kingdom (3). He was well prepared for war (4); but even so many horses and chariots were a vain thing for safety against a man whose trust was in the name of the Lord (Ps. xx. 7). The Syrians were defeated when they went out to help Hadarezer (5). No combination, however strong, can stand against the people of God.

Note, also, how the victories were gained (6, 13).—It was the presence of God, not the strength of David's armies, that overcame his foes. The man who has the spirit David manifested (xvii. 1) is on God's side, and "he always wins who sides with God."

Note, also, how the kingdom was enlarged and strengthened by these victories.—Tou, king of Hamath, recognised that God was with David, and wisely sought his friendship (8—10). Treasures were won which were laid up before God for the future building of his house (7, 8, 11). And David continued to judge his own people wisely (14). While victorious abroad, he was not unmindful of the kingdom at home.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 8.—1 Chron. XIX.

The incidents of this chapter were given in 2 Sam. x. Briefly note them again:—

(1) Hanun's folly (1—4).—He offered a great insult to David's ambassadors, and therefore to David himself (4). His conduct bears some resemblance to that of the sinner towards God's ambassadors. The occasion is similar (2). The message of David was prompted purely by sympathy with Hanun in the distress he might be expected to feel at the loss of his father. Deeper pity, and tenderer love, move God in sending his message of mercy. Hanun listened to similarly foolish advisers (3). The princes of Ammon did not understand David, but judged him by themselves; yet their foolish advice was taken. How many a young man has lost the kingdom of God through heeding false counsellors! So, instead of accepting the message, he insulted the messengers (4). Not less severely have many of God's messengers been treated; but to reject their message is itself an insult to Him who sends them.

(2) His just punishment (6—19).—There was no need to tell him that punishment would follow—he knew that as soon as he had done wrong (6, 7). Why did he not think of David's wrath before and fear to rouse it? Why do not men remember the wrath that must follow their sin before committing it? It is wise to fear the sin, and not only its punishment. Hanun could not possibly escape. The battle was most skilfully prepared, and the work of Joab and Abishai was rendered very difficult (10—13), so that all their courage and skill was needed. But they were engaged in fighting God's battle, and that could only have one result. Learn how foolish it is to hope for escape if we insult God by rejecting his message.

THURSDAY, JAN. 9.—1 Chron. XX.

A fuller description of the capture of Rabbah by Joab is given in 2 Sam. xi., xii. The painful story of David's fall is not repeated here; the brief parenthesis (1) recalls it: "David tarried at Jerusalem." He would have been in less danger on the battlefield than at home. There are hints that all is not right in the vanity displayed by David when he got possession of the crown of the king of Ammon, and in the cruelty with which the inhabitants of Rabbah were treated (2, 3).

These wars with the Philistines were given in 2 Sam. xxi. 18—22. Philistine giants were opposed to the servants of David; but were defeated. We need not fear giants as the Israelites did (Numb. xiii.). However unusual the strength of God's enemies their defeat is sure (Rom. viii. 31).

FRIDAY, JAN. 10.—1 Chron. XXI.

This book omits many incidents that were recorded in 2 Sam. Neither the sin of David, nor the many painful consequences to which it led, are alluded to. This chapter, however, describes the sin of numbering the people, in order to introduce the particulars which follow relating to the temple. The account is similar to that in 2 Sam. xxiv.

Here, the temptation is traced to Satan (1), in Samuel it is said "God moved him." It is an illustration of the manner in which the malicious intentions of Satan are made to fulfil the purposes of God. David and his people had displeased God, and needed correction. Satan is used by God to accomplish this.

It is not often that Joab understood the will of God better than David did, but he seems to have done so in this case (2—6). He hated the work, while he was compelled to obey David; yet he did not do it fully. Two tribes (6) were omitted in his census; and no accurate return seems to have been made.

David refused to be warned against committing the sin; but he cannot escape suffering for it. His conscience became his accuser (8); and Gad the prophet speedily declared God's displeasure. What a message was that he had to deliver to David (10—12)! How different from that choice between life and death which God offers to every sinner. No wonder David found it difficult to reply. When all three were so bad, which should he choose? An angel was sent to execute the punishment (15). A very similar visitation to that which had so terrified Pharaoh (Exod. xii.) was sent to Jerusalem. But "in wrath God remembered mercy." After great slaughter, the angel stayed for awhile by the threshing-floor of Ornan (15). In David's humble confession there is proof that the chastisement has done its work (16—17).

The angel who inflicted the punishment declared the condition on which peace could be restored (18). Note the excellent spirit manifested by Ornan towards David; and the equally excellent spirit manifested by David towards God (22—25). Ornan would generously have given both the threshing-floor, and the wood, and the oxen; but David would not offer to God what had cost him nothing. The altar was built, the sacrifices laid upon it, then fire came down from heaven, and the plague was stayed (26, 27). How much Gospel there is in this narrative. Let us not fail to learn that God can only be propitiated for sin by means of the sacrifice He has appointed. Trust that; and the sword is sheathed.

SATURDAY, JAN. 11.—1 Chron. XXII.

The place of the altar became the site of the temple (1). God had chosen it (xxi. 18), and had already accepted the sacrifice presented upon it. What place could be more suited?

(1) David's preparation for the building (2—5).—He could not do what he had desired; but he would do all he could to prepare for it. He gathered material, and employed workmen (2—4). He was moved to this by the thought of the youth of Solomon, and of the exceeding glory of the house to be built (5). He would never see the glory of the house himself, but he was none the less concerned that it should be worthy of the God for whom it was intended. Possibly, also, the anticipation that death was not far off moved him to do more (5). There is some service for us after death; but there is much to be done here (John ix. 4).

(2) David's charge to Solomon (6—16).—It was a solemn and important charge, and calculated to impress Solomon with the high honour as well as the great responsibility God was committing to him. It was a work David had not been allowed to do (7, 8). When he came to the kingdom there was much work to do of a different character. Of necessity he had been a man of war; but the extension and establishment of his kingdom had resulted from his victories. Solomon is reminded that God had chosen him for this work (9, 10). The kingdom was now in a state of peace, and he must employ his rest from adversaries in rendering this service to God. The promise of God to establish his kingdom strengthened his obligation to do this work. He is encouraged by David's example in preparing so abundantly already (14—16). The qualities he needs for his work are wisdom, obedience (12), strength, and courage (13).

Solomon was highly privileged in having a father who could advise him so wisely.

(3) David's charge to the princes (17—19).—It is to the same purpose. Their work must be to help Solomon in his great undertaking. Everything is favourable for it (18). If there are no enemies to subdue, let their hearts be given to this work. When the sword is sheathed, it is time to use the trowel.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, January 12.

The Song of Mary.—Luke i. 46—55.

Golden Text: Ver. 46, 47.

Note the interesting incidents which connect the former lesson with this—the unbelief and consequent dumbness of Zacharias (20—22); the visit of the angel Gabriel to Mary, and the announcement of the Saviour's birth (26—31); Mary's simple faith in the message (37, 38); the meeting between Elizabeth and Mary, and Elizabeth's salutation (39—45), to which this song of Mary is a response. Apply the lesson, suggested by these incidents, that nothing so displeases God and injures ourselves as unbelief; and nothing so honours Him and blesses us as humble, unquestioning faith. The honour of giving birth to the Redeemer is one which Mary must have alone; but the faith for which Elizabeth pronounced her blessed (45) is possible to us all.

Mary's song is called "The Magnificat." The title is adopted from the first word in the Latin version of ver. 46. It is not a studied composition, but was evidently a spontaneous outpouring of praise and thanksgiving, spoken under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. It bears some resemblance to the Song of Hannah (1 Sam. ii. 1—10). Mary's undoubted familiarity with that ancient song may explain the repetition of one or two phrases. But the difference is as marked as the resemblance. "Whilst Mary celebrates her happiness with deep humility and holy restraint, Hannah surrenders herself completely to the feeling of personal triumph."—Godet. The song of Mary is not less joyous, but it is more restful than Hannah's.

Is it not significant that though the announcement was made to Mary later than that to Zacharias, she is the first to sing her song of praise? Faith sings, while unbelief is dumb. Nothing opens the lips in praise to God, and in testimony to man, so surely as faith (2 Cor. iv. 13).

Ver. 46, 47 contain the introductory note of praise. Mary praises with the soul, i.e., the natural life—the centre of self-consciousness: and the spirit, i.e., the innermost part of our being, by means of which we enter into communion with God. True praise must be rendered with "all that is within us" (Ps. ciii. 1). Her praise is also the overflowing of her joy. When God makes us glad with his salvation we must make return in praise to Him (Isa. xii. 1). But note, it is not in his salvation, but in God she finds her joy. The gifts of God are intended to make Him dearer to us. They are the streams; our delight is to be in the Fountain whence the streams flow. The Saviour, who was born of Mary, has made joy in God to be possible to all his children (Rom. v. 11). Think more of the Giver than of the gift. Note, too, how Mary acknowledges herself a sinner, who needed God as a Saviour. The Romish doctrine of the immaculacy of the Virgin finds no support in Scripture. If she, who gave birth to the Saviour, needed Him, does not every scholar need Him too?

Ver. 48—50 describe the reason for her praise. The only thing God had found in her was her "low estate." Mary is not boasting of her humility; it would cease to be humility if made the theme of boasting; she refers to the reduced social position of her house.

Though descended from the kingly family, she ranked among the poorest of the daughters of Israel. In this fact prophecy finds fulfilment (Isa. liii. 2). God still regards those whose social position makes them to be despised by others. Her "low estate" God had changed to one of highest honour. Future generations would call her "blessed," because through her God introduced the world's Redeemer. But to declare her to be sinless; to worship her; to exalt her to a position of mediator between men and the Saviour—is not the way to fulfil this word. Our Lord has taught us that it is possible to make too much of Mary's special privilege (xi. 27, 28; Matt. xii. 46—50). The mere human relationship is not equal to that enjoyed by those who do his will. Her blessing has increased her knowledge of God. She celebrates his might; his holiness (49); and his mercy (50), which is not for her alone, but for all succeeding ages.

Ver. 51—53 declare the method of God's dealings with men, not only in the past, but especially in the Gospel dispensation then commencing. The words are prophetic, and speak of the future as though already past. The strength of God's arm was displayed in the Incarnation as in the Cross, yet so that men saw it not. Mary recognised it, and foretold the methods of its future manifestation. It would be exerted against the proud (51), i.e., in thought—men whose wisdom is their boast (Matt. xi. 25; 1 Cor. i. 19, 21); the mighty (52), such as Herod; and the rich (53), self-satisfied. It is possible to be in one of these three classes, and not know it (Rev. iii. 17, 18). But God's power is exerted on behalf of the lowly (52), and the hungry (53). Let us be thankful that God's power is not on the side of the strong, but of the weak; not with the rich, but with the poor; not with the self-righteous, but with the humble sinner. Our needs are our greatest wealth. To be among "the poor and needy" is to be assured of God's help.

Ver. 54, 55 declare the faithfulness of God. The event which has given rise to Mary's song was foretold to Abraham. If He has fulfilled his word, promised so long ago, He is worthy of fullest confidence.

Letters to the Editor.

IS BOHEMIA AGAIN TO BECOME A PROTESTANT LAND?

Sir,—The debate now proceeding in the Bohemian Diet respecting the proposal to place John Huss among the heroes of the country, whose busts are to adorn the walls of the new National Museum, has its bearing on the religious well-being of the country. The supporters of the proposal avow most distinctly that they do not wish to do him honour as a religious man and a reformer, but simply as a patriot and a literary man. Their proposal, however, has so roused public attention, and has been so hotly opposed, that the opportunity seems a most favourable one for drawing attention to Huss's true character and action. The Protestant party, therefore, are seriously talking of trying—if the township will allow them—to republish his works in a cheap form and to circulate them widely. In this they will surely receive the sympathy of Protestant England. And may it not be hoped that in the coming week of prayer Bohemia will not be forgotten?—I am, yours truly,

R. S. Ashton.

AN "OBJECTION" TO JEWISH MISSIONS.

Sir,—Please allow me to mention a plausible objection to the view of "Israel's destiny" taught at the Mildmay Conference. I do not see it noticed in the published volume, and perhaps it is not familiar in England, but I have often heard it from Scotch pulpits, both preachers and hearers seeming to regard it as unanswerable. Is it really so?

Here is their argument. If God's fixed purpose for Israel is that they shall for ever remain a separate nation, is it not "fighting against God" to labour and pray for their national conversion? Converted Jews, as we all know, mingle freely with converted Gentiles, by intermarrying, &c., all being "one in Christ Jesus." It is their rejection of Christ that keeps the Jews a distinct nationality. But if our labours are largely blessed, and our prayers largely answered, and the already converted Jewish hundred thousand becomes several millions, there is surely an end of "the everlasting nation." And, besides, even if they remained a separate nationality, and did not get absorbed, outwardly, in this age, yet they would all be in heaven, and not on earth, at the Second Advent of our Lord.

I once heard a successful Scotch missionary to the Jews say, rather roughly, that pre-millennarians would do better to leave this work to post-millennarians. For we, he said, want the entire nation of Israel to be converted here and now; whereas they say, "Come to Christ, but do not come in overwhelming numbers, or else you will only frustrate your own glorious national future, as declared in God's Word!"—I am, &c.,

A Scottish Christian.

WEEK OF UNIVERSAL PRAYER,

January 5—12, 1890.

STEINWAY HALL,

[illegible], Lower Seymour-street, Portman-square, W.

Monday, January 6.—Personal Confession and Supplication: Chairman, Sir [illegible]; address by Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe.

Tuesday, January 7.—Nations and their Rulers. Chairman, Admiral Grant; address by Rev. Richard Roberts.

Wednesday, January 8 [illegible]. Chairman, Mr. George William[illegible] Fuller Gooch.

Thursday, January 9.—For Jews and Mohammedans. Chairman, Mr. T. Morgan Harvey; [illegible] W. Moore.

Friday, January 10.—The [illegible]. Chairman, William Willis; address [illegible].

Saturday, January 11. [illegible]. Chairman, Mr. Donald Matheson.

THE CITY.

Centenary Hall, 17, Bishopsgate-street Within.

Monday, Jan. 6.—Personal Confession and Supplication. 12—1, Mr. T. Morgan Harvey; 1—2, Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A.

Tuesday, Jan. 7.—Nations and their Rulers. 12—1, Bishop Crowther (from the [illegible]); Chairman—Mr. Hugh M. Matheson. 1—2, [illegible]. Sadler (of Amoy); Chairman—Mr. Joseph Fry, J.P.

Wednesday, Jan. 8.—The Rising Generation. 12—1, Pastor F. H. White; 1—2, Mr. F. A. Bevan.

Thursday, Jan. 9.—For Jews and Mohammedans. 12—1, Rev. E. A. Stuart, M.A.; 1—2, Rev. J. J. Fuller (forty-five years missionary in West Africa); Rev. J. Wilkinson (Mildmay Mission to the Jews).

Friday, Jan. 10.—The Heathen. 12—1, Dr. Pierson, U.S.A.; 1—2, Major Whittle, U.S.A.

Saturday, Jan. 11.—Thanksgiving. 12—1, Mr. J. H. Tritton; 1—2, no meeting.

Y.M.C.A. Lecture Hall, Whittington-avenue, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

Special Meetings for Young Men. Monday, Jan. 6, 6—7: Major Whittle. Tuesday, Jan. 7, 6—7: Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A. Wednesday, Jan. 8, 6—7: Special Prayer for Young Men's Christian Associations. Thursday, Jan. 9, 6—7: Major Whittle. Friday, Jan. 10, 8—9: Sir Arthur Blackwood, K.C.B.; [illegible], M.P. C. [illegible].

EXETER HALL, STRAND, 1 to 2 p.m.

Monday, January 6.—[illegible]. Tuesday.—Rev. Henry Allon, D.D. Wednesday. [illegible] Lillingston. Thursday.—[illegible]. Friday.—Rev. John Telford. [illegible]. Friday, 4 p.m.—United Prayer Meeting for Woman's Work in the Foreign Mission Field. Various Zenana Societies will be represented.

CONFERENCE HALL, MILDMAY PARK.

Sunday, Jan. 5, 8.15 p.m.: Dr. Wm. [illegible]. Monday, 11 a.m.: Rev. Dr. Bullinger, Rev. J. [illegible], Rev. J. Wilkinson, Dr. Dixon. Tuesday, [illegible] Rev. Dr. Edmond; 7.30 p.m., [illegible]. Wednesday, [illegible]; 7.30 p.m., [illegible]. Thursday, [illegible], Mr. G. W. Bi[illegible]. Friday, [illegible]; 7.45 p.m., Rev. [illegible]. Saturday, 11 a.m.: Rev. [illegible]. Sunday, Jan. 12. [illegible].

SOUTH LONDON.

Monday, at 7: Metropolitan Tabernacle: Rev. J. A. Spurgeon. Tuesday, at 7.30: Lecture Hall, Kennington Chapel, Solow-road, Acre-lane; Rev. [illegible]. Wednesday, at 7.30: Lecture Hall, [illegible] Church, Clapham-road; [illegible], D.D. Thursday, at 7.30: Lecture Hall, [illegible] Church, Penwick-square, Camberwell; Rev. J. Reid Howatt. Friday, at 7.30: [illegible]. Matthews, Brixton; Rev. W. A. [illegible], M.A., Vicar, Archdeacon Richardson. Saturday, at 6: School-[illegible], St. James's, Clapham; Rev. P. A. [illegible].

DORA LODGE HALL, WANDSWORTH, 4 p.m.

Monday. Confession and Supplication: Address by Miss Whittle. Tuesday. Nations and their Rulers: Address by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Wednesday. The Rising Generation: Address by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse. Thursday. For Jews and Mohammedans: Address by Rev. E. W. Moore. Friday. The Heathen: Address by Rev. J. Monro Gibson, D.D.

CHURCH ROOM, ST. PAUL'S, ONSLOW-SQUARE, 5 p.m.

Monday, Jan. 6.—Address by Rev. Chas. Fox. Tuesday. Rev. H. Webb-Peploe. Wednesday.—Donald Matheson, Esq. Thursday.—J. Herbert Tritton, Esq. Friday. Rev. George R. Thornton. Saturday, 7.30 p.m.—Address by the Vicar. Wednesday, Jan. 15, 7.30 p.m.—Special Sermon by Rev. H. C. G. Moule.

Royal Hospital for Incurables,

WEST HILL, PUTNEY HEATH,

Instituted 31st July, 1854.

PATRON: His Royal Highness the Prince of WALES, K.G.
PRESIDENT: The Right Hon. the Earl of ABERDEEN.
TREASURER: JOHN DERBY ALLCROFT, Esq., F.R.A.S.

This Charity was established to relieve and to cherish, during the remainder of life, persons above the pauper class, suffering from incurable maladies, and thereby disqualified for the duties of life.

For persons needing a home, an asylum is provided, medical attendance, nursing, and domestic comforts are supplied, and the endeavour is made to alleviate suffering, and to cheer the life from which health has departed.

To persons having a home, but without the means of support, a pension of £20 a year is given; thus the family life is unbroken, and the invalid is relieved from the pain of dependence.

There are at present 217 inmates and 561 pensioners; total, 778.

The Institution is open every week-day for the inspection of subscribers and friends between the hours of 12 and 6.

The above work is its own appeal.

The public are reminded that it is maintained by VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

SUBSCRIPTIONS and DONATIONS are most earnestly solicited.

An Annual Subscriber has One Vote for each Half Guinea; a Life Subscriber has One Vote for each Five Guineas. FREDERIC ANDREW, Secretary.

Office—106, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

C. H. KELLY'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE CREDENTIALS OF THE GOSPEL: A Statement of the Reason of the Christian Hope. By the Rev. JOSEPH AGAR BEET. Demy 8vo., 256 pp. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

"Emphatically a good book, clear and compact in its statements, logical and incisive in its reasoning, and pungent in its appeals."—The British Weekly.

THE NEW BOOK OF FAMILY DEVOTION.

PRAYERS FOR CHRISTIAN FAMILIES. Containing Prayers for the Morning and Evening of each day for Nine Weeks, and for Special Occasions. With an Introduction on Family Prayer, by the EDITOR. Crown 8vo., cloth, red edges, 3s. 6d.

POPULAR EDITION, PRICE ONE SHILLING.

LOVING COUNSELS: Sermons and Addresses by Rev. CHARLES GARRETT. Crown 8vo., 320 pp. Stiff covers. Price 1s.

MARK GUY PEARSE'S BOOKS.

New Volume, just published.

SHORT TALKS FOR THE TIMES. Crown 8vo., gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIANITY OF JESUS CHRIST—IS IT OURS? Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 14th Thousand, 1s.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 58th Thousand, 1s.

PRAISE: Meditations in the 103rd Psalm. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 14th Thousand.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 25th Thousand, 1s.

THE DANIEL QUORM SERIES.

Ten Volumes, Crown 8vo., cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d. each.

1. DANIEL QUORM AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. First Series. 88th Thousand.
2. DANIEL QUORM AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. Second Series. 37th Thousand.
3. SERMONS FOR CHILDREN. 25th Thousand.
4. MISTER HORN AND HIS FRIENDS; or, Givers and Giving. 27th Thousand.
5. SHORT STORIES, and other Papers. 11th Thousand.
6. "GOOD WILL." A Collection of Christmas Stories. 12th Thousand.
7. SIMON JASPAR. 21st Thousand.
8. CORNISH STORIES. 12th Thousand.
9. HOMELY TALKS. 16th Thousand.
10. JOHN TREGENOWETH, ROB RAT, and THE OLD MILLER AND HIS MILL. 24th Thousand.

Cheap Editions of the above are on Sale, 1s. 6d. each.

Cheap Editions of J. M. BAMFORD'S BOOKS.

FATHER FERVENT. 4th Thousand. Crown 8vo. Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

JOHN CONSCIENCE, OF KINGSEAL. 5th Thousand. Crown 8vo., Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

ELIAS POWER, OF EASE-IN-ZION. 14th Thousand. Crown 8vo., Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

HUGH AXE, OF HEPHZIBAH. Crown 8vo., Illustrated, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: C. H. KELLY, 2, CASTLE STREET, CITY ROAD, E.C.; and 66, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

A Charming Little Christmas Gift.
2nd Edition now ready. Gilt edges, 1s. 6d.
"WITH HIM FOR EVER" and other Poems.
By the Author of "WATERED LILIES."
"Tuneful in measure and exquisite in tone. Lovers of sacred song will find here a treasure of delight."—Word and Work.
NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

A JESUIT PLOT FOR THE Destruction of the Protestant Religion.

STARTLING REVELATIONS.

PROTESTANT ALLIANCE, 9, Strand, London.

Price One Penny.

Doctrines and Practices of the Jesuits.

Price 6d. in Paper Cover, 1s. Cloth.

PROTESTANT ALLIANCE, 9, Strand, London.

GREAT THOUGHTS

COMMENCES A NEW VOL., JAN. 4, 1890,

WITH A

NEW and POWERFUL STORY

BY DR. PARKER

(Of the City Temple),

ENTITLED—

THE HISTORY OF A SOUL;

Or, Robert Elsmere's Contrast.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

1d. Weekly. 6d. Monthly.

LONDON:
A. W. HALL, 132, FLEET STREET, E.C.

NEW MAGAZINE.

THE

WORKER'S MONTHLY

EDITED BY REV. S. R. CROCKETT.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

NEWS, INSTRUCTION, HELP FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

January Number Now Ready.

GALL & INGLIS, LONDON AND EDINBURGH.
And of all Booksellers.

By A.L.O.E.

THE HARTLEY BROTHERS. 3s. 6d.
NED FRANKS, 2s. 6d. SHEER OFF, 2s. 6d.
THE SILVER KEYS.

Ask your Bookseller for GALL & INGLIS' Illustrated Catalogue of Books for Prizes and Presents, by A.L.O.E., W. H. G. KINGSTON, ASCOTT R. HOPE, and other Popular Writers.

GALL & INGLIS, LONDON AND EDINBURGH.

THE

PREACHERS' MAGAZINE.

FOR PREACHERS, TEACHERS, AND BIBLE STUDENTS.

EDITORS:

MARK GUY PEARSE and ARTHUR E. GREGORY.

No. 1, JANUARY, 1890.

Principal Contents:—

On Building the Old Waste. By the Bishop of Rochester.
Intercessory Prayer. By Archibald G. Brown.
Elijah. By Mark Guy Pearse.
The Theological Student. By T. Robinson Gregory.
How Men Get their Sermons. I.—Henry Ward Beecher.
Sermon Outlines. Notes and Illustrations, &c., &c.

PRICE FOURPENCE MONTHLY.

London: C. H. KELLY, 2, Castle-st., City Road, E.C.
Specimen Copy sent for Three Stamps.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S NEW YEAR'S LIST.

NEW WORK BY THE "NUN OF KENMARE."

This Day. Crown 8vo., cloth, 7s. 6d.

Life Inside the Church of Rome. By M. FRANCIS CLARE CUSACK, "Nun of Kenmare."

"A book of plain speaking and of plain facts. I have hesitated long and thought long before I began, because I know how great its importance will be, and I know that I shall have to answer to God for what I have written. I know that all the treachery and deceit of which I have been made the subject is the common, ordinary practice of the Church of Rome."—Preface.

Now Ready. Price 6d., postage 1½d.

DR. HORATIUS BONAR'S LAST HYMN.

In Me Ye Shall have Peace. Printed on neat board in bold type, for hanging up.

This Day. Crown 8vo., cloth, 5s.

Christian Conduct. Sermons preached in the Chapel of Mill Hill School, by CHARLES ANTHONY VINCE, M.A., Head Master, late Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge.

This Day. Elegantly bound, cloth gilt, 3s. 6d.

A Child of Faith in an Age of Doubt. Memorials of Andrew Kennedy Bremner. By HIS BROTHER.

The life of Andrew Kennedy Bremner was very short, but there was in it an element of spiritual intensity which made it more impressive than many longer lives.

NEW WORK BY REV. HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A.

This Day. Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

The Philanthropy of God. Described and Illustrated in a Series of Sermons. By the Rev. HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

Third Edition. In Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

1. Social Christianity. Sermons delivered in St. James' Hall, London.

"As an exposition of vital religion, and an earnest and pointed enforcement of Divine truth, the book is a most wholesome and bracing one."

Primitive Methodist Magazine.

Crown 8vo., cloth, 1s. 6d.

2. The Atheist Shoemaker: A Story of the West London Mission.

"A remarkable narrative."—Christian World.
"Attractive and impressive."—Record.

THE LATE DR. HATCH.

This day. Elegantly bound in cloth, gilt edges. 2s. 6d.

Towards Fields of Light. Sacred Poems. By the late Rev. EDWIN HATCH, D.D.

NEW WORK BY DR. PENTECOST.

In Crown 8vo., cloth, price 4s.

The Gospel of Luke. Studies on the International Lessons for 1890. By Rev. G. F. PENTECOST, D.D.

Seventh Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s. With Frontispiece.

THE SECOND PART OF

John G. Paton, Missionary to the New Hebrides. An Autobiography. Edited by his Brother, the Rev. JAMES PATON, B.A.

"The second half is not a whit behind its predecessor in living, fascinating interest. As we read the wondrous tale of 'something attempted, something done,' told in words that come red hot from the heart of the honoured worker, we feel that of a truth the days of miracles are not ended."—Christian.

Eleventh Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s With Portrait.

John G. Paton. First Part.

"The most robust and the most fascinating piece of autobiography that I have met with in many a day."
Dr. T. L. CUYLER.

NEW VOLUME NOW READY.

The Mother's Friend. VOL. II. FOR 1889. Edited by Mrs. G. S. REANEY. With Twelve Full-page Illustrations, illuminated boards, 1s. 6d.; handsomely bound in cloth, 2s.

☞ Mother's Friend, 1890.—A New Story by Mrs. REANEY, entitled "Eleanor's Stepmother," commences in the January Number.

ONE PENNY MONTHLY.

LONDON: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

MESSRS. MIDDLETON and HOGBEN are prepared to conduct evangelistic missions in town or country.—Apply to Mr. William Baker, Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting, St. Peter's Cornhill, 1.30 to 2 p.m. Bible-reading, 1 to 1.30 p.m. Bible-reading, Mons., 6.15 p.m. Missionary meeting, every Thurs., 6.15 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Jan. 5, 3 p.m., Rev. J. Elphick; 7 p.m., Mr. C. Boardman, jun. Meetings for prayer. Sun., 7.45 a.m.; Wed., Fri., Sat., 7.30 p.m. Bible-reading, Wed., 8.15 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 p.m., men only; 7.30 p.m., public, Rev. John McNeill. Gospel meetings for men, nightly at 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., at 8. Prayer-meeting, each week day (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2.

Y.M.C.A., [illegible], E.C.—[illegible] young men, by Major Whittle, Sun., Jan. 5, 3.30 p.m., [illegible]

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sun., Jan. 5, 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Rev. Dr. Edmond.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Piccadilly: Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. Dr. Lunn. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, Park-square East (near Portland-road Station), N.W.—Sun., services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Regent-square, W.C.—Rev. John McNeill, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 7.30. p.m.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E. Monthly workers' meeting. Fri., Jan. 3, 7 p.m. Rev. J. R. Wood will give a New Year's address; subject—"The Christian Worker's Privileges: [illegible]"

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services [illegible] Sat., 11.30 and 7 p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—[illegible] at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m. Mr. Reader Harris will conduct afternoon and evening meetings.

OPEN-AIR MISSION (South London Auxiliary).—Monthly conference, St. Andrew's Schools, Roupell-street, Blackfriars-road, Tues., Jan. 7. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Mr. Edward Crisp, chairman. Address by Rev. Trevor Fielder; subject—"Our Partnership."

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY will conduct the services at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W., during Jan., Sun., at 11 and 7, and at Burlington Hall, Sevilleroom, Wed., at 8.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Major Headley each Sun. in Jan., at 3.30 and 7.

REFORMATORY AND REFUGE UNION, 32, Charing-cross, S.W.—Annual prayer-meeting, Tues., Jan. 7. Address by Rev. John Hall Shaw. Mr. W. E. Hubbard will preside. Tea at 6; meeting at 7.

RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—Special meeting, Exeter (Lower) Hall, Strand, W.C., Wed., Jan. 8, 8 p.m., to unite in thanksgiving and prayer for blessing upon the work of Ragged Schools, Institutions, and Missions in the past and during the New Year.

WEEK OF PRAYER, Powis Hall, Powis-gardens, Talbot-road, 8 p.m. Mon., Jan. 6, Capt. Baring. Tues., Mr. Finlay Gibson. Wed., Mr. H. Maynard. Thurs., Rev. Henry E. Brooke. Fri., Rev. J. Williamson (Mildmay).

DUBLIN CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life, Ancient Concert Rooms, Dublin, Jan. 20—25. Revs. Evan H. Hopkins, Dr. Elder Cumming, John Sloan, J. T. Butlin, J. Gelson Gregson, Colonel Oldham, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

CONFERENCE of Believers at Bristol, Jan. 14 and 15. Particulars of Mr. J. A. Vicary, Ebenezer House, Dalrymple-road.

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Mr. and Mrs. J. acknowledge with many thanks the receipt of a Love Token on Christmas Eve.

Latimer-road Mission—Received with grateful thanks: The Metropolitan and Provincial Amateur Instrumental and Vocal Half Hour Club, 17s; J.Y. 5s.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Malvern, 7s 6d; T.E.L. 10s; Mizpeh, H.M.A.S. £3.

Evangelistic Mission (Free Meals, &c.)—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch thankfully acknowledges receipt of 1s, Anon.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals for Destitute Poor)—Miss E.W. 10s; Mrs. W.R. 7s. 6d; Miss S. 3s.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO MONDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1889.

	£	s.	d.
K.R.H., "POLY" and F.R.—Amount does not agree; kindly send full address.
Pastor Fliedner's Orphanage, Madrid—M.F. ...	0	10	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—Miss H. £1; S.B. 2s 6d; E.M.H. £1; M.S.J.D. £1 ...	3	2	6
McAll Mission—K. 2s; Miss B. 5s; O.E. 10s; J.N.B. £2 2s; P.R. £1; H.H.S. £1; R.W. £2	6	19	0
Livingstonia Mission—Mrs. C. 6s; Soudan, 5s...	0	11	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—H.B. £1; M.L. £2 ...	3	0	0
Paris City Mission—S.	1	0	0
Cape Gen. Msn. (Mr. Spencer Walton)—A. & H.M.G.	1	0	0
South American Missionary Soc.—A. & H.M.G.	1	0	0
Zenana Bible & Medical Mission—A. & H.M.G.	1	0	0
Soldiers' Mission Home, Gibraltar—A. & H.M.G.	1	0	0
Mr. D. C. Joseph's Work, Jews, Jerusalem—H.H.	1	0	0
Poor Jews, Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—H.F.	0	5	0
China Inland Mission—C.E.M. 5s; N.C.W. 2s 6d; T.J. £1 15s; G.A. £5; E.E.S. 10s; C.H.H.C. £1 1s; J.R.W. £2	10	13	6
Church Missionary Soc.—A.M.B. 10s; E.E.S. 10s	1	0	0
Paris Mission to Jews (Miss M. A. Palmer)—M.	0	5	0
British & Foreign Bible Society—C.H.H.C. ...	1	1	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—P.C. 2s 6d; T.A.H. 10s; Miss H. £2; E.M.H. £2 10s; Thankoffering, 10s; T.P. £1; C.M. 10s; B.R.J. 10s; S. £1; H.H. £1; E.S. £1; Nix, 10s; B.G.M. 2s 6d; F.H. 10s; J.B.D. £10; J.J. 10s; G. & E.S. 1s; N.C.W. 2s 6d; M.G.G. 5s; Leamington, £1; N.R. £1; A Sympathiser, 5s; N.W.R. 3s 6d; R.R.D. £2; G.K. 3s; T.J. 10s; M.L.E. £5; A.D. 1s; N.B. 2s 6d; M.Mel. 5s; L., in Sympathy, 10s; E.S.L. £10; Sympathiser, 5s; Mrs. G.H. £3; M.L. £10; Lancaster, £1; W. & S.W. £5; J.B.D. £5; Inasmuch, 2s 6d; Middlesbrough, 5s; H.H.S. £1	12	17	6
Mrs. Meredith's Mission, &c.—N.D. £1; O.E. 10s; N.A.R. 2s 6d; C. & E. £2; E.P. 5s; W. & S.W. £3; S. £5; B.H. 5s; P.H. 2s; J.J. 2s; X.Y.Z. 2s 6d; G. & E.S. 1s; C.G.L. £1; E.S., Paris, £1; J.K. 10s; M.L. £5; H.H.S. £1; Captain G.M. £2; Jerusalem—S. £5 ...	23	0	0
Gray's-pd. Bap. Church, &c.—N.D. £1; O.E. 10s	1	10	0
Mission to Seamen—N.D.	1	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—N.D. 10s; Miss H. £1; S.F.B. 5s; O.E. 10s; Miss W. 5s; C. & E. £1; S.S. £3; T.P. 10s; Jane, 2s 6d; E.R.C. 2s 6d; S.H. 5s; H.H. £1; F.H. 10s; H.S. 10s; C.E.G. 10s; J.B.D. £5; P.H. 2s; J.J. 2s; G. & E.S. 1s; C.E.M. 10s; M.G.G. 5s; C.G.L. £1 1s; A.M.B. 10s; J.R.W. £1; E.J. 5s; E.S., Paris, £1; Lady G. £1; R.W. [illegible] S.H. 2s; Rescue Work—J.B.D. £5; Prison [illegible]
London Samaritan Society, &c.—A.M.S. 5s; [illegible]
London Fire Brigade—H...	0	5	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—A.M.S. 5s; P. 5s; M.G.G. 5s...	0	15	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—A.M.S. 5s; C. & E. £1; T.P. 8s 9d; B.H. 5s; Gerty, 1s; M.L. £2; H.M.A.S. 10s; J.R.W. 10s	4	19	9
Tower Hamlets Mission—E.A.P. 5s; R.M. 5s; E.M.H. £1; B.R.J. 10s; H.B. £3; H.H. £1; E.K.K. 5s; A.E.H. £2...	8	5	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—Miss H. 10s; C. & [illegible] N.R. 10s	6	10	0
Cow-cross Mission—Miss H. 10s; C. & E. £2; T.P. 10s; H.H. £1; E.K.K. 5s; E.S.L. £10; Mrs. G.H. £1; Captain G.M. £2; S.M.B. 2s 6d; H.A.G. 12s 6d	18	0	0
National Lifeboat Institution—H...	0	2	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Captain G.M. £2; Mrs. G.H. £1; Irene, 3s; S.F.B. 5s; C. & E. £3; S. 10s; P.H. 2s; J.J. 2s; G. & E.S. 1s; C.E.M. 5s; N.B. 10s; E.S., Paris, £1; M.L.E. £5; Inasmuch, 5s; E.S.L. £10; A Sympathiser, 2s 6d; A.E.H. £2; S.M.P. 10s; [illegible]
George-yard Mission—S.F.B. 5s; C. & E. £3; C.E.M. 5s; E.S.L. £10; H.H.S. £1; M.G.G. 5s; R.W. 10s; H.M.A.S. 10s	15	15	0
Christian Community—B.M. 5s; H.M.A.S. 10s [illegible] E.K. 10s; C. & E. £1; E.M.H. £1; M.L.E. £2; T.T. £1; H.H. £1; B.H. 5s	6	15	0
Watercress & Flower Sellers' Mission—N.A.R. 2s 6d; C. & E. £1; W.W. 5s; S. 10s; S.H. 2s; Mr. F.W.G. 5s; J.B.D. £5; X.Y.Z. 2s 6d; E.D.T. 5s; G. & E.S. 1s J.K. 10s; Inasmuch, 5s; E.J.E.C. 3s 9d; A.R.C.M. 5s; A Sympathiser, 2s 6d; Sympathiser, 10s; H.M.A.S. £1; J.R.W. [illegible]	10	[illegible]
Poor Shirtmakers—Miss W.	0	5	0
Latimer-road Mission—C. & E. £5; S.W.T. 2s 6d; H.B. £1; Mrs. G.H. £1; H.H.S. £1; H.M.A.S. 5s; J.R.W. 10s	6	17	0
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—C. & E. £5; E.M.H. £1; S.W.T. 5s; A. & H.M.G. £1; H.H. £1; O.E. 10s; R.V. 1s; E.S., Paris, £1; Mrs. G.H. £2; M.L. £5; H.H.S. £1; R.W. 10s; H.M.A.S. 10s	16	16	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—C. & E. £1; A. & H.M.G. £1; H.H. £1; H.H.S. £1	4	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—C. & E. £1; H.B. £1; S. £1; P.H. 2s; Irene, 5s; H.H.S. £1	4	7	0
Free Meals to very Poor—M.G.G. 5s; C. & E. £1; A.B. 2s 6d; B.H. 5s	1	12	6
Cripples' Home—M.F.C. 10s; H.B. £1	1	10	0
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—C. & E. £1; J.R.W. 10	1	10	0
Home Worn-out Governesses—C. & E. £1; F.R. £1	2	0	0
Deptford Medical Mission—C. & E.	1	0	0
Rescue Society—E.M.H.	1	0	0
Friendless & Fallen—M.F.C. 10s; B.R.J. 10s; [illegible] E.E.S. 10s; J.S. 2s 6d; R.W. 10s; J.R.W. 10s	6	14	6
Work among Jews—M.F.C.	0	5	0
Home Mission Work—M.F.C....	0	5	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—Thankoffering, 10s; J.B.D. £5; M.J.W. £1; N.R. 10s; Cotham, 10s; C.H.H.C. £1 1s; Mrs. G.H. £1 ...	9	11	0
Outcast Poor London (Rev. A. Mearns)—Miss B. [illegible] H.M.G. £1; H.M.A.S. 10s; [illegible] M.L. £10	13	0	0
Rev. W. E. Hurndall's Work—B.R.J.	0	10	0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—C.J.R. 10s; Mrs. G.H. £2	2	10	0
Christmas Help to Poor—J.B. £1; A.B. 2s 6d; N.C.W. 5s; R.S. 1s 6d; Beta, £25; F.L. £1; S.A.E. 8s; Inasmuch, 5s	28	2	6
Christmas Dinners (Dr. Guinness)—S.H. 5s; B.H. 5s	0	10	0
Distressed Irish Ladies—F.R. £1; H.M.A.S. 10s	1	10	0
Special Religious Services in Theatres—H.B. ...	3	0	0
Marylebone Medical Mission—H.B.	2	0	0
Thames Church Mission—H.B. £2; O.E. 10s; S.L.R. 10s 6d	3	0	6
Ragged School Union—H.B.	0	10	0
Irish Church Missions—H.B.	2	0	0
Irish Evangelisation Society—H.B.	1	0	0
Drury-lane Xian. Msn. (Mr. Hambleton)—H.B.	1	0	0
THE CHRISTIAN Tract Fund—H.B.	0	10	0
Rev. A. Mearns' East-end Mission—K.B.	1	1	0
Union Hall Mission—H.B.	2	0	0
[illegible]
Christian Colportage Association—H.B.	1	0	0
[illegible]
Theatrical Mission—S. 10s; G. & E.S. 1s; O.E. 10s; A.R.C.M. 5s; A Sympathiser, 2s 6d; Captain G.M. £2	3	8	6
Bristol Orphan Houses—A. & H.M.G. £1; J.R.W. £1	2	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—B.H. 3s; Captain J.W. 3s 2d	0	6	2
Rev. A.G. Brown's Work—F.H. 10s; Lady G. £1	1	10	0
Hospital for Incurables, Putney—A. & H.M.G...	1	0	0
Birds'-Nest Mission, Dublin—A. & H.M.G... ...	1	0	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—H.H. £1; O.E. 10s	1	10	0
Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's Orphanage—F.H.	0	10	0
N.E. London Gos. Msn.—A.M.S. 10s; Lady G. £2	2	10	0
East London Training Institute—F.H.	0	10	0
Mr. E. Wright's Work—J.B.D.	5	0	0
Working Men's Mission—J.B.D.	5	0	0
[illegible] H.H.S. £1...	7	0	0
[illegible] E.S.L. £10	21	9	6
[illegible]
Match Factory Girls—Miss W.	0	5	0
[illegible] Sympathiser, 10s	1	15	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—O.E.	1	0	0
Mildmay Winter Relief Fund—Ryde, £5; A.D. 1s 6d	3	1	6
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—S.R.	0	6	6
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—N.R... ...	0	10	0
Poor Widow, Whitechapel—S.A.E. 2s 8d; Sympathiser, 5s	0	7	8
Royal Prov. Fund Sea Fishermen—Whosoever	0	2	6
Blackdown Hills Mission—E.M.B.	5	0	0
[illegible]
Free Breakfasts, &c.—Inasmuch, 2s 6d; C.J. 3s	0	5	6
E. End Gos. Msn. (Mr. G. Fuller)—Lady G. ...	1	0	0
Sick & Aged Poor—E. P., Hampstead	4	0	0
Waifs & Strays Msn.—E.E.S.	0	10	0
Mildmay Msn. to Jews—E.C. £1 9s; C.H.H.C. £1 1s	2	10	0
Homes Little Boys, Farningham, &c.—Mrs. G.H.	1	0	0
Relief Dock Labourers—Mrs. G.H.	2	0	0
Free Breakfasts, Dock Labourers—Mrs. G.H. ...	1	0	0
Gen'l. Domestic Servants' Ben. Inst.—Mrs. G.H.	1	0	0
Billingsgate Xtn. Msn.—Mrs. G.H.	1	0	0
Bishop Bedford's E. London Church Fund—M.L.	15	0	0
[illegible]	3	0	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—Lancaster, 5s; Captain G.M. £2	2	5	0
Salvation Army—J.S. 2s 6d; Slum Work—Anon. £5	5	2	6
[illegible] A.K.E.K. & J.K.	5	0	0
Rev. B. Sackett, Whitechapel—Anon.	5	0	0
Free Meals, East End Poor—Anon.	5	0	0
Children's Aid Society—R.W.	0	10	0
Hospital Diseases Heart—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Mr. Orsman's Work—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Kentish Town Mission—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
[illegible] H.M.A.S. ...	0	10	0
[illegible] H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Houseless Poor Asylum, Banner-st.—H.M.A.S....	0	10	0
Home Blind Children, Hackney—H.M.A.S. ...	0	5	0
Bible & Colportage Society, Ireland—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Home Aged Blind, Christian Mem, &c.—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Distressed Widows' Society—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Irish Evangelical Society—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Church Army—H.M.A.S....	1	1	0
Royal Naval Scripture Readers' Soc.—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Miss Sharman's Orphan Home—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Rev. Dr. Stephenson's Childr'n's Homes—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
London Factory Lads—J.R.W.	0	10	0
Relief London Poor—G.E.	2	0	0
	£536	8	4

MONTHLY, ONE HALFPENNY.

THE

HERALD of MERCY.

ILLUSTRATED.

A Monthly Messenger for Humble Homes.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" gives —what is so much needed by Tract Distributors — a constant variety of awakening Gospel Appeals, Invitations, and Encouragements. The Subscriber for the Year is thus enabled to furnish every month to the persons in his or her District a complete change of reading and religious instruction.

CONTENTS OF THE JANUARY NUMBER.

THE BROKEN CUPS. With Full-page Engraving. Showing how the New Birth is essential to Salvation.

A NEW PAGE. A New Year's Poem. By WM. LUFF.
"Now the page, the Opening Year,
Spotless as the throne of he[illegible].
Yet how soon the stains appear,
Quickly as the gift is given!"—Extract.

"ASK, AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN YOU." The Story of a Five-Dollar Bill; proving the faithfulness of God in supplying the need of his children.

A MOST USEFUL WATCH-DOG. An Incident of a Sceptic who published abroad any delin[illegible] covered in professors of religion, and thus was the means of unconsciously driving them back to God.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE. With Illustration.
Is Might Right? | "Overcome Evil with Good."
It isn't Far to Jesus (A Poem).

SAVED AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR. With Illus. The Story of a Drunkard who obtained pardon and peace upon his dying bed.

"THE LORD BE THY KEEPER!" A Wish for the New Year. By MARY GORGES.
"'The Lord be thy Keeper!'—to Him I commit thee;
The best of my gifts is but dross to His least;
Whatever He sends comes from heaven to fit thee,
The robe in the glory—the place at the feast."—Extract.

A DEVOTED LIFE. With Portrait. A Sketch of the Life of Isabella Macpherson, the Indefatigable Worker for God in Dundee.

 Send THREE STAMPS for Six Copies of THE HERALD OF MERCY for January.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" is supplied as follows:

	For 6 Months.	For 12 Months.
8 Copies Monthly	2s. post free.	4s. post free.
12 "	3s. "	6s. "
20 "	5s. "	10[illegible]. "
52 "	13s. "	26s. "
100 "	[illegible]. "	[illegible]. "

Intermediate quantities at the same Proportionate Rates. Larger quantities on Special Terms.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES.

"The Christian who desires to give a bit of good reading along with a word in season to any fellow-traveller by road, rail, or river, could not do better than lay in a stock of this periodical. It costs only a halfpenny; but its contents are of a high spiritual quality, fitted to awaken the careless, and to lead to decision."
Christian Leader.

"As bright and attractive as could be desired. Full of good matter and effective Illustrations, Abundantly worthy of a wide distribution in the homes of the people."—Divine Life.

"Very good. Cannot be better. The very thing for distribution."—Sword and Trowel.

"It is profusely Illustrated, and full of instructive and profitable reading for old and young. The Gospel is presented in its most winning and attractive form."—Christian Age.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FRIENDLESS & FALLEN.

LONDON FEMALE PREVENTIVE & REFORMATORY INSTITUTION.

The history of all the past CALLS FORTH PRAISE AND THANKSGIVING.

The following Homes WILL NEED £15 DAILY for maintenance throughout 1890, and the Lord is trusted graciously to enable and incline His servants to subscribe as may be needed.

Reformatory Branch.—Rescue Homes.

200, EUSTON ROAD, N.W. | 1, MAUDE GROVE, WEST BROMPTON, S.W.
35, EDEN GROVE, HOLLOWAY, N. | 5, PARSON'S GREEN, S.W.

Preventive Branch.—For Young Women of Good Character.

195, HAMPSTEAD ROAD, N.W. | 459, HOLLOWAY ROAD, N.

Training Home for Friendless Young Girls of Good Character.

7, PARSON'S GREEN, S.W.

Home for the immediate reception of Penitents—OPEN ALL NIGHT.

37, MANCHESTER STREET, EUSTON ROAD, N.W.

The benefits of the Institution are chiefly offered to strangers in London and Friendless Young Women and Girls.

Neither creed, class, nor country are barriers to admission to this Institution, and if at any time preference is given, it is accorded to those most really friendless.

Each Home is under the care of a resident Matron and Assistants.

More than ONE THOUSAND YOUNG FEMALES will have shared in the benefits of the Homes during 1889.

Young Women will have been received from—

The Streets,	Infirmaries,
The Parks,	Bad Homes; also
Police Courts,	By Night,
Prisons,	By Day,
Hospitals,	On Sundays, &c.

Total Number of Inmates to Maintain Daily, 235.

OBJECTS SOUGHT:—

1st—The supreme aim is to win souls to Christ.

2nd—To place the reclaimed in service, and aid with necessary clothing, or restore young women to their parents and friends, or otherwise assist.

Suitable Applicants welcomed, Day or Night, Sunday or Week-day, especially Country Girls and Orphans.

The Committee meet Monthly to receive reports and transact the business of the Institution.

The Work of the Homes is aided by about 60 earnest Lady Christian workers, who conduct Bible and other classes.

MANAGEMENT OF FINANCES.

Contributions are deposited with the Bankers, Lloyds' Bank, Limited, 54, St. James's Street, S.W.

The accounts of the Institution are audited quarterly by Messrs. FRANCIS NICHOLLS, WHITE & Co., Chartered Accountants, 14, Old Jewry Chambers, E.C.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Offices of THE CHRISTIAN, will receive Donations.

EDWARD W. THOMAS.

Offices—200, Euston Road, N.W.

The New Year's Devotional Meeting will be held at EXETER LOWER HALL, Strand, THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, at 6.30.
C. H. MARTEN, Esq., will (D.V.) preside.

SUITABLE for NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.

(See also List in The Christian, December 27, 1889.)

THE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY.

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED WELL-EXECUTED PORTRAITS of present-day Christian workers. Each Portrait is accompanied by a well-written Biographic Sketch. Over Four Hundred Pages. Demy Quarto. Attractively bound, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.

"A superb book. The whole get-up is first-class."
Divine Life.

For Full Particulars, see Advertisement on page 6.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON.

A DEVOTED LIFE. By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Author of "Duncan Matheson," "Henry Moorhouse," "Robert Annan," &c., &c. With MEZZO-TYPE PORTRAIT. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"One of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

For Full Particulars see Advertisement on page 37.

ALSO BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

DUNCAN MATHESON:

THE SCOTTISH EVANGELIST. HIS LIFE AND LABOURS. With LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"No Christian can read it without profit. It is calculated to instruct and encourage such of God's servants as make the labour of saving souls the business of their life."
Methodist Family.

HENRY MOORHOUSE:

THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST. With LITHOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"The book is a well-written account of a fruitful life, which we commend to the earnest study of all young evangelists and labourers in the Lord's vineyard."—Footsteps of Truth.

BY DR. JAS. CULROSS, M.A.

JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. With Eight Illustrations. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend this work."—Sword and Trowel.

"BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK!"

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, boards, 2s. 6d.

"All who admire the author's grasp of great truths will welcome this volume."—The Freeman.

"THY FIRST LOVE."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"This work is instructive, suggestive, and full of spiritual force."—Sunday School Chronicle.

7th Thousand.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES:

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Readings and Study; and A PLAN OF CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"In a compact form, the work contains more valuable and varied information as to the Word of God and its connective teaching, than we have yet seen in any volume of a like size. We would earnestly urge every lover of the Word to procure and carefully read the book."—Word and Work.

BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

(Of Regent's Park Chapel.)

THE "BIOGRAPHICAL" SERIES.

ABRAHAM: 6th Thousand.

OR, THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH. With Nine Illustrations Specially Engraved for this Work. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Another volume of deeply spiritual commentary upon Old Testament History. The life of Abraham is followed through in all its details, and is applied with admirable skill to the circumstances of Christian life. It is a book which we very heartily commend to those who desire to make progress in Christian life and experience."—Christian Progress.

ELIJAH: AND THE SECRET OF HIS POWER. 10th Thousand.

With Nine Original Illustrations. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is a most stimulating book. It sparkles with heavenly light, and glows with heavenly fire from beginning to end. We heartily and heartily recommend it."
Presbyterian Messenger.

11th Thousand.

ISRAEL: A PRINCE WITH GOD.

THE STORY OF JACOB RE-TOLD. With Nine Original Illustrations. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Exceedingly good. Not only spiritual, as everything from our brother Mr. Meyer would be, but also thoughtful, fresh, suggestive, and thoroughly practical."—Sword and Trowel.

THE "CHRISTIAN LIFE" SERIES.

7th Thousand.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM.

MEDITATIONS ON THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM. Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm pervades the whole book. It will prove a cordial to the faint, an encouragement to the desponding, a guide to the perplexed, and edifying to all."—Footsteps of Truth.

THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE. 11th Thousand.

Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"This book will plant in many hearts the formative thought by which alone it is possible to build up a worthy reproduction on earth of the noblest life it ever saw."—Christian Leader.

CHRISTIAN LIVING. 11th Thousand.

Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"We have read the book with real interest; and we heartily commend it to others, as a true guide to the devout life."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

23th Thousand.

CHRIST AND THE SCRIPTURES.

The Living WORD and the Written WORD. By Rev. ADOLPH SAPHIR, D.D., B.A. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 3s.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"A book marked by freshness of thought, along with firm adherence to old truths; indicating a mind awake to the great vital questions of the present day, and viewing these with a most intelligent eye from the standpoint of established faith."
British Messenger.

19th Thousand.

NOTES ON BIBLE READINGS.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects. By S. R. BRIGGS and JOHN H. ELLIOTT. Tinted covers, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible Readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

Morgan & Scott's Unabridged Edition o

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE to th OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

All the Editions described below contain 7 pages, 2270 closely printed columns, and abou 250,000 references. A special feature is the Li of Proper Names, newly translated by Re ALFRED JONES, M.A. This portion of the wo is strictly copyright, and can only appear i Morgan & Scott's editions.

PORTABLE EDITION. 3/
STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

POPULAR EDITION. 5/
PRINTED ON SUPERIOR PAPER.
STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

PRESENTATION EDITION. 7/6
HANDSOMELY BOUND IN CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

LIBRARY EDITION. 10/6
[illegible]

ILLUSTRATED EDITION. 10/6
With 12 Exquisite Steel-plate Engravings, and 6 Beautiful Coloured Map[illegible].
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

Fifth Edition, Revised and Improved.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME:

THEIR CONTENTS AND TEACHINGS.

By BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S., Chamberlain of th City of London.

With Seventy Illustrations.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelle boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"There is no volume equally moderate in price giving English readers so full and clear an account of those sepulchr remains of the early Christians."—Christian Leader.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF TH LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATH OF EARLY CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYR IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD. By John Fox

With Twelve full-page Illustrations and Ste Plate Frontispiece. 1,083 pages. Handsome bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are pleased to see the 'BOOK OF MARTYRS' well to th front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in t market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT immediate sale of the present issue, which is [illegible] cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, in The Sword and Tro[illegible].

BIRDS OF THE BIBLE. 5th Thousand

Chats with Children about Bible Birds. B JAMES BOWKER, F.R.G.S.I. With Beautif coloured Frontispiece, and numerous other Engra ings. Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"This little book is a perfect gem. It is a luxury to hand and a luxury to look at; and, we may add, most instructive read. The skill of printer and bookbinder seems to have bee exhausted in the get-up of this charming little gift-book."
Preacher's Analyst.

BY ANNA SHIPTON.

"THE LORD WAS THERE."

INCIDENTS FROM MY JOURNAL.
By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

"A book for quiet hours. It will leave a blessing with ever reader."—Primitive Methodist.

"TELL JESUS:"

RECOLLECTIONS OF EMILY GOSSE.
By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.
A CHEAP EDITION for General Distribution, 6d.

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimat and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord."
Christian Times.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

To get hold of the Masses in Winter. For Mission or School Treats.

WILLIAM CATLIN,

17, Claremont Square, Pentonville, London, N.,

CAN SUPPLY YOU WITH EVERY DESCRIPTION OF

MAGIC LANTERNS AND SLIDES.

PARAFFINE THREE-WICK LAMP, FROM 36s.

FOUR-WICK LAMP, 40s.

In case complete.

All 4-inch Condensers.

LIME-LIGHT EXHIBITIONS

As at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Mildmay Conference Hall, and other buildings in and around London.

Prospectus Post Free.

SECOND HAND SLIDES ON SALE.

Monthly Catalogue Gratis.

LANTERNS AND SLIDES ON HIRE.

Terms on Application.

Original Designs for Public Lecturers.
Slide-colouring done upon the Premises

A GUARANTEE !!

EACH BOTTLE OF

Bouillon Fleet.

bears a label:

"Guaranteed to be made from pure Beef only"

WHICH WILL MAKE

Bouillon Fleet Ltd

Liable to prosecution under the Adulteration Act, if proved to be untrue.

JUST PUBLISHED.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

A DEVOTED LIFE.

BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON,

Author of "Henry Moorhouse"; "Duncan Matheson"; "The Christian Hero"; "Revival and Revival Work."

With Mezzotype Portrait.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; PRESENTATION EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"In its subject and in execution this biography is of no common order. We have found the study of so sweet and noble a life, a joy to our heart and a stimulus to our zeal. . . . The sketch is a vade mecum for any who seek to be saviours of the sin-sick, and helpers of the poor."
Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine, Dec., 1889.

"This volume, which is both written and printed in good style, and well bound, will be a charm to many Christian families. It is worthy of a large circulation."—Primitive Methodist, December 19, 1889.

"The story of the life of Miss Macpherson, who devoted herself to the care and conversion of the most degraded classes. . . . Her character, as here delineated, is a very lovable one. There are many stories of her fearless intercourse with the diseased and the degraded."
Christian World, December 12, 1889.

"Truly this devoted woman did marvellous things in seeking to bring about the Kingdom of God. Her holy boldness was something wonderful, but one must acknowledge that by God's blessing her success was something wonderful too. The history of such a consecrated life should be carefully and prayerfully read and considered."
The Freeman, December 20, 1889.

"This is one of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing. . . Christian workers will find in this biography a most helpful, stimulating, and instructive book. It is the history of a real woman, who in the course of her life spoke about the tremendous business of the soul to upwards of twenty thousand persons, one by one. . . . We have great pleasure in recommending this interesting work."
Irish Congregational Magazine, December, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
TRADE MARK.

Pulvermacher's New Padded Belt

For the MILLION. Price One Pound.

Pulvermacher's New Padded Belt

SUPERIOR POWER. Price Two Pounds.

Pulvermacher's New Padded Belt

MAXIMUM POWER. Price Three Pounds.

PULVERMACHER'S APPLIANCES are invaluable in all NERVOUS and PAINFUL DISORDERS, and whilst building up the debilitated constitution, they arrest that premature waste and decay which undermines the whole fabric of the human body.

These MARVELLOUS CURATIVE APPLIANCES have now stood the test of Forty Years, and for comfort, efficiency, and cheapness they have no equal. The question is often asked, "What is the difference between PULVERMACHER'S BELTS and those of other makers?" and the answer is that Mr. Pulvermacher is the only maker of Electric Belts who has ever been supported by the State Physicians of England and Austria, and the only maker who has ever been allowed to refer to our London Hospital Physicians.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says:—"I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the professional and scientific men."

Dr. GOLDING BIRD, M.D., Physician to Guy's Hospital, says:—"I can hardly recommend Mr. PULVERMACHER'S INVENTION too strongly to the notice of my medical brethren."

Sir CHARLES LOCOCK, Bart., M.D., says:—"PULVERMACHER'S BELTS are very effective in neuralgia and rheumatic affections, and I have prescribed them largely in my practice for other similar maladies, paralysis, &c.

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, at 194, Regent Street, London, W., is the oldest Electric Institution in the world, and Pamphlets and Testimonials may be had free of charge on application.

J. L. PULVERMACHER & CO.

194, Regent St., London, W.

ESTABLISHED OVER FORTY YEARS.

WORKS BY

MAJOR D. W. WHITTLE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

"It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm, and it may be helpful to many."—Christian Leader.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth extra, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.;

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION: Tinted Covers, 6d.

P. P. BLISS: HIS LIFE & LIFE-WORK

By Major WHITTLE & Rev. W. GUEST.

Containing an Introduction by D. L. MOODY; and Memorial Notice by IRA D. SANKEY. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and their two young children.

"Cannot be too highly prized or too widely circulated; in fact, for the good it is calculated to do, it ought to be in the hands of every English reader."—Midland Gazette.

ADAPTED FOR WIDE CIRCULATION.

Price ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

SOUL-WINNING: Qualifications for it.

"It seems to me that there is no more important topic that can be brought before us to-day than the WINNING OF SOULS—its obligations, its hindrances, its joy, and the qualifications for it."—PAGE 5.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

THE SECRET OF THE LORD.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"The main design of this book is to impress on the Christian mind the privilege of communion with its Lord; and to hold this up as the means both of obtaining qualification for religious service, and of guidance as to how and where that service is to be performed."
The Friend.

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

GOD'S MESSENGERS: Or, THE LOST BLESSING.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.
Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d.

CONTENTS.

The Land of Promise.	Hidden Riches of Secret Places.
The First-ripe Grapes.	The Net and the Snare.
"Jesus Only."	Limiting the Lord.
Imperfect Obedience.	The Treasures of Darkness.

"The various chapters are mines of richest experience. The author lives at the feet of Jesus, or rather, in his bosom: and she receives intimations of guidance which none but such can know."
The Sword and Trowel.

Cheap Edition: Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.
May also be had in German, 1s. 6d.

WAYMARKS OF MY PILGRIMAGE.
POEMS.

Elegantly bound in cloth, bevelled boards, gilt side and gilt edges, price 2s. 6d.

This work contains seventy-six pieces, now for the first time collected together into one volume.

"Some of the poems are full of a sweet and tender consolation that is calculated to soothe troubled hearts."—Sunday School Chronicle.

"These poems, gathered in a choice little volume, are truly spiritual songs, full of faith and sweetness and cheer."—Women's Work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

By D. L. MOODY.

8th Thousand.

"To the Work! To the Work!"

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIANS,

Calling to active effort in the Lord's service.

BY D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS	1/
CLOTH LIMP	1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges	2/6

Appendix—Elihu Burritt on "The Good Samaritan."

"No better service could be done to the Church of Christ than to circulate this work—which is like a trumpet call from beginning to end—among Christians who are laggards in the Master's work."
Word and Work.

"These Addresses will be a tonic to many a weary and half-hearted worker."—The Baptist.

"Urgent exhortations to Christians to rouse themselves to active service for Christ. The book contains also Elihu Burritt's striking address on 'The Good Samaritan,' a paper well worth reprinting."
The Friend.

50th Thousand.

HEAVEN:

ITS HOPES, ITS INHABITANTS,
ITS RICHES, ITS REWARDS.

THE CERTAINTY OF GOD'S PROMISE OF A LIFE BEYOND THE GRAVE; AND THE REWARDS THAT ARE IN STORE FOR FAITHFUL SERVICE:

AS GLEANED FROM SACRED SCRIPTURE.

BY D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS,	1/-
CLOTH LIMP,	1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges	2/6

"Mr. Moody presents to the mind a real and scriptural heaven—the heaven of the apostle John. You may feel that he takes things sometimes too literally; but you will be as likely to feel, when you have read what he has to say, that heaven is more real to you than it was before."—The Baptist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SUITABLE FOR NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.

THE QUARTO EDITIONS OF

Sacred Songs and Solos,

COMPILED AND SUNG BY
IRA D. SANKEY.

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

(441 Pieces).

LARGE QUARTO EDITION; Tastefully Printed with Rule round Pages, Handsomely Bound, in Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 16s. 6d.
Presentation Edition, Elegantly Bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges.. 30s. 0d.

CHEAP QUARTO EDITION. 441 Pieces.
Paper Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 6s. 0d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with the CHEAP QUARTO Edition as follows:
Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards .. .. .. 9s. 6d.

ADDITIONAL

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

With Standard Hymns. Containing Nos. 442—750.
Paper Boards .. .. 4s. 6d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

With Standard Hymns Combined. Containing 750 Pieces.
Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 9s. 6d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with this Edition:
Cloth Boards .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 10s. 6d.

Sacred Songs and Solos,

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED
(750 Pieces).
Presentation Editions, Bound in Morocco.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

QUARTO EDITION, Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges.. 17s. 6d.
Ditto, Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 25s. 0d.
FF 5. Old Notation, Large Type. Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 10s. 6d.
FF 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 14s. 6d.
HH 5. Old Notation, Cheaper Edition, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
HH 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.
RR 5. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
RR 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges.. .. .. 9s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

CC 4. POCKET EDITION, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 0d.
CC 5. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 4s. 6d.
DD 5. LARGE TYPE EDITION, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 4s. 6d.
EE 5. EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
EE 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
AND
The Christian Choir.

MUSIC AND WORDS—(QUARTO).

Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 20s. 0d.
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 27s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

BB 5. RUBY LEADED, Persian Morocco Limp, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 6d.
EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges .. .. 7s. 6d.
Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges .. 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANAC

1890. A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. by 30 in.) 1890.

Printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting various Scenes in the Life of Jacob. Also containing a carefully selected Text for each Day of the Year; Postal Information; Phases of the Moon, &c.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Departure for Haran.	Reconciliation of Jacob and Esau.	Joseph Meeting Jacob in the Land of Goshen.
The Stone at Bethel.	Dinah Leaving the Tent.	Jacob before Pharaoh.
Jacob Meeting Rachel.	The Coat of Many Colours.	Jacob Blessing Joseph's Sons.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' ALMANACK for 1890, which Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT have issued, is quite worthy of its predecessors in the several features that have in the past proved interesting and useful."
Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, October, 2, 1889.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' SHEET ALMANACK is beautifully illustrated. The Almanack is one that can be placed on the wall of any living-room."
St. John's Wood and South Hampstead Advertiser, October 14, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Newsagent or Bookseller in the Kingdom.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES

SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED BY

Sir Morell Mackenzie

WHOSE TESTIMONIAL IS WITH EACH BOX.

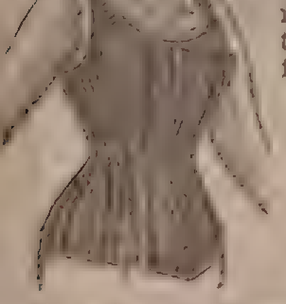
FOR THROAT IRRITATION, COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND CATARRHAL AFFECTIONS.

[illegible] at 1s. 1½d. by al. Chemists, or for 15 stamps from the SODEN MINERAL PRODUCE CO., Ld., 52, Bread Street, E.C.

Their effect is equally wonderful as a Preventative & Curative.

Body, all of Years, Middle ever be without them.

RATIONAL CORSETS.



Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
,, ,, 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
,, 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitaric.
,, 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,

263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/6½ per lb. (In the cup [illegible] WILLIAM-SON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

FITS.

EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS.

If you want to be permanently and speedily cured of this distressing complaint, discard prejudice, and write to THE SECRETARY, Burwood House, Burwood Place, Hyde Park, London. He will send you 'Gratis' full instructions for cure, and advice on diet.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Best Tooth Powder. Whitens the Teeth, Prevents Decay, Sweetens the Breath.

Ask anywhere for Rowland's Odonto.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.

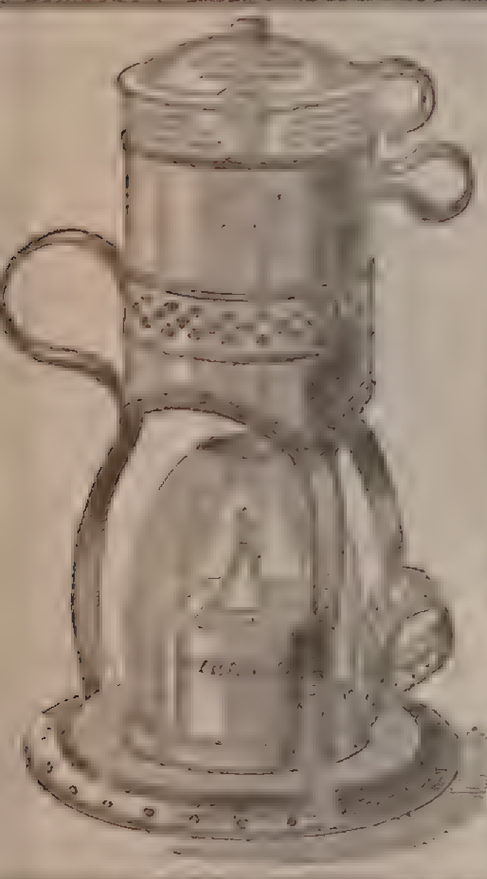
EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.

Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.

A. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.

By Special Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.



CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" NURSERY LAMP FOOD WARMERS.

With New Registered Pannikin.

BY their peculiar construction—the glass chimney conducting and concentrating heat to the bottom of the water vessel—they give a larger amount of light and heat than can be obtained in any other lamp of the same class. Without smoke or smell.

Clarke's New Registered Pannikin.

By this invention any liquid food can be poured out or drunk without scum or grease passing through the spout, and prevents spilling when poured into a feeding bottle, so unavoidable with all other Pannikins. The Pannikins will fit all the old "Pyramid" Nursery Lamps, and can be purchased separately.

Clarke's "Pyramid" Night Lights and "Fairy Pyramid" Night Lights

Are the best in the world, and the only suitable ones for burning in the above, and for lighting passages, lobbies, &c. Sold everywhere.

Price of Lamps, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 5s., and 6s. each. If any difficulty in obtaining them, write to CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" AND "FAIRY" LIGHT COMPANY, LIMITED, Cricklewood, London, N.W., for nearest Agent's address.

VAN HOUTEN'S PURE SOLUBLE COCOA

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.

"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME FROM THE AUTHOR

ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-Second Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

BRONCHO-PHTHISIS.—CASE of a CHRISTIAN WORKER at SHEFFIELD.

The patient whose case is here given does not wish his name published, but the address at foot will find him.

His illness began with neuralgia, loss of appetite, and great prostration; followed by cough, much greenish expectoration, severe spasmodic breathing; at one time pneumonia, loss of voice, bleeding from the rectum, with general loss of flesh, and other serious symptoms. Medical report: "No Cure."

Several friends who had derived great benefit from my treatment at Sheffield, and several clergymen, persuaded him to seek my advice and help, which was gladly given, and followed by marked results.

Within a fortnight the appetite improved, breathing was easier and voice better. The next letter reported "Patient able to sit up now, tightness at chest gone medicine is having good effect." So he continued and improved.

I had a letter from him recently (Oct. 12), in which he says: "I became your patient two years ago. I had had the best medical aid, but grew worse. I was given up by the doctors and all my friends. I lay in bed 7 weeks on my back and was reduced to a skeleton. I wrote to you then. I followed your instructions to the letter. I am thankful to say I have never been better in my life than I am now. Had I not tried your treatment I firmly believe I could never have survived. To God be the glory. May your life be preserved to help many a poor sufferer.—H. S., 3, Holman-street, Newhall-road, Sheffield."

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

SCRIPTURE TEXTS,

Printed in Blue Ink. Size 31 by 20 inches.

70 Different Texts at 3d. each. Lists sent on application.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

Supplies a Daily Luxury—Dainties in Endless Variety—The Choicest Dishes and Richest Custard without Eggs.

GOLD MEDAL, Health Exhibition, London. Highest Award. Adelaide, 1887.

BENGER'S FOOD FOR INFANTS, CHILDREN & INVALIDS

THE MOST DELICIOUS, NUTRITIVE, AND DIGESTIBLE.

of its own."

The London Medical Record says: "It is retained when all other Foods are rejected."

Retail in TINS, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s., of Chemists, &c., everywhere.

Wholesale of all Wholesale Houses.

"It is as nearly tasteless as Cod Liver Oil can be." Lancet

"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed." Medical ——.

Allen & Hanbury's "Perfected" COD-LIVER OIL

It can be borne and digested by the most delicate; is the ONLY oil which does not "repeat"; and for these reasons the most efficacious kind in use. In Capsuled Bottles only, at 1/4, 2/6, 4/9, and 9/-.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

NOTE PARTICULARLY—This Oil is NEVER sold in bulk.

BYNIN, LIQUID MALT, forms a valuable adjunct to Cod Liver Oil. It is a powerful ... to the Digestive ... valuable aliment in Consumption ... Diseases. In Bottles at 1s. 9d. each.

FORGET ME NOT!

IN FINE POWDER HUDSON'S SOAP LEAVES NO SMELL

HUDSON'S Softens Water. HUDSON'S Lathers Freely.

☞ NEVER Wash, Clean or Scour without using HUDSON'S SOAP.

LATEST HONOURS,

Highest Award—Paris, Melbourne, and Barcelona; Gold Medals, Diplomas, and Certificates, wherever Exhibited

Needham's Dazzling Mirror Polish. Polishing Paste

The reputation of nearly a century as the most reliable preparation for Cleaning and Brilliantly Polishing BRASS, COPPER, TIN, BRITANNIA METAL, &c.

Sold everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. Pots, 2d. and 1d. Tins, and 1d. Cardboard Boxes. Inventors and Sole Manufacturers—

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.

LONDON OFFICE: St. George's House, Eastcheap, E.C.

CADBURY'S

REFRESHING COCOA SUSTAINING

CADBURY'S COCOA is closely allied to milk in the large proportion of flesh-forming and strength-sustaining elements that it contains. It is prepared on the principle of excluding the superabundance of fatty indigestible matter with which cocoa abounds—supplying a refined thin infusion of absolutely pure cocoa, exhilarating and refreshing, for Breakfast, Luncheon, Tea, or Supper—giving staying power and imparting new life and vigour to growing children, and those of delicate constitutions.

Pears' Soap

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort,

Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

Dr. BLAIKIE ON HIS TRAVELS
Page 18.

[Rev. S. A. Selwyn.]

THE NEEDS OF THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.
Page 22.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

Gathered Thoughts on Prayer 9
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 10
Incidents of Blue Jackets. By Miss WESTON .11
How a Sceptic found God 11
Pearls in Dunghills. By Rev. J. MACPHERSON .12
Gathered Gold 13
Christian Colportage Association 13
THE WEEK OF UNITED PRAYER 14
Some Scottish Missions.—XI. 16

American Notes 18
Portrait and Sketch of Rev. S. A. SELWYN .. 19
Dr. PIERSON in Scotland 20
Major WHITTLE at Woolwich 20
Girls in East London 21
Rev. J. McNEILL at Exeter Hall 22
A Supper to London Waifs 23
Dr. BARNARDO and Lord A. DOUGLAS 23
Mr. WILKINSON on Jewish Missions 24

No. 1041.] FRIDAY, JAN. 10, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

Important Work by Dr. A. T. PIERSON,

(Late Pastor of Bethany Church, Philadelphia; and at present ministering in London).

"MANY INFALLIBLE PROOFS."

The Evidences of Christianity;

Or, THE WRITTEN AND LIVING WORD OF GOD.

BY REV. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.

Tinted Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"A most masterly treatise on the Evidences of Christianity. The book is full of argument and of suggestion, and lighted up with striking illustration. The volume is a very 'readable' one, and those who have to do with 'honest doubters' could scarcely find a better to put into their hands."—The Church.

"Terse, trenchant, and suggestive."—Life of Faith.

"We have read the book with interest and profit, and we cordially commend it to our readers as a volume which is likely to gain a hearing where a more set and sober treatise would hardly be looked at. The writer has the faculty of expressing himself in simple language and the almost raciness of style which he adopts, and his frequent illustrations, force the reader to go on."
Church Sunday School Magazine.

"A handbook of Evidences of Christianity by which the author found his way out of the deep darkness of doubt into the full light of day, and found that the Bible was the Book of God, and Christ the Son of God. May it help many others out of Doubting Castle!"
Methodist Times.

"Would that all our young men—and especially such as are exposed to sceptical influences—could get hold of this able work! It would fortify them in the faith of the Gospel, and supply them with powerful weapons against opponents."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

"For half-a-crown any one may obtain here all that is best in the way of fact and argument on prophecy and miracles, on the scientific accuracy and the ethical beauty and sublimity of the Bible, and on the person and teaching of Christ." Methodist Recorder.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

FRIENDLESS & FALLEN

THE ANNUAL DEVOTIONAL MEETING

Will be held on THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, at EXETER (LOWER) HALL.

C. H. MARTEN, Esq., will preside at 6.30.

Tickets may be obtained on application at 200, Euston Road.

EDWARD W. THOMAS.

WORKS BY REV. DR. PENTECOST

IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK.

OR, THE PLEASURE AND PROFIT OF BIBLE STUDY. Being an Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.
With Introduction by Rev. JOSEPH COOK, and Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D.
NINTH THOUSAND.
Presentation Edition: Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Editions: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.

"No one can read this almost unique volume without being stimulated to a more diligent study of THE BOOK."
Night and Day.

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READINGS ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS.
NINTH THOUSAND.
Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Dr. Pentecost's power as a teacher and expositor of the Word is anew displayed in these Addresses; and we are not surprised to learn that there has been an earnest demand for their publication."—Word and Work.

THE

Christian Worker's Hand-Book:

AND RECORD OF INQUIRERS & CONVERTS.

Price Eightpence.

THIS HANDBOOK, prepared by one who has had wide and lengthy experience in Revival Work, is specially intended for use in the "Inquiry Room." It contains a striking selection of Texts on SIN and SALVATION, for ready reference by the "WORKER." It has Five closely-printed Pages of HINTS TO SOUL-WINNERS; Four Pages for Lists of Persons to be Prayed or Conversed with; an INQUIRER'S and CONVERT'S CARD, with the Name, Residence, and other particulars regarding the Inquirer; and also a solemn Form of "Covenant with God," to be signed by the Convert—to whom is handed a Duplicate Copy to be placed in his or her Bible.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

VIOLET.—Yes. We shall be glad of the Clothing. We are pleased to tell at any meeting what the Lord is doing here.

Work amongst Children.

Rations of Food to hungry Children. Free Ragged Schools. Day Nursery for Infants. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Penny Bank. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.

For Elder Girls and Young Women.

Bible Classes. Prayer Meetings. Library. Parlour. Tea-room, &c.

For Young Men and Lads.

Bible Classes. Tract Distribution. Prayer Meetings. Parlour. Tea-room. &c.

For Adults.

Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Bible Classes. Prayer Meetings. Clothing, Boot, and Coal Clubs, and other Missionary Agencies.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 68, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 101 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 51, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board Schools, soup kitchen, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 25 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.—For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widows and other needy people with Food, Coals, and Clothing. Bankers: L & County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

THE SHIVERING CHILDREN.—For every Pound sent 200 free meals can be given to poor and often Friendless East London little children. Readers of CHRISTIAN, pray send early help. Every gift of money, food, or clothing promptly acknowledged by Rev. J. W. ATKINSON, Claremont, Cowley-road, London, N.E.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.

Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in Clerkenwell.—600 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, James-street, Buckingham Gate. The services next Sunday, and during January, will be conducted morning and evening by the Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D., of Philadelphia. Service commences, morning 11, evening 7.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.—President, Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird; Treasurer, Samuel Hope Morley, Esq.—The Committee earnestly appeal to the friends of religious education for help in the furtherance of the Sunday School cause, in this and other countries. The principles of the Sunday School Union are strictly evangelical, and its constitution thoroughly undenominational. Donations and subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mr. JOHN EDWARD TRESIDDER, Hon. Financial Secretary, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

MARGATE. — Alresford House School, Cecil-square — High Class School of Gentlemen. Preparation for Universities, Learned Professions, and Commercial Life. The Principal.

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough modern education with decided Christian training. Delicate or backward boys receive special attention. Prospectus, references, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home. Refers to Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. [illegible], Elgin, Brighton; Mr. and [illegible], Harley House, Bow[illegible], Rev. [illegible], St. [illegible].

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A. Vice-Principals: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A. Trinity College, Dublin; G. E. W. CRANAGE, Esq., B.A. Trinity College, Oxon.

Dr. Cranage's constant, prayerful aim is to bring his pupils to Christ as their Saviour, and to lead them to walk like Jesus as their example. He offers a refined Christian home and superior Education for Gentlemen's Sons.

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY.—Moravian School for Boys. Pupils successfully prepared for Public Exams. Cricket-field 10 acres; large swimming bath; hot baths in the house. Milk from school farm. Playground sheltered [illegible] north and east winds.

Rev. J. MALLALIEU, Head Master.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION at St. Buleaux Vi[illegible] Modern [illegible]

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE. Thorough preparation for commercial or professional life.—WALTER J. KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.

Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

HEALTHY BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.—Good commercial education in careful Christian home. Evangelical ministry. Local and other examinations. Buxton is a most desirable residence for delicate boys. 12 guineas per term; extras French and music.—Prospectus, apply,

PRINCIPAL, Ashbourne [illegible]

HIGH-CLASS PREPARATORY SCHOOL, well recommended by clergymen and parents, for kind Christian training, combined with sound elementary teaching. Preparation for all public schools. Home comforts. Maternal care. Healthy situation. Moderate terms.

PRINCIPAL, 1, Woodville, G[illegible]

SOUTH OF FRANCE.—Protestant Minister would receive one or two young men of delicate health. Family life. [illegible] French. References: The Very Rev. the Dean of Ripon; or the Hon. and Rev. W. H. [illegible], Canon of Canterbury.—Apply to WILLIAM MILSOM, Pasteur, La Roque d'Antheron, near Aix, in Provence, France.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the School) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the [illegible] Principal is to train [illegible] in the fear of the Lord; [illegible] teaching maintain a Christian [illegible] the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class [illegible].

[illegible] are advantageously situated upon H. GROUND, NEAR [illegible], WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, in the south [illegible], a short run from London, and offer [illegible] for out-door recreation.

The Examinations and Papers of Examinations passed at the School can be [illegible] on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate.

Dr. THORN, Paul [illegible], London.

A GRADUATE, residing in Cambridge, wishes to receive a Pupil into his house, and to prepare him for University or other examinations. Excellent opportunities. There is a meeting for worship (open) in the town.

Z., 14 Regent-street, Cambridge.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not in Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor. Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

[illegible]

TWO DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN would be received at half usual fees, to fill vacancies in superior old-established School, near London. Fine house and grounds. Liberal table, home care and comfort. Lectures and lessons from best professors and masters.—A. P., Relfe Bros., School Stationer, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate, E.C.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking commenced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

SUPERIOR HOME SCHOOL for Girls, from five guineas per term. Successful preparation for all exams. Little boys also received, with separate supervision, by Mr. E. J. H. Chatelier, M.R.C.P., & F.S.Sc., London. Highest references and testimonials. Health resort.

PRINCIPAL, Broomfield Villa, Henfield, Sussex.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to the PRINCIPAL. The next term will commence January 21.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

SOUTH DEVON.—Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Thorough education, combined with every home comfort and Christian training. Resident English and foreign governesses and visiting masters. Preparation for examination. Healthy situation; liberal table; and sanitary arrangements unexceptionable. Terms moderate. To fill vacancies, two young Ladies will be received at the half term at reduced fees (35 guineas per annum inclusive). Prospectuses and references on application.—Miss MORLEY, Mount Vale, Courtenay-park, Newton Abbot.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

MENTONE, CHALET VICTORIA.—The Misses WHITBY, formerly Principals of Mansfield House School, Colchester, offer a refined Home for delicate girls. Every advantage for health, and Christian training. Summer in Swiss mountains if desired.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive fees, 60 guineas. Highest references.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy, Cambridge, and other Local Exams. Moderate terms.

Miss L. VON SCHENCK, Fulneck, near Leeds.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 20 guineas. Term commences January 21.

PROTESTANT BOARDING SCHOOL for Gentlewomen. Sound Instruction; firm, yet loving discipline. Every home comfort. Special advantages in languages and accomplishments.—Miss ESSER (formerly Miss Penn's partner), Rockfield, Lansdowne-road, Croydon.

AN OFFICER desires to recommend a Christian Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters at Southsea. Thorough teaching. Vacancies at Christmas. Terms very moderate.—Inspector-General GORDON, South Esk, Victoria-road, Southsea.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Girls. Comfortable home, with careful training and thorough education. Governess-Pupil required, with premium.—PRINCIPAL, Glebe-place School, Stoke Newington, N.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON.—High School system. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHERY and Mrs. ALBERT SMITH.

ATCH LENCH GIRLS' COLLEGE, Evesham.—Principals: the Misses BOSFORD.—Careful Christian training and education. Certificates gained during past year from Oxford University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and South Kensington. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Governess Student required.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen. The Misses BROWN and GOOD, late of Chatsworth Lodge, Chiswick, have removed to Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath, where they receive eighteen resident Pupils. First-class education, with careful Christian training and home comforts. Children from India received, and lovingly cared for. The house is large and detached, near to the Heath and Greenwich Park.—References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq. (Mildmay), and Parents.

PREPARATORY BOARDING SCHOOL for young children. Home comforts. Advantages of a farmhouse. Terms 16 to 18 guineas. Music an extra. Excellent references.—PRINCIPAL, The Glen, Matfield-green, Brenchley, Kent.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, GLASTONBURY.—High-class Ladies' School. Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Pupils prepared for University exams. Kindergarten for juniors. Individual influence and attention. Excellent references.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL, Leyton House, Warwick-road.—Miss APLIN'S pupils re-assemble on Jan. 20 (D.V.). Preparation for any public examination desired. A substantial education, united spiritual and hygienic care.

WANTED, TO PLACE A GIRL in a small home-like school, where educational advantages would be combined with personal religious training. Terms strictly moderate.

E., 174, Brecknock-road, N.

OAK HOUSE SCHOOL,

BEXLEY HEATH, KENT.

Principal: G. E. OXLEY, M.A.

Terms moderate.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Oakhurst, Oxted, Surrey.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educa- [illegible] and Christian Home for Girls. Indian [illegible] received.—For terms and references [illegible] JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

GOVERNESS-STUDENT required, immediately, to assist in boarding school near London. Theology, music, French, German, and drawing taught by first-class professors. Premium 18 guineas. Duties light. Home comforts.—PRINCIPAL, Clarendon College, 16, Dalmeny-road, Tufnell-park, London, N.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted at once, a Lady as Morning Governess for two little Girls, 11 and 13. Must have had good experience in teaching.
Mrs. WISE, Beechfield, Bramley-hill, Croydon.

BURLTON HOUSE.—High-class [illegible] School, Castle-hill, Reading. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE [illegible]. Highest references. Inclusive terms. Vacancy for Kindergarten Student and [illegible] Student (Gentlemen's daughters). Premium. Great educational advantages.

EDUCATION IN GERMANY for Young Ladies. Direct [illegible]—Heidelberg. Seven masters. Every [illegible] for music, &c. Large house. Terms [illegible]. References Mrs. Goddard, [illegible], Cornwall-terrace, London, W. Munich, [illegible], Richard Kennedy, [illegible], Clapham Park, London, S.W. Gratis and [illegible] Prospectus and German references [illegible]. The Misses Hall, Mecklenburgh Square, London, W.C.

YOUNG LADY.—Required, in a high-class school in London, a young Lady about 17, daughter of a professional man, who would overlook beginners in music for one hour daily. Nominal premium.
E. A., Line's Library, Hampstead, N.W.

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

[illegible] for [illegible] Resident [illegible] and [illegible] masters. Pupils prepared for [illegible], Sandhurst, Woolwich, or Civil. Detached dormitories [illegible] comforts, moderate fees. For prospectus, [illegible] list, &c., address
Rev. G. H. JONES, F.A.S.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Boys received, from 7 to 15 years of age. Three [illegible] masters, and, under the care of ladies, [illegible] under a staff of seven resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for commerce, public schools, or universities. Delicate boys, and eight from the [illegible], receive special care. A [illegible] and a chemical laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Easter term commences Wednesday, January 2.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

EDUCATION IN HIGHGATE.—Rev. G. D. BARTLETT, M.A., receives Ten Boarders. Pupils. Superior home. Individual attention. Thorough grounding and careful Christian training. Terms, from 15 guineas per term. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Hurstpierpoint (near Brighton), Sussex. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Visiting masters. Preparation for public schools. Twenty pupils. Indian children received.—LADY PRINCIPAL.

WORTHING.—HOME SCHOOL for Girls. Christian training. Limited number. Special care for delicate girls. Visiting professors. References to parents and clergy. Terms moderate.—Misses WISE and COUPE, Bescot, Christchurch-road.

GOOD HOME. Preparation for examinations. Christian influence. References: Dr. Monro Gibson, Canon Money; Colonel Lawrence, Ahmedabad, Bombay, India, &c. Moderate fees.—H. CARVILL, 1, Brondesbury-road, London, N.W.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester. Sloyd taught. For prospectus of Ladies' School apply to Miss Keller; or to Rev. J. D. Libbey. For Boys' School, to Rev. W. J. Birtill.

MATRICULATION (London).—A student for this Exam. can be received At nominal fees to read with another pupil. Special coaching. Comfortable home.
PRINCIPAL, Stanley House School, Margate.

£10 PER TERM.—Education at old endowed Grammar School in South-west of England. Successful at Locals. Scholarships, exhibitions.—SCHOLE, c/o Rolfe Brothers, Charterhouse Buildings, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

TO CLERGYMEN AND GENTLEMEN of limited means. Vacancy occurs in a Preparatory School (Boys'). Reduced terms. Great advantages for delicate boys.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Gazette Office, Weston-super-Mare.

TUTOR WANTED, for one boy of 13½. B.A. Cambridge preferred. Mathematics important. Decided Christian.—Address, stating experience, references, and salary,
W. J. MENZIES, Prince's Park, Liverpool.

PARIS.—A Lady, with Daughter, receives a few Ladies, or young Ladies, in her comfortable home, situated near the Parc Monceau. French lessons. Masters [illegible].
Madame BIROUX, 123, Boul. Pereire.

TO PRINCIPALS of Schools in and near London.—A Lady experienced in giving Music Lessons has some hours disengaged. Would practise with elder pupils for masters, and undertake junior and more advanced pupils. Terms moderate.—H., c/o Miss Lucas, 33, Cornwall-road, Bayswater, London.

FRENCH.—The Pasteur of a French Church at the West End has a vacancy in his family for a young Gentleman desirous of learning French while pursuing his studies.
French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

YOUR BOYS will receive sound educational and thorough Christian training with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. 18 to 25 guineas. Entrance any time.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Two elder Girls can be received, on special terms, at once. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters, &c.
PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

FRENCH GOVERNESS.—A highly qualified French Governess (Protestant) desires a re-engagement to teach children under 13 years of age.
MADEMOISELLE, Leath House, Sandgate, Kent.

A CLERGYMAN wishes to recommend a young Lady as Governess. Educated in Germany. Can teach German, French, music, and needlework.
Rev. H. EVERETT, Rectory, Dorchester.

GOVERNESS desires re-engagement to children under 12. Experienced. Desires by kindness and firmness to mould their ways. English, music, French, Latin, Kinder-garten, deportment and Swedish exercises. Personal reference and interview in town.
Miss R., Sunnyside, Blackwater-road, Eastbourne.

RE-ENGAGEMENT desired as Governess by young Lady (certificated). Thorough English, advanced arithmetic, music (theoretical and practical), French, and drawing. Experienced. Good references.
T., 149, Upper Grosvenor-road, Tunbridge Wells.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS (25) seeks re-engagement in Christian family. Thorough English, French, music (including theory), drawing, and needlework. Certificated. Testimonials and reference given.
H. B., 156, Holmesdale-road, South Norwood, S.E.

GOVERNESS PUPIL required in High-class Ladies' Boarding School. Happy home. Preparation for University Examinations. Vacancies for two Boarders.
Miss M. CRUSE, Glastonbury, Somerset.

GOVERNESS WANTED, immediately, in Oxfordshire; a Christian Lady, 25 to 30 years of age, of bright, cheerful disposition, fond of young children, strong, healthy, and with a taste for country life. Must be able to thoroughly ground a little boy and girl in the rudiments of English, French, music, botany, drawing, calisthenics, &c. Salary £30 to £40, according to accomplishments. Attendance at Evangelical church once on Sundays.—Address, by letter only,
Mrs. R., Bates, Hendy & Co., 37, Walbrook, E.C.

GOVERNESS.—An experienced, certificated young Lady, who has resided abroad, seeks a re-engagement in an Evangelical family or school. Highest testimonials.
Miss HOPE, Post-office, Ludlow.

A YOUNG LADY seeks engagement as Kindergarten Teacher. Has had practical experience. School or family.
YULECROFT, Chelmsford, Essex.

PRINCIPAL, having charge of young Swiss Lady (Geneva), would like to place her as Governess in a Christian school. Salary £20 or £25.
Miss ESSER, Rockfield, Lansdowne-road, Croydon.

A FRENCH LADY wanted (Protestant), on mutual terms, in a small Ladies' school. French and music. In return, English, German, painting. Very comfortable home.
PRINCIPAL, St. Leonards, Peebles, N.B.

A CHRISTIAN LADY would receive a Gentleman's Daughter as Resident Pupil (finishing or otherwise), on half terms (36 guineas). Beautiful situation, superior advantages. Highest references.—PRINCIPAL, Westhill, Newmarket-road, Norwich.

CAN ANY LADY recommend from experience Select School for delicate, backward Boy (7 years), where limited number is taken, and health and happiness made chief considerations rather than too close attention to studies.
Mrs. MEERS, 9, Nelson-crescent, Ramsgate.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—A Lady recommends a young Nursery Governess, a member of her Bible-class. She has a high testimonial, has been trained on the Kinder-garten system, and can teach the rudiments of music.
Miss CHALMERS, Farrants, Bickley, Kent.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, bright true Christian, to take entire charge of and teach a girl and boy of 8 and 5. Church of England. Age about 27.—Mrs. NEWTON, Barrells Park, Henley-in-Arden, Warwickshire.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

EVANGELISTIC MISSIONS.—Wherever Christians will combine for united effort in town or country, Mr. Lancelot Middleton and Mr. Thomas Hogben are prepared to conduct services, either together or separately.—For vacant dates, &c., apply to W. BAKER, Esq., M.A., Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, London, S.E.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE.—T. TUSTING HOLTTUM is prepared to Lecture, address meetings, conduct missions, or organise fresh ground. Easy terms.—Wembley, Harrow.

EVANGELIST.—A Gentleman with small income, wishing to give himself entirely to the Lord's service, is willing to engage in work as Evangelist, or to supply for small churches for a trifling remuneration.
H. S., 43, Oxford-road, Finsbury-park.

AS SECRETARY, MANAGER, &c.—A Christian Man (42) of good abilities, with twenty-five years' commercial experience, accustomed to public speaking, and for many years actively engaged in unsectarian evangelistic work, now seeks an appointment as Secretary, Manager, or otherwise, either in connection with Institutional or Mission work (which would be preferred), or with a commercial firm or company. Highest references as to character and ability.—A. B., c/o C. R. Hurditch, Esq., 154, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

GYMNASTIC CLUBS, INSTITUTES.—A fully-qualified Instructor is at liberty to teach Gymnastics, Musical Drill, &c., to the above.—For prospectus write, W. V., Castle-lane Institute, James-street, Buckingham-gate.

W. S. CAINE, M.P., can strongly recommend for similar employment an earnest practical Christian Man, 30 years of age, a Methodist, and total abstainer, who has been doing Mission work for him among Navvies with great success, during all last year. The works are now approaching completion. He is an acceptable preacher. Married. Salary 30s. weekly. Could be set free at once, or any time during next few months. Mr. CAINE can also recommend for employment a retired Sergeant, who has done excellent Temperance and Gospel work in his regiment in India. He is a strong man, about 40 years old, very intelligent and well educated. Suitable to take charge of a Coffee Palace, with Mission work connected.—Write to 1, The Terrace, Clapham-common, London, S.W.

NEEDED BY WIDOWER (without children), employment in Mission service, reading-rooms, or as trusty Messenger. Town or country. High salary not essential. Abstainer. Fourteen years master of national school. Good references, including Rev. H. Webb-Peploe.—Testimonials and particulars, J. FOORD, 14, Sloane-terrace, S.W.

CHRISTIAN WORKMAN.—J. R., aged 27, an industrious Christian workman, is suffering from disease of the heart, which has compelled him to leave his work. Can any reader offer him light work of responsibility and trust, such as care of empty house, timekeeper, &c.—Please communicate with Dr. J. R. D., Kentish Town Medical Mission, Dickenson-street, N.W.

CHRISTIAN WORKER.—One who has worked some years in mission meetings, and visitation sick, also anxious souls, would like to hear of an opening in unsectarian work. Temporary or permanent. Either town or country.
A. Z., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street.

A MIDDLE-AGED MAN, of practical experience in all branches of the Building trade, seeks re-engagement as Manager or Foreman on an estate. Good manager of men, and can prepare plans, &c.
T. B. H., 7, Portland-terrace, Havant, Hants.

MR. R. J. MASTERS would be pleased to hear of employment for a Christian young Man who has been at work for Mr. MASTERS and found thoroughly trustworthy.
32, Wilton-road, S.W.

WANTED, TO PLACE a youth in a Christian firm. Booksellers' or engineers'.
J. B. T., 27, Morpeth-road, South Hackney.

YOUTH.—Situation wanted, by respectable Youth, under real Christian coachman. Has knowledge of stable. Can drive. Age 18. Christian abstaining family desired.—HOPE, Athelstone House, Anerley-hill, Upper Norwood.

MANITOBA.—A Gentleman, experienced in farming, now living in one of the best English settlements in Manitoba, wishes to meet with one or two pupils. Good practical teaching and happy Christian home. Premium, fifty guineas per annum. Best references.—Address first,
Miss DOLTON, 39, Lee-road, Blackheath, London.

AS GOVERNESS to young children, or as Useful Companion. Re-engagement desired by young Lady.
E. L. M., 1, Faith Bank, Stretford, Manchester.

ADVERTISER, whose evenings are engaged in Christian work, seeks employment during the day, or few hours of the day, within easy reach of Stoke Newington. Has some knowledge of business, and writes shorthand. Abstainer, and married. Moderate salary. Highest references.
BETA, 55, Lydner-road, West Hackney, N.

AS LADY HOUSEKEEPER, or useful Companion. Domesticated. Economical manager. Kind and attentive in illness. Good needlewoman. Three years' excellent reference. Christian and abstainer.—L. B., Rockside, Salcombe, Kingsbridge, South Devon.

YOUNG LADY (19) specially trained since leaving school, desires situation as Companion-Help in refined Christian family. Tolerable cook, good bread-maker; clever with pen and needle.—S. C., at Hilburn's Advertisement Office, 99, Strand, London.

NO SALARY.—Lady Friend-Companion, travelling or otherwise. Good linguist, reader, and walker; capable and experienced traveller; kind, cheerful, active, and obliging. Could read up with a delicate girl, chaperone a young lady, or comfort the lonely, sorrowful, or aged.—A. B. C., 2, Battledown-villas, Cheltenham.

HELPER.—An educated Lady, and domesticated, wishes an engagement as Lady Companion or Housekeeper. Would superintend children and servants, write letters, see company. Comfortable Christian home before salary.—BETA, 122, Upper Grosvenor-road, Tunbridge Wells.

AS COMPANIONABLE HELP.—Would assist a Lady with a family and home duties, help in business, or otherwise. Thoroughly domesticated. Abstainer. Aged 23. Comfortable home desired.—E. S., 12, Chelverton-road, Putney.

Y.W.C.A. INSTITUTE.—A Lady member offers service as resident Secretary for three months, where home is superintended by another. Musical. Highest references.
Miss POPPLE, Hygeia, Wadhurst.

A YOUNG LADY, anxious to obtain some experience in parochial work, wishes to meet with a clergyman, in whose family she might reside, and whom she could help in the parish. Would also be willing to help the clergyman's wife. Accustomed to children. Salary unimportant. Highest references.—Apply to M., c/o Mr. Dixon, Market-street, Cambridge.

A RE-ENGAGEMENT required by a Lady, thoroughly experienced and domesticated, as Lady Housekeeper or Matron in a school, family, or institution. Six years' reference.
M. B., 21, West-square, Southwark.

AS USEFUL HOUSEKEEPER, by Lady (45) re-engagement, where servant is kept. Practical knowledge of cooking and needlework. Economical manager. Abstainer. Nonconformist. Highest references.—Miss A., 99, Cromwell-road, Montpellier, Bristol.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.—Miss HOOPER introduces Ladies to Sick, Medical, and Monthly Nurses, Governesses, Companions, and Housekeepers, also superior Domestic Servants (male and female). Hours 10 till 5.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—A young Lady desires an engagement in Christian family. Suburbs of London preferred.
M., Virgo, Bookseller, Broadway, Wimbledon.

REQUIRED by a young Lady, a situation as Mother's Help. Young children preferred. Able to teach the rudiments. Salary no object, but a comfortable home.—B. W., 2, Richmond-villas, Eglantine-road, Wandsworth.

MISS MARCH (Deaconess), 8, Falkner-street, Liverpool, desires to recommend a lady (age 27), as Companion or Assistant House-Keeper. An earnest Christian, musical and cheerful. Salary £20.

AS LADY'S MAID.—Good dressmaker and needlewoman. Tall, healthy, willing, and obliging. Christian and abstainer.—META, c/o Mrs. Bolton, Mickleham, near Dorking, Surrey.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER desire care of house, offices, mission-house, or any place of trust. Good managers. Active, decided Christians. Highest references.
G. R., 184, Camden-road, N.W.

A LADY WISHES for her daughter a situation as Governess to young children, Companion Help to Lady, or as Governess-Pupil in thoroughly good school.
CARDELL, Retreat, Yelverton, Devon.

AS MOTHER'S HELP and Companion, or similar capacity. Re-engagement desired. Thoroughly domesticated, knowledge housekeeping, plain cooking; good needlewoman, dressmaking. Age 30. £15 and laundress.
D., The Cottage, Charlton, Shepton Mallet.

SITUATION FOR A YOUNG GIRL of 16 wanted. Quick, strong, and active. Able for General Servant's place, where cooking not required. Desired, if possible, to place her with kind, motherly woman.—Apply by letter,
Miss W., 1, Porchester-gate, W.

AS NURSE to one child, for a Christian Girl (18). Good character. Abstainer. Must be in the country.
K. MORETON, Park-hill, Clapham, Surrey.

AS SEWING MAID or Useful Help. Good needlewoman. Age 23. Dressmaking. Quiet, Christian home would be appreciated.—A., Athelstone House, Anerley-hill, Upper Norwood.

AS GOOD PLAIN COOK (London preferred) in a small, quiet family. A Christian home valued. Dissenter. Age 28.
A. W., 129, King Henry's-road, South Hampstead.

AS COOK AND HOUSEKEEPER, age 36. Understands dairy and baking. Four years' good character. Meets with the Brethren.
P. F., 34, Clifton-hill, New Cross, S.E.

LADIES NEEDING SERVANTS should apply to, and
SERVANTS seeking situations should lodge at the Homes of the Female Servants' Home Society; 21, Nutford-place, Edgware-road, W.; 205, Great Portland-street, W.; and 143, Camden-road, N.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

COLPORTEURS WANTED.—Earnest Christian Men of some experience, under 40 years of age, healthy, ablebodied, energetic.—CHRISTIAN COLPORTAGE ASSOCIATION, 37, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.

COMPOSITOR, quick, accurate, wanted. Just out of apprenticeship preferred. Short hours, in first-class office.—Reply by letter, giving full particulars.
c/o H., 77, Leadenhall-street, London.

CHEMIST'S APPRENTICE.—A. SMITH, 5, High-street, Newport, Mon., has a vacancy for a respectable Youth. He would have a comfortable home, and be thoroughly taught the business in all its branches. Late pupil gained the silver medal herbarium prize of the Pharmaceutical Society.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—An Architect and Surveyor in the City has a vacancy for a Pupil. Small premium. References.—BOX L 4, Messrs. Deacon's, 150, Leadenhall-street, London.

BUTLER wanted, where a footman is kept. The Advertiser would be obliged to any Lady or Clergyman who would recommend a trustworthy, active Man, and would not object to one who has been single-handed before. If married, no accommodation for children.
P. M., Alexandra Hotel, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

HEAD GARDENER thoroughly experienced in all branches wanted, for large private gardens. High character. Total abstainer. Married. State age, family, qualifications, wages, by letter, to M. T., c/o J. W. Vickers, 5, Nicholas-lane, E.C.

LADY MISSIONARY wanted, with spirit fully consecrated, about 25, for peculiar and delicate work in Lord's vineyard. Must be generally clever, bright, energetic, sympathetic, possessing tact, musical, and able to hold small Bible classes and do some visiting. Remuneration. Application by letter only.
BETA, Golf House, Lewisham-hill.

Y.W.C.A. — LADY SUPERINTENDENT wanted for an Institute. Board and lodging. No salary. Also a Lady for direct Mission work.
Miss E. RIDLEY, The Elms, Chelmsford.

WORKING MATRON wanted for Temporary Home. Decided Christian and abstainer. No laundry. State age, experience, and salary required, with testimonials, to SECRETARY, Rescue Society, 79, Finsbury-pavement, E.C.

A CHRISTIAN LADY wanted as Matron and Visiting Agent for the Belfast Midnight Mission.—Apply at once, with copies of testimonials as to qualifications, and salary expected, to Mr. THOMAS CLOKEY, Sec. 15, Landscape-terrace, Belfast.

A KITCHEN MATRON wanted for a small Temporary Refuge at Bath, able to superintend the washing. Total abstainer. Salary £15. —Apply by letter, Mrs. SOUTHAN, 7, Elm-grove, Wimbledon, Surrey.

ENERGETIC CHRISTIAN YOUNG WOMAN wanted to assist in the bar, and be generally useful.—Apply personally, or by letter, to GILBERT'S Dining Rooms, 50, High-street, Tunbridge Wells.

MOTHER'S HELP wanted, in a cottage near Rickmansworth. Must understand cooking. No servants kept.—Apply on Saturday, 11th, at 21, Claremont-road, Cricklewood, N.W.

LAUNDRESS wanted, an earnest Christian (abstainer), with evangelical views, to teach fallen girls in a small Home.—Apply, stating salary, to Miss FLORENCE SYERS, 3, German-terrace, Price-street, Birkenhead.

HOME FOR FALLEN WOMEN, 4, Everton-terrace, Liverpool. Head Laundress wanted immediately. Christian and abstainer. Salary £26 to £30, all found.
B. CARKITT, Sec., 39, Huskisson-street.

THOROUGHLY TRUSTWORTHY GIRL wanted, as Nurse to two children, ages 4 and 3, to help in the needlework. Business house. Good home. Good wages.—Mrs. FRANKLIN, 222, Uxbridge-road, Shepherd's Bush.

NURSE WANTED to take charge of baby six weeks old.—Apply, stating wages required to Mrs. C. HUNT, Bradgate House, Cardiff-road, Luton, Beds.

A NURSE wanted, by a Lady proceeding to Cape Colony, to take charge of two children and make herself generally useful. Age over 35 preferred. Engagement for two years. Must have unexceptionable references.—Write to Mrs. S., 6, The Grove, Highgate-road.

CHRISTIAN NURSE wanted for five little girls. Good needlewoman. Two other servants kept. Comfortable home.
Cumberland Lodge, Lingard's-road, Lewisham.

STRONG, CLEAN, WILLING GIRL wanted for house-parlour work in small family. No objection to one who has not been out before.
Mrs. R., Woodham Lodge, near Addlestone, Surrey.

COOK (good plain) wanted, at the end of January, age about 23. Two in family. Good personal character required.—Apply or write to N, 13, Warwick-road, Maida Vale, W.

COOK. — Can any Lady recommend a good Plain Cook for a private family. Assistance half the day. Wages £22 and all found.
Miss LANGHAM, Westdown, Eastbourne.

GOOD COOK required, for small family in Kensington. Must understand entrées, &c. Three servants, light place, family much away. Thoroughly trustworthy person wanted.—Mrs. SYNGE, 13, Wynnstay-gardens, Kensington, W.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, about 30. Dining-room, hall, kitchens, and own bed-room to clean. Early dinners. Earnest Christian ministry. Must have highest references.
Mrs. WARREN, 22, Spencer-hill, Wimbledon.

PLAIN COOK wanted, January 30. Must be strong and active.
Miss TAYLOR, 208, Denmark-hill, S.E.

A RESPECTABLE CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted, as General Servant, to take sole charge if required. Able to wait.—Apply, stating age, &c., to DAVID D., Llanvihangel Crucorney, near Abergavenny.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, where housemaid is kept.
Mrs. J., Wardendale, Beckenham, Kent.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, in London, end of January. Good plain cooking required, early riser, clean, trustworthy, obliging. Two in family. Can Lady recommend?
Mrs. M., 9, Nelson-crescent, Ramsgate.

THE SOUTH DEVON HEALTH RESORT

BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest station.)

Sea and Moorland Air.

Turkish and other baths. Beautiful private grounds. Strongly recommended for those who need rest, and pleasant, healthful change "Has all the comfort and charm of a gentleman's country home.
For Terms and Testimonials, apply to C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

CLEVER COOKS can add to their list of dishes the preparation of choice dainties for the Dinner and Supper Table, by consulting the pages of a little book entitled "Pastry and Sweets," given to all Cooks sending their addresses to ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham. Every Lady and Housekeeper in the land should have "Pastry and Sweets" handy for reference. There is nothing to pay, and the book will be sent by return of post, free to any address.

SERVANTS' AGENCY, Soho Bazaar. Unexceptionable references required. Testimonials of religious character fully appreciated. Male and female servants are in daily attendance from 11 to 2. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays the number is very large. Entrances: Soho-square, [illegible], Oxford-street, London, W.

NURSES, COOKS, Parlourmaids, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Good Generals wanted. All servants of good character requiring situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situations.—Miss MAULDIN, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

First-class Private. Under new management. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing-room, bath-room. Largely patronised by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 52, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Ootacamund, St. Peter's-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and [illegible]

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 35s. per week.
Miss SEARL, Eversley, Bournemouth.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Most comfortable Boarding House in this mild sunny climate for those seeking winter residence. Splendid sea views. Liberal table. Late dinner. Special arrangements with clergymen and ministers. Terms moderate.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI (wife of Rev. P. Warschawski), 45, West-hill.

HASTINGS BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, Cornwallis House, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table, late dinner. Smoking-room. Good winter home. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.
The Misses WOOD.

HARROGATE BEECH WOOD PRIVATE HOTEL.

For Terms apply to Miss C. LORD.

The clear, bracing air of Harrogate strongly recommends it as a Summer and Winter
HEALTH RESORT.
Visitors will find in Beech Wood a warm and well ventilated house, with home comforts and liberal table.

INTEMPERANCE, OR NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Private Home for a limited number in a delightful winter and spring locality, where the above has been long and successfully treated with or without massage. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts. Highest references.—MEDICUS, c/o Messrs. Pascoe, 28, Stoke's Croft, Bristol.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Branksome Temperance Hotel and Boarding House and Private Apartments. Under new management. Central. A home for Christians away from home. Terms moderate.—G. B. WILLIS, Proprietor.

INTEMPERANCE.
Buxton House, Earl's Colne, Essex.
PRIVATE HOME FOR SIX LADIES.
Fourteen years' experience. Very satisfactory results. Excellent references. Inspection by applicants welcomed. Terms, 2 and 3 guineas weekly. Medical attendant, J. Taylor, M.R.C.S. Lond.
Address Miss PURDEY.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Vacancies for a few Boarders (or private apartments if preferred). Several south rooms. Near town and sea. Very moderate terms.
Miss LEIGH, Leightonhurst, St. John's Wood-road.

BOURNEMOUTH.—[illegible], West Cliff. High-class Boarding Establishment. Near sea, choice position. Moderate and inclusive terms. Good references.—Address PROPRIETOR.

BOURNEMOUTH.—To Let, Furnished Sitting-room, with one or two Bed-rooms on same floor. Cheerful situation. Good cooking and attendance. Terms, one guinea weekly.
Mrs. MATON, 54, Holden[illegible]road.

BRIGHTON. — Select Boarding [illegible]. Terms moderate. Special for permanency.
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

BRIGHTON. — A few Boarders received in a Lady's private house, close to West Pier. Liberal table. References to [illegible] and others. Terms 25s. to £2 2s.
13, Montpelier-road, Brighton.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—A comfortable home [illegible] offered to a Lady by one desiring cheerful companionship. Terms, 18s. weekly.—W. L., care of Mr. S. Griffith, Chemist, Weston-super-Mare.

HASTINGS. — Home of Rest for Christian workers and others. Clergymen and ministers will find this a desirable home. Central, lovely position. Near sea and rail. Terms moderate. — PROPRIETRESS, Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

WEST HILL, S.W.—Comfortable [illegible] S., 73, Cromford-road, West-hill, S.W.

Y.W.C.A., over 45, Lord-street, Southport. Young Ladies in business, 8s. 6d. and 9s. per week. Visitors, 11s.
LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

BETWEEN SUTTON AND CARSHALTON [illegible] six-roomed Cottage. Good repair. Garden 253 ft. by 20 ft. Near hops and good road. Rent £18 per annum.
THOM DAWS, North-street, Carshalton, Surrey.

A COMFORTABLE and, if desired, permanent Home offered to married couple and [illegible]. Terms moderate.
Mrs. [illegible], Stratford St. Mary, Suffolk.

DUMFORD HOUSE, near Petersfield, Hants.—This comfortable health resort affords a cheerful Christian home. Sheltered from north and east winds. Turkish and other baths.
Mrs. BOYS, Proprietress.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—Required for [illegible] daughter, comfortable home in Christian family. No young children. Plain, liberal table. Terms strictly moderate and inclusive.
BETA, 61, Ship-street, Brighton.

A GENTLEWOMAN wishes to meet with a Lady to [illegible] comfortable home. [illegible] required. Terms moderate. [illegible] for Christian work.
Miss M. MAYNARD, 4, South Park-road, Harrogate.

REFINED CHRISTIAN HOME required, with private family, for a Lady. Good neighbourhood of London, or cheerful country home. Dry soil.
X., 6, Lower Porchester-st., Oxford-sq., London, W.

A WIDOW LADY, living with her two daughters in a healthy part of London, is anxious to meet with one or two Ladies to share her home. The highest references given and required.
X. Y., c/o W. Taylor, 59, Lincoins Inn-fields, W.C.

WINTER HOME.—A Lady highly recommends the house of a Homœopathic Physician at St. Leonards as a superior Home for visitors or invalids requiring extra care.—M. D., 69, Church-road, Warrior-square, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

FURNISHED.—To City Gentlemen. —[illegible] Bath, hot and cold. [illegible] quiet house, and reasonable terms.—Mrs. ALLEN, 48, Crouch End-hill, Crouch End. Private.

A MIDDLE-AGED GENTLEMAN, [illegible] wishes to find comfortable Board and Lodging with a Christian family [illegible] of London.—Address, [illegible]
Messrs. [illegible], Clement's-lane, E.C.

REV. W. LANGHORNE, Vicar of [illegible] a private [illegible] comfort and kindness [illegible] Terms [illegible], London, N.E.

LEE.—Board and Residence, or [illegible] Near Lee and Blackheath [illegible] Library, Burnt Ash-road, Lee.

TO INVALIDS.—A Lady recommends [illegible] Apartments, [illegible] Brighton.

FOLKESTONE.—BOARD AND LODGING [illegible] Rooms 1, Bat. Terms, from [illegible] to April 8. Terms—Board, [illegible] per week, the 1st Floor being of convenient size, apply to the Lady SUPERINTENDENT.

TORQUAY.—The Sharman Convalescent [illegible] Founded by the Bristol Committee of the [illegible] The expenses are [illegible] a few Christian workers and ladies of limited means, [illegible] Terms for meals from 10s. per week. Application to be made to the Hon. SECRETARY, Christian Mission, Torquay.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and [illegible] for Ladies [illegible] Terms [illegible] Mrs. [illegible], [illegible] Park.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for [illegible] Terms [illegible] to £1 1s.—[illegible] Lodge, Goodman.

TO LET, on low terms to one [illegible] Villa, in the [illegible] Every convenience [illegible] Near [illegible] Sea. Apply, Mrs. [illegible].

A FEW BOARDERS are received in a [illegible] Rectory on Blackheath. Rail [illegible] Every comfort. Or Furnished [illegible] Terms moderate. Blackheath, S.E.

A GENTLEMAN wishes to recommend [illegible] in the house of a [illegible] Lady [illegible] Terms, [illegible] per week, the use of a drawing-room and two bedrooms, with attendance, or two [illegible] and take partial board.—For address, &c., apply by letter, to
A. B. C., 168, Strand.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian [illegible] may correspond with her, with a view to [illegible] truth.—E. VANDELEUR, Clapham, S.W. Enclose 1d.

TWO IRON MISSION ROOMS (new) for sale. [illegible] 18 ft. by 30 ft. 6 in., 30 ft. 6 in. by 18 ft. 6 in. [illegible] Price, £[illegible] each. [illegible] Manufacturer, 7 and 8 [illegible], London, E.C. Please mention this paper.

TO GET HOLD OF PEOPLE NOW, [illegible] is selling his good Dissolving Views. Experienced Christian Exhibitors wanted. Lectures and views on sale or hire.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 11, Cavendish-road, Portobello, London.

£60 MONTHLY added to income by selling our celebrated Teas in Packets. Prizes, Coffee in Tins, and Pictures.—Write for particulars to [illegible] GILPIN & Co., 203, Southgate-road, London.

TEA FROM GARDEN DIRECT.—R. [illegible], planter, Tamraparri Estate, sells his Tea to [illegible] purchaser for 21 each. Required, an [illegible] Terms. Lovely [illegible] position. Liberal [illegible] Tea Chests. MORTON, 2, Priory-[illegible], Southwark.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2s. EACH.

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong [illegible] 4s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 5s. 6d.; [illegible] 7s. 6d.; fashionable silk, ladies', 9s. 6d.; gents', 10s. Patterns post free. References kindly permitted to the Rev. J. B. Hewetson, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

AGENTS wanted everywhere, to push sale of first-class religious periodical. Large profits which can be applied to missions, church funds, or own use.—Apply 2788, c/o C. Vernon, Advertising Agent Ltd., Newgate-street, London, E.C.

FOR SALE.—Cottage Piano by Cramer. Full compass, good condition, little used, £12.—GUNNER, 10, Queen's-road, Notting-hill, London, W.

HIGH-CLASS WASHING.—The Mayfield Laundry Company is now prepared to undertake the work of several more families. Send post-card for prices and particulars.
MANAGERESS, 93, Gillespie-rd., Finsbury-park.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7½s. Organs from 8½s.—Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

"BELL" AMERICAN ORGAN, eleven stops, four sets of reeds, new this year. Great bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

INFANTS' FIRST SHIRTS.—[illegible], Margaret-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one seems beyond all doubt. The medicine he prescribes does not lower, but builds up and tones the system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.

F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

COMFORT FOR THE SICK.—Invaluable for Consumptives and others. Legg's New Iron Bedrest. It having a curved back fitted with good wool cushion. Light and strong. Carriage free, 15s.—J. LEGG, Artificial Limb Maker, Woodford, Essex.

SECOND-HAND IRON ROOM wanted immediately, in good condition, to seat about 150 people. Must be cheap. State dimensions and full particulars. Fireplace preferred.
M. P., St. John's, South View, Eastbourne.

CHILDREN'S PRESENTS.—Complete set of Doll's Clothes. Three sizes. 12 inch doll, 3s. 9d., 14 inch, 5s. 9d., 16 inch, 7s. 9d.—X. Z., c/o Miss Elves, 58, Cornwall-road, Bayswater, London.

LADIES OF SOCIAL POSITION offered salary and commission on securing orders for our Ceylon, Indian, or New Digestive Teas among friends. Can earn £2 weekly. Samples free of United Tea Growers' Association, Union-court, E.C. Est. 1877. Name paper.

GIVING AWAY MUSIC.—Send 1d. for list of over 1,000 pieces, sacred songs, selections, &c., at 2d. each, and I will send you specimen free.
M. C. ROBERTS, 145, Fleet-street, London.

1s., post free.
CANCER and Simple Tumours dispersed by Electricity. By G. EDGELOW, M.D.
H. RENSHAW, 356, Strand, W.C.

MADE WITH BOILING WATER.
EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
MADE WITH BOILING MILK.

Just Published.

OLD MARGARET:
OR,
A SAINT AT LAST.

WITH ENGRAVED PORTRAIT.

BY
Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.

In Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

Contents.

I. "OUT OF THE MIRY CLAY."
II. "HE SET MY FEET UPON A ROCK."
III. "HE ESTABLISHED MY GOINGS."
IV. "HE PUT A NEW SONG IN MY MOUTH."
V. "EVEN PRAISE UNTO OUR GOD."

EXTRACT.

"'Once, when she had been washing her floor,' writes a lady who was much with her afterwards, 'and was very much fatigued (as she suffered from heart disease), she sat down wearied and breathless. A knock was heard at the door; and, on opening it, a lady entered, who told her she was going to send her a carpet to make her house comfortable. Margaret put up her hand and thanked the Lord. She then said: "Well, I did not just like to ask it of Him; but the Lord saw I needed it. I am just one of the Lord's petted children; the Lord has given me such a bonny room: I wonder what heaven will be like!'"

"Such instances of content and of faith were not uncommon in a life that seemed to others one of constant privation. Sitting in her place on the street, with the orange basket, while the rain poured down, a lady stopped to say:

"'How cold you must be to-day, Margaret, sitting there!'"

"'Feel my hand, Miss,' she said; 'it is as warm as it can be!"

"'But the rain is so heavy!' was the reply.

"'Yes, dear; but over the clouds the sun is shining, and the sky just as bright as ever. Praise the Lord!' . . . . . .

"She recognized an answer to prayer in almost everything! Sometimes it was finding a sixpence on the high road, when there was not a crust of bread in the house; sometimes it was a friend calling, and leaving the exact sum to pay the rent (which was due that evening, and must be paid), though the friend had no knowledge of the need. 'One left her room refreshed and rested by communion with her who communed so much with God. She spoke to God on all subjects audibly; and sometimes before she opened her door, one expected to find a visitor with her. It was Margaret speaking to God!'"

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS;
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOSPEL TRACTS. By CHEYNE BRADY.—"Mr. Brady's style is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam."—C. H. Spurgeon in Sword and Trowel.—Send for list.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall court.

BOOKS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

"SIMPLY TRUSTING EVERY DAY." By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Illustrated. 32 pp. 1s. per dozen.

READING AND RUNNING. By LADY BEAUJOLOIS DENT. 32 pp. 1s. per dozen.

"BETTER THAN RUBIES." For the Young. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF. Illustrated. 1s. per dozen.

"HIS STAR." By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in Two Colours. 1s. per dozen.

MY GARDEN. By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in Two Colours. 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling;
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1890. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign, 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE MORAL REFORM UNION (Established 1881, in the interests of pure Family Life), and Price Lists, to be had at the office, 2, Leinster-place, Bayswater, London, W.

Just published. Price 2d.; per post 2½d.
A SUCCOURER OF MANY.—An Address delivered at the funeral of Annie Lee Plunket (wife of Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Dublin), November 8, 1889, by Rev. Canon F. R. WYNNE, A.M. (with a Supplemental Note by the Archbishop of Dublin.)—Dublin: HODGES, FIGGIS & CO., Publishers to the University.

W. R. BRADLAUGH'S PENNY ANTI-INFIDEL TRACTS.

Answers to Infidel Objections. Nos. 1 to 12.
Why am I a Christian?
The Bible: Is it True?
The Six Days of Creation.
The Sceptic Defeated with his own Weapons.
Bradlaugh versus Besant.
Christianity Established by Jewish and Pagan Testimony.
Theosophy. The History of a Nineteenth Century Imposture.

These are the Tracts for Working Men.
TRY THEM.

"Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has rendered signal service to the various sections of the Church by his Anti-Infidel work."
The Rock.

"Your tracts are almost an essential part of our work."—Rev. F. E. ROGERS, Navvy Mission Society.

"Mr. Bradlaugh deserves hearty encouragement in his praiseworthy efforts to make every issue a heavy charge upon the strongholds of error and darkness."
The Christian.

6s. per 100; 45s. per 1,000, assorted.
Sample Half-dozen, post free, 6d.

London: JOHN SNOW & Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.
W. R. BRADLAUGH, Anti-Infidel Tract Depôt, 70, King's-cross-road, W.C.

NEAVE'S
FOR INFANTS,
INVALIDS,
AND THE AGED.
FOOD.

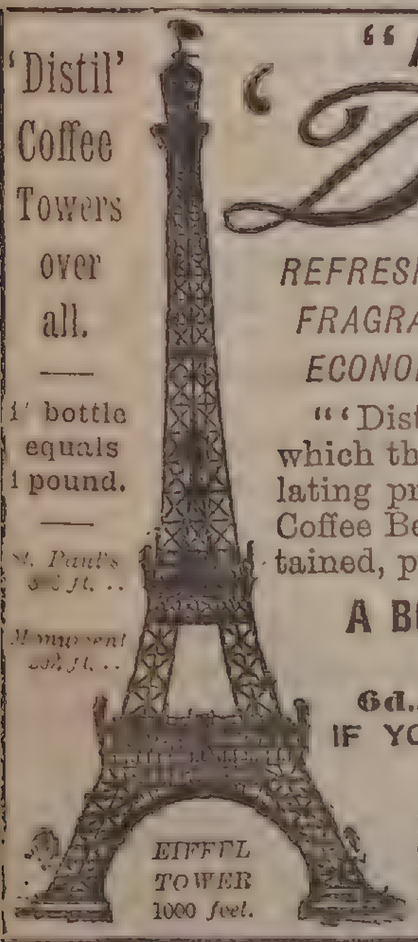
"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA.
1/6
(PURE INDIAN), as appreciated by Anglo-Indians, at "Chota-hazri" (early breakfast). Absolutely unrivalled. Sample pound post free, for 1s. 6d.; 5 lbs. carriage paid, 7s. 10d.; 10 lbs., carriage paid, 15s. Choice Teas, 1s. 9d., 2s.; 5 lb. tins, carriage paid, 8s. 9d. and 10s.
"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA CO.,
17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

Publications.

Now ready. Price Two Shillings.
SOME THOUGHTS ON BAPTISM.
By Rev. W. BARRY COLE, Incumbent of Shanklin Old Church, Isle of Wight.—London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, HAMILTON, KENT & Co

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets, and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

'Distil' Coffee Towers over all.
1/- bottle equals 1 pound.
St. Paul's 365 ft. . .
Monument 202 ft. . .



"A DELIGHTFUL CUP."
'Distil' Coffee
EXHILARATING, CONVENIENT, DIGESTIVE.
REFRESHING, FRAGRANT, ECONOMICAL
"'Distil' Coffee is a Concentrated Extract, in which the Fine Flavours, True Aroma, and stimulating properties—so valuable in freshly-roasted Coffee Berries—are preserved and permanently retained, providing a superb article of diet."
A BOON TO COFFEE CONSUMERS.
PURITY GUARANTEED
6d., 1s., and 2s. per Bottle. Sold Everywhere.
IF YOU LIKE A SUPERB COFFEE, ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.
If any difficulty in obtaining "DISTIL" COFFEE, the Proprietors will forward a Shilling Bottle Free, on receipt of Twelve Stamps.
BEARE, GOSNELL & FRY, 81, Southwark St., LONDON.

DAILY LIGHT ON THE DAILY PATH.
A Text Book in the very Words of Scripture.
Two Vols. Morning and Evening. Sold separately or in sets. Small Edition, from 1s. to 12s. 6d. Large Type Edition, 16mo., from 2s. 6d. to 10s.
"They are very precious little books, and few more suitable gifts could be found."—Christian.
New Edition with Red Lines, for presentation, prices from 1s. 9d.
S. BAGSTER & SONS, LTD. 15, Paternoster Row, London.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

FIRE! H. L. HASTINGS' BOOKS BURNED!!

My entire Stock of eight numbers of the ANTI-INFIDEL LIBRARY, which was to have been delivered by the printer to-day (December 27th, 1889), was burned yesterday, in the Smithfield Fire.

Specimens of these books had been previously presented to LORD RADSTOCK, who publicly remarked of them, after examination: "So far as I have seen, the best thing there is for answering the questions of our sceptical friends."

THE TITLES OF THE MISSING BOOKS ARE—

Fourteen Nuts for Sceptics to Crack.
Remarks on the 'Mistakes' of Moses.
Friendly Hints to Candid Inquirers.
Who Made the New Testament?
Israel's Messiah.
Israel's Greatest Prophet.
The Witness of Sceptics.
A Warning Word on Infidelity.

I am obliged to beg my patrons who had kindly ordered copies of the above, to bear with us until new editions can be printed. A delay of some weeks and not a little inconvenience must result.

In response to the earnest appeals of Miss Weston and Major Poole for help to meet the atheistic literature with which London secularists are attacking Her Majesty's Service, I had promised some twenty thousand copies of these pamphlets as my New Year's Gifts to English soldiers and sailors. They shall still have them; but it is most unexpectedly beyond my power to present them "on time."

This is the second instance in which quantities of these books have been destroyed by fire in London, within two years. The first loss was much more serious than the present, and was an irksome burden upon resources already heavily taxed.

By giving up all profits on London sales of my works for three years, God has given me the joy of supplying English and Colonial Christian workers with over A MILLION AND A HALF of special writings and pamphlets on Infidelity and Christian Evidences, during the two years now ended. This represents in bulk, over THIRTY TONS OF PAPER, and does not include extensive work in America. Some friends have written, severely criticising this course, and saying that "the labourer is worthy of his hire." This I leave with God, but the work itself urgently needs doing, and must be done, and is its own reward.

Now, however, that something substantial has actually been accomplished, and an unforeseen accident occurred, I am ready to make the following suggestion:—

Several tons of paper must be made at once on which to print the new books. Let Christian friends exert themselves during the months of February, March, and April, 1890, to secure orders for the missing penny books, at the really low rates for free distribution, regularly published as follows:—One Hundred Copies, assorted, 6s.; Five Hundred, £1 7s. 6d.; One Thousand, at half price, or £2 2s. The profits on these three months' sales I will reserve as a kind of author's "benefit," for three years of service in the field of Christian Evidences, gratuitously rendered to English Christian workers. Whether the amount be large or small depends entirely upon the individual activity of friends on a strictly business basis. Kindly send a shilling for samples and examine for yourselves.

Address all orders directly to my Publishers,
Messrs. MARSHALL BROTHERS,
10, Paternoster Row, LONDON, E.C.

Yours in Christ's service,

H. L. Hastings.

Editor of the "Anti-Infidel Library."

"The undersigned, being personally acquainted with the Anti-Infidel Lectures and Publications of Mr. H. L. Hastings, of Boston, U.S.A., and believing that their wide circulation is demanded by the increase of Scepticism and Sceptical Literature, and will tend to greatly benefit not only Sceptics, but also all Christians and Churches which hold the common faith of Christ, do hereby most heartily commend his work to the confidence, encouragement, and support of all Christians and philanthropists:"—

Radstock.
Basil Wilberforce.
George Williams.
S. Arthur Blackwood.
Edward White.
Adolph Saphir, D.D.
T. A. Denny.
John Morley, J.P.
E. W. Bullinger, D.L
Donald Fraser, D.D.
Don. Matheson.
A. J. Gordon, D.D.
Kinnaird.
Ira D. Sankey.
Joseph Cook.
Daniel Dorchester, D.D.
Joseph Parker, D.D.
Samuel Smith, M.P.
H. W. Webb Peploe.
T. J. Barnardo, F.R.C.S.
John Wilkinson.
S. Gurney Sheppard.
Arthur T. Pierson, D.D.
Joseph Cummings, D.D., LL.D.

"I am acquainted with them and think well of them."—Bishop Ryle.

"There is no question of their mighty power for good wherever circulated."—Geo. F. Pentecost, D.D.

"I do not know of anything in the English tongue that meets the current scepticism so well as these."—A. T. Pierson, D.D., Philadelphia, U.S.A.

WORK AMONGST MEN.

THERE are large bodies of men among the myriads of toilers in our metropolis who entirely neglect public worship.

Left to themselves, these masses of men become unchristianised, infidel and depraved, adding largely to the dangerous classes.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

in addition to its 333 Missionaries on ordinary districts, by its staff of 105 special and well-qualified Missionaries, is bringing large numbers of these men under the upraising influence of the Gospel of Christ.

Last year 72,827 visits were paid to poor Foreigners in our City, and 1,049 religious services were held for them in their various languages.

In upwards of 10,000 public-houses, quite 200,000 persons were reasoned with upon religion and temperance. Upwards of 85,000 factory people were instructed in the Gospel, and many attended the 1,782 meetings held for their benefit.

The Sabbathless tram-car, omnibus and railway-men received upwards of 200,000 visits in the public ways, at the stations, and in their homes.

The known results of this earnest seeking to save the lost is most satisfactory. Tens of thousands have been rightly influenced, and during the past year, 486 communicants have been won from amongst them, hundreds of drunkards have been reformed, and many that were who have sunk back from the hard struggle of life have, in the time of sickness and approaching death, received consolation.

To support and extend this great work for the Lord Jesus, large funds are urgently needed. Contributions will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or by the Secretaries, 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.; or by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

January 10, 1895.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late Madame ANDRÉ-WATKINS, of Versailles.

This is the Week of Prayer. It finds the Church of God throughout the world, represented by some at least of its members, at the Throne of Grace. If this be, in deed and truth, a Week of Universal Prayer, numbers (hearing it in mind, during the succeeding months, for the Church and for the World. The subject on Monday was Confession. There is probably nothing we need to confess, individually and collectively, more than our prayerlessness. It is often stated as an axiom that the prayer-meeting is the thermometer of the Church's life. It is also the index of the individual condition of its members. They who are much in secret prayer love to gather for united prayer. Every revival begins, from its human side, in prayer:

> Restraining prayer, we cease to fight;
> Prayer makes the Christian's armour bright;
> And Satan trembles when he sees
> The weakest saint upon his knees.

Whatever else we do or leave undone this year, let us pray in secret to our Father in heaven, and He will reward us openly.

Under the heading of "Gathered Gold" we purpose giving, week by week, some choice and brief extracts from standard Christian writers, ancient and modern. We shall be glad of the assistance of those of our readers who have the needed leisure for search, and the library sources at command.

We are glad to be able to report rather more favourably of the condition of Mrs. Booth. Upon inquiry, as we went to press, we learned that during the past week she had undergone a critical. Unhappily, however, with returning strength, the intense suffering, which had comparatively ceased during her great prostration, was again asserting itself. But her peace of heart and joy in the Lord seemed to those who were attending her to be fuller than ever.

Mrs. Morris (the widow of our dear friend and brother Thomas Henry Morris, a member of Mr. Fred Arnot's mission band, who died at Utalemo, Central Africa, on October 17) is returning home to rejoin her four motherless children. Out of loving memory of his devoted service, it is proposed to raise a fund to assist in the education of the children. The trustees are Messrs. James Hawkins and John McVicker, Dr. Neatby, and Mr. Ransome Wallis, Vine House, Walthamstow, London, E., the last of whom acts as treasurer.

We regret to hear that, at the recent disastrous fire at Charterhouse-square, a large stock of "Anti-Infidel" literature, from the pen of Mr. H. L. Hastings, has been consumed. We hope our readers will lend their support to this important agency, which especially needs it at this time.

The recent calamity at the Forest Gate Industrial Schools, which resulted in the suffocation of no fewer than twenty-six children, afforded opportunity for deeds of a truly heroic order by some of the juvenile inmates of the institution. In rousing their fellows, and hauling them into the fresh air, one or two did not hesitate to hazard their own lives. It is reported of one boy that after dragging a comrade out of the smoke, he went back for "Tommy," saying, "I'll go, if I give my life up." Alas! brave "Jack" did give up his life. It would be interesting to know something of the influences under which he grew so grandly bold. His love for "Tommy" was not in word only, but in deed; and the story of his devotion should not be lost upon such as profess to have left all things to follow Christ.

Why should an eminent man like the Bishop of Peterborough send a paradox flying among the people, which has to be defended by the long explanation that appears in the current Fortnightly Review? His statement that it would be intolerable tyranny for the State to carry out the precepts of the Sermon on the Mount will be quoted by multitudes of those who will never see the vindication. This fondness for startling paradox is a new feature of our times, and by no means a healthful one. Doubtless Scripture does not teach that there is to be a legal enforcement of the precepts of Christ upon those who do not accept his rule; but if the State cannot carry out the principles of the Sermon on the Mount, it is the duty of Christian teachers to aim that the people shall grow up to that sermon.

Mr. Stanley's latest published letter, addressed to a son-in-law of the late Dr. Livingstone, has a special interest for the friends of missions, as it deals with the course of events at Uganda, consequent on the death of Bishop Hannington. The facts given by the explorer, relating to the revolutionary upheavals which deposed the cruel Mwanga, are not new in this country, but it is interesting to note his opinion of the work of the C.M.S. missionaries there. Mr. Stanley says:—

> I take this powerful body of native Christians in the heart of Africa—who prefer exile for the sake of their faith to serving a monarch indifferent or hostile to their faith—as more substantial evidence of the work than any number of imposing structures clustered together, and called a mission station, would be. These native Africans have endured the most deadly persecutions—the stake and the fire, the cord and the club, the sharp knife, and the rifle bullet have all been tried, to cause them to reject the teachings they have absorbed. Staunch in their beliefs, firm in their convictions, they have held together stoutly and resolutely, and Mackay and Ashe may point out these with a righteous pride as the results of their labours, to the good, kindly people at home who trusted in them.

The principal agents in India of the Wesleyan Missionary Society are resolved to have a commission of inquiry as to the truth of the charges made and published against them with respect to their mode of living, and their undue attention to education. The Home Committee are said to be anxious to let matters rest where they are. No doubt such an inquiry has its cost and disadvantages; but the moral is that, in such a case, criticism ought not to be undertaken, except after cautious, wide, and prolonged observation.

In this age of reviving missionary zeal there are many young ladies who are moved to offer themselves for work in the foreign field. For all such a period of preparatory training would be invaluable. We are glad to direct attention to a paragraph on page 20 of our present issue, giving particulars of such facilities afforded in connection with Princess House, Brompton.

In his New Year's address to the members of the Positivist Society, Mr. Frederick Harrison congratulated them on the progress which, in spite of "the inveterate habits of Protestant mysticism which prevail in this country," his cult is making. It is difficult to see how the visible signs of this alleged progress (such as improvements in the choir, guilds, and pilgrimages) warrant his confident prediction that "Humanity holds in its grasp the future of the world." He made the naïve and pathetic complaint that, whereas other social movements received money, endowments, and gifts in abundance, no philanthropist came forward to help this Positivist faith. The cause, however, is not far to seek. These modern substitutes for Christianity are powerless to better mankind or reach the human heart. What is really meant by that "Human Providence," in which Mr. Harrison urged his hearers to have faith, he was not careful to explain, and The Times is probably not far from the mark in defining it as "an unintelligible farrago of dislocated ethics and misapprehended science."

The Record understands that an important manuscript of the New Testament has lately been unearthed by Archbishop Bryennios, well known as the discoverer of the Early Church treatise, entitled, "The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles." The find is said to have been made in a Turkish library at Damascus, and it is believed that the manuscript dates from the middle of the fourth century. If this be the case, we have a document of the same antiquity as the "Codex Sinaiticus," which was discovered by Tischendorf forty-six years ago in the Convent of St. Catherine on Mount Sinai. Students of the original text will await particulars with considerable interest. In the face, however, of the remarkable support which the earliest translations give to the resultant text of the best manuscripts that have already been collated, we see no reason why anything like a virtual surprise should be expected.

It is the reasonable and joyous boast of those who have given much attention to the text of the New Testament, that except in regard to jots and tittles of comparatively small importance, we have the sacred writings in so complete a form that the possession of the autographs themselves would be little, if any, practical advantage. We cannot be too thankful for the Providence which has presided over the writings of Evangelists and Apostles that they should have been so preserved to us as to stand on securer ground than can be claimed for any of the literary remains of the great and wise men of the ancient world.

Recently the Mayor of Liverpool, Mr. Hughes, gathered together and dispensed his hospitality to a thousand poor widows, the guests having been selected by clergymen and ministers labouring in the city. The example is one worthy of imitation, and it certainly points to one way in which civic hospitality might be made something to be proud of, instead of being, as it only too frequently is, the occasion of extravagant waste.

"New conditions teach new duties," is a foremost cry of the times. The new conditions are coming on us with overwhelming force as the last years of the century begin. Among the most difficult of problems to be solved just now is the relation of the State to social questions. The inequalities that abound, the dwellings of the poor, the startling contrasts of riches and poverty, the strifes, growing into bitter antagonisms between labour and capital, with many like agitations and wild struggles, fill a large space in the magazines for the New Year. Wisdom on the part of legislators, cool-headedness on that of employers, and a Christian conscience all round, were never more necessary.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—The annual gathering of missionaries for prayer and consecration took place as usual at 3, Bridewell-place, E.C., at 11 a.m., on New Year's Day, when Rev. F. B. Meyer delivered a very earnest and thoughtful address upon the words, "A chosen vessel" (Acts ix. 15). Mr. George Williams made a few remarks, expressing his cordial good wishes for the missionaries during the coming year, and, with his usual kindness and liberality, presented each of the officers and missionaries of the Society with two volumes of "The Biblical Museum."

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a Gospel mission by Mr. Henry Thorne, in Redruth, Cornwall, from Jan. 4 to 20.——For blessing on mission services in the Wesleyan Chapel, Eastbourne, commencing Jan. 19.——For blessing on a ten days' mission at Westerfield Hall, South Tottenham, by Mr. Spurgeon's evangelists, commencing Jan. 12.——For the young men and women who have been led to offer themselves for missionary work in China, as a result of Mr. Hudson Taylor's recent visit to Sweden.——For a mission by Mr. William Forbes, at Liverpool, to commence on Jan. 13.——For blessing on a mission to be held shortly at Blackawton Parish Church, Devonshire, by Rev. Walter Bradbury.——For blessing on missions at Wandsworth, Swaffham, and East Dereham, to be conducted by Mr. J. G. Harrison, during this month.——For special services in Gospel Hall, St. Neot's, conducted by Miss Jackson, commencing Jan. 12.——For blessing on the work of the Protestant missions to the Bretons in Quimper.

A SPECIAL REQUEST.—A friend writes:—"Earnest prayer is asked for an Anglo-Indian gentleman of great culture and intelligence, speaking Hindustani as a native, as well as writing and speaking fluently German, French, Spanish, Italian, and English. He has been the chief agent for Northern India of the French School of Infidels, under Henri Rochefort, editing their paper, and it is feared has been the means of inducting thousands of natives into infidelity. Business matters called him to England a few weeks ago. The artless request of his own little boy to teach him how to pray led to his being brought under deep conviction. He is sincerely seeking the light, but intellectual doubts and difficulties stand in his way. Strenuous efforts are being made by his infidel friends to draw him back, honour and emolument being freely offered. Will your readers pray long and earnestly for this man? God is putting the wish into his heart to go back to India to undo the work he has been doing."

Scottish Theology.

THE following is the substance of a lecture on the "New Theology in Scotland,* by Rev. Dr. Kerr, Glasgow, which has since been published by request. It was doubtful, he said, which was the greatest foe to the truth, ritualism or rationalism, Romanism or infidelity. Both were at present in violent eruption, and true religion and the Church were suffering sadly by the fiery outflow. It had been reserved for Presbyterian professors to disinter rationalism, and parade it in the most insidious form. Its prime apologist, Dr. Dods, had started the question, How few beliefs may one accept, and yet be a Christian? Can one be a Christian and yet not accept the infallibility of Scripture? Nor the Atonement as a work of substitution? Nor the Deity of Christ? And the answer is that one may be a Christian and yet not a believer in any of these! It is just as if the prophets of surgical science should discuss and settle in the affirmative that a man may be a living creature and yet be lacking in the auricles and ventricles of the heart, and without pulmonary capacity, and even after a carefully performed surgical operation of decapitation. Better not attempt such an experiment in vivisection.

That man takes a bold step who will utter one thought fitted to throw into the background the Deity of the Saviour. Their audacity may well may make the reverent onlooker tremble. In their treatment of Inspiration, the Atonement, and the Deity of our Lord, they as it were pull up the pins and sockets of the tabernacle framework; then they boldly seize the horns of the altar and cast away the sacrifice, and thence rush into the holiest of all and draw a shadow across the Shekinah.

If persons, as Dr. Dods affirms, may be Christians who do not believe in the Deity of Christ, then all the members of a church or even of the whole Christian Church may, while still Christians, be at one and the same time, destitute of belief in that life-giving doctrine. The contention requires but thus to be expanded, that its daring and glaring character might be visible. At the beginning of Matthew's Gospel, there is written prominently, "Emmanuel, God with us"; Mark's, "the Gospel of the Son of God"; Luke's, "the Son of the Highest"; John's, "the Word was God." The inspired expositor, in the Hebrews, of the Gospel of the Tabernacle, lays a preparation for his work by establishing beyond fear of cavel the doctrine of the Deity of Him who was Altar, Sacrifice, and High Priest; and everywhere throughout infers the efficacy of atonement from the Divine personality of the atonement-maker. And in the Revelation, from first to last, ascriptions of glory are made to the Lamb as God. Truly never had He been the Son of Man had He not been also the Son of God. A Christian, and therefore forgiven, yet not a believer in the Deity of the Forgiver? A Christian, and therefore a worshipper of Christ, yet not a believer in the Deity of Him who is worshipped! An idolater, therefore! A Christian, and therefore raised from death in trespasses, yet not a believer of Him who raised him from the dead! The less Christ is made, it is thought, the readier will inquirers find Him. Rather, the more glorious He is, the readier will He be found. The more effulgent the light, the more easily will one find the sun. "Christus, si non Deus, non bonus." Let us not attempt the resurrection of mediæval heresies, but go on unto perfection.

The above is a very brief outline of a very clearly expressed confession of the faith once for all delivered to the saints.

* VIVISECTION IN THEOLOGY, and its Chief Apologist Professor Dods, D.D. By Rev. James Kerr, D.D., Glasgow. 6d. Kensit.

OBITUARY.

REV. JOHN JONES—"VULCAN."

ONE of the princes of the Welsh pulpit has fallen, in the death of Rev. John Jones—"Vulcan." Born in the neighbourhood of Bangor, where he also died, he "travelled" in many circuits in connection with the Wesleyan Methodists. He was the author of many works, controversial and expository.

DR. OSWELL LIVINGSTONE.

The death is announced of the last surviving son of the celebrated Dr. Livingstone. Born in South Africa forty-five years ago, in his father's early missionary days, he was named after Mr. Oswell, with whom the great traveller made his memorable journey to Lake Ngami. During recent years Dr. Oswell Livingstone resided at St. Albans, practising as a physician, but for a long time he has been sinking under consumption. It may be remembered that he took part in the search expedition sent out by the Royal Geographical Society in 1872 to find and succour his father, the wreck of which Mr. Stanley met on his way to the coast after he had found and relieved Livingstone.

REV. DR. TALMAGE, of Brooklyn, is returning from his tour in Europe and Palestine, and will preach on Sunday, Jan. 19, at 6.30 p.m., in the Great Central Hall, 86, High Holborn (opposite the Inns of Court Hotel), London. Admission free.

DR. PIERSON addressed the monthly missionary prayer-meeting on Monday evening, at [illegible], E.C. Rev. [illegible] B. Symes [illegible] a very full attendance, [illegible] for the number of prominent [illegible]—Revs. J[illegible] O. Harrison, Newman Hall, [illegible] Harvey, Mr. H. M. Mallinson, &c. There were [illegible] a large number of missionaries at present in England on furlough [illegible] long distances. Dr. Pierson spoke with great energy and enthusiasm; and [illegible] his utterances any statements not known to friends of missions, his address had a most stimulating effect.

SOUTHWARK Y.M.C.A.—Mr. G. F. Assiter, for some time secretary of the branch Association at Newington Causeway, has been appointed to the secretaryship of the Lincoln Association. On Thursday evening last week, at a well attended gathering of members and friends, he was presented with a testimonial in the shape of a purse of sovereigns, and an illuminated address. Mr. John Hayward, Mr. Hind Smith, Rev. George McCree, and other friends, gave hearty expression to the esteem in which Mr. Assiter is held, and to their good wishes for his future prosperity and usefulness in a larger sphere of work.

MR. CHARLES COOK'S LECTURE on "The Prisons of the World," delivered at the Metropolitan Tabernacle and elsewhere, has just been published (Passmore & Alabaster. 1d.). It contains many strange experiences, and tells some extraordinary anecdotes, almost incredible to quiet people. Mr. Cook is an enterprising traveller, not encumbered with bashfulness, and his story is one more illustration of how much one man can do who is determined to benefit his fellow-men He has distributed large numbers of copies of the Word of God in some of the best and worst prisons in the world. This lecture is well worth careful reading and wide distribution.

CHILDREN AT BLACKBURN.—It is not in the Metropolis alone that child-life requires protection from those who ought to be its affectionate guardians. Rev. Benjamin Waugh hopes shortly to address a public meeting in Blackburn, with a view of forming a branch there of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. From a paper, by Mr. John Kirk, of the Ragged School Union, we learn that he lately visited the Blackburn Ragged School, and found their hearts full of enthusiasm, their hands full of work, but with little of the needful in their treasury. An orphanage, much needed, is being built, and the treasurer reports that the walls are growing faster than the money is coming in.

Gathered Thoughts on Prayer.

THE place occupied by prayer in all work for God is unique. In Christian effort, as in the spiritual life, prayer is not an incident to success, but an essential. No soul can be born without prayer. Without prayer no life can be sustained, no growth in grace can be possible. Prayer is, indeed, the vital breath of every regenerated soul. While a Christian lives, he prays; while he prays, he lives. Prayer is the soul's window into heaven. By it come light, and warmth of love, and sweet visions of Christ.

The Old Testament and the New Testament alike are replete with examples of the place and power of prayer. By prayer as an instrumental force Moses and Abraham and Jacob, Elijah and David and the Prophets were made strong to do exploits in the name of their GOD. OUR LORD HIMSELF was a man who agonised in prayer. By prayer He was strengthened for the Temptation and the Cross; and the lonely hillside often heard Him pouring out his soul unto GOD with strong crying and tears.

Pentecost was born in prayer, and from a praying band the HOLY GHOST chose and sent forth the earliest Christian Missionaries. By the prayers of the saints and faithful in CHRIST JESUS they were strengthened and upheld in their manifold labours and difficult [illegible].

In more recent times all the great Missionary Societies were conceived and brought forth, and must be nourished and sustained, in prayer. The founders of these Societies were in a marked degree men of prayer, of secret prayer, of concerted prayer, importunate pleaders with GOD.

May we be permitted to ask if this spirit has survived in all our missionary work? or have we lost our faith in prayer? How far does earnest intercession, as a vital efficient force, enter into the working plans of every Christian effort? Labour has been freely expended in planning and organising, but has there been labour in prayer? Has there been striving with GOD, with agonised earnestness, for his blessing upon the efforts put forth, especially upon our efforts to win for CHRIST the dark places of the earth?

It seems to us that the special need of this age is the spirit of prayer. A new baptism of the HOLY GHOST, conditioned on agreement in prayer, is the world's supreme want. When GOD's people give themselves to prayer, compelled by the heart's longings after GOD, and after the salvation of men, genuine revival is near. The whole power in the Church of CHRIST lies in prayer. The Church grows rich in its faith and love and holy efforts only as its members grow into spiritual life through prayer. The promises of GOD are unlimited to believing prayer. All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive. Oh that the spirit of soul-burdening prayer were more largely poured out upon Christian hearts, and homes, and churches, that the kingdom of GOD might come the world over!

In regard to the world's evangelisation, enough cannot be said of the importance of prayer. The great results of missionary effort still remain to be secured in answer to the united and hearty supplications of God's people. Do we fully realise the mighty power of prayer? How it quickens the energies of the soul, revives hope, and strengthens faith! Being union with GOD, heart communion with CHRIST through the HOLY SPIRIT, prayer is the blessed mean that brings GOD near to men. It is the fulcrum that Archimedes sought; it moves the hand that moves the world. By it the batteries of heaven are opened upon the strongholds of sin and Satan.

Let us cultivate this most blessed of Christian privileges, this sweet and gracious relationship between GOD and the soul. Let its exhilarating and purifying influences have full play upon our own spirits, but above all let the thought of perishing millions bow us down before GOD in continuous intercessory prayer, with fervent desire and sense of need, to spread the world's wants before the LORD.

Mr. Spurgeon says: "Oh for some five hundred Elijahs, each upon his Carmel, crying unto GOD!" "With disciples," says Andrew Murray, "full of faith in Himself, and bold in prayer to ask great things, CHRIST can conquer the world." The late Dr. Somerville asked: "Would it not be well could we train ourselves to take up all the countries of the world in detail, so that every kingdom, capital, island, and ocean should be individually remembered? If this were done on an extensive scale among Christians, blessed issues would ensue." *

Shall we not then band ourselves together in one holy brotherhood to wrestle with GOD in prayer for the evangelisation of the nations of the world? Let us undergird the earth with strong believing prayer, and so seek to lift it up to GOD, that soon shall we hear the voices in heaven saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our LORD and of his CHRIST, and He shall reign for ever and ever!"

Lord, teach us to pray!

STRANGERS' REST, RATCLIFF HIGHWAY.—At the monthly meeting of workers, on Friday last, an address was given by Rev. J. R. Wood, of Upper Holloway, on "The Christian Workers' Privilege: Joy and Peace in Believing." Mr. Isaac, the secretary, made an appeal for more workers on Sunday, when a great number are needed.

HOUSE OF REST, KILBURN.—The opening meeting of the New Year on Friday last at the House of Rest, Kilburn, was made the special opportunity for calling together workers in various departments of the field for united prayer to the Lord of the harvest. Among the many who joined in supplication and praise were Rev. R. W. McAll, the English representative of the McAll Mission. Rev. W. H. Daniels, of America, and Mr. D. Matthews, whose work lies among the aborigines of Australia. In the morning Miss Mason based some brief, helpful remarks upon 1 Pet. iii. 14. "Sanctify in your hearts Christ as Lord" (R.V.). Mr. Reader Harris presided over the crowded meetings in the afternoon and evening. The day was a blessed one.

SUNDAY CLOSING.—Mr. E. Whitwell, of Kendal, writes:—"Need we wonder at rowdyism and brutality, when in Christian England the Lord's Day is polluted by one hundred thousand licensed houses being open, in defiance of God's commandment, for the sale of the very article which, on the six other days of the week, is the chief cause of domestic misery, sorrow, and crime? Stop the sale of drink on Sunday, and you will lessen intemperance and all the consequent misery by one-fourth. Now that Parliament will soon be in session, let all who desire their country's welfare bring this question at once before their representatives, and earnestly request them to support Mr. Stevenson's bill for stopping the sale of drink throughout England during the whole of Sunday."

---

* A "Prayer Union" has been formed for this very purpose. Particulars can be had from Mr. R. Caldwell, Missionary Bureau, 186, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

YEAR TO YEAR.

OFTTIMES again I walk in dreams
O'er roads that Jesus trod;
Or sit at noontide by the streams
That rippled near my God,

When on the earth, O Love Divine,
Weary at close of day,
Burdened with sin of mine and thine,
He passed along the way.

The foxes had their holes, He said;
Each bird its little nest,
The Son of Man to lay his head
Had not a place of rest.

So gazing at the crowd that came
To touch his garments' hem,
I breathe the loving Master's name
And wish I'd been with them;

To cross the hill to Bethany,
Where Martha's brother slept
Within the sepulchre, and see
The tears that Jesus wept,

Before He bade the dead arise,
And bade them let him go,
Loosed from the graveclothes, and his eyes
With wondering love aglow.

And yet, why wish that I had been
Of those who saw his face?
The loving Master still is seen
In each hushed dwelling-place

Whose door, when sounds his gentle voice,
Is open thrown for Him;
For there the Saviour doth rejoice
To stay when day is dim,

As with the two who sadly walked
Emmaus-ward one eve, [talked
Whose hearts burned, as with Christ they
Of that which made them grieve.

And each sweet flower Spring vivifies,
And every glad wild bird,
Beneath the sunlit summer skies,
Still speak his loving word:

"If God thus clothes the lowly herb
That withers in the graith,
Why let your wants your hearts disturb,
O ye of little faith!

"Shall not the loving Lord, who sees
Even the sparrow's fall,
And knows that ye have need of these,
Supply you with them all?"

JAMES BOWKER.

FROM ROME TO CHRIST.—The Christian worker in charge of the Paddington Mission House, in connection with the Female Mission to the Fallen, writes in the last annual report:—"A Roman Catholic, who has been brought through very deep waters of suffering face to face with God, is now an earnest Bible reader, as well as a consistent Christian. This is the third Romanist who has been under my care, who, without one word of controversy, has yielded to the simple teaching of the truth, and voluntarily renounced the errors of Rome." The secretary of this excellent Mission is Mr. A. J. S. Maddison, 32, Charing Cross, S.W.

"WHAT IS IT TO BE A CHRISTIAN?" is a question that has been lately discussed. Jesus Himself gave a touchstone of character, when He said "by their fruits ye shall know them." A Christian is a person who has been born anew by the Holy Spirit; he has been created anew in Christ Jesus unto good works. If you and I are born of Christ's Spirit, we shall bring forth the fruits of the Spirit. This is the test. Our Master holds us to it, and the world holds us to it also. Never was there a time when membership with a church counted for less, or when membership with Christ counted for more, than in these present days. What sort of fruit does your religion yield? is the sharp challenge to every one of us.—Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XVII.—THE CHRISTIAN TEMPER.

1 PETER iii. 8—12.

IN his Life of Frederick the Great, Carlyle describes in a few graphic touches the Moravian town of Herrnhut; and, after remarking on the religious atmosphere which brooded over the place, he says, "Herrnhut is a Sabbath petrified; a Calvinistic Sabbath done into stone." It is a high eulogium. But every visitor to that unique settlement has been arrested by the careful accuracy with which the principles of their religion and theology have been exemplified to the minutest details in the lives of its inhabitants.

But it were a still greater marvel to find in any community under heaven a complete embodiment of these marvellous injunctions. All of one mind, cemented into a holy unity by a common sympathy. Ministering to the saints. Pitiful to the weak, erring, and poor. Courteous to equals. Calm and forgiving under abuse and injury. Seeking peace. Living under the smile of God. Where in all the world can we discover such a community of Christians? It were a fair vision, worth going far to see. A temple to Love. An abode of heavenly bliss. An oasis in the desert. A snatch of celestial harmony amid the jarring discords of human selfishness. The New Jerusalem descending from God out of heaven. Yet nothing less than this is the Christian ideal, as it is also that which our Lord died to secure. And it would well become us, if, without waiting for others, each one would adopt the injunctions of these verses as the binding rule and regulation of daily life. This would be our worthiest contribution to the convincing of the world, and to the coming of the kingdom of our Lord. And it would spread.

And does not the Apostles' use of the word finally teach us that all Christian doctrine is intended to lead up to and inaugurate that life of love, the bold outlines of which are sketched in these words? Let us not be content with considering the mighty stones of truth laid by this wise Master Builder in the foundations, but let us pass up, and into the temple based upon them, where the shekinah dwells above the mercy-seat, so that we may catch its glow upon our faces, and bear it outward into the world.

I. THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE.—"Be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another." This oneness of mind does not demand the monotony of similarity, but unity in variety. Not the oneness of a hop-pole, or of a pile of hop-poles; but of the plant which, with tendril, leaf, and fruit, rears itself aloft in the summer air. Not the oneness of a brick, or of a pile of bricks; but of the house, in which so many different materials and contrivances combine to shelter human life. Not the oneness of a child; but of a family of children who differ in age, character, temperament, and chosen pursuits, but are one in love and tender sympathy.

We shall never be of one mind in the sense of all holding the same opinions; but we may be all of one mind when, beneath diversities of opinion, expression, and view, we are animated by a common devotion to Christ, a common loyalty to the great underpinning facts of Redemption, and a common love to all who hold the Head, though they may differ from us in an infinite variety of minor considerations.

The Church of Rome never caught this idea. Its only conception of the oneness of Christ's disciples was a vast uniformity, a system in which everyone should utter the same formularies, worship in the same postures, and belong to the same ecclesiastical order. And its leaders did their best to realise their dream. They sought to exterminate divergence of view by fire, and sword, and torture. They spread their network through the world. And just before the dawn of the Reformation they seemed to have succeeded. At the beginning of the sixteenth century, Europe reposed in the monotony of almost universal uniformity under the almost universal supremacy of the Papacy. Rome might almost have adopted the insolent boast of the Assyrian of prophecy: "As one gathereth eggs, so have I gathered all the earth, and there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth, or peeped." And what was the result? There is but one answer possible. The deep sleep of death. And it must always be so. Life abhors uniformity. And whenever you force this marvellous being into your cast-iron mould, you not only destroy its grace and beauty, but you kill it.

There is variety in the human body, from eyelash to foot, from heart to blood disc, from brain to quivering nerve fibre; yet in all this variety each one is conscious of an indivisible unity. There is variety in the tree: the giant arms that wrestle with the storm, the far-spreading roots that moor it to the soil, the myriad leaves through which the winds make music, the cones or nuts which it flings on the forest floor; yet in all this it is one. There is variety in the Bible—variety of authorship, of style, of age, from the bulrush ark to the break of the sapphire waves of the Ægean about Patmos; yet for all this the sixty-six tractlets which compose the Bible are always bound up in one cover, because composing one book. So with Christians. There may be, and must be, infinite varieties, and shades of thought and work; some will prefer the methods of Wesley, others the freedom of Congregationalism; some will pray best through the venerable words of the liturgy, others in the silence of a Friends' meeting; some will thrive best beneath the bishop's crozier, others in the rude barracks of the Salvation Army; some will cling tenaciously to the very words in which the reformers expressed their beliefs; others will adopt the newer phraseology which is being advocated in our times with consummate erudition and audacity; but, notwithstanding all, there is a oneness which needs not to be created, for it is already consummated, but which must be recognised and kept. "Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

Many folds, but one flock. Many regiments, but one army. Many stones, but one breastplate. Many temperaments, but one family. Many minds, but one mind.

Much of the controversy of the present day arises from failure to recognise the almost infinite variety of the human mind. No two persons look at the same thing in the same way, or give the same version of an incident or a tale. Each colours it with the tint of personal idiosyncrasy, just as each object in nature borrows from sunlight its especial hue. Start a dozen devout, deeply taught men to formulate the doctrine of the Imputed Righteousness of Christ; whilst each holds the fact, no two will express it in precisely the same way. We must distinguish between facts and views of facts. Men may not think alike, and yet be of the same mind.

If we would obey this injunction of being all of one mind, let us think more often of the things in which we agree than of those in which we differ. All are loved with the same love; bought by the same blood; born of the same Spirit; members of the same body; animated by the same life; subject to the same hopes and fears, afflictions and vicissitudes; drawing our daily sustenance from the same supplies; destined for the same home. How many and close are the bonds of our relationship. Surely it becomes us to have great compassion one toward another; correcting each other, if needs be, privately, or before the church, with no desire for self-exaltation, but with eager loyalty for the glory of God; putting the best construction on points of difference; viewing everything in the light of the Master's glory; and trying to be more animated by that loving, tender, compassionate spirit, which enabled Him to bear so long with the misunderstanding, strife, and stupidity, of the men whom He had chosen to form the inner circle of his earthly life.

II. FOUR SPECIFIC APPLICATIONS.—(1) To fellow Christians. Love as brethren.—Love is not identical with like. Providence does not ask us whom we would like to be our brethren, that is settled for us, but we are bidden to love them, irrespective of our natural predilections and tastes. You say that it is impossible. But remember that true love does not necessarily originate in the emotions, but in the will; it consists not in feeling, but in doing; not in sentiment, but in action; not in soft words, but in noble and unselfish deeds.

Love changes the pivot and centre of life from self to another. Before she flings her magic spell upon us, we are self-contained and self-centred, bending all our energies to our self-aggrandisement, compelling all streams to flow into the Dead Sea of our own interest. But when we love, a marvellous transformation passes over us. We think more often of the beloved than of ourselves. We find our plans, contrivings, activities, all ennobled and transfigured by our one consideration of what will please and help and bless that choice spirit which has gathered to itself the threads of our life, weaving them after its own sweet will, and threading them with blessedness, as blackbirds' nests may be illumined by scrolls of gold and colour. With such love should we love our fellow Christians.

Do not begin with trying to love everyone at once. We do not best descend from generals to particulars; but ascend from particulars to generals. Begin with those nearest to you in the church and the home, or in the little religious coterie with which you are wont to mix. It is through the love of individuals that we come to love the whole.

You say that this is your difficulty, and that there are Christians in your immediate circle, whom you cannot get on with. Here, then, is my advice. Do not try to feel love, but will to love. Tell the dear Master that you are willing to love, or willing to be made willing to love, but that He must create the grace of love within your breast. Ask Him to pour the tides of his love through your heart, that He may love through you, and you shall finally catch the glow and grace of his tenderness. Offer Him your lips, that by them He may speak the words you cannot utter; and your hand, that by it He may do the gentle deeds of ministry which you cannot bring yourself to perform. Your confessions of inability will bring out the assurances of his all-sufficiency. What you cannot do, He can and will do through you. All things are possible to Him, and will be to you if you believe in Him. Begin, then, to do what you know you ought to do, and would do, if you felt love. Do it because it is right; do it for Christ's sake; do it expecting the Lord to work in and through you, and you will find ere long that streams of Divine tenderness have commenced to flow through the channels of your being, long choked with silt and débris. And love thus practically learnt to one fellow believer, will open your heart to all.

(2) To the weak and erring. Be pitiful.—Oh for the compassion of our blessed Lord! How often it breaks out in the Gospel narrative to the unshepherded sheep, to the hungry multitudes, and to the afflicted who sought his aid! It is so much easier to scourge, rebuke, criticise, and condemn, than to pity and heal. We must not condone sin, or allow ourselves to think lightly of that which has cost God so much, and which is the object of his wrath. But we may discriminate between sin and the sinner, between disease and the sufferer; and, whilst we give no quarter to the one, we may be very merciful to the other.

Think of thine own sins. How near thou hast been to the precipice, how much thou owest to the grace of God! The measure of thy debt was ten thousand talents, but it has been freely forgiven. And thy provocation to sin may have been less urgent, thy passions less fiery, thy opportunities less frequent, thy temper less persistent. And who can estimate the blackness of darkness in which the transgressor is tossed, despair at the helm, whilst the waves rush past to break in thunder on the rocks close by? Such may be the lot of one near thee. Be pitiful. Consider thyself, lest thou also be tempted. Refrain speech and action till thou knowest all.

(3) To equals. Be courteous.—The courtesies of Christianity should be more inward and constant than those of the world. Be ready to take the least comfortable seat, to move up to the end of the pew, or to give up your comfortable corner. Do not sit down at the extreme end of a meeting-room, compelling late-comers to have the discomfort of passing to the front before the eyes of all, much to the distraction of the leader. Let others sit while you stand. Do not push and crowd as you come in or go out. Step back to let women and children and invalids pass by. Let the manners of your Father's court be always evident in your deportment, that men may feel that you come of a noble line, and learn that Christianity produces not simply the heroism of a great occasion, but the thousand minute courtesies of daily living.

(4) To enemies. Do not retaliate.—"Not rendering evil for evil, but contrariwise blessing." The old law of an eye for an eye is repealed, in favour of that nobler legislation which bids us do good to those that hate us, and pray for them who despitefully use and persecute us. Let us be like the rock on the wilderness march, which, when smitten, yielded water to the thirsty hosts.

We can afford to do this, for we have been called to inherit such a blessing that, though we give it away with both hands, in spendthrift prodigality, we can never exhaust it. Besides, this is the policy of living a calm, good, and blessed life. He that loves life, and would see good days, must keep his tongue from evil, and his lips from guile. The man who is always vindicating himself and standing up for his rights, will be perpetually in a ferment, and will miss the cream of life, which rises when all is still. But, better than all, our God will see to us, protecting and delivering us. Not a blow reaches us which He does not see. Not a threat which He does not hear. He will not let us be tempted beyond what we can bear. He will put an arrest on the enemy when his purpose is accomplished. And then, from out the cloud, He will look upon the armies of our foes, and discomfit them, and overthrow them in the heart of the sea. "His face is against them that do evil."

INCIDENTS FROM REAL LIFE IN THE ROYAL NAVY.

"MY CHUM JIM."

"'TWAS all my chum Jim, and there he sits in the hall," said a young sailor, with H.M.S. Excellent on his cap, one Sunday afternoon in our hall. We were having our "At Home," which is a real at home, attended by 500 to 700, mostly seamen, marines, and their friends. This young fellow stood up to speak of the power of real Christianity. "Jim and I," he continued, "came outside this hall one Sunday afternoon some weeks ago; we were both wild young fellows, but we liked to hear the singing. 'Let's go in,' said Jim to me. 'I shan't,' I said; 'I ain't going to be laughed at.' However, we went in, and I enjoyed it very much; so much that I determined to sign the pledge at the end of the meeting. So I did, and the next day I wrote to the dear old people at home, and told them what I had done.

"In about a week I got a letter from my brother, saying he was so glad I had signed the pledge, and now wouldn't I go on, and give myself to Christ? My heart melted over that letter, and I went to the Sailors' Rest again. Under God the earnest words came straight home, and I gave myself to the Lord, and became a new man. But Jim wasn't changed. How I longed for him to love Christ. As I thought about this, I remembered that God hears and answers prayer for his Son's sake, and I felt that the shortest way to get my chum converted was to pray for him. One night some bluejackets were at the Sailors' Rest, and the leader of the meeting said, 'For whom shall we pray?' I answered up, 'For my chum Jim.' We did pray for him, and the next morning Jim, with tears in his eyes, said, 'Ted, old boy, I was praying for myself last night, and God has answered my prayers, and I'm a happy man.'"

BROUGHT TO CHRIST IN PRISON.

This incident was also told by a young man who was at the time serving on board H.M.S. Bellerophon, on the West Indian station. Turning to me with a bright look in his face, and then to the audience, he said: "I am one of Miss Weston's boys. She has known me ever since I joined the training service, and my first holy impression I got at the Sailors' Rest, Devonport. I went away to sea, and bad companions led me astray, and I went deep into drink and sin. When the three years were nearly out, I thought, 'How can I go back to the Sailors' Rest? It will break their hearts to see what a ne'er-do-well I am: I'll run away and never go home.' I did so, but was soon in the hands of the police, locked up in a dark cell. Here I had time to think. I remembered the loving Saviour I had learned about, and how He would pardon the vilest, and then and there, on the cold floor of my cell, I cried for mercy and found it; and the good seed sown years before in Devonport sprang up in a West Indian prison."

These two incidents out of many will cause my kind friends to rejoice with me, and to continue to pray for increased blessing in our Sailors' Rests at Devonport and Portsmouth.

AGNES E. WESTON.

HOW A SCEPTIC FOUND GOD.

A SALVATION ARMY member, named Leclerc, in a recent issue of En Avant, tells the story of his happy translation from the region of atheistic darkness to the light and liberty of the kingdom of God. After the pursuit of scientific studies for some years, Leclerc maintained the sceptic's attitude, and, travelling for the sake of his health, found no real peace of mind. In India fevers and cholera disputed his life, but neither succeeded in killing him. He first made the acquaintance of the Salvation Army in Holland, and found himself unable to account for the devotion of its officers, without allowing that there was something in their belief concerning God, and their anxiety for the highest good of their fellows. Favourably disposed towards the Army, he went to Paris, where he visited the Salle Auber, in the hope of ascertaining the difference, if any, between the French Army and that of Holland. He says:—

The Maréchale and the Colonel were presiding at the meeting. I had never before heard a woman preach the Gospel, but I confess that a deep impression was made upon me by the utterances of Mdme. Booth-Clibborn. Yet greater was the effect when the Colonel, having come down into the meeting, asked me point-blank whether I was saved. I was only able to reply, "I should like to have a private conversation with you. I do not quite understand your meaning. I have much sympathy with the Army, but my reason revolts against religion."

At the beginning of our chat some days afterwards, the Colonel said to me: "I do not wish to discuss with you, nor to give you any explanations, until I am assured of one thing. Will you obey the light if it is vouchsafed to you? It would be quite useless for me to remove your intellectual difficulties, and to afford you an understanding of Divine things, if your will is not ready to obey as soon as you become convinced. For the most part infidels discuss for the love of discussion. Do you seek the truth for the love of the truth?" I was able to answer, "Yes."

The Colonel then explained to me the logic of sacrifice. I had never previously considered Christ from that point of view. He showed how the justice and love of God were reconciled—maintaining that it is rather by the operation of the laws of the universe (perfect laws, established by the Creator, as a necessary part of the work of creation) than by the direct action of God, that sinners go to hell—in a word, by a law of spiritual gravitation. He made clear to me that, by the shedding of his Son's blood on Calvary, God can pardon sinners going to Him, and can supply the deficiency caused by man's sins—at one and the same time, honouring the Divine laws, and displaying the Divine mercy. In short, he succeeded in convincing me that God exists, and that only through Christ crucified can we come to a knowledge of God.

The Maréchale taught me to pray; and on October 11, this year, having returned home from a holiness meeting, I prayed with all sincerity, and I felt that my prayer had been heard immediately, and all my sins pardoned. Moreover, my heart, which had previously been closed against religious sentiment, was opened to love the entire human race. I distinctly felt the transformation, as by an electric shock. Now I know that God exists, and that there are but two possible ways before men: the way which leads to evil—the devil's way, and the way which leads to blessing—God's way. Eternal perdition, or eternal salvation, depend upon the way in which each individual exercises the freewill God has given him.

Cards.—Mrs. Ross, 7, New-street, Wells, Somersetshire (formerly of Doncaster), will thankfully receive old Christmas cards, scraps, &c., for missionary and charitable purposes.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER IX.

PEARLS IN DUNGHILLS.

AFTER years of patient toil, Hadden's land became the scene of a religious awakening. The work of grace in 1866 quickly spread from our church to the mission district. Isabella, fired with new zeal, led the way. In a room in a corner of the block a weekly meeting for the worship of God and the proclamation of the Gospel was set a-going. Here, as many of the people as the visitors could "compel to come in" were gathered together; and here the first piercing cry for mercy was heard. The first convert was the most abandoned woman of the place; and she was converted through this humble meeting, but without attending it.

Helen Sharp, a vile, hopeless profligate, was one night a-missing. Her sister, accompanied by another woman, went out into the wilderness of lanes, courts, and slums, in search of this wretched fragment of flesh and blood—scarce worth an hour's honest toil, as some would have thought—but nowhere in any of her haunts could she be found. At length, in the middle of the night, she was found in a gutter, prostrate, speechless, all but dead. The pitiful wreck of dishonoured humanity was borne home and laid upon her sister's bed, for she had no bed of her own. As she lay there, she was compelled for the first time to listen to the voice of prayer and praise, and the simple story of redemption through the blood of Christ, the little homely meeting being held in an adjoining room. Helen Sharp was deeply moved by what she heard. Our chief visitor, Isabella, took occasion of her agitation to "make friends" with her, and to unfold the plan of salvation. A week passed; Helen's convictions deepened; the sweet sounds of the Gospel in the other room raised her feelings of anxiety to the highest pitch. At the close of the service, our visitor again dealt with her. Prayer was offered, counsel given, and, in the course of the conversation, light from heaven dawned upon the benighted wanderer.

"I have found the Saviour!" she suddenly exclaimed.

Throwing her arms around Isabella's neck, she warmly embraced her, and broke out in loud praise of her newly found Saviour.

A MORE STRIKING PERSONAL CHANGE

could not be imagined: it was from the deepest darkness to the clearest light; from the lowest depths of vice to a life so saintly that only those who knew the woman in her two lives could give full credence to it. She became the companion of the godly; the teacher of young converts; the guide of inquirers—a rare specimen of grace. Her insight into the Word of God was profound. Possessing a quick intellect and ready wit, she depicted her experiences—the comings and goings of the Lord in his dealings with her soul, and the surpassing love of Christ to her, the chief of sinners—in a style of her own, quaint, graphic, and inspiring. Her faith, zeal, originality, naturalness, and wit, formed a character unique, picturesque, and powerful. Soon she found a home of her own, which became the trysting-place of all earnest souls: even the older Christians loved to sit at the feet of one so manifestly the child of grace. It was the old story over again—the woman of the city at the feet of the Lord; the alabaster box of precious ointment; the memorable scene of penitence and love.

When she was admitted into the fellowship of the Church, it fell to me to catechise her. In the course of conversation I asked, "In those wild days of yours, Helen, were you happy?"

"Perfectly miserable, sir. Burnin' coals in my breast a' the time."

"What did you do to get rid of your misery?"

"I just made good resolutions, sir: I kent nae better."

"You tried to turn over a new leaf?"

"A new leaf! Oh yes; I'm sure I turned o'er as mony new leaves as wauld mak' the biggest book in the world; and bonny leaves they were, ilka ane was blacker than anither."

"Your resolutions did not stand?"

"Oh, hoo could the resolutions o' a sinner like me stand? They were like rotten tow in a blazin' fire. It was a case o' tryin' to cheat the devil wi' his ain cheatery siller."

"Did you never pray for help?"

"I couldna' pray, I dursna; but I gart (made) my wee lassie pray a little prayer she had learnt somehow. But when I cam' hame the worse o' drink the poor bairn would look in my face wi' an awfu' sad look, and say, 'Mither, we winna say our prayerie the nicht,' I kent what that meant; and it gaed like a knife to my heart till I could bear it nae mair."

"What did you do then?"

"Oh well, sir, one day I took this bit o' a Bible," (here she showed me a boardless fragment of the Scriptures which had been the silent witness of her evil life), "and I laid my hand on it and swore a terrible oath that I would never taste drink again."

"How did you get on after that?"

"Ah, sir!" replied Helen in a deep undertone, "that nicht was the worst nicht of a'."

"What! did you violate your oath?"

"Oh yes, sir; I gaed through it like mad: it was nae better than a pickle caff (chaff) in a storm o' wind. A hunner oaths would ha'e been a' the same."

"How did you feel then?"

"I felt I had sold mysel' clean into the hands o' the devil, and was lost a'thegether. Oh, if ever I was near"—

Here she paused, deeply moved.

"How did you do after that?"

"Oh, sir," replied Helen with a voice full of dignity and feeling,

"I JIST CAM' TO CHRIST, DRINK AN' A';

and the first taste I got o' his love in the pardon o' my sins, the likin' for the drink gaed clean awa' and never cam' back."

Here pausing she wept softly awhile, and then broke out in praise. She never afterwards tasted strong drink. Again and again when she fainted at her work, and also when she was laid aside in her last illness, she sternly refused the stimulants offered her by unwise friends. She had drunk of the strong drink which maketh strong: she was filled with the Spirit. Throughout the years of her Christian course not a speck of inconsistency ever defiled the snowy purity of her life. Forgiven much, she loved much. In her happiest hours she never lost sight of her sin: the habitual sense of her vileness was the large vessel into which the Lord constantly poured the fulness of his blessing. Many saw this and admired the riches of Divine grace.

Her conversion was like the sounding of a trumpet at midnight. "Hadden's land" was awakened. Was Helen Sharp saved? Then nothing was impossible: nobody need despair. The meetings were suddenly crowded: drunkards, fallen women, infidels, blasphemers, and the devil's castaways in general, were at the feet of the workers, crying, "What must we do to be saved?"

AN INFIDEL'S SONS.

M——, the father of a family in Hadden's land, was an infidel. Coming under the sweep of this awakening, he opened his house to the visitor, and granted full permission to his family to fall in with the new order of things, though he did not himself venture on a confession of faith. To obtain a footing in his miserable home and win his boys was a victory. His sons with certain other lads were drawn into the Gospel net. First of all they were taken to our house to be clothed, and then to be instructed. What a spectacle these lads and boys presented! To say that they were in rags is wholly inadequate. The mass of tatters in which the infidel's sons appeared was tied together and suspended on their bodies by means of slender cords; and one trembled lest the feeble cords should give way and the entire collection of rags fall to the ground. Decently clad the lads became docile and sprightly. Our kitchen became their infant school; their divinity hall; their place of rendezvous. Here they learned their first lessons in manners, in speech, in religion. Who was God? They did not know. They had often heard the name, in profane swearing of course; but who or what God is they could not tell. The name of Christ they had never once heard. But kindness had opened their hearts; a thirst for knowledge was created in them; and they proved to be apt scholars. They are now, some of them, in decent homes of their own, all of them respectable members of the Church and society: good fruit reaped from a very unpromising field.

THE HAPPINESS OF CHILDHOOD.

Let us visit this dingy close in another part of the district. A few dirty, wretchedly clad children are playing in the gutters, seemingly happy. Marvellous is the elasticity of childhood, its power of enjoyment, its capacity for making happiness out of a trifle and of untoward material, of finding joy [illegible] misery! Is not this clear [illegible] Divine goodness? It is plainly the will [illegible] Beneficent Creator that man's first experience of life should be happiness. If an infant could reason and speak, would it not say, "What a happy world is this! How kind to me is everybody; what lots of good things and sweet things there are here! Surely He wh[illegible] into this world is Himself good!" So God in his bountifulness would be beforehand with the devil. Alas! how little of this falls to the lot of children in the slums! God's method is reversed: misery, misery, misery—from the first sensations of life onward, and still more misery. Here, not God, but the devil, is first. To be good or wise in nakedness, cold, hunger, foul air, and a moral atmosphere more foul—is more than human. In such depths of filth it may be questioned whether an angel could keep his purity unsullied. Pity those little children who at the very threshold of life know more of its bitterness and woe than thousands do in all their threescore years and ten!

The court is very dark, for the windows are poorly lighted; the inhabitants in many cases being unable to afford gas. They pay so heavily for the blazing lights in the publicans', that in their own houses they must content themselves with a dim lamp or no light at all. One block of buildings in our district is called because there is no gas-light in it; the tenants are not trusted with gas because they would never pay for it. Now, take a step down into this cellar, minding well your feet and head. The hovel is dark, but your eyes getting used to the dimness you begin to see where you are.

"CANDLE LAND"

"Take a seat." Where? There is neither chair nor stool. The only seats are holes scooped out of the earthen floor in a semi-circle round the hearth. In these dirty holes we have seen the father and mother sitting drunk, smoking or sleeping; in their absence we have been startled by the children suddenly emerging from the depths where they burrow and grovel. In slight contrast to these primitive sofas and couches, a few boards in a corner with bits of ragged dirty sacking serve for a bed, where parents and children are supposed to sleep; at least, on those nights when the normal drunkenness is not followed by quarrelling and violence. But what is that moving about in the darker corners, or slipping out and in by the dingy portal? These are the children, as naked as when they were born.

* This deeply interesting and stimulating life history is now ready in book form; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards and gilt edges, for presentation, 3s. 6d.

"Children, why don't you put on your clothes?"

"We canna," replies the eldest, "mither has 'popped' them, and we maun be deein' till father gets siller to buy them oot."

When? Ah! nobody can tell. Is this old Scotland? No, it is new Scotland, with its enormous wealth far exceeding the dreams of our hardy, moneyless ancestors; with its great cities, its grand civilisation, its west-ends and east-ends, its society and its slums.

"WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT!"

These drunken parents, after much labour and patience on the part of our visitor, are induced to attend a meeting. They appear at the service under the influence of drink. Advised to retire they positively refuse: they are anxious, they say, to be saved. This seems to be impossible; and yet at the end of the meeting, they wait to be counselled and warned. They return again and again. The desire to mend their ways deepens into conviction of sin, and convictions are followed by confessions, tears, prayers, and songs of deliverance. They are saved; and grace is once more triumphant. In a short time they make for themselves a new home, where sobriety and decency prevail; peace and comfort abound; and above all the fear of God bears sway. The father and mother become members of the Mission Church, patterns of humble, consistent Christian life. Thus a whole family is redeemed from destruction. To see yon cellar and then this well-furnished, happy home, one may well exclaim, "What hath God wrought!"

Much remains to be done in the better housing of the poor and their social amelioration in many ways. But it must not be overlooked that in this work the main thing is the regeneration of the individual. So debased are the habits of many in our city slums, that in six months they would turn a palace into a pig-stye. On the other hand, Divine grace makes the house as well as the man a new creation: where Christ dwells even poverty smiles.

CENTRAL AFRICA.

MR. STANLEY AND TIPPOO TIB.

THE action which Mr. Stanley has entered in the Consular Court of Zanzibar against Tippoo Tib is highly satisfactory. The long silence about his relations with that miscreant was becoming painful, but probably had he spoken sooner the property which lies in the hands of Tippoo's Zanzibar agent might have been put beyond reach of the law, whereas now that property, amounting to £10,000, may be got as compensation for the grievous injuries done to the expedition. Mr. Stanley and Mr. Bonny have sworn evidence against Tippoo as having violated the contract made in Zanzibar in 1887, with a view to seize the goods; as having sent his nephew to kill natives who wished to supply food, and so destroyed many by starvation; and as sending the porters to Major Barttelot with the intention of deserting the expedition.

We hope the compensation will be got, but it is of much greater importance that painful discussion with the friends of Major Barttelot will now probably be avoided. If the fate of that gallant officer was due to Tippoo's treachery (as we have known since February, 1888, and as Stanley thus recognises) it cannot be ascribed to want of subordination.

THE PORTUGUESE IN NYASSALAND.

The raid of Major Serpa Pinto into the territory of the Makololo (says The Daily Graphic) has been more serious than was at first supposed. It may be hoped that the Scotch missionaries and planters have not found it necessary to join the Makololo in the open field; but, at least, it is very certain that the peaceful shores of Lake Nyassa have become the scene of one of the most inexcusable wars ever waged in a native community.

Gathered Gold.

IF you lose your time, you lose your hopes; and if you lose your hopes, you lose your souls. When your souls are lost, they shall never be ransomed; when your hopes are lost, they shall never be recovered; and when your time is lost, it shall never be redeemed.—John Mason.

That part of the Christian's life which is not employed in the active service of his Lord, is chiefly spent in seeking and maintaining communion with Him. For this he plies the Throne, and studies the Word of Grace, and frequents the ordinances where the Lord has promised to meet with his people. These are his golden hours; and when thus employed, how poor and trivial does all that the world calls great and important appear in his eyes! Yea, he is solicitous to keep up an intercourse of heart with his Beloved in his busiest scenes; and so far as he can succeed, it alleviates all his labours, and sweetens all his troubles. And when he is neither communing with his Lord nor acting for Him, he accounts his time lost, and is ashamed and grieved.—John Newton.

When God's law requires us to love our neighbour as ourselves, it implies that there is a love which we owe to ourselves; not that inordinate self-love which excludes both love to God and our neighbour, but such as is subordinate to the one, and co-ordinate with the other. Consider, therefore, whether thou hast not been guilty of sinning against thyself—against thy body, in gluttony, drunkenness, fulfilling the lusts of it; against thy soul in neglecting it, in famishing it, letting it pine and waste away in thy iniquities; in ignorance, worldliness, carnality, estrangedness from God, never looking after a Saviour for it, not using the appointed means of thy salvation. What multitudes live all their days in sin of this kind, and never accuse or blame themselves for it?—John Howe.

None are so likely to maintain watchful guard over their hearts and lives as those who know the comfort of living in near communion with God. They feel their privilege and will fear losing it. They will dread falling from their high estate, and marring their own comfort by bringing clouds between themselves and Christ. He that goes on a journey with a little money about him takes little thought of danger, and cares little how late he travels. He, on the contrary, that carries gold and jewels, will be a cautious traveller; he will look well to his roads, his horses, and his company, and run no risks. The fixed stars are those that tremble most. The man that most fully enjoys the light of God's countenance, will be a man tremblingly afraid of losing its blessed consolations, and jealously fearful of doing anything to grieve the Holy Ghost.—Bishop Ryle.

Avoid disputes about lesser truths, and a religion that lies only in opinions. They are usually least acquainted with a heavenly life, who are violent disputers about the circumstantials of religion. He whose religion is all in his opinions, will be most frequently and zealously speaking his opinions; and he whose religion lies in his knowledge and love of God and Christ will be most delightfully speaking of that happy time when he shall enjoy them. He is a rare and precious Christian who is skilful to improve well-known truths. Therefore let me advise you, who aspire after a heavenly life, not to spend too much of your thoughts, your time, your zeal, or your speech upon disputes that less concern your souls; but when hypocrites are feeding on husks and shells, do you feed on the joys above. I would have the chief truths to be chiefly studied, and none to cast out your thoughts of eternity.—Richard Baxter.

Teachers are much wanted in the London Medical Mission Sunday-school in St. Giles'. Who will spare one hour a week, from three to four on Sunday afternoons, to teach our sharp, bright little lads and lasses? Address Dr. Latchford, 47, Endell-street, St. Giles', W.C.

THE BELIEVER'S SECURITY.

Ps. civ. 27.

AMIDST all the changes and conflicts of life,
When trials abound and troubles are rife,
Oh! then shall I know that whatever betide,
His promise is faithful—"The Lord will provide."

The way may be thorny, e'en foes may prevail,
Dark clouds may surround me, and friends may all fail;
On this I rest safely (his faithfulness tried),
His word is unchanging—"The Lord will provide."

Though long tempted by doubts and harassed by fears,
All anxious, desponding, bedewed with my tears,
I'll cling to his promise, though men may deride,
Himself hath declared it—"The Lord will provide."

And then when the din of life's battle is o'er,
And I am approaching the long-wished-for shore,
To earth and its phantoms no longer allied,
My safe habitation—"The Lord will provide."

R. J. COPE.

CHRISTIAN COLPORTAGE ASSOCIATION.

ON Wednesday evening last week some thirty of the colporteurs of this Association met at the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A. for prayer and praise at the beginning of another year's work. After the men had partaken of a hearty tea, Mr. W. H. Seagram opened the meeting with prayer, and Mr. Robert Paton read the first few verses in Heb. xi., adding a few helpful words of exhortation based thereon.

The meeting being then thrown open, prayer and praise by one after another of the men followed in unbroken succession for the next hour. The earnestness of these workers, and their desire to win souls for the Master, augurs well for the continued success of this good work that leads the attack against both eye-gate and ear-gate, that an entrance may be given to Christ in the hearts of men. Special thanks were returned that the twenty more colporteurs prayed for last new year had all been placed, and a like increase was besought for the coming year. "Lord, we will not limit Thee as to numbers," prayed one dear fellow; "send as many more than the twenty as Thou seest fit."

Brief and cheering testimonies of God's blessing on their labours followed from some of the colporteurs. Two Bibles sold after much difficulty in a godless household had each led a soul to Christ. A sneering young man, resenting the personal dealing of another colporteur, retorted: "You conceited, religious chaps think no one is going to heaven but yourselves; I reckon I've got just as good a chance of getting there as you have." "Then what a tremendous fool you must be if you don't take it" was the reply. This parry and thrust, well followed up, brought that young man down in a little while on his knees, and he now rejoices that Christ is his Saviour and heaven will be home. Another told of a poor girl, betrayed and then driven on the streets, but through the colporteur's efforts brought back not only to an earthly father and forgiven, but led to receive the forgiveness of sins from God that delighteth to pardon. Other words were spoken, and further prayer made, and then these labourers separated to begin another year's work for God in their several localities.

Seamen's Bethel, Leghorn.—Hearty thanks are returned to our readers who have responded to the appeal made in June for literature for the reading bags which are supplied to British seamen visiting this port. Contributions for this purpose, such as old numbers of illustrated papers, and any reading, religious or secular, are much desired: to be addressed, "For Seamen's Bethel. 15, Via delle Grazie, Leghorn, Italy."

WEEK OF UNITED PRAYER.

MONDAY, JANUARY 6.

CONFESSION AND SUPPLICATION.

Steinway Hall, Portman Square.

PURSUANT to the custom observed at the opening of the New Year, the Council of the Evangelical Alliance arranged for morning meetings to be held daily in Steinway Hall, Portman-square, W. Notwithstanding the discouraging state of the weather on Monday, a considerable number of ladies and gentlemen braved the rain that fell continuously throughout the morning. The Hall was filled with a devout company. Both prayer and speech were fervent and deeply spiritual in tone. The brief address, given by a selected speaker, was this year briefer than on former occasions, the Council having acceded to the expressed wish of friends to allow more time for devotional exercises.

Sir John Coode presided, and in a sentence or two reminded those assembled that they were about to join in a mighty wave of prayer, which, in distant regions, had for some hours already begun to encircle the globe, and which, in other parts of the earth, would continue to roll on for many hours longer. The suggestion of this unity—so widespread—of Christendom produced a profound impression upon the audience.

REV. H. W. WEBB-PEPLOE

took as the basis of his address portions of Haggai, beginning at chapter ii. He particularly called attention to the word "personal" in the subject for prayer. He pointed out that all the work that has to be done for the Lord by the collective Church must arise from the individual devotion and consecration of its members; and, therefore, not only must there be personal confession for sins of the past, and consecration of ourselves to a holier life, but also prayer for the Church of Christ; for more light and faith and power from the Holy Ghost; for greater faithfulness to Gospel truths, and prayer for pastors and other labourers in Christ's vineyard.

In Haggai there are seven distinct causes of disappointment to God's people: to the people called from Babylonish captivity, as originally they had, as a nation, been called from Egyptian bondage, in order that they might settle down in the land which the Lord delighted to look upon and bless. They occupied in the Old Testament dispensation the position which we, as Christians, occupy now under the Gospel dispensation that have been called to God's Jerusalem.

(1) The first cause of disappointment: "Consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little." Was not that true of the Church to-day, when infidels scornfully taunted us with spending millions of money, and with being only able to show converts by hundreds? (2) "Ye eat, but ye have not enough." Was not that also true of the Church of God? In our prayer-meetings, when asked to praise God, our natural instincts led us back into supplication, as if we never were satisfied with the wonderful goodness of God. (3) "Ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink." We were perpetually coming to the fountain, and never resting in that fulness of satisfaction which Christ was ready to give. (4) "Ye clothe you, but there is none warm." Men are always groaning as to their inability for action, and as to the non-supply of God's sufficiency for the service to which He deigns to call them. (5) "He that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes," and this in the very face of what God of his infinite mercy has so constantly done for us! (6) "Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little." (7) "And when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it," et seq. These people say the time has not come that the Lord's house should be built: it is never, in the Church's expectation, the time for God to show forth the fulness of his power and blessing; and, therefore, the Church does not "arise and shine," as if her light were come. There is always a drawing back; there is always hope, and yet hope that has no true ground of expectation about it, apparently, in the Church of the living God in these days even. This sevenfold disappointment arises from one single cause—viz., that the Church of God refuses to take her privileges.

There is a sevenfold command. God will begin to act if the commands of the Lord be truly obeyed. (1) The first is "Consider your ways," repeated five times in this little prophecy. This call is personal; but, recollect, it is collective action. (2) "Go up to the mountain," that is, where the Lord shows his glory; where the power of the Lord in majesty is developed. (3) "And bring wood," i.e., the means whereby God supplies his people for the building of the house, that we may go forth into the world, and begin to act in his name. (4) "And build the house." Let everyone take action, and seek to win souls for God. (5) Then we have the threefold charge, repeated in one case three times: "Be strong, be strong, be strong!" (6) "Work, for I am with you, saith the Lord." (7) "Fear ye not."

Then comes a sevenfold blessing: the promise of God's blessing contained in seven "I wills." (1) "I will take pleasure in it." How many brethren there are who doubt whether God can ever be pleased with a sinner! He never forgets the sinfulness; but, thank God, He is able to forget the sin. "Their sins and iniquities will I remember no more." (2) "I will be glorified." The Lord will be glorified from the very moment we begin to win and save souls. (3) "I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations, and the desirable things of all nations shall come." The Lord begins a mighty shaking of the dry bones on earth where He wants living stones to be built up in the name and strength of the Lord Jesus Christ. (4) "I will fill this house with glory." The Church of the Lord shall stand out before the world, strengthened with the majesty, and power, and greatness of our God. (5) "In this place will I give peace," i.e., wherever Salem, the city of peace, wherever the Church of the Lord is found, there He will give peace. (6) After repeating the solemn assurance that He "will shake the heavens and the earth," the Lord says: "I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms...I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother." (7) Lastly, "I will make thee, Zerubbabel...as a signet," i.e., "upon my own right hand." It becomes individual in the truest sense of the word—personal. To Zerubbabel, the man who was being laughed at and despised on account of the day of small things, the Lord says: "O man, be faithful." And why? It all hangs upon the blessed assurance: "I have chosen thee, saith the Lord of Hosts." And that ends the Book of Haggai.

Finally, there is the threefold assurance of fact, which makes the whole thing certain; that secures to us, as long as we claim it, individually and collectively, the presence, power, and majesty of our God, in the words: "I am with you, saith the Lord." "I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts." "My Spirit remaineth among you." Observe there the Trinity: the threefold assertion of fact; of the fact of the "Godhead of Christ, the Leader and Champion of the forces of Israel, and of the Spirit." Be ye strong; work; fear not; and I will make thee a signet, O helpless man of God, that all the world shall marvel at the beauty and power of God's right hand; "for I have chosen thee, saith the Lord." On your knees, "consider your ways," this day, before God.

Centenary Hall.

THE meetings arranged by the Whittington-avenue Y.M.C.A. at the Centenary Hall, 17, Bishopsgate-street Within, opened with much promise of good. The subject was "Personal Confession and Supplication," and for the first two hours of the afternoon many earnest souls voiced the thoughts of goodly gatherings of City men and others. During the earlier part of the proceedings Mr. T. Morgan Harvey presided, and in fitting terms called upon believers to pour out their hearts before a prayer-hearing God.

Rev. F. B. MEYER, the second speaker, after reading Ps. xxxii., in which David speaks of the blessedness of those whose sins have been forgiven, and refers to the dutifulness and pleasure of confession to God, delivered a very helpful address. The one thing which is most easily within our reach as a preparation for the service of God is the perpetual confession of sin; and we are told that if a man purge himself from sin he will be a vessel "meet for the Master's use."

Having enlarged upon this, and pointed out that, while in the closet we do well to be particular in our confession, in united confession we should not be too general, the speaker dwelt upon and enforced vicarious confession. In the case of Daniel and Nehemiah and hi[illegible] Specially called of God to positions of prominence, to lead their fellows, these men not only confessed the sins of which they were personally conscious, but also those sins of which their nation and people were guilty.

Confession is taking God's side as [illegible] sin. It is taking the hand of God, and going with Him to the edge of the abyss, and peering down for a moment at the sin and sorrow which [illegible], the eye being the very next minute turned to the sacrifice and atonement of our blessed Lord. It is darkness that makes the light so precious to us, and it is the sight of sin which gives the soul a ravishing delight in the sacrifice by which sin has been put away for ever. One cannot but feel that the slight views of the sacrifice of Christ, which are so widely entertained at the present day, are to a large extent the result of an absence of those true and searching of which our forefathers speak in their diaries and writings. When the church shall begin to regard sin as it is in God's sight, and those who minister the Word shall begin to lay before the consciences of men God's demands and his thoughts about sin, there will, in my humble belief, be a rush towards that blood by which alone sin can be put away and atoned for.

CONVICTIONS REGARDING SIN,

Mr. Meyer went on to urge that there are sins of omission as well as commission. Men readily admit that they sin when they violate God's law, but they hesitate to realise that they sin likewise when they "come short of the glory of God." Having followed up this point, and given some Scripture definitions of sin—"all unrighteousness is sin," "sin is transgression of law"—the speaker pointed to the exalted Saviour from all sin, and reminded his hearers of the pardoning grace of God. The prayers were short, and to the point, the thoughts of the hearts of those present being expressed in terms which cannot but have been acceptable to Him who, "if we confess our sins, is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

Exeter Hall.

Rev. WM. CUFF gave the address here on Monday. He remarked that there runs right through the history of the people of God the habit of united and of individual prayer. With the Bible in his hands, how can anyone doubt that God hears and answers the petitions of his people? No subject of the week is of greater importance than that of personal confession and humiliation because of sin. Rome has enslaved her millions through the confession of sin by man to man, and, alas! that is becoming too common in so-called Protestant Churches. But we believe that God alone hath power to forgive sin. There are two places where confession of sin is demanded—in the Bible and in the human heart. These two agree, as the key fits into the lock. Only one man who never confessed sin—He who knew no sin. Strange to say there are some Christians who assert that they do not commit sin, and therefore they have nothing to confess. After much experience among all kinds of Christians, he had never met with one who was wholly free from sin. "Have you?" (addressing his hearers). "Yes, many," said one in the company. Mr. Cuff replied that, in the light of God's holiness, such an assertion could not be maintained, and was the outcome of Antinomian doctrine. Whole-hearted confession of our sinnership is not at all incompatible with the experimental truth of the words that "sin shall not have dominion over you." Even the best of us are tempted to spiritual pride, and we need to be humbled in the sight of God. Such seasons of deep humiliation may be the best moments in a good man's life.

This humbling will make us generous and tenderhearted, and give us real power with men, especially with the erring. God save us from becoming so familiar with the Gospel as to get "hard" in our presentation of it! We may admire a perfect and beautifully chiselled statue, but it is cold. So it is possible to preach the Divine message finely, and yet in such a way as to chill the hearer. Then confession and humiliation will make us watchful for the coming days.

St. Paul's, Onslow-square.

Despite the unfavourable weather, there was a goodly muster on Monday afternoon in the Church Room, St. Paul's, Onslow-square. The proceedings, presided over by the vicar, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe, were deeply impressive throughout. The address was by Rev. C. A. Fox, who at the outset spoke of the great need for humility. Personally, he thought there was no such thing as being truly humble, except by being humbled. While, however, we rejoice at being what we call humble, it is by no means gladly that we submit to being humbled. The true child of God, however, comes to realise that whatever humbles him is a real blessing. If the year now begun is to be an improvement upon the past, it will be consequent upon believers being humbled before God.

Calling attention to Isaiah xxx., the speaker enforced several important lessons which God's people to-day may learn from God's dealings with Israel of old. In "returning and rest" (15) — leaving the wrong way and with confession and brokenness of heart trusting in God—there is salvation. To the weary and heavy-laden Jesus gives rest. In "quietness and confidence" (15) there is strength and security. While Jesus was asleep in the boat, the storm raged; but, when He arose and rebuked the wind and the waves, there was "a great calm." We must not be of such as have Him on board asleep, but rather we must live in a consciousness of his perpetual presence and own his continual lordship.

Israel boasted in the cavalry of Egypt (17); but, in spite of this wickedness, they were assured that God would not leave them. "And therefore will the Lord wait, that He may be gracious." There must be the chastening of a father; but yet there is in God a fathomless love which

"WAITS TO BE GRACIOUS."

"Blessed are all they that wait for Him"—that hang upon Him. Those who thus rest in God will enjoy the privilege expressed in ver. 21. When they are turning aside to the right hand or the left, they shall hear a voice behind them, saying: "This is the way, walk ye in it."

To be thus guided is not meant to be a special thing, once in a while, but a regular thing. If we are in the resting condition, we shall hear the word. We must, however, always be in the act of "returning," eschewing the sideways, and going straight on. Curves may be very beautiful in their way, but in moral conduct the straight line alone is beautiful. The lessons were enforced with much power, and the prayers of several friends covered the ground of confession and supplication.

Metropolitan Tabernacle.

In connection with the South London branch of the Evangelical Alliance the first meeting for the week was held in the Lecture Hall of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Mr. James Spurgeon presiding. The building was well filled, and on the platform were a number of ministers from the neighbourhood, belonging to the Baptist, Congregational, and Methodist denominations, and also Mr. Arnold, one of the secretaries of the Alliance. Prayers of confession, and of earnest supplication for increased power in ministry, were offered by many brethren, and it was apparent that the petitions elicited fervent responses throughout the meeting.

In the course of the meeting Mr. ARNOLD cited a few particulars to show how God had answered prayer and blessed the endeavours of the Alliance in mitigating religious persecution in Turkey; also how the week of prayer had led to a great revival of religion in Eintab, in Asiatic Turkey, where 600 persons had been brought out of the world and changed from enemies to friends of the Gospel. Among this number were six men who had clubbed together as desperadoes. Mr. Arnold's brief recital was much appreciated.

Nor can less be said of Mr. JAMES SPURGEON'S address on the secret of a happy New Year, which was based on Ps. c. 2, "Serve the Lord with gladness." We merely indicate a few of the leading points. Service is a law of man's being. He cannot escape it. The question is, Whom to serve? Behold the answer, "Serve the LORD." It is a sweet thought that we can serve Him by serving his people, by carrying his embassy of peace to a guilty world. There are many who in a sense serve religiously who do not serve the Lord. They serve some church. They bow down before some denominational idol. They offer incense to some ecclesiastic. Let idols perish, and let the Lord be magnified.

If we are to serve the Lord with gladness we must know his will; and how can his will be known if the Bible be not received as his accredited Word? After enforcing this point, Mr. Spurgeon dwelt on the necessity of a gladsome spirit in service; how gladness itself was no mean part of service, seeing that by being glad we served; and was also the condition of effective ministry in every connection.

STEWARTSTOWN, IRELAND.—Earnest appeal is made by Rev. J. Elliott on behalf of a mission he has started, to bring the Gospel to the homes of the poor and aged. He has secured a young man from England as evangelist, and many souls have been saved. Many Roman Catholics come night after night.

TEMPERANCE IN BIRMINGHAM.

ON New Year's Day the spacious Birmingham Town Hall was filled in every part by more than 2,200 poor women brought from every part of the city by the kind invitation of Mr. R. Cadbury. A large proportion of these women bore marks of the sad and weary life they had experienced. It was, however, a joy to know they were now gathered together, week by week, in the twenty-two classes held under the auspices of the mission, and that there, in many cases, as the address given to Mr. Cadbury testified, "difficulties had been removed, sorrows relieved, hope brightened, love quickened, the earthly home made sweeter, and the heavenly home brought nearer." It was no easy task to provide a substantial tea for such a mass of women with comfort and dispatch. This, under the superintendence of Mr. J. M. Goodchild, the general secretary, and an able staff of assistants, was, however, accomplished without a single hitch.

The meeting which followed was most enjoyable, and included the presentation of a beautifully illuminated address to the host of the evening, and a number of short speeches and recitals. Each woman received as a memento of the gathering a handsome motto card.

Mr. Goodchild, during the evening, stated that £800 had been deposited in the savings' fund during the year by the women, and urged them to increase that amount during the coming year.

In this and many other ways these classes must be a power for good in hundreds of Birmingham homes. Scores of women could be found in these meetings now rejoicing in Christ who, a few years ago, were living in vice and degradation. Nothing short of real conversion to God is the aim of those engaged in this interesting work, and their desire has been wonderfully realised. Surely the mission deserves the fullest sympathy and will command the hearty prayers and support of Christian philanthropists. At present it is in great lack of help. Mr. Goodchild, Temperance Institute, Birmingham, is the secretary.

Personalia.

Mrs. Josephine Butler writes from the Riviera, that owing to the continued and serious illness of Canon Butler, she will be unable to issue The Dawn for January, but she hopes to publish an enlarged number early in the spring.

Miss Jourdan, in consequence of numerous inquiries, requests us to state she is still Hon. Secretary to the English Egyptian Mission, founded by the late Miss Mary Whately. Communications respecting the work should be addressed to her at 21, Westbourne Park-villas, London, W.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe.—A personal friend who lately visited Mrs. Beecher Stowe at her home in Hertford, Conn., says the accounts which have been published, describing her as in a hopelessly demented condition, are much exaggerated. She is quite capable of carrying on an intelligible conversation, and is perfectly amenable to the control of her twin daughters, who reside with her.

MR. & MRS. SOMERSET GARDNER have recently visited Bures, in Suffolk, and Great Chesterfield, Essex. Souls have been won for Christ, and an increased interest aroused in the things of the kingdom. A. E. S.

IRELAND.—Evangelistic services have been held in Roscrea, co. Tipperary, by Rev. James Kirkwood, Methodist Conference evangelist, and G. M. Clarke. Similar services have been held in Littlemount, co. Fermanagh, by Messrs. Dixon and Donolly. Athlone, which is an important military station, has witnessed the most extensive spiritual movement known in that town for perhaps thirty years, principally through the agency of Mrs. Caldwell. A wave of revival, which still continues, has visited Pettigo and the neighbourhood. A three weeks' special Gospel mission has been held by Rev. J. Cullen, and Mr. and Mrs. Powers, in Fintona.

Some Scottish Missions.–XI.

UNITED EVANGELISTIC ASSOCIATION, GLASGOW.

MANY monuments remain to testify of the blessing which attended the visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey to our shores in 1873. But few, if any, stand out more boldly than does this work in Glasgow; and none are of wider influence, or more far-reaching importance.

Founded in 1874, the Association has sought, for nearly sixteen years, with the threefold object of "Edification," "Evangelisation," and "Amelioration," to serve both God and man. Its work may be divided into two main sections—that and that among the children. This week I shall confine myself to the first. There are so many branches and departments of work, that no less than nine committees are necessary to maintain them; while ten halls, in various parts of the city, are in pretty constant use. Of these, the "Tent Hall," in James Morrison-street, is the largest. It was built in 1876, and to it cling

AMONG THE ADULTS,

MANY HALLOWED MEMORIES.

It seats 2050 persons, each of whom can hear and see to perfection; and, being fitted with every necessary appliance, and supplied with electric light, it is in every way about the most perfect hall that could be desired, and forms practically the headquarters of the Association.

Then in Bothwell-street is the Christian Institute, which provides accommodation for the Y.M.C.A., the Noon Prayer Meeting, the Fellowship Meeting, Railway Mission, &c., with reading and dining-rooms, and a good sized hall. In Bridgeton the Bethany Hall is situated, seating 1500, and from each of these, as well as the several smaller buildings, really good work is done.

One very important principle adopted is that of having voluntary, rather than paid, workers. The late Dr. Chalmers expressed it as his "clear and strong conviction that the various classes of people in the city, the rich and the poor, the educated and the uneducated, they who live at ease and they who live in the midst of difficulties or on the earnings of hard and honest labour, had hitherto lived at far too great a distance from one another; and that there ought to be a vast deal more of mutual kindness betwixt them." This Gospel brotherhood is put into practical operation. The Directors state:

"WE DO NOT SEEK A PAID AGENCY to preach the Gospel to the poor, or to visit them in their houses; nor do we seek to have chiefly those of humble social status labouring among the poor; but we seek men and women of the highest and of all ranks and grades in society, mingling in the one common bond of the Gospel, eager to give gratuitously such time as may be at their disposal, esteeming it a privilege to engage in the work, and all the greater privilege because of its lowly character. We are thankful that God has given us many such men and women; that He has inclined the hearts of ministers, missionaries, and laymen from all parts of our city to respond readily to requests to preach to the people; and that we have not lacked devoted workers for the Free Breakfast, Children's Dinner, open air and other work, to serve the food, keep the doors, sing the Gospel, or visit in the homes, all without payment of any kind, the blessed service of the Master their sole, but great reward."

Not a few of the Directors themselves take an active part either in superintending or conducting meetings; each evening of the week is under the special oversight of one or other of the Committee, who frequently leads the meeting; and sometimes a week's meetings are conducted by the directors, singly or by one or two jointly.

The Sabbath morning Free Breakfast is a sight worth seeing, and has been picked up and polished by its means. One remarkable example is worth recording.

MANY A ROUGH DIAMOND

Mrs. M. D——, a woman of considerable ability, and respectably connected, who had been an actress and a slave of drink, came from England to Glasgow. She arrived on a Monday, morning and drank heavily, with the result that she soon found herself in prison for a few days. On being released again, she immediately resumed her drinking, and in a public-house had her hair, which was very beautiful, cut off to be sold to pay her way. The following is her own account of what took place early one Sabbath morning:—"I was lying on a stair in Argyle-street all night. My great idea was to finish my life, as I could see no hope at all. 'What's the use of living?' kept always ringing in my ears through the hours of the night. I was preparing to drown myself as I went out. Got a drink of water in a milk shop, and went further along Argyle-street. Saw the stragglers looking at me. A policeman met me, and said, 'Where's your clothes?' I had nothing on but my petticoat and waist of my dress, and no bonnet. I just laughed, and said, 'Gone!'

'PITY YOU ARE NOT GONE TOO,'

he said. I thought, 'Yes, it is!' A poor woman was standing looking. 'Where are you going?' she asked. I replied, 'I don't know.' 'Come with me to the Gospel hall, where there is the free breakfast.' I went with her, and sat with her. They sang a hymn, 'Christ receiveth sinful men.' I was touched, and began to cry. The old woman had a piece of rag, and gave it me to wipe my eyes. 'Where are you going when you go out?' she said. 'I don't know.' 'There will be a lady round to speak to you soon.' That lady was Miss S——, and she asked me into the back room." Once there, she was earnestly and lovingly dealt with, and realised the grace of God towards her. She eagerly grasped at any door that could be possibly opened to rescue her. Miss S—— took her to the Magdalene Institution, but her age seemed to disqualify her. The matron's heart was touched by the way in which she pleaded for admission, by her forlorn and abject appearance, by her making no excuse but expressing her disgust at herself and blaming herself alone—and she was admitted. She remained some months in the Home, sure that her great load of sin has been removed, without any craving for drink, a great favourite with the matron on account of her excellent conduct, and a bright example to all in the Home. She has a favourite verse—

I will not doubt the Hand that reached me,
When its grasp seemed slipped from mine;
Faith shall form the link that binds my
Outstretched arm to power Divine.

The drink curse is at once a chief cause of the work, and the great obstacle in its way.

THE MIZPAH BANDS

(male and female) have had wonderful success in reclaiming lost men and women from its terrible power. Banded together in fellowship and sympathy with the three-fold cord (not quickly broken) of past misery, present happiness, and future glory, those who have been themselves rescued now earnestly labour for the salvation of their sin-bound fellows. The bands number over 1000 members, and these, distributed into sections, accept invitations from clergy, missionaries, and various agencies, to hold meetings, at which, with an earnestness that is born of gratitude for past deliverance, they sing and speak of the things that they have heard, and seen, and known. Here is an example of the method adopted, related in the hope that some who read it may be led to establish similar organisation. Rev. Mr. Cameron, Greenlaw, writes as follows:—

"The visit of the deputation of the Glasgow Mizpah Band was much appreciated by the people of Greenlaw. On Saturday, the deputation, headed by Mr. and Mrs. C——, held a meeting in the Good Templars' Hall. The hymns sung, and the addresses delivered made an impression, and formed an effective introduction to the various services of the following day. The male portion of the deputation were present at the Sabbath morning fellowship meeting, in the Free Church vestry, and took part in the exercises. Mr. C—— conducted the forenoon service in the Free Church, discoursing very pointedly on the conversion of Saul of Tarsus. At the close of this service the young people were addressed by all the five brethren. From three to four o'clock there was an open-air service, and, although the rain was falling fast, considerable numbers attended; but the service of the occasion was the evening meeting in the Free Church, which was packed with an audience of over five hundred.

ALL THE MINISTERS OF THE PLACE

were present; the Established Church minister opened the meeting, and the U. P. minister closed it with prayer. For two hours the eager attention of the large congregation was secured by the deputation of the Band, as by singing and speaking they testified to the power of the grace of God in saving from all sin; and told what the Gospel of Christ had done for themselves, rescuing them from the power of strong drink, and other sins widespread and deep-rooted—sins of the street, of the dancing and singing saloons. The impression produced seemed general and deep.

"On Monday evening there was another well attended meeting held in the Free Church. At its close, as well as on the previous evening, several remained to be spoken to by Mr. and Mrs. C——, both of whom are greatly gifted in dealing with anxious souls."

Not only to the home field has the Association devoted its attention, for under its auspices the late revered Dr. Somerville carried the Word of Life into various parts of the world; and it is not surprising to learn that some of its efficient workers of days gone by are now labouring among the heathen abroad.

Death has made serious breaches in the Association's ranks, who were among its leaders having been called home to rest from their labours—Rev. James Scott, June, 1884; W. Stuart Hislop, Esq., November, 1884; Robert Simpson, Esq., April, 1887; and Rev. Dr. Somerville, in September 1889. But their lives are standing memorials, and in their steps may many rise up to walk.

FOUR NOBLE MEN OF GOD

It will be readily conjectured that considerable vocal power and talent must be employed to render the numerous meetings of the different branches effective; and to this sphere of service a large number of Christian ladies and gentlemen, endowed with the gift of song, devote their time and energy. This and every other department of the Association is supported by a list of eminent names, too numerous too mention. Suffice to say that with them are linked those of all the most eminent ministers and Christian laymen of Glasgow. The "Conveners" of the several branches are Messrs. J. Campbell White, Wm. Sloan, J. S. Napier, Wm. Ralston, R. Hunter Craig, W. A. Campbell, Geo. Macfarlane, J. H. N. Graham (treasurer), and Alexander MacKeith. The work of the latter among the children will form the subject of my next article.

G. E. M.

For the Young.

LONGING FOR THE LIGHT.

A BRAHMINEE woman was one day sitting in the verandah of her house, making banyan leaf plates for the use of the Brahmins, who never eat a second meal from the same plate. While thus employed, a traveller, a goldsmith whom she knew, passed that way. After the usual salutations had been exchanged, he said, "I have just come from Cuddapah."

"From Cuddapah! How far you have come!"

"Yes, but it was worth the journey, Oh! what I have seen and heard."

"Why! what was it?"

"A Christian feast and no sin!"

"Were there many people there?"

"Yes, between three and four hundred men, women, and children."

"And no sin!" she exclaimed. "I never knew of a large feast without much sin. Well, what did they do?"

"The padre talked to them about the true God and Jesus Christ, and they sang, oh, so beautifully. Then the teachers talked and told about what they were doing. There was a pretty booth covered with green boughs, and mats to sit on. After that there was a good feast of curry and rice and plaintains and other fruit. The people sat and talked some time very happily, and then went away to their homes. Oh, it was a happy time! I had often heard of the Christian religion, now I am convinced of its truth and have been baptized. I am so happy. It is indeed a true and blessed religion."

"Oh, Subanah! How I should like to have been there. I, too, have heard of this new religion, and long to hear more of it. But we are so dark here. We know nothing but what our priests tell us, and that is only about idols. Oh, Subanah! can you not tell me something more of it?"

"I would gladly do so, but I am not taught enough to be able to tell you."

"Oh, Subanah, must I then always live in the dark?"

"No, Chinnama; there is a good man called Moses, a catechist, living at Ventoola. He would, I am sure, gladly teach and help you. But it is twenty miles off, a long way to walk."

"Oh, I don't mind that, if he will only teach me when I get there."

"Yes, I feel sure he will be glad to do it. But I must go home now. I hope you will find Jesus Christ, the true light, as I have done."

A few days after this, Chinnama set out for Ventoola. She was gladly welcomed by Moses and Sarama, and when she told them the purpose of her journey they made her an honoured guest. Moses instructed her in Christian truth, and Sarama sung sweet Christian hymns.

After some days she enquired, "Where are the missionaries?"

"At Cuddapah," was the answer.

"I must go and see them. I want to talk to them, and ask the padre to baptize me, for I must be a Christian."

"But, Chinnama, it is thirty miles to Cuddapah."

"Oh, never mind, I can walk it if you will go with me."

So it was arranged that they should go together, and they started. One Saturday morning, Moses came to my sitting room, and said, "Salaam, ma'am, one very sensible woman has walked here from Ventoola that she may have some talk with master and you. Will you see her, ma'am?"

"Oh, yes, Moses. Ask her to walk in. I shall be very pleased to see her."

"She is a little afraid, ma'am. She has never seen white lady."

"Tell her there is nothing to fear, Moses. I shall be very pleased to receive her."

So Moses brought her in, and never shall I forget my first glance at her. She was about forty, very sweet-looking and thoughtful. A mat being placed for her beside me, we began to converse, and Moses interpreted. Presently, looking up, she said, "I cannot talk well when I have to look up. Ma'am sits in a chair." I replied, "I can easily sit on a mat," and did it. Thus placed on a level we conversed more freely. I asked her if her religion made her happy.

"Oh no, how can it? It is all dark. When I die what shall I be? Perhaps a jackal and go howling about, or a snake ready to bite somebody. But the worst is the darkness. Your religion seems all light, peace, and joy. Your God is love; none of our gods love us. We fear them. Our religion is all fear. Oh, ma'am, I must be a Christian. To-morrow is your holy-day. Will the padre baptize me, ma'am?"

I said, "You shall go and talk to him." Mr. P—— was in his study, so I left her with him. She earnestly entreated to be baptized, but Mr. P—— thought it better to wait a little while till she was more fully instructed in Christian truth.

She went as a guest to one of our converts, and on Sunday morning attended the Christian service. I met her coming from it, and was struck with the brightness of her countenance, as she raised her hands, and said, "Sumthoshum, sumthoshum" (joy, joy). I said, "What joy?" She replied, "I never saw such a day as this. The worship—the reading, the teaching, and the singing. Beautiful."

The next day she returned to Ventoola with Moses. It was settled that she should return in a few weeks. She, however, became very ill; but Moses and his wife cared for her. By God's blessing she recovered. At the appointed time she came to Cuddapah, and once more we had a long talk together.

When speaking of her baptism, we said to her, "Amah, do you know that you will lose caste if you are baptized?"

"Oh yes! I know; but let it go."

"You may become very poor by losing caste."

"Oh, God will provide for me!"

"But your husband—he must come, too!"

"But suppose he will not? Heigho! I cannot help it. My soul is of more value than my husband."

"You have been very ill, Amah?"

"Yes, I was very ill, and thought I should die."

"Were you afraid?"

"Afraid? Not now. Before, it was dreadful when I thought I might be a snake or jackal, or pass into darkness; the darkness was the worst. But now since I heard of Jesus, the Light of the world—that He is willing to save me—it is all light. The fear is gone."

After further instruction, Mr. P—— baptized her the next day. Before that Moses said, "What name shall we give her, ma'am? She must not keep her heathen name."

"Well, Moses, would 'Rhoda' do?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am; that is the very name for her. Rhoda brought good news of Peter, and this woman goes to the houses near her each Sabbath morning, and says, 'Rise, rise early; it is the Sabbath!'"

After her baptism Rhoda returned home. By God's grace she was enabled to lead a consistent Christian life, and to win her husband for Christ. I met her at an out-station some time after, and inquired after her husband. "Oh, ma'am! He is come here to-day. He wishes to be baptized. It is joy!" After this she continued her efforts to bring others to the light. The last I heard from Moses she was living still—a beautiful example of the power and brightness of Christian truth, a light shining in a dark place. Is it not worth while to send the light to those who so earnestly long for and love it? P.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Gordon Hall, Liverpool, to Jan. 20. Mr. James S. Tyler, Leytonstone, to Jan. 11, at 4.30; Northcote-road, Wandsworth, Jan. 13—17. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Corn Exchange, Ross, Herefordshire, Jan. 12—19. Mr. Armitage, Holy Trinity School, Leicester, Jan. 11—20.

LIFE.*

COME hither, little Arthur,
And sit down by my side,
The while I tell what life is,
And what may thee betide.

Life is a battle, Arthur,
And the strongest sometimes fail;
But the strength which comes from God in prayer
Makes even the weak prevail.

Life is a voyage, Arthur,
On an often troubled sea;
But He who bade the tempest cease
Walks still the waves for thee.

Life is a wrestling, Arthur,
With many a foe within;
And thou wilt often weary be
Ere thou the prize canst win.

Life is a journey, Arthur;
And thou must watch and pray
That God's great grace may guide thy path,
And shadow thee alway.

So when the strife is over,
And the vanquished foes lie low,
And the sea is hushed to stillness,
And the tired feet travel slow,

Our Father's hand shall lead thee,
And thou shalt safely come
To where, even now, He beckons thee
From his eternal home.

* FROM TOWARDS FIELDS OF LIGHT; a little volume of choice sacred poems by the late Dr. Hatch. (2s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton.) They breathe a spirit of deep spiritual insight and of devout aspiration after communion with the Eternal.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Jan. 12, Ps. xii. 1—8; Mon., Jan. 13, Ps. xiii. 1—6; Tues., Jan. 14, Ps. xiv. 1—7; Wed., Jan. 15, Ps. xv. 1—5; Thurs., Jan. 16, Ps. xvi. 1—11; Fri., Jan. 17, Ps. xvii. 1—15; Sat., Jan. 18. Ps. xviii. 1—15.

WORKING MEN'S LORD'S DAY REST ASSOCIATION.—A New Year's address has been issued by this Association. It refers to the abolition of the Sabbath by the National Assembly of France in 1793, and to the International Congress called by the French Government last September, to try to win back for France "the lost Sabbath." The opinions of M. Carnot, the President of France, that "Sunday rest is a restorer of the force spent in the week's toil, and more needed now, owing to the high pressure at which we live, than it ever was before"; and of Mr. Harrison, President of the United States, that "all persons working, either with hands, or mentally, need rest which Sunday observance alone can guarantee to them," are quoted. Forty-eight resolutions in favour of Sunday rest were passed by the Congress. The address contains other facts of encouraging import on this question.

THE BAPTISM OF SEVEN JEWS.—In the London Jews' Society's Church, Palestine-place, on a recent Lord's Day evening, seven Israelites, the oldest of them forty years of age (Ph.D. of Berlin, and tutor in a grammar school), and the others varying in age from seventeen to thirty, made a public profession of their faith in Christ. The baptismal service was very impressive, and the congregation included about thirty non-Christian Jews and inquirers, as well as a goodly number of believers of Hebrew and Gentile origin. The assembly was very devout, and the pastoral advice given to the new converts by the chaplain, Rev. J. B. Barraclough, was listened to with great attention. One Jew of the old Pharisaic type left the building in a furious rage, exclaiming, "Seven apostates! Who would believe it? Yet I have seen it with my own eyes!" Let us hope that he will live to see that, instead of having fallen away from God, his fellow Hebrews have got nearer to Him. We are sure that our readers will remember these seven babes in Christ at the throne of grace, that they may be kept steadfast, and be enabled to commend their faith by holiness of life.

American Notes.

[from our special correspondent.]

Your correspondent finds himself in the broad State of Kansas, fifteen hundred miles due west from New York. This country is fas becoming "settled," although there is nothing like fixity as yet. As for instance, in one town of four thousand people, the five evangelical churches had thirty pastors in five years. This rapidity of change in ecclesiastical circles also characterises the social and commercial life of Kansas. It is a rest for the weary heart, however, that the eye cannot look upon a saloon anywhere. No flaring lights, no attractive rum-palaces, no open bar-rooms. Kansas is a prohibition State, and, although intoxicants are secretly sold in "joints," the traffic is illegal and villainously disrespectable. But these "joints" flourish, as I saw myself secret drinking going on in violence of all law.

The work of evangelism takes hold. The congregations are large, earnest, and inspiring. Men preponderate, and on account of migration and emigration more individual people hear the word during an evangelistic campaign than in the older States. The people, generally, are believers in God, in Christ, and in the Bible. The absorbing passion for speedy accumulation of wealth is the characteristic sin. Fortunes are quickly made and as quickly lost. Towns and cities spring up from the prairies as if by magic. Wichita, in Southern Kansas, has leaped forward with lightning-like rapidity. Over the spot where grain waved its head a few years ago, is a flourishing city of nearly 35,000 souls. Mammoth buildings, warehouses, factories, colleges, churches, asphalted boulevards, electric cars and lights, with every modern improvement in store and mansion, are already veritable realities. The business of this town is coming to a solid basis, and there are many honourable and trustworthy firms.

The Y.M.C.A. is here, guided by a young Scotchman, Mr. Baird. The men's meetings in this city are larger than in New York, Boston, or Chicago. The new building in process of completion will cost 70,000 dollars. Numbers of young men are brought under the influence of Mr. Baird, whose godly zeal and loving tact draw them to the Gospel. But the Y.M.C.A. throughout Kansas has grown in power and intensity. It is purely missionary and evangelistic, and its leading men are determined to hold it within spiritual bounds.

It is overpowering to stand on an elevation and look abroad over these prairies. Land, land, land everywhere. From one point a burnished dome can be seen one hundred miles away in this rarefied atmosphere. The land is so rich that crops yield a thousand-fold. Here is an ear of corn which I took at random out of the heap. It has 960 grains on it. There are some on which 1200 have been counted. Here are the finest hogs in the world, fed on corn; clean and wholesome. In Wichita is a slaughter-house, erected last year, in which within the year were killed, cured, and prepared for market, 117,000 hogs. This will give an idea of this young prairie town.

But the State is as yet unsettled. Feverish "booms" destroy confidence, and re-actions discourage capitalists. What is needed is farming. Respectable, intelligent farmers, with some capital, surrounding these centres of trade, can alone build up the country. Good improved land is comparatively cheap, averaging ten pounds per acre. Plenty of land can be had very much cheaper; farms in good condition, with dwellings, will come higher. Farms generally contain 160 acres. Winter is short, and summer heat not so great as in some eastern and northern latitudes. This Christmas weather is sunshine, warm, extremely pleasant. For weeks we have had a cloudless Italian sky.

The rapid multiplication of denominational churches in these new towns is a hindrance to the manifestation of Christian unity. Every sect hastens to plant its standard. In one town I found fourteen denominations—several kinds of Baptists, such as the River Brethren, who immerse three times, face forward; the Evangelical Brethren; the Dunkards, and the Christians known as Campbellites; several kinds of Presbyterians, Methodists, &c. There, also, I met one man who sneered at all churches, and said he was "outside the camp." He accused ministers as hypocrites, and evangelists as money-lovers. He alone represented the Church of God, and maintained the unity of the Body of Christ! I told him that he had shown neither sweetness, nor saintliness, and I had no proof from his conversation that he knew aught of fellowship with Him who said: "There is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of Me." Alas! that men who claim to know truth should fail in showing grace.

Dr. Blaikie on his Travels.

The genial Edinburgh Free Church Professor has turned to most admirable account his American holiday experiences of last year. In the course of his trip across the Western Continent and back he wrote letters that were published on this side. These he has collected, revised, and largely expanded, the whole being now issued in a neat and beautifully printed volume by Messrs. T. Nelson & Sons, under the fitting title, "Summer Suns in the Far West." A more chatty and charming guide than Dr. Blaikie it would be impossible to imagine, and the many British folk who cannot go to see for themselves the great sights that America can show, will do well to read this bright, informing, and interesting volume. Dr. Blaikie has the eye and the pen of an artist, and his pictures of the splendid scenery that lay in his route to California, and back through North-Western Canada, are excellent samples of descriptive writing. There are also judicious notes on the social, moral, and spiritual aspects of American life in the many places he visited.

MR. MOODY AND NORTHFIELD.

On his homeward journey, Dr. Blaikie paid a visit to Mr. Moody's native place; his impressions of the evangelist's home work will, doubtless, be welcome to our readers:—

"From Niagara we struck eastwards for a few days' visit to Mr. D. L. Moody, who was taking a kind of holiday at Northfield. It is a quiet New England village, very beautifully situated, commanding a fine view of the Connecticut river and valley and the mountains beyond. I call it a village, speaking in the English fashion, but in America it is a township. It is seven miles in length,* that is to say, there are houses dotted over seven miles, mostly embosomed in trees, and with the appearance of a sparse city suburb. About a mile from what may be called the centre of the town is a plain, but bright-looking, wooden house, the summer home of the great evangelist. A little higher is a smaller and plainer house—Mr. Moody's birthplace, and the residence of his old mother. When I was last here, nine years before, there had been built by Mr. Moody, a few hundred yards from his house, a large college, with accommodation for some sixty girls. It was designed for the teaching and training of young women, so as to fit them for situations of usefulness as teachers, missionaries, or otherwise. That was the day of small things; the change from then to now is enormous. Instead of one, there are now five large buildings, and six or seven smaller. A fine park of some 200 acres has been acquired, and its well-kept lawns and undulating surface, dotted with trees, make it a charming campus for the academical buildings scattered over it. Instead of sixty, there are now three hundred young ladies.

"Four miles away on the other side of the Connecticut River is a similar college for young men. A group of buildings, large and small, provide accommodation for three hundred. It happened that while we were there the pupils had just assembled for the work of the session. These buildings represent an outlay of about a million dollars. Mr. Moody was engaged in a great effort to raise a capital sum, the income of which would provide for the expenditure of the two colleges. Being one of those men who do not begin what they do not see their way to finish, he will doubtless, at no distant period, succeed in obtaining his desire.

"The colleges are conducted on the principle of self-help. Each student pays a sum of money, but not the whole sum expended on him. In the male college every youth has to give several hours daily labour on the farm. In the college for girls there are no servants, the work of the house is done by the young women themselves.

"Mr. Moody differs from nearly all the evangelists we have known in his intense concern for the permanent outcome of his labours, and his most careful endeavour to prevent the spirit kindled at his meetings from evaporating in temporary excitement. These colleges are one proof of his desire to build up, to establish Christian habits of life, to set young men and young women to work that will exercise and [illegible] that might otherwise be fitful and [illegible]. The great aggressive enterprise with which he is now grappling in Chicago is another evidence of his love of complete and solid work. He is training an agency for going out to the highways and the hedges for pervading all of Chicago that is neglecting the things that pertain to its peace, and constraining such to come in, that the house may be filled. With all his evangelistic ardour, Mr. Moody has no sympathy with fanaticism. His singular Christian shrewdness gives a wide berth to fads.

"At Northfield Mr. Moody takes his holiday. The fashion of it is rather peculiar. I asked the man who takes charge of his horses how often they were out. Sometimes, he said, the evangelist will require a conveyance at five in the morning, and two or three times during the day, and, perhaps, till late at night. He would be out before breakfast, to confer with workmen about something needed for the schools. The forenoon would be occupied in answering a great correspondence, and despatching letters with reference to his engagements and his institutions. In the afternooon, perhaps, he would be acting the peacemaker at some parish meeting. In the evening he would be away to Mount Hermon to preach to "the boys." On the Sunday he would preach in the church which he has built, partly for his schools and partly for the neighbourhood, gathering a great congregation round him. In the intervals of employment he would be bright, cheerful, and full of fun. He is now the great man of the place, yet is as neighbourly and unaffected and brotherly as in the days when he was a schoolboy or a worker on his mother's farm. Nor does he seem a whit more elated by the marvellous influence he has acquired the world over, and the blessed work he has done. He is only an instrument in other hands. No man would sing more heartily the 115th Psalm, or more cordially take for his motto Laus Deo."

* Surely the word "seven" is a misprint; our reckoning, after more than one visit, does not enable us to expand its one street to two miles in length.

DUNDEE.—A convention for the deepening of spiritual life will be held in the Kinnaird Hall, Dundee, February 26, 27, and 28. A number of well-known speakers are expected.

REV. SYDNEY A. SELWYN

Vicar of St. James's Church, Hatcham.

IN the great struggle for supremacy that goes on in the Established Church of these realms, between the evangelical and the sacerdotal parties, the name of Hatcham once had a notorious prominence. The scenes enacted in and around St. James's Church, during the régime of Rev. Arthur Tooth and his successor, were a standing scandal. Very different is the aspect of affairs at St. James's Church now. Within its walls the simple, Scriptural truths of salvation are earnestly proclaimed to crowded congregations, and the church is a centre of multifarious Christian effort. Humanly speaking, the chief agent in effecting such a welcome change is Rev. SYDNEY A. SELWYN, whose portrait appears on this page.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Elliott & Fry, 55, Baker-street, W.)

Mr. Selwyn is still, comparatively, a young man, having been born in Yorkshire in 1853. The father died while the children were still young. The mother and her family of eight removed to Norwich. The children were religiously trained, and received a liberal education. All the four sons were sent to the University, and young Sydney took his degree at Caius College, Cambridge, in 1874. In choosing a life occupation, he had at first resolved to seek admission to the Indian Civil Service, and was preparing himself accordingly. A chance conversation with a friend and former school-fellow changed the whole current of his thoughts and purposes. "What are you going to do if you fail in your examination?" said this candid friend. "I suppose I shall go into the Church," was the reply. "What! do you put that second?" The shaft went home. Then and there Mr. Selwyn resolved that the claims of Christ should have the first place, and the Civil Service never had the opportunity of enrolling him in its ranks.

He was ordained in 1876 to the curacy of North Walsham, Norfolk, where he engaged in five years' active and happy service. Then he was appointed to the living of St. Michael's-At-Coslany, in the quaint, old-fashioned town of Norwich. There he threw himself very zealously into the work of the parish, which is largely inhabited by the poor. Leaving the beaten track, special steps were taken to induce the people to attend Sunday afternoon services in the church, and with much success. The meetings were evangelistic in their character, and after-meetings were held. Wonderful times of blessing were experienced, and the workers had souls for their hire every Sunday. A large mission hall was built. A branch of the Church Army was established, with some two hundred members, and this did excellent work in the parish. The results among the people were truly encouraging; and Mr. Selwyn himself got a great lift in his spiritual life and experience.

After three and a half years of this Norwich pastorate, Mr. Selwyn removed to Holy Trinity Church, Sheerness, where he became busy as ever, in many ways. Then reached him, from the patronage trustees of St. James's Church, Hatcham, an invitation to undertake the spiritual oversight of that notorious parish. The apparent difficulties, of course, were many and great; but the offer came to Mr. Selwyn as a call from God to step into the breach and try, by His grace, to overcome these hindrances; so he accepted.

It would serve no good purpose here to recall in any detail the peculiar circumstances of the case. Mr. Tooth had gone, but matters had not improved under the pastorate of Mr. Walker, his successor. When Mr. Selwyn was inducted into the charge, he found two opposing parties in the church—"Ritualist" and "Protestant." Each party had its churchwarden, and its Sunday-school. The new vicar at once took his stand on behalf of reformed teaching and practice, and would make no compromise with anybody. The second week the Ritualist Sunday-school ceased to exist. All the Protestant teachers were loyal, and others were secured. The children were gathered into one place, and the Protestant School soon became the St. James's, Hatcham, School, with an attendance of about eight hundred. There are now five Sabbath-schools in connection with the parish, with some 150 teachers and 1600 children.

The progress made in other directions, during the four years or so of Mr. Selwyn's pastorate, has been equally marked. From twenty-five communicants on the first Sunday (most of them Ritualists), the average number is now about eight hundred. The large church is filled with a peaceful and devout congregation every Lord's day, as many as twelve hundred persons being present on Sunday evenings. An extensive mission work is sustained. A mission hall was hired at Brockley about a year after the new vicar's settlement, and placed under the charge of Rev. H. Gouldsmith, one of Mr. Selwyn's most useful and able helpers. He gathered there a large congregation, and the spiritual work prospered. In October, 1883, another mission hall was opened on a site near the Nynehead Board Schools. Mr. W. A. Sanford had gifted a house (called St. Michael's House), and an acre of ground for endowment. On this St. Michael's Hall was built. Mr. Gouldsmith took charge of this fresh effort, and his place at Brockley was filled by Rev. C. G. Wyche. Mr. Gouldsmith is now assisted by Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, as honorary curate. Mr. Wigram recently accompanied his father on a mission tour to India, and he is purposing to go out as a missionary himself.

A Lads' Institute has been opened as another parochial effort, and it has some fifty members. There are also institutes for young men and for young women; an aggressive temperance work; soup kitchen, &c., &c.: in all, five centres of work throughout the parish are sending out healing and help to the people.

In all these good works, of course, the earnest and attractive personality of Mr.

Selwyn counts for much. He is gifted with good organising power, and an abounding enthusiasm. These, coupled with a very genial and homely cast of temperament, have drawn around him a band of devoted workers. Not a few non-residents in the parish are to be found in the church, listening to the preacher's straight and stimulating appeals.

Many people were surprised, a few months ago, to hear that Mr. Selwyn, though in the full flow of work at home, had decided to go abroad for a period of service in the foreign mission field. The comparative rarity of such an event might excuse the feeling, but in Mr. Selwyn's case, at any rate, the step is not matter for great astonishment. His family name is one that is highly honoured in the missionary annals of the Church Missionary Society. There are also several workers now in the field who are related to him either by blood or by marriage. He has always felt deeply interested in foreign missions himself, and his training in the conduct of mission work at home has helped to give him special fitness for it. For the past five years he has undertaken two special missions a year, in addition to his parish work, and he is on the Council of the Parochial Mission Society. When conducting a mission lately at Redhill, he endeavoured to arouse among the people a personal interest in the salvation of the heathen. One day when in private prayer on this subject, God seemed to speak to his soul and call him to offer himself for the work. He straightway gave heed to the heavenly monition; put himself in communication with his tried friend Rev. F. E. Wigram, Hon. Sec. of the C.M.S.; and offered himself, with the only reservation that he should not be permanently parted from his family. It was at first suggested that he should go to Calcutta, and the Bishop of his diocese was asked to grant him a year's release from Hatcham. Ultimately it was decided that his leave of absence should extend to six months, and the west coast of Africa was chosen as his destination. It was felt that the native churches there would reap much spiritual stimulus from the visit of an ardent evangelistic preacher, and this of course would react powerfully on the surrounding heathenism. He sailed from England some five weeks ago, and intelligence lately reached this country of his safe arrival at Lagos. He hopes also to visit Sierra Leone and various places inland. We trust ere long to hear that his visits to the native congregations are being greatly blessed.

In a recent conversation with the writer, Mr. Selwyn expressed his strong conviction that the churches of Christ in Great Britain and America ought to make much more liberal contributions of their best young life to the work of foreign missions. He feels also that there must be an extensive deepening of the consecrated life in the native communities. This latter he deems very important, and it is with the object of helping on such a consummation, by God's help, that he has for a time broken the home ties, and entered on a campaign of visitation. As to the future he is content to follow the guiding hand of God.

A WOMAN'S MITE.—One of our readers, who says she is "only a business girl," being much impressed by the needs of the poor on every hand, has resolved to devote her small spare time, on one evening a week, to the making of clothing for her poorer sisters. She thinks rightly that if others in similar circumstances would carry out the same plan, a good deal would be done in the course of the year to relieve the physical wants of the needy.

[40]

DR. PIERSON'S VISIT TO SCOTLAND.

THE meetings in connection with the visit of Dr. Pierson to the West of Scotland began by his addressing three congregations in Glasgow on Sunday, Dec. 8, and ended on Dec. 30 with a week-night meeting in Airdrie. A committee of twenty members, embracing representatives of the different churches, had the general direction of the movement. They called meetings of ministers and laymen in the leading centres of population in the counties of Renfrew, Dumbarton, Ayr, and Lanark.

These meetings elected committees that took charge of all local arrangements. On Sundays Dr. Pierson addressed two congregations during the day, and a united central meeting in the evening. On four week days in each week there was a ladies' meeting in the afternoon for setting forth the need of woman's work among women, and a meeting in the evening for pleading the claims of all branches of missionary work. There were also on other days meetings with students, young men's and young women's associations, and drawing-room meetings. Altogether during the three weeks over which the movement extended, forty-six meetings were held.

Mrs. Armstrong, of the Karen Mission, Burmah, rendered most valuable service at the ladies' meetings. Her interesting statements of the progress of the work in Burmah and Southern India, her touching descriptions of the degradation of woman in heathen lands, and earnest pleadings will be long remembered by all who heard her. Each of the churches in rotation provided a missionary who addressed the ladies and also the general meeting. Rev. G. B. Alexander gave an account of his work among the negroes in the West Indies, Rev. John Douglas of missions in Central India, Rev. John Ross in China, and Dr. Christie of medical missions in Manchuria. Dr. Pierson's addresses were everywhere characterised by most intimate knowledge of the missionary work of the world, heart-moving appeals for increased devotion to the service of the Lord, and remarkable spiritual freshness and power.

The attendance exceeded the most sanguine anticipations of the promoters. In several places, though the largest available churches and halls had been secured, hundreds were unable to get admittance. The cordiality of the co-operation of the churches and missionary societies was a striking feature of the movement. Two illustrations may be given. A preparatory service was held in Strathaven Parish Church on the Sunday preceding the meetings, at which the minister of the United Presbyterian Church presided. The ladies' meeting was held in the Free Church with an Established Church minister presiding, and the general meeting was held in a United Presbyterian Church, with the minister of the Free Church in the chair. In Kilmarnock there was a general exchange of pulpits on the Sunday of Dr. Pierson's visit, and the ministers of different denominations pleaded for increased support to the missions of their sister churches. Mr. Douglas of the Free Church Mission in Central India was, during that week, the assisting missionary. He preached in the forenoon in an Established and in the afternoon in an Evangelical Union Church, urging the claims of their respective missions. The sinking of minor differences, that the cause of Christ might be advanced, was a testimony to the claims of missions that made a deep impression in every place in which meetings were held, and did not a little to call forth the interest which the movement elicited.

In regard to the permanent results of the movement it may be mentioned that the Central committee in Edinburgh hope to arrange meetings, in February and March in the northern, middle, and southern counties of Scotland.

MAJOR WHITTLE AT WOOLWICH.

IT would be safe to say that no evangelist has ever visited Woolwich whose ministry has been so much blessed there as Major Whittle's. Some hundreds confessed Christ when he was with us five years ago, many of whom are amongst the best workers in our churches to-day, and several who had grown cold, or had drifted back into the world, have been restored by his visit in November last.

At the united committee meeting, held a fortnight ago, a strong feeling was expressed that the mission was concluded too soon. At once a proposition was submitted to request Major Whittle to pay us another visit before he leaves for America. One of the members stood up and said: "I strongly support the resolution. My son was brought to the Saviour, and there are many parents in Woolwich and Plumstead who would like to have the same joy." Needless to say it was carried, and Major Whittle is coming back in March. May we have a greater blessing than in November. I hope to have the privilege of receiving fifty members into the Church at Parson's Hill on Sunday next, many of whom were brought to decision, or restored from backsliding, or more clearly enlightened as to the grounds of their acceptance, by these special services. The Christian Church in Woolwich and Plumstead has abundant reason to thank God for Major Whittle, and to pray that his bow may abide in strength.

It is evident to us, who have seen the results of both Major Whittle's visits, that the Master has chosen him and ordained him that he should go and bring forth fruit, and that his fruit should remain.—Yours sincerely,

J. WILSON.

PRINCESS HOUSE, BROMPTON.—Miss J. McLean was lately appointed by the committee of Princess House as honorary superintendent, to carry on Miss Needham's work; she having left for the mission field in Sumatra. Miss McLean is hoping that the way may be opened to receive a few self-supporting candidates at 108, Brompton-road (Princess House), to train for the foreign mission field. Such a Home would be greatly valued by many; the privileges offered would be extensive, both in practical mission work, and in daily intercourse with a servant of the Lord who knows so intimately the needs and preparations required for work abroad. Miss J. McLean has been twenty-four years in active work in China and at home. Princess House is one of the branches of the London Y.W.C.A., office, 16A, Old Cavendish-street. Any wishing for particulars as to terms, &c., should apply direct to Miss J. McLean, 108, Brompton-road, S.W.

Girls in East London.

THE Girls' Home, Hertford-place, Globe-road, E., opened nine months ago, is primarily for preventive work. The cry, on every side, of the Christian workers who brought us the neglected ones was, "If only this were a fallen girl, I could easily have her cared for; but because she has not gone wrong there is no place for her; and she does so need shielding." So it is no surprise that we quickly filled the beds we had, and received these needing ones to the shelter and care of our Home; shielding them from sin and temptation, and seeking nothing less than this, that everyone under our roof should be brought home to Jesus, the Shepherd of their souls; seeking in his power and strength that, for these neglected ones of earth returning to Him, there should be joy in the presence of the angels of God!

Nor do we limit our effort to preventive work alone; we literally seek to win all sorts and conditions of destitute and friendless girls. The work was at first very difficult and uphill. Some very promising cases proved sad disappointments; some we expected little from became glad surprises; but it is a work which, "wrought in God," and in dependence on his almighty power and faithfulness, proved [illegible], after patient sowing, in His time and way, a rich, abundant harvest. And now, at the end of nine months' experience, we can gladly testify to those desiring our tidings, that we have proved Him faithful who promised; we "abundantly utter the memory of his great goodness," and hereto add some cheering details of the work accomplished in this short space of time.

Over seventy girls have passed through the Home, the majority of whom have obtained good situations, and are in a fair way to earn an honest living.

The surroundings from which they were rescued are almost too terrible to describe. One sickly, pale faced girl had shared a room, measuring not more than ten feet by twelve feet, with nine relatives; and scarcely any of our girls have known decent sleeping accommodation. How can they grow up good pure-minded women? Swearing and cursing on every side, drink and squalor their usual surroundings, the public house bar and pawnshop familiar from earliest infancy—what wonder they fall an easy prey to vice? Whose soul would not be fired with the desire to save some from such a sad and terrible future?

As a rule, when a poor friendless girl has been accepted as a suitable candidate, every article of her clothing has to be burnt (they are only a bundle of loathsome rags); the next process is a nice warm bath and an entire set of clean garments, fitting her to mingle with the other inmates of the Home. Often our shelf for clothing is very bare, and we should be most grateful to any kind willing friends who would send a donation in material or money to fit these girls for daily work and life.

We would specially ask your prayers for the spiritual welfare of these girls. Their ignorance of Scripture is simply deplorable. Many come from the docks, near Canning Town, where the teaching of some of the churches seems to be that belief in sacraments ensures the salvation of the soul; and their darkness is beyond description! Patiently, simply, as to a little child, we tell them the story of Jesus and his love; and though oft it may be sowing in faith, now and again we are permitted to see the incorruptible seed of the kingdom bring forth fruit unto eternal life.

Is the work always successful? By no means; for Satan makes the yoke of obedience and submission sometimes so intolerable, that occasionally a girl will bear it no longer and runs away. Of locked doors we have a horror. We are fully persuaded, and have proved that trust and confidence bring out much good, even in the weakest character.

Yet shadows give way to sunshine, and we are gladdened by facts like the following:—One girl, a naughty, daring, rough lassie, who had tried our patience for many weeks, but for whom we had prayed day and night, was lately brought to the Saviour. Picture our joy, returning home one night to hear that Nellie had given her heart to the Saviour; and very soon Nellie's life testified to the fact that she, once the trial, had become the sunshine of the Home.

One night a young lady, seeing some girls fighting on the street, after separating them, followed one to her home—such a home, too, a tiny garret apartment shared with another factory girl. For this she paid ninepence out of her usual earnings—two shillings per week, for stitching the uppers of babies' boots; leaving one shilling and threepence for food, clothing, and the wherewithal of life. She gladly accepted our offer of training for domestic service, and came, looking, oh! so thin and ill, that again and again it brought tears to our eyes to see her. When the Gospel was put simply before her, it won her heart. She was baptized at her own request, and is following Jesus in the way; she is still in the Home, and daily growing in grace. Would you know more about her? Come and see her, and let her own lips tell the story of the grace of the King, who has won her life for his kingdom, and her years for his service.

We have an excellent Bible-woman doing much good in our immediate neighbourhood; a mothers' prayer-meeting, an intensely earnest gathering; and we hope very soon to commence penny dinners for the poor little bairns in this district. Gladly would we welcome any ladies willing to assist in feeding the little ones, or in teaching the girls in the Home.

Our hands are weak that are stretched out to help and uphold the needy and sorrowful, and we beckon to other fishers, gatherers unto life eternal, to help us let down the nets at Christ's word, and "gather in the lost ones for whom our Lord did die." MARY L. ORELL.

Hertford-place, Globe-road, London, E.

COW-CROSS MISSION.—Mr. William Catlin thus writes:—"St. John's Hall, formerly the rendezvous of 'The Clerkenwell Democratic Club,' has suddenly and unexpectedly fallen into our hands, and will in future be the headquarters of the Cow-cross Mission. The premises are suitable and commodious; we are now very busy preparing to open on Sunday, the 19th inst. £50 will be required to open free of debt. Mr. F. Newth will be the first preacher in the new hall." Mr. Catlin's address is 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London, N.

SAILORS' NEW YEAR'S FESTIVAL.—A very blessed season was spent by nearly four hundred sailors at the Seamen's Christian Friend Society's chapel and rooms, in Ratcliff Highway, on New Year's Day. After tea an evangelistic service was held, in which Colonel Macgregor, Mr. W. H. Seagram, Mr. T. Powell, Rev. G. J. Hill, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Maynard, Miss Messer, and others took part. The sailors appeared to be deeply interested in the service. During the evening many rose and told of their conversion, and exhorted their shipmates to turn to the Lord. Books, woollen mufflers, helmets, &c., were given as New Year's presents to 370 seamen. A large number remained to the after-meeting to be conversed and prayed with. Similar gatherings were held at several of the Society's Sailors' Rests and Bethels on the coasts.

MISSION WORK IN SOUTH LONDON.—Many interesting facts, in connection with aggressive Christian work, were brought to light at the annual business meeting of the Studley-road and Clifton-street Wesleyan Home Mission Band, held on Friday last, Rev. W. G. Beardmore (president) in the chair. A very encouraging report of the year's operations was submitted by the secretary (Mr. H. S. Bond). The past year has been a testing time, but the unity of the members of the Mission Band has held it firmly together, under the efficient leadership of Mr. F. Kent. The report of the treasurer (Mr. T. Alex. Ibbetson) showed a balance in hand, notwithstanding some extraordinary expenditure. For many years the old chapel in Clifton-street was attended by a very few persons; now, thanks to the zeal of the Mission Band, there are full congregations.

"TILL HE COME."

HE is coming! Oh, what glory
Circles round that promised word;
Hope, the hope of all the ages,
Jesus Christ the Lord.

He is coming! May that message
Of the Master's sure return,
Cause his servants' hands to labour,
And their hearts to burn.

He is coming! Then the sorrows
Of life's dark and cloudy day
Shall be like the clouds at even
In the sunlit ray.

He is coming! Oh, how swiftly
All these passing hopes and fears
Fade like dreams when morn awaketh,
After night of tears.

He is coming! Then our loved ones,
Who from us have gone before,
We shall meet; with them, with Jesus,
Live for evermore.

He is coming! Come, Lord Jesus;
Come, O come, thou longed-for day,
Dawn on us, and let all others
Swiftly pass away.

J. H. S.

Published as a wall-card by Mr. C. Caswell, Birmingham. 2d. each.

BAND OF HOPE UNION.

BAND OF HOPE workers pleasantly inaugurated the New Year by a successful social gathering in Exeter Hall, on Saturday evening. An unexpected guest was the Hon. W. M. K. Vale, of Melbourne, Australia, the president of the Victorian Band of Hope Union, and a well-known antagonist of liquor-sellers in the Melbourne Parliament. After he had heartily thanked the assembled workers for their warm welcome, he referred to the trouble which brewers and publicans had given to the true lovers of progress in Australia, and expressed his opinion that the Colony with which he was associated had made a great mistake in accepting compensation. He hoped, however, that England would profit by the bad example, and that what was undoubtedly his country's loss would be this country's gain.

Canon FLEMING'S New Year address was the event of the evening. He said that of all the duties we owe to our neighbours, that which we owe to children is of the first importance. They have a claim upon the Christian Church which has not been sufficiently recognised. Rescue Homes would not be so greatly needed if the efforts of the Band of Hope workers were better seconded. At the same time, there is reason to rejoice in the fact that every section of the Christian Church has taken up temperance work. Urging the workers present to fresh endeavours, he said that fifty years of work had brought him to the conclusion that labour seldom wore out a man; he reminded them that while they measured each other by success, God measured them by fidelity. Never had there been such a time for opportunity to work as to-day.

A short and stirring speech from Rev. Pedr Williams, who remarked that to uphold a nation's revenue by a nation's vice was a national calamity, concluded the addresses; and then the new dissolving views, intended to illustrate to children the physical advantages derivable from total abstinence, were thrown upon the screen. In connection with one of the pictures, the interesting fact was revealed that 6000 showmen are teetotallers. Mr. George Williams, president of the Band of Hope Union, occupied the chair, and gave the customary word of good cheer.

The Argentine Republic.

From a very interesting letter just received by Mr. Reginald Radcliffe from Mr. W. C. Torre (long a worker at the Ratcliff Strangers' Rest), we make the following extracts:—

"In the first place, with regard to this city (Buenos Aires) let me remind you that it has a population of more than half a million souls. It is a city about the same size as Liverpool, and with a stream of immigration coming into the port to the number of about 20,000 a month. The Government appear to offer every facility for the Gospel being preached. Let me give you one illustration. Mr. Ewen, who brought a Bible-carriage out, through the influence of Dr. Thompson and others, got it through the Custom House free of duty—no small matter in this country, where they grasp at all the money they can possibly get. Then, in order to move it through the city, he must needs obtain a 'patente' from the authorities. He had an interview with the Mayor, to see if he could get this patente free of payment. The Mayor told him he could not make an exception; but, if the carriage was for the 'spreading of the Bible,' he would pay the cost of the patente out of his own pocket, which he did.

"I am of opinion that there is no country in the world with such need, and such wide open doors, and for which less is done. I wish you could take a trip out here, view the situation, and use your influence in England to get servants of God to come out and preach the Gospel to the many thousands of souls who have never heard it, and are perishing without a chance.

"When I arrived last April, I found a few young Englishmen anxious about their fellow-countrymen, desiring to see a Y.M.C.A. We had a public meeting, and it was decided to have one on the London basis. As I had promised to do all I could, I could not refuse to accept the post of Hon. Sec. We immediately started an English Gospel meeting on Sunday evenings, and have worked it up from twenty to about one hundred. A young men's Bible-class, which I take on Sunday afternoons, is very well attended, and it is a most helpful time round the Word of God. We also started a meeting on Sundays for the natives, when the Gospel is preached in Spanish. Then we have a Spanish and English Sunday-school, with a very good staff of teachers, and about one hundred children on the register. We have our weekly prayer-meeting, when there are much praise and earnest prayer to God. We began with three, and have had nearly thirty.

"The teachers are all young Christians, needing building up, so I deemed it well to gather them together at my house on Wednesday evenings, when we help one another in preparing the next Sunday's lesson. My wife has a meeting for English women on Wednesday afternoons. The English out here are the very hardest, and seem almost impossible to reach, and the English women, too, seem very indifferent, hence she only gets eight or nine at the most.

"The work which gives us the most joy at present is that amongst the Italians. Some weeks ago my wife gave to an Italian fruit-seller, who came to the door, a tract. He came back in a day or two, and asked if he could have more, and if he could pay for them. As he had never seen a New Testament, she gave him one. He asked where there was an Italian meeting. We only knew of one in the whole city, and that at the other end, three miles off. The question faced us, "If there are Italians willing to hear the Gospel, why should they not have the opportunity? The Lord led us to an old Italian Christian, converted through an itinerant food-seller in New Zealand, at the gold diggings. He told us that he was praying for the Lord to open up the way for him to preach the Gospel to his fellow countrymen here. I cannot give you all the interesting details, but on every Sunday evening, the Italians come into our house, well filling our largest room. We have three Italian Christians now helping in the work by preaching and going in the street and inviting Italians in. We can do with a hundred centres of this sort in the city. We see the Lord's blessing already, and thank Him.

"The need of the Republic is hundreds of Christian men who shall earn their own living, and, while witnessing for Christ thus, in their spare time do what they can in Gospel work. Paul's way is the best, and has the greatest influence over prejudiced minds. This Italian brother of whom I have spoken was telling me the other day that what seems to impress the Italians most is 'that a gentleman should invite them into his house, make them so comfortable, and ask for no money from them.' They think 'there must be something in it.'

"Another thing that grieves me is that in this port, one of the largest in the world, there should be no 'Stranger's Rest.' I worked for years in the Ratcliff-highway work, and know the benefit of such a place. Something should be done. Hundreds of sailors of all nationalities, may be seen strolling about, and there is nowhere to go, except to the drink-shops, &c. Some have found their way up to the Y.M.C.A. My hands are already more than full, so I can only continue in prayer that the Lord will cause one to be provided.

"I must not close without telling you of the work of Rev. A. M. Milne, of the American Bible Society, who has been working here for over twenty years, spreading the Word of God throughout South America. He is a very faithful servant of God, and can give interesting accounts of the power of the Word of God.

"We also need Christian women who shall come and nurse the poor. Doctors' fees are tremendous, and hence the poor are much neglected. Any Christian women who have not means to support themselves can easily earn in nursing here ample to meet their need, and be a great blessing to the bodies and souls of the poor women who now are almost inaccessible. When one thinks of all the institutions, medical work, mission efforts in England, and looks at the great unsupplied need here, it seems almost inexplicable why such a state of things should exist. The great reason is that people in England have no idea of the magnitude, population, and civilisation of this country.

"Let me sum up by saying that we need a revival among the English Christians here. We also need workers in Spanish, Italian, French, German, &c. How is it that when other countries are favoured with visits from men of God like Mr. Müller we are left out in the cold? May the Lord direct some to visit us. I am sure they would be deeply interested, and be glad they had come. I ask your earnest prayers for the little band of workers here, and for the poor souls scattered as sheep having no shepherd throughout this Republic, twenty times larger than England."

Mr. Torre's address is Y.M.C. Association, 600, Calle Patagones, Buenos Aires, South America.

"SHALOM" HOUSE, 134, Upper Parliament-street, Liverpool, is a pleasant Home of Rest for Christian workers. Since the commencement of the work, about a year ago, the presence and blessing of the Lord have rested upon the workers. A training school has now been added for the benefit of those who desire to be useful in the service of God, without a long college course. Young people are invited to communicate with the superintendent.

KOLAR MISSION, INDIA.—Miss Anstey writes, on December 2, 1889:—Yesterday we had the great joy and privilege of baptizing and receiving into Church fellowship a Brahmin Guru, or priest, called Narasimma Charry. He delights in the Word of God; he pores over the Scriptures, and drinks in the truth. During the morning service he gave a clear testimony of his faith in the Lord Jesus. We ask the fellowship and prayers of your readers on his behalf.

MR. McNEILL IN EXETER HALL.

An audience of some two thousand persons, mostly young men and women, gathered in Exeter Hall on Sunday evening to hear an address from Rev. J. McNeill. He took for the subject of his exhortation the narrative in 1 Sam. xvi. 6, in which the choosing of David as king is described. It is the office of the Gospel preacher, said Mr. McNeill, to offer to every man a crown and a kingdom far more worth the having than those that were bestowed on the young shepherd stripling in that Jewish glen. A running sketch of the rejection of Jesse's seven strapping sons, and the taking of the youngest, afforded plenty of scope for making and applying points of spiritual interest that arise in the narrative. If we could see with angels' eyes, we could learn how one young fellow gets this wonderful gift of an eternal kingdom, and how another is passed by and left out. Eliab, the eldest son, was "too big for the place"; so, many of the sons and daughters of men do not get salvation because of pride and pretence. A man who might be a walking policeman in a pantomime will not do for a king. A high look is an abomination to God; and physical or intellectual endowment is in itself no recommendation with Him. It is to the lowly one that He gives grace. It may be that some of the other sons were the ravens of priest; they had no proper exhibition of longing for the high honour that was at the prophet's disposal. So in every congregation there are those who do not see the worth of eternal life. A short day's work, with plenty of payment of pleasure, is all they care about. The splendour of life's duties and responsibilities seems to be hidden from such dull souls. The kingly offer came so very near to these Jewish youths, and yet they were not counted worthy of it, and their day of opportunity was soon gone. God wants to enrol real men in his service.

David was chosen, and he, too, was fair to look upon. God has no objection to fine physique, or to its highest legitimate development—quite the contrary. David got the kingdom, first, because he was found in the faithful discharge of his duty. Faithfulness and diligence in humble service are the best passport to a higher call. David got his high estate, also, because he was ready to accept the responsibility when the call came. He "rose to the occasion." There is great spiritual peril in indecision and delay. Wayside hearers are liable to have their pockets picked of the heavenly invitation by the devil, who whisperingly suggests a little more dalliance with the world and with its pleasures. Let the great die be cast at once and for ever. David had troubles and trials, and days of darkness before him, though he was a king; but amidst it all he held on to God, and God did not let him go.

With a little too much, perhaps, of the fringe of "entertaining" remark, to which this popular preacher is often tempted, many of his words were yet as sharp arrows in the King's hands. His peroration was powerfully moving and impressive; though it did seem a bit of an anti-climax to get as a closing quotation some lines from one of Sir Walter Scott's poems.

Mr. McNeill announced that a special Gospel mission would be held at his church in Regent-square throughout next week, beginning on Sabbath evening.

THE McALL MISSION.—Mr. McAll has commenced a new afternoon evangelistic service at Rue Royale, where meetings were so long held by the venerable Armand de Delile. The liberty at present existing in Paris makes the Master's word all the more binding: "Go ye into the streets, and compel them to come in." Were it possible in a photograph to represent the scene in the room of so many different classes of persons listening quietly to the stirring appeals of Messrs. Brown and Anderson, one could not fail to conclude that the Gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

Alex. Donaldson.

Supper to London Waifs.

HOWEVER people in certain quarters may make their boast that "they mean to shut up" Dr. Barnardo, it was very evident last Friday evening that his East-end friends and neighbours knew nothing of the threatened calamity. He had proclaimed a feast; and for some nights before, trustworthy agents had gone forth to the bye-ways of the Metropolis, so that the great hall of the Edinburgh Castle might be duly furnished with guests.

The great difficulty was: they came in their thousands, invited and uninvited alike—a motley multitude between the ages of four and fourteen. It was no enviable work for a score of stalwart policemen and helpers to separate the mites of humanity, who had tickets of invitation hidden away somewhere among their rags, from among young roughs who were on the alert to plunder the coveted pasteboard.

As we reached the scene of action, we witnessed the arrival of a contingent of about fifty from some distant quarter—for all congested London contributed to the occasion. The pert little ragged sparrows of the street had formed a procession under the guidance of a manager of exceptional resources. He had made a requisition upon a tenderhearted greengrocer, and into his van he had packed more "machinery in motion" of the weaker sort than ever vehicle before contained. It headed the procession. By a clever strategic movement he stormed the Castle without the loss of a single member of his company.

What a scene the hall represented! There was a gathering of two thousand children—two hundred of the number, girls, living representatives of the poverty, misery, and degradation of this great Metropolis. A vast company, but only a tithe of the child-life that shelters itself nightly in single rooms and licensed lodging-houses. We only wished that the men who control the State, who, it is said, have already banished political economy to a distant planet, could but see, and endeavour to realise, what this meeting represented. They would surely do something. But no; the wheels of State move slowly. For the present, Christianity must exercise its duty in dealing with the outcasts of the social system.

Looking at them face to face, one feels how impossible it is to form an idea of the conditions in which these children exist. We espy Dr. Barnardo in the throng. What is he doing? He is taking a little girl to one side. To one of the lady helpers he says, "We cannot keep her waiting, let her have some coffee at once." Turning to several friends, he says, "She is not a savage, she is a little English girl." She seemed absolutely untouchable in her grimy condition. As she drank her coffee and munched a bit of cake, we ventured to ask her questions. She hears someone refer to the covering that was once a shawl in which she was hidden away. "Oh!" she says, "that was lent to me by a woman in the court, to come in." What rags were beneath that ragged shawl which neighbourliness had lent to her, we may not tell. Could she know of any Sunday-school? we wonder. Yes, she says, she goes to the Wesleyans. "And what did you learn there?" If you could have seen the listless face, as she replied, "They told us that God loves us," you could never dismiss it from your memory. God bless the "Wesleyan" at Cable-street, who has grace to teach that poor little girl.

But all this time the surging multitude is feasting, and we are glad to see that the bag of provisions supplied to each is more than can be put away. A portion is to be taken home. The entertainment included a grand exhibition of marionettes, and never did Christmas party enjoy the antics of these experts more than did our little London waifs.

To Dr. Barnardo the principal part of the business was yet to come, and he addressed himself to it. He has cast out his net and brought in fish of all sorts. If in this company there were utterly destitute children, the supreme moment of their lives had come. He was able to lift them out of their misery, wash them, clothe them, educate them, and very likely carry them across the ocean, and place them in a loving Christian home. He set all this before them, and out of the large company quite a number presented themselves as willing to accept of a helping hand. Each case will be tested, and dealt with on its merits.

Thus it is that the rescue work goes on in connection with the institutions over which Dr. Barnardo presides. His family now consists of over three thousand three hundred; but he says, so long as his friends send him no notice to cease operations, so long will he continue to succour destitute children on their behalf.

Letters to the Editor.

DR. BARNARDO AND ROMAN CATHOLICS.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to some words of mine, of some years back, and quoted by Dr. Barnardo in Letter iv. in a correspondence between himself and Rev. Thomas Seddon, secretary to his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop, as published in the Christmas supplement to Night and Day. (1.) Dr. Barnardo is emphasising his statement that "Your Church had not hitherto been able adequately to grapple with this large mass of waifs and strays...Moreover, the Rev. Lord Archibald Douglas...speaking at a recent quarterly meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, said, speaking of Roman Catholic children: They are lost, not through Protestant effort, but through our neglect." I did use those words, and I do not withdraw them now, but they require some explanation. An enormous amount has been done under the leadership of his Eminence to shelter the poor children in his Archdioceses during the past twenty-five years, and I should be exceedingly sorry if these words were taken to mean, that I thought the Cardinal and his flocks, priests and laity, had not done an immense amount. Nevertheless, ever since I started in the work of rescuing children in 1874, I have had forced home to me—to use Dr. Barnardo's own words (see same letter)—"That, outside and beyond these, there remains a vast throng of wretched children, the residuum of our working classes, the bespattered fringes of our city population, which have apparently slipped through the meshes of all ordinary organisations." It was of these I spoke when I used those words, but my complaint was not against his Eminence who had recognised the fact, and who, with untiring energy, had resolved to grapple with it, giving me in 1874 charge of it. During the ten years it was left in my hands I grappled with it very unsatisfactorily, because comparatively few of the Catholic community backed me, and my St. Vincent's Home, in the Harrow-road, was only able to deal with a sprinkling of the cases which came under my notice on every side. I endeavoured to bring home to Catholics how they failed in their duty in failing to join hands with me, and, speaking of such, I said: "They" (the children) "are lost" (to us), "not through Protestant effort, but through our neglect."

(2.) There is another matter to which I wish to allude. Dr. Barnardo, as reported in Christmas Night and Day, said at "a mighty meeting" at Exeter Hall: "Nevertheless, I have had this week a long letter from a well-known Roman Catholic priest, a man whom I greatly respect and know intimately. He wrote to me in a friendly way to justify the recent Roman Catholic opposition, and he says, 'Do you not know that no Roman Catholic gets permission to marry a Protestant until he or she has pledged his or her word privately to the priest that the children of the marriage shall be brought up Roman Catholic?'" Dr. Barnardo ascribes these words in italics to this "priest," and goes on to comment adversely upon such a course, saying, "Here is the whole Church of Rome by a secret compact with the bride," &c.

Now, Sir, I wrote to Dr. Barnardo, and I have the pleasure of his acquaintance, and I reciprocate his sentiments expressed towards myself. He has made a mistake in the date of my letter, and in quoting what I wrote. Both the errors are important, and need correction. I wrote not "this week," but November 26, before the Gossage case, and I said, "You see, when once a child has been baptized a Catholic, or even before baptism, if its father was a Catholic, or had, being a Protestant, promised (as he must have done before a mixed marriage before a priest) that all children shall be brought up Catholics." You will see, Sir, that these are different words to those that Dr. Barnardo ascribed to the "priest," and the course of action is quite different. As a matter of fact, the Protestant father has to make the promise in writing, and there is no ground for Dr. Barnardo's accusation, that the Church of Rome lays herself open to "a secret compact with the bride."

I cannot conclude without expressing my regret that Dr. Barnardo's evident willingness to work with us, as is evidenced by the correspondence, so honourable to him, between himself and Rev. Th. Seddon, has come to naught; but Dr. Barnardo asked of us conditions we could not (not would not) concede. He asks that we should tell Catholic parents they may leave their children to be brought up Protestants. We could not do that; it is impossible, because we do not admit of liberty of opinion to Catholics in religious matters. I still urge what I said in my letter to Dr. Barnardo. Why cannot he who, being a Protestant, does believe in liberty of opinion to all in religious matters, why cannot he allow Catholic boys and girls he receives to receive instruction in their religion within his institutions? Why cannot he do as the Protestant management of the Gordon Boys' Home and the Duke of York School do? I regret that he cannot see his way to do this; but I suppose I must take the tone of the meeting at Exeter Hall to show that such a course will not be adopted. Yet it is the only one which might enable his Eminence conscientiously to sanction Catholic children being sent and kept there, and I wish it could have been done, for I quite enter into the pain it must cause Dr. Barnardo, and all who take an interest in children, to have them removed from their care, as in the Tye case, and I deeply regret that we cannot work together in a grand work. But we are bound to tell every parent: You may not surrender your faith. I should not have taken any public part in this controversy, for I am a person of no official position, but Dr. Barnardo brings in my name in his correspondence with Rev. Thomas Seddon, and I am rather made to appear as censuring the Cardinal's inaction, when quite the contrary is the case. And in the meeting he quotes words inaccurately from my private letter (I find no fault with his using my letter without my name), which, as he quotes, no priest would have written, and as I wrote the letter, but not those words, some correction and explanation seemed needed from me. Apologising for the length of my letter, I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

ARCHIBALD EDWARD DOUGLAS,
Annan, N.B., Jan. 1. Catholic Priest.

REPLY BY DR. BARNARDO.

DEAR SIR,—I thank you for allowing me to see Lord Archibald Douglas's letter, and, although I have only a few minutes in which to reply between the receipt of his and the despatch of this, there can be no very grave difficulty in answering the chief points raised by your correspondent. (1.) Lord Archibald Douglas's first paragraph fully confirms all I have alleged in the Supplement to the December issue of Night and Day, which I hope all your readers will procure (Messrs. Shaw & Co., post free 5*d.*), and read for themselves—e.g., not that the Roman Catholics were not zealous in communicating religious knowledge to poor children under Poor Law and Governmental care, but that no earnest or adequate effort was made in London to rescue their own miserable waifs and strays from the polluting influences and cruel sufferings of street and lodging-house life; and that when I and others, who could not see those unhappy children "done to death" through the neglect and indifference of society, moved on their behalf, then, and apparently only then, did this residuum of waste material (being utilised through our efforts in the manufacture of good citizens) become valuable in the eyes of the Roman Catholic priesthood, who forthwith raised an outcry concerning "the loss of their children's faith!"

(2) Relative to Lord Archibald Douglas's letter to myself, he labours under a misconception; I have never quoted from his letter. I regarded, and still regard, that letter as a personal communication, acknowledged, but not properly replied to yet, owing to overwhelming pressure, and not to be quoted from, except in its entirety, without the writer's permission, or without my own reply attached. As may be imagined, I have received several letters from Roman Catholic priests and laymen upon the subject of their rights in the children of mixed marriages. I have now in my possession eight of these, all marked "private," "strictly private," or "confidential." From one of these, written by a well-known priest, who has occasionally written to me during the space of many years, I quoted at the meeting in Exeter Hall. I admit I quoted from memory, but your readers, and Lord Archibald Douglas, will judge how far I have been inaccurate in the sense of the words used, by comparing my speech with the following sentence, now given from the letter itself, which lies before me:—

"You ought to be aware that our people are not suffered to intermarry with Protestants until in confession they are solemnly pledged to bring up their children in the Catholic faith, so that we naturally claim all the children of such marriages for the Church." If that does not mean that a pledge has been privately made with the priest, it is difficult to understand what it does mean. Or what, may I ask, can this be termed but a "secret compact with the bride"?—a compact followed up by a secret baptism, as I have proof of in numbers of instances besides the Gossage case! (See page 179, December Night and Day, second col.)

Lord Archibald Douglas says that "no priest could have written" in the terms quoted. That is a strong statement, and may be understood in two very different ways. But facts are facts, and if I obtain permission to publish, over the full names, the more important of the letters referred to, together with my own replies to each, I venture to believe Lord A. Douglas will change his mind as to what a "priest would have written."

That your readers may more fully judge between Lord Archibald Douglas and myself concerning his Church's methods, I desire to point out—

(1) I never desired that Roman Catholic priests should tell Roman Catholic parents that "they may leave their children to be brought up Protestants." Not one word in all the correspondence or speeches published supports the idea that any such claim was ever made. I refer Lord A. Douglas to my letter, the last in the Supplement, dated May 10, 1888, for a clear and accurate statement of what only I had claimed—i.e., strictly honourable conduct on the part of professedly religious men then entering into a compact with me.

(2) That, with two solitary exceptions, all the children claimed from me by the Roman Catholics were (a) the children of Protestant fathers, who had known nothing of any such "written agreement" as Lord Douglas refers to, and had been, until the father's death or desertion, brought up in Protestant schools or entered in workhouse books as Protestants; (b) were rescued by me from most infamous or pitiable surroundings, in which they had lived for years; (c) were demanded from me, not by the bonâ fide wishes of the surviving Roman Catholic relatives, but at the instigation of the priests who had before neglected them, and now put in force spiritual terrors to compel such relatives to make the formal application required in order to its legality; and (d) all such demands were, with three exceptions, made professedly on behalf of immoral, criminal, or cruel relatives.

On the personal element in Lord Archibald Douglas's very courteous letter to you, I will only say that, although I have a very "great respect" for him, and believe him to be actuated only by pure and honourable motives, yet I would not have ventured to have publicly described my slight acquaintance with his Lordship as "intimate knowledge." And I cannot but express sincere regret that the Roman Catholic priests with whom my several communications in 1887-8 were made, were not apparently actuated by the spirit and governed by the motives which have been conspicuous in all Lord Archibald Douglas's dealings with "waifs and strays," and with your very faithful servant,

THOS. J. BARNARDO.

18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

AN "OBJECTION" TO JEWISH MISSIONS.

DEAR SIR,—The "objection" might well perhaps have been mentioned and the reply given, at the recent Jewish Convention at Mildmay, even though both the objection and the reply had been given at Mildmay a hundred times before; indeed, the familiarity with both objection and answer was probably the reason for not mentioning them.

Let us repeat the objection. The purpose of God is to preserve Israel as a separate nation. Rejection of Christ preserves that nationality. Faith in Christ absorbs that nationality in the Church where Jew and Gentile are one Body. In proportion as the Church succeeds in gaining believers among Jews, she destroys their distinct nationality. Inference: If then it be the purpose of God to preserve the Jewish nation as such, and their unbelief seems to be the chief of not the only cause of their preservation, and seeing that conversion to Christ destroys their distinct nationality, do not Jewish missions, which destroy nationality, oppose God's purpose to preserve that nationality?

I. Is it God's purpose to preserve the nation of Israel?

II. Is it Christ's command to preach the Gospel to the Jews?

III. If the Scripture says Yes to both, then, how is the latter to be obeyed and the formed secured?

I. Is it God's purpose to preserve the nation of Israel. See Jeremiah xxxi. 31—37. We need not quote the entire passage, which should, however, be carefully read; but let us quote verse 36: "If these ordinances (of sun, moon, stars and sea) depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever." See also Isaiah lxvi. 22: "For as the new heavens and the new earth (the Millennial new heaven and earth), which I will make, shall remain before Me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain." We need not multiply Scripture proofs, which are abundant; the above will quite suffice the devout believer. Israel's preservation is guaranteed by God.

II. Is it Christ's command to preach the Gospel to the Jews? It is, unquestionably. "Preach the Gospel to every creature," or "to the whole creation," surely includes the Jew, to say nothing here about the words of the Holy Spirit through Paul, "to the Jew first," which are in force still, and will remain in force to the end of this dispensation of the Spirit. And to encourage the Church to obey Christ's command, the Holy Spirit states in Rom. x. 12, 13: "For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek: for the same Lord is Lord of all, and is rich unto all that call upon Him: for, Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." The Holy Spirit through Paul further points out with great force and clearness the duty and privilege of converted Gentiles to seek the conversion of the Jews. Rom. xi. 30, 31: "For as ye in time past were disobedient to God, but now have obtained mercy by their disobedience, even so have these also been disobedient, that by the mercy shewn to you they also may NOW obtain mercy" (R.V.).

We gather these conclusions—(1) That it is the Father's purpose to preserve the nation.

(2) It is the Son's command to "preach the Gospel to the whole creation"—to "the uttermost part of the earth" (which surely includes the Jew).

(3) It is the Spirit's injunction, "to the Jew first," as a matter of order. It is the Spirit's statement that with the Lord "there is no distinction between Jew and Greek," as a matter of doctrine and encouragement; and it is the Spirit's intimation that unbelieving Jews are to be converted through the active kindness of converted Gentiles, as a matter of Christian duty and privilege.

III. If the Scriptures say Yes to both, then, how is the latter to be obeyed, and the former secured?

The Scriptures do say Yes to both. The true solution of the difficulty lies in the elective character of the present dispensation. This dispensation is nowhere stated in Scripture to have for its object the conversion of the world. It is a parenthetical dispensation between the first and second advents of our Lord, and its purpose is to gather the Church, the Body, and Bride of Christ, composed of individual Jews, and individual Gentiles. The Holy Spirit confirms the individual character of this dispensation by saying "To the Jew first, and also to the Gentile," not to the Jews first, and also to the Gentiles. The Jew first, as an individual now; and the Jews first, as a nation in the millennial age on the return of our Lord. No Gentile nation has been, or will be, converted in this dispensation; the conversion of nations as such is reserved for the millennial era, and under the personal superintendence of our Blessed Lord.

Do the Scriptures plainly bear out this view? Yes. The saved individual Jews in this dispensation are designated "a remnant according to the election of grace"; "the rest blinded"; "blindness in part is happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in; and so all Israel shall be saved: even as it is written, There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer; He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." The saved individual Gentiles in this dispensation are designated a people taken out for his name; or, it is more strictly correct to say that God's purpose in visiting the Gentiles with the Gospel now is not the conversion of the world, or the conversion of a nation; but "to take out of them a people for his name"—that is, [illegible] portion of the Church of Christ, which, when complete, will constitute "the fulness of the Gentiles" [illegible]. Then, in the 26th verse, the Jewish remnant having been gathered, the partial blindness resting on the Jews all through this dispensation passes away, and "all Israel," the nation, is blessed on the Second Advent of Christ. "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer; He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

The same truth is taught in Acts xv. 16: "After these things"—after the elect Gentiles have been taken out for his name; that is, to bear the name of the Bridegroom, and the Gentile portion of the Church complete, then, "I will return," &c. So that on the completion of the elect among Jews and Gentiles, we have clearly stated the doctrine of the return of our blessed Lord for the blessing of the Jewish nation, and for the blessing of the world. Your correspondent, "A Scottish Christian," says, "I once heard a successful Scotch missionary to the Jews say, 'We want the entire nation of Israel to be converted here and now.'" This has the appearance of zeal for the glory of God and the salvation of souls. But our wants and wishes are not to be the lines of our work, or our motive power in it, but God's clearly revealed will; it is what God says, and not what we wish. God tells us plainly in this [illegible] expects us reverently to regard what He says.

Besides, is it a simple fact that eight or nine tenths of the real work of converting Jews is done [illegible] by those having pre-millennial views. They see the dark days approaching, the corruption in doctrine and in [illegible] coming in like a flood on the Church as well as on the world, and so they hasten in [illegible] to the Lord to preach his Gospel to all nations for a witness, that the Church may be the more speedily gathered, and the Lord's return hastened—for his Church, and then with his Church, to bless Israel as a nation, and all nations through Israel. The post millennarians look for a gradual growth of good as the result of education, science, &c., but numbers of them are at the same time losing faith in the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, the Deity of our Lord, his atoning death, the necessity of the new birth, &c., and are rapidly sliding on the "Down Grade": while the pre-millennarians have their faith strengthened in all these revealed truths by the very corruption setting in, since a general apostasy from the faith is one of the revealed truths of Scripture.

A parallel in confirmation of the above solution of the "Objection."—In proportion as sinners are converted in this dispensation—Jews or Gentiles—they become members of the Church of Christ, and the "world" is destroyed or absorbed as the measure of the Church's success. If then the present dispensation be the last, and is consequently to develop gradually into the millennium, then the world and the Church will become convertible terms—the world will be the Church, and the Church the world.

What then shall we do with such passages as, "I pray not that Thou shouldest take them out of the world, but keep them from the evil," and numerous other passages?

The parenthetical character of the present dispensation, and the election of individual Jews and Gentiles to form the Church, the Bride of Christ, and then the return of our blessed Lord for his Bride as closing this dispensation, and his return for the destruction of Antichrist, the cessation of war, the blessing of the national remnant of Israel, and through Israel the blessing of the world, appear to us to harmonise all Scripture, and to meet the "objection."—Faithfully yours, 79, Mildmay-road, N. J. WILKINSON.

The Book World.

JANUARY MAGAZINES.

The Jewish Herald publishes a talk with Miss von Finkelstein about Jerusalem, and an article, "Rambles in Rome," by Rev. Isaac Levinsohn. There are several good illustrations. (1d. J. Snow & Co.)

Medical Missions at Home and Abroad. A portrait and admirable sketch of the lamented Dr. Fanny Butler, of Kashmir, gives a painful interest to this issue of a very useful monthly. (1d. T. Ogilvie Smith, 14, Paternoster-square.)

The General Baptist Magazine presents a good bill of fare. Rev. W. Evans makes an able contribution, entitled, "The Rationalistic Chicken." "Donations and Demands" is a thoughtful paper, by Rev. Dr. Underwood. (2d. E. Marlborough & Co.)

Church Missionary Gleaner. Full as ever of well-digested and fully illustrated information as to the work of God in foreign lands. Effort in Africa occupies a considerable proportion of the present issue. (1d. Church Missionary House, Salisbury square.)

The Antiquary appeals strongly to those whose minds dwell with pleasure upon the things of the past. Notable among the contents are "Roman Fortification," by the late H. H. Lines; and "Holy Wells: their Legends and Superstitions," by R. C. Hope. (1s. Elliot Stock.)

The Methodist New Connexion Magazine contains a good memoir of the late Mr. Henry Atherton, of Hull. Mr. John Shaw writes thoughtfully on "The Ethics of Holiness." An account is given of the Forward Movement in the denomination. (6d. Office: 30, Furnival-street, Holborn, E.C.)

The Church opens with "A Message for the New Year: God cares—why then trouble?" by Rev. James Owen, of Swansea. Dr. A. J. Gordon, of Boston, is the author of a suggestive article, entitled, "The Cross and the Coin in Christian Service." (1d. Baptist Tract and Book Society, 22a, Furnival-street, E.C.)

Toilers of the Deep records much earnest work among fishermen. Mr. R. B. Popham, late Mission surgeon, writes on "Visiting a Case of Typhoid in the North Sea," and Dr. Wilfred Grenfell on "The Gospel of Splints and Bandages." Contributions from skippers and other workers make up a good number. (3d. Bridge House, 181, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.)

Church Missionary Intelligencer. About half the issue consists of matter relating to Africa. Some of the communications from missionaries are of absorbing interest. Not only are the pages of this magazine highly attractive to those who follow the march of Gospel truth, but they will, one day, prove of great value to the historian of the Dark Continent. (6d. Church Missionary House, Salisbury square.)

The Harvest Field, edited by Rev. Henry Haigh, of Mysore City, began a new series in December. In that issue Rev. C. L. Stephens gave a detailed account of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Mission to the Khasis, in the province of Assam. Much cheering intelligence of work on the "field," especially in India, sees the light in this monthly. 1s. 6d. per annum. Methodist Episcopal Publishing House, Madras.)

The Sword and Trowel comes out with a new wrapper, brighter than the old one, and in some measure symbolical of the purpose of the magazine as a record of combat with sin and labour for the Lord. Mr. Spurgeon writes on "Stand fast in the Faith," and also begins a vivacious sketch of his journey from Westwood to Mentone. The other contents include an article by Pastor J. J. Ellis on "The Howard Centenary," and extracts from a lecture on "Tact," by Mr. Thomas Spurgeon. (3d. Passmore & Alabaster.)

The African News. Bishop William Taylor's magazine is always well worth reading. This number completes the first volume, which is certainly a wonderful storehouse of information respecting Africa. The story of the Bishop's life, being related in monthly instalments, will, it is hoped, stimulate some young readers to a life of activity in the cause of Christ. Though every page has to do with the Dark Continent, there is much brightness in the style of narration, and freshness in the treatment of old questions. (One dollar per annum. T. B. Welch & Son, Vineland, New Jersey, U.S.A.)

Footsteps of Truth. The opening article is by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, on "The Secret of True Blessedness." James L. Stanley writes well on "Christ—'The Truth,'" and Lucy A. Bennett on "Willingly Ignorant." (3d. J. F. Shaw & Co.)

The Jewish Intelligence. With this issue is presented a woodcut panoramic view of Jerusalem. In addition to reports of testimony at home and abroad, there are some interesting articles, including an account of the Jews in Algiers. (1d. Nisbet & Co.)

The Reaper contains much that cannot but be helpful to earnest Christians. Mission work in North Africa fills an important place in the editor's heart, which, nevertheless, has room for everything that concerns world-wide evangelisation. (1d. Marshall Bros.)

The Workers' Monthly. The second title of this new venture is, "A Magazine for Sunday-school Teachers and other Christian Workers." The first issue is not specially strong. An anonymous writer on the best Bibles for workers is too sweeping in some of his statements. (2d. Gall & Inglis.)

Young England begins a new volume in a manner promising well for the year. Of course there are new serials. There are also capital contributions on pastimes, and subjects calculated to sharpen the intelligence of the young. Among the distinctly instructive items are "Talks on the International Golden Texts," and "John Howard, the Prison Reformer" (3d. George Cauldwell, 55, 56, 60, Old Bailey)

The Ladies' Treasury. This household magazine has some admirable features, which are well sustained by several of the articles this month. There is an illustrated sketch of Mount Pilatus, in the Canton of Lucerne, Switzerland; and, as well as serial stories, there are papers of a more positively useful character. If fashions are represented, so also are matters of greater domestic value. (7d. Bemrose & Sons, 23, Old Bailey.)

The Missionary Review of the World begins a new volume in a neater dress. Some of the contributions are of more than common interest. Dr. Pierson asks:—"Is there to be a New Departure in Missions?" Holding that a new movement looms in the near future, he ably surveys the situation, indicating the many encouraging signs of the times as they relate to missions. Rev. James Johnston, secretary of the late Conference on Foreign Missions, marshalls important facts and weighty arguments in defence of education as an evangelistic agency. A portrait and sketch of Bishop Crowther is an attractive feature. Each number of this magazine is rich in missionary literature and intelligence. (8s. per annum. Funk & Wagnalls, 44, Fleet-street.)

The Expositor. The first part of an able study entitled "Internal Evidence for the Authenticity and Genuineness of St. John's Gospel," by the late Bishop Lightfoot, has the place of honour this month. The bishop shows conclusively that the narrative of the fourth Gospel could only have been written by an eye-witness, and by a Hebrew accustomed to speak in the language of his fathers. Professor J. A. Beet contributes an initial article on "New Testament teaching on the Future Punishment of Sin." Quoting Phil. iii. 19, "whose end is destruction," he cogently says: "If St. Paul had had any idea whatever that all men will at last be saved, he could never have written the words which indisputably he has written." It is needless to say that Professor Beet's thesis displays much learning and research. Principal J. Oswald Dykes writes a deeply interesting article on our Lord's first appearance at the Feast of Tabernacles (John vii. 11—29). (1s. Hodder & Stoughton.)

In The Welcome Hour (1d. Marshall Bros.), Dr. E. H. Riches begins a capital series of articles on 'The Beginnings and Growth of History.—The Railway Signal (1d. Office: 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.) presents a portrait and sketch of Miss S. Gardiner, of Hastings. The pages are replete with matter which railway employés will read with pleasure and profit.—On and Off Duty (1d. Marshall Bros.), a monthly periodical for policemen, becomes, as the months go by, a stronger and more capable witness for the Gospel of Christ.—Y.W.C.A. Monthly Journal (2d. Office: 316, Regent-street, London, W.) ably serves a good purpose. Members of the Association will find its pages specially interesting, as the subjects are such as concern them. The editor, Mrs. B. A. Bannister, addresses the readers in searching terms on "Ready."—Divine Life (2d. Marshall Bros.). There is much that is helpful in this magazine, the main object of which is to set forth the completeness of Christ's salvation.

Springtide, an illustrated magazine for girls and boys, is a new comer, which will doubtless make many friends as it becomes known. The contents are entertaining and wholesome. (1d. Elliot Stock.)

The Expository Times is taking more definite shape for a career of usefulness. There are some valuable notes on recent exposition. Professor Rothe begins an exposition of John's First Epistle. (3d. Simpkin & Co.)

The Zoophilist, issued in advocacy of the suppression of vivisection, is well worth perusal. The late Robert Browning is shown to have been an ardent supporter of this excellent movement. (3d. Swan Sonnenschein & Co.)

The Sentinel, the organ of the Social Purity Movement, has a long list of articles and selections on matters of the highest importance. There is an able paper on "The White Slave Trade," and the licensing of sin in India receives due attention. (1d. Dyer Bros.)

The Northern Star (2d.) is the title of a new fortnightly magazine of instruction and recreation, published in Edinburgh and by T. Laurie, 28, Paternoster-row. From statements in the first issue we gather that the rights of the people are to be defended, and intemperance is to be fought.

The Life of Faith is from first to last an argument for holiness of living. Pastor Theodore Monod's "Crossing the Jordan" (Joshua iii.) will be read with profit. Addresses by Revs. C. A. Fox, H. Webb Peploe, W. Haslam, and Hubert Brooke, make up a good number. (2d. Marshall Bros.)

The Homiletic Magazine. Preachers to whom this magazine is not serviceable must either be above help or unable to avail themselves of it. The various departments are well supplied this month, the Biblical illustration being devoted to a long and thoughtful study on "Angelic Beings." (1s. Nisbet.)

The Free Church of Scotland Monthly prints a valuable missionary article on "New Lands to be Possessed." Work abroad occupies an important place in the paper, and there is an important letter from Dr. Kerr Cross on Lake Nyassa. There are good sketches of Dr. Somerville, M. Eug. Bersier, and Dr. Elmslie. (1d. T. Nelson & Sons.)

North Africa, the monthly record of the North Africa Mission, publishes extracts from the diary of Mr. H. G. Harding, telling of cheering work in Tripoli. The journals of other workers form very instructive reading, which will, it is hoped, stimulate many Christian people to extend their sympathy in the enterprise. (1d. Partridge.)

Service for the King, the record of Mildmay Missions, opens the year well. Accounts of work in various spheres are rendered specially readable by being cast in a spiritual mould. The workers have their hearts set upon God, and hence are able to give us glimpses of their inner life, while furnishing outlines of their daily labours. (2d. Shaw.)

The Church of Scotland Home and Foreign Mission Record is always worth reading. Among the contents this month we would specify a sermon by Rev. Henry Duncan, of Crichton, on "The True Source of Spiritual Power" (Ps. li. 10, 13); and an article on Jewish Missions in the German Universities. (1d. Office, 42, Hanover-street, Edinburgh.)

The Church Monthly contains a practical New Year's meditation, on Ps. xc. 12, by Dean Chadwick, of Armagh; and a sketch of the late Bishop Lightfoot, of Durham. Rev. Theodore Wood begins a series of articles on "Some out-of-the-way Pets," speaking first of the hedgehog. Rev. J. W. Horsley writes on "Betting and Gambling." (1d. 30 and 31, New Bridge-street, E.C.)

The Guide shows an earnest endeavour to perform its part as a help to personal progress. Dr. Andrew Thomson contributes the first of a series of papers on the Waldensian Church. Mr. William Main writes a sympathetic sketch of General Booth, showing a wise discrimination in his allusions to some departments of the work of the Salvation Army. The literary character of this monthly is a good deal above the average. (1d. Elliot Stock.)

All the World. This monthly record of the work of the Salvation Army in all lands contains articles which all Christians may read with pleasure. Mr. William Gooderham, of Toronto, of whom a portrait and sketch are given, was widely respected, his hearty generosity not being confined to any one body of Christians. Major Clibborn describes the persecution to which the Army is subjected in Switzerland; S. T. Swift begins a series of articles on "Sociology and Salvation"; and there is a well-illustrated "Voice from the Cape." "Difficulties" is the subject of a stirring address by General Booth. (3d. 98 and 100, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.)

The Illustrated Temperance Monthly, issued in connection with the Church of England Temperance Society, promises to be a very useful publication. Rev. P. B. Power has begun a serial story in the first issue, and there are several attractive items well illustrated. (1d. J. Johnson, 9, Bridge-street, Westminster, S.W.)

The Chronicle of the London Missionary Society. Miss Bliss writes on "The Girls' Central School, Antananarivo," her sketch being accompanied by pictures of the Malagasy children and their teachers. In an appendix, Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson presents a detailed statement of the case of Rev. John Jones, of Maré. (1d. J. Snow & Co.)

The Christian Treasury. The Editor, Rev. F. B. Meyer, opens with an address on "Be strong, and of good courage, and do it" (1 Chron. xxviii. 20); Mr. W. Y. Fullerton writes on "Gospel Pictures in Bible Stories"; and Rev. W. J. Mayers gives "A Talk about Beginnings." The magazine should be welcome in many a home where the cultivation of the Christian life is the first concern. (3d. Marshall Bros.)

The Messiah's Kingdom is full of reasons why there should, in this dispensation of grace, be peace on earth and good will among men. The horrors of war are unveiled, and the cause of peace advocated; and no one can read without praying that God's kingdom may speedily come in fulness of power, so that men may study war no more. "False Reasons in Favour of War," and "The Peace Principles of the Early Church" deserve special notice. (1d. Dyer Bros.)

Consecration. As a monthly for the culture of the spiritual life, this magazine is worthy of high commendation. Rev. C. D. Snell writes on "The Good Shepherd," Rev. Thornley Smith on the "First Epistle to the Thessalonians," and Rev. S. R. Cambie on "Forget not, Fret not, Fear not." Prophetic studies are a feature of this essentially Protestant magazine, of which Rev. W. Frith is the editor. (1d. S. W. Partridge & Co.)

Regions Beyond. In addition to a capital sketch of the late Professor Christlieb, of Bonn, there are several papers on missionary operations. Dr. Judson Smith writes on China and Christ, and one of Miss Geraldine Guinness's graphic letters enlarges upon the need of the women of China. The tidings from the first party of the Congo Balolo Mission are full of interest, some of Mrs. McKittrick's letters being descriptive of very curious and encouraging scenes. (3d. Partridge.)

The Theological Monthly. Dr. Paton J. Gloag opens up the subject of the humiliation of Christ from Phil. ii. 6, 8, and Rev. A. C. Thistleton writes on "Theology and Medicine." The latter maintains that Christ must be regarded as the head of the medical profession, and that there should be hearty co-operation between those who treat the ills of the body, and teachers of the way of life eternal. He says: "Missionary work abroad, and often evangelistic work in large parishes at home, can be greatly advanced by a hallowed blending of the functions of the two professions." Mr. H. N. Bernard contributes a suggestive "character study" of St. Paul. (1s. Nisbet.)

Evangelical Christendom, the organ of the Evangelical Alliance, presents a well-digested record of Christian work and news of the churches. In the monthly notes we read: "We have many hopeful symptoms of Christian progress, the greatest, perhaps, being the increased interest in missions to the heathen, and the growing consecration of numbers, and especially young men, to mission work. The dark side of the picture, on the other hand, is the sad increase of rationalism, especially in the Christian ministry, both in England and Scotland; and the progress of ritualism in the National Church to an extent that makes its ultimate reunion with the apostate Church of Rome a by no means impossible contingency. Still, if Satan is marshalling his hosts, Christ's soldiers are gathering to his service, and in the midst of signs of the coming conflict, increased numbers are cherishing the hope of Christ's return, as the true and only real antidote to the evils of this groaning world." From these sentences the high tone and spirit of the magazine may be judged. (6d. T. G. Johnson, 121, Fleet-st.)

MESSRS. CASSELL'S SERIALS.

Part 4 of THE HOLY LAND AND THE BIBLE (7d.), by Dr. Cunningham Geikie, is devoted to an illustrated description of localities famous in the life of David, and certain parts of the land of the Philistines.—CONQUESTS OF THE CROSS (7d.), by Edwin Hodder, in part 10 records Gospel progress in the Hawaiian Islands, among the Red Indians, and in Persia, Kashmir, and Afghanistan.—THE LIBRARY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE (6d.), edited by Professor Henry Morley, has reached the twelfth part, which contains admirable accounts of early English writers on religious topics, with extracts from their works.—THE WORLD OF ADVENTURE (7d.), in part 16, presents, among other exciting stories, narratives of Masers de Latude, the prisoner of the Bastille, and the experiences of Alexander Henry among the Chippeway Indians.—Part 16 of THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS AND HOLY WAR (6d.) carries the latter allegory forward to the beleaguerment of the town of Mansoul by the army of Prince Immanuel.—THE HISTORY OF PROTESTANTISM (7d.), by Rev. Dr. Wylie, relates in part 20 the death of Calvin, and proceeds to describe at length the origin and growth of the Jesuit order. This is essentially reading for the times in which we live.—MILTON'S PARADISE LOST (7d.), illustrated by Gustave Doré, is brought within one stage of the end by part 24.—Part 39 of CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF ENGLAND (7d.) completes the third volume of the work by the relation of the fall of the Duke of Marlborough, 1711.—BISHOP ELLICOTT'S OLD TESTAMENT COMMENTARY FOR ENGLISH READERS (7d.) has proceeded as far as part 64, which brings this very important work up to Song of Solomon vii. 11.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

A Church Mission has been established in connection with the Merchant Taylors' School. Rev. W. A. Buck has been appointed missioner, his sphere of labour being the Shacklewell district of West Hackney.

The oldest clergyman in the Church of England is said to be Rev. John Elliott, vicar of Randwick, near Stroud. Mr. Elliott was born on December 19, 1791, and has, therefore, lately entered upon his 99th year. He has held the vicarage of Randwick for over seventy years.

Rev. A. C. Thistleton has undertaken for this season the chaplaincy of Trinity Church, Rome. He was for some years incumbent of Bagot-street Church, in Dublin, and for the last few years he has had a church in Shrewsbury. Mr. Thistleton is well known as a writer on prophecy.

The Bishop of Durham has left his valuable library to the University of Durham and to the Selwyn Divinity School, Cambridge. The copyright of his works and the residue of his estate, including his MSS., he has left in trust for church and school building and spiritual agencies in the diocese of Durham.

In an address, delivered in Westminster Abbey on Saturday afternoon, Archdeacon Farrar dwelt on the great need there was in England of a re-awakening in regard to missions. One-third of the churches of the Province of Canterbury contributed nothing towards the support of Missionary Societies, while no less than one-fourth of the London churches gave little more. All London, indeed, did not contribute twopence a head of the population. Yet the time for mission work was riper now than it ever had been.

METHODIST.

A new Primitive Methodist Chapel has been opened at Highbury Vale. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Clifford.

BAPTIST.

The elders of the Metropolitan Tabernacle met the other day, and resolved to address a letter to Mr. Spurgeon, inviting him to prolong his stay at Mentone for a further period of three months.

Rev. J. E. Cracknell, who since filling the pastoral office at Blackheath, Cheltenham, Newbury, South Shields, and York Town, has travelled in the United States, Canada, and Australia, has now accepted a hearty invitation to the pastorate of Arthur-street Chapel, Frederick-street, Gray's Inn-road. He retains his business relations with the Colonies.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. Alfred Norris, of West Kensington, has had a call from West Clayton-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

A series of Pleasant Sunday Afternoon Services for the People are to be held at Westminster Chapel for a month, commencing on Sunday next, from 3 to 4 o'clock.

Rev. Charles Lemoine, of Wycliffe Chapel, London, has accepted the pastorate of Soho-hill Church, Birmingham, rendered vacant by the removal of Rev. William Pierce to New-court Chapel, Tollington-park.

Brownlow-hill Church, Liverpool, will in future be carried on as a mission-hall, under the auspices of the Liverpool Ministers' and Deacons' Association, which has undertaken the superintendence of the work.

There are now in England and Wales 4419 Congregational places of worship, with sitting accommodation for more than a million and a half worshippers. The number of ministers in charge is 2093. In Scotland there are 101 churches, and in Ireland 29, of which none are self-sustaining. In connection with the London Missionary Society there are 157 English missionaries, 1185 native ordained ministers, and 36 female missionaries.

SALVATION ARMY.

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, of Paris, gave birth to a daughter on New Year's Eve.

The work amongst the Tamil coolies of the Avisavella tea estates is said to be very successful.

Thirty officers were sent abroad during December to various Continental and colonial stations.

Times of manifest blessing are reported from Clitheroe, Cambridge, Sheffield, Woolwich, Church, Luton, Barton-on-Humber, Burnley, Devonport, and Gorton, Manchester.

Among the candidates for the work in South India are a High Court pleader and his wife, a Canarese Brahmin, and a young Mohammedan, who was converted through reading Mrs. Booth's books.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. C. A. Salmond, of Rothesay, has accepted the call to the pastorate of South Morningside Free Church, Edinburgh.

Rev. J. L. Somerville, the minister of the Free Church of Scotland at Mentone, is proposing to erect a Presbyterian Church at that popular winter resort. For twenty years religious services after the Presbyterian form have been maintained in Mentone, and have been enjoyed by many from all English-speaking lands. The hall of the Villa Les Grottes has sufficed hitherto for the needs of the congregation. But of late the numbers in attendance have so increased that it is now [illegible], and the erection of a church has become a necessity. It is estimated that a sum of about £3,000 will be required to purchase site and build church. Already half the estimated sum has been subscribed.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

Preparations are in a forward state for the due celebration of the jubilee of the General Assembly at Belfast on July 10. Rev. Dr. Hall, of New York, is expected to be one of the speakers, and Rev. Dr. Killen has promised to tell the story of the Union.

Intolerance has again been manifesting itself in Dublin against Protestant ministers, who have been subjected to marked contumely and insult from the rabble. Recently two clergymen were assaulted with a shower of missiles, and assailed with the foulest abuse while passing through the streets.

About two months ago some friends interested in mission work in Dublin employed Mr. J. Carlisle to labour as a missionary in the populous districts of Ballynafeigh and Blackstaff. Conversions have taken place, while many families have been visited, and not a few have been induced to attend public worship.

A paper read some time ago before the Clerical Association, by Rev. R. D. Bluett, vicar of North Strand, Dublin, on "Home Reunion," is now published. In this paper Mr. Bluett pleads for an interchange of pulpits between the ministers of Protestant Churches, and co-operation in all philanthropic and social work, with the view of promoting in time a real union of the Churches.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

A First-day school has just been opened at Brisbane and a meeting on ministry and oversight organised there.

Haverford College has just received the fine library of the celebrated German scholar, Dr. Gustave Bauer of Leipsic.

John H. Williams pleads for a Sanatorium for India and M. A. Marriage Allen tells of work among negroes in Maryland.

About twenty memorials appear in "The Annual Monitor," among them John Bright, J. F. B. Firth, Lydia Major, of France, and Reginald Metcalfe, India.

P. Sergeant writes "Our Letter from Egypt" to The Christian Worker, describing the outward journey of the missionaries. They have since had a reception at Bombay.

The Friends' missionaries cannot yet find a home in China, owing to opposition of the rulers. Other missionaries, however, befriend them, and they hope for a settlement in the right time and place.

At the annual meeting of the Bedford Institute and Home Mission Association on the 3rd ult., John Hilton gave an able address on the recent dockers' strikes, and impressed the duty of Christian effort and sympathy.

After travelling almost round the world, and rendering magnificent services to the cause of Peace, Wm. and Katherine Jones are once more at home again. They will find a wide field and deep need of work in England.

Mary Ann Gundry, writing from Tokio, Japan, gives an interesting sketch of the voyage from San Francisco there, and cheering and thankful accounts come from M. M. Marriage, whose labours are being owned and blessed in Victoria, Mexico.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

The Very Rev. William Smythe King, Dean of Leighlin, and Rector of St. Patrick's, Ireland.—Rev. C. L. Powell, missionary to Kabyles, in Algiers, N. Africa.—Rev. James Wolfendale, for over thirty years Congregational pastor at Tutbury, Staffordshire.—Mr. Charles Anderson, a deacon of Dublin-street Baptist Church, Edinburgh, and for thirty years treasurer of the Baptist Home Missionary Society of Scotland.—Rev. George Strang, minister of New-road Presbyterian Church, Middlesborough.—Rev. S. Thackrah, for twenty years in the Primitive Methodist ministry.—Rev. J. M. Blackie, pastor of Highbury Congregational Church, Cheltenham.—Rev. Alex. Paterson, minister of Bainsford Free Church, Falkirk, N.B.—Rev. B. Robinson, Primitive Methodist minister, Poplar, London, E.—Rev. Daniel Morgan, Welsh Calvinistic Methodist minister, Llandilo.—Mr. Charles John Popplewell, late a member of Mare-street Baptist Chapel, Hackney.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Peter's, Mile End road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, JAN. 12.—1 Chron. XXIII.

THE first verse of this chapter summarises the incidents of 1 Kings i. It is here simply stated that Solomon was appointed to succeed David as king; there, the incidents connected with this appointment are given in detail.

The numbering of the Levites (3) was in preparation for the service of the temple. Joab had not counted them in the census recently taken (xxi. 6). But David requires their number now, not to gratify his own pride, but for the work of the house of the Lord. He has no need therefore to fear God's displeasure. The number, not counting the family of Aaron (13), was 38,000 of those who were over thirty years old (3). See Num. iv. 3; and contrast the number with that given in Num. iv. 47, 48.

These 38,000 were appointed to various kinds of service (4, 5). The work of the house of the Lord was set in order. Though there were so many, each knew what his work was, and when he had to do it. Theirs was an honourable position; they were separated unto God that they might serve the people. Some were judges, or local magistrates (xxvi. 29); others were porters, or doorkeepers (Ps. cxxxiv.); others were appointed to praise upon instruments either invented or improved by David (Amos vi. 5).

The families of the Levites are described (6—23), first, through Gershon (7—11); then through Kohath (12—20); and then through Merari (21—23). Note the distinction given to Aaron among the sons of Kohath (13), and the special work committed to him and his sons. Note, also, the description of Moses as "the man of God" (14); an honourable title, given to him more than once (Deut. xxxiii. 1; Josh. xiv. 6).

In David's "last words" (27), the age at which the Levites should commence their service was altered from thirty to twenty years (24). Circumstances had changed. God had given rest to his people. The need for bearing heavy burdens was now past (25, 26). While it existed, God was too considerate to impose such burdens upon young shoulders. Now that it no longer exists He will not deny to them the privilege and honour of service in his house.

The work of the Levites is more particularly described (28—32). This included waiting on the priests, cleansing the sacred vessels (28), preparing the shewbread and the meat offerings, attending accurately to the quantities required (29), and daily praise and thanksgiving (30). How insignificant some of the things appear; yet they were for God, and needed to be carefully done. They, like the people of God to-day, served a precise God. His least commandment is to be reverently obeyed.

MONDAY, JAN. 13.—1 Chron. XXIV.

We have here: (1) An account of the sons of Aaron (1—19).—They are mentioned in order to show the distribution which God made of them in the work of the house of the Lord. To have many priests willing to minister in the temple is good, but if they are not arranged in order, their number can only cause confusion. The appointments were made by lot (5). Even such a matter was committed to the Lord for decision. There would be no mistakes if present appointments for the service of God were committed to Him. Why should they not (Acts xiii. 2)? Of the twenty-four courses chosen, sixteen were from the house of Eleazar, and only eight from the house of Ithamar (4). The sentence passed upon Eli had considerably diminished the house of Ithamar, to which he belonged. Among the twenty-four, that of Abijah is eighth (10). To this course, Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, belonged (Luke i. 5). We may conclude therefore that the arrangement made by David, though interrupted by the captivity, was continued after the return until the time of the Saviour.

(2) The sons of Levi (20—31).—These are enumerated again, in order to give the heads of the courses of Levites who were to attend the twenty-four courses of priests. The appointment of these also was determined by lot (31), so that God might dispose of them according to his will.

TUESDAY, JAN. 14.—1 Chron. XXV.

Having appointed the courses of priests and Levites, David next makes arrangements for the service of praise.

Note (1) David's estimate of this service. Those engaged in it are called "workmen" (1). Their service is called "prophesying" (2). Their object was "to give thanks, and to praise the Lord" (3). Such should the service of praise be still. Whether the words are addressed to God, or to one another (Eph. v. 19; Col. iii. 16), our object is still the same—"to praise the Lord." We need workmen whom God has chosen, and whose hearts are in the work, to consecrate their gifts to this service. Many Christians who possess musical talent, and excellent voice, have not learned to say, with Miss Havergal, "Take my voice, and let me sing," &c.

(2) Who were engaged in this service.—The three chief were Asaph (2); Jeduthun (3); and Heman (4). The children of these three were also employed "under the hands" of their fathers (2, 3, 6). For this they were evidently trained: not simply that they might possess musical skill, but that they might exercise it in the service of the house of God. That is not always the purpose for which parents give their children a musical education. Besides these were others, "instructed in the songs of the Lord" (7), making the number 288 in all. The best way to use any gift which God has intrusted to us is to employ it in his service.

(3) The orders into which the singers were divided (8—31).—Twenty-four persons are mentioned in ver. 2—4; and these were appointed to twenty-four courses, as in the case of the priests and Levites. The lot was again used for deciding the order of their courses. Neither age, nor rank, nor musical ability (8) gave one precedence over another. Each took the position assigned to him by God. There are some choirs in this better dispensation who hardly take so exalted a view of their work. Jealousies, causes of offence, would be less frequent if this view were generally accepted.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 15.—1 Chron. XXVI.

The work of the Levites is here described:—(1) Of the porters (1—19).—This was an important office (ix. 17—27, xxiii. 5). Some of the men chosen are described as "strong men" (7, 9); others as "able men" (8). "Whatever service God calls men to, He either finds them fit, or makes them so." Among them are the sons of Obed-edom (4—8). It was he who received the ark after David's first attempt to bring it to Jerusalem (xiii. 14). Here is the evidence of the blessing God gave him for that service. Not only had he eight sons, but his sons were appointed to prominent and useful positions in the house of the Lord. He could not have desired a better reward. God also assigned the porters to their positions by lot (13—19). It was God's house; all in it were God's servants; to Him therefore belonged the right of appointing each one to his position.

(2) Of the treasurers (20—28).—In the house of God there were many treasures, including things dedicated "out of the spoils of battle" (20, 26, 27). These treasures had been accumulating since the days of Samuel (28). Over these treasures there were appointed keepers, whose business it was to care for them. Are we not called to a similarly honourable position. There are still treasures to be guarded with jealous care (2 Tim. i. 13, 14). These are days in which there is an especial need to keep the faith, once for all delivered to the saints.

(3) Of the officers and judges (29—32).—Note the character of these men—"men of valour" (30, 31). Some were appointed to the west side of Jordan (30); but a much larger number to the east, among the two and a half tribes (32). Their work was to administer justice. Their knowledge of the law qualified them for this work. Was it not very secular employment? So it would appear; but "the service of the king" was also "the business of the Lord" (30, 32). Whether their service was ecclesiastical or civil, it was the Lord's business. This spirit makes the most secular employment to be sacred.

THURSDAY, JAN. 16.—1 Chron. XXVII.

This chapter gives us:—

(1) The captains for every month (1—15).—This arrangement seems to have been made according to a plan formed by David at the beginning of his reign. Asahel, the brother of Joab, is counted amongst them (7), and he died during David's reign in Hebron (2 Sam. ii. 23). We met with the names of these officers among David's mighty men (2 Sam. xxiii.; 1 Chron. xi.). Their previous exploits had proved them to be devotedly attached to David, and ready to endanger their lives for the welfare of the kingdom, hence the honourable service with which they are now rewarded. The best reward to a true servant of God is to receive a more important and responsible trust (Matt. xxv. 21).

(2) The princes of the tribes (16—24).—For some reason which we cannot explain, Gad and Asher are not included in this list of the tribes. Among the princes mentioned, is one son of Abner (21), who, for awhile, opposed David at the commencement of his reign. The list concludes with another allusion to David's sinful attempt to number the people (23, 24). It led to no accurate result; for if Joab had been willing to complete it, the wrath of God prevented it. The result was not put upon record. The numbers that are mentioned (2 Sam. xxiv.; 1 Chron. xxi.) were probably derived from tradition.

(3) The officers of the Court (25—34).—These verses are interesting as showing what prosperity God had given to David. He had much substance (31), including treasures stored up in Jerusalem and in the provinces (25); vineyards (27); olive grounds (28); flocks and herds, camels and asses (29—31). A good part of his wealth was, no doubt, derived from his frequent successful wars. In the list of his personal attendants (32—34), note the name of Ahithophel by the side of the faithful Hushai (33). The privilege Hushai possessed in being the king's companion is less than that to which every obedient believer in Jesus is admitted (John xv. 15).

FRIDAY, JAN. 17.—1 Chron. XXVIII.

Much that was omitted in the Book of Kings, concerning the close of David's life, is inserted in the Chronicles. The one record completes the other.

(1) David's declaration to the people (1—8).—His life was drawing near to its close; hence his desire to complete all arrangements for the future prosperity of the kingdom. His declaration was made in a solemn assembly of all the representatives of the people (1). He addresses them, not only as his people, but as "brethren" (2), a term which none of the later Jewish monarchs would have been modest enough to use. It bespeaks also his affection for them. The subject of his declaration was similar to that previously delivered to Solomon (xxii. 6—16). The ark is described as "the footstool of our God" (2), because God was enthroned above it over the mercy seat in shekinah glory. Note the emphasis which David lays upon the choice of God (4—6). The tribe, the family, the individual—all were of God's selection. It was God, not David, who had chosen Solomon to succeed him on the throne, and to build the house of the Lord. These considerations gave increasing weight to his charge to the people (8).

(2) His exhortation to Solomon (9—21).—Solomon's first need was to "know God." To be rightly acquainted with Him would secure all the rest (Job xxii. 21; John xvii. 3). There could be no insincere or half-hearted service while Solomon thought of God as searching all hearts. Only heart service can be acceptable to Him who discerns the thoughts and intents of the heart (9, 10). The pattern of the temple, like that of the tabernacle, was Divinely chosen. It was communicated to David in writing (19); how, we do not know. Neither David's devotion, nor Solomon's wisdom, could be trusted in a matter so significant and important. These patterns were given to Solomon (11—13), with materials for making the most costly parts of the temple (14—18), with many willing and able helpers (21), and, best of all, with the assurance of God's unfailing presence and blessing (20). Solomon is highly privileged to receive such a charge from his aged father. Joshua had been encouraged in his great work by a similar promise (Josh. i. 5), and the same promise is given to all believers (Heb. xiii. 5).

SATURDAY, JAN. 18.—1 Chron. XXIX.

In this chapter we have:—

(1) The people's response to David's appeal (1—9).—Their help was needed because of Solomon's youth, and because of the magnitude of the work (1). The appeal was strengthened by David's generous example (2—5). It was not pride that prompted him to announce publicly the amount of his gifts (Matt. vi. 1), but only the desire to provoke others to a similarly joyous service. "With all his might" (2) he had engaged in this work, because his heart was in it (3). The response of the people showed that their hearts were in the work too (6—8). They "offered willingly" (6, 9); and they did it "to the Lord," "with perfect heart"; hence their joy, and the joy of David also was full. Is not this type as well as history? In giving our best to our King, do we not find our highest joy, and minister to his joy as well?

(2) David's praise and thanksgiving (10—22).—David's joy could find no other method of expression than this. Are we not often more ready to take our sorrows to God than to share with Him our gladness? The generosity just manifested in his people is seen to be only a reflection of what is in God (10, 11). Even their gifts to God were first of all God's gifts to them (12, 13); and the spirit to offer so willingly both in him and the people was also from God (14—17). While he exalts God, he speaks very humbly of himself and his people. "The more his glory strikes our eyes, the humbler we shall lie." The occasion is so joyous that he would have the memory of it kept for ever in the thoughts of their hearts (18). Let our every act of consecration be followed by a similar prayer. With solemn joy the people joined in worship and adoration (20). It was a day long to be remembered. For us it is valuable as showing that, not in getting, but in giving, we find our truest blessing (Acts xx. 35).

The chapter closes with an account of the commencement of Solomon's reign (23—25), which indicates that God's blessing begins at once to rest upon him; and the close of the reign of David (26—30). His whole history has been full of valuable instruction for all time. His sins and their sad consequences warn us, while his piety invites us to imitate him.

A VALUABLE PAMPHLET.

We have received a little pamphlet* which attempts, in a wise and earnest spirit, to rouse all young Christians especially to seek an intelligent reason for their faith, to know what principles they hold, and why they hold them. It proposes and answers four questions—viz., Why am I a Christian? Why am I a Protestant? Why am I a Presbyterian? and, Why am I a Free Churchman?

The third of these questions concerns particularly the members of one section of the Church; but the other three are important to all Protestant Free Churchmen. No one can read the author's definition of a Christian, and his reasons for being a Christian, without becoming more intelligently and enthusiastically one himself. We specially commend this portion of the pamphlet as most interesting in style and valuable in matter. The name Protestant is defended from the mistakes sometimes connected with it. To have intelligent and strong reasons for Protestantism is becoming increasingly necessary. Romanism, whether full-blown as in the Papacy, or in embryo as in Ritualism, is becoming increasingly popular; and every Protestant should know against what and for what he protests.

This pamphlet will give helpful instruction. Much that the author says as to his reasons for being a Presbyterian will be found interesting and valuable to other Christians. We gladly recognise his desire for some manifested unity of the Church; but doubt whether it is to be obtained through any existing denominational system. The spirit that will knock down our denominational walls, and which will make every believer in Christ appear before the world, not as connected with a sect, but as united to Christ, and therefore to all in Christ, is the only way we can see. We are thankful for so many indications that that spirit is growing.

The spirit in which he writes will make his pamphlet interesting and useful to every Christian reader. We trust it will be widely circulated and carefully read. It cannot fail to do great good.

* A Plea for One's Creed. By Rev. John Philip, M.A. George Walker, Montrose.

MELBOURNE.—The Presbyterian Assembly did a wise thing (says The Southern Cross) in nominating Rev. John McNeill for special evangelistic work. Mr. McNeill has great and signal gifts as an evangelist, and if he is given an adequate opportunity he will serve, not only his own church, but all the churches in a degree which is possible to very few men.

FIJI.—Reports have reached the Wesleyan Mission House, London, of persistent proselytising efforts in this island on the part of Roman Catholic priests. Now a rumour is revived that the Anglican Church contemplates sending out a bishop, constituting Fiji a diocese. Seeing that the great change in the habits of the people is due to Wesleyan missionary labours, Wesleyans think these efforts unjustifiable intrusion.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, January 19.

The Song of Zacharias.—Luke i. 67—80.

Golden Text: Ver. 76.

Note the interesting incidents connecting this with the former lesson—the birth of John the Baptist; the naming of the child; and the removal of the dumbness of Zacharias. He had been unbelieving concerning the angel's message (20), and was never allowed to speak again, until he could bear testimony to the entire fulfilment of the word he had doubted. Mercy mingled with the chastisement; for his long silence was an opportunity for quiet meditation upon what he had heard, and what God had promised. His faith grew stronger, his hope brighter, and his joy fuller; and all found expression in the glad song with which he broke the silence of months. It is probable that ver. 64 indicates the true place of the song, but in order not to interrupt the narrative, it is not given until the narrative is ended.

Zacharias uttered this song when "filled with the Holy Ghost" (67). It may be that he thought mostly of a mere temporal and political deliverance; but the Spirit who spake by him intended more than this. Let us seek to know for ourselves and to apply to others, the mind of the Spirit (1 Pet. i. 10, 11).

Causes for thanksgiving:—(1) The coming of the Messiah (68—70).—Though the birth of John was the occasion of the song, the birth of the Saviour (69) is its theme. In the first event, Zacharias sees an assurance of the fulfilment of the second, and speaks of it as already accomplished. "Visited and redeemed" (68).—That God should visit men is regarded by the Psalmist as an evidence of his condescending grace (Psa. viii.). Probably Zacharias alludes to the four centuries during which God had seemed to be absent from his people. The word also recalls Joseph's prophecy concerning Israel (Gen. l. 24); and its fulfilment in Exod. iii. 16, iv. 31. Then God visited in order to redeem; now He visits for a similar purpose. "Horn of salvation" (69) is in fulfilment of the promise in Psa. cxxxii. 16. The term refers not to the horns of helmets, nor to the horns of the altar; but to the horns of the bull, for in these its strength resides. The Deliverer, of whom Zacharias sang, would be "mighty to save" (Isa. lxiii. 1). "As He spake," &c. (70).—There is additional reason for praise in the faithfulness of God to his word, which appears in the birth of Jesus. Note the manner in which the Holy Ghost speaks of the prophets. God "spake by their mouth." See also Heb. i. 1, iv. 7; 2 Pet. i. 21. How long the promise had been given! How many had looked for its fulfilment in vain! Yet centuries of delay could not prevent the fulfilment of what God had said.

(2) The deliverance the Messiah would bring to Israel (71—75).—Probably Zacharias thought mainly of a national and political deliverance. "Enemies" (71), to him, would mean their Roman oppressors; and "them that hate us" would refer to Herod and his party. Yet he sees that deliverance as only a means to religious service (74, 75). Was the hope a mistaken one? We think not. The prophets had encouraged it; the disciples continued to cherish it (Luke xxiv. 21; Acts i. 6); and Jesus never declared it to be a mistake, though He did correct the impatience that wanted its fulfilment too soon. The covenant of God (72), ratified by his oath (73), makes sure the fulfilment of the hope which Zacharias cherished. But more than that is in the words. The deliverance is present; the enemies are our sins, from which Jesus has come to save us (Matt. i. 21); and the service is that which we render now. Note that salvation is in order to service (74); and that true service is "in holiness and righteousness before Him." Holiness may refer to the inward disposition; righteousness to the outward life. The teacher will not miss the opportunity of making the Gospel clear through these verses.

(3) The work of John in connection with Messiah's salvation (76, 77).—As a father it is but natural that he should give thanks for a son who was called to so important a service. To have children separated unto God and used in his service, is the greatest joy that a parent's heart can know. It is possible to every scholar to have a more honourable position than that of John (Matt. xi. 11); and, therefore, to be an occasion of greater joy. But Zacharias saw in John the fulfilment of Isa. xl. 3; Mal. iii. 1, iv. 5. He called John only a prophet; but Jesus gave him a higher position (Matt. xi. 9). One main purpose of John's mission was to correct the false views of salvation entertained by the Jews. They needed to learn that "remission of sins" was the first salvation needed (77). In an important sense, every teacher and preacher is doing a similar work.

(4) The salvation which should extend to other nations (78, 79).—Whether Zacharias intended this or not is uncertain; but it seems clear that the Holy Ghost did (Isa. lx. 1-3). The source of this salvation is "the tender mercy of our God" (78). The coming of Christ was not in order to make God merciful, but to give expression to his mercy. "God so loved that He gave" (John iii. 16). The Saviour is described as "the dayspring" (78), or daydawn. It is a fulfilment of Mal. iv. 2. Our condition without this Saviour is one of darkness (79), representing ignorance of God, and alienation from Him; and this darkness is "the shadow of death" only its shadow, but the precursor of the death itself. To "sit" in this condition denotes hopelessness and helplessness, perhaps indifference. The daydawn gives us light (79); brings us to "our feet" (80), and guides us "into the way of peace." Receive the light and walk in it now, lest the darkness come upon you (John xii. 35, 36).

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

The Scottish Temperance New Year Tract is by Rev. Principal Cairns, D.D., and the sale has reached nearly 160,000.

At the recent marriage festivities of Lady Mary Howard, the eldest daughter of the Earl of Carlisle, no intoxicants were used.

Canon Symonds, Rector of Stockton, has sacrificed £1000 by refusing to permit the tenant of a public-house on his property to apply for a renewal of the licence.

Mr. Walley, Poor Law Guardian, Nantwich, in going through the workhouse recently, was surprised to find about three-fourths had been brought there [illegible] drink.

A remarkable temperance gathering was held lately at Cardiff, to commemorate the election of six total abstainers as Mayors of Cardiff, Swansea, Newport, Cardigan, Haverfordwest, and Aberavon.

Mr. Winterbotham, M.P., attributes the slow progress of temperance reform (1) to the strength of the trade in Parliament, in society, and on the Bench; (2) the disunion among the friends of temperance.

In Belfast there are 1027 licensed houses, or one to every 220 inhabitants. This is certainly bad enough, though in some towns in the south of Ireland there is a public-house to every 70 or 80 inhabitants.

A united temperance council, composed of representatives of the various temperance organisations in Dublin, has been formed; it has already taken prompt action in reference to Sunday closing and Saturday early closing.

FOREIGN.

A New York State jury has awarded an only child 4000 dollars against a steamboat company under the Civil Damage Act, for the death of her father, who [illegible] at the [illegible], fell into the river, and was drowned.

It is proposed to erect a drinking fountain in Chicago in memory of Tony Delight, a Portuguese barber, well known in that city. After his conversion from a very wicked life he became an earnest Christian worker. For years, while running two large barber shops during the day, he gave his evenings to holding Gospel temperance meetings, and he devoted almost his entire income to charity.

DR. BARNARDO writes:—"We are in sad plight—nearly three hundred cases of influenza, and very many of my best helpers down. We are quite unable to reply promptly to a tithe of the correspondence. Kindly state this, and ask for the prayers of your readers for my poor boys and overworked helpers." Dr. Barnardo visits Bournemouth on January 23, and hopes to address two meetings there that day—afternoon and evening.

THE WEST LONDON MISSION.—One of the West London "Sisters of the People" has a class in which several Soho Frenchwomen are members. A recent convert at St. James's Hall was an ex-diamond digger who had fought at Ulundi, been captured by Kaffirs, and had many encounters with lions and other wild beasts. He was returning to Africa, but missed the steamer. The following Sunday he went to St. James's Hall, where the impressions of a previous visit were deepened. He was accompanied to the inquiry room by a steward who had been a fellow-digger at the diamond fields in 1871, and whom he accidentally met in the Hall. This is one of the "remarkable stories" of mission incidents which are being published in the new monthly magazine, Advance.

DAY OF PRAYER FOR IRELAND.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE IRISH CHURCH MISSIONS' SOCIETY

Cordially invite all who desire the Temporal and Spiritual welfare of Ireland to UNITE with them in SPECIAL PRAYER and THANKSGIVING for Ireland on THURSDAY, January 16.

The ANNIVERSARY PRAYER MEETING of the SOCIETY will (D.V.) be held at the OFFICES, 11, BUCKINGHAM-STREET, STRAND, at Half-past Two p.m. on that day, when
Rev. CANON GIRDLESTONE,
Rev. NEVILE SHERBROOKE,
Sir ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.,
And others are expected to take part in the meeting.

Christian Community.

ALL-NIGHT RESCUE WORK.

ALREADY, since this work began, 21,000 poor Homeless and Starving Men have been gathered from the streets in the dead of night, Sheltered, Fed, and otherwise assisted, with most gratifying results.

This season has commenced with more than usual severity, arising from the recent Dock Labourers' Strike and other causes; and from present appearances an unusually severe season is most certainly apprehended, making our appeal all the more urgent.

The continuance of this much-needed work must depend upon the liberality of those having the means to support it. Contributions will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY; or Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or by the EDITORS of "THE CHRISTIAN."

JAS. ATKINSON, Secretary.

28, Enfield-road, Kingsland, London, N.

Royal Hospital for Incurables,

WEST HILL, PUTNEY HEATH,

Instituted 31st July, 1854.

PATRON: His Royal Highness the Prince of WALES, K.G.
PRESIDENT: The Right Hon. the Earl of ABERDEEN.
TREASURER: JOHN DERBY ALLCROFT, Esq., F.R.A.S.

This Charity was established to relieve and to cherish, during the remainder of life, persons above the pauper class, suffering from incurable maladies, and thereby disqualified for the duties of life.

For persons needing a home, an asylum is provided, medical attendance, nursing, and domestic comforts are supplied, and the endeavour is made to alleviate suffering, and to cheer the life from which health has departed.

To persons having a home, but without the means of support, a pension of £20 a year is given; thus the family circle is unbroken, and the invalid is relieved from the pain of dependence.

There are at present 217 inmates and 561 pensioners; total, 778.

The Institution is open every week-day for the inspection of subscribers and friends between the hours of 12 and 6.

The above work is its own appeal.

The public are reminded that it is maintained by VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

SUBSCRIPTIONS and DONATIONS are most earnestly solicited.

An Annual Subscriber has One Vote for each Half Guinea; a Life Subscriber has One Vote for each Five Guineas. FREDERIC ANDREW, Secretary.

Office—106, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

FRIENDS OF

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES

Visiting in the South of France, may forward CHRISTMAS GIFTS or NEW YEAR'S OFFERINGS towards the support of the 3,250 Homeless and Destitute Boys and Girls now resident in the Homes, to

CHEYNE BRADY, Esq.,
Les Syrphes, Cannes;

or, to the Office of the Homes, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

SILENT SUFFERING IN EAST LONDON.—During the recent cold weather, with severe frost in London, one of the most afflictive homes we visited was that of a respectable Christian widow, over sixty years of age, who had only just got about from an attack of Bronchitis, and was this bitter cold day making match-boxes at 2½d. per gross (288 pieces), without a particle of fire in her grate, or means to procure it. We could well distribute a few tons of coal just now.

NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSION.

Contributions would be gladly received by Mrs. F. A. BEVAN, 60, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or by the Director, Mr. W. CHORLEY, 2, Marquess Grove, Canonbury, N.

OPEN-AIR MISSION

THE 37th ANNUAL MEETING will be held in the MEMORIAL HALL, Farringdon-street, E.C., on Monday, January 13, at 7 p.m.

Chairman, THE HON. HENRY NOEL.

Speakers: Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence, Rev. W. Pierce, Rev. J. A. Shephard, and Colonel H. G. MacGregor, A.D.C., C.B.

Tickets for Tea, 1s. each. May be had of the Secretary, Mr. GAWIN KIRKHAM, at the Office, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, W.C.

Tickets not required for the Public Meeting.

PEOPLE'S BIBLE UNION.

CALENDARS FOR 1890 NOW READY. Especially adapted for Working People. For particulars send stamped and addressed envelope to

Rev. HERBERT H. DIBBEN,
The Rectory,
Brierley Hill.

Local Secretaries wanted.

CENTRAL ASSOCIATION

FOR

STOPPING THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS ON SUNDAY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above will (D.V.) be held in the Mayor's Parlour, Town Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday, Jan. 28; the Mayor to take the chair at 2.30.

All who wish to have the Sundays of England protected from the Liquor Traffic are cordially invited.

Those who kindly desire to contribute to the funds, or to see the publications, or to have a meeting in their own neighbourhood in support of the object of the above Association, are requested to write to the Rev. J. W. CAUSER, Secretary, 14, Brown Street, Manchester.

FIELD LANE REFUGES

AND RAGGED SCHOOLS,

VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.

£80 per week required to carry on the Winter's work. For results of work see advertisement in last week's CHRISTIAN.

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

Price One Penny; 1s. per dozen, post free.

THE DEVIL'S MISSION OF AMUSEMENT.

A SEQUEL.

The Former Protest Vindicated and Illustrated by

ARCHIBALD G. BROWN.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.,

Of Philadelphia,

Will deliver Addresses on WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, at 7 p.m., at

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, BUCKINGHAM GATE

On THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, at 7.30 p.m., at

DOWNS CHAPEL, CLAPTON.

On FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, at 8 p.m., at

MARYLEBONE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

Upper George St., Bryanston Square.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed under carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in the large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where permitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are now seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings on board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is supported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN IN CLERKENWELL.

(Address Letters and Parcels, 17, Claremont Square, Pentonville.)

THE COW CROSS MISSION.

WILLIAM CATLIN, Gen. Sup.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED. COLLECTING CARDS ON APPLICATION.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road. S.E.

MESSRS. MIDDLETON and HOGBEN are prepared to conduct evangelistic missions in town or country.—Apply to Mr. William Baker, Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY will conduct the services at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W., during Jan., Sun., at 11 and 7, and at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, Wed., at 8.

Y.W.C.A., 316, REGENT-STREET, W.—Bible-readings by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Subject—"Epistle to the Colossians," on Thurs., Jan. 16 to Feb. 13, at 11.30 a.m.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting, St. Peter's Cornhill, 1.30 to 2 p.m. Bible-reading, 1 to 1.30 p.m. Bible-reading, Mons., 6.15 p.m. Missionary meeting, every Thurs., 6.15 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45. p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30, public. Gospel meetings for men nightly, at 8. Bible-reading, Sat. at 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., at 8. Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Piccadilly: Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. Josiah Nix. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Annual meeting, Monday, Jan. 13, in Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street. Chairman, Hon. Henry Noel. Tea at 6. Meeting at 7 (see advt.).

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, Park-square East (near Portland-road Station), N.W.—Sun., services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Regent-square, W.C.—Rev. John McNeill, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 7.30. p.m.

DUNDEE.—Convention for the deepening of spiritual life, Kinnaird Hall, Feb. 26—28.

DUBLIN CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life Ancient Concert Rooms, Dublin. Jan. 20—25. Revs. Evan H. Hopkins, Dr. Elder Cumming, John Sloan, J. T. Butlin, J. Gelson Gregson, Colonel Oldham, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Major Headley each Sun. in Jan., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Preacher for Jan. 12, 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. W. S. Fleck (of Fairlie, N.B.).

CONFERENCE of Believers at Bristol, Jan. 14 and 15. Particulars of Mr. J. A. Vicary, Ebenezer House, Dalrymple-road.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services every Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Jan. 12, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. Herbert Taylor. Thurs. Jan. 16. 8 p.m., Rev. James Neil, M.A., will lecture on "The Figurative Language of Scripture." Bible-reading, Wed., 8 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., 11, and 6.30, Mr. Charles Inglis.

ST. JOHN'S HALL, Clerkenwell (future head-quarters of The Cow Cross Mission).—Opening services next Sunday evening, F. Newth, Esq. at 7. Five nights following, Mr. J. Dight at 8.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Jan. 17, social meeting for Bible study. Tea at 6. Address by Miss Mason, at 7 p.m. Subject—"God, the Sanctifier." Sundays at 3.30 p.m.; Bible-reading by Miss Mason.

Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON'S monthly sermon to young men in Islington Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-road, near "The Angel," Sunday evening, Jan. 12, at 6.30.

LADS' REST, 69, Park-road, West Dulwich, S.E.—Mr. George Holland will give an account of the work of the George-yard, Mission, Whitechapel, Wed. Jan. 15, 3 p.m.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, at 11 a.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright; 7 p.m.; Mr. Joseph Clark.

FARNLEY ROOMS, King's-road, Chelsea, S.W.—Holiness meetings conducted by Rev. F. D. Sanford. Jan. 19—26; Suns., at 3 and 7 p.m.; week-days (Sat. ex.), at 3.30 and 8 p.m.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 29, Bethnal Green-road.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wed., Jan. 15 Tea at 6, meeting at 7 p.m. Rev. F. B. Meyer will give the address.

SHAFTESBURY INSTITUTE, Harrow-street, Lisson-grove, N.W.—Second anniversary meeting, Fri., Jan. 17; 4.30 p.m., Dr. Donald Fraser, Mr. Geo. Holland, Lieut. Knox, R.N.; and a short account of the work will be given.

LORD RADSTOCK has been labouring at Poona. He spoke at three or four meetings a day. One Sunday he addressed between five and six hundred native students and others in the theatre of the city.

[50]

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

"Inasmuch."—Kindly say what amount is for.

K.R.H., "Poly."—Amounts do not agree; please send full address.

	£	s.	d.
China Inland Mission—M.M. £1; E.F.C. 5s.; W.C. £1; M. £1	3	5	0
McAll Mission—E.S.T. £3; F.F. £2 2s; Mrs. G.P. 10s; Friend £1	6	12	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—E.S.T.	2	0	0
Livingstonia Mission, African Lakes—Miss L. 10s; Soudan, 5s	0	15	0
London Missionary Society	2	0	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—A.F.L.	1	0	6
British and Foreign Bible Society—Miss S P. ...	1	0	0
Mr. D. C. Joseph's Work, Jerusalem—Miss E.W.	0	10	0
Turkish Mission Aid Society—"Unto Him" £2	2	0	0
Spezia Mission (Rev. E. Clarke)—C.T.	0	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—Mrs. G.P.	0	10	0
Mrs. Wall's Work, Rome—Mrs. G.P.	0	10	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—Mrs. G.P. 10s.; Sympathy, £1; H.H. 2s 6d; M.H. 2s 6d.	1	15	0
Pastor Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—Mrs. G.P. 10s; R.M. £10	10	10	0
Poor Jews (Mrs. Finn)—Sympathy	2	0	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—Miss R...	1	0	0
Church Missionary Society—V. £2; M. £2 ...	4	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage (Rev. C.H. Spurgeon)—M.S.	3	3	0
Printers' Pension Society—M.S.	1	1	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—E.P. 3s 2d; M.A. 5s; O. £2; Mrs. W. 10s; Miss R. 10s; I.H.M. £5; R.M. £20	28	8	2
Somers Town Blind Aid Society—Mrs. E.F.S. ...	0	10	0
Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children—Mrs. C. 5s; T.C. 10s; Warren, £1	1	15	0
Union Hall Mission—Cheltenham	0	1	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—A.F.N.B. 5s; O. £2; F.B. 5s; J.G.C. 10s; J.N.A.R. 7s; S.B.J. £2; H.B.P. 5s; E.F.C. 5s; Mrs. T. 10s 2d; A.F.E. £1 0s 7d; S.W. 10s; R.R. 5s; A Reader, £1; Mrs. W. £1; M. 10s; A Reader, £1; H.M.R. 5s; A.Y. £1; Mrs. H. £5; H.S.B. £2 2s; B.D.L. 10s; F.R. 10s...	20	19	9
Dr. Barnardo's Law Costs—J.P.P. 3s. 6d.; C. and E.T.S.M. £1	1	3	6
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—A.Z. 5s; M.M.G. 5s; H.B.S. 10s; Mrs. W.H.B. 5s; "Unto Him" £2	3	5	0
Watercress and Flower Sellers' Mission—M.M.G. 5s; H.B.S. 10s; T.C. 10s	1	[illegible]	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—I.H. 10s; J.S.C. £1; H.B.P. 5s; T.C. 10s; Mrs. E.D. 13s 2d; A.F.E. £1 0s 6d; H.S. 5s; Miss R. £1; H.S.B £2 2s; I.H.M. £1; "Unto Him," £3...	11	5	8
Evangelistic Mission—M.M.G. 5s; H.B.S. 10s; J.S.C. £1; A Reader, £1	2	15	0
Free Meals, Breakfasts, &c., for Poor—M.A. 5s; Mrs. W. H. B. 5s.	0	10	0
Friendless & Fallen—T.R.L. 5s; E.A B. 10s 6d; O. £2; J.S.C. £1; H.B.P. 5s; T.C. 10s; Miss R. 10s; M.E. 10s; "Unto Him," £3	8	10	6
Homes Hope, Regent-square—T.R.L.	0	5	0
Latymer-rd. Msn.—T.R.L. 5s; H.B.S. 10s; T.C. 10s	1	5	0
Home of Industry—M.M. £1; T.C. 10s; C. and E.T.S.M. 10s; W.C. £1; Miss R. 10s; I.H.M. £1	4	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—O.	2	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Mission, &c.—O. £5; T.C. 10s; C. & E.T.S.M. 10s; I.H.M. £1	7	0	0
G[illegible]: O. £2; T.C. [illegible]; M. [illegible]; A.J.C. £1; M.E. 10s; V. [illegible]; I.H.M. £1	8	5	0
Salvation Army—E.S.T. £1; G.W.W. 10s; M. 5s; F.R. 10s; J.I.D. £3; (Slum Work)—R.M. £10; I.H.M. 10s	15	15	0
Mildmay Winter Relief Fund—E.S.T...	1	0	0
Irish Church Missions—O...	2	0	0
Home Teaching Society for Blind—E.S.T... ...	1	0	0
Homes for Little Boys, Farningham, &c.—E.S.T.	2	0	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—V. £2; M.E. 10s; A.E. 10s; H.B.S. 10s; J.S.C. £1; T.C. 10s; "Unto Him," £4 (Conv. Homes, Bournemouth)—R.M., £5	14	0	0
Mrs. Wilkes' Rescue Work, Poplar—H.B.S. ...	0	10	0
Cow Cross Mission—H.B.S. 10s; S.B.J. £2; T.C. 10s; Johnny, Ella, and Lily, 2s 6d; A.J.C. £1; M.S. 10s	4	12	6
Rev. A. S. Herring's Work, Poor—H.B.S. 10s; T.C. 10s	1	0	0
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—H.B.S. 10s; O.L.L. 10s; T.C. 10s; M.E. 10s; "Unto Him," £3	5	0	0
Gray's-yard Ragged Schools, &c.—H.B.S. 10s; S.W. 10s; T.C. 10s; C. & E.T.S.M. 10s; M. 5s; Friend, £1; "Unto Him" £3...	6	5	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work for Poor—H.B.S. 10s; T.C. 10s; V. £2; (Orphans)—V. £1...	4	0	0
Rev. P. Gast's Work, Poor—H.B.S. 10s; O.L.L. 10s	1	0	0
Rev. W. E. Hurndall's Work, Poor—H.B.S... ...	0	10	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—H.B.S. 10s; R.R. 5s ...	0	15	0
Rev. T. Jackson's Work, Clapton—H.B.S. 10s; J.S.C. £1	1	10	0
Indig. Blind Visit. Soc.—H.B.S. £1; O.L.L. 10s	1	10	0
Relief London Poor—H.B.S.	1	10	0
Rev. J. Bain's Work for Poor—O.L.L...	0	10	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson, Poor—O.L.L.	0	10	0
John-st. Mission, Poor, Paddington, &c.—O.L.L.	0	5	2
Mrs. Fisher's Work—R.M...	20	0	0
Jewish Mission, Vine-street—R.M...	5	0	0
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen—G.W.W. 10s; E.R. 5s; C. & E.T.S.M. 10s; R.R.5s; A.J.C. £2	3	10	0
Miss Weston's Work, Royal Navy—G.W.W. 10s; C. & E.T.S.M. 10s; Mrs. W. 10s	1	10	0
Soldiers' Institute (Miss Robinson ... G.W.W. ...	0	10	0
Blind Pension Society—T.C.	0	10	0
Gee-street Mission—T.C.	0	10	0
Bridge Hope (Mi[illegible] Street)—T.C. 10s; A.J.C. £2; Miss R. 10s; "Unto Him" £3...	6	0	0
British & Foreign Sailors' Society, Gravesend—"Unto Him" £2	2	0	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—T.C. 10s; M.M. 5s; A.J.C. £3; Miss R. £1; M. 1s	4	16	0
Sermon-lane Mission—T.C. 10s	0	10	0
Homes Aged Poor—T.C.	0	10	0
Hospital Parade and Lydia's—T.C.	0	10	0
[illegible] Workshops, Rev. A. Mercer—T.C.	0	10	0
[illegible]—Mr. T.	1	0	0
[illegible] W.	0	10	0
[illegible] M.T.C. [illegible]	6	0	0
[illegible] C. & E.T.S.M. £1, Mrs. R. £1; V. £1; I.H.M. £1	4	0	0
Bird's Nest Mission, Dublin—C. & E.T.S.M. ...	1	0	0
Mr. Quarrier's Orphans' Homes—C. & E.T.S.M.	1	0	0
Miss Sharman's Orphans' Home—C. & E.T.S.M. 10s; H.S.B. £2 2s	2	12	0
Grat. Circ. THE CHRISTIAN—C. & E.T.S.M. ...	0	7	0
Irish Evangelical Society—W.C.	0	19	0
Rescue Society—R.R....	0	5	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—Mrs. W. 10s; Miss R. 10s; "Unto Him" £2	3	0	0
Mr. Orsman's Work—V. £2 10s; (Convalescent [illegible]: V. £[illegible]; [illegible] Mrs. C.L. [illegible]; Miss R. £1	8	0	0
Christian Community—W.S. £2 2s; M. 5s ...	1	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Mrs. W.	2	7	0
Miss Mittendorff's Orphan Homes—Mrs. W. ...	1	0	0
Penny Dinners Poor Children—Mrs. W.	0	10	0
Home Aged Blind, Christian Men, &c.—A.E. 10s; M. 6d; Miss R. £1...	1	10	6
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—M.	0	0	6
Marylebone Medical Mission—Miss R....	1	0	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—Miss R.	0	10	0
Miss Mason's House of Rest—H.S.B. £2 2s; R.M. £5	7	2	0
Mrs. Ginever's Orphan Homes—H.S.B...	2	2	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—Anon.	0	10	0
Free Scotch Church Medical Foreign Miss.—V...	5	0	0
London Bible & Domestic Mission—I.H.M... ...	5	0	0
East London Training Institute—M.	2	0	0
Iron Room, Shoreditch (Mr. Knowles)—R.M. £5; (Food for Aged Poor) M.M.G. 5s.	5	5	0
Mr. A. R. Fenn's Work, Spain—R.M.	10	0	0
Mr. Payne's Work, Barcelona...	5	0	0
	£339	3	9

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Watercress and Flower Girls' Mission—M.A.H. £5.
Mrs. Meredith's Institutions—I.M.M. (Edinburgh) £1.
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—C.S.C. 5s; Farnborough, 2s 6d.
The London Samaritan Society (Free Meals for Destitute Poor)—Miss B. £1 1s; Mrs. G. 8s.
Somers Town Blind Aid Society (Mr. [illegible])—Received with thanks, E.A.B. 10s 6d; J.S.S. 2s.
Theatrical Mission—Mr. & Mrs. Courthope T[illegible] Hackenowledge with many thanks—Miss H. [illegible]; [illegible] A.L. 2s 6d; Mr. E.P.W. 5s; Mrs. P. [illegible]; Miss S. 10s; Mr. J.B., Jr. 10s; Rev. F.R.W. 5s; Mr. O. £1; Mr. O. 5s; A.H.H., Esq., £5; Mr. C. £2 2s; W. [illegible], Esq., £1; R.J. 2s 6d; Mrs. A.P. 4s; Miss G. [illegible], 10s; Mrs. A.T. 5s; Mr. J.E. and Family, [illegible]: Mr. J.E. £20; Miss L.M.A. 6s. 4d; Miss F. 10[illegible]; [illegible]; Mrs. J.S.H. £1 1s; A Friend, Edinburgh, [illegible]; [illegible] H. 5s.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL.—A supper was held in connection with the Lodging-house Mission on New Year's Eve. At the invitation of the workers over three hundred men came from the common lodging-houses visited every Sunday evening. After a meeting, at which Rev. F. B. Meyer and others spoke, a watch-night service was held, to which over two hundred of the men stayed. Great power was felt throughout the evening; a number professed to decide for Christ before leaving the room, many others being deeply moved.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Mrs. Chater, 2, Bath-place, Bath-street, East India-road, London; L. Nowell, Frampton Cotterell Post Office; W. Clark, Albany, Stapleford, Notts.; W. Pearce, 130, High-street, Thame; M. C. Cottee, Gloucester, W. Bournemouth; A. Leech, Mill Pit, Fence Houses, Durham; W. Coward, 1, Chapel of Ease, Abercarne, near Newport, Mon.; Geo. Marsh, Missionary, Kahoka, Clark Co., Mo., U.S.A.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—B.C. F.C. W.P. J.W. J.R.C. E.W. J.P.L. A.B. C.W. J.S. E.C. A.M.Mc.D. C.F. E.W.H. J.H.C. M.M. D.G.M. F.S.G. A.E.D. J.P. R.D.F. G.T. F.W. F.W.S. S.L. W.L.H. W.D. J.J. A.R.M. E.W. C.G. E.S. E.K. J.R. R.J.S. T.A.L. J.L. R.T.T. J.M.E. J.H. R.R. A.S.P. K.A. H.L.G. E.K.J. G.H. A.D. F.W.C. R.H.B. C.H.H.W. E.H.G. W.L. W.W. W.R. W.D.S. W.R. E.S.N. W.R.D. O.C. A.E.S. E.H.B. R.B. J.M.G. L.H.K.B. T.H.

THE

PREACHERS' MAGAZINE.

FOR PREACHERS, TEACHERS, AND BIBLE STUDENTS.

EDITORS:

MARK GUY PEARSE and ARTHUR E. GREGORY.

No. 1, JANUARY, 1890.

Principal Contents:—

On Building the Old Waste. By the Bishop of Rochester.
Intercessory Prayer. By Archibald G. Brown.
Elijah. By Mark Guy Pearse.
The Theological Student. By T. Robinson Gregory.
How Men Get their Sermons. I.—Henry Ward Beecher.
Sermon Outlines. Notes and Illustrations, &c., &c.

PRICE FOURPENCE MONTHLY.

London: C. H. KELLY, 2, Castle-st., City Road, E.C.
Specimen Copy sent for Three Stamps.

MINISTERS AND ORGANISTS

Should study

HORDER'S HYMN LOVER. 7s. 6d.
EDWARDS' UNITED PRAISE. 3s. 6d.
MINSHALL'S ORGANS AND ORGANISTS. 1s. 6d.
CURWEN'S WORSHIP MUSIC. 7s. 6d.
BEHNKE'S MECHANISM OF VOICE. 2s. 6d.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, Warwick Lane, London, E.C.

C. H. KELLY'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE CREDENTIALS OF THE GOSPEL: A Statement of the Reason of the Christian Hope. By the Rev. JOSEPH AGAR BEET. Demy 8vo., 208 pp. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

"Emphatically a good book, clear and compact in its statements, logical and incisive in its reasoning, and pungent in its appeals."—The British Weekly.

THE NEW BOOK OF FAMILY DEVOTION.

PRAYERS FOR CHRISTIAN FAMILIES. Containing Prayers for the Morning and Evening of each day for Nine Weeks, and for Special Occasions. With an Introduction on Family Prayer, by the EDITOR. Crown 8vo., cloth, red edges, 3s. 6d.

POPULAR EDITION, PRICE ONE SHILLING.

LOVING COUNSELS: Sermons and Addresses by Rev. CHARLES GARRETT. Crown 8vo., 320 pp. Stiff covers. Price 1s.

MARK GUY PEARSE'S BOOKS.

New Volume, just published.

SHORT TALKS FOR THE TIMES. Crown 8vo., gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIANITY OF JESUS CHRIST—IS IT OURS? Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 14th Thousand, 1s.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 58th Thousand, 1s.

PRAISE: Meditations in the 103rd Psalm. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 14th Thousand.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Royal 16mo., 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 25th Thousand, 1s.

THE "DANIEL QUORM" SERIES.

Ten Volumes, Crown 8vo., cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d. each.

1. DANIEL QUORM AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. First Series. 88th Thousand.
2. DANIEL QUORM AND HIS RELIGIOUS NOTIONS. Second Series. 37th Thousand.
3. SERMONS FOR CHILDREN. 25th Thousand.
4. MISTER HORN AND HIS FRIENDS; or, Givers and Giving. 27th Thousand.
5. SHORT STORIES, and other Papers. 11th Thousand.
6. "GOOD WILL." A Collection of Christmas Stories. 12th Thousand.
7. SIMON JASPER. 21st Thousand.
8. CORNISH STORIES. 12th Thousand.
9. HOMELY TALKS. 16th Thousand.
10. JOHN TREGENOWETH, ROB RAT, and THE OLD MILLER AND HIS MILL. 24th Thousand.

Cheap Editions of the above are on Sale, 1s. 6d. each.

Cheap Editions of J. M. BAMFORD'S BOOKS.

FATHER FERVENT. 4th Thousand. Crown 8vo. Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

JOHN CONSCIENCE, OF KINGSEAL. 5th Thousand. Crown 8vo., Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

ELIAS POWER, OF EASE-IN-ZION. 14th Thousand. Crown 8vo., Eighteen Illustrations, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

HUGH AXE, OF HEPHZIBAH. Crown 8vo., Illustrated, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: C. H. KELLY, 2 CASTLE STREET, CITY ROAD, E.C.; and 66, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

JUST PUBLISHED.

A DEVOTED LIFE.

BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON,

Author of "Henry Moorhouse"; "Duncan Matheson"; "The Christian Hero"; "Revival and Revival Work."

With Mezzotype Portrait.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; PRESENTATION EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"In its subject and in execution this biography is of no common order. We have found the study of so sweet and noble a life, a joy to our heart and a stimulus to our zeal. . . . The sketch is a vade mecum for any who seek to be saviours of the sin-sick, and helpers of the poor."
Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine, Dec., 1889.

"This volume, which is both written and printed in good style, and well bound, will be a charm to many Christian families. It is worthy of a large circulation."—Primitive Methodist, December 19, 1889.

"The story of the life of Miss Macpherson, who devoted herself to the care and conversion of the most degraded classes. . . . Her character, as here delineated, is a very lovable one. There are many stories of her fearless intercourse with the diseased and the degraded."
Christian World, December 12, 1889.

"Truly this devoted woman did marvellous things in seeking to bring about the Kingdom of God. Her holy boldness was something wonderful, but one must acknowledge that by God's blessing her success was something wonderful too. The history of such a consecrated life should be carefully and prayerfully read and considered."
The Freeman, December 20, 1889.

"This is one of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing. . . . Christian workers will find in this biography a most helpful, stimulating, and instructive book. It is the history of a real woman, who in the course of her life spoke about the tremendous business of the soul to upwards of twenty thousand persons, one by one. . . . We have great pleasure in recommending this interesting work."
Irish Congregational Magazine, December, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

ALSO BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

HENRY MOORHOUSE: 5th Thousand.
THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST. With life-like Portrait. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth gilt, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"The book is a well-written account of a fruitful life, which we commend to the earnest study of all young Evangelists and labourers in the Lord's vineyard."—Footsteps of Truth.

DUNCAN MATHESON: 34th Thousand.
THE SCOTTISH EVANGELIST. His Life and Labours. With life-like Portrait. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"No Christian can read it without profit. It is calculated to instruct and encourage such of God's servants as make the labour of saving souls the business of their life."
Methodist Family.

ROBERT ANNAN: 100th Thousand.
THE CHRISTIAN HERO.
Tinted covers, 6d.; Cloth neat, 1s.
Superior Edition. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"A striking example of the power of divine grace exhibited in the conversion and devoted life of Robert Annan—a Christian Hero indeed."—Gospel Magazine.

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION, 4to. size (150,000). for Gratuitous Distribution, Tinted covers, One Penny; 7s. per 100 net.

10th Thousand.
REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK:
A Record of the Labours of D. L. MOODY, I. D. SANKEY, and other Evangelists.
Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"It details, with graphic minuteness, the progress of that wonderful work of grace to which we are so much indebted, and sets before us with singular freshness and power the secrets of its success."—Paisley Daily Express.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

SUITABLE FOR A GIFT-BOOK.

The Christian Portrait Gallery:

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED Life-like Portraits and Biographic Sketches of Prominent Christian Workers of the Present Day.

Handsomely Bound, Demy Quarto, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

"This handsome volume will be valued by all who are interested in the Christian life and work of our day. The portraits are very good, and the accompanying sketches are models of brief, terse, and adequate biographies. The volume will form a handsome feature of the drawing-room, and be especially suitable for presentation."—Baptist Magazine.

"The perusal of the volume has been to us a delight and an inspiration. A better book could not be found for a present."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This handsome, large, quarto volume, beautifully bound, is one of more than ordinary interest to the Christian reader. It contains upwards of one hundred biographical sketches, with remarkably life-like portraits of men and women who have been—and some of whom still are—eminent workers for God at home and in foreign lands."—English Churchman.

"For half-a-guinea a collection of one hundred portraits of distinguished Christian workers of the period; a noble army indeed. This Portrait Gallery can claim a high artistic value; and yet the smallness of its price brings it within the means of many."
Sword and Trowel.

"This volume contains well-executed and life-like portraits of about a hundred of the best known Christian ministers of the present day, with a short account of the life and work of each. All who can purchase the volume will be very pleased with it."
Christian Progress.

"Messrs. Morgan & Scott have just published a superb book. It is entitled The Christian Portrait Gallery, and contains portraits and biographic sketches of one hundred present-day Christian workers. The whole get-up of the book is first-class."—Divine Life.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

THE daily reports of the spread of what has come to be known as the "Influenza Epidemic" are certainly sufficient to give rise to considerable apprehension. In all directions the question is asked, "What can we do to escape?" and the enquiry is emphasised since deaths have resulted from the affection. There is but one real safeguard against infection, and that consists in looking to the general health. The robust are practically safe, but those who are "below par" may fall ready victims. The human system, when in a low or depressed condition, is unable to repel the subtle attacks of unfavourable influences, because it is deficient in the recuperative force necessary to secure and retain a healthy state. The fact is, natural magnetic conditions are unbalanced, and until this is rectified, no one can count upon enjoying immunity from any form of weakness that may become prevalent. The remedy is to apply Magnetism in such a fashion that it enables us to live continually in an atmosphere admitted universally to possess properties more intimately allied to our health and well-being than anything else yet discovered. In this way the debilitated system is built up, and enabled to resist that which is foreign to health.

The following statements support this.

A CLERGYMAN writes:—

"I consider your appliances invaluable as a preventive against cold in the chest. I have now used them on and off for three years, and I am glad to say I am now a stranger to the severe colds I used to have."

Miss C. C. PAGE, School Cottage, Wadhurst, Hawkhurst.

"I have derived great benefit from your Magnetic Treatment, which I have now used for three years. My general health is much improved, and I have also gained much in strength. Mine was considered to be a case of confirmed Pulmonary Consumption."

Six years later.—"I have not worn your Appliances for some time now, as I do not need them. I highly recommend them, however."

Mr. E. BANDEY, The Myrtles, Goldington, Bedford.

"I am pleased to be able to inform you, after a good trial, that I have derived great benefit from your Treatment. My back is much stronger, I can do a heavy day's work without feeling fatigue, and I don't think I have had a cold to hurt me since I commenced to wear your Appliances. I should be very sorry to have to do my work without them, they are such a comfort."

Mrs. M. B. HICKLING, Whitmore Road, Small Heath, Birmingham.

"Having worn your Appliance for a year and a half, I am glad to tell you not only that I have found it comfortable, but that I have felt no inconvenience from Weakness of Spine, nor had an attack of Bronchitis since wearing it, these two being the only winters for more than twenty years wherein I have enjoyed freedom from the latter complaint."

The help which these sufferers obtained is open to all who will adopt Magnetic Treatment. Mr. B. COPSON GARRATT advises in every case without charge, and those who consult him may anticipate a candid opinion, whatever the nature of their symptoms. If Mr. GARRATT cannot do anything, owing to the case being beyond cure, he will say so unhesitatingly.

ADDRESS—

B. COPSON GARRATT,

16, FINSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

GEMS OF PRAISE.

A Choice Collection of 288 Hymns and Tunes, suitable for Gospel Services, Prayer Meetings, Sabbath Schools, Christian Associations, and Family Worship.

Edited and Compiled by REV. E. PAYSON HAMMOND.

Music and Words.		Words Only.
Paper covers	1s. 0d.	Paper covers	1d.
Cloth limp	1s. 6d.	Cloth limp	2d.

A large number of both Hymns and Tunes are original.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Nobody, old or young, should ever be without them.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES

SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED BY

Sir Morell Mackenzie

WHOSE TESTIMONIAL IS WITH EACH BOX

FOR

THROAT IRRITATION, COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND CATARRHAL AFFECTIONS,

Sold in boxes at 1s. 1½d. by al. Chemists, or for 15 stamps from the SODEN MINERAL PRODUCE CO., Ld., 52, Bread Street, E.C.

Their effect is equally wonderful as a Preventative & Curative.

2nd Edition now ready. Gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"WITH HIM FOR EVER" and other Poems.

By the Author of "WATERED LILIES."

"Tuneful in measure and exquisite in tone. Lovers of sacred song will find here a treasure of delight."—Word and Work.

NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, W.

8th Thousand.

"To the Work! To the Work!"

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIANS,

Calling to active effort in the Lord's service.

BY D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS	1/
CLOTH LIMP	1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS. Gilt Edges	2/6

Appendix—Elihu Burritt on "The Good Samaritan."

"No better service could be done to the Church of Christ than to circulate this work—which is like a trumpet call from beginning to end—among Christians who are laggards in the Master's work."
Word and Work.

"These Addresses will be a tonic to many a weary and half-hearted worker."—The Baptist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

THE QUARTO EDITIONS OF

Sacred Songs and Solos,

COMPILED AND SUNG BY

IRA D. SANKEY.

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

(441 Pieces).

LARGE QUARTO EDITION; Tastefully Printed with Rule round Pages, Handsomely Bound, in Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 16s. 6d.

Presentation Edition, Elegantly Bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges .. 30s. 0d.

CHEAP QUARTO EDITION. 441 Pieces.

Paper Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 6s. 0d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"

may also be had Bound up with the CHEAP QUARTO Edition as follows:

Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards .. .. .. 9s. 6d.

ADDITIONAL

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

With Standard Hymns. Containing Nos. 442—750.

Paper Boards .. .. 4s. 6d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

With Standard Hymns Combined. Containing 750 Pieces.

Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 9s. 6d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"

may also be had Bound up with this Edition:

Cloth Boards .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 10s. 6d.

Sacred Songs and Solos,

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED (750 Pieces).

Presentation Editions, Bound in Morocco.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

QUARTO EDITION, Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges. 17s. 6d.

Ditto, Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 25s. 0d.

FF 5. Old Notation, Large Type, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 10s. 6d.

FF 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 14s. 6d.

HH 5. Old Notation. Cheaper Edition, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.

HH 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.

RR 5. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.

RR 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges.. .. .. 9s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

CC 4. POCKET EDITION, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 0d.

CC 5. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 4s. 6d.

DD 5. LARGE TYPE EDITION, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 4s. 6d.

EE 5. EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.

EE 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

AND

The Christian Choir.

MUSIC AND WORDS—(QUARTO).

Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 20s. 0d.

Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 27s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

BB 5. RUBY LEADED, Persian Morocco Limp, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 6d.

EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges .. .. 7s. 6d.

Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges .. 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MONTHLY, ONE HALFPENNY

THE

HERALD of MERCY.

ILLUSTRATED.

A Monthly Messenger for Humble Homes.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" gives—what is so much needed by Tract Distributors—a constant variety of Awakening Gospel Appeals, Invitations, and Encouragements. The Subscriber for the Year is thus enabled to furnish every month to the persons in his or her District a complete change of reading and religious instruction.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" is supplied as follows:—

	For 6 Months.	For 12 Months.
8 Copies Monthly	2s. post free.	4s. post free.
12 "	3s. "	6s. "
20 "	5s. "	10s. "
52 "	13s. "	26s. "
100 "	25s. "	50s. "

Intermediate quantities at the same Proportionate Rates. Larger quantities on Special Terms.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

CONTENTS OF

THE HERALD OF MERCY

FOR JANUARY.

THE BROKEN CUPS. With Full-page Engraving.
Showing how the New Birth is essential to Salvation.

A NEW PAGE. A New Year's Poem. By WM. LUFF.
"New the page, the Opening Year,
Spotless as the throne of heaven;
Yet how soon the stains appear,
Quickly as the gift is given!"—Extract.

"ASK, AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN YOU."
The Story of a Five-Dollar Bill; proving the faithfulness of God in supplying the need of his children.

A MOST USEFUL WATCH-DOG.
An Incident of a Sceptic who published abroad any delinquencies discovered in professors of religion, and thus was the means of unconsciously driving them back to God.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE. With Illustration.
Is Might Right? | "Overcome Evil with Good."
It isn't Far to Jesus (A Poem).

SAVED AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR. With Illus.
The Story of a Drunkard who obtained pardon and peace upon his dying bed.

"THE LORD BE THY KEEPER!" A Wish for the New Year. By MARY GORGES.
"'The Lord be thy Keeper!'—to Him I commit thee,
The best of my gifts is but dross to His least;
Whatever He sends comes from heaven to fit thee,
The robe in the glory—the place at the feast."—Extract.

A DEVOTED LIFE. With Portrait.
A Sketch of the Life of Isabella Macpherson, the Indefatigable Worker for God in Dundee.

 Send THREE STAMPS for Six Copies of THE HERALD OF MERCY for January.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

One Halfpenny Monthly.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES.

"The Christian who desires to give a bit of good reading along with a word in season to any fellow-traveller by road, rail, or river, could not do better than lay in a stock of this periodical. It costs only a halfpenny; but its contents are of a high spiritual quality, fitted to awaken the careless, and to lead to decision."
Christian Leader.

"As bright and attractive as could be desired. Full of good matter and effective Illustrations. Abundantly worthy of a wide distribution in the homes of the people."—Divine Life.

"Very good. Cannot be better. The very thing for distribution."—Sword and Trowel.

"It is profusely Illustrated, and full of instructive and profitable reading for old and young. The Gospel is presented in its most winning and attractive form."—Christian Age.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

The only Note Paper that has been specially made for Ladies, and will be found peculiarly adapted to the style of their handwriting.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

See Watermark in each sheet.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

CAN BE HAD OF ALL STATIONERS.
9d. per 5-Quire Packet.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

Court or Heraldic Envelopes to match, 9d. per 100.

Wholesale only—50, UPPER THAMES ST., E.C.

WORKS BY MAJOR D. W. WHITTLE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

"It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm, and it may be helpful to many."—Christian Leader.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth extra, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.;
SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION: Tinted Covers, 6d.

P. P. BLISS: HIS LIFE & LIFE-WORK

By Major WHITTLE & Rev. W. GUEST.

Containing an Introduction by D. L. MOODY; and Memorial Notice by IRA D. SANKEY. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and their two young children.

"Cannot be too highly prized or too widely circulated; in fact, for the good it is calculated to do, it ought to be in the hands of every English reader."—Midland Gazette.

ADAPTED FOR WIDE CIRCULATION.

Price ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

SOUL-WINNING: Qualifications for it.

"It seems to me that there is no more important topic that can be brought before us to-day than the WINNING OF SOULS—its obligations, its hindrances, its joy, and the qualifications for it."—PAGE 5.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

By Dr. PENTECOST.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

Price 2d. each; 14s. per 100.

A narrative of a business man, who, after many years' hesitancy, finally "unconditionally surrendered" to the Divine call. The narrative is issued with the hope that it may produce good among business men.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

EARNEST WORDS TO ANY WHO ARE WILLING TO WORK FOR CHRIST.

Price 2d. each, Tinted covers; 14s. per 100.
6 copies sent Post Free for 1s.

CONTENTS.—In the Day of thy Power; Soul Winning; "Let your Light Shine!" "Ye are the Light of the World;" Light-giving Testimony; The Teaching of a Life; Need of the Holy Spirit; Prayer and its Answer; Individual Effort; A Work for All; A Spirit of Prayer; Causes of Conversion; The Divine Commission; Witnessing for Christ; "Come and See!" A Word in Season; The Woman of Samaria; Another Mode of Working; Tract Distribution; A Suggestion; Visiting the Sick; Helping the Cabmen; Helping—or Hindering? "Helpers needed;" "God has let me Win a Soul;" An Unexpected Volunteer; "According to Ability;" Duty and Privilege; "Do it with your might;" "Diligent, Fervent, Serving," &c., &c., &c.

SMALL BOOKS by Dr. G. F. PENTECOST.

NEATLY PRINTED ON TINTED PAPER.
SUITABLE FOR THE INQUIRY-ROOM; FOR GENERAL DISTRIBUTION; OR FOR ENCLOSING IN LETTERS.

PACKET 1.

"I WANT TO BE GOODER!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE JAPANESE STUDENT. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I DREADS DE PROCESS!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"PEACE FOR THE LIKES OF ME!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"LET ME SEE THAT!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"SONS OF GOD." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE TWO SISTERS. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE PRECIOUS BLOOD OF CHRIST. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.

The above-mentioned Nine Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

PACKET 2

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE MODERN DANCE. 2/- per doz.
"I GETS SULKY WHEN I'M SPOKE TO!" 1/- per doz.
CONSECRATION; OR, PRACTICAL HOLINESS. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I AM TRYING TO BELIEVE." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
ABBIE: A PASSAGE FROM A LIFE-STORY. 6d. per doz; 3/6 per 100.
"A SOUTH WINDOW." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100
IN A SNOWSTORM. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100
"ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN?" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.

The above-mentioned Eight Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANACK

1890. A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. by 30 in.) 1890.

Printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting various Scenes in the Life of Jacob. Also containing a carefully selected Text for each Day of the Year; Postal Information; Phases of the Moon, &c.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Departure for Haran.
The Stone at Bethel.
Jacob Meeting Rachel.
Reconciliation of Jacob and Esau.
Dinah Leaving the Tent.
The Coat of Many Colours.
Joseph Meeting Jacob in the Land of Goshen.
Jacob before Pharaoh.
Jacob Blessing Joseph's Sons.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' ALMANACK for 1890, which Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT have issued, is quite worthy of its predecessors in the several features that have in the past proved interesting and useful."
Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, October, 2, 1889.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' SHEET ALMANACK is beautifully illustrated. The Almanack is one that can be placed on the wall of any living-room."
St. John's Wood and South Hampstead Advertiser, October 14, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Newsagent or Bookseller in the Kingdom.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT.

BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

(Of Regent's Park Chapel.)

THE "BIOGRAPHICAL" SERIES.

ABRAHAM: 6th Thousand.

OR, THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH. With Nine Illustrations Specially Engraved for this Work. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Another volume of deeply spiritual commentary upon Old Testament History. The life of Abraham is followed through in all its details, and is applied with admirable skill to the circumstances of Christian life. It is a book which we very heartily commend to those who desire to make progress in Christian life and experience."—Christian Progress.

ELIJAH: AND THE SECRET OF HIS POWER. 10th Thousand.

With Nine Original Illustrations. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is a most stimulating book. It sparkles with heavenly light, and glows with heavenly fire from beginning to end. We honestly and heartily recommend it."
Presbyterian Messenger.

ISRAEL: A PRINCE WITH GOD. 10th Thousand.

THE STORY OF JACOB RE-TOLD. With Nine Original Illustrations. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Exceedingly good. Not only spiritual, as everything from our brother Mr. Meyer would be, but also thoughtful, fresh, suggestive, and thoroughly practical."—Sword and Trowel.

THE "CHRISTIAN LIFE" SERIES.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 7th Thousand.

MEDITATIONS ON THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM. Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm prevades the whole book. It will prove a cordial to the faint, an encouragement to the desponding, a guide to the perplexed, and edifying to all."—Footsteps of Truth.

THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE. 11th Thousand.

Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"This book will plant in many hearts the formative thought by which alone it is possible to build up a worthy reproduction on earth of the noblest life it ever saw."—Christian Leader.

CHRISTIAN LIVING. 11th Thousand.

Cloth boards, 1s.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"We have read the book with real interest; and we heartily commend it to others, as a true guide to the devout life."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS, OF EARLY CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD. By John Foxe.

With Twelve full-page Illustrations and Steel Plate Frontispiece. 1,083 pages. Handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are pleased to see the 'BOOK OF MARTYRS' well to the front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in the market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT an immediate sale of the present issue, which is marvellously cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, in The Sword and Trowel.

BIRDS OF THE BIBLE. 5th Thousand.

Chats with Children about Bible Birds. By JAMES BOWKER, F.R.G.S.I. With Beautiful coloured Frontispiece, and numerous other Engravings. Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"This little book is a perfect gem. It is a luxury to handle, and a luxury to look at; and, we may add, most instructive to read. The skill of printer and bookbinder seems to have been exhausted in the get-up of this charming little gift-book."
Preacher's Analyst.

THE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY.

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED WELL-EXECUTED PORTRAITS of present-day Christian workers. Each Portrait is accompanied by a well-written Biographic Sketch. Over Four Hundred Pages. Demy Quarto. Attractively bound, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.

"A superb book. The whole get-up is first-class."
Divine Life.

For Full Particulars, see Advertisement on page 31.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON.

A DEVOTED LIFE. By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Author of "Duncan Matheson," "Henry Moorhouse," "Robert Annan," &c., &c. With MEZZO-TYPE PORTRAIT. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"One of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

For Full Particulars see Advertisement on page 31.

ALSO BY REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

DUNCAN MATHESON:

THE SCOTTISH EVANGELIST. HIS LIFE AND LABOURS. With LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"No Christian can read it without profit. It is calculated to instruct and encourage such of God's servants as make the labour of saving souls the business of their life."
Methodist Family.

HENRY MOORHOUSE:

THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST. With LITHOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

"The book is a well-written account of a fruitful life, which we commend to the earnest study of all young evangelists and labourers in the Lord's vineyard."—Footsteps of Truth.

BY DR. JAS. CULROSS, M.A.

JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. With Eight Illustrations. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend this work."—Sword and Trowel.

"BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK!"

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea. Tinted covers, 1s. Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, boards, 2s. 6d.

"All who admire the author's grasp of great truths will welcome this volume."—The Freeman.

"THY FIRST LOVE."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"This work is instructive, suggestive, and full of spiritual force."—Sunday School Chronicle.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES: 7th Thousand.

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Readings and Study; and A PLAN OF CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"In a compact form, the work contains more valuable and varied information as to the Word of God and its connective teaching, than we have yet seen in any volume of a like size. We would earnestly urge every lover of the Word to procure and carefully read the book."—Word and Work.

Morgan & Scott's Unabridged Edition of CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE to the OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

All the Editions described below contain 757 pages, 2270 closely printed columns, and about 250,000 references. A special feature is the List of Proper Names, newly translated by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A. This portion of the work is strictly copyright, and can only appear in Morgan & Scott's editions.

PORTABLE EDITION. 3/6
STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

PORTABLE EDITION. 7/6
HALF CALF, MARBLED EDGES.

POPULAR EDITION. 5/-
PRINTED ON SUPERIOR PAPER. STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

PRESENTATION EDITION. 7/6
HANDSOMELY BOUND IN CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

LIBRARY EDITION. 10/6
STRONGLY HALF-BOUND IN LEATHER.

ILLUSTRATED EDITION. 10/6
With 12 Exquisite Steel-plate Engravings, and 6 Beautiful Coloured Maps.
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

Fifth Edition, Revised and Improved.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME:

THEIR CONTENTS AND TEACHINGS.

By BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S., Chamberlain of the City of London.

With Seventy Illustrations.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"There is no volume equally moderate in price giving to English readers so full and clear an account of those sepulchral remains of the early Christians."—Christian Leader.

CHRIST AND THE SCRIPTURES. 23th Thousand.

The Living WORD and the Written WORD. By Rev. ADOLPH SAPHIR, D.D., B.A. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 3s.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"A book marked by freshness of thought, along with firm adherence to old truths; indicating a mind awake to the great vital questions of the present day, and viewing these with a most intelligent eye from the standpoint of established faith."
British Messenger.

NOTES ON BIBLE READINGS. 19th Thousand.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects. By S. R. BRIGGS and JOHN H. ELLIOTT. Tinted covers, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"[illegible] which every Bible student should possess. It will be found [illegible] to the clear, concise, and instructive [illegible] to the preacher in preparing suitable matter for private [illegible] and those who use Notes on Bible Readings will find it [illegible]."—Christian Progress.

BY ANNA SHIPTON.

"THE LORD WAS THERE."

INCIDENTS FROM MY JOURNAL.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

"A book for quiet hours. It will leave a blessing with every reader."—Primitive Methodist.

"TELL JESUS:"

RECOLLECTIONS OF EMILY GOSSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.
A CHEAP EDITION for General Distribution, 6d.

"Presents us with [illegible] of a life spent in loving, intimate, and [illegible] communion with a personal Lord."
Christian Times.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NATURAL SANITARY UNDERCLOTHING.

For Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children.

Full particulars and Price List on application.

Combinations, 6/11, 7/6, 7/11, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6
" 11/6, 12/6, 13/6, 14/6, 15/6
Vests 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 8/6
Knickers 3/11, 4/3, 5/-, 5/11, 6/11, 8/11
Bodices 2/9, 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6
Skirts, Nightdresses, Sleeping Suits, &c.

FLANNEL UNDERCLOTHING in White or Scarlet.

LONGCLOTH or SILK UNDERWEAR in all Garments.

CORSETS.—The "Rational" and all best makes.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, OXFORD ST., REGENT CIRCUS, LONDON, W.

Five per Cent. Deposits.

STREATHAM AND GENERAL ESTATES CO., LIMITED.

ESTABLISHED 1881.

This Company has paid Dividends at the rate of 6 per Cent. since its commencement.

Share Capital £100,000
Paid-up Capital... ... ... £70,000

The Company was established in 1881, its object being to acquire freehold and other land, develop the same into building estates, and then re-sell at a profit—and in pursuance of this purpose it has dealt with large estates at Streatham (from which it derived its name), at Wandsworth, Stroud Green, Wimbledon, and other places within the Metropolitan area.

Deposits are received subject to two months' notice of withdrawal, bearing interest at FIVE PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

Offices: 5, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

Bankers—Sir Samuel Scott, Bart., and Co., Cavendish-square, London; The City Bank, Ludgate Hill, London.

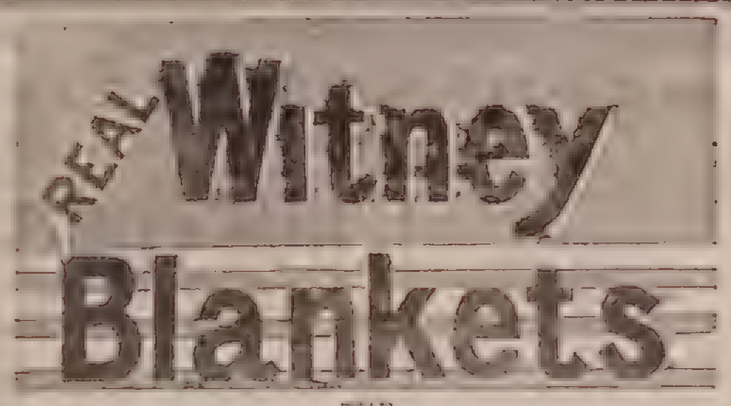
IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Best Tooth Powder. Whitens the Teeth, Prevents Decay, Sweetens the Breath.

Ask anywhere for Rowland's Odonto.



THE

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY

Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known

WITNEY BLANKETS.

Prices Per Pair:

Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 8in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 30/-

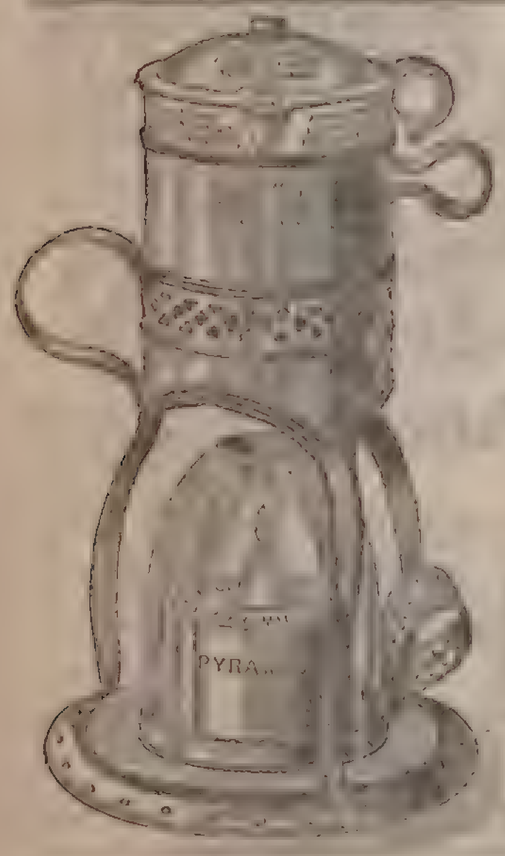
These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Parcels over 10s. sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application.

ADDRESS—

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,
WITNEY, OXON.



CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" NURSERY LAMP FOOD WARMERS.

With New Registered Pannikin.

BY their peculiar construction—the glass chimney conducting and concentrating heat to the bottom of the water vessel—they give a larger amount of light and heat than can be obtained in any other lamp of the same class. Without smoke or smell.

Clarke's New Registered Pannikin.

By this invention any liquid food can be poured out or drunk without scum or grease passing through the spout, and prevents spilling when poured into a feeding bottle, so unavoidable with all other Pannikins. The Pannikins will fit all the old "Pyramid" Nursery Lamps, and can be purchased separately.

Clarke's "Pyramid" Night Lights and "Fairy Pyramid" Night Lights

Are the best in the world, and the only suitable ones for burning in the above, and for lighting passages, lobbies, &c. Sold everywhere.

Price of Lamps, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 5s., and 6s. each. If any difficulty in obtaining them, write to CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" AND "FAIRY" LIGHT COMPANY, LIMITED, Cricklewood, London, N.W., for nearest Agent's address.

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

PURE SOLUBLE

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.
"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME FROM THE AUTHOR

ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-Second Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

REMARKABLE CASE AT OKEHAMPTON

Of a lady whose name and address will be given to any inquirer, on writing to me.

On the 2nd Oct., 1888, I first received a statement of her case. She had lost several children with Consumption or Atrophy. Her disease commenced with a cold, loss of appetite and strength, pains in the chest and side, short breathing. Blood was occasionally mingled with the phlegm, which was purulent and green. Night perspirations were severe, with hectic fever and palpitations of the heart. There was loss of flesh in the face, hands and arms. The strenth had been gradually declining. Swellings of the ankles had appeared. In this pitiable state she wrote me, and commenced my treatment according to my instructions.

In a fortnight she writes: "I am thankful to say that I feel a little better." The cough and spitting were improved. In November the perspirations were very much lessened.

Dec. 1, she writes: "I am glad to say I think I am improving fast." She speaks also of encouragement from another case of a patient in her neighbourhood—Mr. J. M.—of whom she says: "Your medicine seems quite to have restored his health. He sang in a concert last night."

After this, gradual improvement took place. In a letter, dated 9th April last, she says: "I am very thankful to tell you that your medicine has made a cure of me. I can go about my business well."

I wrote to ask how she was in Oct. last. She answers: "I shall always feel I owe my life to you. I am as well now as I ever was in all my life. I can walk several miles without fatigue, and when I commenced with your medicine I could not walk across the room. Will you let me have some of your books that I may lend them, as I shall try and persuade all with chest complaints to apply to you."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

WINTER PATTERNS NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

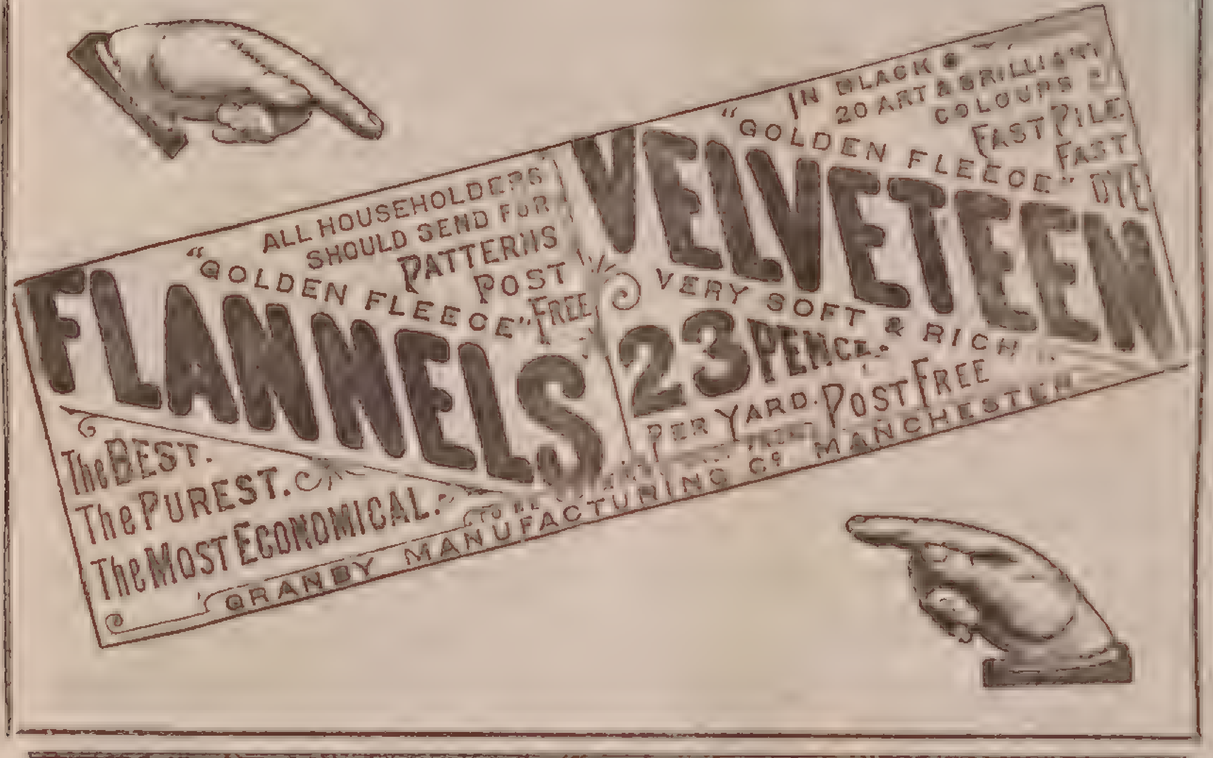
Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.



HUTTON'S PURE IRISH LINENS.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS. Gent's four-fold all Pure Linen Collars, all sizes and shapes, 4s. 6d. per dozen. SAMPLE WHITE SHIRT, LINEN FITTINGS, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d. each, post free.

Pure Irish Linen Goods direct from the Factory at Manufacturers' Prices.

FISH NAPKINS, 2s. 6d. per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS 2 yards square, 2s. 9d. each. NURSERY DIAPER, all Pure Flax, 4½d. per yard.

REAL IRISH LINEN SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1s. 11d. per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. HUCKABACK TOWELS, 4s. 6d per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS

guaranteed all pure Flax—Ladies' Size, 2s. 3d. per dozen; Gent's Size, 3s. 6d. per doz.

Samples and Price Lists free to all Parts.

All Parcels sent Carriage Paid to any Station in the Kingdom.

OLD SHIRTS, made as good as new, with very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear.

G. R. HUTTON & CO., LARNE, BELFAST.

How to Knit. What to Knit.

50th Thousand. 1s. per Set of Eight Large Cards, Post Free.

THE "VICTORIA KNITTING CARDS."

The "Victoria Knitting Cards" are compiled so that beginners may knit from the first STRIP to a full-sized stocking or quilt without the aid of the Teacher.

FIRST SET, Nos. I. to VIII., containing General Remarks on Elementary Knitting—Knitting for Standards I. and II.—Muffatees—Scarves—Socks and Stockings, ribbed and plain, thickened heels and toes, &c.

SECOND SET, Nos. IX. to XVI., contains Knitting on Examination Day for Girls and Pupil Teachers—Baby's Boots—Knee Caps—Muffatees (with thumbs)—Ladies' Vests—Child's Vests—Boys' Vests—Child's Quilt—Large Quilt—Diagonal Pattern Quilt, &c., with quantities and kind of Yarns needed for each article.

THIRD SET, Nos. XVII. to XXIV., contains easy directions for Infant's Vest, Gloves, Hood, or Helmet—Beaded Cuffs—Mat—Rug—Child's Gaiters—Shoulder Cape—Shawl—Tam o' Shanter, &c.

COX & CO., 99 & 101, New Oxford Street, London.

RICH, LOVELY DRESSES

SILK SEALS

BEAUTIFULLY SOFT & ELEGANT

Write for & Patterns

IN EVERY DIVERSITY OF FASHIONABLE SHADES

PLUSHES

Cashmeres, All-wools, Mohairs, Serges, and other Dress Materials. Any length cut. Carriage paid in U.K.

P. & W. JONES, Manufacturers, BRADFORD.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REV VAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

The BRUSSELS CONFERENCE
By Mrs. GUINNESS.
Page 9.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.
SPECIAL REPORTS.
Page 13.

PRINCIPAL

Notes and Comments 7
"Apostolic" Warfare 8
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition of Peter 10
Mildmay Mission to Jews 11
Scottish Missions.—XII. 12
Dr. HENRY ALLON on Citizenship 13
Rev. M. GUY PEARSE on Training Children ..15
Mr. WILMOT BROOKE on Moslems 15
Dr. PIERSON on Foreign Missions 16

CONTENTS.

Home Mission Trials and Triumphs 18
Portrait of the late Madame WALTHER.....19
Notes from Cambridge 20
Gathered Gold 21
Englishwomen in Paris 21
British and Foreign Bible Society 21
Death of Dr. DOLLINGER 22
Mr. GEORGE HATTON and his Work 23
Breakfasting at Gray's Yard 23

No. 1042.] FRIDAY, JAN. 17, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

[Mdme. Andre-Walther.]

AN URGENT APPEAL

Is made to every Reader of THE CHRISTIAN who is in sympathy with Gospel Work amongst the Masses, to help

THE EVANGELISTIC MISSION to clear the CURRENT EXPENSES OF THE YEAR JUST CLOSED, for its several Branches in London and the Country, for which over £500 are Immediately Required;

whilst Funds are also Urgently Needed to clear the Mortgages, which have to be redeemed, on Two of its Halls, and to Enlarge Bignold Hall, in the East End of London.

If EVERY READER of The Christian would this week send a Postal Order (crossed London and County Bank), or Stamps for the above threefold object would forthwith be accomplished, to the great relief of the Director, on whom this matter heavily presses just now, and to whom all communications are to be addressed.

HALF-A-CROWN,

C. RUSSELL HURDITCH.

164, ALEXANDRA ROAD, ST. JOHN'S WOOD, LONDON, N.W.

WORKS BY REV. DR. PENTECOST

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READINGS ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS.

NINTH THOUSAND.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Bright and manly in utterance, Scriptural in teaching, enriched everywhere with suitable anecdote and apt illustration, this volume is a most welcome practical commentary on the portion of the Word with which it deals."—British Messenger.

IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK.

OR, THE PLEASURE AND PROFIT OF BIBLE STUDY. Being an Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

With Introduction by Rev. JOSEPH COOK, and Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

NINTH THOUSAND.

Presentation Edition: Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Editions: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.

"There are few popular books about the Bible that we are more heartily prepared to recommend than that of Dr. Pentecost; for hardly one could be named, that is so likely to lead to a thorough and life-long use of the Bible itself. . . This is high praise, but any one who makes the acquaintance of the volume will find that we have not exaggerated its merits."—Christian Leader.

THE

Christian Worker's Hand-Book:

AND RECORD OF INQUIRERS & CONVERTS.

Price Eightpence.

THIS HANDBOOK, prepared by one who has had wide and lengthy experience in Revival Work, is specially intended for use in the "Inquiry Room." It contains a striking selection of Texts on SIN and SALVATION, for ready reference by the "WORKER." It has Five closely-printed Pages of HINTS TO SOUL-WINNERS; Four Pages for Lists of Persons to be Prayed or Conversed with; an INQUIRER'S and CONVERT'S CARD, with the Name, Residence, and other particulars regarding the Inquirer; and also a solemn Form of "Covenant with God," to be signed by the Convert—to whom is handed a Duplicate Copy to be placed in his or her Bible.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND has received with much thankfulness, from Y. N., £1; S. A. M., 2s. 6d.; S. T., 4s.; "Anonymous," clothing.

Rations of Food to hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Day Ragged Schools. Classes for Rough Boys. Children's Services. Band of Hope, &c. Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Girls' Institute. Young Men and Lads' Society. Bible Classes for Women. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Bible-classes for Men. Prayer Meetings. Gospel Temperance Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Room to Room visitation. Men, Women, and Children's Fresh Air Homes. Common Lodging House Services, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND. The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 104 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.

—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.

—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board Schools, soup kitchen, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL.

— PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.

—For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widows and other needy people with Food, Coals, and Clothing. Bankers: L. & County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

CONTRIBUTIONS of money, clothing, coal and bread tickets, are earnestly solicited by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, in aid of the more destitute patients and their families. The smallest gifts will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.—

President, Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird; Treasurer, Samuel Hope Morley, Esq.—The Committee earnestly appeal to the friends of religious education for help in the furtherance of the Sunday School cause, in this and other countries. The principles of the Sunday School Union are strictly evangelical, and its constitution thoroughly undenominational. Donations and subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mr. JOHN EDWARD TRESIDDER, Hon. Financial Secretary, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent

Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in

Clerkenwell.—600 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, James-street,

Buckingham Gate. The services next Sunday will be conducted morning and evening by the Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D., of Philadelphia. Service commences, morning 11, evening 7.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

TWO DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN would be received at half usual fees, to fill vacancies in superior old-established School, near London. Fine house and grounds. Liberal table, home care and comfort. Lectures and lessons from best professors and masters.—A. P., Relfe Bros., School Stationer, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate, E.C.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath, Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

SWITZERLAND. — Two educated Swiss Ladies (sisters) residing in a beautiful and healthy situation at the entrance of [illegible], combining town and country, receive young Ladies desirous of pursuing their French studies, German, Italian, music, painting. Agreeable family life, conscientious solicitude. References to pasteurs.—MADAMOISELLES, Marquis Villa, Vert Site, route de Marges, Lausanne, Suisse.

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND. Mrs. [illegible] receives Young Ladies [illegible] Lycée, Univ.

MARGATE. — Alresford House [illegible] School for [illegible] for University [illegible] School Examinations. Comforts of a Christian home. Special care taken of [illegible] and delicate children.—For prospectus, address, The PRINCIPAL.

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

[illegible] with detailed Christian training. Delicate or backward boys receive special attention. Prospectus, references, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON. — EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B. [illegible] twenty Sons of Gentlemen. [illegible] Rev. W.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, [illegible]

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principals: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A. Trinity College, Dublin; G. E. W. CRANAGE, Esq., B.A. Trinity [illegible]

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY. — Moravian School for [illegible] prepared for Public Exams. Cricket field 10 acres; large swimming bath; hot baths in the house. Milk from school farm. Playground sheltered from north and east winds.

Rev. J. MALLALIEU, Head Master.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION at St. Buleaux Vicarage, So[illegible]

[illegible]

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE.

[illegible]ugh preparation for commercial or profes[illegible] life.—WALTER J KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.

[illegible] to parents who are taught [illegible] a lady. The Word of God [illegible] the sole basis of [illegible] moral and spiritual training; [illegible] but Christian teachers are employed [illegible], athletics, &c.

Head Master, L. H. VINE, M.C.P.

NEW COLLEGE,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

[illegible] for Gentlemen's Sons. Resident [illegible] and foreign masters. Excellent [illegible], cricket-field. [illegible] comforts, moderate fees. For pros[illegible], &c., address

Rev. G. H. JONES, F.A.S.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

[illegible] boys received, from 8 to 19 years of age. Three separate departments—Juniors, under the care of ladies; Seniors, under a staff of seven resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for commerce, public schools, or universities. Delicate boys, and boys from the colonies, receive special care. A carpenter's shop and a chemical Laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Easter term commences Wednesday, January 22.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

EDUCATION IN HIGHGATE.— Rev.

G. D. BARTLETT, M.A., receives Ten Boarded Pupils. Superior home. Individual attention. Thorough grounding, and careful Christian training. Terms, from 18 guineas per term. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	8
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

BATH. [illegible] venor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commences January 21.

PROTESTANT BOARDING SCHOOL for Gentlewomen. Sound instruction; firm, yet loving discipline. Every home comfort. Special advantages in languages and accomplishments.—Miss ESSER (formerly Miss Penn's partner), Rockfield, Lansdowne-road, Croydon.

AN OFFICER desires to recommend a Christian Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters at Southsea. Thorough teaching. Vacancies at Christmas. Terms very moderate.—Inspector-General GORDON, South Esk, Victoria-road, Southsea.

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL for Girls. Comfortable home, with careful training and thorough education. Governess-Pupil required, with premium.—PRINCIPAL, Globe-place School, Stoke Newington, N.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON. —High School system. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHERY and Mrs. ALBERT SMITH.

ATCHLENCH GIRLS' COLLEGE, Evesham.—Principals: the Misses BOMFORD.—Careful Christian training and education. Certificates gained during past year from Oxford University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and South Kensington. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Governess Student required.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen. The Misses BROWN and GOOD, late of Chatsworth Lodge, Chiswick, have removed to Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath, where they receive eighteen resident Pupils. First-class education, with careful Christian training and home comforts. Children from India received, and lovingly cared for. The house is large and detached, near to the Heath and Greenwich Park.—References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq. (Mildmay), and Parents.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive fees, 60 guineas. Highest references.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELTA, 93, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy, Cambridge, and other Local Exams. Moderate terms.

Miss L. VON SCHENCK, Fulneck, near Leeds.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, GLASTONBURY. —High-class Ladies' School. Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Pupils prepared for University exams. Kindergarten for juniors. Individual influence and attention. Excellent references.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL, Leyton House, Warwick-road.—Miss APLIN'S pupils re-assemble on Jan. 20 (D.V.). Preparation for any public examination desired. A substantial education, united spiritual and hygienic care.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALL, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

SUPERIOR HOME SCHOOL for Girls, from five guineas per term. Successful preparation for all exams. Little boys also received, with separate supervision, by Mr. E. J. H. Churcher, M.R.C.P., & F.S.Sc., London. Highest references and testimonials. Health resort.

PRINCIPAL, Broomfield Villa, Henfield, Sussex.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to the PRINCIPAL. The next term will commence January 21.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Oakhurst, Oxted, Surrey.

CLARENDON COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR LADIES, Clifton, Bristol.—Mrs. and the Misses MAYNARD offer a Christian home, with careful training. Special preparation classes for University and music examinations. All candidates obtained first and second-class honour certificates from the National Society of Professional Musicians and Trinity College. Lectures given on hygiene, ambulance, cookery. Special lessons in needlework. Referees: Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., London; Revs. R. Glover, and U. R. Thomas, Clifton.

SUPERIOR EDUCATION. — Lady, teaching in High School, London suburb, receives a few Girls to attend school under her supervision. Terms and references,

K., Beeching's Library, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Delicate Children, or those whose parents are abroad, received into a Minister's family. They will have good teaching, tender care, cheerful society, and musical training by a Lady educated in the Guildhall School of Music.

Ferndale, Springfield-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references,

Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Two elder Girls can be received, on special terms, at once. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters, &c.

PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Dukinfield, Cheshire.—A sound education, with home comforts and religious training. Healthy locality.—Rev. R. HUTTON, Dukinfield, Cheshire.

BATH, Lime Bank, Wells-road.— Thorough teaching, with careful home training, for Girls. Household arrangements exceptionally comfortable. High ground, pure fresh air, regular exercise, good and abundant diet. Six Boarders received. References to ministers and others, parents of Pupils.

January 17, 1890.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Rev. Dr. Talmage, of Brooklyn, U.S.A.

We regret to have to state that in consequence of the serious illness of Miss Meredith Brown, the anniversary meeting of the Shaftesbury Institute, Lisson Grove, announced for this day (Friday), has been postponed.

We are sure all our readers will deeply sympathise with our dear friends Dr. and Mrs. Barnardo in their bereavement, by the death of their second son through the prevailing epidemic, and will unite in prayer that the eldest son, who is also dangerously ill, may be spared to them. The daily ordinary strain of his important work has been cruelly increased by the recent Romish interferences. It is shameful that the progress of such a good and greatly needed work should be disturbed by proselytising ecclesiastics, who leave these children in their dirt and squalor and misery till someone else has rescued and redeemed them.

Pastor Archibald G. Brown has written a "Sequel" to his booklet, published a year ago, entitled, "The Devil's Mission of Amusement." He fully vindicates his former protest, and supplies many sad facts in confirmation of his painful statements. He says that while some have condemned him for the course he took, others have cordially endorsed his book, and thanked him for his words of warning. Dealing with the misrepresentation and misunderstanding of some who have alleged him to have pronounced amusement to be "devilish," Mr. Brown says:—

> I never dealt with amusement in itself, but amusement as a mission....My contention is that amusement pressed into the service of the churches, and adopted as a religious agency, or a means of raising church finance, is a delusion of the devil. To this I stand—That which is tolerable and allowable under some circumstances is an abomination under others.

Mr. Brown has no doubt that many who are engaged in the mission of amusement are actuated by the best of motives, but he forcibly urges that the Church must use spiritual, and not carnal weapons. His straightforward rebuke is expressed in kindly terms, and the "Sequel" deserves to be as widely read as the original protest has been. (1d. Morgan & Scott.)

The 20th of this month marks the centenary of the death of one whose fame is written, not in the annals of bloodstained battle-fields, but in the more enduring, if less dazzling, chronicles of peaceful effort on behalf of his suffering fellow-creatures—John Howard, the prison philanthropist. That day has been chosen for the opening of the International Prison Congress at St. Petersburg, in connection with which the Russian Government offers a prize of two thousand francs, and a gold medal, for the best essay on the history of prison reform. But what a grim commentary on this proposal is presented by the recent brutal massacre of political prisoners, male and female, in Siberia, the story of which was told at length in The Times of December 26! To institute a radical reform in the Russian prison system, especially as regards Siberian exiles, whose incessant miseries and heartrending sufferings have been so graphically described by Mr. Kennan in The Century, would be the most appropriate and practical memorial which the Czar could raise.

Although the present state of English prisons is an agreeable contrast to the picture which they presented when John Howard began his labours, there is yet room for improvement in some respects; for instance, in the way of more systematic and general classification and separation of the various types of offenders and criminals, and of the more general employment of women as matrons at police-cells. To the movement which has been started in our own country with the object of raising a memorial to one who has so truly "deserved well of the State" we heartily wish every success, and trust that it may take a thoroughly practical and national form.

The following is an extract from "Poverty and Crime," from the practical pen of Mr. Tallack, the secretary of the Howard Association, in which he ably discusses the causes and treatment—preventive and repressive—of some of our modern social diseases. The whole of this volume, containing as it does a mass of valuable information and suggestion upon prison systems, reformatories, education, discharged prisoners, juvenile crime, &c., should be read by all who are engaged or interested in efforts to diminish crime, vice, and pauperism. Mr. Tallack says:—

> The mighty powers of evil passions, and the immense inertia of indifference, can only be effectually combated by forces which are still more potent, those of the love of God in Christ and of hopes and fears of eternity. The experience of the general history of humanity shows that the greatest success in the reclamation of lives from evil has been achieved by this power of Divine love. Further, it is of essential importance to all communities and individuals that the Divine declaration of what is a truly just retribution or reward in a future state should be earnestly regarded.

At the recent Glamorganshire Assizes a labourer, who was indicted for housebreaking, was treated by the Judge with great leniency, and sentenced to only two days' imprisonment, upon the earnest appeal of his brother, who urged that he was "the only member of a decent family who had gone wrong." Influenced, possibly, by the example of the Judge, a gentleman stepped forward and offered the repentant man employment, which was gratefully accepted. A little brotherly help is worth much more, in the way of reformation, than any amount of imprisonment, and it would be well for society, and also for the criminal, if this gentleman's example were more frequently imitated.

In a recent book called "Problems of the Future," by Mr. S. Laing, a well-known and frankly Agnostic writer, the following is given as the recognised definition of Agnosticism:—

> We know nothing of what may be beyond phenomena; and a man shall not say he knows or believes that which he has no scientific grounds for professing to know or believe....Science shatters into fragments the scheme assumed to be taught historically by a miraculous revelation.

But to deny a man's right to believe that which he does not know scientifically, is an arbitrary and untenable assumption. True, the Agnostic may not, and until his whole mental attitude be changed, cannot know anything of these sublime spiritual truths; but the fact that they are not to be discovered by any scientific analysis does not affect their blessed reality. Revelation deals with problems which are beyond and above the narrow ken of science, physics, or philosophy. To have attained eminence in these branches of human learning, and to be skilled in the investigation of natural phenomena, is in itself no qualification for understanding the things of the spiritual life, and the working of the spiritual forces; this requires a quality of soul which the observer may not possess. In the domain of Revelation reverence, lowliness, and teachableness are the first requisites.

At a recent inquest upon the body of an East-end dock labourer who had died of consumption, it was testified that although the man had been unable to work for a long time, except very occasionally, the wife could get no assistance from the parish. The Board of Guardians had refused to let the poor fellow have out-door relief, and he was unwilling to leave her and the children. She, therefore, maintained him and the family as well as she could. The doctor stated that the man required careful nursing and nourishing food, which it was impossible for her to procure, and a verdict was returned "accordingly." In a second case in the same district, on the same day, the victim was the poor widow of a dock labourer, who had 2s. 6d. per week from the parish, "and an occasional 6d. from a friendly neighbour when the latter could spare it." Out of this amount 1s. per week went for rent; the house in which she lived being, like all the houses in the court, very unsanitary. The Coroner said that in each of the four inquests he had held during the day poverty had hastened death; he expressed a wish that such inquests could be held in the West-end, that it might be seen how the poor live.

It seems, however, that a juror, who commented severely upon the present system of outdoor relief, was nearer the mark; for, under the present arrangements, there does not appear to be room for the exercise of either common sense, or common charity. The sooner we come to recognise the dread which the honest and deserving poor have of "the Union," the better, and, if we legislate in favour of a system of public charity which shall be more in accordance with the teachings of the Gospel, we shall not only do much to commend Christianity to the suffering poor, but we shall also best serve the interests of the ratepayer.

It is gratifying to record that pauperism in England is on the decrease, there being now over 20,000 fewer persons in receipt of parish relief than at the same period of last year. If we could only reduce our drink bill, these figures would soon be increased; for it is painfully evident that a large proportion of the prevailing poverty is self-inflicted.

Our Day states that there is room to hope that the municipal elections on February 10 will result in the control of the city of Utah being vested in the hands of those who are strongly opposed to Mormonism, and that the Mormons will have "either to emigrate, or to disappear." We trust the latter may happen; for, after all, it is not of much moment where the headquarters of such a system are located. Of late the Mormons have been unusually active in Great Britain, and it is most desirable that wherever their agents are known to be at work, Christian men and women should oppose and expose them in every way.

The Eastern Evening News, of the 27th ult., has told the following suggestive story, and which is said to be perfectly reliable. An English young lady, under age, went to Italy under parental arrangements to study Italian and music; she was drawn, by her relations to a nun, to enter a convent; not going back to England, as expected, an English solicitor went to Rome, and appealed to her by her mother's mental anguish to return home; his interview with her, through a grated window, was watched by a concealed onlooker, using secret signs; the solicitor found that his footsteps through the city were being dogged; standing in the Coliseum during the moonlight, and turning suddenly, he saw a man with hand upraised to strike him, and who, being discovered, retreated into the darkness. After fruitless negotiations the mother went to Rome; accompanied by nuns the daughter saw her; acting under advice she still refused to leave the convent; for a time priests and monks baffled the English and Italian lawyers; even an appeal to the Pope in person was in vain, and not until the case came before a proper tribunal was its illegality proclaimed, and the girl restored to her parents. It may be added she is entitled to the uncontrolled use of £30,000 on coming of age.

The Presbyterian Churchman remarks very aptly, in dealing with the topic of the coming jubilee this year of the Irish General Assembly:—

Many reflections will be aroused by a survey of these last fifty years. We have lately been assured that we have no "down grade." Theologically, we pride ourselves upon our orthodoxy. We are glad to think that the vital truths of the Christian faith are proclaimed in our pulpits and our colleges. But have we an up grade? Are we going forward?

The question which our contemporary has asked is of wider application than to Presbyterian Ireland; in fact, it is one which the individual Christian may well ask himself or herself. There can be no standing still in the Christian life, and where there is not progress there must be decline and decay.

"Apostolic Warfare."

UNDER the above title the Salvation Army publishes its Report for 1889. It contains twelve chapters, in which the writer claims for the Army that its Faith, its Conflicts, its Conquests, its Songs, its Imprisonments, its Writings, its Women, its Finance, its Government, its Manners, its Dyings, its Burnings, are all Apostolic. These pages certainly contain a wonderful record of good work done for the bodies and souls of men, in all quarters of the globe. The figures of its audited accounts are astounding. Its real property in the United Kingdom exceeds £330,000; and in Canada and Australia it possesses £220,000 more; and its annual income and expenditure are on a proportionately gigantic scale.

Zeal and concentration of purpose upon one object appear to us the two prominent features in this great organisation, and it would be well for all other bodies of Christians to study those two essential qualifications. It could be wished that these laudatory chapters had contained some generous and appreciative recognition of other Christian work; but references to other labourers are chiefly of a depreciatory character. We cannot pretend to endorse all that is said in these "Apostolic" chapters; the military model on which it is formed appears to us entirely un-Apostolic.

But if the facts asserted stir others to a holy and imitative jealousy, the criticism by which they are accompanied will do no harm; in many cases they are only too well deserved. A calm and kindly but impartial comparison of the Salvation Army, its teaching, and its want of teaching, with Apostolic methods, and a review of the results actually achieved, would be a valuable addition to Salvation Army literature, and a profitable study for those connected with and those outside of it. To the latter, in the meantime, we very warmly commend this Report as demanding deliberate and prayerful consideration. The slum and rescue work are beyond praise.

REFORMED CHURCH OF ENGLAND.—Bishop Richardson, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, recently held ordination at Christ Church, Carlton-hill, Maida-vale. Among the candidates for holy orders, one was a gentleman licensed to undertake evangelistic work in Australia, and another was Mr. Somerset Gardner, formerly known in Tractarian circles as "Brother Austin," but for the last five years an earnest evangelist. He was licensed as "Mission Preacher."

NEWFOUNDLAND. — Captain Knox, R.N., writes to thank the many kind readers of THE CHRISTIAN for the packets of Christmas cards sent to him two years ago, which has enabled him to send fifteen "Bible albums" to various "mission-rooms for sailors," both at home and abroad, besides some cards for the school children in several seaside parishes in Newfoundland. He would be glad of a fresh supply of cards, also printed scraps, to be sent by parcel or book post to him, 24, Westbourne-place, Eaton-square, S.W.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.—A most interesting address was given on "The Source and Reward of Perseverance in Christian Work" on Monday evening last week by Mr. W. Haig-Miller, at Exeter Hall, on the occasion of the voluntary workers' annual prayer-meeting in connection with the Midnight Meeting Movement. The address was full of encouragement to the Christian worker, and abounded in anecdote and illustration, showing the good results which followed every effort put forth under the Divine guidance. The meeting was well attended, and an earnest and devout spirit was displayed throughout. Mr. Christien, the organising secretary, also gave some very interesting particulars of the work now being carried on in various parts of London, and our large commercial and garrison towns.

Work in West Africa.

AT the Centenary Hall, Bishopsgate-street Within, on Thursday last week, an interesting address was given by Rev J. J. FULLER, forty-five years a missionary in West Africa. After some remarks on the tardy awakening of the Church of Christ to a sense of her duty to disseminate the Gospel throughout the world, he told how, a full generation ago, he left his home, and went to the land of his forefathers with the Gospel. Arrived in the Bight of Biafra, West Africa, he found no sign of Christianity; all was darkness and degradation. The name of God was known, but the people had no idea of worship. They had a notion of a future life, but such was their ignorance they perpetrated all sorts of cruelty and abominations, because of their dismal hopes and fears. They felt that man had a future life, and for that life they made preparation, accumulating objects and individuals to accompany the dead in the existence beyond the grave. Hence, on the death of a chief, several other men were put into the grave with him, as well as articles of utility, for his service in the future world. Thus it was clear that deep down in the human heart there is a consciousness that man does not pass away at death.

Beginning to make known the Gospel, the speaker and his companions encountered many difficulties. In the Cameroons a chief opposed the erection of a preaching-place, saying that the customs of the people were not to be interfered with by intruders from a strange country. Deciding to leave the natives alone, the missionaries commenced the erection of their house; and, when the chief came, they knelt down and asked God to help them through their trouble. When they had put down a post the chief uprooted it, and so on until about six posts had been taken from their places and contemptuously thrown about. The missionaries showed no resentment, but continued to put in posts, and at last the poor man got tired of his mischief and left the spot. Making up his mind to inquire regarding the teachings of the new-comers, he soon afterwards learned something of Christ, and eighteen months later he was baptized and received as a member of the Church of Christ. To-day on that very spot some four hundred people assemble every Lord's Day and hear the Gospel. There is a native pastorate, supported entirely by the people themselves, and the young men are trained to preach and teach.

Mr. Fuller referred to the labours of Mr. Saker who reduced the language of the Cameroons to writing, and translated the Bible for their use. The blessed results of circulating the Scriptures were illustrated by the story of some young men who procured copies, and, having secured instruction themselves, read God's Word to others, with the result that a meeting was formed which afterwards became the basis of a flourishing church. Whatever difficulties we may meet with in carrying out the Lord's command to preach the Gospel to every creature, it is certain that they will be overcome in God's time.

THE RAILWAY MISSION.—A special New Year's meeting of workers in connection with the Railway Mission, for prayer and consecration, was held on Monday evening, Jan. 6, in the Lecture Hall, Y.M.C.A., Aldersgate street. Mr. W. H. Seagram presided. Those present were exhorted to praise God for the rich blessing He has bestowed on the work of the Mission in various places during the past year, and to ask that the coming year may be still more fruitful. Rev. F. B. Meyer gave an address to the workers, in which he named various qualifications for service which every worker ought to possess. The address was full of suggestive thoughts, and was thoroughly practical. The meeting was afterwards thrown open for prayer, in which a number of the workers joined.

The Brussels Conference:

AN URGENT SUGGESTION.

BY MRS. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

AT the close of the Missionary Convention of 1888 a strong and unanimous sentiment against the opium trade with China and the drink traffic with Africa was expressed in the form of a resolution, and much prayer ascended that God would arrest the awful evils arising from these immoral and injurious branches of modern commerce.

Two other scourges are equally afflicting and destroying the heathen, and especially those in Africa. Both arise from the ever-increasing intercourse between the helpless uncivilised tribes of the Dark Continent and the well-armed and unprincipled Arab on the one hand, and the merchants of Europe and America on the other. They are the slave trade and the unrestrained importation of gunpowder and firearms.

The latter plays into the hands of the former. Without the superior power conferred by firearms the Arab destroyer could do nothing. With plenty of powder and guns he can not only ravage, and steal, and destroy, and enslave, but he can also arm his slaves, and use them as soldiers against their fellows. When he has taught the natives how to do this, they are only too apt to practise the lesson on their own account; and thus depopulation and desolation are spreading over vast tracts of Central and East Africa, to gratify the selfish lust of gain of a comparatively few Arabs; while demoralisation and destruction are similarly ruining the West African coast tribes, that German and other merchants may grow rich.

Are we doing all we might to alter this state of things, which, when it is all understood in its actual working, is almost too awful to think about? We read that "For this purpose was the Son of God manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil;" and this, not in the hearts and lives of individuals only, but in the world at large. He has been doing it ever since Pentecost, in steps and stages. One great organised system of Satanic evil after another has He broken in pieces by the iron rod of judgment. Paganism fell first, in spite of all power and persecutions. The great Roman Empire, with its cruelties and its corruptions, was then shattered to fragments. Papal tyranny has been robbed of its power by revolution; and the oppressive feudal system abolished. Slavery, that "sum of all villanies," has been melted out of existence in Christian nations by the sunshine of heavenly love; and thus, age after age, our glorious Christ is gradually carrying out his work of delivering mankind from their cruel bondage to Satan. He will go on doing this until all evil is destroyed; the old serpent bound; and his own kingdom of righteousness and peace established on earth.

Christians must not therefore be quietly content with their own salvation, but should share the spirit of the Master, who resisted unto blood, striving against sin. We should seek in every way we can to "loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, to let the oppressed go free, and to break every yoke." Such action must be well pleasing in the eyes of the Great Deliverer.

An opportunity of a remarkable character is just now afforded to the Christian people of all countries of making their voice heard and their influence felt on behalf of the oppressed millions of Africa.

In the wonderful series of providential events which during the last thirty years, and especially during the last twelve, has opened up to us the existence and condition of the new world of Central Africa, we have now, in 1890, reached one of supreme importance—one the influence of which on its future weal or woe must be immense.

It is to be feared that not a few of us are praying and thinking too little about the great humanitarian Conference now sitting at Brussels, and I trust these lines may lead to prayerful action in many cases.

Never in the history of the human race did such a conference assemble before. It is unique alike in its composition and in its object. All powers alike are represented—Protestant, Latin, Greek, Persian, Mohammedan, American, European, and Asiatic. With the exception of China, we may say all the great powers in the world have delegates at this international committee.

It is assembled to deal with great moral and humanitarian questions, not with political ones. Portugal would fain have introduced the subject of boundaries and territorial delimitations. But the Conference refused to entertain any such questions. Its one great object is to prevent evil in Africa; and hence, to all interested in African missions, its deliberations and decisions must be of profound moment. It is dealing exclusively with the question of the prevention of the Arab slave trade, and the restriction of native slave raids; the prohibition of the indiscriminate importation of war material, and restriction of the liquor traffic. Its objects are, therefore, those with which Christians can most thoroughly sympathise. If suitable measures are promptly taken and faithfully adhered to, to solve in the right direction these three questions, it will promote the well-being of hundreds of millions of our fellow-creatures in the Dark Continent—peoples of various races and tribes, whose future looks inexpressibly dark and tragic, apart from such protection.

There is every reason to hope that the Conference, which had largely considered the slave trade question before the Christmas recess, will recommend the adoption of very stringent and effective measures for the suppression of the coast slave trade. But there is ground to fear that the representatives of Germany, Holland, and Portugal will strongly oppose any measure intended to interfere with the sale in Africa of alcoholic liquors and firearms. That this opposition may be overcome we must earnestly pray, and we should also throw the weight of the practical influence of English Christianity into the scale.

How can we do this? We will quote in reply, from a letter of our friend Mr. Francis W. Fox, who is in Brussels as a deputation from the Aborigines Protection Society, and who is anxious—as many of us are—about the action of the Conference on the two questions. He says:—

> The British Plenipotentiaries at the Brussels Conference have felt, I believe, rather disappointed with the little apparent sympathy and interest manifested by their fellow countrymen in connection with the important humanitarian questions now before this Conference, as only three English Societies have so far despatched representatives to Brussels, and submitted memorials or addresses to the Conference, namely, the Anti-Slavery Society, the Aborigines Protection Society, and the Native Races Liquor Protection Committee.
>
> Since then I understand that some other memorials have been sent to the President of the Conference, but it is to be hoped that before or soon after the re-assembling of the Conference, which takes place on January 18, every Christian Church organisation, and every missionary society, as well as other religious and philanthropic societies in Great Britain, United States, and throughout the Continent of Europe will forward memorials, petitions, or addresses, urging on the Powers the importance of not separating, until they have passed such stringent measures as will effectually diminish the appalling evils now being wrought by European and American traders throughout the length and breadth of Africa.

Lord Vivian, the British Ambassador at Brussels, is our representative at the Conference. He will receive and present any petitions forwarded to his care, and addressed "to the President of the International Conference at Brussels." Each time he lays a petition on the table, he has the opportunity of speaking on the subject. He ought to have hundreds of petitions and addresses to present on behalf of British Christians. Their feeling is deep and strong. Let them now show it. It is an occasion on which the expression of right and humane sentiments and of Christian abhorrence of iniquity will have weight.

Numerously signed petitions are not needful, but representative ones. A committee can sign on behalf of a society, a pastor and elders on behalf of a Church, a moderator or president on behalf of Congregational Union; a president and faculty on behalf of a college. The more the better, no doubt, but the number of the separate petitions is more important than the number of signatures to each. What is desirable, and likely to be influential, is that an unmistakable impression should be produced at the Conference, that Christian England is intensely interested in the matter, and that all sorts and conditions of men are unanimous in demanding the cessation of a gigantic iniquity. The Conference resumes its sittings on the 18th inst., and will not terminate its labours before the end of February. It ought to receive a stream of petitions the whole time, so that a cumulative effect may be produced.

If our prayers for Africa during this past week of prayer have been sincere, let us now prove it by action. Faith without works is dead, being alone.

The exact form of the petition is unimportant, providing it clearly embody the desire to see the supply of munitions of war and of alcoholic drinks to the natives stopped.

A copy of the address of the Aborigines Protection Society to the Conference can be obtained on application to Broadway Chambers, Westminster, S.W. It is, of course, special in character, and longer than is needful; but paragraphs on the essential points might be borrowed from it, or suggested by it, to those who are not familiar with the subject. Each petition would, however, naturally have a character of its own. Some might be sent from towns or cities, some by individual members of Parliament, or by groups of such. Others by the heads of large firms, employing hundreds or thousands of hands. But especially does the duty devolve on all Christian and philanthropic societies and bodies, like the Bible Society, the Religious Tract Society, the Evangelical Alliance, all Christian Temperance and Peace Societies, and, above all, the missionary bodies of all denominations. In this, at least, all good men are of one mind and one heart. Let us then act, each and all, and together "plead the cause of the poor and needy."

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XVIII.—SUFFERING FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS' SAKE.

1 PETER iii. 14, &c.

THRICE in this paragraph we meet the word suffer, and in each case it is associated with that special kind of suffering which is inflicted on the innocent and holy by those who hate the light flung in on their own darkness, and who desire to extinguish it if they may.

The Incarnation led inevitably to the cross. Any attentive student of human nature who stood with Jesus on the threshold of his life, and heard Him speak or saw Him act, must have been convinced that there was but one fate reserved for such a one as He was. And though the acts of love and power which marked his busy days, as the silver bells which made music at every movement of Israel's high priest, averted the crisis for some few months, it came, as from the first it was evident that it must come. Amid every sign of vehement hatred, the Lamb of God was led to his death, hurried out of the world as millions of his followers have been since. From Bethlehem the road lay straight to Calvary.

And what was true of the Son of God in his human flesh is true of each incarnation of Him in our hearts and lives. Where, by the Holy Spirit, He enters into the nature of those who consecrate themselves wholly to Him, and begins to live freely and mightily within them, He will not only manifest much of the grace and power of his own human life, but He will also come into collision with the prejudices and interests of worldly and evil men, incurring as of old their most virulent dislike, and probably their violent resistance.

THE ORIGIN OF PERSECUTION.—We cannot analyse at length all the causes of the inevitable dislike which the world feels towards the Christian. They are many, and obvious. For instance: The man of God should be an embodied conscience. The one endeavour of ungodly men is to drown the remonstrances of conscience. For this they plunge into gaiety, or business, or exploration; for this they hurry from scene to scene; for this they studiously avoid all that savours of God or his claims. But in a holy life they meet with a devout and constant recognition of those claims, coupled with a faithful endeavour to fulfil them. There is an embodiment of righteousness without them, which arouses into instant and unwelcome activity those convictions of their duty which they have done their best to quell. The pride of heart which resents superiority in another. The envy which grudges the influence that goodness always attracts. The malice which broods over the contrast that purity presents to impurity, until the fact of its doing so bulks as a positive injury. All these strong passions of the unrenewed heart, like Pilate and Herod of old, become friends in their common antagonism to the saintliness which intrudes upon their privacy and menaces their peace.

Besides, there is always an aggressiveness in true Christianity which arouses strong resistance. We readily admit that, in one aspect, it does not strive, or cry, or lift up, or cause its voice to be heard. Soft as the zephyr which scarcely stirs the bearded wheat, light as the tread of the morning, gentle as distilling dewdrops, does the religion of Jesus spread onwards over the world. And yet it endangers crafts, undermines profitable but nefarious trades, steals away customers from the devil's shrines, attacks vested interests, and turns the world upside down. A tiresome, annoying, gain-sapping thing is pure and undefiled religion, and the devil's servants have a bad time of it when the Puritan reigns, or the Revival sweeps as a prairie fire through the community. "If we let Him alone, all men will believe on Him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation."

Have we not here the clue to the subsidence of persecution in our days? True, each age has its peculiar discipline, and ours is cursed by a soft, luxurious worldliness, which is most hostile to the manifestation of strong and heroic principle. But is not there too great a contrast between our lives and those of our forefathers? Where is the saintliness of living, the zeal for souls, the uncompromising rebuke of evil, the sturdy adherence to principle at all costs, which littered the Alpine summits with the bones of slaughtered saints, and lit the fires of Smithfield? If these virtues were more generally embodied in the daily practice of the majority, as they are in that of a small minority of professing Christians, can there be much doubt as to the issue? Men might not adopt the barbarous expedients of former days, for even in this they unconsciously do homage to Jesus of Nazareth, but they would find some other method of ridding themselves of the unwelcome protests of holy lives against the selfishness and evil of their own condition.

Ah, it is one of the most terrible rebukes that Incarnate Love can administer, when it says of any now, as it did of some in the days of his flesh; "The world cannot hate you." Not to be hated by the world, to be loved and flattered and caressed by the world, is one of the most terrible positions in which a Christian can find himself. "What bad thing have I done," asked the ancient sage, "that he should speak well of me?" The absence of the world's hate proves that we do not testify against it that its works are evil. The warmth of the world's love proves that we are of its own. The friendship of the world is enmity with God. Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God (John vii. 7, xv. 19; James iv. 4).

THE BLESSEDNESS OF THE PERSECUTED.—"Blessed are ye." A beatitude caught from the lips of Jesus, and ringing out again in our next chapter (Matt. v. 10 and 1 Pet. iv. 14). Blessedness is a higher thing than happiness, and is consistent with the most trying circumstances. But what a universal testimony has been given to that blessedness shining from the faces and breathing from the lips of those who have suffered for righteousness' sake.

A recent writer has culled these words from dying martyr-testimonies, and they testify to this inner blessedness. "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord," said one martyr, as he was condemned to die.

> This prison very sweet to me
> Hath been since I came here;
> And so would also hanging be,
> If Thou didst then appear, sang Bunyan in Bedford Gaol, his eyes dazzled with frescoes painted by angel hands on the damp walls. "Methinks they strew roses at my feet," said another, as the faggots were lighted about him.

And wherein does this blessedness consist? It comes through the inner possession by the spirit of that heavenly temper, which is inspired by the Spirit of God, and is close akin to Him, and is in itself blessedness. It comes through the enforced constraint laid upon the soul to seek its delight and rapture in the love and friendship of Christ, the Friend of the persecuted, who is always nearest to those who are likest Him in suffering, because likest in character and life. It comes through the glad consciousness of being on the path trodden already by prophets and righteous men, who have gone through flood and flame, but who have overcome, and are set down with Christ on his throne. It comes because the Spirit of glory and of God rests brooding in the heart. It comes because the exceeding great reward beckons from on high.

There are many gates into blessedness. It stands foursquare, and, judging from our Lord's words, it has two gateways on each side, so that no life is so far away or obscure, but it may enter in and dwell there. Choose you which gate you will. And if you are not able to lay claim to poverty of spirit, or mercifulness, or purity in heart, then dare to do well at all costs; pursue patiently the path of lofty integrity and blameless purity, bear the suffering which will inevitably fall to your lot with uncomplaining patience and fortitude, and there will be administered to you a blessed and abundant entrance into that kingdom of blessedness which is already established on earth, standing with its sapphire walls and gates amid the erections of men, unstained by their pollutions, as it is unseen by any but purged eyes. "If ye should suffer for righteousness' sake, blessed are ye."

THE BEHAVIOUR OF THE PERSECUTED.—(1) Be not afraid. There seems here a reminiscence on Peter's part of words heard long before: "Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do." "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." No pallor on your face. No clammy sweat on your brow. No quiver through your frame.

How may we obtain this lion-heart, which knows no fear in the presence of our foes? There is but one answer possible. Expel fear by fear. Drive out the fear of man by the fear of God. "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts." These words come back to us from a very stormy era in Jewish history. "It was told the house of David, saying, Syria is confederate with Ephraim. And his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind." And the Lord spake to Isaiah his servant, "with a strong hand," saying, Do not join in this panic-stricken cry, or seek to meet confederacy by confederacy; fear ye not their fear, nor be afraid. Sanctify the Lord of hosts Himself; and let Him be your fear, and let Him be your dread. And He shall be for a sanctuary (Isa. vii., viii.).

How often we see fear expel fear. The fear of being burnt will nerve a woman to let herself down by a water-pipe from the upper storeys of a house in flames. The fear of losing her young will inspire the timid bird to throw herself before the steps of man, attracting his notice from them to herself. The fear of the whip will expel the horse's dread of the object at which it has taken fright. Oh for that Divine habit of soul which so conceives of the majesty, and power, and love of God, that it dares not sin against Him, but would rather brave a world in arms than bring a shadow over his face. "So did not I," said a sincere and noble man, "because of the fear of God."

And when a man so fears God as that he fears to sin against Him, he will find God to be a sanctuary into which he may retreat, and find an inviolable defence. "Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear. For in the time of trouble He shall hide me in his pavilion. And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me."

(2) Be ready always with a reason for your hope.—We are not always to be talking about our faith, but proving it by divine deeds. But when men, seeing the fruits of our faith, begin to inquire as to its ground and reason, we should always be ready to give them a satisfactory reply.

How remarkable it is, in opposition to many of the contradictory voices of our time, to meet with this clear insistance on the sweet reasonableness of the Christian's hope! The Bible does not appeal to a blind credulity. Many of its statements are above reason, but none of them are against it. God's continuous appeal is contained in the inspired summons, "Come, let us reason together, saith the Lord." The reasonings of pride will be assuredly puzzled and non-plussed, but those of meekness will find abundant scope for adoring wonder and assured conviction, in the mighty depths of the thoughts of God.

Young people, the Bible has nothing to fear from the exercise of your reason. It is not possible that the God who built up your brains and endowed you with that marvellous faculty of reason will ever do violence to one of his noblest gifts. Reasoning was a favourite pursuit with the greatest of the Apostles. But reason must ever hold the torch to faith, the handmaid to collect materials for the sanctified judgment, the analyst which tests and separates and re-combines and thinks over again, as Kepler said, the first thoughts of God. Where reason is the servant of a reverent and holy spirit, as in Newton or Faraday, or the Magi who knelt before the infant Saviour, it is the glory and boast of man. The mistake of so many is not in the exercise of reason, but in putting reason in its wrong place. If you put reason on the throne of your inner life, you may profess to see, but you will be blind. But if you enthrone faith and hope, whilst reason waits their bidding and obeys their behest, you will be wiser than foe, or teacher, or grey-haired sage (Ps. cxix. 98-100).

Let us have a reason for our faith, based on personal experience, or observation, or the study of evidence, or of fulfilled prophecy; or, above all, wrought by the Holy Spirit in our hearts; and, though we may not be ever obtruding it, let us never flinch from stating it when asked. And let us give our reasons, or conduct our arguments in a temper which shall be the best evidence of the divine character of our faith. Let there be meekness towards the face of man, and reverential fear towards the face of God—the temper of those who confess that, at the best, they are but children, gathering a few shells on the shores of the boundless ocean of truth, which sweeps far away to the horizon where eternity and infinity blend.

(3) Have a good conscience.—The Apostle Paul also speaks much of conscience, and of the necessity of perpetually exercising ourselves to have a conscience void of offence towards God and man. It is well to obey these repeated commands. The Christian will not be far wrong who faithfully follows the inner voice, and conforms in all things to its behests. A "good conscience" implies a "good conversation" in Christ.

There are many kinds of conscience spoken of in Scripture, but this epithet good is very comprehensive. Do my readers know what a good conscience is? It is a conscience which is purged from dead works (Heb. ix. 14), sprinkled with the blood of Christ (Heb. x. 22), borne witness to by the Holy Ghost (Rom. ix. 1), whilst a joy, which is full of glory, wells up within it (2 Cor. i. 12), and as a calm, unruffled lake of peace it reflects the cloudless heaven of God's good pleasure above. Such a conscience is a good companion for our days, and a good bed-fellow for our nights. Every effort should be made to preserve its integrity. And when life is moulded by such an inward influence, it will live down all misrepresentation and slander, it will outshine all the mists of envy and malice which have obscured its earliest beams, it will falsify false reports. Detractors shall be ashamed at the triumphant answer made to their accusations by the unblemished beauty of a holy Christian life; whilst those that love God shall take heart. "The righteous shall see it, and rejoice; and all iniquity shall stop her mouth."

Let all who are persecuted possess their souls in patience. Suffering comes to all men, but if we must suffer, it is a thousand times better to suffer for well-doing than for evil-doing. Even here and now it is fraught with blessedness; but who can estimate the exceeding and eternal weight of glory which awaits each member of the noble army of martyrs, from Jesus Christ, who, before Pontius Pilate, witnessed the good confession, to the least in his kingdom who has stood up for Him unmoved, amid the mockery of schoolfellows, or the taunts of a handful of shopmates.

MILDMAY MISSION TO THE JEWS.

As usual at Mildmay, the Week of Prayer begins on the principle of "to the Jew first." Meetings for praise and prayer were held on Monday in room No. 6, at the Conference Hall, forenoon and evening, and the interest was well sustained. Mr. J. E. Mathieson presided on both occasions, and gave brief addresses, interesting and instructive, and full of the warmest sympathy with the work of the Mildmay Mission. He referred to the recent Jewish Convention as one of the leading events of the past year; and also to the issue of Rev. J. Wilkinson's book, "Israel my Glory," as worthy of notice.

Mr. WILKINSON gave his usual statement of the work of the past year at the Medical Mission, the Children's Home, Convalescent Home at Highgate, the Inquirers' Home, the various meetings at Wellclose-square, the weekly meeting for Jewesses, sewing-classes, night-school for Jewish children, work amongst the immigrants, the itinerant mission throughout Great Britain and Ireland, and the special occasional efforts to reach the higher class Jews with the Gospel. He confined himself chiefly in the forenoon to an account of work at home. In the evening Mr. Wilkinson's statement had reference chiefly to the Hebrew New Testament distribution all over the world, specially in Morocco and in Russia. During the year Mr. Dressler had been sent out to Morocco. He had visited the Jews in many places. The mission is much needed, and very hopeful. The Mildmay Mission has a share in Dr. Churcher's Medical Mission work at Tangier; and also in the five men chosen by and under the direction of Mr. Baldwin, who will aid in the distribution of the Hebrew New Testament in Central and Southern Morocco.

The needs of the Mission were stated to be about £5,000 a year. Mr. Wilkinson urged continued prayer for the new Hall at the East-End. The Mission has the greatest difficulty in getting proper accommodation for the varied and increasing work in that district. Towards the £10,000 needed, £4,300 has already been received, and £800 more conditionally promised.

Mr. Mathieson, Dr. Maxwell, Dr. Dixon, and Dr. Bullinger, all urged the need of this building, and asked prayer. It was mentioned that about 88,000 of the 100,000 Hebrew New Testaments are already out—about 57,000 of them in the Russian Empire, besides several thousands of Judeo-German Gospels and Epistles.

Rev. Dr. Bullinger gave a profitable address at the forenoon meeting, at once scriptural, spiritual, and practical, exalting the Word of God. Dr. Dixon read the statistics of the Medical Mission work at the morning meeting, but as he was only just recovering from serious illness, Dr. Maxwell took his place efficiently at the evening meeting. Dr. Maxwell spoke to the mind and heart of the audience on the wonderful opportunities afforded by Medical Missions in general, but especially in the case of the Jews; he referred to his own experience in the work of the Mildmay Mission, and bore high testimony to the ability, devotion, and union of heart and hand, as manifested by the doctors, deaconesses, and helpers.

The annual East-end tea-meeting was given at Zion Chapel, Whitechapel-road, on Wednesday, January 2. It did one good to see such a number of poor Jews and Jewesses flocking in and sitting down to a substantial free tea, where, at one time, it would have been a difficulty to get six of them to attend for such a purpose. Mr. Wilkinson presided at the subsequent public meeting. Isaiah liii. was read in Hebrew and German. Mr. Wilkinson spoke, and short addresses were given in German and English at intervals during the meeting. One after another rose to testify to their having accepted Jesus as their Saviour, and were willing to suffer persecution for his name's sake, and to go to the uttermost part of the earth to spread the joyful news of free salvation through Him. Great interest was manifested by their unbelieving brethren and sisters as they listened to these testimonies. Much attention was given to the stirring addresses delivered in German by Messrs. Baron and S. H. Wilkinson.

Jewish children were entertained on the following evening, and the gathering was a most interesting one.

MISSION TO BRAZIL.

DEAR SIR,—My time for returning to my field is drawing near, and I am anxious again to call the attention of your readers to the Lord's work in Brazil. Now is the time to advance our work in that land; under the new form of government we expect full religious liberty. From recent letters received, I learn that God is wonderfully blessing the efforts of our missionaries in the conversion of souls. The power of the Romish Church is broken.

Mr. Taylor, of Bahia, writes me:—"We intend next year to give the Gospel to this people in print. You can do us a great favour by asking the Christians of England to give us materials for this. Bring us press, types, paper, or anything in the way of printing." On my return to Brazil I hope to carry the Gospel into the interior of that land, and to do so I shall need a tent, animals for travelling, a good stock of Bibles, &c., and a colporteur.

Woolston, Southampton. E. H. SOPER.

HAM YARD SOUP KITCHEN.—During the past year the total relief given at the Ham Yard Soup Kitchen and Hospice, Great Windmill-street, was 251,958 meals, 4459 nights' lodgings, and 102½ tons of coals in ½ cwts. There were 275 persons admitted to the Hospice; the average length of stay was 16 days. Over 1000 families (over 5000 persons) were supplied with Christmas dinners, and 74,324 penny dinners were sold to boardmen, &c., while 163,571 free meals were given to families, of whom 3156 were registered, principally for a month at a time.

Some Scottish Missions.—XII.

THE CHILDREN'S SABBATH DINNER.

As intimated last week, this is a branch of work under the auspices of the United Evangelistic Association. To miss seeing this would be to miss one of the greatest treats to be had in Glasgow.

Punctually at two o'clock Mr. Alexander Mackeith mounts the platform of the handsome Tent Hall; and if "the right man in the right place" is to be found anywhere, it is here and now, as he stands up before the 2000 children (of the roughest type gathered from the slums) who fill the body of the hall.

Upon the platform is a well-organised choir; the gallery is occupied by some 500 or 600 adults come to witness—and learn from—the proceedings that follow; while stationed about are 200 helpers, male and female, whose services will presently be in requisition.

First of all, one or two hymns are sung, led by Mr. Mackeith himself; and so complete is his hold upon the attention of the children that, with the silent expression of his face as their only guide, they sing softly—little above a whisper—or more vigorously, line by line, as he directs, the sudden modulations being sometimes most effective. Then follows prayer, after which comes a recapitulation of the previous Sabbath's lesson. These lessons are for they deal with subjects which hardly any Sunday-school teacher would venture upon, even with an advanced and thoughtful class; much less with a ragged congregation of 2000 half-starved ragamuffins. Mr. Mackeith recently commenced the Book of Genesis with the children, and my visit took place on the third Sabbath of the series. The first subject had been LIFE, of which the following heads were considered:—(1) Vegetable life (life without intelligence); (2) Animal life (life with intelligence, but without responsibility); (3) Rational life (life with intelligence and responsibility). These were respectively illustrated by the presence on the platform of

A MARVEL IN THEMSELVES,

A LILY, A LIVE HARE, AND A LITTLE BOY.

During the talk these heads are drawn in fine bold letters upon the blackboard by Mr. David Pratt, whose wonderful artistic ability is a most important factor in impressing the lessons on the young minds present.

Then Mr. Mackeith recalls the chief points in the previous Sabbath's lesson, which appear on the blackboard as follows:—MAN: (1) His Body (connecting him with the earth beneath him); (2) his Soul (connecting him with human beings around him); (3) his Spirit (connecting him with God above him). Each of these requires (a) Exercise, (b) Food, (c) Rest.

Then comes a string of questions upon these two lessons, which are, for the most part, answered correctly. One little fellow, however, gives a random answer, but even this Mr. Mackeith turns to good account, as he exclaims, "Always think before you speak. I don't want the boy who answers first, but the one who answers right!" Following this comes the hymn—

"Nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

the lines of which are sung alternately by the children on the ground floor and the spectators in the gallery, and characterised by the same inflexions of voice before alluded to. When this is done, hand-drill is performed, the concluding motions of which are the placing of the hymn-sheet before the face, turning round, placing hymn sheets and caps upon the form, facing the platform again, and sitting down. By this acute arrangement no trouble is experienced during the address, from the rustling of papers, or twirling of caps, which are

ALL SECURELY "SAT UPON!"

Next, all hands are raised, that judgment may be pronounced upon their cleanliness—for, while bare legs and ragged frocks are quite au fait, the line is drawn at dirty skins. Not that the unwashed urchins are denied their dinner; they are sent out to the washhouse for a scrub—or, if need be, a bath—and then they return, wholesome, and perhaps more hungry than before. Very seldom does a child need to be sent out a second time. Once the lesson is learned, his or her next appearance shows that soap and water have been applied at home, and thus the parents are taught that poverty is no excuse for uncleanliness.

But the leader does not do things by halves. The first command, "All hands up!" shows a forest of palms (not trees), but he insists on seeing the backs as well; and, finally, sleeves must be pulled up, that the wrists may share the scrutiny. This is made the occasion of another practical lesson: "Who gave you these beautiful hands?" "God." "Very well, and oughtn't you to keep them clean? How kind of Him to give you such a means of earning your bread! I see a poor lad there with only one hand. How grateful to God you should be who have got two! Always try and help those who are crippled or deformed."

When all this is over, and the door has closed upon the small—very small—group of delinquents who have adjourned to be scrubbed, all are ready for the lesson of the day—

ADAM AND EVE IN EDEN—

a very brief outline of which I append:—

"God made man in his own image, in knowledge (right-knowing); in righteousness (right-doing); and in holiness (right-being). If we are wrong in being, we shall also be wrong in the other two respects.

"GOD planted Eden; this shows his interest in Adam and Eve. He had it ready for them, and filled it with good things 'pleasant to the eyes' and 'good for food.' Then He put Man to keep it and dress it. Did God intend him to be idle?" ["No," from a chorus of voices.] "Everyone should work. I wonder if any of you boys have been shirking school this week. If so, you are training for loafers. If you don't study well, when you go for a situation and cannot write your name or spell a sentence right, you will lose it, and thus

PUNISH YOURSELF AS ADAM DID.

"God walked in the garden in the cool of the day, when their work was done, and talked about all the beautiful objects around. How nice to have the Maker explain his own work." [Then follows a graphic description of the bringing of the animals to Adam for their names.] "One day they come to a tree. 'Do you see that, Adam?' 'Yes.' 'Do not eat of that. If you do, you will lose your best life—that of the spirit.' How happy Adam and Eve must have been! until one day"—And here, with tantalising abruptness, the finish of the story is relegated to the next Sabbath; but not before a few homely lessons have been enforced upon the evils of disobedience; how God is grieved by it; and how, by Christ's obedience to his Father's will, forgiveness is secured. [The line of the next Sabbath's discourse was (1) How Adam and his posterity lost spiritual life; and (2) How through the Second Adam it may be regained.] Then all heads are bowed in prayer, which is audibly repeated sentence by sentence, as such requests as these are uttered—"Bless the magistrates; bless our schoolmasters; help us to do our lessons well; bless our parents; help us to be obedient"—and many others, designed to inculcate into these young minds respect for authority and right living. Soon

A RUMBLING SOUND IS HEARD,

the doors swing open, and in come the trolleys loaded up with mugs filled with hot broth, substantial hunches of bread, and spoons. In an instant the "monitors" have donned white aprons, and not many seconds elapse before eyes, mouths, and hands are busy with the welcome fare.

As I watched this hungry multitude, I gleaned two interesting facts which set at rest any doubts as to the ultimate benefit of this "feeding." The first was that many of the workers present once came to the hall as hungry children themselves; the other, that when, a few months before, an invitation had been issued to any persons still living in Glasgow who had received food or education in connection with this movement during the first five years of its existence (from 1874 to 1879) to come to a social meeting, no less than 130 came, many bringing their wives and children—and this after an interval of from ten to fifteen years.

To any who desire to know more of Mr. Mackeith's Scripture lessons, and of Mr. Pratt's talented pictures, I warmly commend "The Story of Jesus" and "Moses' Bible"—books containing two complete courses of lessons given at the dinner. They are eminently useful and suggestive. Teachers will find in them much to aid them in their Sabbath-school work; and parents will value them as a help in the training of their children in the knowledge of God. They may be had for 1s. each of Maclure, Macdonald & Co., Glasgow.

G. E. M.

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

AN EARLY SUNDAY-SCHOOL.—M. D. Benoit, writing in the Journal des Ecoles du Dimanche, shows that, as far back as the middle of the sixteenth century, there was a Sunday-school in Strasbourg. This is made clear by recently discovered letters sent by a Christian young man from Antwerp, who was studying at Strasburg at the time. It seems that, in connection with the Huguenot Church, of which Calvin was the first pastor, there was a second Sunday morning service to which parents took their children, to be instructed and catechised by the minister. Thus the young were armed against Romish error, and equipped for the valiant [illegible] of the pure [illegible].

JERUSALEM [illegible] from the ruin of [illegible]. A writer in L'Evangeliste says: "According to Mr. Moore, the British Consul at Jerusalem, the Israelitish immigrants, during the period 1886-9, numbered at least 20,000. It is certain that, to-day, more than half the [illegible]; what [illegible] said of the rural districts. Commerce begins to flourish, and industries are being developed. The aspect of the entire country is visibly changing. To a considerable extent this is owing to the interest and influence of the Rothschilds, who are at the head of what is to all intents and purposes a movement to restore Israel to the Israelites, and give back Jerusalem to the children of its former inhabitants."

THE TACTICS OF ROME.—The Roman Catholic Church seeks to disintegrate Protestantism, as well as to decoy its adherents. This was recently illustrated in a forcible manner in Berlin. A Romish paper charged a Frankfort Lutheran pastor with having denied the divinity of Christ. To have been guilty of this would have involved the pastor in a violation of the understanding upon which he held his ministerial position, so he proceeded to vindicate himself in one of the Courts of Berlin. The editor of the Romish newspaper was unable to justify his charge, and was therefore heavily fined for his libellous statements. This is by no means a new weapon in the hands of Rome, whose obvious policy is to weaken Protestantism, no matter by what means.

THE BLIND.—By the will of the Earl of Leven, the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read, &c., has been bequeathed £1000. That Society must not be confounded with "The Home Teaching Society for the Blind."

SOLDIERS IN CEYLON.—Miss Norah Pigott writes from Colombo:—"Some time ago you kindly inserted a letter of mine on 'Christian Work amongst the Gordon Highlanders in Colombo.' Since then, by almost every mail, I have received packets of tracts and papers from Christian friends in England, Switzerland, and India. These have been very much appreciated by the soldiers. I am leaving Ceylon, so shall not be able to receive any more tracts; but if anyone would like to send them still, they may be addressed to Mr. J. Clarke, Medical Staff Corps, Station Hospital, Colombo, Ceylon. Being president of the Bydand, he has kindly promised to receive and distribute in the military hospital and barracks any packets addressed to him."

WEEK OF UNITED PRAYER.

JAN. 7.—NATIONS AND THEIR RULERS.

Steinway Hall.

THE address here was delivered by Rev. RICHARD ROBERTS, who selected, from the several topics named in the programme, that suggesting prayer for the maintenance of national peace. The history of our world, he said, is the history of battles written with the tears of the living and with the blood of the slain. The sword, ever thirsting for blood, has its hecatombs of human victims more numerous than those of pestilence or plague. How to silence the thunders of war, and to stay the flow of human blood, is a problem which philosophers, poets, patriots, philanthropists, throughout all ages, have bent the best energies of their mind in order to solve. some good and great men suggest that the best method is to dismiss your armies, to send your soldiers home to cultivate the arts of peaceful industry, to burn your weapons of war, and to convert them into implements of husbandry. But, if nations were to do this, it would not be effectual. Soldiers and weapons are not the causes of war. If we would do away with war, we must ascertain its cause and assail that. Wars come from lust of power, lust of territory, lust of conquest, lust of glory, lust of wealth. If you dismiss your armies and burn your weapons of war, and leave these passions in the hearts of earth's rulers, the children of men, those passions will raise other armies and inspire them with as much fierceness as those which you have dismissed: those passions will invent other weapons of destruction as fearful as those which you have abolished.

The great remedy for war is to assail those passions in the hearts of men, and overthrow them. This is Christ's method; this is what He is endeavouring to do by spreading his kingdom; and this is what He calls us to help Him to do, i.e., by bringing the world into subjection to his authority. Until we establish, instead of these evil passions, a principle of brotherly love in all hearts, and in the hearts of all rulers in particular, the destructive work of war will go on.

The conversion of the world unto Christ must precede the dismissal of armies; this is according to God's order; and working according to God's order is the safest, the truest, and will ultimately be the most successful.

Centenary Hall.

Mr. H. M. Matheson introduced the venerable to the assembly in terms of warm Christian affection. The aged Bishop delivered an address eminently suited to the occasion. Having indicated the progress of Christianity in Africa, he maintained that the present improved state of things is the direct result of prayerful effort on the part of English Christians. Were it not for British benevolence, he would not have been rescued from slavery, but, if not already killed, would have been engaged in practices of heathen divination pursuant to his youthful training. In God's providence, however, the wrath of man was turned to his praise. The town in which he passed his early days was destroyed; his father was killed, and with his mother and sister he was sold into slavery. Having been freed by being taken on board a British gunboat, he was sent to school at Sierra Leone, and taught by devoted Christian missionaries.

BISHOP CROWTHER

Gradually, through the labours and prayers of the people of Britain, the operations of the Church Missionary Society had been extended in West Africa, and in due course, having found Christ to be his Saviour, he was sent to preach the Gospel in the very country from which years previously he had been shipped for Brazil. Now there are labourers in the district representing the Church Missionary Society, and the Wesleyan and Baptist Societies, and thousands of people have been converted to Christ. In one part where the inhabitants were cannibals and slave-dealers, worshipping various natural objects and all sorts of imaginary deities, there are to-day three iron churches, erected at the expense of the people themselves, who now pray not only that the blessing of the Lord may rest upon themselves, but also that it may be upon the entire country.

The Lord's Day is held in high regard among the converts, who, on leaving for distant markets for a few weeks, were, until lately, in the habit of informing their pastors of their intention, while absent, to rest on the Sabbath and assemble for public prayer. The available rooms eventually proving too small, the people, at their own expense, built in three different markets chapels capable of holding from two to three hundred worshippers each. When these buildings were opened for public use, some of the chiefs were present, and said: "These places will soon be too small." Even the enemies of the work, added the Bishop, bore good testimony concerning us, for they see that whatever else it may be, Christianity is a real present blessing.

Having shown that the barbarous practice of killing twin children is being undermined in West Africa, the speaker referred to the pressing needs of the entire continent. The Mohammedans deny that Jesus was the Son of God, and with them a Gospel warfare is now being waged in many parts.

REV. J. SADLER, of Amoy, delivered the address at the second meeting. He spoke of the workings of God in China, showing the great importance of the utmost being made by Christian people of the religious liberty which is at present enjoyed. Famine relief and medical mission work have done much to predispose the people to give ear to the Gospel. As a nation, however, China has not yet been moved by Christian truth. There is no Sabbath, and no Saviour, except where Christ is known. If the earnestness of those Chinese who know not God were expended in the service of Christ, much would be accomplished. There is no form of sin from which Chinese have not been saved, so the Gospel does make some headway. Not only is prayer required that greater fruit may result from the seed sown, but also that converts may maintain their ground, and that Englishmen resident in the country may stand up for God.

Exeter Hall.

REV. DR. HENRY ALLON

spoke on Tuesday at Exeter Hall. There is no religious peril (he said) greater than that of religious selfishness. In all the prayers that have been offered to-day, with one exception, there has been no reference to our relative duties and the obligations we owe to one another. This self-centred spirit is a besetting characteristic of our religious life, and we need to be frequently called away from our personal experiences to the needs and claims of those around us. We are apt to narrow our conceptions of the scope of God's salvation. When we have realised our individual forgiveness, we have not reached the end but the beginning of our salvation. If we are content with the first step, our spiritual life will be apt to diminish and die. At the same time, of course, it is true that all true national life flows from individual Christian life. But we are members of a great nation and we have social obligations which are as pressing as our direct spiritual relations with God. Our common interest and necessity demand that the sense of brotherhood should be recognised.

Paul, in one place, exhorts believers to act the citizen, "such as becometh the Gospel of Christ." That is the great ideal for us to aim at. Our individual piety and our Church piety must be supplemented by the discharge of a citizen's duty. Christianity is not merely a thing of the closet, the family, or the Church; it is not simply a creed or a statute book; it is the life of God in the believer manifesting itself in all his varied relations. There are some among us who recoil from this theory, and who, so far as the citizen's duty is concerned, sequester themselves from the world. But surely our part as a soldier of Christ and as a citizen is to go into the thickest of the social fight, and there win territory for the Master. We look too much to Acts of Parliament and social institutions as the agents of reform; the greatest power for good will always be the individual Christian life acting on those around.

We are thankful to God for all the privileges we enjoy under the constitution of our country and the rule of our British Queen. At the same time we know that a ruler may be wicked, and he may go beyond his proper sphere. In such a case we must act under a sense of duty towards God. There are, also, international relations on which the moral well-being of the world at large so much depends. This brings before us such questions as unjust wars and national wrongdoing of different kinds. We are bound to see whether the nation, of which we are a part, is acting righteously, and to take our stand if the opposite be true. As citizens, we are also responsible in our degree for national institutions. We cannot subordinate righteousness to any supposed interests of the nation. All ascertained iniquity in a nation ought to be put out of the way, and its laws brought into conformity with the principles of Christian rectitude.

The religious sentiment of a nation grows. Not so long ago slavery was defended, and religion was propagated by the faggot. We can all do our part in fostering this increase of the religious influence. We must not stop at prayer; we must take our part in helping on the best life of the nation. As Christians, we are bound to be politicians, but we must avoid party strife. There must be perfect mutual respect amongst those holding different views. How sad is the irreligious spirit in which so many political controversies are conducted. One is ashamed at half of what he reads in our newspapers, and the spirit of uncharitableness that enters so much into our discussions. Let us remember that there are difficulties in getting effective legislation that will at once conserve individual liberty and secure justice for all.

Mildmay Conference Hall.

REV. DR. PIERSON

delivered a timely address. We are in the habit (he remarked) of praying that God will convert the nations, but the Holy Scriptures do not countenance any such practice. God has never revealed any intention of transmuting the kingdoms of the world into the kingdom of Christ; but He has declared his purpose to sweep them away and set up his kingdom in their stead. The conversion of nations, so far, has only meant the secularisation of religion; the world has not become Christian, but the Church has become worldly.

With regard to unconverted rulers, we should pray God either to turn their hearts, or remove them like other obstacles to the progress of the Gospel. Whenever the Church of God, finding herself in straits, has humbled herself, and asked God to interpose, there have been

MARVELLOUS INTERPOSITION.

Thus, it is the salvation of the Church to be in difficulties; for then she gets down before God, as Hezekiah did, and help comes in due time. The promises of answer to prayer are the most wonderful feature of the Bible. There is nothing so transcendently grand as they are; and at the same time, there is nothing so criminal as the reluctance of the Church to take them, and in dependence upon God, arise and do the work with which she has been entrusted.

Two instances of Divine interposition were given. In the reign of Mahmoud II., the order went forth that the Christian missionaries should leave the Turkish empire. Encouraging themselves that the Sultan could do nothing except by permission of the Almighty, the missionaries placed the matter before the Lord, and at the very time when expulsion seemed inevitable, the Sultan died. Nothing has since been heard of the decree. Fifty years ago the kingdom of Siam was ruled over by one who was violently hostile to missions. The servants of Christ were not allowed to have land on which to erect mission premises, and there was nothing but to await the arrival of the steamer in which they would leave the country. Prayer went up to God that the work which had been begun thirty years previously might not fall to the ground. Suddenly the emperor died, and the nobles elected in his stead the only suitable man in the kingdom, who, though a Buddhist, had imbibed sentiments of toleration. He ascended the throne and inaugurated a policy essentially friendly to the Christian religion. These instances of Divine interposition show the power of prayer, and indicate the course of petition in such circumstances.

In some further remarks, Dr. Pierson urged prayer for God's blessing upon the Brussels Conference, shortly to re-assemble. As to the attitude of nominal Christian nations, he maintained that, though the propagation of the truth is not a nation's duty, the acknowledgement of God should certainly be so regarded. The American Government, in a treaty with Tripoli, disclaimed being "founded on the Christian religion." Of that he was personally ashamed. The apathy of England during long years, as to the welfare of the people of India, was also blameworthy in a high degree. While rejoicing that this policy of neutrality has been reversed in the interests of the people of the country, we must not neglect prayer for those in authority, and for the rulers of all States in which Christian sentiment prevails. Prayer is in the Church of God. We look to our organisations, forgetting that prayer is the power that brings down God's blessing. The kingdom of Tibet remains the central shrine of Grand Llama worship. The Moravians have long been trying to enter, and doubtless will be the first to take possession. We must pray mightily that the opposition may be broken down—why not in 1890? Dr. Pierson also pressed upon the consciences of his hearers the opium traffic and other evils in regard to which blame lies at the door of nations where Christian people have voice and influence.

THE GREAT UNUSED MOTOR

South London.

The attendance on Tuesday evening at the united meeting for prayer in the schoolroom of Kenyon Baptist Church, Solon-road, Brixton, was most encouraging. Pastor JAMES DOUGLAS, who presided, gave a brief address, based on 1 Pet. ii. 13-17 and 1 Tim. ii. 1-6. He showed that Christ expects his people to be law-abiding, and that they should recognise in the powers that be, whether of kings or governors, a Divine institution. In placing us under law to Himself, He placed us also under civil authority, saying: "Render unto Cæsar the things that be Cæsar's and unto God the things that be God's." There is a claim, therefore, which rulers have upon us for their office' sake. Even though they may not be Christian men, yet we should pray for them, seeing that to them, in the providence of God, falls the administration of civil law. He thought the chief, and certainly the safest, political service a Christian can render his country is to pray for it. We may mistake when we come to details, we may miss the mark in our political judgment, but we can make no mistake in referring our rulers and our country to the guiding hand of God. How powerful and valuable an agency for national good is prayer, no one can calculate. In the great day, when things are seen in the eternal light, it will be found probably that prayer has been far more potent in tiding nations through times of crisis than any of us imagine.

Mr. Douglas emphasised the present need of prayer for rulers and nations as evidenced by certain signs of the times, such as the growing influence of Popery and Jesuitism in the land; the national jealousies that do not diminish; and the rise and spread of hydra-headed socialism.

JAN. 8.—THE RISING GENERATION.

Steinway Hall.

Mr. GEORGE WILLIAMS, who presided, particularly invited prayer for a blessing upon Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations; agencies which were doing good service in the cause of Christ. He mentioned the gratifying fact that in the United Kingdom during the past year, 150 young men, belonging to these associations, had entered the ministry, or had become missionaries, or had engaged in Christian work of other kinds. Two pioneer secretaries of Y.M.C.A.'s had gone from America to form similar institutions in India, China, and Japan. In Japan, in the course of a few days' labour, their efforts had led to 103 young men being baptized. One branch of the Y.M.C.A. had during five years sent out 54 to the foreign mission field. Prayer was likewise desired by the chairman for wholesome legislation tending to diminish the temptations to which young people were exposed in these days when gambling and other evils were so rife. Surely the object of a government must be to build up strong, thorough character on the Christian model, that would be a credit and an honour to the nation, as well as help forward the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

REV. W. FULLER GOOCH

spoke on the words, "One generation passeth away and another cometh." If we are to influence the rising generation, he said, we must make haste; the time is short; the present generation of workers has nearly done its work. We can do much by prayer. But do we not need to get a subject like this more deeply wrought into our hearts, our feelings, our compassions? Are we dealing with this subject of the rising generation as solemnly as its importance demands, as parents, as church leaders, as teachers of the young, as those who have long known the Lord? Think of the diverse conditions under which the rising generation is placed in Christian lands! Take one example. There is the speculative and rationalistic spirit, the spirit of irreverent criticism of the sacred Scriptures, which so widely pervades the Church of Christ, and which so fascinates the more cultured of our young men and young women. The intellect, in very many cases, rules: God's order of things is reversed. It is not now spirit, soul, body; but it is Intellectualism, first; Materialism second; anything that is spiritual third and last, if there is time for it. Take, as another example, the secular system of education which so very extensively prevails, and which so many plead should far more prevail than it does. As a third example, look at the Romish and Ritualistic influences which are being exerted wherever our youth are accessible. Consider again the increase of pernicious literature, which is provided and specially adapted so as to attract the young. You can scarcely get into a railway carriage now on any of our suburban lines, but you find that youths—errand boys—on their way to or from business, are reading pernicious books with the greatest avidity. It is difficult for Christian parents even to keep these books out of their homes. Think, also, of the growing tendency to secularise the means and methods, adopted even by the Christian Church, to win and to attract the young. Look, too, at the multiplicity of the snares which the intensifying worldliness of the world is throwing around the young.

How may we help to counteract these adverse influences? Let us pray and labour for the direct and immediate salvation of the young at present under Gospel influence. We need to have our faith quickened in the possibility of the salvation of the children. Let us pray for the increasing spiritual and moral influence of all agencies established for the good of the young, and for the raising up of men fitted to lead and sustain this special work.

Centenary Hall.

In the course of an address, Pastor F. H. WHITE pointed out what, as indicated in Isa. l. 4, 5, ought to characterise Christian teachers and helpers of the young. We should be living Christians; learning Christians; listening Christians—quick to hear God, slow to hear even the best of men. We should be loving Christians, having an eye and a hand for the weary and weak. Love is a mighty element in a Christian teacher. We may know a great deal, but we shall never succeed in imparting much, unless we love much. We should be lowly Christians. "Learn of Me," said the Great Teacher. Why? Because "in Him dwelleth all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge"? That is a reason, certainly, but that is not the reason He makes most prominent. Here it is: "Learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart." We must be loyal Christians. He could say, "I was not rebellious, neither turned away my back." Can we say so? Should we meet with such rebellion in our hearers, young and old, if we ourselves were more loyal to God and his truth? Lastly, we need to be more lion-hearted. Like Christ, we must set our face like a flint. Firmness is greatly to be desired in a teacher. The age is soft and yielding, but we should not yield; no, not a hair's breath, where the truth of God is concerned? When that is in question, we must stand at all costs. Nor have we any choice as to what we teach. We too must say, "As the Father has given me commandment, so I speak."

Exeter Hall.

REV. F. A. C. LILLINGSTON

put in a plea for training the young in a wide acquaintance with the Scriptures. The Book that has lasted so long and done so much in the world is the book for our children. Let it not only be read, but meditated on. There must also be inculcated the practice of its precepts. The speaker said he did not wish to say anything hard about books of devotion, but he did not like them. They are multiplied too much and take people away from the study of the Bible itself. A good understanding of the teachings of the Bible gives calmness of mind and enables us to avoid mistakes. Diligent study of God's Word also produces a completeness of character which enables one to look at things all round and not only from some pet standpoint. We often hear of men being very good and fair-spoken on public platforms, but who are not always to be trusted in business matters, and who are crabbed at home. You will find that such persons do not study their Bibles or give much time to private devotion. If the mind were saturated with Bible truth, people would not be carried away by the popular "fancies" of the day. A young lady lately came to the speaker and said she had lost all faith in God and in his Word; it turned out that she had really never read or studied the Scriptures. Let us be well grounded in the truth of revelation and we shall not swallow all the absurd religious nostrums that are so plentiful in these days. In applying the subject, Mr. Lillingston said that this study of God's Word would produce hatred of evil in all its forms—self-indulgence, lying, meanness, and so forth. It would also be an antidote to the excessive craving for worldly pleasure that is now so prevalent.

Down Lodge Hall, Wandsworth.

REV. MARK GUY PEARSE delivered a helpful address here, drawing important lessons from the story of Jairus. If we desire that our children should go the right way, we must ourselves go that way. Jairus went to Jesus in order that his daughter might enjoy the highest blessing. Then, it is worthy of note, while Jesus was on his way to the child, the poor sick woman, who had "spent all her living upon physicians," got the blessing she so sadly needed. When He had restored the child, Jesus "commanded that meat should be given her"—not medicine. So, when our children have received life from the Lord, we must kindly minister to them; not by giving unpalatable doses of religious instruction, but by sweetly sustaining and supporting religious life and interest. In a straightforward talk about the duty of Christians to the young, Mr. Pearse asked fathers and mothers to devote a quarter of an hour each day to bringing the little ones before God

NAME BY NAME.

There is a great deal in the name. Abraham's petition was: "May Ishmael live before Thee." Heads of households also should remember their servants in the same way, and Sunday-school teachers should present their charges at the mercy-seat. The greatest blessing of the Sunday-school teacher is the power to pray for the children; hence some of the most bungling teachers, so far as educational acquirements are concerned, are blessed above other teachers who are most precise in explaining the lessons of the day. The main business of the Sunday-school teacher is not the lessons, but to foster worship. Therefore, the order should not be after the day-school, but after the Church. Mr. Pearse said that if he could have his way, he would banish the term "Sunday-school," and substitute for it "Children's Church."

Referring to God's love of the children, Mr. Pearse said that years ago he went through the Bible to learn something of God's thought about children. He learned much in the process. The Church in Israel is the only one God has ever arranged in all its details, and nothing is more prominent than the arrangements for the welfare of the children. Take the Feast of Tabernacles. That was a grand children's festival, having for one purpose that the children might learn to fear the Lord their God. There was a week's holiday; and, palm branches having been cut down, booths were made, and there was

A PROLONGED PICNIC.

Personally, he enjoyed a good bringing up in a happy home, but he grew up with the notion that somewhere in the Old Testament there was a verse which read, "Little boys should be seen and not heard." This is a wrong way of training the young. God has given the little ones a superabundance of life, and they should be allowed the joyous freedom which is so frequently denied to them. The Feast of the Passover was also looked forward to with great eagerness, and the lamb which was slain was the central point. Brought home on the tenth day of the month, and not wanted until the fourteenth, the lamb was an object of great delight to the children; but when it was slain, and its blood sprinkled, what an object-lesson! What inquiries there would be as to the significance of the proceedings! They constituted God's catechism; childish tongues asked the question, and the parents gave the answer. Further, the passage of the Jordan by the Israelites was signified by stones being raised, "that when your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying: What mean ye by these stones? Then ye shall answer them, that the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the Lord," &c. In conclusion, Mr. Pearse urged a

TENDER AND SYMPATHETIC DEALING with the young. The days of the Jewish Church were not "dark ages," so far as the young were concerned. Though the first Adam was made full grown at once, the Second Adam was made a little babe. How Jesus loved the little ones! A grave doctor of divinity once said that it was never recorded that the Lord smiled; but a little girl answered that she was sure He did smile, for, otherwise, she would not have approached Him when He said, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not." Let us, like Jairus, ask Him into our homes. Let us, moreover, like Peter, pass our examination—"Lovest thou Me? Yea, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee"—and then we shall receive our commission: "Feed my lambs."

JAN. 9.—JEWS AND MOHAMMEDANS.

Mildmay Conference Hall.

On Thursday morning earnest prayer was made on behalf of the Jews, and Rev. D. B. Hankin spoke. This subject, however, always receives prominence at the Mildmay meetings of the Monday in the Week of Prayer.

MR. G. WILMOT BROOKE.

At the evening meeting some very interesting information was imparted by this young missionary on the state of Mohammedan peoples, and Christian work among them. Mr. Brooke can speak on this topic from personal observation, and he is on the eve of returning to the region of the Soudan, to help in establishing a Mission there among the followers of the false prophet. He does not agree with Canon Taylor in regarding Mohammedanism as a semi-Christian system of faith; rather is it an intensely anti-Christian propaganda, and one that in certain conditions is absolutely intolerant of Christian effort. It is strange (said Mr. Brooke) that the British people, who are brought into such constant contact with Mohammedan peoples, should yet be so ignorant of the true nature of Islamism. It is true that a good deal in the Koran is a reproduction of the contents of the Talmud; but when it comes to a vital question, such as that of atonement for sin by the Son of God, the Koran is emphatically opposed to such a doctrine, and invokes the judgment of God on those who hold and teach it. There are, also, in the Koran, frequent condonations of sin, with an expression of belief that "God is willing to make his religion easy" for the faithful. God's justice in dealing with sin is ignored or made light of. The followers of Mohammed throughout the great Soudan region extending across nearly the whole of Northern Africa are supposed to number some sixty millions, and the great majority of these are ignorant even of the tenets of their own nominal faith. All their thoughts and aspirations seem to be centred in the acquisition of worldly gain, and it is hard to get them away from the consideration of what is to happen in the next few weeks or months. This forms an initial difficulty in the carrying on of any Christian work among them. The great thing to be desired is such a presentation of the truths of the Gospel as will convince the people of its efficacy as a present power in the heart and life in giving victory over sin. If Christian workers could go among them who could bring such a truth home to their minds, we might hope for some effectual answer to the sceptical sneers of those who say that a Mohammedan cannot be converted to Christianity. In lands where there is a large mixture of population, and where Islam does not hold rigorous sway, there is of course a good degree of toleration, and the lives of European Christians or of converts to Christianity would be safe. But in strictly Mohammedan countries the law is inflexible which demands that a professor of Christianity, or one who seeks to make Christian believers, should be instantly put to death by poison or assassination. This law constitutes the special danger to Christian missionaries and their work in regions that are intensely Mohammedan, and it accounts for the comparative rarity of open conversion to the Christian faith among these peoples.

Referring to the contemplated Mission on the Upper Niger, Mr. Brooke said that they hoped to escape the main obstacle by making their headquarters just on the frontier of the kingdom of Sokoto. From that point large territories and populous towns can be reached. It is, so to speak, the gateway into the vast regions of the Central Soudan, where at present there is not a single witness for the Christian faith. The people do not stand in awe of European powers, British or French, as their arms have been victorious over both; so that the Christian missionary will have no adventitious support from foreign prestige. He will be able to lay his life alongside that of the people among whom he lives, and, as the climate is a very tolerant one, he can accommodate himself to native custom in the matter of dress, &c. In that way Mr. Brooke thinks there will be a better chance for the Gospel to exercise its saving power among the bigoted and ignorant Soudanese. He urged that the churches should pray and work for the attempting of this kind of work in many Mohammedan countries. There has already been blessing in connection with the North African Mission and Mr. Baldwin's Morocco Mission. Several ladies are living and working at Fez, where probably no Christian man would be permitted to remain.

MR. EUGENE STOCK

made a statement as to the arrangements in connection with Mr. Wilmot Brooke's missionary party of six, and two other parties about to go to Africa—one to the Lower Niger, and the third to Eastern Equatorial Africa. For these departing friends, including also Bishop Crowther, a farewell meeting will be held in Exeter Hall on Monday evening next, January 20. The occasion will be one of very special interest, and no doubt there will be a large muster of the friends of African missions. Copies of the January number of The Church Missionary Gleaner were distributed at the meeting. It is almost entirely devoted to Africa, and, in addition to pretty full particulars of the new Upper Niger Mission, it gives the latest news from Uganda. There are extracts from Mr. Wilmot Brooke's Soudan Letters, and much intensely interesting information about Christian effort in the Dark Continent. One of the maps represents Africa's spiritual darkness in a very striking fashion, with its few scattered points of light. Every lover of African missions ought to give this copy a careful study. It can be had at the Church Missionary House, Salisbury-square, E.C., price 1d.

In the course of the meeting at Mildmay, much prayer was made on behalf of Mohammedan lands, while praise was rendered to God for the open doors of service and the blessing already granted in India and among other Moslem peoples.

JAN. 10.—THE HEATHEN.

Steinway Hall.

Prayer was very earnest "that faithful men may be led to proclaim the Gospel everywhere in the power of the Holy Ghost," and devout thanksgiving was offered "for recent marked increase of interest and endeavour in missionary work, and for so many doors lately opened to the Gospel."

Two deeply interesting addresses were given.

REV. DR. PIERSON

briefly touched upon the attractive theme of open doors. Fifty years ago scarce a single nation was open to the entrance of the Gospel, and now scarce a single nation is closed. No diplomacy has brought this about, no intervention of human agency; it is simply the marvellous work of the living God. The greatest hope that the Christian Church has to-day is in the native agency in those fields where the Gospel is being proclaimed. While only one in every 5000 members in Protestant churches has been sent into the mission field, the heathen themselves have supplied five times as many labourers as the entire number of Christians have sent forth from churches at home. We have sent them 6000 men and women; they have supplied 30,000 men and women. The Christian Church is slow to go up and possess the land, even where God has thrown the doors open. But the heathen themselves, those of them who are converted, are amazingly alive to the necessity of carrying the Gospel to those who are still in darkness. I heard only a few days ago a statement regarding one part of the mission field, that they uniformly expect—and their expectations are not disappointed—that if one of their converts go away to a distant town, village, or province, within two years a pastor is sent for to organise a church. Those converts, in their turn, go out and begin to preach the Gospel, to teach its truths, and gather in fresh converts; and these, again, want a pastor to organise a church.

But it must be remembered that this hope of a native agency does not deliver us from the necessity of greatly multiplying just now those who shall carry the Gospel into those fields. Why? In the first of the seven parables in Matt. xiii., the field is the world, and the good seed is the Word of God. But in the second of those parables, that of the tares, the field is still the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom. One succeeds the other. The first sowing must be the sowing of the Word of God, but the second sowing is the sowing of the lives of converted men and women. We have, therefore, got to have the first crop in order to have the second. We must have the Word sown by the representatives of every Christian land, and this in the very soil of heathenism. The next fact is that there will be a number of disciples who will come to such perfection as to have in themselves the seed for the propagation of the Kingdom. And so, while, in the first instance, it is the Word of God that is sown, it is, in the second, the Word of God incarnated in those who themselves become God's good seed of the Kingdom.

With regard to the suppression of the drink traffic and the opium traffic, a kindred stumbling-block, it is an awful reproach and shame to the Christian Church that, in so many lands where the missionary goes, he regrets that the shuttle of commerce has ever woven any compact between nominal Christian lands and heathen countries. It is an appalling fact that the worst and most consuming vices ever introduced into the Sandwich Islands were by vessels that sailed from Christian lands. It is an awful fact that, from Boston, there have sailed in one vessel for Africa one missionary and 30,000 gallons of rum. It is an appalling fact that one village in Massachusetts should have contracted to furnish the Congo Free State with enough rum for seven years to intoxicate every man, woman, and child within the bounds of that territory. These are Christian nations which, while they claim to be sending the Gospel to these heathen lands, are sending with the Gospel the most damning of all the instruments that Satan has used to upset Gospel influence, and to antagonise the Gospel power.

Prayer is desired "that faithful men may be led to proclaim the Gospel everywhere in the power of the Holy Ghost." If there be any power that existed in Apostolic days, of which the bulk of the Church know very little now, it is that specific power of the Holy Ghost referred to in Acts i. 8; and it is that power of believing prayer mentioned in Matt. xviii., and especially in John xvi. Here and there are a few disciples who seem to understand the power of and the power of believing prayer in covenant relation among disciples; but the great bulk of the Church, and the great bulk of the ministry, if I may say so without invidiousness, seem to me to be strangers to the peculiar unction, which is different from salvation and different even from sanctification — i.e., a specific anointing of the Holy Ghost.

THE HOLY GHOST IN UNCTION,

The great bulk of the Church is asleep on the great subject of foreign missions. They have not yet conceived the idea that the world is the field of the Church, and not until the Church is put into the field to work for God can the world be evangelised. Only one-third of the human race has yet been reached by the Gospel, and two-thirds are still in the death-shade of absolute ignorance. In view of this amazing unfaithfulness to a dying world, we ought to humble ourselves. Would to God that this last decade of the nineteenth century may see such a missionary uprising throughout the entire Church as has never been known since the days of the Apostles!

REV. DR. MONRO GIBSON

gave the second address. Thanksgiving, he said, was in the forefront of the programme. We have much reason to thank God and take courage. If we are mindful of the duty of gratitude, and thank God with all our hearts, we are more likely to take courage, and be earnest for the years that are to come.

The first point spoken of is the opening of the mission field. It is difficult for us to realise the great importance of the event, which has characterised the last ten years, during which Central Africa has been opened. It is really the addition of a new world. The way to it has been opened up by missionary enterprise: commerce has followed in the wake of missions. It is encouraging, as we look back upon the last ten years, to observe that, as each new field has been opened up, there have never been wanting volunteers to come forward and offer themselves to carry the Gospel into the dark regions, notwithstanding the sickly and even deathly climate, of ignorant and savage people. We have great reason to thank God as we think of the noble contingent to the army of martyrs that has been furnished during the last decade, especially in Africa. I wish some competent historian would take up that subject, put his soul into it, and gives us a volume with such a title as this: "African Missionary Martyrs from 1880 to 1890." Of what thrilling interest would that story be! But, though that story is as yet unwritten, yet we know enough from the fragmentary information we have had from the field to lead us to raise our song of praise, our Te Deum laudamus, as we begin the first year of this new decade.

As one, and another, and another, has fallen, not merely one, but many have come forward eagerly to take the places of those who have died in the midst of their labours. There have been those at home who, having heard the reports of the death of one and another in the centre of Africa, have been led to think in their hearts, "To what purpose is this waste?" Though timid counsels suggested the transference of effort to some less deathly field, the counsels of courage have prevailed. When a Hannington, or a Comber, or a Keith-Falconer, has fallen, there always have been many, many more to come forward to carry the standard of the Gospel where "the arrow flieth by day, the destruction wasteth at noonday, and the pestilence walketh in darkness." God be thanked for the witness of the martyrs during these last ten years.

Reference is made in the programme, also, to "the marked increase of interest and endeavour in missionary work." The Church has been stirred during the past decade as it has never been before. The colleges have been moved. An extraordinary number of young men have devoted themselves to this work. The deepening interest is not confined to the Church. The world is beginning to rub its eyes and to wake up a little. The secular Press does not speak with contempt of mission snow; but often the way in which it speaks of them is marked with high appreciation, and for this we should be thankful. Just a word about commerce. Let me speak of

THE HOPEFUL SIDE.

The dark side has been brought quite strongly enough before you by Dr. Pierson. There has been great educating power in the agitation for the abolition of the slave trade and of slavery. By and by it will rise, so that the public will begin to realise that the traffic in drink and opium is only one shade less infernal than the traffic in human flesh. But the hopeful thought is that commerce and the missionary enterprise are beginning to take larger views. Commercial men are beginning to realise the value of missions. It is plain that God intended commerce and missions to go hand in hand. Tyre and Sidon were the great emporia of the maritime trade, and Damascus of the inland trade of the world really; and the Holy Land was intended to embrace Tyre and Sidon and Damascus. What a splendid combination that would have been for a nation sent to be a missionary nation, and taught to pray: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us, and cause his face to shine upon us, that thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations." It is quite obvious that was God's purpose concerning Israel, but Israel lost Tyre and Sidon by disobedience and unfaithfulness, and lost, above all, the great opportunity of being the missionary nation, and letting all nations share in their blessing.

Now the opportunity is ours. What we want is that the purest Gospel and the greatest power in commerce should go hand in hand. First, there must be the purifying of our commerce; then, along with it, the stirring up of the Church to greater earnestness and devotion. There is much reason to give thanks, and much reason to abound in prayer and supplication.

Ireland.

A large number of meetings were held in Dublin and its suburbs. In addition to the central meetings held in the Christian Union Buildings, meetings were held in Clontarf, Rathgar, Sandford, Bray, Kingstown, and other districts. Ministers and members of all evangelical churches took part in the service, and on several occasions the attendance was very large. The subjects appointed for each day were taken up at the various meetings. Special meetings were held during the week in the principal cities and towns in the South of Ireland.

San Remo.

Most successful gatherings have been held here. They have been marked not so much by large attendances as by the variety of churches represented, and by the spirit of brotherly love and unity that animated both speakers and hearers. The meetings were held alternately at Villa Teresa, under the presidency of Rev. E. Walters, English chaplain; and at Casa Variglia, under that of Rev. Alexander Robertson, Scotch minister.

For the Young.

THE FOWLS OF THE AIR.

BY REV. DAVID DAVIES.*

THE Lord Jesus was anxious that even the fowls of the air should not be overlooked. There is no danger of boys or girls overlooking any pet fowl or bird which they own; but the fowls of the air, which are not owned by any one, often remain unnoticed. Especially is this the case in wintry days, when their songs are not heard, and when poor songster birds remain perched upon the trees in the biting east wind or the nipping frost, having given up all search for food since the snow lies thickly on the ground. Our Lord would have little children think even of those birds which have little about them to win notice, as well as those with rich plumage and sweet songs wherewith to win our favour.

Jesus in his teaching calls attention to two birds in particular. I imagine some little child saying, "I should like to know the names of those birds. How beautiful they must be, and how sweet their song, for Jesus to pay them such honour." No; He who paid special attention to men and women who were neglected and despised by grander folk, had an extra thoughtfulness for despised and neglected birds.

One bird specially mentioned by our Lord, is the raven. "Consider the ravens" (Luke xii. 24). One strange fact about the raven was, that it was the only bird of its particular order which the law of Moses pronounced unclean. Yet Jesus teaches us that God feeds it. There has been a very general and ancient belief that the older ravens are very neglectful to their young, and that Job (chap. xxxviii. 41) and the Psalms (Ps. cxlvii. 9) refer to God's tender care of the young ravens that are so cruelly neglected by their parents. Whatever may be said about that, we knows that the ravens are not very charming birds. Like some people, whatever you do for them, all they can do is to look very black and croak. They are also great eaters, and have very voracious appetites. Their great danger is to die of hunger, since what would content other birds cannot satisfy them; yet God feedeth them.

Jesus speaks, too, of the sparrow. The sparrows of Palestine, like ours, have nothing specially to recommend them; a grey coat and a chirrup—that is all. Their danger consists chiefly in being caught in nets and sold for food. The raven was not in danger of this, because it was unclean. Sparrows are sold by thousands in the East, and very cheaply. "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?" and again: "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings?" In the second case the fifth sparrow was thrown into the bargain. Even the seller did not reckon the odd bird; but our Father does. "One of them shall not fall to the ground without your Father."

Both these birds belong to an order of birds that have not the strength of birds of prey, and on the other hand have not the fixed food of other birds; yet "your heavenly Father feedeth them." He is the God of the raven and the sparrow but your Heavenly Father. You have learned of Jesus to call Him "Our Father, which art in heaven." Then you never need be anxious and doubt his care for you. How much dearer are you in his sight than the fowls of the air!

* From TALKS WITH MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN. the vol. of last year's Sermons at the Baptist Chapel, Hove, Brighton. Elliot Stock.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Gordon Hall, Liverpool, to Jan. 20. Mr. James S. Tyler, Northcote-road, Wandsworth, to Jan. 17.; Dorking, Jan. 22. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Corn Exchange, Ross, Herefordshire, to Jan. 19.; Upton, Jan. 20, 21. Mr. Armitage, Holy Trinity School, Leicester, to Jan. 20.

"DRIFT CHILDREN."

FOR some time past attention has been directed and interest excited in what are known as the "drift children" of East London. With a courage truly heroic and a spirit filled with intense love for the children of the slums, Mr. Boyer has been gathering a large number of these poor little ones for weekly meetings in different localities, in schoolroom, hall, or chapel. Mr. Boyer's methods are quite simple, but very effective. His first step in any new district is to go from house to house, and, if necessary, from room to room, so as to get a complete register of all children in the district. Thus he is brought into direct contact with the homes and parents of those whose good he is seeking to promote. He next proceeds to distribute tickets of admission for the meeting, which sometimes is advertised as a "bright hour of song and recitation," sometimes "an object lesson," and sometimes "with something good to eat." No child is admitted without a ticket, and this rule is rigidly enforced, as it is only by limiting the number at each meeting that discipline can be maintained, and real, solid good accomplished.

At first order is impossible with this class of child; but after weeks of patient toil and kindly influence, even the worst become amenable to rule, especially if he happens to be made a "captain," and is placed in the responsible position of a keeper of order. Then there is a sudden transformation of character, and the turbulent, reckless boy becomes the sedate and stern monitor.

To a large extent this has been the experience of the workers at Blackthorn-street Chapel, Bow-common, where every Wednesday evening some 250 or 300 of these poor "drifts" are gathered for instruction and blessing. The number could easily be made 800 but for the lack of workers, and the difficulty, as yet, of securing order. It is hoped, however, that gradually the numbers will increase, and the discipline improve.

 We would call the attention of our young readers to the account of the Poor Children's Dinner in Glasgow, which will be found on page 12.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Jan. 19, Ps. xviii. 16—30; Mon., Jan. 20, Ps. xviii. 31—50; Tues., Jan. 21, Ps. xix. 1—14; Wed., Jan. 22, Ps. xx. 1—9; Thurs., Jan. 23, Ps. xxi. 1—13; Fri., Jan. 24, Ps. xxii. 1—18; Sat., Jan. 25, Ps. xxii. 19—31.

HUNTLY, N.B.—A conference was held here on Jan. 2, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. The principal speakers were Rev. James Smith, Dufftown, and Mr. J. A. Smith, evangelist, Aberdeen. Ministers of the town and others took part in the meetings.

VILLAGES OF GREAT BRITAIN.—DEAR SIR,—There are many villages and hamlets in Great Britain where the sound of the glorious Gospel of God in all its simplicity is seldom, if ever, heard. For many years I have sought, with the Lord's help, to meet some of the need. Christians to whom such places are known send to me lists containing the names and addresses of dwellers in such destitute districts, and to each of these a lithographed or printed Gospel letter is sent by post. Thus the Gospel, with an earnest personal appeal, is put into the hands of many who could not be otherwise reached. Or, parcels of these letters, enclosed in envelopes, are sent to any who express themselves willing to leave them from house to house in needy places. If any of your readers who desire to co-operate in this especial line of work would kindly send me the names and addresses of spiritually neglected ones, I will gladly send Gospel Letters to such. Hundreds of replies have reached me from the receivers inquiring how they can be saved, and many are now rejoicing in the knowledge of sins forgiven.—Faithfully yours,

J. NEWCOMEN MOSTYN.

Chatsworth, Chichester Park, Belfast.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

ALONE, afar, in sorrow's night,
The anxious eye
Looks where the Church of God should light
The zenith sky,
Flashing a radiance clear as day
Across the wanderer's dubious way.

Instead of light, the clouds are black,
Their winds at war;
No constellations cleave the rack;
Nought but some star,
A meteor glare, an earthly spark,
A lightning glance—then darker dark.

The Church, so grand, so world-like still,
Seems not to be
That city set upon a hill,
Which all may see.
To look on this, a thought may spring
To that which crucified its King.

"These fitful stars we cannot trust:
The Church we see
Is selfish, sordid, of the dust—
Just such as we";
So say the world to holy men,
And turn to sin and earth again.

Yet there is light which all may view,
'Mid darkest sin;
The power which proves that truth is true—
'Tis Christ within.
Walk in that Light—the Truth, the Way—
The stars may set; you have the day.

O churches, weep in contrite shame,
Till grace Divine
Shall make you, like the Name you name,
Arise and shine:
Then Pentecostal fire shall fall
With light of life to gladden all.

Donnemana, Ireland. J. K.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY MISSIONARIES.—In the past few weeks several missionaries have arrived in England from the mission field, viz, Rev. L. W. Jackson from South India, Rev. H. Sykes from Palestine, Miss Nevill from Sierra Leone (owing to the lamented death of her brother), Archdeacon W. D. Reeve from North-West America, Rev. A. E. Day from the Punjab, Rev. W. H. Ball from Calcutta; and Rev. W. E. Taylor from East Africa has arrived at Marseilles, where he will stay for a short time before coming to England.—C.M.S. Gleaner.

NORTH PACIFIC.—Rev. J. Field, of Hazelton, on the Skeena River, British Columbia, who came to England early in last year for a few months, arrived at his station early in September. During Mr. Field's absence Mrs. Field, with the assistance of the magistrate and Mr. Field's native helper, had been able to hold services regularly, and had carried on the school work. The people all seemed glad to see their missionary back, and on the day following his return most of them went to church, which he took as an encouraging sign. Even the chief, "who is a rank heathen," was present. Mr. Field hopes that his going back amongst them may be the beginning of a new and brighter era in the history of the Mission.—C.M.S. Gleaner.

THE RULE OF PORTUGAL IN EASTERN AFRICA, says a Cape Town resident in The Times, is a curse to black and a shame and disgrace to white humanity. Murder, anarchy, plunder, and licentiousness, are the normal conditions of the nations inhabiting the territory which it claims. The Portuguese have no power whatever to control the natives. They only owe their miserable existence to the mischievous and wicked plan of arming different tribes, and then setting them at each other. They also exist because they possess the only markets where the natives can sell their goods and purchase the things they require. We have had great and successful agitation against slavery in America, Cuba, Brazil, and Egypt. Slavery still exists amongst the Portuguese in Africa. Were one half the iniquity, misrule, and effeteness of Portugal in Eastern Africa known, not England only, but the civilised world would compel her to part with her ill-held possessions, since she too is weak and too bigoted to improve matters.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER X.—TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS.

PULLING down old houses, storied high, curiously pinnacled and tottering to the fall, is not pleasant work. It means clouds of dust, mountains of rubbish, and not a little danger. One stone dislodged may dislodge a dozen more, threatening to bury you in the ruin. This is Home Mission work. In ordinary church work you build on the chosen site, far from the quarry. Here you build in your quarry; you quarry in your building. The dust, the noise, the danger, the failures, and despairs are such as would kill outright the Christianity that thrives only in cushioned pews and on Brussels carpets. Here you must touch human nature in its tenderest parts; you must finger its foulest sores; you must deal with its most devilish tempers and beastly ways. This is the work that sweet-natured, finely-tempered, heroic souls, like the subject of this memoir, are best fitted to accomplish.

In this Christ-like enterprise the first and foremost thing, the noblest and most necessary service, is the work of the visitor. The visitor is the pioneer of the Mission, the chief evangelist. It is hers to go down into the depths: she searches, she digs, she quarries, she lays foundations. If she succeeds, the work prospers; if she fails, all else is in vain.

WORK IN THE SLUMS.

Gentle lady, would you be a visitor, a messenger of Christ, to tell the slums that Christ died for the slums? Can you shake hands with the drunkard? Can you play the part of a loving sister to the vilest of women? Can you carry comforts to the fierce Amazon who to quench your zeal one day emptied a bucket of dirty water on your head? Can you be the generous patron of the ruffian who spat on you and called you by the most loathsome of names? Can you kneel beside the vomit of the drunken sot, and pray for his dying wife, as she breathes out the last sighs of a broken heart, amidst the sounds of her husband's brutality and cursing? Can you bear the smells of fever and small-pox, aggravated by the odour of perpetual dirt? Can you behold a swarm of disgusting insects and not sicken? Can you bear to be sickened a hundred times, and yet always return to the work? How will you feel when on your return from visiting you discover something that renders necessary the casting of your dress in whole or in part into the flames? To the three genteel sisters who picked your pocket while you knelt with them at the throne of grace, what will you say next time they ask you to lead their devotions, because they "so enjoyed your beautiful prayer"?

Can you catch with guile the sinner who all the time is trying with infinite cunning to sell you? Can you argue with the man who laughs at the idea of a God? Can you endure blasphemies, cruel mockeries, imposition, a thousand vexations and discomfitures? Can you go on all the same, pitying and loving the vilest and most reprobate of them all? Can you face the poverty, always in itself sad enough, often darkened by despair and attended by ferocious defiance of God and man?

Visiting, to be effective, is not a mere call, a kind inquiry, the handing in of a tract, an invitation to the meeting. First of all, you make your way into a house where you know you are not wanted. To get in, you must so knock as to create the ear to hear your knock. By acts of kindness you succeed in establishing yourself in the house, not as patron or visitor, but as acquaintance and friend. Gradually you open out your budget of benevolence, and this needs much wisdom, both as to what you show and what you conceal. You must learn to duck your head when great breakers of prejudice and vulgar passion burst upon you. Unless you acquire the fine art of winking at ugly things, you had better go at once, and return no more. What is to be done with that crew of squalid, half-fed, wholly ill-bred children, who handle your dress with the stickiest of fingers? Can you do anything for the sickly, bloodless woman, without giving offence to the brutal husband who is the real cause of her ill-health? How can you conciliate the coarse man without awakening suspicions of your ulterior spiritual aims? You are in a lion's den all the time. You are constantly apologising for your presence; and, although you are compelled sometimes to take the hint and go, you must be thick-skinned enough to be always coming back.

At length you have got the whole house on your shoulders; and, herculean though the task be, you have hopes of carrying it through. Suddenly a storm of sin sweeps over the family; the whole fabric of your year's toil topples and falls; you have been building castles in the air; you are at your wits' end. What are you to do? Despair? No!

YOU HAVE ONLY AWAKENED THE DEVIL, and that is preliminary. Whole churches are dying because there is not power enough in the preacher to waken the devil, and so set that battle in array without which true Christianity wins no victory, makes no advance. You have been trying to soar on a feather: wait on God for a wing! Get your commission renewed, and hear the Master say: "You go for Me to the slums; you go there to love and to suffer; you go to knock at the gates of hell and call forth my captives. Go, carry my message, bear all things for Me; when they curse, bless; when they hate, love; when they injure, forgive. Say I sent you; be content; leave the rest to Me.

Let no worker in the slums despair. Here are some instances of what grace can do in raising to virtue the vilest of the vile.

E—— was brought up in a pious family, and under the ministry of that famous soldier of the cross Dr. Kidd, of Aberdeen. In early womanhood she became a member of the church and a Sabbath-school teacher. Well married, she settled down in a happy home of her own. In the course of years she became a drunkard; sank into the lowest depths of immorality; broke her husband's heart; ruined his business; destroyed her home; and became

AN OUTCAST AND A WANDERER.

Coming to Dundee, she here continued her career of vice. Many a time our visitors came across her path and sought her recovery. Once when suffering pangs of remorse, she was induced to attend church. Refusing to enter, she took her seat on the gallery stair. The text that day was Zech. ix. 12: "Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope!" Deeply impressed, she began to amend, but soon relapsed into her former ways. Dissolute conduct led to crime, and she was lodged in prison. Here, in her despair, she conceived the project of taking away her own life. Her ingenuity found means for committing suicide by tying articles of dress, torn and wrought into the form of a rope, to the iron grating of the window.

Just as she was about to launch herself into eternity, she heard a voice crying: "Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope!" She looked around to see who had entered the cell. There was no one. It was only the echo of her own memory or imagination; but it was the word of God, and doubtless the Holy Spirit was in it. She paused, and wept. Her heart was strangely softened; she threw herself on the floor, and cried for mercy. The cry was heard; mercy came; a sense of forgiveness filled her heart; and she left the prison "a new creature in Christ Jesus."

The rest of her life was a commentary on the fifty-first Psalm. By the honest labour of her hands she soon made for herself a little comfortable home. In her room little meetings for the worship of God, reading the Word, and exhortation were held. Her early training stood her in good stead; she possessed an extensive knowledge of the Scriptures, and could talk sweetly of the love of Christ which passeth knowledge. She walked softly. Dearly as she loved the house of God and the fellowship of his people, she always shrank from taking her place at the table of the Lord. For this we may blame her: but the overwhelming sense of her unworthiness, especially of her sin in abusing that sacred ordinance in her early days, was ever present with her. Nevertheless, she was happy in the Lord; and in the lowly, loving admiration of his wondrous grace, sat at his feet until He called her home.

* This deeply interesting and stimulating life history is now ready in book form; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards and gilt edges, for presentation, 3s. 6d.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

THE poor of the borough of Southwark are responding in cheering measure to the solicitude of the London City Mission for their highest welfare. It is a year since the Shaftesbury Memorial Mission Hall, in Union-street, was opened, and we rejoice to learn that the work, which began a good many years ago in an old greengrocer's shop, proceeds in a still more gratifying manner, with the commodious hall as its home and centre. The anniversary was celebrated a few days ago, the meeting being presided over by Mr. R. K. Causton, M.P. All the evening men of the poorer classes were coming in, evidently straight from their work. This showed that the Mission has succeeded in reaching the very people whom it desires to benefit.

Additional interest was imparted to the meeting from the fact that the missionary, Mr. Moore, is about to resign his charge in order to prepare for the ministry, and strong testimony was borne by many of the speakers to the earnestness and faithfulness with which he had fulfilled his duty. Although a young man, he has had a remarkable career. He began life as a sailor, then he became a tanner, and later on a fireman. It was while pursuing this occupation that he felt the call to devote himself to definite Christian work, and he was accepted on the staff of the London City Mission, to leave it, however, now for another sphere of Christian service. The report of the work done showed that the missionary had not been idle. The gatherings in the hall were in connection with Gospel services on Sunday and Wednesday, ragged schools, Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, mothers' meetings, social evenings, destitute children's dinners, and many other branches of useful work. Addresses were delivered by several friends. It was stated that the balance-sheet showed a deficit not only on the working expenses, but also on the building fund, which is still £50 behind.

WOMEN'S CHARITIES.—Last week's Queen had short but very appreciative notices of Mrs. Spurgeon's Book Fund, and Mrs. Hilton's "essentially womanly work" in connection with the Stepney Crèche.

"BAND OF LOVE."—On Tuesday, January 7, a public meeting was held in the Old Clock House, Walthamstow (Rev. W. T. Lambourne presiding), at which Mr. George Smith, of Coalville, expounded the objects of the Society. The principal object is to unite together in bonds of brotherly love and sympathy, persons of both sexes, and all ages, to help forward the work Mr. Smith has been doing for the brick-yard, canal, gipsy, van, and other children. Those desiring further information, should apply to the secretary, headquarters, The Cabin, Crick, near Rugby.

THE LATE MADAME ANDRÉ-WALTHER.

ON August 6, 1886, the Protestants of France were called upon to mourn the loss of one who had occupied, for more than forty years, a foremost place among the Christian workers of that country. In her the poor lost a devoted friend; the sufferers an ever-sympathising heart; all Christian institutions a prayerful and generous supporter.

Henriette Joséphine Napoléone Frédérique Walther was born in Paris on June 14, 1807, on the same day that the Battle of Friedland was fought. She was the second daughter of Count Walther, a general who had won his honours in Napoleon's wars, and who later on was promoted to the command of the Imperial Guard. He was the son of a Pastor in Alsatia, and had married a sweet young woman nearly related to the celebrated naturalist, Georges Cuvier. General Walther's probity and military achievements had won him the favour of the Emperor. He settled in Paris in the mansion now occupied by the Spanish ambassador, and acted as chamberlain in the intervals between his campaigns. His wife also went to Court, and, at the birth of Henriette, the Emperor and the Empress Joséphine offered to be her godfather and godmother.

The child born among the grandeurs of the Imperial Court, at the time of its greatest splendour, was soon to learn how fragile and vain are all the promises of human glory. Her father, the valiant soldier of Ulm, Hohenlinden, and Austerlitz, died on November 26, 1813, his health having begun to fail when the tide was turning against the French armies.

Madame Walther retired to Dieppe during the first years of her widowhood. She then returned to Paris to take her eldest daughter into society. Henriette, though only eleven years old, came in for much of the gaieties enjoyed by her sister, in Paris in winter, at Baden-Baden or Aix les Bains in summer. The two sisters were taken to the theatre and to balls in the highest circles of fashion. Both were much courted and admired for their beauty and their charm of manner.

In 1822, when Henriette was fifteen years old, this gay life was suddenly interrupted by the death of her mother. She was then placed under the care and in the family of Professor Cuvier, where she was to finish her education. At first the strict rules and austere ways of living in her new home seemed very hard, but she soon became happy under Monsieur Cuvier's roof. In after life she often recalled the interesting conversations she heard in his salon, where the most learned men of the time used to meet.

At the age of eighteen Mademoiselle Henriette Walther married Monsieur Jean André, who was soon to be appointed "Receveur général des finances" at Tours. The position the young couple occupied in that town was a high one, affording many opportunities for a life of pleasure, and some years were passed in a constant whirl of amusement. Madame André, beautiful, rich, and admired, seemed thoroughly to enjoy this worldly life. But the Lord was watching over her, and when she was about twenty-eight she began to feel great anxiety about salvation. She tried at first to divide her life between God and the world. Her friends thought she was becoming melancholy from nursing her husband who was ill; so they took her to theatres and balls, hoping to bring back the smile on her face; but nothing seemed to comfort her. Monsieur Louis Meyer, the faithful Lutheran pastor of the Eglise des Billettes, in Paris, called one day upon her, and spoke about spiritual matters. He was instrumental in bringing her into the light of the Gospel, and she resolved to consecrate her life wholly to Christian service.

(From a Photograph by M. Philippon, Versailles.)

Before long she had the joy of seeing her husband a partaker of the same faith and hope. They began their united Christian life by gathering the scattered Protestants of Tours, and forming a little church. A pastor was called, and a mission work started. They also devoted much pains and money to the establishment at St. Foy of a reformatory for Protestant boys. This institution is still flourishing, and is the means of saving a great number of young criminals. Eight years after her conversion, Madame André lost her beloved husband. In her sorrow she had the consolation of seeing the companion of her life depart in the faith and peace of the Gospel.

Monsieur André's illness had forced him to resign his office at Tours, and the family had settled in Paris, which for many years was to be the principal field of Madame André's exertions. One of her first interests there was the foundation of the Deaconesses' House. This institution, now situated in the Rue de Reuilly, does a similar work to that of Mildmay, though on a much smaller scale. Madame André took a special interest in the Home for fallen girls, which forms part of the establishment. She also joined in the work begun at the instigation of Mrs. Elizabeth Fry for the female inmates of the prison of St. Lazare; she had meetings for these prisoners, took an individual interest in them, and, when they were discharged, helped them to find situations, or placed them in Homes.

Madame André's interest was not confined to works of Christian education, relief, and rescue. She was a supporter of all efforts for the spread of the Gospel. She was a warm friend to the Paris Society for Foreign Missions, which has done such good work in Africa and in Tahiti. She received into her house missionaries on furlough and their families; when they returned to their sphere of labour she kept up a regular correspondence with them, and watched, with the tenderness of a mother, over the children that they had to leave in France. The "Société Evangélique," the "Société Centrale d'Evangélisation," and in later years the McAll Mission, and other similar good works, found in her a constant helper; she also did all she could to encourage the Bible societies, and to forward the cause of Christian literature.

When, in 1857, she bought the country residence, Les Ombrages, at Versailles, she established evangelistic meetings in her greenhouse. She also started a Mission for the soldiers of the Versailles garrison. Ready for any new effort to bring souls to Christ, she invited Mr. Spurgeon in 1860 to preach in Paris. She also got Mr. Reginald Radcliffe to hold meetings in her drawing-room. She liked the joyous tone of the English revival hymns, and she encouraged the publication of the first French hymnal of this description. Her hospitality was boundless; she received into her house a great number of French and foreign persons of mark, but she gave a special welcome to Christians of moderate means, and weary pastors and their wives, who came to stay with her for rest and refreshment. She often gathered young men around her table, especially students preparing for the ministry, dealing with their difficulties and helping to deepen their spiritual life.

The frequent visits she made to common lodging-houses at Versailles often led her to become acquainted with unemployed lads; she endeavoured to reclaim them by employing them in her house and garden, trying to influence them for good. She even received under her roof patients coming out of lunatic asylums and unable to support themselves, many of whom recovered completely under her tender care. She established on her grounds an infirmary and an orphanage.

When, in 1870, the Franco-German War broke out, Madame André was one of the most active members of the Protestant committees that were formed for the relief of the wounded. At the beginning of the war she moved to the Château de Foëcy, not far from Orleans. After the Battle of Orleans, she organised ambulances for the wounded soldiers, and divided her time between caring for them and nursing the poor people of the country, amongst whom an epidemic of small-pox was raging. Whilst caring for temporal wants, she never forgot to minister to the spiritual needs of the people. When the peace was signed, Madame André returned to Paris, where she was soon hard at work, helping Mr. George Moore and Colonel Stuart Wortley to distribute the food and money they had brought from England.

When the disturbances of the Commune broke out in March, 1871, Madame André had just moved to her place at Versailles. It had previously been inhabited by the Crown Prince of Prussia. The Government had established itself at Versailles, and Madame André was asked to receive a number of Deputies into her house. She discussed with them the burning questions of the time, trying to stimulate their energies for all that was good.

When Paris was retaken by the Government troops, she obtained permission to work amongst the women prisoners. She visited daily the immense warehouses where they were packed. She got the authorities to ameliorate their condition, and stripped her own vegetable and fruit gardens to improve their meagre fare. She also cared for the children. After the women had been tried, and many of them transported, the warehouses were filled with about one thousand men. Madame André continued among them her labours of love. Among the prisoners there were many condemned to capital punishment. Touched by the kindness shown to them by Madame André, they wrote a letter of thanks to her, which was signed: "The Prisoners condemned to death, of the Rue de Noailles."

Madame André had two daughters and two sons, whom she educated in the fear and love of God. In the year 1875 she lost her youngest son, and from that time her health began to fail, though her interest in the Master's cause never diminished. On August 6, 1886, she quietly and peacefully passed away. The distinctive features of her character were her great activity and her boundless love. In one of her letters a thought was expressed which might have been the motto of her life: "To live for time is much, but to live for eternity is all."

NOTES FROM CAMBRIDGE.

By an Undergraduate.

Another Cambridge term is just beginning, and your readers may be glad to know something of the religious efforts up here. The October term was, as usual, a most eventful one. It is then that nearly all freshmen begin residence, and the infusion of new blood seems to produce an almost feverish activity in all branches of work—religious and otherwise.

As usual, on the first Sunday of full term, Rev. H. C. G. Moule gave an address in Trinity Church to members of the University, especially freshmen. It is a most encouraging thing to see the large numbers that invariably attend these addresses, and one can but hope that the word spoken in season may greatly influence the lives of those who so soon experience the temptations of a University life.

On the next night, a large valedictory meeting of the Church Missionary Society was held. We were called upon to say farewell to several going out for the first time, and to others returning to their work. Besides these, Rev. J. Barton, vicar of Trinity Church, gave an address, before going out on a special mission to Tinnevelly. He is greatly missed at Cambridge, but it is hoped he will return in the course of a year to take charge of his important work. His place is filled for the time by Rev. J. Ireland Jones, late C.M.S. missionary at Kandy, and father of the first Vice-Principal of Ridley Hall.

Throughout the term, the meetings of the Church Missionary Union were most interesting. The most remarkable feature was the great, prayerful interest shown in the African Missions. We had for speakers, Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, from the Niger; Mr. Douglas A. Hooper, from Eastern Equatorial Africa; and Dr. Pruen, from Mpwapwa. Several have volunteered for missionary work in the Dark Continent.

Besides the foregoing, meetings were held in support of the London Missionary Society, the Navvy Mission, the Children's Special Service Mission, Dr. Barnardo's Homes, the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Traffic, &c. There were, as usual, evangelistic meetings for undergraduates, on Sunday nights, in the Alexandra Hall, and much blessing has resulted. Among the speakers were Rev. Evan Hopkins, Rev. J. Madden, Major Owen Hay, Captain Chapman, and Mr. E. J. Kennedy.

About the middle of November a series of addresses on the "Christian Life" was given by Rev. F. B. Meyer, and Rev. W. J. Mayers. Among these we may mention that on "The Secret of Heart Rest," which was delivered to a crowded audience by Mr. Meyer, and was, of course, deeply spiritual and helpful. Among those who occupied the University pulpit may be named Canon Westcott, Dr. Percival of Rugby, the Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway, and Canon Ainger of the Temple. We must not forget to mention Mr. Monk's Sunday-evening Bible-readings, which have proved helpful to so many. Last term he took for subjects different Scriptural words in reference to the plan of salvation, such as "Sin," "Salvation," &c.

The daily prayer-meeting has been better attended of late. This has been carried on for some thirty years, and has been a great blessing. We cannot help saying that enough importance is not attached to this essential part of the spiritual work at Cambridge, and we hope that more men will see the necessity of united prayer for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the University. The Annual Mission is about to begin, and it is earnestly hoped that, as in former years, many undergraduates may be awakened, and brought into the light. In the midst of so much agnosticism and infidelity in the University, it is a comfort to know that there is One who has the words of eternal life, and who gives the gracious invitation to "come and take of the water of life freely."

The Rev. Robert Phelps, D.D., who had been Master of Sidney-Sussex College, Cambridge, since 1843, expired at his house on Saturday night, after a short illness, in his eighty-fifth year. He entered the University as a scholar of Trinity, and after graduating as fifth wrangler, in 1833, was appointed a fellow. Ten years later he was elected master of Sidney-Sussex College on the death of Dr. Chafy.

MR. AND MRS. MORGAN, travelling evangelists, with their Bible carriage last year visited Oxfordshire, Berkshire, Hampshire, Wiltshire, and Somersetshire. They sold hundreds of Bibles and Testaments, distributed thousands of tracts and periodicals, and held meetings indoors and out at which the people heard them gladly. Friends wishing to help on this good work by sending parcels of Bibles and Testaments and other good books will receive a photo of the Bible carriage. Parcels, carriage paid, to Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, 21, St. Mary's-road, Oxford.

MISSION WORK IN KINGSLAND.—For some years progressive Christian work has been carried on in Castle-street Mission Hall. For the past three years the services have been regularly conducted by Mr. J. Felmingham, of the London City Mission. The attendance has increased to such an extent that it has been decided to enlarge, and at the same time renovate, the building at an estimated cost of about £300. The work is one that is worthy of support; almost every Sunday evening there are definite spiritual results. During the past year numbers have joined Christian churches in the neighbourhood. The treasurer is Mr. H. Alston, Fair View, St. Mark's-square, Kingsland, N.

LEPERS IN INDIA.—Mr. W. C. Bailey, 17, Glengyle-terrace, Edinburgh, Secretary of the Mission to Lepers in India, writes that during the past year many lepers have been brought to a knowledge of the Lord. Kashmir has been comparatively barren as regards missionary results. Work has been carried on there amongst the lepers since 1888, under the superintendence of the C.M.S. missionaries; now the first tokens of blessing have come in a letter received from Rev. J. Hinton Knowles, telling of the baptism of two lepers. Mr. Bailey states that they have extended the work greatly during 1889. Anyone wishing a copy of the new report should write to him.

Gathered Gold.

SILENCE, quarrelling unbelief, I know in whom I have believed. Not in friends, though numerous and potent; for they are men and not God. Not in riches, for they make to themselves wings. Not in princes, for their breath is in their nostrils. But let God be true and every man a liar. In God do I put my trust; in his word do I hope. O sure word! I have not built on the sand of mortality. Let the rain descend and the winds blow; nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure. His everlasting promises and everlasting covenant are my stay. I am built upon his promises; let hell and earth do their worst to blow up this foundation.—Joseph Alleine.

I have the entire conviction that, as Christians, we should have constantly before us the doing good to our fellow creatures as the great aim of life; and that this must include above all the giving them that truth which we have felt to be very precious to ourselves. But how we are to give it is a question that requires very much Christian wisdom and the much-maligned tact—not the Jesuitical tact that creeps to its end by hidden ways, but the fineness of judgment that can choose time, place, opportunity, and all the while conceal nothing of what we are and believe. The truth is that men soon get to know what our Christianity is when we live it. When we have established our position and influence so, our word, when it comes seasonably, comes with power.—Dr. John Ker.

What a poor thing, in the ministry of the Gospel, is the man of great learning, and eloquence, and force of argument, whose preaching wants the vital warmth and spiritual earnestness of a single zeal for Christ and love for the souls of men. Weigh him in the balance of the sanctuary! Estimate him in view of the judgment day! Think of him as he will appear when he and all are receiving the fruits of embracing or rejecting the Gospel! Compare him, before God, with the man of far inferior gifts, who to the Master's work unites the Master's Spirit, and does, with all his heart, as though God did beseech men by him, pray them to be reconciled to God. With how many tongues does the latter preach? If any forget his words, none can forget his evident sincerity and solemn earnestness. The sermon from his lips may not be retained, but that preached by the whole spirit of the man, as of one realising the weight of his message and the worth of souls, cannot pass away.—Bishop McIlvaine.

The more sincere our desires, and the more earnest our efforts to promote the glory of God and the welfare of man, the more will our love to Jesus increase. Idle Christians always have lukewarm hearts, which are at once the causes and effects of their sloth. When the heart is fully engaged in God's great work, it will glow with love of the Great Son, who was Himself a servant in the same great cause.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Some seek a heaven of rest,
  And some an ampler sphere
For doing work they cannot do
  While they are prisoned here.

Some seek a heaven of song,
  And others fain would rise
From all articulate utterance
  To silent ecstacies.

Some seek a home in heaven,
  And some would pray to be
Alone with God, beyond the reach
  Of other company.

But in God's perfect heaven
  All aspirations meet,
Each separate longing is fulfilled,
  Each separate soul complete.

Dr. Edwin Hatch.

ENGLISHWOMEN OF PARIS.

DEAR SIR,—As one of the directors of the Association of Mission Homes for English and American Women and Children in Paris, I have felt it to be my duty and privilege to visit the field of action from time to time, and personally acquaint myself with the details of the various branches of the Mission. The enforced absence in Canada of my sister, Mrs. Travers Lewis, has caused me to go to Paris more frequently than usual of late, and I have recently returned from what I may term a ten days' inspection, devoting nearly the whole of that time to the business in hand.

My impressions as to the importance and Christlike character of the work, which touches life in all its bearings, are deepened on every occasion. The work at the Governesses' and Artists' Institute, 153, Faubourg St. Honoré, interested me greatly. I attended the weekly soirée, which was arranged entirely by the ladies themselves, who had prepared a journal, made up of their own compositions, most artistically bound together in book form. During the evening, these selections were recited, and interspersed with music and singing. Towards half-past ten o'clock we united together in family prayer, and thus closed a most profitable and enjoyable social gathering. These soirées are held weekly during the winter months. About two months ago, on a previous visit, I had the pleasure of presiding at a lecture on "Health," given by Dr. Barnard, when the evening was again brought to a close by family worship.

On Sunday afternoon a Bible-reading is given, which is much appreciated. Although this Home has been well filled, I was not surprised to find that there would be a heavy deficit at the end of the year. It cannot be self-supporting. The ladies pay what they can, but the market in Paris is so overstocked that there are always those who are unable to pay anything while studying, or waiting for situations, but who are sheltered and influenced for good during what might otherwise be a very critical time in their experience, if left in Paris without such a Home.

It is needless to say that all shades of religious opinions are held by the inmates, who are ladies by birth and education, and much wisdom and tact are needed in dealing with them in spiritual matters, which is, of course, the principal aim in view.

A Home for daily and unemployed governesses, young women apprenticed in shops, ladies' maids, nurses, &c., seeking situations; a sanitorium, free registry, and nursery, and infants' Kindergarten school, comprises the work carried on at the Mission Home, 77, Avenue Wagram, with its seventy rooms, all of which I found going on very satisfactorily. I participated in the Christmas festivities, and had several opportunities of speaking to considerable gatherings.

The work at the Mission Hall adjoining, 79, Avenue Wagram, is now in full operation. Mission services for the poor, mothers' meetings, clothing club, and soup kitchen are all doing good work. The latter is held three times a week, and it is interesting to study the character of the people who come from all parts of Paris. I had the privilege of giving the usual Gospel address on two occasions.

On the last Saturday of the year we had a very successful Gospel temperance meeting, when four signed the pledge. The Sunday evening mission service and Watch Night meeting were also well attended by a class of people who would not attend a regular church service. At the Young Women's Christian Association, 26, Faubourg St. Honoré, where shop-girls are boarded and lodged, and Sunday dinners provided, I had the pleasure of conducting the usual Bible-reading, when twenty-one were present.

I visited the Children's Home, 35, Boulevard Bureau, the gift of Monsieur Galignani, several times, and found the youngsters bright and happy, and evidently well cared for.

Altogether I was much impressed with the tone and spirit in which the work is carried on. The ladies in charge at the various institutions seem so well adapted for their respective spheres, that one cannot but feel they have been specially raised up for this service, I expect my sister will be over again in March for a long visit. Owing to her absence, however, the Mission all round is suffering for want of funds, but I am glad to be able to state that I have never seen it in a more efficient state than at the present time; and I feel it needs only to be better known to command a liberal response from those whom the Lord has blessed with ample means, and who have a heart to feel for their fellow-countrywomen in the gay city of Paris. The hon. treasurer of the Mission is F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.—Yours,

Liverpool. THOMAS A. LEIGH.

BRITISH & FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

AT the committee meeting on Jan. 6, Mr. J. B. Braithwaite and Mr. George Williams gave earnest addresses. In a brief opening address for the year, the chairman, Mr. W. Shoolcroft Burton, referred to some of the Society's losses in the death of Bishop Lightfoot, Rev. Prof. Elmslie, Mr. Joseph Moore, and others, and to the progress in general work which had been made during the year. The treasurer, Mr. J. Gurney Barclay, reported an advance for the year in revenue. The free contributions had increased some £1500, and the donations about £2000. The corner has been turned, Mr. Barclay thinks, and the outlook is very favourable.

The "Helpers' Association," recently formed (see Reporter for January), has held its inaugural meeting in the Bible House. The tone of the meeting was practical, and the members of the Association evidently mean work. A course of lectures was announced for the special benefit of the members of the Association by the editorial and literary superintendents, and other authorities on Bible Society matters.

A letter from the Haute Savoie (December 23) says: "You will be glad to hear of the great use a grant of Bibles and Testaments you kindly made to us has been...Several of our people have become steady Bible-readers, and are inquiring earnestly about the freeness of salvation in Christ. We are looking for the fruit in due time."

One of the most interesting parts of the Society's work has always been its provision of Scriptures for the blind. An edition of the Psalms in Welsh for the use of the blind in the Principality is in contemplation. The Society has secured the services of Dr. Armitage for the publication, and it will be proceeded with as soon as he returns from Egypt.

The revision of the Portuguese New Testament is proceeding under the care of Rev. R. Stewart, Lisbon. The Gospel by Matthew has been printed, and the edition is exhausted. The new version of Luke is almost ready, and that of John is entering the press.

Another new language is likely to be soon added to the long list of the Society's versions. It is that of the Blackfoot Indians—a tribe numbering some 7000. Overtures have been made to the Committee with reference to the issue of the Gospel of Matthew, and the question is at present under consideration.

MANCHESTER. — The City Mission agents, assisted by voluntary helpers, do a good work in connection with a systematic visitation of the lodging-houses in this city. At forty of the largest of them meetings are regularly held, and there have been encouraging results. A social gathering recently held at one called "The Rest" was a very interesting occasion.

Obituary.

MRS. JAMES WRIGHT, BRISTOL.

IT is with much regret that we record the death, from inflammation of the lungs, of Mrs. James Wright, only daughter of Mr. George Müller, founder of the Orphan Houses for 2050 orphans, at Ashley Down, Bristol, after an illness of about ten days.

She devoted her life largely to the work connected with the Orphanage, having, prior to her marriage, laboured with her mother, the late Mrs. Müller, in this happy service. But, since the death of the latter, and her own marriage, she has been the co-worker with her husband, Mr. Wright, in his work as managing director of the Orphan Houses, during the prolonged missionary tours which her venerable and beloved father has undertaken, and in which he is at present engaged in India.

The loss to Mr. Wright is so great that we may well ask for earnest prayer on his behalf, for not only has he lost a most devoted wife, but one with whom he could take counsel, and find a real co-worker in the great responsibilities associated with the Orphanages, and other branches of work connected with "The Scriptural Knowledge Institution." Mrs. Wright inherited her father's unselfish nature, it was an instinct with her to live for the good of others, and to find her own pleasure and happiness in doing so in the most gracious and unostentatious manner possible. The funeral took place yesterday (Thursday) at Arno's Vale Cemetery, a service having been previously held at Bethesda Chapel.

The following is from an esteemed correspondent, who is also a relative of the late Mrs. Wright:—

Mrs. Wright was the only child of Mr. George Müller, founder of the Orphan Homes on Ashley Down. She was born in this city shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Müller came to live here in the year 1832, and has, therefore, been intimately acquainted with the working of the great Institution from her earliest days.

Delicate as a child, her strength was still further reduced, both then and after she had grown up, by severe illness, the after-effects of which were never entirely removed; but the instinct of helpfulness, which she possessed in an extraordinary degree, enabled her to assist her father, mother, and aunt (the late Miss Groves), in their multiplied labours.

Until her mother's death, which took place early in the year 1870, she was chiefly occupied at home—then the corner house in Paul's-street, Kingsdown, to which address all letters and parcels were directed—and where there were constant callers who had business with the workers on Ashley Down.

In the following year she was married to Mr. James Wright, who had been her father's helper in the orphan work for many years, and began to take more active part in the management of the houses, as her mother had done.

To this service she brought gifts that are rarely combined in the same individual. To a faith calm and serene as her father's was joined an intense power of sympathy, and enjoyment of the bright side of any narrative to which she might be listening, and a marvellously sound judgment in arriving at the best settlement of any institutional difficulty. Yet she regarded her work as if it scarce had any value, and was on no account to be talked of. Whoever had any business with Mrs. Wright, teacher, matron, or servant, was listened to with her whole attention, and as much respect as if she had been a lady of title. Consequently, when her reply was given, in the form often of a gentle suggestion, it was received instantly and acted on, instead of being discussed any further.

So she managed to get through in an hour more than many could accomplish in a whole morning. With an observant eye, a keen memory for anything wherein she could serve another, and of the smallest acts of kindness received, none who knew her could help loving her, while nothing would cause to escape from her a confidence that had once been entrusted.

Great as was her suffering during the few days of her last illness, her mind was always occupied on behalf of others. Ready to go if called up higher, she did not anticipate such to be the Master's will up to the last conscious moment, when she fell asleep.

When reading 1 Cor. xiii., and seeking some human example of the special grace therein described, one who has known her from a child, in cloud and sunshine, can testify that it was found in her, to the glory of her Redeemer.

MRS. M'CALMONT.

Only a few short months have passed since the readers of THE CHRISTIAN heard of the startling summons to "see the King" given to the Lady Lilias Sherbrooke. And now the messenger has come for another of the same family, her father's sister, Mrs. M'Calmont, who entered into the presence of the King on December 31. One who had known her intimately writes:—

Mrs. M'Calmont was one of the elder sisters of the late Lord Cairns. It was in her home in London that he came as a young man to study, and it was there that, even from those early days, he found and made the holy leisure to study the Word of God in the very early hours of every day, which has been mentioned in sketches of his life.

All her life through, this elder sister had the deepest and most true-hearted sympathy with her noble brother, and the truest union of spirit with him. Her life also was fed on the Word of God, and therefore her spiritual life was ever fresh. To be with her always gave the impression of a life which was deeply rooted.

She, too, had the habit of very early rising, and, long before the family gathered together, her prayerful Bible-reading occupied the first hour of every morning. This was her constant way, winter and summer. No wonder, then, that vigour and freshness were in her life. She was full of talent and natural powers, and she held all as due to Him who gave them. Like her brother, strength and serenity were two of her most marked characteristics, and a clear judgment and patience about details made her decision very valuable.

The writer, from three years old, remembers her, and how "a visit to Mrs. M'Calmont" was always a star day, for her sympathy and interest was felt even by the little child. As the years went on, her sympathy never wore out, but only deepened; and year after year it became a greater pleasure and privilege to have a good talk over God's interests.

We never thought her "old"; it never occurred to us to think her so, though she was seventy-eight last year. Only in the middle of December the writer had a long drive with her, in which she inquired, with the most vivid interest, about the young missionaries soon to be starting for East and West Africa, as well as others lately gone to Palestine.

Her long, fruitful, and restful life is another tribute to the power of God to keep up the life that He implants. The words "faithful unto death" do most truly describe her, for she was faithful to her Lord, faithful in her friendships, and in home life. She never gave up any interest once undertaken; and from the day when she left her Irish home, a very young bride, to live in London, her light shone for her Lord. She was one of the very earliest members of the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East, and her help was unfailingly given to Irish Church Missions, Connemara Orphanages, and many other works.

There was no decay in her life, for she was vigorous and strong to the last few days. On Monday, December 23, she worked till midnight, with her usual habit of leaving no arrears. Sudden illness then seized her, and in one week she was at home, leaving a sore blank; for her life was a centre to her family and a pattern of serenity and rested acquiescence in the will of her Lord, whether He took from her the one to whom she was most deeply attached, or asked her to resign a home of many years. Her whole life and bearing was a true "Yes" to his question, "Is it not lawful for Me to do what I will with mine own?"

ADMIRAL SULIVAN.

The death is recorded at Bournemouth, on New Year's Day, of Admiral Sir Bartholomew James Sulivan, K.C.B., at the age of seventy-nine. This distinguished officer not only served faithfully his Queen and country during a long period of years, but he was equally loyal in the service of his Heavenly King. A staunch supporter of Protestant principles, his name was also widely known in temperance circles, and up to the time of his death he held the post of president of the Bournemouth Blue Ribbon Gospel Temperance Union. He was one of the three original founders of the Mission to Seamen; on the death of Captain Allen Gardiner, he took a leading part in the reorganisation of the South American Missionary Society. His kindly, generous heart was ever ready to respond to any appeal made on behalf of truth and justice.

DR. DÖLLINGER

The learned German theologian and historian, Dr. John Joseph Ignatius Döllinger, well known as the leader of the Old Catholic movement, died on Friday last, at Munich, where he had lived for over sixty years as University professor. Aged ninety-one, he had seen much of the Papal system, and as the years passed, he became increasingly distrustful of the Vatican, and all the ways and works of the Jesuits.

Shortly after being ordained, in 1822, he defended things as he found them, but studies in church history led him to assume a position of hostility to the Vatican. This hostility was specially manifested in 1861, when he spoke out with unwonted plainness in favour of the separation of the spiritual and temporal power then wielded by the Pope. Three years later the "Syllabus of Errors" was issued by Pope Pius IX., condemning heresy, modern philosophy, and liberalism in politics. The struggle between Ultramontanism and the more independent Catholicism of Germany thereupon became increasingly severe. Only one measure seemed to be wanting to secure success to the Ultramontane party, and that was a declaration of the Pope's infallibility, making the teachings of the Syllabus binding on the entire church. Dr. Döllinger was at the head of the German bishops who vigorously repudiated the assumption, and he remained faithful to his convictions to the last. He was excommunicated from the Romish Church as a primal heretic, but his valuable writings—showing great historical research and power of reasoning on theological matters—to say nothing of his bold stand for a purer (though incomplete) form of faith, secured him friends and admirers among Protestants throughout the world. With his help and influence the opposition went on, and one after another the claims of Rome were openly discussed. In 1875, the Old Catholics of Bonn, in asking for a church for their worship, declared that they did not secede from the Catholic Church, they desired Catholicism free from debasing doctrines, repudiated the infallibility and supremacy of the Pope, and sanctioned the reading of the Bible and Divine worship in the vulgar tongue, and the marriage of priests.

In the dogma of infallibility Dr. Döllinger recognised an attempt to institute a monarchical despotism, and pronounced his conviction that an infallible Pope would be but a tool in the hands of the Jesuits. This was his belief to the last, and a life of intense activity was closed in a spirit of praiseworthy loyalty to truth and reason. We are unable to speak very definitely as to the end. It seems, however, that even while on his death-bed an attempt was made to induce Dr. Döllinger to make peace with Rome by recanting his oft-expressed opinions. His noble answer was the one he had given on many previous occasions: "I will not sully my old age with a lie."

PASTOR EUGÈNE BANZET.

French Protestantism has sustained another sad loss. Formerly a pastor of the Lutheran Church, M. Banzet had lived for some years in Paris, where he wrote three works of practical interest, dealing with missions to the heathen, the evangelisation of the Jews, and the hallowing of the Lord's Day. He founded L'Ami Chrétien des Familles, a journal which has proved a blessing in many a home.

MADAME EUGENE SCHNEIDER.

This lady, the widow of the former President of the Corps Législatif, recently expired at Paris. Her name was widely held in honour for her unbounded generosity. Being a whole-hearted Protestant, she greatly helped the organisations and agencies of the Reformed Church. The poor, however, she succoured because they were poor, and irrespective of their religious creed. Le Christianisme says of her:—"Money for her had no value other than as a means of doing good. Her loss has been mourned by her friends in Paris, but at Creuzot, where she passed the greater part of her life, thirty thousand persons have followed her funeral procession. The entire town was plunged in grief, and, so much was she beloved of all, that both in the Protestant place of worship and the cortège, not far from the pastors of the Reformed Church, there were to be seen the Sisters of the Order of Saint Joseph. Everybody knew how deep was her attachment to the Gospel and Protestantism, but Catholic eyes were closed as to her 'heresy' because of her great goodness."

Died, at the Cedars, South Hackney, of diphtheria (following an attack of influenza), on Sunday, January 12, Kenward Wallace Elmslie, the beloved second son of Dr. and Mrs. Barnardo, aged twelve years.

CENTRAL AFRICA.

THE religious position of Uganda is remarkably illustrated in Mr. Stanley's letter to Mr. Bruce, the son-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, from which we quoted last week. It is instructive to have the opinion of the man whose letter in 1875 caused missions to be sent into the kingdom of Mtesa, and who was met by a deputation of decently-clothed men professing to be Christians, and representing thousands of their brethren, who preferred exile to the acceptance of Mahommedanism. Although the Christianity of many may be only skin-deep, that of others, we know, has been tried by fire; and since the deputation had with them the Gospel of Matthew, as well as Prayer-books, we may suppose that they were not Roman Catholics.

Mr. Stanley rightly sees in these men a new force which will rapidly and surely develop in wholesome changes for Central Africa. With him, we would be sceptical about the conversion of Mwanga (whose letter to Mr. Mackay we printed lately); but there can be no doubt at all that if the people of God at home are faithful to the present opportunity, a white harvest is waiting for them in Uganda.

THE PORTUGAL IMBROGLIO has, we may hope, conclusively ended by the acceptance of the ultimatum presented by our Government on Saturday. We may now hope that there will be no more heard of Portuguese interference with British colonising and missionary enterprise in Nyasaland. An arrangement must be made for leaving the way between the Shiré and the ocean open to our vessels and traffic, for there is no other means of communication with the world outside. The Free Church of Scotland has already appointed four new missionaries; let the representatives of commerce show equal wisdom and vigour.

GEORGE HATTON AND HIS WORK.

LAST week a number of friends associated or in sympathy with the St. Giles Christian Mission assembled at Little Wild-street Chapel to celebrate the coming round of the thirtieth anniversary of the work which Mr. George Hatton and his helpers have carried on during that period. The narrative of what has been done is a striking chapter in the history of aggressive Christianity; and, while many classes of the poor have been benefited, no small gain must have come to the public at large through large numbers of criminals being transformed into honest citizens.

On the evening of the first Monday in January, 1860, Mr. Hatton, who then attended the ministry of Dr. Brock at Bloomsbury Chapel, called a meeting of young men at his house in Chancery-lane, when each agreed to give something weekly towards the carrying on of Christian work in the densely populated parish of St. Giles'. That was the day of small things; and for four years the meetings were held at a shop and parlour in Queen-street. Subsequently King-street Hall was obtained; but in the course of ten years the work in general had assumed such proportions, that the offer of the fine old chapel in Little Wild-street was regarded as a timely providence. Adapted for its new purpose at considerable expense, the chapel was opened by Mr. Spurgeon in 1874, and has since served as the headquarters of the Mission.

It was in 1868, and while Mr. Hatton was conducting special services in Chenies-street, Tottenham Court-road, that he first became associated with Mr. William Wheatley, who has since rendered such distinguished service in connection with that branch of the work. About nine years later, when Joshua Poole was holding special services at Wild-street Chapel, a number of the criminal class actually presented themselves; and on their expressing a desire to turn into honest ways, a load of wood was purchased for them to cut up and sell, while other industrial experiments on their behalf were also tried with success.

Others of the criminal class who desired to reform were attracted, and thus a temporary Home became necessary; and it is a significant fact that the first house utilised for this purpose was a quondam public-house in Earl-street, which, as a place of very low repute, the men had frequented in former days. This work became so thoroughly successful in an all-round sense that another and a larger Home of Industry was opened in Brook-street, Holborn. This had also been a public-house; but it is now a busy hive, and, besides offering temporary employment and lodging to numbers who have missed their way in the world through yielding to temptation to dishonesty, it is daily thronged by repentant men and lads who have lately come out of prison.

Twelve years ago the work at the prison gate, the general success of which has surprised and gratified all who have looked into it, was commenced in a small way at the House of Correction, Coldbath-fields. The privileges now enjoyed were not possessed then; and it was with some difficulty that a room was procured in which to hold the breakfasts. Lady helpers were of the greatest service in those early days; and now that the work has extended to the prisons at Holloway, Wandsworth, and Pentonville, it is not second in importance to any philanthropic enterprise of the day.

The latest development of this aggressive work has been the addition of a branch for the reclamation of fallen women; and it is a singular fact that the temporary Home opened at Seven Dials is the third public-house utilised by the Mission. There are other Homes in Drury-lane, and at Kentish Town, and the success of the efforts made in this department has been eminently encouraging.

We regret to say that of late Mr. Hatton has suffered from ill-health, which has precluded his personally taking such an active part in the work as was formerly the case; but the Mission in general has not been allowed to suffer, and Mr. Hatton is still enabled to superintend the whole of the operations. As regards the coming in of funds, however, the past Christmas has not been a very "merry" one, as the receipts have been discouragingly below the average, although the current expenses for the three departments can hardly be curtailed. The case is urgent, and, beyond relieving Mr. Hatton himself of anxiety at a time of bodily weakness, we should be glad to hear of the work in progress itself being stimulated by substantial help.

BREAKFASTING AT GRAY'S YARD.

THE destitute, the ragged, and the hungry, were well represented at Gray's-yard Ragged Schools, on Sunday morning, when about 800 poverty-stricken men, a few women, and two or three children, gathered to eat the substantial breakfast provided them by the kindness of friends. A cup of coffee, a pound pie, and a large cake, is fare not to be despised under any circumstances; but judging from the rush to get inside the George-yard Hall, and the eager impatience with which the food was devoured, the meal was doubly welcome to the uninvited guests. Most of them were casuals, who had spent the night in the open air, in anticipation of the morning's breakfast; some were gaol-birds, recently out of the warders' hands, and a few looked as if it had not been long since they had seen better days.

But the reason of their coming lay, not simply in the fact that they were to have food for the body—they were there to listen to Gospel addresses and to sing the hymns familiar to them in their childhood's days. The meeting commenced with the hearty singing of, "Come ye sinners, poor and wretched"—a grimly appropriate hymn. Mr. Hanbury, treasurer of the Mission, spoke a few words to the men, advising them to look forward, and see if in the future they could not act differently, that their lives might be brighter than in the past.

Mr. Gurney Sheppard also wished his friends a happier New Year. God had promised them, he said, that "as their days their strength should be," and he was sure that if they strove to lead better lives upon the strength of this promise, God would not forsake them. He liked the word "determination." A few words from Ned Wright concluded the address. He told his motley congregation about his own life, and his recital evidently touched a chord in many hearts. The men laughed heartily, too, when he told several of the anecdotes he uses to illustrate Gospel truth.

SOUTHWARK, S.E. — New buildings were opened on Thursday last week in Castle-yard, Holland-street, in connection with the Ragged School and Mission held there. Rev. Newman Hall presided, and the speakers included Messrs. F. F. Belsey and C. Steinitz. The inauguration was full of promise. The girls of the neighbourhood are gathered in a sewing-class, at which they are taught how to cut out clothes. During the past winter the poor have been befriended to the utmost of the power of the various workers. The superintendent of the Mission is Mr. Buncombe, Ingleside, Knatchbull-road, Camberwell.

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—To such as may think of taking up Christian work in the Argentine Republic, in response to the appeal of Mr. W. C. Torre, in last week's paper, it may be well to point out that it is highly important to acquire the Spanish language before arriving in the country. There are in the Republic many Englishmen, Frenchmen, and Italians, as well as Spaniards, and the surroundings are, in more senses than one, unfavourable to the prosecution of linguistic studies. We are assured that the language can be better and more quickly acquired by a brief residence in Spain, or under a Spanish tutor in London, than in the Argentine Republic.

DR. PIERSON ON PRAYER.

IN one of his addresses on Friday at the Centenary Hall, Dr. PIERSON deplored that the great bulk of professing Christians know very little of the power of believing prayer. What power there is in prayer, according to the Word of God! In John xvi. 24 Christ says: "Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name; ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full." The Old Testament saints prayed, but not in the name of Christ. Now the "name" represents the character, and to ask something in Christ's name is to pray by virtue of identity with Him. We are one with Him, as a true wife is with her husband, and the members are with the body. Therefore, if we ask anything of God in Christ's name, it is not simply we who ask, but virtually Christ Himself. On that account there can be no such thing as an unanswered prayer offered in the name of Jesus Christ, for the Father will not neglect or reject the petitions of the Son.

It is our privilege to ask things of God "in the name" of Christ Jesus, with whom we are taught to regard ourselves as having died, risen, and ascended into heavenly places. Prayer is essentially a divine and not a human operation; it is not simply asking for what we want, or offering praise to God; but it is the Holy Spirit working in the believer in the initiation of holy desires; and the incense, "the prayers of the saints," is, as we read in Revelation viii. 4, received into Christ's golden censer, and swung before the throne of God, being made acceptable by the Son's mediation. Then see Romans viii. 26, "We know not what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit Himself maketh intercession for us with groanings that cannot be uttered." We have desires which we cannot express, as well as such as we can put into words.

In the Epistle to the Ephesians (ii. 18) we have an explanation of prayer which shows that the whole Divine Trinity is involved:—"Through Him (that is, Christ) we have access by one Spirit unto the Father." The Spirit moves in the soul, so that we desire great things of God, and Jesus Christ is the medium of access by which the prayer reaches the Father. Not until the Father can dishonour the unutterable groanings of the Holy Spirit, and the mediation of the Son, can He disregard any prayer that is really offered in Christ's name. How shall we pray in Christ's name? Holiness—renunciation of sin, and the abandonment of idols—living in the fellowship of God, are essential. Let us then cultivate communion with God, so that we may know more of the power of prayer.

OUR VILLAGES.—Mr. Joseph Heathcock, Bournheath, near Bromsgrove, writes to say that there are in his neighbourhood many opportunities of service for any Christians with means of their own who desire a sphere of usefulness in Christ's vineyard.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a Gospel mission, by Mr. Henry Lakin, at the Louisa Ashburton Hall, Custom House, E., Jan. 12 to 26.——For blessing on a mission being held at Penton, Hants, by Mr. Maurice Marcus, of the Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a mission being held at Union Hall, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, by Mr. Thomas Hickling.——For blessing on an eight days' mission at Newport (Mon.), by Rev. F. C. Spurr, of Cardiff.——For blessing on a Church mission at Market Rasen, Jan. 18 to 28; also for mission Jan. 25 to Feb. 1, in connection with the Children's Special Service Mission.——For blessing upon evangelistic services at Radstock, until Jan. 26.——For blessing on a mission at Chesterfield, Jan. 30 to Feb. 10, by Rev. Dr. Morgan.——For a mission at the Bath Y.M.C.A., by Mr. W. R. Lane, Feb. 9 to 18.——For blessing on special services at the Baptist Chapel, Birchington, Jan. 19 to Feb. 2.

THE OPEN-AIR MISSION.

ON Monday night, the thirty-seventh annual general meeting of this Mission was held at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C. The chair was taken by the Hon. Henry Noel.

A lengthened report was read by the secretary (Mr. Gawin Kirkham) touching the operations of last year. It appeared that the members of the mission (effective roll) now numbered 1,089. Conferences of preachers had been held by the Mission and its auxillaries, to the number of thirty-three.

The number of towns and villages to which agents and preachers had been sent was about 500. The total number of circulars, tracts, books, cards, &c., distributed during the year was 1,225,057. A statement of the secretary's work showed that since his re-appointment, some thirteen years ago, he has delivered 2463 open-air and 3770 indoor addresses, making in all 6233, at which, it has been estimated, some 895,112 persons have been in attendance. During the period mentioned the secretary has travelled the enormous distance of 143,973 miles.

Last year Mr. Kirkham's mission friends, in order to satisfy his desire to visit the Holy Land, subscribed the sum of £125 towards the expenses. The opportunity had now come, and he purposed starting on his tour on Friday. There was one interesting point in connection with his tour: he intended crossing Central Europe, and purposed giving at Stuttgart for the thousandth time his exposition of the famous picture, "The Broad and the Narrow Way." It was a singular coincidence that the occasion of this lecture at Stuttgart would be the twenty-second anniversary of the death of Charlotte Reihlen, the author of the picture. The chairman, Rev. J. E. Shephard, Rev. W. Pearce, Colonel Macgregor, and Mr. Joseph Weatherby, followed in addresses eulogistic of the works and objects of the Open-air Mission.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. William Nobbs has been conducting very happy and profitable services for Christians, including lantern lectures, on the "Tabernacle," at Cumberland Hall, Hotwells, during the past sixteen days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison have conducted a series of meetings at the Northcote-road Baptist Chapel, Wandsworth. Souls have been saved, and the Christians revived. This week a children's special mission is being conducted.

Mr. Charles Cook has held a week's mission at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting-hill (Dr. Sinclair Paterson's). The meetings, though not crowded, were most encouraging, and evident proofs of the power of the Gospel were seen, as nightly anxious souls were dealt with by the workers.

Kilkeel, Ireland.—A mission, conducted by Messrs. Carleton and Crawford, of the Irish Evangelisation Society, has concluded, at the closing meeting of which many persons publicly testified of blessing which they had received then or at a previous mission conducted by the same evangelists in a tent pitched in the town. Since that time the Memorial Hall, a new and commodious building, has been built, which has already been the birthplace of souls.

Mr. Geo. C. Needham has been in Kansas recently. The churches everywhere were crowded to hear his Bible lecturers. There were many conversions—fifty confessions of Christ at one service. Mr. Needham's aim is the development of spiritual life in the churches and individuals, hence the greatest blessing comes to pastors and their flocks, and thereafter to the unsaved. The evangelist is now in Missouri. His Bible-classes number hundreds, and Bibles are purchased by the people.

Rev. R. Balgarnie's mission engagements for the next three months are: Heckmondwike, Jan. 18; Pudsey, 25; Kettering, Feb. 1; Ryde, 12; Brading, 15; Sandown, 22; Shanklin, March 1; Hammersmith (Baptist), 8; Newmarket, 15; Dorking, 22.

The Book World.

A Book on Inspiration.

ON THE INSPIRATION AND DIVINE AUTHORITY OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES: with Replies to some alleged Discrepancies. By H. H. Snell. G. Morrish. We are, on the whole, much pleased with Mr. Snell's contribution to the elucidation of this important theme. He writes as one keenly alive to the gravity of the subject, and eager to be of what service he can in setting forth the undeniable claim of the sacred Scriptures to be regarded as a divinely inspired and supreme authority. In the present day such works are especially timely. An element of power in this work is the manifest reverence with which the whole subject is dealt with. We have read more scholarly works on this subject, more solid defences of the truth that "all Scripture is God-breathed." At the same time this is a book of considerable power; is not heavy reading; has a flow of fervour in it which is refreshing; and is the production of one who has a considerable spiritual acquaintance with the books of the Old and New Testaments. Our main [illegible] to Mr. Snell's treatment of the question relate to those portions of the work in which he departs from his text, and seeks to impose upon his readers crude interpretations touching the Church and the second advent of the saints. There was no call to import this debatable matter into the work at all. Mr. Snell thinks that the Church only began at Pentecost, and that all the Old Testament saints, Abraham included, form no part of the Body of Christ. To us the inspired Word conveys a totally opposite view. Whether it be or be not Scriptural, it is certainly irrelevant in a treatise designed to vindicate the inspiration and Divine authority of the Holy Scriptures. While taking exception to matters of detail, we would not detract from the substantial value of the work considered as a whole.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MEGIDDO, AND SERMONS ON SPECIAL OCCASIONS. By Rev. Gordon Calthrop. Sir W. Hunt & Co. One of these thirty sermons on all manner of subjects, texts, and doctrines, not one will be found that does not repay reading. Mr. Calthrop's style is easy, his matter well arranged, and his views thoroughly Scriptural and evangelical.

THE SCOTTISH CHURCH AND UNIVERSITY ALMANAC, 1890. Ed. Edinburgh: Macniven & Wallace. Here are lists of churches and ministers, with much other information, of the various Christian denominations of Scotland. The accounts of the Universities and Theological Halls, with lists of professors, &c., have evidently been compiled with great care.

THE MISSIONARY BROTHERS: Memoirs of Rev. J. Wear Bell and Rev. J. Bell. By J. E. Hellier. Wesleyan Book Room. None can read without profit the lives of missionaries, short or long. After only four weeks residence in West Africa, the elder Bell died, but his death led his younger brother to lay hold on eternal life. After only three years service in China the second labourer received his crown. Being dead they speak.

DOD'S PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, AND KNIGHTAGE, of Great Britain and Ireland for 1890. This is the fiftieth year of publication of a very useful handbook of reference. Accounts are given of all the titled classes of the United Kingdom, and nothing but great diligence and care in matters of detail could have produced such a complete and reliable work. Information as to courtesy titles, precedence, and style of address, add to the utility of the book. (Whittaker & Co.)

THE WRITINGS OF THE APOSTLE JOHN: with Notes, Critical and Expository. By the late John Tindall Harris. Vol. ii.—The Revelation. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. This is the completion of a work which is, in a large measure, sui generis. The author holds that Christ came "in the glory of his Parousia at and after the destruction of Jerusalem, and the dissolution of the Jewish Theocracy." This idea runs through his work and governs his entire exposition. With regard to the Apocalypse, he says: "The book (according to my interpretation of it) purports to be the history in figure of the day of Christ, from the date of the destruction of Jerusalem, which event was imminent when the Apocalypse was written, to the consummation of the present dispensation in the new heavens and the new earth." Though unable to endorse many of the views and opinions expressed, we admire the reverent suggestiveness of the work.

he Arrow. 1d. Another new monthly. The ents are bright and readable, the tone is evan- cal, and the policy Nonconformist. The pub- er, Mr. H. G. Davies, 73, Ludgate-hill, E.C., s the magazine, which is amply illustrated, be localised in connection with many churches ughout the country.

METHODIST FAMILY, Vol. xx. This illus- d monthly makes a capital volume. The ents are varied in character, and always whole- in tone. The pages are filled with matter ulated to entertain and instruct the family; efore, we sincerely hope that they will have y readers. (61, Paternoster-row.)

AYBREAK IN THE SOUL. By Rev. E. W. re. 1s. Partridge. The believer's entrance full salvation is here defined and explained in minently practical manner. To those who for a brief statement of the conditions of the ine illumination, and an unfolding of the s attendant privileges, we cordially commend book, which is, from first to last, intensely ulating and helpful.

essrs. Cassell & Co. are doing excellent service e community by placing classic works within reach of people of small means. They are now ng in weekly numbers, at a halfpenny (monthly , 3d.), the well-known and highly instructive OF CHRIST, by Archdeacon Farrar. Printed rge type, and admirably illustrated, the work lculated to prove widely useful; we trust many who read its graphic pages will accept s testimony concerning his Son, and find in eternal life.

ribner's Monthly has some very instructive s. "Water Storage in the West," by Walter ette Bates, introduces the reader to wonderful es and operations in a region of the United es to which many eyes are at present turned. . Jacassy writes on "Tripoli, of Barbary," and ry T. Finck expatiates upon "The Beauty of ish Women." Mr. A. E. Kennelly, chief rician in Edison's laboratory, contributes a re- able paper on "Electricity in the House- ." It is needless to add that, as usual, the trations are numerous and good. (1s. F. Warne .)

e Scottish Weekly. "Why do you appear?" is itle of the introductory article of this new y paper. The answer is comprehensive and it, and includes the following sentences: ause many have been anxious to have a paper h they could allow freely to circulate in their lies without fear of unsettling the minds of of the members by questionable doctrines in ion and politics. 'For Christ and our country' be our watchword." We trust the excellent ose herein implied will be valiantly carried to the glory of God, and the good of the ish people. (Offices: 19, George IV. Bridge, burgh).

E HYMN LOVER. By W. Garrett Horder. rwen & Sons. This is a very interesting and uctive account of the rise and growth of ish Hymnody. The author has spared no ur in order to make his book a success. He athered much material, and has arranged it considerable skill, so that every reader will tertained and profited. There are frequent essions of opinion with which we do not . The author's objection to hymns not ad- ed directly to God appears to be carried too If the Book of Psalms is to suggest the rn for our modern hymnals, this rule will not to be too rigidly enforced. The Apostle in v. 19 and Col. iii. 16 seems to suggest that purpose of our hymns is to "teach and nish" others. For this reason we also differ the author in his objection to doctrinal s. Neither the Trinity nor the substitutionary ring of Christ, nor the future resurrection of ody, according to Mr. Horder, should find any atic statement in our hymns of praise. If purpose of our hymns is to teach, then the clear and definite their doctrinal statements etter. The position taken by the author upon subject of future punishment appears in his ence to the words:—

> Nor yet because who love Thee not > Must burn eternally.

n that," says Mr. Horder, "if understood as g forth, not the eternity of punishment, but so long as love to God is absent from the it must suffer, may be accepted as grandly " These are some of the defects of the which require it to be read with care. We hankful for the author's collection of facts; e cannot accept all his opinions.

FRA ANGELICO, AND OTHER POEMS. By Gregory Smith. 1s. 6d. Longmans, Green & Co. Smooth in metre, imaginative, and often original in thought, Mr. Smith's verses are above the average, and will interest a varied circle of readers.

ILLUSTRATED BIBLE FOR THE YOUNG. This is a re-issue of a useful book. The pictures do not amount to much, but Bible history and teaching are outlined in a manner which will render the pages helpful to children either as an introduction or a companion to the direct study of Holy Writ. (Simpkin, Marshall & Co.)

WINNING AND WARNING. By Louisa Clayton. 1s. 6d. Hawkins. A series of addresses suitable for meetings and Bible-classes. Such plain, earnest, heart-teaching as fills these pages is sadly needed to-day. Faithful words of warning and loving appeals to the unsaved make the warp and woof of the book, for which we wish a large circulation.

SUNSHINE FOR THE MORNING OF LIFE. By Alice Parkes. Seeley & Co. In a brief introduction, the Bishop of Rochester correctly describes the short readings which make up this volume when he says that they "abound in picturesque illustrations, and, in what is better still, earnest and attractive presentation of 'the only realities' in simple and graceful language." Cultured and benevolent, the author specially addresses the young. She writes good poetry, and her book, which is printed in a bright blue tint, will form a capital present for girls.

SALT AND LIGHT: Sermons by D. Jones Hamer. 6s. Hodder & Stoughton. This volume serves as a memorial of one who was highly esteemed in a large Christian circle, both in England and at the Antipodes. It contains some of the best thoughts of one who devoted considerable culture and great energy to the extension of Gospel knowledge and influence. The style is fresh and forceful, and for the most part the discourses, twenty-four in number, are soundly practical. Ten of them are expository of the Sermon on the Mount, and the first of these supplies the title of the volume (Matt. v. 13-16). Always clear, the sermons are well worthy of perusal.

ST. THOMAS OF CANTERBURY: An account of his life and fame, from the contemporary biographers and other chroniclers. 2s. 6d. David Nutt. This volume has been edited for the very useful "English History by Contemporary Writers" series, by Rev. W. H. Hutton. Students of history do well to keep in view the quite early narratives, while they read the modern versions and latest interpretations of great events and actions. The personality of Thomas à Becket not only stands out prominently in twelfth century history, but it was such as to impress the English people in many ways during a long period. This handy book undoubtedly contains the cream of the abundant Becket literature.

KEPT; OR, THE GUIDANCE AND GUARDIANSHIP OF THE GOD OF ALL GRACE. By David A. Doudney, D.D. W. H. & L. Collingridge. The title of this book is almost a confession of the vigorous faith of the venerable and venerated author. The pages reflect that healthful distrust of self, and that glowing praise of God, which characterise the pages of The Gospel Magazine, in which the many eminently readable chapters first saw the light. To those who have long known the Lord (like Dr. Doudney, who, in the preface, speaks of having had personal experience of divine things for sixty-four years) the pages will have a great attraction, while to all who have learned to put no confidence in the flesh they are likely to prove stimulating and encouraging.

AROUND THE WICKET GATE. By C. H. Spurgeon. 1s. Passmore & Alabaster. The beloved pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle has in these pages a friendly talk with seekers concerning faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. While admirably adapted to this excellent purpose, the book will also prove very helpful to such as are actually journeying to the Celestial City. In a brief preface, Mr. Spurgeon says of those who are looking for the King's highway: "Only the Lord Himself can remove the folly which is bound up in their hearts, and lead them to take the great decisive step. Yet the Lord works by means, and I have prepared this little book in the earnest hope that He may work by it to the blessed end of leading seekers to an immediate, simple trust in the Lord Jesus." The relation of faith to salvation is explained with great clearness, and Christ is, with beautiful precision, held forth as both Saviour and Lord. The pages are bright with apt illustration, and, with God's blessing, will prove of service to many who are "not far from the kingdom."

THE PASTOR'S DIARY AND CLERICAL RECORD, prepared by Louis H. Jordan, pastor of Erskine Church, Montreal. 1s. J. Gemmell, Edinburgh. A neat, handy, pocket-book, so arranged as to suit ministers of all denominations. Visiting lists and a record of classes of all sorts are provided. There is a short but well-chosen list of texts for the sick. A useful New Year's gift for any pastor.

WHISPERS OF THE ETERNAL, by Robert Alleyne Harris. G. Stoneman. Here are the breathings of a devout soul, who has not studied in vain God's teaching in nature, providence, and Scripture. Though some expressions might jar on a cultured ear, and some stanzas lack finish and force, Christian workers, mourners, and worshippers will find much to cheer, warn, and guide in this little book.

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD. Hodder & Stoughton. No author's name is appended to this little book; but the initials H. D., stamped upon the cover, remind us that this is an address delivered by Prof. Henry Drummond on 1 Cor. xiii. Its popularity is proved by the fact that the latest edition brings up the number issued to thirty thousand. No one can read it without profit. It is intensely practical in its aim, bright and interesting in style, and healthy and inspiring in tone. It dignifies the little ordinary virtues of life by showing that love is to find its expression in them; while it also shows the impossibility of such a life apart from the experience of God's love to us. We commend the book as helpful to all. (1s. & 2s. 6d.)

BIBLE ILLUSTRATIONS FROM THE NEW HEBRIDES. By John Inglis, D.D., F.R.G.S. Nelson & Sons. This is a satisfactory book in every way. The author has spent a long life in the island of Aneityum, now entirely evangelised, and has translated the Word of God into the language of the people. It is refreshing to find with what clearness he adheres to the inspiration of Scripture. A thoughtful and well-read man, he has found many deeply interesting illustrations of Scripture in the course of his missionary experience, and these he sets forth in a felicitous way. Preachers should place Inglis on the shelf beside Kitto and Canon Tristram. The best of all the illustrations are those in which he gives examples of conversion. Dr. Inglis must now be getting an old man, but his eye is not dim nor his natural force abated.

BENJAMIN HELLIER: His Life and Teaching. Edited by his Children. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. A goodly volume in two parts. In the first the late Governor of Headingley College is lovingly depicted as he appeared in his daily life—a manly Christian and an eminently useful Methodist. The second part consists of discourses and extracts, expository and experimental. Rev. Dr. Moulton writes an introduction to the former, and Rev. G. G. Findlay to the latter. An excellent portrait, and some illustrations, enhance the interest of the volume, which those who knew Mr. Hellier will peruse with special pleasure. To others the pages will certainly prove inspiring. Mr. Hellier's life was one of holy earnestness, his whole career breathing the spirit of his dying message to the college students: "Give my love to them, and tell them that my last words to them are to preach Christ; not themselves, but Christ, the good news of salvation, salvation from sin; to preach Christ." What more wholesome counsel for aspirants to the ministerial vocation?

A clear and well-judged address to Christians on "The World," by Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence, of Blackheath, is published by Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. (1d.).

Y.M.C.A. DIARY AND CALENDAR, 1890. Mr. R. Howard Henson, hon. sec., Finsbury Park Y.M.C.A., has prepared this admirable diary, which will be especially welcome to secretaries and other officers of Y.M.C.A.'s and similar societies. (1s. C. E. Roberts & Co., 86, Chiswell-street, Finsbury-square, E.C.)

LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES find a friend in Miss Smallwood, of The Lees, Great Malvern, whose Fund on their behalf proves a great boon as far as it goes. This, however, is insufficient to meet the demands constantly made upon it. The Fund has been in existence three years. Miss Smallwood writes:—"I receive numbers of very sad letters, the writers wishing for work. I can get almost every kind of work or painting done well. Some of the ladies are so poor and so ill that they cannot do anything, and I try and allow them a little money for a few weeks. There are many ways in which friends can render help, such as holding concerts, sales of work, working parties, &c., besides giving orders to be executed by the ladies."

THE HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS.

In celebration of the anniversary of the Farningham and Swanley Homes for Little Boys, an interesting concert was given on Saturday last at the Royal Albert Hall.

Lord Brassey presided, and a varied programme was gone through by the Farningham Boys' Band and the Swanley Orphan Choir. In the course of a hearty address, the chairman strongly urged the claims of the institution, in which nearly five hundred homeless and orphan boys are housed, fed, clothed, educated, and taught useful trades to fit them to earn their own livelihood, and to become useful citizens. There are eleven of these homes at Farningham, and in each there are thirty little boys. The advantages of this system, which gives something of the benefits of home to those who were bereft of that blessing, have fully commended themselves to the philanthropic public. Unfortunately, from insufficiency of income, two of the homes are at present unoccupied, and he therefore made a special appeal. There are two hundred orphan boys in similar homes at Swanley.

Mr. Benjamin Clarke, Secretary, also made a statement, setting forth the variety of work done by the boys, who made the clothes, shoes, stockings, and bread for the Homes, and did all the printing that was required. The income was, he said, £1500 short of the expenditure. The lads looked in vigorous health, and appeared to enjoy themselves heartily.

Personalia.

Mr. Gawin Kirkham expects to start on Monday next for a tour in Palestine.

Canon Basil Wilberforce has undertaken to visit Australia shortly for the purpose of delivering a series of addresses in support of the temperance movement.

Rev. Henry Montgomery, of Belfast, will conduct a mission for men only at the Young Men's Christian Association, Exeter Hall, from February 9 to 19 inclusive. Full announcements will be made later on.

Mr. John Horniman, of Croydon, has placed in the hands of trustees the munificent sum of £25,000 to build and endow a Seaside Convalescent Home for Children, and he has offered to entrust the management to the Committee of the Friends' Epping and Folkestone Homes.

Mrs. Hilton, of the Stepney Crèche, has been very much tried by a serious illness in her Orphan Home, and by the loss of letters containing remittances for her institutions. She asks her friends to cross their cheques and postal orders, and to register their letters for the present.

Mr. Thomas Cook, of Leicester, the tourist agent, has signified, through the deacons of the Baptist Chapel at Melbourne, Derbyshire, his native place, that he has decided to build there thirteen cottages and a mission-room. The cottages are to be rent free, for the use of the aged and deserving poor of the town. Mr. Cook desires that the work of building should commence at once, and that the cottages should be as near as possible to the house where he was born.

Mrs. Watts Hughes and her work are sketched in The Queen, and a portrait given. Her rich gift of song, with her methods of instruction, and her admirable work on behalf of poor boys are the theme of a friendly article. "Though never appearing in public, she still continues to sing in drawing-rooms from time to time, which is a great pleasure to her friends, recalling the days when her voice gave delight to far larger circles."

WORKHOUSE INFIRMARIES.—The Hospital says:—"There yet remain workhouse infirmaries where the sick and dying are trusted to the tender mercies of imbecile paupers"; though in most of them the dying pauper is now sure of a certain amount of care and attention. The change, which is designated "a perfect revolution," is attributed as due in a great degree to the labours of the Workhouse Infirmary Nursery Association, of 6, Adam-street, Strand, an association with an income of only about £300 a year. Hampered by want of funds, it has to leave undone much of the good which it is willing and able to do in the direction of workhouse infirmary reform.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Rev. J. H. Keen, for some years senior curate of Christ Church, Spitalfields, has been invited by the Committee of the C.M.S. to join the North Pacific Mission. Mr. Keen has accepted the proposal, and hopes to leave for his destination, Queen Charlotte's Islands, about the end of April.

A presentation was recently made to Rev. J. M. Laycock, who is leaving the the vicarage of Charles, Plymouth, for that of St. John's, Highbury. Mr. Laycock, in responding to the presentation, said he trusted the parish of Charles would hold out the right hand of fellowship to all evangelical Christians of whatever denomination, for he believed, if ever a great struggle should come over its establishment or disestablishment, the true defenders of the Church would be those who were most closely united with their fellow Christians outside the Church.

Archdeacon Farrar drew an attractive picture of the success of Christian missions in his second address on the subject at Westminster Abbey. He indignantly denied the oft-reiterated assertion that missions were a failure. Judging merely by statistics, which failed to take into account indirect results, the progress of Christianity to-day was as rapid as in the early days of the Church, and the time of its most splendid triumphs. He quoted Bishop Lightfoot to show that what we consider "failure" nowadays would be in the third century have been regarded as miraculous success. Speaking of the results, he reminded his hearers that the number of Protestant missions at the present time did not exceed 3660, and they had to deal with 1250 millions of people. He believed that Christianity was making progress at this day quite as rapidly as in its early days, which were referred to as the time of its most splendid triumphs. So rapid has been the progress that, from the latest statistics 26 per cent. of the people of the world profess Christianity. He took the different countries, and showed how success had attended the efforts put forth; how in Sierra Leone, Madagascar, Japan, China, New Zealand, Fiji, and India the truth had been disseminated amongst the inhabitants; and how, once demonstrated to them, it had been gladly accepted.

An East-end clergyman, having resolved to enter the state of matrimony, has chosen as his wife a member of a well-known girls' club in his parish. The bride is very popular among her acquaintances, though in the eyes of the world she may not be in the same social position as the bridegroom; but he probably thought that a helpmeet chosen from among those for whom he loves to labour would have more sympathy with them than one of the "classes." Holding ritualistic views, the clergyman had taken a vow of celibacy, but from this he got relief in due course.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. W. T. Bankhead, of North Shields, has accepted a call to Ibrox United Presbyterian Church, Glasgow, to succeed the late Rev. Dr. Leckie.

Rev. John McNeill on Sunday evening commenced a special effort to reach the non-churchgoing in the vicinity of Regent-square Church. Evangelistic services are being held in the church each evening this week.

BAPTIST.

A revival has taken place at Felinfoel, Llanelly, where Rev. B. Humphreys recently settled as pastor. One hundred persons have been received into fellowship in five months.

Rev. T. J. Malyon, pastor of Vauxhall Church, London, has left for Australia. During his ministry at Vauxhall 500 members had been received into fellowship, and the Sunday-school had almost doubled.

A Baptist Church has been formed at Herne-hill, London, by Mr. Dunn, of the Metropolitan Tabernacle. The services, for the present, are being held at Mayall College, Dulwich-road, under the pastoral charge of Mr. Frederick Carter.

Hope-street Chapel, Birmingham, which had fallen into a low condition, is now in vigorous working under the pastorate of Rev. P. T. Stanford, a coloured minister. The congregations fill the place. Sixty have been received into fellowship since August, of whom thirty-six were baptized by Mr. Stanford.

Rev. Edwin H. Ellis, of Devonshire-square Church, Stoke Newington, has been invited to give up his pastorate and to assist in the Baptist "forward movement." A very largely-attended meeting of his church was held on Monday last, when it was unanimously agreed, that instead of resigning his present charge, the church would surrender him for one Sunday in each month, and for three days in each week, that he might assist in the "forward" work.

Special services for the deepening of spiritual life in professing Christians, and for the conversion of the unsaved, were held at Devonshire-square Chapel, Stoke Newington, from December 29 to January 8. Bible-readings were given in the afternoons, by Rev. G. D. Hooper, of Hendon. The evening meetings were conducted by Revs. F. B. Meyer, A. Budgen, G. Turner, J. Fletcher, and the pastor (Rev. E. H. Ellis). The meetings were concluded by a united communion service.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A [illegible] Church.

Fifty-five new members, chiefly young men and women, have lately been received into the fellowship of Bedford-street Chapel, Stroud (Rev. G. T. [illegible], pastor), largely the result and first-fruits of a mission conducted by Rev. R. Balgarnie at the beginning of November last.

Rev. Walter King, rector of Huish Champflower, occupied the chair at the annual meeting of the Bible-class connected with the Congregational Sunday-school, Somerset (Rev. F. Tavender, pastor). In the course of a sympathetic address, he expressed pleasure at recognising all who belonged to the Church of Christ as his spiritual brethren, whether Episcopalians or not.

METHODIST.

In the course of a defence of the Wesleyan system Sunday afternoon, Rev. H. Price Hughes said that persons had been converted in St. James's Hall since the opening services.

Rev. Joseph Odell's Evangelists' Home at [illegible] makes encouraging progress. The young men are enthusiastic in their work, and are said to have witnessed hundreds of conversions during the last year.

Bishop H. W. Warren and Rev. Dr. C. J. Little, of the Philadelphia Conference, have been appointed by the bishops of the American Methodist Episcopal Church as fraternal messengers to the Irish Methodist and British Wesleyan Conferences of 1890.

[illegible] held a few days [illegible] Metropolitan area. Between twenty and thirty members became members. Meetings are to be held once a month. Questions of a social, literary, or theological nature, which may be exciting public interest, will be discussed.

The work of soul-saving (says The Methodist Times) is progressing satisfactorily in many parts of the Wesleyan Christian denomination. At Tavistock many conversions have taken place during the past two months. At Lee over twenty persons have been added to the Church. At South Tottenham the cause has been passing through a trying ordeal, but there have been about twenty cases of conversion lately. At Portsmouth conversions are taking place every week at the ordinary services.

During 1889, the Wesleyan Methodist body contributed £150,364 to foreign, and £37,490 to home missions, and nearly £110,000 to other objects. In Great Britain the members number 514,750, with 1975 ministers, and in Ireland 25,960 members, and 234 ministers. In [illegible] missions there are 375 ministers and [illegible]

[illegible]

Rev. Alfred Jones, the United Methodist [illegible] a New Year letter, in which he says: "For a long time I have had a growing conviction that, speaking large[illegible] is not a great success in [illegible]. How many of our churches we preached into deep spiritual slumber? Can no better method be found? Would not one good service on the Sunday be better than two? Suppose the service on the Sunday morning was conducted in the ordinary manner and the remainder of the Sunday was devoted to evangelistic services, would not the results in this way be far better?"

FALLOW GROUND.

[illegible] Rev. William Money, [illegible] chaplain at St. Bervan, [illegible] senior minister of Wesley [illegible] [illegible] Rev. [illegible] Wesleyan Methodist Connexion, [illegible] Mr. [illegible] widow of [illegible], and [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Bristol, [illegible]

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

A "temperance hop ale" is said to have been discovered, very like beer, but non-intoxicating.

A reaction against High License and in favour of Prohibition is reported from Massachussetts State.

The editor of the Band of Hope Review offers prizes for the best answers to questions to appear in the Review during 1890.

A number of [illegible] were entertained in London during the holidays, owing to the drunkenness of both the parents.

Rev. Peter Thompson, London Lord's Day Mission received, 10th, for the sake of converted publicans some corners, "to keep the Lord's table clear of intoxicating wine."

MR. JOSEPH CLARKE has closed a [illegible] weeks' mission at [illegible], and is holding a month's at the Edinburgh Castle, [illegible].

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

[illegible] in connection with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas [illegible], Vicar of St. Peter's, Mile End-road, London, E., of [illegible] may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, [illegible], for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our [illegible] members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," [illegible] Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, JAN. 19.—2 Chron. I.

his chapter repeats with very slight alteration e incidents recorded in 1 Kings iii.

(1) Solomon's sacrifice at Gibeon (1-6).—He was oved to this by gratitude for the prosperity God d gave him (1). He called his leading officers unite with him in this service of thanksgiving). The place chosen for the sacrifice was neither e tent in which David had placed the ark Chron. xvi. 1), nor the threshingfloor of Ornan Chron. xxi. 28-30); but the tabernacle at Gibeon -5). He thus put honour upon God's appoint- ent. God's altar sanctified his gift. A thousand rnt offerings (6) were not too many to express s gratitude to God.

(2) His wise request (7-13).—The privilege of king what he would was calculated to prove lomon (7). A man's desires are as perfect a test his character as his actions. His choice of wis- m was prompted by his own sense of insuf- iency, for the great task committed to him , 10). No man has ever been greatly used for od who has not felt his own weakness. The less nscious we are of strength of our own, the more tirely do we rest upon God. "When I am weak, en am I strong." Solomon pleaded for wisdom, st, because God had put him on the throne (8), d next, because of the promise previously given his father (9). God will not fail to give the ace for every work to which He calls us. God anted him wisdom (11, 12) as He does to all who k Him (James i. 5), and added the riches and nour which he had not asked (Matt. vi. 33).

(3) His prosperity (14-17).—In 1 Kings iii. lomon's wise request is followed by that incident hich so clearly proved his possession of the wis- m he had asked. In these verses there is evi- nce of the prosperity which God had also pro- ised. By his trading speculations he amassed eat wealth. His horses and chariots were not much for his own use as for profit (14-16). R.V. note that "linen yarn" (16) is omitted.

MONDAY, JAN. 20.—2 Chron. II.

Solomon gave further proof of his possession of isdom by his determination (1) to build the mple. In this chapter he is preparing for that rk.

(1) His message to Huram (3-10).—The Huram en reigning had formerly shown kindness to avid (3), hence Solomon's request. The message t only asked for workmen to direct the work), and for materials necessary for the building , 9); but was also a piece of witness-bearing for od. He calls Jehovah "my God," thereby knowledging his own affection and reverence for im (4); describes the service which he hoped to nder to Him (4); declares the greatness of God ove all idols (5); so that no house made with nds could be his habitation (6); and expresses s own unworthiness to build a house for his wor- ip (6). The very best that even Solomon could nder was not worthy to be offered to his God. that his people to-day were as careful to nour God before those who know Him not! hatever Huram might think of the God of rael, he could not but see that to Solomon God s everything.

(2) Huram's reply (11-16).—The witness to hovah borne first by David, and now by Solomon, pears to be bearing fruit in Huram. Whether really accepted the true God or not cannot be termined; but his language shows that he had tained considerable knowledge of Him, and was t unwilling to pay Him reverence. Beholding e good works of Solomon, he gave glory to lomon's God (11). With this devout reply, uram also sent him a cunning workman (13), of om we have a fuller description in 1 Kings vii.

(3) Solomon's workmen (2, 17, 18).—Their number s very great. Over 153,000 were strangers (17), erm which, perhaps, included the Gibeonites, l foreigners attracted to the land by the fame of kingdom. In a work so exceeding great there s opportunity for the service of many workers. r Prince also invites us to share with Him in privilege and honour of building the temple of Lord (Zech. vi. 12-15).

TUESDAY, JAN. 21.—2 Chron. III.

The site of the temple was Mount Moriah (1), one summit of a range of hills called generally by the name of Zion. At present it is occupied by the sacred enclosure called the Haram, within which are the mosques of Omar, of El Aksa, and of Kubbet-el-Sakhara. As the site of the sacrifice of Isaac (Gen. xxii. 2), and of the altar where the Lord had answered David by fire (1 Chron. xxi. 18, 26), it was appropriate for the building of the temple.

The dimensions of the temple (3, 4) were given in 1 Kings vi. The height of the porch is added here (4), which would appear to be four times as high as the temple itself. In the interior, "the greater house" (5)—i.e., the Holy Place—was lined with boards, richly carved, and overlaid with gold (5-7). The Most Holy Place was 20 cubits = 30 feet square, and was overlaid with gold to the amount of 600 talents (8), which is estimated to equal about £3,600,000. Even the nails were of gold (9). These "patterns of the heavenly things" must needs be of the very best material. The cherubim (10-13) were of olive wood (1 Kings vi. 23), overlaid with gold; and their wings extended from side to side of the Most Holy Place. These were additional to those on the mercy-seat.

The vail (14) separated between this and the Holy Place. The way into the Holiest of all was not then manifest (Heb. ix. 8); so, though it was a very beautiful vail, it was still a vail—or divider. At the death of Christ this vail was rent, and liberty of access was obtained for us all.

The two pillars (17), Jachin=establishment, and Boaz=strength, were set up before the porch of the temple.

In all these details Solomon obeyed the instructions given to him (3). His own wisdom was not to guide him in matters so important. For God's house only God can give instructions. Our highest wisdom in doing God's work is to allow Him to direct us in every detail.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 22.—2 Chron. IV.

In the court of the temple stood the altar of brass (1). This was much larger than that which was made for the tabernacle (Exod. xxvii. 1). The sacrifice offered here was needful before the temple could be entered for worship. The antitypo of both altar and sacrifice is Christ Himself.

Besides this, was the large molten sea (2-5). The true worshipper needs not only the sacrifice, but the cleansing. The one finds its antitype in the blood which atones, the other in the Word (John xv. 2; Eph. v. 23-27).

The molten sea was for the priests, but ten lavers were also provided in which to wash everything offered for burnt offering (6). The types must all be washed in water, as the Great Antitype submitted in all things to the action of the Word.

Ten candlesticks of gold (7) took the place of the one seven-branched candlestick which had been in the tabernacle (Exod. xxv. 31, 32). And, instead of the one table of shewbread, there were to be ten (8). These, and the golden altar of incense (19), occupied the Holy Place. God's worshippers need food, and light, and incense, to secure the acceptance of their worship (Rev. viii. 3); all these are here provided.

Huram's work for the temple is summarised in vv. 11-18. Of this we had an account in 1 Kings vii.

THURSDAY, JAN. 23.—2 Chron. V.

When all Solomon's work for the temple was completed, the dedicated things (1 Chron. xxii. 14, xxvi. 26) were brought in (1). Then follow two solemn and joyful things:—

(1) The ark brought into the temple (2-10).—It was the same ark and mercy seat that had been in the tabernacle. Concerning that God had said, "There will I meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat" (Exod. xxv. 22). There were many things in which the temple exceeded the tabernacle in glory, but the privilege of meeting with God was the same in the one as in the other. As the symbol of God's presence, it was fitting that it should be introduced with great solemnity. A very great company assembled (2, 3); innumerable sheep and oxen were sacrificed in expression of the people's joy (6); and the priests bore the ark, and deposited it in its place beneath the outspreading wings of the cherubim (7-9). Well might they rejoice and give God praise on such an occasion. Without the ark, the gorgeous temple of Solomon would have been useless.

(2) God taking possession of the temple for Himself (11-14).—This took place when the priests came out of the holy place (11), and when the singers were "as one" in their service of praise to God (13). On this occasion all the priests were employed (11), and with them all the singers, under Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun (12), arrayed in white robes, and with various instruments of music. Then, "the glory of the Lord filled the house" (13, 14), so that "the priests could not stand to minister." This was the highest glory connected with the house. Even the ark was but a symbol; the cloud was a visible token of God's actual presence, in which He testified his acceptance of the temple as his house. Yet note, He came in a cloud. There was mystery even in the revelation. So must there be in every vision of God granted to human eyes. Even the body of Jesus vailed while it manifested the glory of the Father (John i. 14).

FRIDAY, JAN. 24.—2 Chron. VI.

With very little variation this chapter was given in 1 Kings viii.

(1) Solomon blesses the people and God (1-11).—The temple was built for the name of God (10), and for a habitation for Him (2). It was intended, therefore, to be for his glory; hence, the people were blessed in having such a house amongst them. Solomon saw in it a proof of God's faithfulness (4-6). His hand is always fulfilling that which his mouth has spoken. His promises are never greater than his fulfilments. Solomon also recognised the honour put upon him (7-9). The purpose originated with his father, though he was not allowed to execute it. The house was for God, and He chose his own builder.

(2) The consecration prayer (12-42).—This was offered upon a brazen scaffold, where he first stood (12), and afterwards knelt and spread forth his hands (13). Attitude is not everything in prayer; but where the spirit is truly reverent and earnest, the bodily attitude will not be inappropriate. In the prayer itself, note how it recognises the majesty of God (14, 18), and bases upon his faithfulness a prayer for the further fulfilment of his promises (15-16). There is no better way of proving our gratitude for God's faithfulness in the past than by putting it to further test in the future. It recognised that the temple was not intended to "contain" God (18); but only that God would there give ear to the prayers made "in it," and "toward" it (19-21). The hour has now come when no place on earth is specially sacred to the worship of the Father (John iv. 23, 24). The interest of God is earnestly sought in the settlement of disputes by oath (22, 23); in the relief of his people, when defeated in war (26, 27), and in time of famine or pestilence (28-31); on behalf of the stranger (32, 33); for victory in battle (34, 35); and for deliverance in time of captivity (36-39). The prayer concludes with words (41, 42) taken from Ps. cxxxii. 8-10, which regard the temple as God's "resting-place." It was this only in a typical sense. His true dwelling-place is the obedient believer (2 Cor. vi. 16). God "and the ark" are desired. Not the symbol without the reality; nor the reality without the symbol. The first would make the worship of the temple an empty formality. The second would make his worship impossible to sinful men. Note his powerful plea—he was God's anointed (42). With what significance the same plea may be urged by us!

SATURDAY, JAN. 25.—2 Chron. VII.

This chapter records God's twofold answer to Solomon's prayer:—

(1) Publicly by fire from heaven (1-3).—On many previous occasions God had similarly testified to his acceptance of his people (Lev. ix. 24; Jud. vi. 21; 1 Chron. xxi. 26). "Our God is a consuming fire" (Heb. xii. 29). He has Himself provided the sacrifice which the fire consumes. His appearance thus was met with deepest awe on the part of priests (2) and people (3). They worshipped while they praised. Deepest reverence becomes us in the presence of God (Ps. lxxxix. 7). More sacrifices were laid upon the altar for the fire to consume (5-7). God's acceptance of one service should prompt us to serve Him still more. These additional sacrifices were offered with demonstrations of greatest joy. The music and the singing were the expression of the gladness of their heart. Increased service for God always means increase of true joy. So great was the joy that the feast was continued for seven days (8, 9), and was followed by the Feast of Tabernacles. The people carried away their gladness of heart when they returned to their homes (10). The joy we derive from communion with God is to be our strength for life and service at home.

(2) Privately by appearing to Solomon (12-22).—By special communication God testified to his acceptance of the temple as his house (12); pro mised to have regard to his people's prayers (14-16); encouraged Solomon to obedience by gracious promises to him and to his seed (17, 18); and warned him against disobedience by the ruin which would follow (19-22). How well would it have been for Solomon if he had heeded the warning! However privileged a man may be, he never gets beyond the need of watchfulness. In our most exalted religious experiences, we need to hear God's words of faithful warning.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, January 26.

JOY OVER THE CHILD JESUS.—LUKE ii. 8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT: VER. 14.

NOTHING seemed more improbable than that Jesus would be born at Bethlehem. Both Joseph and Mary lived at Nazareth (Luke i. 26), and seemed likely to remain there until after the birth of the Child. But the Emperor Augustus (1), by the issue of his decree, rendered the journey to Bethlehem necessary (3, 4). While there the Saviour was born, and the prophecy concerning the place of Messiah's birth (Micah v. 2) was fulfilled. Note how completely God controls and over-rules the actions of his enemies (Prov. xxi. 1).

The place and circumstances of his birth were exceedingly lowly (6, 7). His being crowded out of the inn was prophetic of the treatment He should afterwards receive. There are still many who have no room for Jesus. Such a birth seemed like condemning his mission to failure; but "the weakness of God is stronger than men." Mary's word (i. 52) was having another fulfilment.

(1) The angel's message and song (8-14).—The message was delivered to shepherds. This is very remarkable, remembering the contempt with which shepherds were regarded by the Jews. One authority taught that "they were not to be admitted as witnesses; and another that succour must not be given to shepherds and heathen."—Godet. Probably they were devout worshippers, who, like Simeon, were waiting for the Messiah. In the choice of such persons to receive the message, God indicated his regard for the poor. The Gospel of Jesus was intended for men of all ranks in society. He comes down to the lowest. One angel appeared first (9), a bright light shining around him. The appearance not only surprised but terrified the shepherds. This is man's invariable method of receiving angelic visitants. Zacharias and Mary had manifested similar fear (i. 12, 30). The angel first sought to allay their fears. They had trembled at that which was calculated to bring to them and to all nations great joy (10). There are many still who fear the Gospel, because they do not understand it. The message itself declares the time and place of Messiah's birth, and the work He should accomplish is suggested by the name Saviour (11). This, in the angels' view, was "good tidings of great joy." It should be still more so in our esteem. The sign (12) was remarkable, yet suited to the shepherds. It was one they could easily verify, and would not make them afraid. Yet how improbable it seemed! After the announcement, the heavenly host appeared (13) and sang their song of praise (14). That they were there was not remarkable, for are they not ever around us still? (Ps. xxxiv. 7; Heb. i. 14). The wonderful thing was that the shepherds should see and hear them. What glorious sights and sounds await us when we have better eyes and ears than these! Their joy reproves the indifference of men. No such Gospel is proclaimed for fallen angels; yet their interest in man is so deep and real that they share in the joy of his salvations (Luke xv. 10). The theme of their song was God's glory; man's peace and prosperity; and, as the source of these two, God's goodwill towards men. Let us rejoice that God thus favourably regards men, and that in the Gospel He can accomplish their salvation, while advancing his own glory.

(2) The shepherd's faith and testimony (15-20).—The angels, and the glory, did not tarry (15), but Jesus did. Notice how faith acts: It speaks of the thing as already "come to pass," and says, "Let us go and see" it. They believed, therefore, they would go and see (Ps. xxvii. 13). It acts promptly "now" (15), "with haste" (16). Let our scholars act with similar urgency. Be in haste about this matter (Ps. cxix. 60; Luke xix. 6). Is it not the lack of this that keeps many people still unsaved? The word of the angel was verified (16). We ever find God true to his promises when we trust them. They became the first witnesses to Jesus (17). Strange that God should choose for this work men whom others despised. Note how differently the testimony was received by many with ignorant wonder (18). They were interested; but the message required not mere astonishment, but faith. It is possible now to show great interest in the Gospel story, and yet stop short of saving faith. Mary treated the message differently (19). It entered her heart; was kept there, and quietly pondered. She sought to understand God's purpose through these strange facts. Her joy did not express itself like that of the shepherds (20), but it was more deep and intelligent. It is significant that the joy of the shepherds followed their testimony (17). It was occasioned by what they had "heard and seen" (20), in which the angel's message had been fulfilled. Imitate them by believing, and confessing the truth of the message.

LESSONS.

(1) How surely God fulfils his word.—This appears in the place of the Saviour's birth; and in the fact that the sign given by the angel (12) was fulfilled. God is equally faithful to all his word—whether of threatening or of promise.

(2) What condescension the Saviour has displayed.—By such a birth He has proved Himself the friend of the poor, and of little children. Every scholar ought gladly to receive such a Saviour.

(3) What joy the Gospel brings.—Even angels, who are but witnesses of our salvation, rejoice and praise God for it. Do not reject it, as though it as though it meant sorrow to you.

(4) How the Gospel message should be received.—Not with mere astonishment (18), but with faith. Yet not a dead faith, but one which acts (15); which does not delay (15, 16); which testifies to others (17); and which, therefore, fills the heart with joy and the mouth with praise.

Appeals.

Convalescent Home for Children, Brighton.—During the earlier months of the year children can be received for longer periods than is possible in the pressure of summer requirements. Applications should be addressed to Miss ELLIOTT, hon. sec., 66, Mildmay Park, London, N.; or to the matron, Mrs. JENKINS, 7, College-place, Brighton.

A Police Orphanage and Seaside Home is being started at 51, Clarendon-villas, West Brighton. It is also proposed to set aside accommodation for a few policemen from the Metropolitan force needing rest and change of air, to whom it would prove a great boon. Those in charge would be most glad of any furniture, books, pictures, &c., and also of any promises of food, vegetables, groceries, &c. Subscriptions for rent, &c., gratefully received by Miss C. GURNEY, hon. sec., Christian Police Association, 1A, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C.; or by General STILEMAN, treasurer, 21, Lewes-terrace, Brighton.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—The Committee earnestly appeal for New Year's gifts from those who are interested in the training of orphan and destitute boys. Eminent men of all classes have testified to the thoroughness and efficiency of the institution, the benefits of which have been received by upwards of 1600 boys. Two of the Homes are now closed, and the Committee need an additional income of £2000 to reopen these, and carry on the work efficiently. Contributions will be gratefully received by the secretary, Mr. BENJAMIN CLARKE, 1, Bank-buildings, Ludgate-circus.

Sermon-lane Mission.—The varied departments of this growing work embrace well-attended Gospel services, Sunday afternoon and evening schools, with nearly one thousand children in attendance, mothers' meeting, young women's welcome, maternal and Dorcas societies, sewing class, total abstinence society, Band of Hope, penny bank, &c. Additional efforts have greatly overtaxed the resources of the Mission, and the Committee have to face the heavy expense connected with their winter's operations with a present deficit of upwards of one hundred pounds. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. W. WEST, superintendent, 54, Liverpool-road, Islington.

The Pure Literature Society exists for the express purpose of sweetening the waters wherewith the reading thirst of the millions is to be slaked. Over £65,000 worth of innocent, useful, and instructive books have been issued at half the cost price to 7922 libraries. During the Paris Exhibition 100,000 French periodicals were distributed in a way calculated to reach all the provinces of France. In a circular appeal, Sir Thomas Chambers, Q.C., Recorder of the City of London, says that £1000 is now required to carry on the work. He will gladly receive contributions, cheques and orders being made payable to Mr. RICHARD TURNER, secretary, Pure Literature Society.

Letters to the Editor

DR. BARNARDO AND ROMAN CATHOLICS.

SIR,—I do not propose again this week to m any great demand upon your space. I only de to say—

(1) Perhaps I had no right to jump to the clusion I was "the priest." I knew it was poss I might not be; I thought it very likely I might

(2) I hope Dr. Barnardo will get permissio publish that letter entire over "the priest's" na Perhaps the whole of the letter may give ano complexion to it. In the meanwhile, "the pries statement, as it appears in the portion quote incorrect; my statement is correct. No dispe tion is granted by the Holy See for a mixed m riage, until the Protestant party, as well as Catholic, has given a written promise that children of the marriage shall be brought up tholic. This promise, usually on a printed fo is forwarded to the Bishop and laid up for pu inspection, if need arise. There is no secrec the matter. I am not writing anonymously; I my name to it; and I repeat, there can there be no such "secret compact."

I do not wish to branch out into a controve and so am content, as far as I am concerned, to le the matter here.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

ARCHIBALD EDWARD DOUGLA

January 9.

[Lord Archibald Douglas's letter shows, wit candour somewhat unusual in a Romish priest, "the Holy See" is the greatest and most system proselytising institution in existence. In the face of we hope we shall hear no more from Romish advoc of charges of proselytism against Dr. Barnardo.—E

AN "OBJECTION" TO JEWISH MISSIO

DEAR SIR,—May I venture, with your per sion, to offer a few remarks upon a letter wh appeared in THE CHRISTIAN of January 3 l and the lengthy reply thereto in last week's iss I will not stop to weigh the "objection." To mind it appears utterly unscriptural, not to us stronger term, for any man to suppose that by action of his he can either frustrate or "as God" in carrying out his own eternal purposes.

In my opinion both the "objection" and "reply" are based upon a fatal historical blun and one of almost universal adoption, leading the utmost confusion, viz., the use of the te Israel and Jew, as if they were identical, and the same meaning, when in fact they are enti different, consequently such objections may made, and such replies given ad infinitum, yet the real question remain untouched. W student of God's Word does not know that term or title Jew, is a comparatively modern only, dating from the return from Babylon of small band who represented the kingdom Judah, carried away captive seventy years viously? Who does not know that the kingd of Israel had ceased to exist 130 years bef Judah was even carried captive? Who does know that the nation of Israel has never yet b restored? And if every Jew under heaven w converted to Christianity to-morrow, it would affect the question of the preservation of Israe a nation one iota. The issues involved in this fused treatment of things so vastly different, too manifold to admit of being touched in letter; I would, therefore, content myself w asking every thoughtful reader to ponder the lowing:—That although every Jew is an Israe by birth, or racially, yet the reverse is not t every Israelite is not a Jew (e.g., every Yorksh man is an Englishman, but is every Englishm therefore a Yorkshireman?).

The grand and glorious promises of God thro Moses and the older prophets were not given the Jews.

The many glorious promises of restoration re-uniting, e.g., Ezek. xxxvii. 22, &c., clearly distinctly recognise the distinction, and for fulfilment of which many of us are daily wait and praying, on account of the collateral bless also anticipated.—Yours truly, J. W. TA

481, Mile End-road, E.

A SERIES OF LECTURES on "Christian and Socialism" will be delivered in the Lamb Baths, to be followed by discussions, in which working classes are invited to take part. The will be given on the evening of Tuesday, Feb.

CRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

OR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed der carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in e large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where rmitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are w seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is pported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, pt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the oprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not rish Scripture Readers' Society."

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

PRESIDENT—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

RE for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught Trades as Tailors, Shoemakers, Carpenters, Engineers, Bakers, Steam Printers, and Gardeners; and en provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

e for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruc- n in Lithography, Telegraphy, Photography, Chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS.—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in e knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1,000 have eady been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be ankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary.

Offices—BANK BUILDINGS, LUDGATE CIRCUS, E.C. BENJAMIN CLARKE.

Bankers—MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

FRIENDS OF

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES

Visiting in the South of France, may forward CHRISTMAS GIFTS or NEW YEAR'S OFFERINGS towards the support of the 3,250 Homeless and Destitute Boys and Girls now resident in the Homes, to

CHEYNE BRADY, Esq.,
Les Syrphes, Cannes;

or, to the Office of the Homes, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

CENTRAL ASSOCIATION FOR STOPPING THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS ON SUNDAY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above will (D.V.) be held in the Mayor's Parlour, Town Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday, Jan. 28; the Mayor to take the chair at 2.30.

All who wish to have the Sundays of England protected from the Liquor Traffic are cordially invited.

Those who kindly desire to contribute to the funds, or to see the publications, or to have a meeting in their own neighbourhood in support of the object of the above Association, are requested to write to the Rev. J. W. CAUSER, Secretary, 14, Brown Street, Manchester.

Just Published.

OLD MARGARET:

OR,

WITH STRIKING PORTRAIT.

A SAINT AT LAST.

BY

Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.

In Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

Contents.

I.
"OUT OF THE MIRY CLAY."
II.
"HE SET MY FEET UPON A ROCK."
III.
"HE ESTABLISHED MY GOINGS."
IV.
"HE PUT A NEW SONG IN MY MOUTH."
V.
"EVEN PRAISE UNTO OUR GOD."

EXTRACT.

"'Once, when she had been washing her floor,' writes a lady who was much with her afterwards, 'and was very much fatigued (as she suffered from heart disease), she sat down wearied and breathless. A knock was heard at the door; and, on opening it, a lady entered, who told her she was going to send her a carpet to make her house comfortable. Margaret put up her hand and thanked the Lord. She then said: "Well, I did not just like to ask it of Him; but the Lord saw I needed it. I am just one of the Lord's petted children; the Lord has given me such a bonny room: I wonder what heaven will be like!'"

"Such instances of content and of faith were not uncommon in a life that seemed to others one of constant privation. Sitting in her place on the street, with the orange basket, while the rain poured down, a lady stopped to say:

"'How cold you must be to-day, Margaret, sitting there!'"

"'Feel my hand, Miss, she said; 'it is as warm as it can be!"

"'But the rain is so heavy!' was the reply.

"'Yes, dear; but over the clouds the sun is shining, and the sky just as bright as ever. Praise the Lord!' . . . . . .

"She recognized an answer to prayer in almost everything! Sometimes it was finding a sixpence on the high road, when there was not a crust of bread in the house; sometimes it was a friend calling, and leaving the exact sum to pay the rent (which was due that evening, and must be paid), though the friend had no knowledge of the need. 'One left her room refreshed and rested by communion with her who communed so much with God. She spoke to God on all subjects audibly; and sometimes before she opened her door, one expected to find a visitor with her. It was Margaret speaking to God!'"

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE

HERALD OF MERCY ANNUAL VOLUME.

OVER SIXTY ILLUSTRATIONS.

Attractively Bound in Illustrated Covers,

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

SUITABLE FOR A PRESENT.

"This volume is full of everything that can gratify, instruct, and elevate the human heart. It is remarkably cheap. The papers are short, pithy, pointed, and interesting. . . . Would suit admirably for a gift book."
Irish Congregational Magazine.

"It is beautifully Illustrated, strikingly written, and full of the Gospel."
Sword and Trowel.

"Its sound Gospel teachings, apt illustrations, and beautiful pictures are bright and charming. This volume is quite equal to preceding ones, and those who are desirous of circulating sound Christian literature, cannot do better than help to circulate this shilling book."—Baptist Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

An Attractive Quarto Volume of Music and Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and JAMES McGRANAHAN.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in TONIC SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions when all the mists have rolled away."—Baptist Messenger.

WORDS ONLY—LARGE TYPE.
Price Sixpence, in Tinted Covers.
Price Ninepence, in Limp Cloth.
Price One Shilling, in Cloth Bds., gilt edges.

WORDS ONLY.
Price One Penny, Tinted Covers.
Price Twopence, in Cloth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

MESSRS. MIDDLETON and HOGBEN are prepared to conduct evangelistic missions in town or country.—Apply to Mr. William Baker, Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C.—Bible-readings on Daniel, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, Tues. in Jan., 6 to 7 p.m. Missionary conference, Thurs., Feb. 6, at 6.30. subject—"The Foreign Field and its Call to Young Men: (1) The Claims; (2) the Responsibility; (3) the Qualifications."

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Jan. 19, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. E. Mathews, from the Evangelisation Society. Meetings for reading of Scripture, Sun., 3 p.m.; Wed., 8.15 p.m. For prayer, Sun., 7.45 a.m.; Wed., Fri., and Sat., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45. p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30, public. Gospel meetings for men nightly, at 8. Bible-reading, Sat. at 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., at 8. Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2. Addresses by Rev. Fuller Gooch.

Y.W.C.A., 316, REGENT-STREET, W.—Bible-readings by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Subject—"Epistle to the Colossians," on Thurs., Jan. 16 to Feb. 13, at 11.30 a.m.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Piccadilly: Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. Dr Lunn. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Jan. 19, 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. William S. Fleck (from Ayrshire). Tues., Jan. 21, 7.30 p.m., British and Foreign Bible Society. Chairman, Rev. Prebendary Culthrop. Speakers—Rev. J. Alfred Robinson, Mr. Graham Wilmot Brooke, and others.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, Park-square East (near Portland-road Station), N.W.—Sun., services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Major Headley each Sun. in Jan., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

TOLMERS-SQUARE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, Hampstead-road, N.W.—Sun., Jan. 19. Annual Temperance Sermons, by Rev. H. Elmyn Thomas, pastor; morn., 11, even., 7.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Regent-square, W.C.—Rev. John McNeill, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 7.30. p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Jan. 17, social meeting for Bible study. Tea at 6. Address by Miss Mason, at 7 p.m. Subject—"God, the Sanctifier." Sundays at 3.30 p.m.; Bible-reading by Miss Mason.

MR. C. RUSSELL HURDITCH will preach at Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, each Sunday in Jan., at 7 p.m.

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY will conduct the services at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W., during Jan., Sun., at 11 and 7, and at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, Wed., at 8.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services every Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

FARNLEY ROOMS, Queen's-road, Chelsea, S.W.—Holiness meetings conducted by Rev. F. D. Sanford, Jan. 19—26; Suns., at 3 and 7 p.m.; week-days (Sat. ex.), at 3.30 and 8 p.m.

SHAFTESBURY INSTITUTE, Harrow-street, Lisson-grove, N.W.—Second anniversary meeting, Fri., Jan. 17; 4.30 p.m., Dr. Donald Fraser, Mr. Geo. Holland, Lieut. Knox, R.N.; and a short account of the work will be given.

MALDEN HALL, Kentish Town.—Anniversary meetings, Thurs., Jan. 23, 4 and 7 p.m. Tea at 6. Speakers—Messrs. T. A. Denny, J. E. Mathieson, Rev. F. B. Meyer, Dr. Popham, and Charles Inglis.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, 11 and 6.30, Mr. Charles Inglis.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—Farewell meeting, Tues., Jan. 21, 3 p.m.. Exeter Hall, Strand, to bid farewell to Messrs. C. F. Harford-Battersby, G. L. Pilkington, J. D. M. Cotter, Eric Lewis, and G. K. Baskerville, on the eve of their departure as missionaries to Africa.

TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 85, Southampton-row, W.C.—Meetings for conversion and spiritual power, Mon., Tues., Wed., and Thurs. evenings during Jan., at 7.

VICTORIA INSTITUTE, 1A, Adelphi-terrace, Strand.—Lecture, Mon., Jan. 20, on "Land Tenure in Ancient Times," by Rev. James Neil. Tickets of Captain Petrie, secretary of the Institute.

DUBLIN CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life' Ancient Concert Rooms, Dublin, Jan. 20—25. Revs. Evan H. Hopkins, Dr. Elder Cumming, John Sloan, J. T. Butlin, J. Gelson Gregson, Colonel Oldham, Mr. Robert Wilson, and others are expected to take part.

DUNDEE.—Convention for the deepening of spiritual life, Kinnaird Hall, Feb. 26—28.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JANUARY 13, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

English Egyptian Mission founded by the late Miss Mary Whately.—Will donors kindly note, that Miss Jourdan, in consequence of numerous inquiries, requests us to state she is still Hon. Secretary? Communications respecting the work should be addressed to her at 21, Westbourne Park-villas, London, W., as Miss E. J. Whatley is in Spain.

	£	s.	d.
China Inland Mission—G.A.A. 4s. 11d.; A.G.S. 5s.; T.W. 2s. 6d.; C.J.H.B. £1; M., The Hut-on-Clyde, £3; F.W. 5s; J. & J.B. £1; H.F.P. 15s	6	12	5
British & Foreign Bible Society—A.G.S.	0	2	6
English Egyptian Mission, Cairo (Miss Whately)—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Nestorian Mission (Deacon Abraham)—C.E.M...	1	0	0
Moravian Missions (London Association)—M., The Hut-on-Clyde...	2	0	0
Waldensian Church Missions—M., The Hut-on-Clyde...	2	0	0
McAll Mission—M., The Hut-on-Clyde, £3; A Friend, co. Fermanagh, £2	5	0	0
North Africa Mission—F.W.	0	10	0
Church Missionary Society—F.W.	0	5	0
Society Relief Persecuted Jews—F.W. £1; T.C.; £1 1s	2	1	0
Mr. Rabinowitz—A Friend	2	0	0
Paris Gospel Mission (Professor Delaunay)—Mrs. A.G.R. 10s; R.M. £3	3	10	0
Malaga Mission to Aborigines (Mr. D. Matthews)—Three Well-wishers	1	0	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—W.N.	0	10	0
Miss. Deep Sea Fishermen—E.F.C. 5s; A.G.S. 5s	0	10	0
Field Lane Refuges, &c.—E.F.C. 5s; J.H. 10s; Alde, 5s	1	0	0
Mr. Pegan's Boys' Homes—E.H.C. 2s 6d; Mrs. F. 5s; C.B.M. £5; J.H.M. 5s; C.I.C. 5s; Lester, 3s; E.J.M. 3s	6	3	6
Mildmay Winter Relief Fund—E.H.C. 2s 6d; (Mission), M., The Hut-on-Clyde, £5	5	2	6
Dr. Barnardo's Hms.—E.H.C. 2s 6d; R.B.P. 10s; H.C.T. £1; J.H. 10s; S.R.S. 5s; E.H.M. 10s; C.B.M. £5; J.C.N. £2; Chr. £1; C.J.H.B. £1; Lester, 3s; C.E.M. 5s; M., The Hut-on-Clyde, £4; Q.O.C. 10s; P.J.P. £5; T.A.G. £2; E.H. 5s; E.J.M. 8s; E. & F.D. £5; (Emigration), H.A.Y. £25	52	8	6
Dr. Barnardo's Law Costs—H.C.T. £1; A.C. 2s	1	2	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—E.H.C. 2s 6d; H.C.T. £1; J.H. 10s; C.E.M. 5s; T.C. £1 1s; T.A.G. £1 10s; E.J.M. 3s	4	11	6
Latymer-road Mission—Mrs. F.	0	[illegible]	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—H.C.T. £1; Q.O.C. 10s; T.C. £1; E.J.M. 3s	2	13	0
London City Mission—H.C.T. £1; S.R.S. 5s; C.L.M.T. £1	2	5	0
Anti-Infidel Tracts—H.C.T.	1	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—J.H. 10s; A.G.S. 2s 6d; Lester, 3s; E. & F.D. £1	1	15	6
Thames Church Mission—J.H...	0	15	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—K.T.P. £1 3s; E.J.M. 3s; F.H.B. 2s	1	8	0
E. London Training Institute—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Scripture Readers' Soc., Ireland—A.G.S.	0	2	6
Miss Daniell's Soldiers' Home—A.G.S...	0	3	0
Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's Orphanage—A.G.S.	0	3	6
Tower Hamlets Misn.—A.G.S. 3s; "Inasmuch," 10	0	13	0
Mr. Quarrier's Orphans' Home—A.G.S. 4s; M., The Hut-on-Clyde, £4...	4	4	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—A.G.S. 4s; C.L.M.T. £1	1	4	0
Miss Robinson's Work, Portsmouth—Mrs. G.P.	0	10	0
Marylebone Medical Mission—Mrs. G.P.	0	10	0
Mr. E. Wright's Work—Mrs. G.P...	0	10	0
London Bible & Domestic Mission—J.H.M. ...	0	5	0
Mildmay Mission (Jews)—Manchester, 10s; K. 2s; J. & J.B. £1	1	12	0
Cow Cross Mission (New Hall)—M.S.	2	0	0
Free Meals (Poor Children's Dinners, &c.)—Harrow Forfeit Bag, 3s; F.H.B. 3s	0	6	0
West Central Misn. (Rev. H. P. Hughes)—T.W.	0	2	6
Dr. Stephenson's Children's Home—T.W.	0	2	6
Mrs. Meredith's Misn., &c.—C.B. 1s; Lester, 3s; T.C. £1 1s; T.A.G. £1 10s	2	15	0
Home of Industry—Chy. £1; E.J.M. 3s	1	3	0
Miss Meredith Brown's Work—Lester	0	3	0
George Yard Mission—Lester, 3s; T.C. £1 1s...	1	4	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—Lester, 3s; H.A.Y. £25	25	3
Grat. Circ. THE CHRISTIAN—D.W.L. 10d: J.I. 1s 6d; E.J.M. 1s 2d; J.P. 2s	0	5
Miss Mittendorff's Orphans' Home—C.E.M. ...	0	5
Theatrical Mission—C.E.M.	0	5
Lon. Evan. Soc.—M., The Hut-on-Clyde	2	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—R.E.M. 2s 6d; E.W. £1	1	2
Salvation Army—P.J.P.	5	0
Distressed Irish Ladies—T.C....	1	0
Railway Mission—E.R.	1	1
National Vigilance Association—H.A.Y.	10	0
Gospel Purity Association—H.A.Y.	10	0
Robin Dinners—E.J.M.	0	3
Evangelistic Mission—E.J.M....	0	3
London Scripture Society, &c.—E.J.M....	0	3
Penny Dinners Poor Children—P.H.B.	0	3
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work, Peory—P.H.B.	0	2
	£162	9

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Mr. Pegan's Home—Mrs. W. £1.
National Children's Home, E. (New Building Fund)—
Lady G. [illegible] Mr. T. A. [illegible], Threadneedle-street, Lombard-street, E.C.
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—D.V. 4s.
Gray's Yard Ragged Church and Schools—Eva, 10s.
Home Teaching Society for the Blind, Blackfriars, E.C.—Anon. 5s.

Notices.

REV. H. W. WEBB-PEPLOE (as requested) begs to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from one seeking guidance, and to say that he has acted thereupon.

MRS. ARKELL, St. Ebbe's Rectory, Oxford, will thankfully receive old Christmas cards, scraps, &c. (prepaid) for several charitable purposes.

BOXES OF PRESSED LEAVES will be sent gratis by Miss F. M. Cowherd, Stony Dale, Grange-over-Sands, to any who may be glad to place them on cards, &c.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—E.S.I. W.S. J.A.S. M.M. E.L.F. G.A. E.M.J. B.C. J.K. D.C. J.N.B. W.P.S. R.D. E.H.S. J.R. S. S.J.S. R.N.C. C.C. J.N.M. A.B. R.H.W. M.H.S. A.W.I. W.H. E.W.M. W.M. M.G.B. E.G. J.F. A.E.D. G.W. A.J.B. T.T. G.S. T.J.C. C.H.H.W. J.T. F.M.C. W.H. A.H.S. G.S. J.S.H. W.C.B. J.M.B. G.A.F.K. R.A.S. M.L. A.J. H.N.S. E.T. T.N. M.H. E.S. D.M.L. S.R.G. M.B.H. C.T. A.D. G.S. C.J.F. J.V.S. J.C.C. B.D. A.N. R.J. F.C.S. H.D. D.W. A.R. W.K. M.J. A.P. A.C. H.A.M. D.M. E.R.H. C.W.D. R.V.C.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. H. Jordan, New-road, Ham, Surrey; T. Glover, Grange House, Eastbourne; Mrs. Stringer, 24, Wandsworth-bridge-road, Wandsworth, S.W.; J. Rickard, 30, Cressy-road, Bucklan Portsmouth; A. J. Neale, 38, Leathwaite-road, Battersea-rise, S.W.; W. H. Jarvis, 45, Montpelier-villa Cheltenham; W. Wright, 22, Union-street, Maid[illegible] J. Rimmer, 74, Bentinck-street, Birkenhead; J. Poat Sherbourne-road, Farnborough, Hants.; P. Lee, 1 Richmond-gardens, Shepherd's Bush, W.; Miss Smar St. Margaret's Cottage Home, Eynsford, near Dar ford, Kent; K. Hills, care of Messrs. Pearse & Ive Thame, Oxon.; A. W[illegible], 13, G[illegible]t, Brighto Miss Sirase, 8, Ho[illegible] Br[illegible].

[[illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and tracts the persons whose names are inserted here, it is mo desirable that all books and papers received should carefully read before being given away.]

SEAMEN'S CHRISTIAN FRIEND SOCIETY.

Last week a festival was held at this Society Chapel in Ratcliff-highway, specially for Britis [illegible] belonging to coasting vessels. After te an evangelistic meeting was held under the pre [illegible] of Mr. John Bell, of the Orient Line, a the chapel was crowded with officers and me from the various coasting vessels in port. Bri earnest addresses were given by the chairman, a by Rev. G. J. Hill, Mr. Robert Paton, and Mi Messer. Many of the men also took part in th meeting, and bore encouraging testimony to th value of the Society's work, and to the person good received therefrom. At the close a numb signed the temperance pledge, and many receive spiritual blessing.

RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—The committe find their work is greatly increasing. That the might be rightly guided during the year, and fo thanksgiving, a service of praise and prayer wa held at Exeter Hall last week. Lord Kinnair had promised to preside, but an attack of influen confines him at present to his chamber. Ther was a large and representative meeting of th 3500 voluntary teachers who carry on the work o the 260 schools of the Metropolis. Mr. Jame Robertson, of the Aldenham Schools, and Re Hugh Macintosh, of the Presbyterian Church Brockley, gave addresses on the features and im portance of Christian effort among the childre Mr. W. Peck Smith, of New York, related inte esting experiences of similar work carried on New York city.

HOUSTONS

ESTD 1780 TRADE MARK

PRIZE MEDAL EDINBURGH 1886

A'OO HARRIS TWEEDS

For Suits, Ladies' and Gent.'s Jackets and Ulsters, and Boys' Clothing.

FASHIONABLE, MORE DURABLE, COMFORTABLE, and MUCH CHEAPER

than the Homespuns made in the Western Isles. Write for patterns. Orders carriage paid. Any length cut. Manufactured only by

R. HOUSTON & SONS, GREENOCK

(Warehouse: West Blackhall St.; Mills: Rock Bank.)

The Trade Supplied.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.

EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.

Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.

A. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.

... to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

RATIONAL CORSETS.

Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
" " 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
" 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitaric.
" 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,

263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

A GUARANTEE!!

EACH BOTTLE OF

Bouillon Fleet.

bears a label:

"Guaranteed to be made from pure Beef only"

WHICH WILL MAKE

Bouillon Fleet Ltd

Liable to prosecution under the Adulteration Act, if proved to be untrue.

VAN HOUTEN'S

PURE SOLUBLE COCOA

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.

"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME FROM THE AUTHOR

ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-Second Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASE of PHTHISIS at BISHOP-STORTFORD.

[I have had many cases in the neighbourhood of this town. One of my first was that of a young lady who had been given up as past recovery. I went down especially to see her twice. It was a specially interesting case, which should have been published years ago. The case I give now is one of recent date.]

Mr. R. DEEKS, recently living at Nursery-road, New Town, Bishop-Stortford, was of highly consumptive family. Three years before writing me, he had bronchitis, which left him weak. For twelve months he had had cold and cough, and all the symptoms of consumption set in.

A friend of the patient, writing me at the time respecting him, reported his cough and breathing to be most distressing. His medical man had told him "there was no hope for him; his lungs were gone, and as his father, brother, and sister had died of consumption at his age, he thought he would do the same."

His breathing and cough were soon relieved. Till then no one expected him to get over it. I afterwards advised him by letter, and he came to see me at Coombe Lodge. He took the medicine regularly for a time, then on and off, and in consequence thereof, I believe, the current of health ebbed and flowed. But he ultimately got well.

I heard in August from a friend of his: "Mr. Deeks has now quite recovered, the doctor pronounces him quite well, and his lungs are healed, and he is able to work. He has now been appointed again to the railway service at Cambridge. He would like his case published." He now resides at 7, Charles-street, Argyle-street, Mill-road, Cambridge.

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Best Tooth Powder. Whitens the Teeth, Prevents Decay, Sweetens the Breath.

Ask anywhere for Rowland's Odonto.

Wm. Polson's CORN FLOUR.

The Original and First Manufactured in Great Britain.
UNRIVALLED FOOD OF HEALTH, for Children and Invalids. THE BEST KNOWN MATERIAL for PUDDINGS, CUSTARDS, CAKES, BLANCMANGE, and a variety of delicious Preparations for the Table.
Every Packet is Warranted Pure, and its genuine qualities are certified by the highest medical authorities in the kingdom.

USED IN THE QUEEN'S HOUSEHOLD FOR MANY YEARS PAST.

Wm. Polson & Co., Paisley and London.

SHETLAND GOODS

FOR LADIES, GENTLEMEN & CHILDREN.

SHAWLS — Warm Wrap Shawls, and Fine Lace Shawls in all sizes.

UNDERCLOTHING — Combinations, Vests, Drawers, Spencers, Sleeping Jackets, Stockings, Gloves, Mits, socks.

VEILS, TIES, SCARFS.

ALL GOODS OF THE FINEST QUALITY AND KNITTED BY THE WOMEN OF THE SHETLAND ISLANDS

SPECIAL NOVELTIES FOR BAZAARS.

JOHN WHITE AND CO.,
THE SHETLAND WAREHOUSE, FREDERICK-STREET, EDINBURGH.

CAMPBELL'S PATENT MELODEONS.

THE BEST CHRISTMAS PRESENT. (GRAND BROAD REED.) THE BEST NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

MUSIC IN THE HOUSE

ENORMOUS DEMAND. SELLING IN THOUSANDS.

THE "GEM" MELODEON .. .. .. 6s. 6d.
THE "MINIATURE" MELODEON .. 10s. 0d.
THE "PARAGON" MELODEON .. 14s. 0d.
THE "FAVOURITE" MELODEON .. 16s. 6d.

Sent Carriage Paid to any Address in Great Britain and Ireland.

Also, the Largest Assortment in the Kingdom of VIOLINS, GUITARS, and BANJOS, FLUTES, CLARIONETS, and BAND INSTRUMENTS, CORNETS, and FLUGELHORNS, FLUTINAS, CORNETS, and BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS, DRUMS, ORGAN ACCORDIANS, MUSICAL BOXES, and all kinds of Musical Instruments.

Grand New Model.

British Patent 4,492.
German Patent 31,110.

MAKES CHEERFUL HAPPY HOMES.

With Organ and Celestial Tone, and Charming Bell Accompaniments. No Home should be without one. The Solemn Psalm, the Soul-stirring Hymn, the Cheerful Song and [illegible] will be played on these charming instruments [illegible] by the player.

[illegible] received the unprecedented number of Over a Hundred Thousand Testimonials from the Press Notices. Read the following Editorial Notices of "Campbell's Patent Melodeon." — No instrument [illegible] has the merit to combine the sweetness of the Harmonium, in celestial or [illegible] with the [illegible] of the Cabinet Organ, and [illegible] from the [illegible] of its tone for [illegible] and [illegible].

Practical Violin Makers and Repairers. The Violin Taught on the Premises by a Prize Medallist. We are the only Practical Brass Instrument Makers and Repairers in Scotland. The Cornet and Trombone taught.
All lovers of [illegible] should send for our New Illustrated Price List for Musical Season, 1890, [illegible] post free, sent on receipt of 1d. stamp. [illegible] paid by

CAMPBELL and CO., 116, TRONGATE, GLASGOW.

RICH, LOVELY DRESSES

SILK SEALS

BEAUTIFULLY SOFT & ELEGANT

Write for & Patterns

IN EVERY DIVERSITY OF FASHIONABLE SHADES

PLUSHES

Cashmeres, All-wools, Mohairs, Serges, and other Dress Materials. Any length cut. Carriage paid in U.K.

P. & W. JONES, Manufacturers, BRADFORD.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide), Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES, CURTAINS,
BLINDS,
DRAPERIES,
SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.
Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

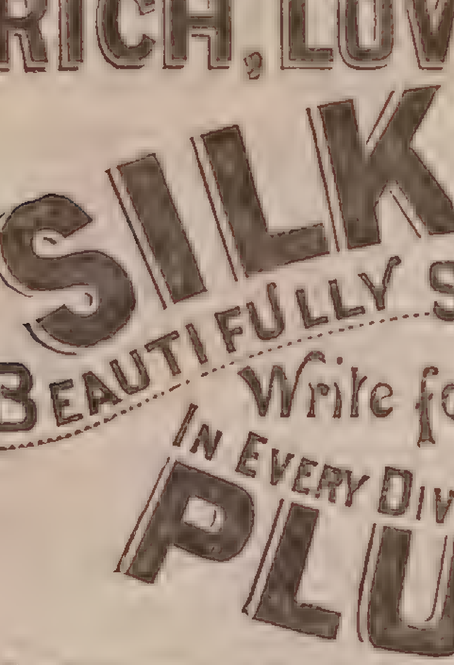
THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD.



The wonder and joy of the tribe of Cake-makers,
The wonder and boast of the army of Bakers,
The wonder of Epicures—"Quite a new treat!"
The wonder of Invalids—making them eat;
The wonder of Doctors; the wonder of Nurses;
The wonder of Housekeepers, sparing their purses;
For saving Time, Money, Health, Temper, and Power,
The wonder of wonders is—

"SNOWDRIFT" CAKE FLOUR.

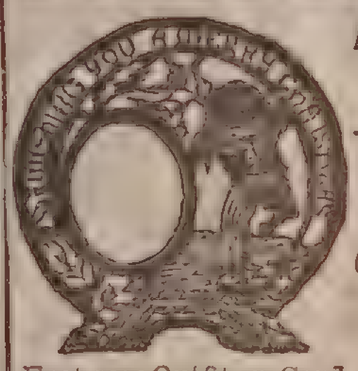
A DELICIOUS COMPOUND, combining every requisite for making Rich Madeira and Sponge Cakes, Raspberry Sandwiches, &c., without trouble, and at little expense.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

Highest Award "Universal Cookery and Food Exhibition," for "Snowdrift" Custard and Blanc-mange Powders.

Manufacturer—JOHN BURY, MANCHESTER.

FRETWORK, CARVING,



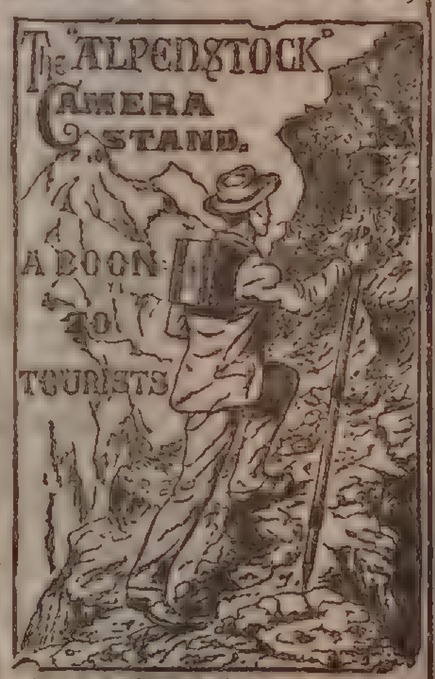
AND AMATEUR WOOD WORKERS' TOOLS OF ALL KINDS.

Highest Award—Gold Medal for Tools and Patterns.

Fret-saw Outfit on Card, with Instructions, free... 2/6
No. 2, with Wood 3/6
Superior ditto 6/0
Set of 12 best Carving Tools, with Boxwood Handles, ready for use ... ... price, free 10/0

If you are competing for exhibition, try our designs, for which we receive testimonials daily.

☞ Complete Catalogue, 64 pages, quarto, containing the best variety of designs published, free, for 6 stamps.



HARGER BROS., SETTLE PRICE 10/6 & 12/6.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

APPEAL TO CHRISTENDOM.

By DR. A. T. PIERSON.

Page 11.

EVANGELICAL CHURCHMEN

Sermon by Rev. H. C. G. MOULE.

Page 25.

PRINCIPAL

Christian Unity .....
More Missionaries for Africa .....
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 13
Some Scottish Missions.—XIII. 14
Rescue Work in Bonn 15
The Gospel for the World 16
Young Men and Women 17
Soldiers in Belfast 18
Prisons of the World 18

CONTENTS.

*Jack and Tommy: Incident of Forest Gate Fire.*19
Portrait and Sketch of Mons. COILLARD 21
Dr. STEPHENSON'S Annual Festival 23
Conversion of a Spanish Priest 23
[illegible]ssion Work in China 24
[illegible] in Britain 25
Death of Mr. JOHN HAMBLETON 26
Mr. ROBERT BROWNING'S Poetry 28
Correspondence on Jewish Missions 28

[Mons. Coillard.]

No. 1043.] FRIDAY, JAN 24, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

FOR TERMS OF ADVERTISEMENTS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS, SEE PAGE 2.

Just Published.

OLD MARGARET:

OR,

A SAINT AT LAST.

WITH STRIKING PORTRAIT.

BY

Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.

In Tinted Covers, 6d.: Cloth Boards, 1s.

Contents.

I.
"OUT OF THE MIRY CLAY."
II.
"HE SET MY FEET UPON A ROCK."
III.
"HE ESTABLISHED MY GOINGS."
IV.
"HE PUT A NEW SONG IN MY MOUTH."
V.
"EVEN PRAISE UNTO OUR GOD."

EXTRACT.

"'Once, when she had been washing her floor,' writes a lady who was much with her afterwards, 'and was very much fatigued (as she suffered from heart disease), she sat down wearied and breathless. A knock was heard at the door; and, on opening it, a lady entered, who told her she was going to send her a carpet to make her house comfortable. Margaret put up her hand and thanked the Lord. She then said: "Well, I did not just like to ask it of Him; but the Lord saw I needed it. I am just one of the Lord's petted children; the Lord has given me such a bonny room: I wonder what heaven will be like!'"

"Such instances of content and of faith were not uncommon in a life that seemed to others one of constant privation. Sitting in her place on the street, with the orange basket, while the rain poured down, a lady stopped to say:

"'How cold you must be to-day, Margaret, sitting there!'"

"'Feel my hand, Miss, she said; 'it is as warm as it can be!"

"'But the rain is so heavy!' was the reply.

"'Yes, dear; but over the clouds the sun is shining, and the sky just as bright as ever. Praise the Lord!' . . . . . .

"She recognized an answer to prayer in almost everything! Sometimes it was finding a sixpence on the high road, when there was not a crust of bread in the house; sometimes it was a friend calling, and leaving the exact sum to pay the rent (which was due that evening, and must be paid), though the friend had no knowledge of the need. 'One left her room refreshed and rested by communion with her who communed so much with God. She spoke to God on all subjects audibly; and sometimes before she opened her door, one expected to find a visitor with her. It was Margaret speaking to God!'"

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Just Published.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

WITH MEZZOTYPE PORTRAIT.

A DEVOTED LIFE.

BY

Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON,

Author of "Henry Moorhouse"; "Duncan Matheson"; "The Christian Hero"; "Revival and Revival Work."

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

PRESENTATION EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"In its subject and in execution this biography is of no common order. We have found the study of so sweet and noble a life, a joy to our heart and a stimulus to our zeal. . . . The sketch is a vade mecum for any who seek to be saviours of the sin-sick, and helpers of the poor."—Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine, Dec., 1889.

"This volume, which is both written and printed in good style, and well bound, will be a charm to many Christian families. It is worthy of a large circulation."
Primitive Methodist, December 19, 1889.

"The story of the life of Miss Macpherson, who devoted herself to the care and conversion of the most degraded classes. . . . Her character, as here delineated, is a very lovable one. There are many stories of her fearless intercourse with the diseased and the degraded."—Christian World, December 12, 1889.

"Truly this devoted woman did marvellous things in seeking to bring about the Kingdom of God. Her holy boldness was something wonderful, but one must acknowledge that by God's blessing her success was something wonderful too. The history of such a consecrated life should be carefully and prayerfully read and considered."—The Freeman, December 20, 1889.

"This is one of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing. . . Christian workers will find in this biography a most helpful, stimulating, and instructive book. It is the history of a real woman, who in the course of her life spoke about the tremendous business of the soul to upwards of twenty thousand persons, one by one. . . . We have great pleasure in recommending this interesting work."
Irish Congregational Magazine, December, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thanks a Parcel of Tracts.

Rations of Food to hungry Children. Ragged Schools. Classes for Rough Street Boys. Toy Classes for Neglected little Ones. Shelter for Girls and Boys. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Various Missionary Agencies at work amongst Young Men and Lads. Important Agencies at work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Bible Class for Men. Common Lodging House Services. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Gospel Temperance Meetings. Room to Room Visitation. Evangelistic Services. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Fresh Air Homes.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 68, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

A STRUGGLING CHURCH (Congregational) needs help. £1,500 required for reseating chapel and building new school. Friends attending Conventions at Keswick specially appealed to. Donations thankfully received by the pastor, Rev. W. DAVIS, Nantwich, Cheshire, who will gladly furnish full particulars.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 10? years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board Schools, soup kitchen, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 22 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.—For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widow other needy people with Food, Coals, and Cloth Bankers: L. & Comny.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

CONTRIBUTIONS of money, clothing, coal and bread tickets, are earnestly solicited by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, in aid of the more destitute patients and their families. The smallest gifts will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in Clerkenwell.—600 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.—President, Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird; Treasurer, Samuel Hope Morley, Esq.—The Committee earnestly appeal to the friends of religious education for help in the furtherance of the Sunday School cause, in this and other countries. The principles of the Sunday School Union are strictly evangelical, and its constitution thoroughly undenominational. Donations and subscriptions will be thankfully received by Mr. JOHN EDWARD TRESIDDER, Hon. Financial Secretary, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

BRITISH & FOREIGN EVANGELICAL TRACT SOCIETY AND PRAYER UNION.

☞ ALL TRACTS CLEAR AND POINTED.

English, Welsh, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Swedish, Finnish, Danish (& Norwegian), and Dutch.

If you distribute tracts the Committee invite you to apply as follows:—

1.—State how many tracts are desired, for your personal distribution only, for one month. The tracts are selected with a view to the simplicity and value of the message they bear—God's great plan of salvation through a crucified and risen Saviour—and care is taken to secure an ever-changing variety and assortment.

2.—Enclose (if able) a freewill offering towards the expenses. This is necessary, but let it be as "unto the Lord." If you are able, let your abundance be a supply for another's lack. In any case, if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to what a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

3.—Address your communication to the Superintendent, SAMUEL E. ROBERTS, 48, Malvern-road, Kilburn, N.W., and enclose Postal Order, crossed ALLIANCE BANK, KILBURN BRANCH. ANNUAL REPORT on application.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian"

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
20 Words	3	0
30 Words	3	9
[illegible]	[illegible]

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION, Whitecross-street, needs funds. 120 patients [illegible] weekly. Gospel services held. [illegible] received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, &c., Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & [illegible].

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years. Board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.

Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, James-street, Buckingham Gate. The services next Sunday will be conducted morning and evening by the Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D., of Philadelphia. Service commences, morning 11, evening 7.

[illegible].

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced January 21.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON.—High School system. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHERY and Mrs. ALBERT SMITH.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GEBBS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy, Cambridge, and other Local Exams. Moderate terms.

Miss L. VON SCHENCK, Fulneck, near Leeds.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, GLASTONBURY.—High-class Ladies' School. Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Pupils prepared for University exams. Kindergarten for juniors. Individual influence and attention. Excellent references.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL, Leyton House, Warwick-road.—Miss APLIN'S pupils re-assembled on Jan. 20. Preparation for any public examination desired. A substantial education, united spiritual and hygienic care.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE. Thorough preparation for commercial or professional life.—WALTER J. KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

AN OFFICER desires to recommend a Christian Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters at Southsea. Thorough teaching. Vacancies at Christmas. Terms very moderate.—Inspector-General GORDON, South Esk, Victoria-road, Southsea.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen. The Misses BROWN and GOOD, late of Chatsworth Lodge, Chiswick, have removed to Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath, where they receive eighteen resident Pupils. First-class education, with careful Christian training and home comforts. Children from India received, and lovingly cared for. The house is large and detached, near to the Heath and Greenwich Park.—References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Matheson, Esq. (Mildmay), and Parents.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Chatham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

SUPERIOR HOME SCHOOL for Girls, from five guineas per term. Successful preparation for all exams. Little boys also received, with separate supervision, by Mr. E. J. H. Churcher, M.R.C.P., & F.S.Sc. London. Highest references and testimonials. Health resort.

PRINCIPAL, Broomfield Villa, Henfield, Sussex.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to PRINCIPAL. Term commenced January [illegible].

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and [illegible] Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Dukinfield, Cheshire.—A sound education, with home comforts and religious training. Healthy locality.—Rev. R. HUTTON, Dukinfield, Cheshire.

BATH, Lime Bank, Wells-road.—Thorough teaching, with careful home training, for Girls. Household arrangements exceptionally comfortable. High ground, pure fresh air, regular exercise, good and abundant diet. Six Boarders received. References to ministers and others, parents of Pupils.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

CLARENDON COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR LADIES, Clifton, Bristol.—Mrs. and the Misses MAYNARD offer a Christian home, with careful training. Special preparation classes for University and music examinations. All candidates obtained first and second-class honour certificates from the National Society of Professional Musicians and Trinity College. Lectures given on hygiene, ambulance, cookery. Special lessons in needlework. References: Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., London; Revs. R. Glover, and U. R. Thomas, Clifton.

SWITZERLAND.—Two educated [illegible] at the entrance of La [illegible] German, Italian, drawing. A comfortable family life, conscientious [illegible]. References to pasteurs.—MADAMOISELLES, Marguis Villa, Vert Site, route de Marseille, Lausanne, Suisse.

EDUCATION IN GERMANY for Young Ladies. Direct line Frankfort-Heidelberg [illegible] Every advantage for music, &c. Large garden. Terms moderate. References, Mrs. Goddard, 347, Camden-road, London; Rev. W. Monod, 95, Rue de Rennes, Paris; Dr. Zöckler, D.D., Greifswald, Prussia; and other friends and German referees. [illegible] ACKELL, The Kellerei, Michelbach (Hesse-Nassau).

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND.—Mrs. [illegible] Normal Pupil of Ecole Supérieure, Geneva, receives Young Ladies to study. Great advantages, especially in languages and music.

Maison du Crédit Lyonnais 2me.

SEAFORD COLLEGE, SUSSEX.

A High-class modern School at moderate fees. Close to the sea. Excellent climate and individual attention. Next term begins January 27.

Apply HEAD MASTER.

EDUCATION.—Seaside, adjoining Southwold. Vicar desires to receive two boys as companions to nephews, 7 and 10 years old, for tuition together. Comfortable home. £25 per term; brothers, £20 each.

Rev. T. HARRY R. OAKES, Southwold, Suffolk.

ROCKSTONE HOUSE, Southampton.—High-class Education for young Ladies. Resident English, French, and German governesses. Visiting professors. Refined, comfortable home. Terms from 60 guineas. Governess-Pupil required.—Principal, Miss JOHNSON, assisted by Fräulein BECKER.

A LADY, Minister's Daughter, desires the charge of two little Girls (six to ten). Backward or delicate children would receive special care.—Miss DAVEY, Havelock Villa, Dover-road, Northfleet, Kent. References exchanged.

WEST VIEW, ASKRIGG, WENSLEYDALE.—Preparatory Boarding School for Girls, conducted by M. M. THOMPSON. Every home comfort. Great care given to delicate children. Light and airy rooms. Moorland air. Terms [illegible].

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Hurstpierpoint (near Brighton), Sussex. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Visiting masters. Preparation for public schools. Twenty guineas. Indian children received.—LADY PRINCIPAL.

WORTHING.—HOME SCHOOL for Girls. Christian training. Limited number. Special care for delicate girls. Visiting professors. References to parents and clergy. Terms moderate.—Misses WISE and COUPE, Bescot, Christchurch-road.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester. Sloyd taught. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss Koller; or to Rev. J. D. Libby. For Boys' School, to Rev. W. J. Buttle.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION at St. [illegible] Budeaux Vicarage, South Devon. Modern languages, trained upon the Continent. Tutors are Oxford graduates in honours. Younger boys taken by London undergraduate. Individual attention to each pupil. [illegible] terms 19 guineas [illegible] term. The Budeaux was [illegible] the London City [illegible] ences—Lord [illegible] deacon Wilkinson [illegible] per, M.A., Chambers [illegible].

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for [illegible] life. Many matriculate at the [illegible]. During the past fifteen years [illegible] tained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors, and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught gratuitously. The Word of God is made the school book of a special moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.

Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

NEW COLLEGE,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

High-class education for Gentlemen's Sons. Resident [illegible] and foreign masters. Excellent [illegible] workshops, cricket, [illegible] home comforts, moderate [illegible] honours list, &c., address

Rev. G. H. JONES, F.A.S.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, St. Leonards-on-Sea. — Boys received, from 6 to 18 year of age. Three separate departments—Juniors, under the care of ladies; Seniors, under a staff of [illegible] resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for commerce, public schools, or universities. Delicate boys, and boys from the colonies, receive special care. A carpenter's shop and a chemical laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Easter term commences Wednesday, January 22.—For prospectus apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

EDUCATION IN HIGHGATE.—Rev. G. D. BARTLETT, M.A., receives Ten Boarded Pupils. Superior home. Individual attention. Thorough grounding, and careful Christian training. Terms, from 15 guineas per term. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

[illegible] for the Sons of Gentlemen.

[illegible] WESTON, Esq., M.A.
[illegible], Dublin; G. E. W. CRANAGE, Esq., [illegible]

[illegible]

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY.—

[illegible]

HIGH-CLASS PREPARATORY

[illegible]CHOOL [illegible]conded by clergyman and [illegible] training, combined with [illegible] Preparation for all [illegible]

[illegible]

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—The

[illegible]ed with [illegible]NG SCHOOL. [illegible] of the [illegible] ted to his care in [illegible] power of Gospel [illegible] among the boys.

[illegible]nsly situated upon [illegible]H GROUND NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA.— South Coast, a short run [illegible] especial facilities for out-[illegible]

[illegible] Papers of Examinations passed [illegible] for entrance on applica-[illegible]l of the Vice-Chancellors have [illegible]ir Wards as Pupils to the School.

Dr THORN, Paddington, London.

MANITOBA.—A Gentleman, experienced in farming, now living in one of the best English settlements in Manitoba, wishes to meet with one or two Pupils. Good practical teaching and happy Christian home. Terms 50 guineas per annum. Best references.—Address first,

Miss DOLTON, 30, Lee-road, Blackheath, London.

MARGATE.—Alresford House

School, Queen's-avenue.—High Class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for University Local and Public School Examinations. Comforts of a Christian home. Special care taken of Indian and delicate children.—For prospectus, address, The PRINCIPAL.

STANLEY HOUSE

CLIFTONVILLE MARGATE.

[illegible]odern education with decided Chris-[illegible] Deli[illegible]ward boys receive [illegible]es, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr.

ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 4[illegible]ineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal [illegible] and a healthy, happy [illegible]ad, Brighton.—Referees: [illegible] W. Poole Bassett, [illegible] Church Vicarage, W[illegible]; [illegible]; [illegible]; [illegible]; [illegible]; [illegible] Mansion, S.E.

PROTESTANT PASTOR, South of

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

ASSISTANT MATRON wanted in small Home for Girls in the East-end of London. A young Woman, who is strong, willing, and cheerful. Capable dressmaker and needlewoman indispensable. Must be Churchwoman.
Miss M., 49, Angell-road, Brixton.

MATRON.—Wanted, an active Christian working Matron, to take charge of the household and work of a Girls' Institute, and to train the few girls living there for service.
Bankhall Institute, Liverpool.

RESPONSIBLE, ACTIVE CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted in small Industrial School. Able to do and teach laundry work, plain cooking and housework. One who has had some experience in training girls preferred. Wages £20.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Sydenham House, Waterlooville, Hants.

THE LONDON FEMALE PENITENTIARY and Guardian Society require an experienced Laundress as Laundry Superintendent, and an Assistant Matron for the wash-house.—Apply to The SECRETARY, 191, High-street, Stoke Newington, N.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted for two little girls, aged 6 and 3. Nonconformist preferred.—Apply to Mrs. BAILHACHE, 1, Thyra-grove, N. Finchley, N.

SECOND LAUNDRY MATRON wanted, for Girls' Industrial Home, Fareham. Churchwoman, abstainer. Not under 23. Wages £18.—Apply, sending references.
Miss GITTENS, Fareham, Hants.

NURSE.—Can a Lady recommend (to a Lady) conscientious Nurse. Healthy; total abstainer; Church of England; for three children, youngest in arms. Wages £16.
R., Stewart's Library, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

AS NURSE to young baby. Can any Lady recommend a clean, active, trustworthy Christian Woman. Wanted on February 10.
Mrs. J. H., 7, Drayton-terrace, South Kensington.

ASSISTANT NURSE wanted, trained not necessary.—Apply to MATRON, Lock Hospital, Harrow-road, W., any day before 12.

NURSE OR MOTHER'S HELP.—A Christian, for five children, youngest 2 years. Good needlewoman. One accustomed to children. Mrs. W., Cranbrook, Oakleigh-park, Whetstone, N.

STEADY TRUSTWORTHY WOMAN, wanted, fit for the charge of five tiny children. Christian principle. Country home. Also Under-Nurse.
Mrs. HOMER, Tolpuddle, Puddletown, Dorset.

GOOD UNDER-NURSE required by 8th February. Age about 20 or 22.—Apply by letter first, to Mrs. CARRIE, 13, Highbury-hill, London, N.

USEFUL HELP wanted. Must thoroughly understand plain cooking: early riser. Also Mother's Help for two children. Good needlewoman.—21, Claremont-road, Cricklewood, N.W.

NURSE.—Can any Lady recommend a nice, clean, active Girl, for three children, aged 9, 6, and 2. A good needlewoman, abstainer, and thoroughly trustworthy.
Mrs. DEACON, Pownall-gardens, Hounslow.

THOROUGHLY TRUSTWORTHY NURSE wanted (not over 25) for two children, youngest nearly two years. Character indispensable.—Apply, stating wages, Mrs. J. BARBER, 19, Victoria-road, Broomhall-park, Sheffield.

NURSE WANTED, from country preferred. About 25. Experienced with infants. Second nurse kept.
NURSERY, Whittell's Library, Highbury-park, N.

NURSE.—Wanted a thoroughly competent Nurse to four children, able to take baby from the month. Good needlewoman. Assistance given. Good personal character. No beer.
Mrs. S., 14, Mowbray-road, Upper Norwood.

FOR TWO GIRLS, between 6 and 7, Swiss Bonne, about 30. Active, good tempered, strong, good needlewoman. Earnest Christian most important, accustomed to charge of children.
Mrs. ALBERT WILSON, Leytonstone.

ATTENDANT wanted for invalid elderly Lady. Able to lift her, and to read aloud. Needlewoman. Trustworthy. Abstainer. Willing to do her own rooms.
X., 21, Mount Park-road, Ealing, Middlesex.

NURSES, COOKS, Parlourmaids, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Good Generals wanted. All servants of good character requiring situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situations.—Miss MAULDEN, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted, age 18. Good needlewoman. Two only in family. Health good. Y.W.C.A. member and Christian preferred.
Mrs. STEWART, Altoft, Ventnor, Isle of Wight.

A TRUSTWORTHY PERSON wanted, to assist Mother with an invalid little boy. Also a good General Servant.
Mrs. GREEN, Hilldene, Luton.

THOROUGH HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID.—Good personal character indispensable. No beer. First week in February.
Mrs. S., 14, Mowbray-road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

COOK WANTED, a respectable person. Three in family. Apply between 9 and 12, and after 6.—Mrs. PHILLIPS, 19, Highbury-hill, N.

ATTENDANT required for an aged Lady, not bed-ridden. To sleep in her room. Christian and abstainer. Strong, cheerful. State wages, age, experience, denomination. References.
P., Southborough, Tunbridge Wells.

A RESPECTABLE WOMAN wanted as plain Cook; also House-Parlourmaid. Abstainers, healthy, trustworthy, obliging, well recommended. Both required February 13. State age, wages, and full particulars, to Mrs. PERKS, The Friary, Winchester.

A GIRL wanted at once, about 22, as Nurse to young children (single-handed, except occasionally, when help would be given). Must be fond of and accustomed to children. A consistent Christian would be greatly valued. Kind, comfortable home.—Mrs. A., c/o Mrs. Webley, 139, Lewisham High-road, S.E.

TO LADIES. — A Clergyman in Somersetshire, widower with family, whose sister resides with him, will be glad if any Lady will recommend him a Christian Housemaid. Early riser. One who would be kind to children. Tidy and methodical in her ways. Churchwoman; communicant preferred. — Mrs. GIBSON, c/o Miss Gurney, Caufield House, Gipsy-hill.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for a business house. Must be strong, clean, and willing to work. Age about 20. Family washing put out. Boy cleans knives, windows, and boots. Wages £12.
KENSIT, Bookseller, 99, East-road, City-road.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted in a Christian family by February 18. Age over 20. Early riser, abstainer. Must have one year's good character.
M. C., Park Cottage, Sydenham, London, S.E.

CHRISTIAN GENERAL SERVANT wanted, at once. Abstainer, early riser, strong and active. Part washing at home. Three in family. State age and wages required.—Mrs. OLDHAM, Crawley House, Venner-road, Sydenham.

RESPECTABLE GENERAL SERVANT wanted, with knowledge of cooking. Also young Girl as Housemaid. Comfortable Christian home.—11, Wolseley-road, Crouch End.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Will any Lady recommend good General Servant, who would value quiet Christian home. Must have good character, be clean, steady, and trustworthy. Also Housemaid, to assist with the children.
A. B., 52, Breakspears-road, St. John's, S.E.

AS GENERAL SERVANT in family of two. No cooking. Can anyone recommend neat, healthy, willing Girl, about 16. An orphan would find good home.
Mrs. A., 9, Preston-road, Brighton.

AS GENERAL SERVANT. — Can any Lady recommend respectable Christian Woman. Early riser, clean, trustworthy, and obliging. Not much cooking.—Mrs. K., Waters, Bookseller, 97, Westbourne-grove, W.

SERVANTS WANTED.—Miss HOOPER has good-class families waiting for Cooks, wages £16 to £25; Housemaids, £14 to £20. Over fifty wanted this week.—9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

RESPECTABLE YOUNG PERSON, about 19, wanted as General Servant in small Christian family. Must be strong, good-tempered, and fond of children. Plain cooking required. Dissenter—52, Dartmouth-park-road, N.W.

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND a thoroughly trustworthy, respectable Servant for Clergyman's family of two. Age about 20. A Christian would be valued.
Mrs. W. E. PETERS, Bexley, Kent.

INDUSTRIOUS YOUNG COUNTRY GIRL wanted. Good character. Two kept. Religious privileges. Also General Servant, age 17 to 19, to two clergyman's daughters at Balham (one kept).—Vicarage, 1, Surrey-square, London, S.E.

GIRLS. — Two strong, active Christian Girls wanted for the country, as Cook, and House-Parlourmaid, age about 20 to 22. Under-Housemaid and Kitchenmaid might suit — Write stating wages, to Mrs. CALEY, Cranwell House, Rusthall, Tunbridge Wells.

CHRISTIAN HOME FOR ORPHAN or one of large family.—Young Girl wanted, between 15 and 19, not older, for Lady to train as her own personal attendant. Must write a nice hand, and be really good needlewoman. Well recommended.—G., [illegible], Brighton.

SERVANTS SEEKING SITUATIONS.—Miss LOVELEY offers comfortable Home to respectable Servants wanting such. Lodging, 3s. and 3s. 6d. per week. Terms for meals—Breakfast, 4d.; dinner, 6d.; tea, 3d.; supper, bread and butter or cheese, 2d.—32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, S.W. Established 1881.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.—Miss HOOPER introduces Ladies to Governesses, Companions, Housekeepers, Surgical and Medical Nurses. Also superior Domestic Servants (Male and Female). Hours 10 till 5.

HOUSEMAID.—Wanted by Mrs. WILBRAHAM TAYLOR, a thorough Housemaid. Help is given.—Apply by letter to Hadley Hurst, Barnet.

GOOD HOUSEMAID wanted, age 25 to 30. Strong and active. Abstainer. A Christian desired. Good wages to a thorough trustworthy person.
Mrs. BOARDMAN, 41, The Green, Stratford.

STRONG COUNTRY GIRL wanted, by Rector's Sister, for small Ladies' School. Housework only. No cooking, knives, nor boots. Only girls in country need apply.
EASTGATE, 4, Hillmartin-road, London, N.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Early riser, strong, active, Churchwoman and abstainer, who can undertake cooking, washing, and housework for six in family. State wages required, and age; none under 28 need apply.
M., 4, Glebe-road, Bedford.

PLAIN COOK wanted, abstainer. Wages £20. Housemaid and page kept. Four or five in family.—17, Leyland-road, Lee, S.E.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, at Putney. Trustworthy, reliable, good character. Between 30 and 40. Two in family. Little housework. Wages £22. No beer.
MATER, 7, Hilldrop-road, Camden-road.

GOOD PLAIN COOK or General Servant wanted, in Evangelical clergyman's family, in Sussex. Quiet seaside country place. Housemaid kept. £15. Good character indispensable.—B., West Thorney Rectory, Emsworth.

CLEVER COOKS can add to their list of dishes the preparation of choice dainties for the Dinner and Supper Table, by consulting the pages of a little book entitled "Pastry and Sweets," given to all Cooks sending their addresses to ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham. Every Lady and Housekeeper in the land should have "Pastry and Sweets" handy for reference. There is nothing to pay, and the book will be sent by return of post, free to any address.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted in a small family. Must be an early riser. No children, no washing.
Mrs. R., 20, Beacon-hill, Camden-road, N.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.
First-class Private. Under new [illegible]. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing-room, bath-room. Largely patronized by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to
Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly [illegible] breakfast or tea, from [illegible]. tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 52, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Ootacamund, St. Peter's-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 35s. per week.
Miss SEARL, Eversley, Bournemouth.

BRIGHTON. — Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency.
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

HASTINGS. — Home of Rest for Christian workers and others. Clergymen and ministers will find this a desirable home. Central, lovely position. Near sea and rail. Terms moderate. — PROPRIETRESS, Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

A COMFORTABLE and, if desired, permanent Home offered to married couple and others. Attendance and cooking good. Locality healthy. Bed-room fires, &c. Terms moderate.
Mrs. BEVERLEY, Stratford St. Mary, Suffolk.

WINTER HOME.—A Lady highly recommends the house of a Homœopathic Physician at St. Leonards as a superior Home for visitors or invalids requiring extra care.—M. D., 69, Church-road, Warrior-square, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

A HOUSE TO LET, suitable for a small family. In perfect condition. Healthily situated, near town. Rent very moderate.
Mrs. A. COX, 623, High-road, Chiswick.

INTEMPERANCE, OR NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Private Home for a limited number in a delightful winter and spring locality, where the above has been long and successfully treated with or without medicine. Christian influence, [illegible] and home comforts. Highest references. — M. D., c/o Messrs. Perry, 7 St. Nicholas Croft, Bristol.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Branksome Temperance Hotel and Boarding House and Private Apartments. Under new management. Central. A home for Christians away from home. Terms moderate.—G. B. WILLIS, Proprietor.

INTEMPERANCE.
Buxton House, Earl's Colne, Essex.
PRIVATE HOME FOR SIX LADIES.
[illegible] years' experience. Very satisfactory references. Inspection by appointment. From 2 and 3 guineas weekly. Medical attendance, J. Taylor, M.R.C.S., Lond.
Address, Miss PUDNEY.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Vacancies for a few Boarders (or private apartments if preferred). Several south rooms. Near town and sea. Very moderate terms.
Miss LEIGH, Leightonhurst, St. John's Wood-road.

HARROGATE BEECH WOOD PRIVATE HOTEL.
For Terms apply to Miss C. LORD.
The clear, bracing air of Harrogate strongly recommends it as a Summer and Winter
HEALTH RESORT.
Visitors will find in Beech Wood a warm and well ventilated house, with home comforts and liberal table.

FOLKESTONE.—BOARD AND LODGING for Christian workers at the London City Missionaries' Seaside Home, 1, Earl's-avenue, from January 1 to April 30. Terms—women, 15s. a week. men, 17s. 6d. For forms of application apply to the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and [illegible]

WORTHING HOME OF REST for [illegible]

BOURNEMOUTH. — Grosvenor, [illegible]

YOUNG WOMEN'S HOME.—Happy [illegible]

BLACKHEATH.—A refined Christian Home in a family [illegible]. Gravel soil. Healthy [illegible] around.—S. M., 30, [illegible]

HOME OF REST, "The Hermit- [illegible] "Hermitage" this Home is opened for Ladies [illegible] During [illegible] Early Breakfast [illegible] Union at one [illegible] favourably situated [illegible] under the [illegible] admission to be addressed, 56, Old Bailey, E.C.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE. — Two [illegible] wanted to share comfortable home with three young Ladies who desire companionship. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
TRUE, 71, [illegible], Stroud Green.

REFINED, COMFORTABLE HOME. [illegible] Main [illegible]. Bus [illegible] Very [illegible], Terms one guinea [illegible] room, 1s.—Apply [illegible], 23, Lower Terrace, Southampton.

COMFORTABLE HOME offered to [illegible] two sisters, by Widow Lady. Detached house in Surrey, 12 miles from London; fine bracing air, close to station and church.
H. E. M., Mays, 152, Piccadilly.

VERY COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME for Lady, with opportunities for Christian [illegible]. Near [illegible] Railway, North.
B., Housekeeper, 186, Aldersgate-street.

BOURNEMOUTH.—A Lady receives [illegible] Home comforts. Good position [illegible] sheltered, with sunny aspect. Terms [illegible]. References.
[illegible] Bough Wood, Cambridge-road, Bournemouth.

Y.W.C.A.—Home-like Board and [illegible] from 2s. 6d. Board per meal. Private [illegible] Christian Lady 5s. Opportunities of Christian work.
479, Harrow-road, Queen's-park, W.

BLACKHEATH.—The Widow of a [illegible] offers a comfortable home to Ladies, or to children attending school daily, or to others needing motherly care. Highest references.
E. T., 9, Bennett-park.

BOURNEMOUTH.—High-class Boarding House, beautifully and conveniently situated. Aspect due south, commands charming sea and land views. Well-warmed bath and [illegible]-rooms.—Ben Wyvis, West Cliff.

EASTBOURNE.—A Christian Lady [illegible] Upperton, would like another to share it with her.—S. S., House of Rest, Burlington-place, Eastbourne.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE offered to Lady or Gentleman in private family. No children. Good house, best part of Bromley, Kent.—For terms, apply Z., Mr. Tredgold, Masons-hill, Bromley, Kent.

TO LET.—A comfortable furnished house, in London, close to Hyde-park, W., to be [illegible] by the month or year.—V. C., Mar[illegible], 7, Queen-street, Edinburgh.

CLIFTON.—Board and Residence in a private Christian family. Large rooms. Sheltered situation, south aspect. [illegible] Dowle, Clifton-wood, and Lower Redcliff-street.—M., Mr. Padfield, Regent-street, Clifton.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Ten unfurnished rooms in Lady's house on advantageous terms, to Christian [illegible] and willing to see to the whole housekeeping.—Q., Mrs. Marsom, Mildmay House, Bournemouth.

VERY COMFORTABLE [illegible] Christian Home. Permanency only. With every comfort, as one of the family, for middle-aged or elderly Lady or Gentleman. Farm residence, [illegible] road, Greenwich, London.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after [illegible].—EVANGELIST, Christian, 47, W. Romans v. 8.

DRUSE SCHOOLS, SCHWIFAT, LEBANON.—[illegible] Missionary Work can be secured. Opportunities to study Arabic on moderate terms. One private lesson each day, besides joining the classes in the [illegible] Miss STUBBS, 118, Newington Green-road, N.

TWO IRON MISSION ROOMS (new) for sale. Will accommodate 150 and 200 persons. Floored, lined, and varnished.—Price, R. C. HARRIS, [illegible] Ebel Road, London, E.C.

TO GET HOLD OF PEOPLE NOW, there is nothing like good Dissolving Views. Exhibitions [illegible] and slides on sale or hire.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London.

£6 MONTHLY added to income by selling our celebrated Teas in Packets, French Coffee in Tins, and Cocoa.—Write for particulars to OLIVER, OLIVER & Co., 328, Southgate-road, London.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.

☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

FANCY WORK.—DORINDA'S BOOK. Needlework for Ladies for Pleasure and Profit, contains description of all new Art Work. Directions for lovely things in Knitting and Crochet. Useful articles and wearable things. Saleable Bazaar articles. How to Dispose of Work, and list of Work Societies. Third Edition, 194 pages. Price 1s. 2d. post free.—Ringrose, Malvern Link.

OWING TO REMOVAL from Bristol, the Advertiser wishes to find a co-worker, a Gentleman of private means with considerable preaching ability. A splendid Mission work on Baptist principles. Large congregation. Hall seats nearly 600. Bible-classes and school in full operation. Work is self-supporting.—Details of PASTOR, c/o Mack, Park-street, Bristol.

FOR SALE.—Cottage Piano by Cramer. Full compass, good condition, little used, £12. Really good value.—GUNNER, 10, Queen's-road, Notting-hill, London, W.

FURNISHING.—A suburban business in the above to be disposed of, in a market thoroughfare close to railway station. A genuine bargain.—Apply by letter, FURNITURE, 6, Rose-villas, Hornsey Rise-road, N.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING ASSOCIATION furnishes mission-rooms, Institutes, private houses, &c., with every requisite, harmoniums, pianos, &c., direct from the wholesale manufacturers on the Hire-Purchase System at ordinary cash prices. No fees or formalities. Large discounts for cash.—H. ABBOTT, Manager, 35, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

ADOPTION.—Will some kind-hearted Lady Adopt a lovely Baby Boy, orphan. Parents were refined, talented, handsome, and healthy. Or recommend suitable home or institute. H., 26, Western Morning News Office, Plymouth.

INFANTS' FIRST SHIRTS.—Beautifully fine cambric, hand-made, 1s.; six, 5s. Large Elephant toy, partly made, 1s. Orders earnestly asked for, by M. M., 27, Margaret-street, Cavendish-square, London.

A HOME FROM HOME

Bristol Residential Turkish Baths

For the Prevention of, or the Cure of, or to restore from the Effects of,

INFLUENZA.

The treatment carried out at the Bristol Residential Turkish Baths is unequalled. Charges moderate.—Prospectus from MANAGER, Turkish Baths, College-green, Bristol. Resident Physician, Dr. SPOOR.

Vide Article in "Christian World," by CHRISTOPHER CRAYON, Dec. 5, 1889.

THE SOUTH DEVON HEALTH RESORT

BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest station.)

[illegible] The late Right Hon. Lord Monk Temple says in his testimonial, that it "has all the charm and comfort of a gentleman's country home."

Turkish and other Baths, beautiful private Grounds, Lawn-Tennis Courts.

Strongly recommended for those who need pleasant, healthful change.

Sea and Moorland Air.

For Prospectus apply to C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

MADE WITH BOILING WATER.

EPPS'S GRATEFUL—COMFORTING. COCOA

MADE WITH BOILING MILK.

NEAVE'S FOOD.

FOR INFANTS, INVALIDS, AND THE AGED.

DAILY LIGHT ON THE DAILY PATH.

A Text Book in the very Words of Scripture.

[illegible] Small Edition, from 1l. to 2l. 6d. Large Type Edition, from 2l. 6d. to 5l.

"They are very precious little books, and few more suitable gifts could be found."—Christian.

New Edition with Red Lines, for presentation, prices from 1s. 9d.

[illegible] LTD. 15, Paternoster Row, E.C.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one [illegible] system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.

F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

1s., post free.

CANCER and Simple Tumours dispersed by Electricity. By G. EDGELOW, M.D. H. RENSHAW, 356, Strand, W.C.

HIGH-CLASS WASHING.—The Mayfield Laundry Company is now prepared to undertake the work of several more families. Send post-card for prices and particulars. MANAGERESS, 93, Gillespie-rd., Finsbury-park.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA.

1/6 Per Lb.

(PURE INDIAN), as appreciated by Anglo-Indians, at "Chota-hazri" (early breakfast). Absolutely unrivalled. Sample pound post free, for 1s. 6d. Parcels carriage paid. 5 lbs., 7s. 10d.; 10 lbs., 15s. Choice Teas, 1s. 9d., 2s.; 5 lb. tins, 8s. 9d. and 10s.

"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA CO., 17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7gs. Organs from 8gs.—Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."

SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN, nine stops, double couplers, two knee swells. Great bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

Publications.

Thirteenth Edition. Price 2s. 6d. Key 2s.

HOW TO READ THE GREEK TESTAMENT.—GREEK LESSONS. By W. H. MORRIS. "The simplicity of the method . . . . is perfectly marvellous."—Shield of Faith.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.

MODEL OF THE TABERNACLE

For One Shilling.

ALL the parts made to scale, half an inch to a cubit, Tabernacle 15 inches long, and Outer Court 50 inches long. Also the Furniture, Ark, Altar, Candlestick, Tables of Shewbread, Laver, Figures of High Priest, Priests and Levites. Complete instructions for putting together and setting up. A most valuable Object Lesson, or Present to a student. Educational and interesting. Sent post-free for one shilling, by STENCIL CO., 5, Bond-place, Leeds.

Price 2s. 6d., post free.

ON FISTULA, and its Radical Cure by Medicines. By J. Compton Burnett, M.D. London: JAMES EPPS & Co., 170, Piccadilly, and 48, Threadneedle-street.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.

An Attractive Quarto Volume of Music and Words.

By IRA D. SANKEY and JAMES McGRANAHAN.

May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in TONIC SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred Airs as can anywhere be found. All the Hymns and the Tunes are beautiful, impressive, gracious; and the rendering of them, and the hearing them sung in private or public alike, have led many to change their whole course of life."—Oldham Chronicle.

"Of this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful for us to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions when all the mists have rolled away."—Baptist Messenger.

WORDS ONLY—LARGE TYPE.

Price Sixpence, in Tinted Covers
Price Ninepence, in Limp Cloth.
Price One Shilling, in Cloth Bds., gilt edges.

WORDS ONLY.

Price One Penny, Tinted Covers.
Price Twopence, in Cloth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.

The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch. 32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.

Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

Just Published.

[illegible], Price 1s.

TEACHING TALKS; or, Experience and his Similitudes. By the Author of "The Morte Stone," &c. "Not a weak chapter in the book. The teaching is never tedious. The talk is never twaddle."—The Christian.—Post free, from E. W. EDSHURST, Pitshill, London, [illegible] any Bookseller.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street [illegible], London, E.C.

MRS. GRIMKL'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1890. Cheapest Large [illegible] Text Cards. Price List per Post or to L. KAUFMANN, [illegible], Paternoster-square.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE MORAL REFORM UNION (Established 1831, in the interests of pure Family Life), and Price Lists, to be had of [illegible], Bayswater, London, W.

GOSPEL TRACTS. By CHEYNE [illegible]. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam."—C. H. Spurgeon in Sword and Trowel.—Send for list. DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling. [illegible] W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.

DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most [illegible] By [illegible], M.D., M.A. [illegible] London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & Co., Stationers' Hall court.

W. R. BRADLAUGH'S PENNY ANTI-INFIDEL TRACTS.

Answers to Infidel Objections. Nos. 1 to 12.
Why am I a Christian?
The Bible: Is it true?
The Six Days of Creation.
The Sceptic Defeated with his own Weapons.
Bradlaugh versus Besant.
Christianity Established by Jewish and Pagan Testimony.
Theosophy. The History of a Nineteenth Century Imposture.

These are the Tracts for Working Men.

TRY THEM.

"Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has rendered signal service to the various sections of the Church by his Anti-Infidel work."
The Rock.

"Your tracts are almost an essential part of our work."—Rev. F. E. ROGERS, Navvy Mission Society.

"Mr. Bradlaugh deserves hearty encouragement in his praiseworthy efforts to make every issue a heavy charge upon the strongholds of error and darkness."
The Christian.

6s. per 100; 45s. per 1,000, assorted.
Sample Half-dozen, post free, 6d.

London: JOHN SNOW & Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.
W. R. BRADLAUGH, Anti-Infidel Tract Depôt, 70, King's-cross-road, W.C.

150,000 MONTHLY.

GOOD NEWS.

A monthly 4 pp. Illustrated paper. For distribution in Sunday Schools, Mission Districts, &c.

Price 2/6 per 100.
(REDUCTION ON QUANTITIES.)

Specimens on application to DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.

TO ADVERTISERS.

To Insure Insertion in the Next Number, it is necessary that Advertisements arrive not later than FIRST POST ON MONDAY MORNING.

MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY.

Patron—Admiral H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

THIS Society labours among the great seafaring population of our country, numbering upwards of 625,000 men, who man some 36,000 Merchant, Passenger, Emigrant, Light, and other Ships, and 29,000 Fishing Vessels; not one of which carries a Chaplain. It also labours among the 60,000 Seamen of the Royal Navy.

AFLOAT—Its work is carried on by holding Services or Bible Readings on board the ships when in ports or roadsteads, distributing Tracts, selling Bibles and Prayer Books, and giving Boxes or Books of sound reading to be taken to sea.

In 1888, about 6,000 Bibles were sold; 750,000 Disused Bibles, Tracts, &c., distributed, and 10,000 Boxes or Bags of Books given to ships.

ASHORE—Its work is threefold:—

I. Spiritual: In 51 Churches or Mission Rooms at various ports, at home and abroad, where seamen are ministered to on Sundays and week-days, by the Society's Chaplains and Scripture Readers.

II. Philanthropic: The men being rescued from publichouses and crimps, and induced to come to the Society's Institutes, where they are provided with good reading, newspapers, &c., with means of writing to their families, and harmless games.

III. Temperance: In 1863, about 8,000 Seamen signed the Temperance Pledge; and during the last 10 years 77,000 have signed it.

Information as to the details of the work is given in the Society's Magazine Word on the Waters.

Increased FUNDS are urgently appealed for, to enable this good work to be maintained and extended. Subscriptions and contributions should be sent to the Secretary, Commander W. DAWSON, R.N., at the Society's Offices, 11, Buckingham Street, Strand, London.

MISSION TO LEPERS IN INDIA.

THERE are said to be about Half a Million of Lepers in India. The above Mission (founded in 1874) seeks to give them the Gospel, and to alleviate their sufferings by Medical aid. It is at present carrying on work at Nineteen different centres, in connection with Ten different Missionary Societies. The Annual Report and Pamphlets regarding the work may be obtained from the Secretary,

WELLESLEY C. BAILEY, Esq., 17, Glengyle Terrace, Edinburgh; or from Miss C. E. PIM, Alma, Monkstown, Dublin; either of whom will gladly supply further information, and receive contributions.

£6 will support a Leper for one year. £20 will supply a Christian Teacher to an Asylum for the same period. About £150 to £200 will build an Asylum to hold Fifty Inmates in the country districts. £50 will build a Home for the children of Lepers.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed under carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in the large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where permitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are now seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings on board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is supported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

CENTRAL ASSOCIATION FOR STOPPING THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS ON SUNDAY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above will (D.V.) be held in the Mayor's Parlour, Town Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday, Jan. 28; the Mayor to take the chair at 2.30.

All who wish to have the Sundays of England protected from the Liquor Traffic are cordially invited.

Those who kindly desire to contribute to the funds, or to see the publications, or to have a meeting in their own neighbourhood in support of the object of the above Association, are requested to write to the Rev. J. W. CAUSER, Secretary, 14, Brown Street, Manchester.

Christian Community.

ALL-NIGHT RESCUE WORK.

ALREADY, since this work began, 21,000 poor Homeless and Starving Men have been gathered from the streets in the dead of night, Sheltered, Fed, and otherwise assisted, with [illegible] results.

This season has commenced [illegible] than usual severity, arising from the [illegible] Dock Labourers' Strike and other causes; and from present appearances an unusually severe season is most certainly apprehended, making our appeal all the more urgent.

The continuance of this much-needed work must depend upon the liberality of those having the means to support it. Contributions will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY; or Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or by the EDITORS of "THE [illegible]"

JAS. A[illegible], Superintendent.

23, Enfield-road, Kingsland, London, N.

SILENT SUFFERING IN EAST LONDON.

Few can realise the pain[illegible] the chronic and acute [illegible] present in our house to house v[illegible] Mission Halls in the poorer [illegible] Nor is it confined to the [illegible] vicious—for these we have [illegible] rather in those of such as would shrink from exposing their poverty or care to plead for charity. Worn clothes specially needed.

NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSION.

Contributions would be gladly received by Mrs. F. A. BEVAN, 60, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or by the Director, Mr. W. CHORLEY, 2, Marquess Grove, Canonbury, N.

ANNIVERSARY MUSIC

For Sunday Schools is best selected from

CURWEN'S "SACRED MUSIC LEAFLETS."

Eleven Parts NOW READY, 6d. each.

J. C[illegible] & Sons, 8 & 9, Warwick Lane, London, E.C.

WORK AMONGST MEN.

THERE are large bodies of men among the myriads of toilers in our metropolis who entirely neglect public worship.

Left to themselves, these masses of men become unchristianised, infidel and depraved, adding largely to the dangerous classes.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

in addition to its 393 Missionaries on ordinary districts, by its staff of 105 special and well-qualified Missionaries, is bringing large numbers of these men under the upraising influence of the Gospel of Christ.

Last year 72,827 visits were paid to poor Foreigners in our City, and 1,049 religious services were held for them in their various languages.

In upwards of 10,000 public-houses, quite 200,000 persons were reasoned with upon religion and temperance. Upwards of 85,000 factory people were instructed in the Gospel, and many attended the 1,782 meetings held for their benefit.

The Sabbathless tram-car, omnibus and railway-men received upwards of 300,000 visits in the public ways, at the stations, and in their homes.

The known results of this earnest seeking to save the lost is most satisfactory. Tens of thousands have been rightly influenced, and during the past year, 486 communicants have been won from amongst them, hundreds of drunkards have been reformed, and many thousands who have sunk back from the hard struggle of life have, in the time of sickness and approaching death, received consolation.

To support and extend this great work for the Lord Jesus, large funds are urgently needed. Contributions will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or by the Secretaries, 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.; or by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

FIELD LANE
REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS.

Rev. F. B. MEYER says :—"I had great pleasure in visiting this Institution. . . . I have gone through the whole thing, and I can commend the Institution to you."

This Work is carried on amongst the poorest people of the Metropolis, and

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED.

CRÊCHE FOR INFANTS IN VINE STREET, E.C.

HOMES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS AT HAMPSTEAD.

REFUGES FOR MEN AND WOMEN AT VINE STREET, E.C.

WEEKLY — 300 Persons Maintained.
500 Free Breakfasts.
800 Free Dinners to Children.
430 Portions of Broken Food given.
2,500 Attendances at Mission Meetings.

Treasurer—WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.
Secretary—Mr. PEREGRINE PLATT, Field Lane Institution, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.
Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, ROBARTS & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN IN CLERKENWELL.

(Address Letters and Parcels, 17, Claremont Square, Pentonville.)

THE COW CROSS MISSION,

WILLIAM CATLIN, Gen. Supt.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED. COLLECTING CARDS ON APPLICATION.

LEAFLETS for LETTERS.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

The Sheep-track.
He Loveth Me.
The Sympathy of Jesus.
The Starless Night.
The Conflict.
Isaac.
The Rightful King.
Unanswered Prayer.
The Place for Gold.
The Wayside Watcher.
Prayer.
Bread upon the Waters.
Barren Fig-tree.
The Mourning Soul.
Pathways.
Thoughts in Sickness.
Weep Not.
The Angel Messenger.
Parting Words.
Sitting at the Feet of Jesus.
The Sealed Book.
The Shining Footprint.
Returning.
The Gift.
My Infirmity.
The Lark.
"Gone Before."
The Swelling of Jordan.
My Watch-Tower.
The Benediction.
God Knows Best.
The Stronghold.
The Heavenly Friend.
The Loving Cup.
The Dying Thief.
Who is Willing?
Sow Beside all Waters.
Without Money or Price.
The Fourth Watch.
The First Missionary.
A Very Present Help in Trouble
Home, Light, Home!
Wait on the Lord.
The Lost Cherith.

"Exhibit many of the best qualities of really Christian poetry."—Sunday Teacher's Treasury.

Assorted Packet, 6d.; Double Packet, 1s.

120th Thousand

Addresses by D. L. Moody.

DELIVERED IN ENGLAND.
REVISED BY HIMSELF.

TINTED COVERS, 1/- CLOTH LIMP, 1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges - 2/6

"In what is said there is nothing that can be described as absolutely new; but seldom has it been said with aught like the same force, fervour, and urgency. The intense earnestness of the man communicates a certain glow and energy to his language which serve to make it arrest and enchain."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

"Will be read by thousands, with the memorable interest attaching to the words which God used in first awakening them to spiritual life."—Children's Record.

THE FEMALE ORPHAN HOME

TANGLEY PARK, HAMPTON-ON-THAMES,

For 50 or more Orphan Girls, 4 to 16 years old. Established 33 years.

£50 WANTED TO ASSIST THE FUNDS,

For maintenance, and to assist the admission of fresh Children.

A CONDITIONAL OFFER OF £5

has been spontaneously made by a subscriber, "if nine others will give the same amount before the month (January) is out."

DURING THE YEAR 1889,

the Committee were enabled to admit TWENTY FRESH CHILDREN.

N.B. Such admission is generally for a number of years.

THE THREE MAIN FEATURES ARE:

1. Individual care and Christian training.
2. Scrupulous and consistent economy.
3. Perfect control and oversight by Committee.

The venerated Earl of Shaftesbury signified approval of the Institution by including it in a beneficiary list shortly before his decease.

Answers will be very gratefully received, as well as made to all inquirers, by the Secretary,

JOHN D. COOPER.

79, Finsbury-pavement, E.C.

Bankers:—Messrs. J. BROWN & Co.

WORKS BY
MAJOR D. W. WHITTLE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

"All who have heard Major WHITTLE will be glad to possess this excellent little volume. It is just the book to put into the hands of young converts. We wish it a wide circulation."—Railway Signal.

Cloth extra, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

P. P. BLISS: HIS LIFE & LIFE-WORK.

By Major WHITTLE & Rev. W. GUEST.

Containing an Introduction by D. L. MOODY; and Memorial Notice by IRA D. SANKEY. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and their two young children.

"Cannot be too highly prized or too widely circulated; in fact, for the good it is calculated to do, it ought to be in the hands of every English reader."—Midland Gazette.

SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION:
Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.

ADAPTED FOR WIDE CIRCULATION.

Price ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

SOUL-WINNING: Qualifications for it.

"It seems to me that there is no more important topic that can be brought before us to-day than the WINNING OF SOULS—its obligations, its hindrances, its joy, and the qualifications for it."—PAGE 5.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY'S LIST.

OLD-FASHIONED BOOKS FOR NEW-FASHIONED TIMES.

A CALL TO THE UNCONVERTED to turn and live, and accept of mercy while mercy may be had, as ever they would find mercy in the day of their extremity from the living God. By the Rev. RICHARD BAXTER. 18mo., 1s., cloth boards.

THE DYING THOUGHTS of the Rev. RICHARD BAXTER. Abridged by BENJAMIN FAWCETT, M.A. 18mo., 1s., cloth boards.

THE REFORMED PASTOR. By the Rev. RICHARD BAXTER. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM BROWN, M.D. A new Edition, 12mo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

"The 'REFORMED PASTOR' is a most extraordinary performance, and should be read by every young minister before he takes a people under his stated care; and, I think, the practical part of it reviewed every three or four years: for nothing would have a [illegible]y to awaken the spirit of a minister to that zeal in [illegible]nt of which many good men are but shadow of wh[illegible] [illegible]g of God) they might be, . . . [illegible] [illegible]hat incomparable treatise were

THE SAINTS' EVERLASTING REST: or, A Treatise of the Blessed State of the Saints in their enjoyment of God in Heaven. By the Rev. RICHARD BAXTER. 18mo., 1s. 6d., cloth boards.

BUNYAN'S PILGRIM'S PROGRESS:

	s.	d.
Large Type Edition. 16 Illustrations by JOHN GILBERT. Demy 8vo., bevelled boards	[illegible]	6 cloth
Large Type Edition 12 plates in Oil Colours. Bevelled boards, gilt edges	6	6
12mo. Edition	1	6
Crown 8vo. Edition Illustrated, gilt edges, morocco	[illegible]
Small Crown 8vo. Edition. Illustrated	1	6
—— with Coloured Plates	1	6
Imperial 32mo. New Edition. Illustrated	1
—— with Coloured Plates	1

BUNYAN'S HOLY WAR. New Edition in Royal 18mo 1s. 6d., cloth boards.

PRIVATE THOUGHTS ON RELIGION. By THOMAS ADAM. 16mo. A reprint in an attractive form of this well-known devotional book. 1s. 6d., cloth boards.

AN INFALLIBLE WAY to CONTENTMENT. A neat little reprint from an old writer. 1s. 6d., cloth boards.

"A small volume of rare merit."—The Christian.

LUTHER'S TABLE TALK. Selected by Dr. MACAULAY, Editor of "The Leisure Hour," &c. 1s. 6d., cloth.

"A capital little volume."—Rock.
"A judicious selection"—English Churchman.

A COLLECTION OF THE PROMISES OF SCRIPTURE. Arranged under their proper heads. By SAMUEL CLARK, D.D. 1s. 6d., cloth boards.

THE ANXIOUS INQUIRER AFTER SALVATION DIRECTED AND ENCOURAGED. By JOHN ANGELL JAMES. 1s. 6d., cloth boards. Cheap Edition, 6d. cloth; 3d. paper covers.

CHRISTIAN PROGRESS. A Sequel to the Anxious Inquirer after Salvation Directed and Encouraged. By JOHN ANGELL JAMES. 18mo., 1s., cloth boards.

GOLDEN TREASURY for the Children of God, whose treasure is in heaven: consisting of devotional and practical observations on select passages of Scripture for every day in the year. By K. H. VON BOGATZKY. With Biographical Sketch of the Author by the Rev. JOHN KELLY. Fcap. 8vo., 2s. cloth boards; 5s. 6d. morocco; 6s. 6d. calf limp. NEW EDITION, 24mo., 1s., cloth.

HODGE ON THE ROMANS. Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans. By Professor HODGE, Professor of Biblical Literature in the Theological Seminary at Princetown, America. 12mo., 3s. cloth boards.

HOWE: THE WORKS OF JOHN HOWE. Edited by Professor HENRY ROGERS. Library Edition. Complete in six volumes. 8vo., 5s. per volume, cloth.

[illegible]e Blessedness of the Righteous: the Vanity of this [illegible]eal Life: Man's Creation in a Holy but Mutable State.
[illegible] Delighting in God: The Redeemer's Tears [illegible]s Soul: The Redeemer's Dominion over the [illegible]
III.—The Living Temple: or, A Good Man is a Temple of God.
IV.—Self-Dedication: Yielding Yourselves unto God: Thoughtfulness for the Morrow: Union among Protestants: Charity of Religious Contention, &c.
V.—Treatises on Divine Prescience, and on the Trinity; Three [illegible]ses on Public Occasions, &c.
VI.—Funeral Sermon [illegible]speaker's Funeral Sermon for Howe,

HUMAN NATURE IN ITS FOURFOLD STATE. Primitive Integrity; Entire Depravity; Begun Recovery; Consummate Happiness or Misery. By the Rev. THOMAS BOSTON. 18mo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

ST. PAUL, CONVERSION AND APOSTLESHIP OF. By GEO., LORD LYTTELTON. With an Introductory Essay by the late HENRY ROGERS. Crown 8vo., 2s., cloth boards.

"A treatise to which infidelity has never been able to fabricate a specious answer."—Dr. Johnson.

CROOK IN THE LOT: or, The Sovereignty and Wisdom of God in the afflictions of Men displayed. By the Rev. THOMAS BOSTON. 16mo. New Edition, with Portrait and Memoir, 1s. 6d.

ESSAYS BY JOHN FOSTER.

8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

On a Man's writing Memoirs of himself.
Decision of Character.
The Application of the Epithet "Romantic."
Aversion of Men of Taste to Evangelical Religion.
With the Introductory Essay to Doddridge's "Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul."

SCOTT'S FORCE OF TRUTH. An Authentic Narrative. By the Rev. THOMAS SCOTT. 18mo., 1s., cloth boards.

ALARM TO UNCONVERTED SINNERS. A Serious Treatise on Conversion. By JOSEPH ALLEINE. 1s., cloth boards.

GUIDE FOR DISCIPLES OF THE HOLY SAVIOUR, in the First Steps of their Way to Immortality. By the Rev. J. G. PIKE. 1s. 6d., cloth.

RISE AND PROGRESS OF RELIGION IN THE SOUL: Illustrated in a course of serious and practical Addresses, with a devout Meditation, or Prayer, added to each chapter. By the Rev. PHILIP DODDRIDGE, D.D. Imp. 32mo., 1s. 4d., cloth.

THE ACTS AND MONUMENTS OF JOHN FOXE. Revised and Corrected, with Appendices, Glossary, and Indices. Edited by Rev. JOSIAH PRATT, M.A. With an Introduction, containing a copious Memoir of FOXE and a descriptive analysis of the work By the Rev. JOHN STOUGHTON, D.D. Royal 8vo., with many facsimiles of the old quaint illustrations. In Eight Vols., £2 10s. the set.

"R.T.S." LIBRARY.

3d., Paper Covers; 6d., cloth.

THE JERUSALEM SINNER SAVED; and THE HEAVENLY FOOTMAN. By JOHN BUNYAN.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE PLAN OF SALVATION.

THE WIT AND WISDOM OF LORD BACON.

THE WIT AND WISDOM OF THOMAS FULLER. With Portrait.

PRETTY COLOURED BOOKLETS

Beautifully printed in colours, with gilt edges, and tied with gold cord. Well adapted for enclosure in letters.

FOURPENCE EACH.
Or the three Booklets in neat wrapper for 1s.

A Year's Mercies. By NORMAN MACLEOD, D.D.
May you Live for Ever! By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD.
The Treasures of the Gospel. By H. BONAR, D.D.

FOR THE YOUNG.

THREEPENCE EACH.
Or the four in a neat wrapper, 1s.

How to be Happy. By W. FLEMING STEVENSON, D.D.
Sunny Days of Childhood. By Mrs. O. F. WALTON, Author of "Peep behind the Scenes," "Little Dot," &c.
Children of the King By Mrs. DECK.
Follow my Leader. By Rev. R. R. THOM.

TWOPENCE EACH.
Or six Booklets (two of each) in a neat wrapper, for 1s.

The King's Bird-Catchers. By Mrs. O. F. WALTON, Author of "Christie's Old Organ," &c.
From the Rising of the Sun. By MARY K. MARTIN.
Dear Doctor Sparrow. By Rev. ADOLPH SAPHIR.

THE "SWEET STORY" SERIES.

A box of Twelve Booklets, telling "The Sweet Story of Old" in very simple language for the little ones. With Pictures in colours.

1s. IN NEAT BOX, CONTAINING TWO OF EACH:—

The Sweet Story of Old.	Believing in Jesus.
The Golden Rule.	Praying to Jesus.
The Good Shepherd.	Gentle Jesus.

READY MONDAY, the 27th inst.,

THE SUNDAY AT HOME
FOR FEBRUARY CONTAINS:

ON FAITH-HEALING.
By Dr. ALFRED SCHOFIELD.

A PEEP BEHIND THE PURDAH.
The Autobiography of a Mohammedan Lady.

NOT BY BREAD ALONE.
By the Author of "Occupations of a Retired Life." Illustrated by Gordon Browne.

MONOTINT PLATE—
"The Enemy Sowing Tares."

ISAIAH: PROPHET, POET, AND STATESMAN By the Rev. S. G. GREEN, D.D.
Saved. By FRANK BRAMLEY.
Californian Sketches. II. By the Rev. Dr. BLAIKIE.
"He Giveth to His Beloved in Sleep." By MARY ROWLES JARVIS.
Three Months in Kabylia. II. By THEO. FISHER, M.D.
"The Pearl of Gerhardt's Hymns." By Rev. JOHN KELLY.
Too Near the Edge.
My Window Flowers. By RICHARD WILTON, M.A.
Voices by the Way. Town and Country. By the Rev. Prebendary HARRY JONES, M.A.
The Trial Sermon. By B. NORDENBERG.
"There is a Happy Land."
Convalescent.
February Musings. By the Author of "The Harvest of a Quiet Eye."
A Tale of a Sign-Post. By P. A. BLYTH.
Talks to the Boys. By SYDNEY MILLEDGE.
Hymns for Children. By SARAH GERALDINA STOCK.
Some Notable Pulpits. By Rev. FREDERICK HASTINGS.
A Crop of Sunshine.
A Book without Words.
Things New and Old.
Monthly Religious Record.

NEW BIOGRAPHY.

ATHANASIUS: His Life and Life-Work. By HENRY ROBERT REYNOLDS, D.D. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

SWEET SINGERS OF WALES (THE). A Story of Welsh Hymns and their Authors. With Original Translations by H. ELVET LEWIS. Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards, gilt top.

VON BOGATZKY: HIS LIFE AND WORK. By the Rev. JOHN KELLY. With Portrait. Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

SHORT BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE. Vol. VI. By VARIOUS WRITERS. With Portraits. 1s. 6d., cloth.

London: 56, Paternoster Row; 65, St. Paul's Churchyard; and 164, Piccadilly. Manchester: 100, Corporation Street. Liverpool: 18, Slater Street, Bold Street. Brighton: 31, Western Road.
And of Booksellers all over the World.

JANUARY 24, 1890.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

LIKE many other public men, Dr. Talmage has fallen a victim to the all-pervading influenza, and his preaching engagements in London and elsewhere have had to be cancelled. In consequence of his non-arrival in London at the time expected, we have postponed the publication of his portrait and sketch till our next issue.

Our present issue is replete with missionary interest. The portrait and sketch relate to one who is worthy to rank with Moffat, Livingstone, McCall, Comber, Arnot, and other heroes of the cross who have laid themselves on God's altar for Africa. The page that relates to China is of living import, and deserves careful study.

We trust we need scarcely call attention to the rousing utterances of Dr. A. T. Pierson in his appeal to the churches of Christendom. Our American brother is assuredly a heaven-sent messenger to our British churches, and we shall do well to heed his message. We have been disappointed at the meagre attendance on some of the occasions when he has spoken, and are all the more anxious that his earnest words should be read and carefully pondered. We give on page 34 a list of Dr. Pierson's forthcoming engagements in this campaign, and would urge our readers in the various places named to do their utmost in securing the attendance of Christians; especially those whose interest in missions needs reviving, and young men and women who have no special vocation in life. Surely many of the latter will be stirred, as one result of the present movement, to join the ranks of those in the forefront of the battle.

Dr. Barnardo's annual report, recently issued in book form, is entitled, "Something Attempted, Something Done." And, truly, the title is well deserved. Such a marvellous and encouraging record of nine months' practical Christian effort undertaken and accomplished it would be difficult to find, even in this age of philanthropic activity. Every page is crowded with facts and figures; yet the volume will be found to yield more of the romance and pathos of real life than a cartload of yellow-backed novels. We counsel those of our readers who have not seen it, to invest one shilling and four pence in a copy, which can be procured by post from the offices of the Homes in Stepney-causeway, London, E.

Another correspondence in The Times on temperance legislation; and, of course, another leading article purporting to adjudicate between the combatants. The only indisputable statement in this article is the assertion that "the advocates of temperance in this country are in marked disagreement among themselves about ends as well as means." That, unhappily, is too true, and we fear that till they come together in friendly conference and settle their differences, the temperance crusade in its legislative bearings will make little headway. The Times is somewhat rash, however, in assuming that "permissive prohibition, or local option, or whatever else its advocates may please to term it, may be set down as argumentatively dead and done for." We think it likely that our contemporary will be undeceived on this point before many sessions of Parliament have run their course.

We observe, also, with regret, that the Anti-Slavery Society and the Aborigines' Protection Society are at loggerheads on the question of pressing the Brussels Conference to deal with the liquor traffic, and the distribution of arms, among natives in Africa. It is almost fatal to a good cause when its friends fall out in presence of the common foe. As the Conference at Brussels has evidently got a good grip of their special question, surely our "Anti-Slavery" friends might at least refrain from pouring cold water on efforts to combat other and equally deadly evils.

The Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for India have declined to receive a deputation from the Wesleyan Conference Social Purity Committee on the subject of military licensed vice in India. At the same time they express the confident opinion that the Government of India are loyally conforming to the instructions sent to them consequent on the resolution of the British House of Commons in June, 1888. We can but hope that their opinion will be justified by facts; and no doubt the watchful friends of social purity in India will keep us informed on this point.

Mr. Phelps, the late American minister to the Court of St. James's, in an article in a trusted American magazine, has gone down to that which he maintains is the root of the present scandalous, demoralising, and dangerous system of divorce in the United States. The facts are startling: 35,000 divorces last year, and the rate of increase of divorce double that of the population. The main source of the alarming evil, it is argued, is the permission of divorced persons to remarry. Simultaneously with this article in The Forum appeared one on the same subject in The North American Review, from the pen of Mr. Gladstone. He goes further, and argues against the lawfulness of re-marriage, declaring that the civil legislature goes beyond its province in any such permission, which was not allowed by the Western Church, and is forbidden by a just interpretation of Holy Scripture. Such an expression of opinion by men of commanding eminence is entitled to full consideration; though we are not prepared to accept the latter opinion as a just interpretation of Scripture.

The Encyclical letter of the Pope issued on the 6th inst. was published on the 16th. It affirms broadly and unmistakably the supremacy of the Roman Catholic Church. The Pope pronounces with authority upon dogma and morals! "The Church" must be loved before country, and must be obeyed rather than the State when there is a conflict; before the law of man comes "the law of God," by which is meant that of the Church; the bishops should not be judged, but should be submitted to and obeyed by the laity. The Encyclical very significantly proves the unchangeableness of Papal Rome. Its spirit and precepts give the clue to the troubles of nations. If in kingdoms an ecclesiastical power is secretly in opposition to the action of civil government, what can there be but kingdoms divided against themselves, and conflicts that embitter and alienate society?

We read in The Northern Advance that the Welsh Nonconformists of four leading denominations are exchanging opinions favourable to closer union. In England the different bodies of the Methodists are drawing together in a decided manner. The change in this respect is very marked. In Manchester, last week, ministers of four sections spoke at a meeting in the Central Hall in favour of Methodist union. The tone of the meeting was quite in harmony with this sentiment. Probably the leaders of such movements are in advance of the rank and file of Nonconformists. But this has been the case with some of the best of religious efforts. A wide yearning is being interpreted, and will be practical in its results. Yet the question arises, whether the amalgamation of various sections of Methodism will not strengthen rather than diminish the spirit of sectarianism. And so of other unifications, not of Christians as such, but of denominations. Christ prayed that we all might be one.

A hundred years have passed since John Howard, the prison philanthropist, laid down his task, and it is well that his noble services should be recalled to public notice. For the work of prison reform is yet far from being accomplished. "Man's inhumanity to man" is still an ugly spot in the social economy of many countries professedly Christian. Our barbarous methods of treatment are powerless for the reform of the criminal, and it is time that Europe should adopt more excellent and more rational ways of dealing with law breakers. For one thing, there ought to be far more elasticity of treatment, to accord with individual circumstances. Even the worst of men ought not to be treated as if they were herds of dumb driven cattle.

Mr. Broomhall, the much-esteemed secretary of the China Inland Mission, is ever on the alert to find something good in current speech or literature that will drive home to the public mind his favourite topic. He has just issued, in a neat pamphlet, the admirably comprehensive address of Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester, at the recent Missionary Conference, on "The True Source of Missionary Zeal." With it is given a very telling utterance on Prayer as "The Main Instrumental Force of Missionary Work," by Dr. Alden, of America. No movement can rise higher than its source, and the wide distribution of these inspiring deliverances must tend to lift the popular view of the claims of foreign missions to a higher platform of privilege and responsibility. Next week we purpose to give some extracts from Dr. Alden's address.

Christian Unity.

THE Editor of The Christian Commonwealth, in his last two issues, proposes "to call a great ecumenical council of Christendom, for the purpose of deciding upon a working basis as a starting-point in Christian unity." The end in view, Christian unity, has our warmest sympathy, and we cordially endorse such statements as these :—

In many cases our theological differences arise from mistrust of each other and misunderstandings, while those differences which do really exist would become largely minimised by fraternal contact with each other.

The spirit of sectarianism is undoubtedly devilish, and it is impossible that those who possess this spirit would wish to help in a movement to unite God's scattered people.

But while we sympathise with the desire to unite God's scattered people, we do not think that a movement to this end can successfully begin with a great ecumenical council. We have never known anything succeed which did not begin from a small living seed, and grow gradually as all seeds grow.

Neither do we think that such union as is desired, can be based upon "all Christians working together in benefiting the world," "working together rather than thinking together." The impossibility of this is illustrated by The Christian Commonwealth itself, in the following quotations from two articles side by side in its last issue :—

Let all accept Jesus as the Christ, the Son of the living God, and be content with Him rather than doctrines about Him, and surely we shall have reached a foundation which is not only Divine, but is all-sufficient for every Christian. . . . Our proposition is to pay no attention whatever to comments on the creed, so long as all accept the creed itself as it is contained in the New Testament. . . . If we examine carefully Christ's teaching, we shall probably be astonished at how little He has told us we must believe, and how much He has told us we must do....In the book of Revelation, it will be found that "when the books are opened" every man is judged according as his works have been. Not a word said about articles of faith, not a word said about inspiration, atonement, future punishment, or anything of the kind, as necessary to be understood and believed in order to recognition among the accepted ones.

The next article, "To-day's Problem," contains the following :—

Down a steep slope into the abyss of neo-criticism Wellhausen and Kuenen have rushed headlong. The cry has been that Professors Robertson Smith and Dods are roped to these falling leaders and are being dragged after them over a Matterhorn glissade. And only a few months ago Dr. Clifford alarmed his friends by an apologetic fantasia on the key-note of praise and glory to Ferdinand Christian Baur.

We conceive that this question of the Inspiration of the Bible is the great question of life and death. Even in the Christian religion everything else depends on this.

Professors Robertson Smith and Marcus Dods, and Dr. Clifford, would all doubtless subscribe to the "New Testament Symbol" that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God," but they are, in the judgment of the editor of The Christian Commonwealth, quite wrong about Inspiration, on which, he truly says, "everything else depends." It is difficult to harmonise the secondary place given to inspiration, &c., in the previous paragraph, with the later declaration that it is "the great question of life and death." And it is difficult to conceive how, with such a fundamental difference in their thinking, the editor and those named above could cordially, not merely as philanthropists and humanitarians but as Christian brethren and servants of Christ, carry out his proposition :—

Let us hold each other's hands in an effort to lift up the downtrodden, to care for the sorrowing, to feed the hungry and clothe the naked.

Desiring with all our heart the union pleaded for by our brother, and agreeing with him that it must be founded upon a true and well-authenticated basis, we think we need no new experiment. We must go back to Pentecost for our model. Then they were all with one accord in one place, continuing in prayer and worship; Jesus, glorified by the Father in heaven, was also glorified by the adoring faith of the infant church on earth, and when the Holy Spirit was given they went forth speaking the wonderful works of God. God was with them. Their testimony was to Jesus and the resurrection, and the works of beneficence they wrought in the power of the Holy Ghost were not the end, but the means to the end—the manifestation of the glory of God in the crucified and risen Christ.

We do not wish to throw cold water on our brother's suggestions; far from it. But we are convinced that Christian unity can only be attained by giving God and his Christ, not man and his needs, the foremost place.

Missionaries for Africa.

THE large room at Exeter Hall was crowded on Monday evening on the occasion of a meeting to bid God-speed to a number of missionaries about to sail for Africa under the auspices of the Church Missionary Society. The proceedings were very impressive, as well as enthusiastic in character, and it was pleasing to notice among the friends on the platform, workers in connection with other well-known organisations, having for their object the evangelisation of the heathen.

Sir JOHN KENNAWAY, who presided, referred in generous terms to the good work which has been done in Africa by other missionary societies; and while calling for the continual prayers of believers for blessing to attend all such endeavour, he begged that the out-going abourers might be specially remembered at the throne of grace. Rev. R. LANG, Secretary for Africa, explained that the Niger Mission has been reorganised, and divided into the Soudan or Upper Niger Mission, and the Delta or Lower Niger Mission.

Rev. H. C. G. MOULE, Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge, who had trained several of the new missionaries, delivered a brief address by way of commending the whole of them to the warm sympathies of Christian people. It is, he remarked, a very simple thing to say we will pray for friends, but it is not one of the easiest things in the world to keep such a promise. He called upon his hearers to make on the present occasion a grave, purposeful, and real promise; and then to remember each and all, directly and continually, at the throne of grace—especially beseeching God that, amid the stifling influences and surroundings of heathenism and Mohammedanism, the workers may be kept in the secret fresh air of the presence and the peace and the power of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The venerable Bishop of the Niger, Dr. CROWTHER, was full of joy at the prospect of fresh Christian blood being infused into his diocese. He told the story of the progress of the Gospel during recent years, both among the pagans and the large Mohammedan population, who are not so bitter against Christianity as their priests and rulers are. Many difficulties have been encountered in establishing the Niger Mission, but the Bishop was glad to say that the pioneering stage has now been passed, and that the work of development is receiving the attention it so urgently demands. Heathen chiefs are throwing aside their idols, and Mohammedans are asking for Christian instruction; so that the outlook is full of hope.

Besides the Bishop, who is about to return to his sphere, sixteen missionaries were bidden farewell. Four of these are ladies, and nine of the gentlemen are from Cambridge University. The missionaries for the Lower Niger Mission are: Rev. F. N. Eden, late vicar of St. James's, West Hartlepool, and Rev. H. H. Dobinson, his curate, with Mr. P. A. Bennett. For the Upper Niger Mission: Rev. J. A. Robinson (who has already left for Africa), Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilmot Brooke, Mr. Eric Lewis, and Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby. For the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas A. L. Hooper, Messrs. G. L. Pilkington, G. K. Baskerville, and J. D. M. Cotter. The old Yoruba Mission is likewise being reinforced by two labourers. With the exception of Messrs. Robinson, Brooke, and Hooper, all these are proceeding to the field for the first time.

Several of the missionaries delivered brief addresses. Mr. Brooke was able to relate encouraging incidents which he had already witnessed in Africa. Dr. Harford-Battersby told how God had called him, first to the medical profession, which he had made up his mind not to follow, and then to Christian labour in Africa, the very country which he had determined not to have anything to do with. Mr. Eden declared that his joy had been great since he decided upon foreign work and gave up his parochial charge; and Mr. Dobinson said that when his vicar told him he was going to Africa, he saw clearly that he must go also, as the duty of going abroad had lain heavily upon him for some time.

Rev. Dr. Pierson, at the call of the chairman, commended all the missionaries to God in prayer. He voiced the heart-petitions of the meeting by asking great things. Rev. C. G. Baskerville, of Birmingham, spoke a few words of timely encouragement to the outgoing missionaries, urging them ever to realise that with Christ as their Captain they must prove victorious.

"BETTER DAYS" is the title of a new penny monthly organ of the North Birmingham Wesleyan Mission, edited by Rev. J. G. Mantle. The contents of the first number are bright, readable, and rousing. A series of sketches on "Great Revivals" is likely to be interesting and helpful. The office of publication is 123, Newton-row, Birmingham.

A. L. O. E. writes in The Punjab Mission News an interesting account of the baptism of a young Brahmin convert from the mission school there. The church was crowded with rows of turbaned heads, and some young converts were obliged to act as amateur policemen to keep the excited spectators from crossing the barrier, and pressing up to the front of the church.

MR. A. S. DYER and Rev. W. E. Robbins, of Bombay, expected to sail for China on Jan. 11, to look into the facts connected with the opium trade, and probably at the same time to give some trouble to evil doers in the Chinese ports, who live by a nameless and shameless traffic in immorality. Mr. Dyer is probably the best hated man in India, but his remorseless practice of turning an electric light upon all forms of unchallenged iniquity will probably procure for him a still more intense dislike in the foreign settlements of China.—Indian Witness.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a fifteen days' mission, by Mr. Maurice Marcus, at Thruxton, Andover, and at Charlton, Hants, from Feb. 3 to 9.——For blessing on mission services, to be conducted by Mr. James Spruit, during the next three weeks, in villages in Sussex.——For blessing on a fourteen days' mission in the Mizpah Hall, Glasgow, commenced on Sunday last.——For special services at Trinity Chapel, John-street, Edgware-road, from Jan. 21 to 31, by Mr. John Burnham.——For blessing on weekly services at Newtown-row Chapel and Cecil H H, Cecil-street, Birmingham.——For blessing on a united general Wesleyan mission being held at Leeds, to Jan. 29.——For blessing on a ten days' mission, to be conducted at Great Bridgewater-street Wesleyan Chapel, Deansgate, Manchester, by "Gipsy Smith," Jan. 26 to Feb. 5.——For blessing on a mission to children, conducted by Rev. W. A. Meaton, in Trevor Chapel, Brompton, Jan. 26 to 29.

AN APPEAL TO CHRISTENDOM.

CONDENSED NOTES OF AN ADDRESS

BY DR. ARTHUR T. PIERSON.

WE shall never do the work of foreign missions as it ought to be done till we get and keep before our minds some adequate conception of the magnitude of that work. Difficulties should not discourage, but rather lead us to greater diligence and prayerful fidelity. Some people think that unless a nation is born in a day foreign missions are a failure. But we see in nature how those things that come up in a night are least worth the growing; the most valuable products are those we obtain at the greatest cost of time and labour. Humanity matures more slowly than any other form of animal life; but man is best worth maturing. History shows that those transformations that are most rapid are most superficial; indeed, in many cases the change is only apparent.

The progress of missions cannot contradict the known laws of human and of natural growth. Long-seated idolatries cannot be uprooted in a day. But let us not lose courage. Rather let us believe that all the pains taken, all the money spent, all the human life poured out as on the altar of missions, shall be abundantly compensated in the fulfilment of the prophecy we utter in our psalm of praise:—

A FREE LIBATION

> Jesus shall reign where'er the sun
> Doth his successive journeys run;
> His kingdom stretch from shore to shore,
> Till moons shall wax and wane no more.

It shall come to pass: but such a result cannot be attained without the process by which the kingdom of God is first preached to the nations; and then all the wholesome truths of our religion patiently taught. Our Lord Jesus Christ was a true philosopher. "Go ye," He said, "and preach the Gospel to all nations, baptizing them, and teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." This "teaching" is not identical with the "preaching" of the Gospel, which is the utterance of the terms of redemption. After these have been heard and received, there must come the diligent, careful indoctrination into all the truths of living Christianity.

Let us try to understand something of the magnitude of the work. It is not a small thing to turn a nation from idolatries and superstitions 2000 or 3000 years old. Think of of heathen and pagan countries. These matters have not been adequately set before the great bulk of the intelligent confessors of Christ. I have frequently represented the magnitude of the work in this way: If the fifteen hundred millions of the earth's population were to pass before us in procession at the rate of one a second, it would take fifty years, day and night, for them to go by. Ponder the fact that only one out of every fifty is a member of an evangelical church; and only one out of every 250,000 is sent by the Christian churches in Christian lands to help to save these millions of heathendom.

THE AWFUL SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION

We ought to understand the awful destitution of the heathen world. I do not know of any language that will express it. There is a tendency in Christian lands to apologise for idolatry. The Bible never does; it speaks of the whole thing in the most contemptuous terms. In the Psalms the idols of the heathen are described as being blind and dumb and deaf, and void of understanding; and the writer adds: "They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them." That is to say, the whole tendency of idolatry is to make idolaters as dumb and helpless and stupid as the idols. Therefore such gods as Jove and Bacchus could not be worshipped without their devotees acquiring a character similar to that ascribed to those deities. Idolatry

HAS NEVER HAD ANY REDEEMING POWER

over the nations. There is much that is elevating in Confucianism, Buddhism, and other systems that prevail in Oriental lands; but, there is also a vast amount of corruption in those systems. Compare the state of things where they prevail with that which obtains where the Gospel of Jesus Christ bears sway; you find that it is only in proportion as Divine truth is implanted in the hearts of men that they have risen to any high level of virtue and morality. There are two words that describe the condition of heathendom—

PUTREFACTION AND PETRIFACTION—

the loss of all Godly savour and the loss of all Godly sensibility. Think of a mother casting her own child to the wild beasts!—dead even to all maternal instinct, and sacrificing her child to her caprices and whims. Five clauses describe the biography of woman in Eastern lands: "Unwelcome at birth; untaught in childhood; uncherished in widowhood; unprotected in old age; and unlamented when dead." Look at the fearful infanticides; the child marriages in India, and the cruelties of young widowhood.

What is the use of talking of "The Light of Asia"? Show us the people whom it has illumined. Go where "the Light of the World" has shone, and you will find high standards of virtue, and elevated conceptions of practical conduct. You will see Christian homes: woman as wife and mother as well as maiden; children brought up in piety and morality; whole communities transformed. There is no light anywhere that illumines human life that cannot be traced directly or to a reflection of Him who is the Orb of Day. In heathen lands, even where the "Light of Asia" shines, you find darkness and the habitations of cruelty. I wonder where the men and women can come from who apologise for heathenism and paganism.

Let us keep before us the greatness of our task, not only geographically and historically, but practically. We have to deal with fifteen hundred millions of people, a thousand millions of whom are without the Gospel; and we have to do it within the lifetime of our generation. The Church goes to this work of foreign missions as though the present generation were going to live for ever, and she had an indefinite time in which to do the work for them.

EVERY STROKE OF THE PENDULUM

marks the departure of a soul from this world, the vast majority of whom die without having any light on the future.

What are we going to do about it? We have the command of Jesus to go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. But no Christian man or woman ought to need the command of Christ to engage in foreign missionary effort. There ought to be a constraint within the soul that should lead us to take the Gospel message to those in need of it. It is the nature of the new life to express itself, and to expand itself. If water is stagnant it becomes foul, and absolute motionlessness can only be secured by congelation. The water of life must flow; if it is hemmed in it will become

STAGNANT AND FOUL.

Why should we wait for a command? Where is our new life? Where is the sympathy with Christ's passion for souls which ought to animate every child of God born of the Holy Ghost? If we do not yearn over others, do we really belong to Christ ourselves? Let a man begin to work for souls and he will forget authority; he will forget even the inward impulse, in the transcendent privilege of serving Christ.

Then, the whole matter of giving to missions must be lifted to a new sphere. I am ashamed to hear Christian people talking about the consecration of property, as though they were under some bondage to give so much to the Lord, and they were doing it stingily, grudgingly. God loveth a cheerful giver.

THINK OF THE PALTRY SUMS

that are given to missions. The whole Christian Church only gives between two and three millions a year for the evangelisation of a thousand millions of heathen. If every Christian Church member would give one penny a day, we should have forty-five millions sterling annually in the treasuries of the missionary societies, with which to carry on this work.

Think, again, of this, that the churches only give one out of every five thousand of their members as foreign missionaries. Why, the heathen themselves multiply that proportion five or six times over. If we were to give, say, one out of every 300 members, we might evangelise the entire heathen world in twenty-five years, and lay the foundations for educating the nations in Christian doctrine for all time to come. Yet here we are at the close of nineteen centuries of the Christian era, and we have to overtake two-thirds of the population of the globe with the first proclamation of the Gospel. We have the Bible now in 300 languages and dialects, and there are immense sums of money in the hands of Christian people; but we are allowing the bulk of our fellow men to go down to the grave without having heard that there is a Christ.

I TREMBLE TO THINK of the account that the Christian churches will have to settle with the Lord of glory. They have had the Word of God in their possession all those centuries, and the world has never been overtaken once with the Gospel message. I am not satisfied with the notion of "preaching the Gospel for a witness in all the world," if by that is meant the simple heralding or proclamation of it; but even as to that limited view, how shall the thirty millions of church members answer at the judgment seat for the fact that a thousand millions of those on the earth during this generation have not had an offer of salvation, direct or indirect?

I feel ashamed to think of my own country [America] and its wars against the Indians, and its treatment of these people because of their resentment of our violated pledges and treaties. We have spent in some cases £5000 in killing one Indian, when £100 would have converted him. I do not mean that we can value human souls by figures; I am only showing how absurd it is to talk of not being able to carry on the work of God when we spend as much money in killing a single Indian as would, humanly speaking, bring a whole tribe to the knowledge of Christ.

SURELY GOD HAS A QUARREL

with his churches on this matter. In their corporate capacity they belong to time. Will He not reckon with them for their unfaithfulness, within the bounds of time? What does He see? His Church letting the world perish without Christ; yet building for itself magnificent structures, and garnishing them luxuriously. Do we not find that in such circumstances He withdraws his Spirit? Apostasy comes into the churches and into the pulpits. Worldliness invades the courts of the Lord's house. Secularism and clericalism of spirituality. If heathendom is not enlightened, surely the question will be: What is to become of the churches of Christendom? Will not God remove the candlestick out of its place, unless the churches arise and carry the word of life into the darkness of heathen and pagan lands?

EAT OUT THE VITALS

In our great cities we find that the masses of the people are being alienated from the organised churches. What is the reason? Does not history show that whenever the churches have been most active and self-sacrificing on behalf of the heathen abroad, they have been purest, and most prosperous and successful at home? When they have given most money and most consecrated lives to the heathen, they have had most money to give and most lives devoted to work in the home fields. On the other hand, when they withheld sympathy, closed their purse, and concentrated attention on themselves, there have been spiritual decay, and even financial pressure, till some of our great cities seem to be handed over to the control of modern forms of Paganism; as, for instance, Boston, in New England, where the esoteric school of Buddhism is beginning to flourish. There are churches in New York, Philadelphia, and other towns, where congregations used to fill the floor and galleries to overflowing, but which are now becoming a kind of mausoleum where the Gospel has a decent burial, and where the minister's voice sounds through aisles and pillars like an echo through empty space.

We owe the debt of the Gospel to these heathen lands; but we owe them another debt, that of

AWFUL SOCIAL INJURY.

England and America have had much to do in history with African slavery, and they ought to be the foremost nations to carry the Gospel of freedom to the sable sons of the African continent. It is an awful shame and a fearful reproach—nay, it is an atrocious crime against God that these nations, instead of pouring missionaries by the thousand into the interior of the continent, are deluging Africa with the worst of all its foes—strong drink; and, in connection with that, gunpowder and firearms; thus helping men made crazy by alcohol, to do the most destructive work. I do beseech my Christian brethren and sisters to carry this thing before God.

Is it not time for us to revolutionise our methods of conducting foreign missions? We may not change our message; all the progress of the nineteenth century will never get beyond the Apostolic way of preaching and teaching. But we must revise our methods. We must not only hold ourselves as individually responsible, but we must bring up our children with the knowledge of their privileges.

THERE MUST BE CONSECRATED CRADLES

in our homes; then we shall have consecrated men and women. It was said by Mirabeau: "If you want to make noble men, you must lisp at the cradle the name of Washington." I would say: If you want to make the noblest type of man you must lisp at the cradle the name of Jesus Christ. Let our children grow up to think of those millions without Christ as the objects of their personal endeavour, and those territories overspread by the darkness and death-shade of heathenism as the scenes of the noblest and most privileged service under the sun.

I close by a single word—the paradox of missions; write it on your memories:—

Christ alone can save the world:
But Christ cannot save the world alone.

There must be disciples who, like Paul, fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in their flesh, for His body's sake, the Church. The death of Christ, the work of the Holy Ghost, the Word of God do not save souls without the intervention of believing disciples. We who have been saved by Christ are constituted his witnesses. Not to angels has God committed the proclamation of his Gospel. Those heavenly hosts would gladly have pressed forward, and have flown through the air as trumpet heralds of the Gospel. God crowded them back, and thrust forward the believing children of earth. And the transcendent charm of missions is this, that it brings us into closest fellowship with Him who emptied Himself and became obedient unto the death of the cross. If with Him we would be highly exalted, and take part in his final reign, we must with Him be deeply humiliated, and take part with Him in present vicarious suffering for the sake of a dying world.

SOUTHERN MOROCCO MISSION.

MR. E. F. BALDWIN, accompanied by Mr. Richmond, has for some time been absent from Mogador, on a visit to Syria, for the study of literary Arabic. Arriving at Beyrout on November 17, the devoted workers were warmly received by the American missionaries. Investigations made on the spot confirmed impressions already formed that a station in Syria would be a very desirable adjunct to the Southern Morocco Mission, as by a residence there recruits for work among Mohammedans generally would receive an equipment, which cannot but prove of the greatest value.

Mr. Richmond has remained behind to prosecute his studies, and is located at Suk-el-Gharb, a village several miles inland, from Beyrout, on the slope towards Lebanon. The work in which Mr. Baldwin is engaged continues to command the sympathy of many friends. Among recent contributions to the funds of the Mission is a sum of £1000 from an anonymous benefactor.

THE MISSIONARY TRAINING SCHOOL in Boston, U.S., of which Dr. A. J. Gordon is president, is designed to give a brief course of Biblical training to such men and women as have consecrated themselves to missionary service, but whose age and attainments render it impossible for them to enter any of our higher schools of learning. The school admits pupils of all evangelical denominations, provided only they exhibit the ability and devotion necessary for foreign missionary work. Tuition is free, and all possible aid is rendered to students for enabling them to support themselves while studying.

WANTED.

WANTED,—Men of fire!
Stirred by deepest thought;
Burning with desire;
Shrinking back from nought;
Pain, or loss, or shaming;
Labours, peril, sword,—
If that, Christ proclaiming,
Trophies crown their Lord.

WANTED,—Men of feeling!
Tender, loving, true;—
O'er whose hearts, soft-stealing,
Spreads the eternal dew;
With the mourners weeping;
Prompt at joyous call;
Holy watchers, keeping
Outlook meet for all.

WANTED,—Men of power!
Strong in God's own might;
While salvation's hour
Lengthens out its light,
Through all lands the story
Of our King to bear;
And for Him in glory
Earth's high throne prepare.

WANTED,—but they are not:
Who shall bring them forth?
Church of Jesus, spare not
Of thy best the worth;
Where the heathen perish,
Speed them on their way;—
He, who claims—will cherish;
He, who takes—repay.

JOSEPH TRITTON.

[From "Memorials of Joseph Tritton." Published for the benefit of the Baptist Missionary Society. To be obtained from the Secretary, 19, Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C., post free, 2s. 3d.]

THE ALDENHAM INSTITUTE.

ON Saturday evening the Aldenham Institute, Goldington-crescent, St. Pancras-road, held its eleventh annual meeting. After tea, Dr. B. W. Richardson took the chair, and the hall was speedily filled with an interested assemblage.

From the annual report it appeared that there were 267 students on the books at the end of the year; that the religious as well as the physical and intellectual progress is satisfactory; and that the Institute is now to be included in the scheme of Polytechnic instruction. Dr. RICHARDSON congratulated the Institute upon the report. In the course of an interesting address he pointed out the omission of the study of Biography in the programme of reading. The systematic study of the lives of men casts a flood of light not only on the history of individuals, but upon the times in which we live. As to physical training, he contended that all really good work was allied to a habit of methodical bodily exercise. He earnestly counselled moderation, however, and equally deprecated mental stress.

Mr. James Anstie having spoken briefly of the necessity of regarding work as life and life as work, Rev. JOHN MCNEILL gave an address. Every year's report, he said, gave evidence that the members of the Institute had made progress. They ought to see to it that they indulged in nothing which could impair their vitality, for if they did their work would suffer. He would like them, like himself, to begin by giving up smoking and drinking. The path of life to most was not and could not be one of flowers, and it would be well if that fact might be so laid to heart that they would keep brain and body constantly in good order by laying "aside every weight."

In acknowledging a vote of thanks, Dr. Richardson remarked that both tobacco and alcohol are inimical to health, and differed only in degree as to their hurtful effects. If alcohol deserves the gallows, tobacco should be sentenced to transportation for life.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XIX.—THE SUBSTITUTIONARY WORK OF CHRIST.

1 PETER iii. 20.

"CHRIST suffered!" That is the key-note. These believers were suffering—suffering for well-doing. 'Suffering for conscience' sake. And they were in heaviness through manifold trials. So the Apostle reminds them that Christ also suffered. How sweet is that little word also! Cæsar was wont to cheer his troops by addressing them as fellow-soldiers. Such is the force of this word. Are you homeless? Christ also had not where to lay his head. Are you poor? Christ also for our sakes became poor. Are you tempted? Christ also hath suffered, being tempted.

But Christ's sufferings are unique! Though He was righteous, He suffered as no other one has for sins, for it is clearly taught here that He suffered as a substitute, "the Just for the unjust."

It is quite true, as we are so often told, that the death of the Lord Jesus has had a great moral effect upon men, revealing the love of God, teaching the law of self-sacrifice, showing how keenly sin makes itself felt in the holy sensitive nature of eternal love. But, besides this subjective side of our Saviour's death, there is another, an objective one. He has not only done something towards men, softening and moving them to thoughts of unselfishness, and deeds of heroism, to which otherwise they must have been for ever strangers; but He has done something also toward the satisfaction of the great laws of the Divine nature, which make for righteousness. And if He had not done the latter, his work in the former had been in vain. It was not enough to touch men, there must be a public reparation made to that violated law, of which both Scripture and conscience speak. So only could penitent sinners be accepted.

It is not necessary that men should understand the philosophy of the Atonement in order to be saved by it. No doubt thousands have been saved by it who had an erroneous conception of its true significance, as the poor sufferer who thought that healing virtue lay in the hem of the Master's dress. Certainly our comfort and assurance become stronger in proportion to the clearness and Scripturalness of our views about the death of our Saviour. Still, our salvation does not depend on the accuracy of our intellectual conceptions, but on our trust in the Lord Jesus Christ as a Saviour, who through death has acquired the power to save unto the uttermost all that come unto God by Him.

The substitutionary character of the death of Christ is woven into the texture of Scripture, as the cross into a venerable minster. You cannot eradicate it without destroying the edifice which it underlies. Men must distort the plain meaning of words, ere they can succeed in its elimination from the sacred page.

As we study the Levitical law, we find substitution in every sacrifice. What else is implied in the care to have a stainless victim, in the imposition of hands, in the confession of guilt on the innocent head, in the death of the guiltless, while the guilty goes to his home free? What other truth is taught in the constant reiteration of phrases like that which accosts us in these words—phrases caught from the lips of the Master Himself, who spoke of his life being given a ransom for many? What else can explain the marvellous arguments of the Epistles to the Romans and Galatians? If only the masses of Christian people would read the Bible for themselves, instead of reading so many books about the Bible, they would be compelled to admit that the Scriptures are unanimous in attesting the substitutionary character of the sufferings of Jesus. He died for us. He bore our guilt and shame, and curse and penalty. He took to Himself the penal consequences of human sin, and put them away for ever.

But, in proclaiming this doctrine, let us avoid certain mis-statements.

(1) Let us beware of representing God as loving men only in consequence of Christ's death.—This is as illogical as it is unscriptural. For it is one of the postulates of all true thinking that God is, that God is the same, that God is the same Infinite Being, the I AM, the same in the yesterday of the past, and in the to-morrow of the future, as in the to-day of the present. But if the death of Christ be represented as having pacified an inexorable and bloodthirsty God, causing Him to love those who else must have withered under his relentless hate, it makes Him other than He was, and the Divine nature must have suffered a change, which is unthinkable and inadmissible.

The death of Christ is due to the love of God. God gave his Son because He so loved the world. The cross is the expression of a love which is older than the oldest star, more ancient than the most venerable elder who stands in the zenith light of heaven, long as eternity, vast as infinity, deep as the Being of God. "In this was manifested the love of God, that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world."

(2) Let us also beware of making too great a division in the Divine government between God's righteousness and his love.—There is no collision in God. The nature of God is not defined as righteousness, but as love. If it had been defined as righteousness, it is doubtful if love could have been included. But being defined as love, righteousness is of course included. And there is no collision in God between the two, for his righteousness is a fruit and offspring of his love. He must be righteous, because He is love. He loves, and, therefore, as the Judge of all the earth, He must do right.

It would not be consistent with love if He were to let sin go unnoticed or unpunished; or if He were to allow the moral law to fall into disuse; or if He were to permit us to set at defiance those promptings of our conscience which even we approve. Is it love, which with easy good nature suffers children to do as they list, unrebuked and unrestrained? Is it love to allow murder and lust and rapine to fill a nation of unoffending subjects without an attempt to bring the wrong-doers to justice? Is it love to a man himself to permit him to go on unchecked in a course of ceaseless evil? To ask these questions is to answer them. Love involves Righteousness, and the insistence on the maintenance of right. And in the cross of Jesus there is no variance between the attributes of God. Mercy and truth met together; righteousness and peace kissed each other.

But when men demand that we should refuse to believe in substitution because God is love, and therefore as not requiring an answer to the demands of his justice, we reply that, because He is love, therefore He must be just; He must maintain his law; He must exact penalty in respect of the violation of the demands of his righteousness; He must act in the moral sphere as He ever acts in the natural, in allowing law to secure its requisitions and demands when set at nought.

(3) Let us beware of dissociating the persons of the blessed Trinity in the work of atonement.—The death of Christ is sometimes so stated as if He stepped in between God and man, and did something on the prompting of his own heart, apart altogether from his Father. And then, of course, the objection arises, Why did God make or permit the innocent One to suffer?

But it must never be forgotten that the death of the cross was the act of the whole Deity. "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." "Christ, through the eternal Spirit, offered Himself." "My Father, which dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works." The Son did nothing of Himself, and how much less could He have wrought his greatest work apart from his Father. He was only translating into human guise and language acts and deeds which He saw his Father do.

And so in the cross we find the eternal God taking to Himself the consequences of human sin; and becoming Himself the propitiation for the sins of the world, bearing them Himself, pressed under them as a cart is pressed under sheaves, and putting them away.

This cannot be unjust. It would be unjust to take a good boy and make him suffer for a naughty one; but it cannot be unjust for Bronson Alcott to suffer himself the penalty which should be borne by the boys who have broken the regulations of his school. It cannot be unjust for one to substitute his life for another, else some of the noblest deeds of human history must be expunged.

Yes, reader, you may take this home as yours, and say, thankfully, God has suffered for me in the person of Jesus, the Just for the unjust. You may never have thanked Him, or availed yourself of the benefits of his death, as a man might leave bank-stock to accumulate unclaimed; you may even secure for yourself eternal condemnation in shutting out the love and light of God, and electing to live in the darkness of selfishness and godlessness. And yet it is true that out of his great love the eternal God has done something for you which He never did for angels, and which might make you blessed for ever.

(4) Let us beware of suggesting that Christ has ceased to suffer.—There is a sense, of course, in which our Saviour suffered for sins once. The direct work of substitution was accomplished on the cross, and was definitely concluded when Jesus cried, "It is finished!" The Resurrection proves that the work of propitiation is an accomplished fact.

But we must not suppose that Jesus has passed into an unsuffering heaven. He still suffers in each of his members. He is crucified afresh when we yield to wilful sin. He travails in birth until his kingdom come. He is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. How can He be at rest, whilst his beloved are tossing in the storm, and the members of his bride are not complete? And through his sufferings blessing is accruing; they cannot be in vain; we shall see all soon; meanwhile let us bear fellowship with Him in his anguish, drinking of his cup, that we may share his glory.

We stand now on the verge of a mysterious and difficult passage, but thus much is true and clear, that Christ suffered for us to bring us to God. Let us understand that, through faith in Him, we are made one with Him, and stand where He does in the very presence of God. "Made nigh by the blood of the cross." Let us in private prayer, or at the Lord's table, remember that nothing brings us so near as those precious sufferings. And, whenever we feel estranged and distant, let us betake ourselves to the cross, and, sitting there, meditate again on those wounds, till we are brought again into rapturous fellowship with our God, our Light, our Love, our exceeding Joy. And then from our sure fellowship with God we may dare to look out on all mysteries, not trying to explain God by the mystery, but the mystery by what we know God to be in our own happy fellowship. To whom be glory for ever.

Some Scottish Missions.—XIII.

THE "CHILDREN'S FRESH-AIR FORTNIGHT"

Is another of the activities in which Mr. Alex. Mackeith, of the Glasgow United Evangelistic Association, takes a keen interest.

It may be easily imagined that the Children's Free Dinner, described last week, and other spheres of labour amongst the young, bring the workers face to face with an amount of juvenile poverty and distress with which it is very difficult to deal. There are scores of little ones to whom a good meal is a great boon, but who need more than passing attention or a casual meal to make them healthy or strong. For six years this difficulty has been faced, and to a very large extent overcome, by the plan embodied in the title of the present article. This had its origin in the kindness of Rev. Thomas Gregory, of Kilmalcolm, who, in 1884, undertook to provide for a number of needy children, a generous act which he has repeated year by year. The scheme is thus explained by Mr. Mackeith himself:—

"The object of this scheme is to board with respectable parties in the country, and at the coast, some of the poor, delicate children of our city, so that, by getting good food and fresh air, their health may be confirmed. Care is taken that no one recovering from, or who has been recently in contact with, infectious disease is sent out. Five shillings per week is allowed for board and lodging of each child. As a rule the children remain a fortnight, when they are replaced by others, and this continues during the season. The ages of those sent are from five to fifteen years. They are selected from the poorest and most needy class, who inhabit our lanes, closes, and wynds. They are recommended by ministers, doctors, school board, and Sabbath-school teachers, Foundry Boy monitors, and other Christian workers; and to the great majority of them the change is a boon which can scarcely be told. Not only is their health improved, but they see much of the beauties and wonders of nature, of which they know nothing before. Some of them also, for the first time, make the acquaintance of a Christian home, and see in experience what Burns has so beautifully described in his

'COTTAR'S SATURDAY NIGHT.'

The work is under the charge of a committee of business men (directors from the three following organisations:—Glasgow Sabbath-school Union, Foundry Boys' Religious Society, and United Evangelical Association), who meet in the Tent Hall, every Tuesday evening during the season, at seven o'clock, to consider applications and arrange for the weekly despatch. From May last to October 3530 children enjoyed the holiday, the total for the six years being 7625."

What an amount of newly invigorated young life these figures imply, fraught with results which, considered negatively, must in many cases represent a prevention of disease and premature death; and, considered positively, have proved a means of fitting the recipients of the boon for an active and useful life. Mr. Mackeith goes on to say:—

"Only those visiting among the very poor of our city know the real value of this fresh-air movement, especially to families bereft of mothers. One of the Sabbath Dinner workers, following up on the evening of Sabbath in her usual way, some of the neediest of those who occupied her pew at the dinner, found in a house six children gathered round a coffin which contained the remains of their mother, who had died suddenly on Saturday, and in the bed an infant three days old. On asking for the father, she was informed he was in the infirmary with a broken leg. He was a quay labourer, and met with the accident thirteen weeks before. We were able to arrange for four of the children going to the country. We would gladly have taken the six had there been any way of disposing of the infant; but, as that could not be done, the girl of the family, aged twelve, had to stay and keep house."

It needs no lengthy article to illustrate the need and benefit of work like this, since experience and imagination unite in impressing them upon the mind. I could only wish that this notice could have appeared at a more appropriate period of the year, lest the interest that it might awaken should die a natural death ere the "fresh-air season" come again.

TO OBVIATE THIS DANGER

I would suggest that such interest should take a definite and practical shape at once, in readiness for the summer when it comes, and be communicated to Mr. Robert Gourlay, Bank of Scotland, Glasgow, or Mr. Mackeith himself, at 19, West Howard-street.

In addition to the aid thus afforded to the children, forty-four weary workers likewise had a fortnight's respite and rest, to equip them for further service.

There are other agencies by which the Association strives to draw in the little ones, which I had no opportunity of visiting personally. They are set forth by Mr. Mackeith in a pamphlet, entitled, "GO and DO," from which I glean the following facts. These present a fair idea of the aims in view, and the means adopted for attaining them.

After all had been done that could be done in the way of bringing the children into contact with the various charities, and after every existing charitable institution had been made the most of, it was found that for poor children belonging to families brought into temporary difficulties through sickness, want of work, or some such cause, no institution existed, and for their benefit the were started in February, 1875, and are doing their ameliorative work as vigorously as ever.

CHILDREN'S DAY REFUGES

During the past fourteen years 3698 children have been under the care of the Refuges. Taking one of the years as an average of the other thirteen, we find that of the 328 admitted that year the fathers of 105 were dead, the mothers of 21 were dead, the fathers of 39 had deserted them, the parents of 40 were either in bad health, blind, in prison, or drunken, and the fathers of 123 were out of work. In every case the child required home care before it could reap any benefit whatever from school attendance. This the Refuges (open every week-day, Saturday excepted) seek to supply. The children assemble in the morning, and after breakfast and worship they go to certain of the Board schools; at mid-day they return to the Refuges and receive soup and bread; in the evening they are supplied with porridge and milk; and, after being helped with their lessons, and having family worship, return to their homes. The superintendents do their best to see that the children are clean and tidy, have their lessons, &c., and are in a fit state for school. In other words the superintendents and the Refuges supply, temporarily,

THE PLACE OF PARENT AND HOME.

The children come from all parts of the city, and through every variety of agency. The main reaping-ground, however, is the Tent Hall, where the dinner is provided every Sabbath afternoon. From statistics taken for three successive Sabbaths, it was found that children from no fewer than 255 streets, lanes, &c., were present at these dinner gatherings. There are four Refuges in different parts of the city—three controlled by the Association and one under the independent management of three gentlemen, who started it a year or two ago.

It has been the aim of the superintendents to keep up an acquaintance with the scholars who have gone to work or service. In this their success has been gratifying, and testifies to the abiding influence of the training. As years passed on the idea of a re-union of old scholars took shape in January, 1885. For one of them the invitations were confined to those who had been scholars in one of the Refuges during the years 1875, 1876, and 1877. One hundred and twenty-two invitations were issued. Ten sent reasons for absence, and ninety-four were present. Of those invited eighteen were married, twelve of whom were present, most of them with their partners and families. In addition to those located in the city, there are numbers scattered over Scotland and England in different parts and occupations, as also in Canada and Australia. Several of those who live in town are known to be members of churches and active Christian workers."

The following incident, reported by one of the superintendents, shows the influence the children may have in their homes:—A few days ago, we learned that the mother of two of the children, who is a slave to strong drink, was drinking in company with some others. We went to her work, and prevailed on her to follow us to the school; but [illegible] before she could be spoken to. We called her to step, and, when she came to herself, we learned a sad story. Being [illegible] mother, and early taught to [illegible] tures, she had been a tract [illegible] three years a [illegible]. Even when intoxicated she said, 'Oh, it is dreadful that one who has spoken to others about their souls should be in this state!' 'Come and see me in to-day.' She says that now she cannot bear to read the Bible, for every word seems directed against herself. Her youngest child, Maggie, is a very [illegible], old-fashioned, wee body, and attracts general notice by her bonny, chubby face. The poor drunken mother says, 'When Beezy and Maggie come home from school and find me drunk, Beezy is very solid, and turns quiet and thoughtful; but Maggie gets on the bed, puts my cheek, and says, "Oh, mother, and that goes to my heart like twenty daggers. If I give them a piece when they come in from school, they won't touch it till they close their eyes and ask a blessing; and then I think, Why is the mother so ungrateful when her children never forget to thank God? Isn't it dreadful that I should be checked by my own children? I feel more ashamed when I see how differently my children act; and I know that they are being contaminated directly they enter the close, for we live in a bad place.' Though wandering far on the mountains of sin, is not the Good Shepherd still seeking his sheep? and may it not be that He who says, "A little child shall lead them," may use little Maggie to lead her poor erring mother to Himself?

WON'T YOU GIVE UP THE WHISKY?"

C. E. M.

HOME OF INDUSTRY.

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting for workers in the Home of Industry, Bethnal Green-road, on the evening of Wednesday week. During the tea hour much sympathetic regret was expressed when it became known that Miss Macpherson could not be present, owing to the effects of a cold.

Mr. Merry presided at the meeting, when Rev. F. B. MEYER gave an address on the principles of action that must characterise the Christian worker for Christ. With his usual felicity of phrase and beauty of illustration, he gave a helpful exposition of his subject. The Christian worker must have for his sole motive the glory of his Master. He must be clean in heart—purified from sin, and made fit for his Master's use. He must be wholly yielded up to Christ, and even gratefully accept reproof and failure when needed. He must ask for the anointing of the Holy Spirit for special work. His heart must be filled with evangelical teaching—with the Word, which is the sword of the Holy Spirit. Thus prepared and endowed, he can have a spirit of expectancy that he will be honoured as the channel through which God will work as a redeemer and deliverer of the sinful and the suffering.

Miss PERKS, of the Soldiers' Home, Winchester, gave an interesting account of the good work carried on at that institution. In the absence of Miss Macpherson, Miss STOCK described the recent Christmas and New Year's gatherings at the Home of Industry. From first to last there were entertained no fewer than two thousand persons. Christmas Day was devoted to the rescued children. Boxing Day is always set apart for the Young Women's Christian Band. Though some of the girls are now in Canada, and some in Australia, they still consider themselves class members, and manage to write in time for Boxing Day tea. The Watch Night services were very solemn; Miss Macpherson spoke in a way that seemed to go right home to the hearts of the very youngest. On New Year's Day a hundred aged widows belonging to the sewing-class were gathered to dinner at 2 o'clock, and a very cheerful time was spent. With many of these old women this feast is the only one which brightens up the dreary round of their lives. On the same day there were entertained a hundred women members of the adult Sunday-school. The 350 children had their usual tea, &c. During the Week of Prayer there were teas every night but Saturday, to various classes in regular attendance at the mission-schools, with an address each meeting.

In the course of the evening, earnest prayer was made on behalf of Dr. Barnardo and his family, in view of their recent bereavement, and for Mr. Solomon L. Ginsburg, a converted Jew, soon to leave for Portugal, whence later he will leave for Brazil, where he will labour among the Roman Catholics.

THE PARIS MISSION TO THE JEWS, founded in 1887 by Miss Ellis C. Law and Margaret A. Palmer, continues to perform a useful ministry in the French capital. Meetings have been held daily for Jews, who have also been welcome at all times as inquirers into Christian truth. The free dispensary has been a valuable agency, Dr. Thierry Mieg having regularly addressed the patients before consultation. The second annual report says: "The present moment is the great opportunity for giving the Gospel to France; and though our work is specially for the Jews, we do all in our power to evangelise the French people. Tracts and Gospels are willingly accepted, and we distribute them constantly to the passers-by. Prejudice is greatly broken down, both amongst the Jews and Catholics." All communications should be addressed to Miss Palmer, at 33, Rue de la Verrerie, Paris.

RESCUE WORK IN BONN.

CASES of betrayal and desertion having been frequently brought under the notice of Miss Lungstras, of Bonn, she was led to recognise that the most powerful lever one could have to raise these girls was that found in their own hearts—the God-implanted gift of a mother's love.

On the strength of this conviction, and with her trust in God alone (for no one at the outset was disposed to support her, either by sympathy or pecuniary aid), Miss Lungstras opened her Home in September, 1873. She began with two girls; since then 841 have been sheltered by her, of whom during fourteen and a half years the number of relapses has not exceeded seven per cent. During the same period 100 marriages have taken place among the girls, and not a few have through Miss Lungstras's mediation been received back by their relatives.

As soon as she has got a situation, which Miss Lungstras prefers in the first place to be in Bonn, it is expected that the mother will help towards the support of her child. There is thus a connection maintained between her and the Home which is in itself of great benefit to her, influencing her positively and negatively in a manner to which the "boarding-out" system presents a most unfavourable contrast. Those at a distance keep up a regular correspondence with the Home, and repair to it as the most natural resort when they have holidays, or in times of sickness, or when in need of advice. In short, it is to them really a home.

As the children grew older, it was found that another house was needed. The adjoining house was purchased for a Children's Home, to which they are taken after three years of age. There are at present twenty in this institution. Those not old enough for school get lessons at home, but their days are chiefly spent as young children's should be. Perhaps some of our readers will note the address, 67, Weber Strasse, Bonn, and when next on the Continent will pay the Home a visit, and be witnesses of their happy little faces.

Miss Lungstras's family at present numbers eighty-nine; at times it is over a hundred. The question of how all these are to be provided for she leaves in God's hand. She believes that He has led her step by step to undertake this work for Him, and she fully relies on Him for the supply of means wherewith to carry it on. Nor has her faith, though often sorely tried, been put to shame. Again and again, when the need has been greatest, in the most unexpected manner, and from the most unlooked-for quarters, help has come, and she has been made to sing, "He hath dealt bountifully with me."

ICELAND, with a population of 70,000, is entirely Protestant, and has no theatre, no police, no prison, and not even a Justice of the Peace! Happy land!

ST. PANCRAS INFIRMARY.—Situated on a slope of Highgate Hill, this building stands always open to receive and care for the sick poor of the great parish whose name it bears. Here the city toiler, struck down by disease, finds freely provided for his benefit, skilled medical attendance, trained nurses, and whatever nourishment may best suit his case. Between 500 and 600 patients are always in this admirably managed Institution. By the kind permission of the guardians, a number of visitors attend on Sunday mornings to speak to and read the Scriptures to the inmates. At present, on account of the lack of suitable helpers, a number of the wards are unvisited, and it is impossible for the chaplain to attend to the spiritual individual needs of each one in such a multitude. It is earnestly hoped that some of your readers living in Highgate, or in the vicinity, will help in this work. Information may be obtained from Mr. J. Atkinson, secretary of the Christian Community, 28, Enfield-road, N., or from Mr. W. R. Dovey, 22, Langdon-park-road, Highgate, N.

IN MEMORIAM: CECIL TURNER, Esq.

REST thee, freed spirit, till the dawn,
As sunbeam in the sun.
We hail thy shining light withdrawn,
We hail thy glory won.

That Word which, in thy sojourn here,
Was thy delightsome food,
Will meet thee in the changeless sphere
Of still unfolding good.

The living Spirit of the truth
Will crown his ministry,
Take of the things which Jesus doth,
Revealing them to thee.

Soon resurrection's day will break,
Christ welcome thee above,
Perfect in his full image make,
Unblamable in love.

January, 1890. THETA.

EMIGRATION OF CHILDREN.

A REPORT has been prepared in Canada with reference to children sent to the Dominion under the auspices of the various philanthropic and benevolent institutions engaged in such work. During the last few months over 500 children have been seen by the officials of the Government, a matter of some difficulty, considering the distances that have to be traversed and the way in which the young people are scattered. The results upon the whole are satisfactory, the percentage of failures being remarkably small. In by far the majority of instances the children are reported to be in comfortable homes, well looked after, and well clothed. Many attend school, and most of those who do not receive instruction from their employers.

The agent at Ottawa says:—"I can fairly state that the general result of the work is encouraging in its character, and that great care was displayed in locating these children, as I found all of them, with only three exceptions, in comfortable homes and well cared and provided for. A great number are being educated in the day schools, and their religious duties are carefully attended to by those having charge of them."

The Toronto agent is of the opinion that, "taking the inspection as a whole, the result has been pleasing and satisfactory, the children in almost every case being happy, contented, and well cared for, and in a fair way to become useful men and women." The tenor of the reports from Kingston and London is much the same, but the agent at Hamilton goes still further, and says that "in the whole of my inspection I have not met one undesirable home; the children are all comfortable and happy in their new homes, and I did not meet with a single case where a child wished to be returned."

Most of the children are from ten to fourteen years of age; but some are slightly older and some younger. There are a few cases reported in which the children were not healthy, and should not have been sent out. It is understood, however, that in all future cases a medical certificate must accompany each little emigrant.

WEST MARYLEBONE MISSION.—The twenty-seventh quarterly gathering of Christian workers was held at St. James's-hall, George-street, Lissongrove, on Tuesday, January 14, when addresses were delivered by Messrs. Sprunt, Dickinson, Maxted, and Dowling, on "Waiting upon God."

BRIXTON CHRISTIAN MISSION.—At the annual meeting of this Mission, held last week, it was stated that all the agencies of the Mission had wonderfully prospered. The aggressive work has revived, and the services are attended by increasing numbers. The Mission is entirely unsectarian, and supported by voluntary gifts.

The Gospel for the World.

THIS is the burden of Dr. Pierson's proclamation to the Christians of Great Britain. We have not received the Gospel simply to sit down in the enjoyment of its consolations, but rather to pass on its blessings to others who are still ignorant of God and his salvation. Having emphasised this timely and important truth in Scotland, Dr. Pierson has been unfolding it in London before large and influential assemblies.

On Wednesday afternoon last week Rev. C. H. Kelly presided over a meeting in the Lecture Hall of Westminster Chapel, S.W. Various denominations were represented by about sixty ministers and a few friends.

DR. PIERSON

was right heartily received, and he delivered a vigorous address. Having referred to a visit he had just paid to the Midlands, treading upon soil made sacred by the feet of William Carey and John Bunyan, as well as other saints of bygone generations, he urged the great need for human instrumentality being discounted in order that the Holy Ghost may be duly magnified. We grieve the Holy Spirit when we turn our eyes to any man. He also pointed out that there is no need for Christians to lay out their lives on a grand scale. That may be left to God; all we have to do is to take up the duty that is nearest at hand, not troubling ourselves about the magnitude or smallness of the work. He questioned whether any man who had ever done a great work for God consciously had it before him when he began. We, however, are so proud, and have so much self-complacency, that the Lord cannot let us have the work which we would do. Let us pray for humility, so that we may be used for something by the Lord of the harvest. Speaking then on in the service of God, Dr. Pierson said: I do not see how any man can be used of God who has not a firm faith in the verities of the Christian religion. I do not think you can be justified in calling upon anybody to join you on your standing-place if it is not a firm standing-place. How can we bear witness to what we do not know? We have been well counselled to "believe our beliefs and doubt our doubts"; there are some, I am sorry to say, who do the reverse—doubting their beliefs and believing their doubts. We cannot do much for God, if we are wanting in faith in Christ and his Gospel.

THE CONDITIONS OF POWER

Another condition of power is positive self-surrender to God. The strength of St. Paul's missionary life lay in his self-surrender. Many are called to the foreign field, but are not willing to go. Three great voices call for workers for the foreign field. The first is that ever-present command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." The second comes from the promise, "Lo! I am with you alway"; and the third comes from the seal that God has set upon foreign missionary work. In some further remarks the speaker impressed upon his hearers a sense of their great responsibility in the sight of God. A requirement of our time is a revival of the individualism of the Apostolic Church, when believers "were scattered abroad, and went everywhere preaching the word." Men and women then told what they knew, and thus the Gospel was spread abroad. Dr. Pierson urged ministers to educate their flocks on these matters, also to impress upon them the need for systematic giving towards carrying on the Lord's work.

REV. W. S SWANSON

observed: It is not the people who want arousing. I never have the slightest difficulty in getting the sympathy of the thinking men and women of our congregations. I sometimes fear that the lack is with the officers of the congregation, who have yet to learn that the more they raise for foreign work the more they will get for home endeavour. "No man liveth unto himself." A great many are away from the Church, not away from religion, because they think it is a selfish and self-seeking institution. Where should we in England have been if the early Church had not been a missionary Church? The Church of Christ is self-denying and aggressive, and has no reason of existence when it ceases to be aggressive.

We want a thorough revolution in the matter of missions. From the point of view of self-denial we have not yet begun to look at the matter. We first do everything for ourselves, and then dole out a little of what remains for the foreign field. That is neither ancient principle nor practice. The mission does not exist for the Church, but the Church for the mission; and may God pity the Church that thinks and acts otherwise.

In the evening a public meeting was held in Westminster Chapel. Mr. H. M. Matheson presided, and an address was delivered by formerly of Jamaica. He told of the great work which has been done in the island since the abolition of slavery. In connection with the various sections of the Church there are 104,000 persons in full communion, 11,000 inquirers, and 59,000 Sunday scholars; numbering in all, with casual adherents, fully 200,000, or one-third of the entire population of the island. As illustrating the earnestness of the people, Mr. East told of one man who, when he first went out thirty-eight years ago, handed him a roll of 200 names of persons whom he had led to Christ. While a slave, that man went by stealth in the dead of night from plantation to plantation, and delivered the message of Christ to his fellows in bondage.

REV. D. J. EAST,

The people have been taught that as soon as they are converted they must seek personally to bring others to the Saviour. One secret of the success of Gospel work in Jamaica was that the missionaries believed in the black man. Some have disputed his manhood; but, no longer mere "niggers," they have been shown to be men, every inch of them; and since their emancipation, they have grown fully conscious of their manhood. Many of them are true members of that Body in which there is no distinction between bond and free, male or female, and will, certainly, at last have a place in the general assembly and church of the first-born.

DR. PIERSON

began a speech by enlarging upon the gigantic character of the problem of world evangelisation. Yet the fact that the work is stupendous must not have a deterring effect upon us. The miracle of the feeding of the multitude well illustrates the case. As the disciples decreased the food in distribution, the Lord increased it for distribution.

The conviction that missions are of God has now permeated the Church, and large numbers of disciples have been fired by an enthusiastic interest in missionary progress. A writ of quo warranto ought to be served upon any Church that does not exist for missions. What is a Church for but to help to save the world? If, however, a Church turns all its attention upon itself and its own spiritual self-culture, it deserves to be swept from off the face of the earth. "By what warrant" does it exist at all?

If we take care of God's work, He will take care of our souls. Rather than singing of "reading our title clear to mansions in the skies," we had better be thinking how others can get to inherit those mansions. Instead, too, of singing of "an aching void the world can never fill," let us begin earnest labour for Christ, and we shall have changed experiences. Our Lord meant that who believes in Him should be a winner of souls. I should be afraid to meet my Master if I had done nothing to bring others to Him. In view of the prevailing apathy and lethargy, it is not so much a question of how the Church is to save the world, as it is of how the Church is to save herself if she does not work.

EVERY MAN AND WOMAN

We want to cast ourselves back on the omnipotent and omnipresent Christ. We want people converted from head to heel, all their powers and possessions, so that avarice shall no longer rule, and greed of gain shall cease to be the impulse of their activity. "We are not our own"; if the Lord has given us ten talents, all will have to be accounted for. People are going down to the grave in millions without having heard of Christ. How can we face them at the judgment seat, and answer to God for letting them perish, when the bread which would have fed them is in our hands, and we have not been earnest in the work of distribution?

On Thursday evening Dr. Pierson spoke at Downs Chapel, Clapton Park; and on Friday evening at Dr. Donald Fraser's church in Upper George-street, Marylebone. At the latter meeting Dr. Underhill, of the Baptist Missionary Society, presided, and an interesting address was given by Rev. WILLIAM COUSINS, of Madagascar. Speaking as a witness of what God had done in that island, he said it had been accomplished in a very brief period of time. It was just seventy years ago that the first agents of the London Missionary Society set foot at Antananarivo. During that time there was a long interval of persecution, but now there are many churches, schools, and colleges, with converts and children being taught. The little one has indeed become a thousand. Still the island as a whole is far from being Christian. The central province of Imerina, the land of the Hovas, is the most thoroughly evangelised, but even there not a fifth of the people attend the services, and the mass of the population have to be reached. Nine-tenths of the Malagasy are still to be evangelised. The ruling tribe of the Hovas must be trained first, so that they in turn may become missionaries to their fellows. There are many and great difficulties. These people were heathen but yesterday, and the breaking out of old customs shows how hard it is to uproot long-established habits. A more subtle spiritual difficulty comes from the old leaven of heathenism, and the spirit of impurity, showing itself even among the professing Christians. There has in recent years been an inrush of foreigners into the island, and the problem grows more complex than ever. Within a few months Mr. Cousins hoped, he said, to be again in Madagascar, not so enthusiastic, perhaps, as when he first went, twenty-eight years ago, but with a deeply rooted hopefulness and confidence in the success of missionary work among the heathen. The question for us is: Are we on the right track? We know we are, and the grand results of the past bid us look forward with hopeful confidence to the future.

On a preceding page we give some notes of the very powerful and impressive address delivered by Dr. Pierson.

PRAYER FOR IRELAND.—The annual prayer-meeting of the Irish Church Missions' Society was held on January 16. The clerical secretary referred to the success of the work during the past year, and the remarkable openings for the circulation of the Scriptures in Ireland. A number of friends joined in prayer on behalf of Gospel work in the sister island.

SCHOOL DINNERS.—With a view to obtaining the best information as to the methods and regulations under which meals are given, either by the State or by voluntary agencies, to necessitous children in large centres of population in Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States of America, Sir Henry Peek, Bart., has offered prizes of £60, £40, and £20 respectively, for the three best essays giving reliable information on the subject. Particulars of Mr. H. R. Appleton, secretary, London School Dinners Association, offices of the School Board for London, Victoria Embankment, London, W.C.

Young Men and Women.

Y.M.C.A. WORK IN INDIA.

THE secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at Trichoor, India, wrote recently to a friend, giving a cheering account of the exertions being made by the converts there for the spread of the Gospel:—"The people were accustomed to see only paid evangelists. Now there is a change; the members of the Y.M.C.A. go to places ten or fifteen miles distant from Trichoor and stay there for a week, or go and do the work in the surrounding places. As we have got some musical instruments there is not much difficulty in attracting crowds to us. Such preaching tours are undertaken only twice or thrice a year, when the students and teachers of the mission school here, both together forming the majority of the members, have holidays.

"A series of special services were conducted here by Mr. Latchman Row, the converted Brahmin, of Kolar, in Mysore. These meetings have been, under the blessing of God, the means of the conversion of sinners, and edification of believers."

Y.M.C.A. WORK IN BERLIN.

November 20, 1889, was a red-letter day for the interests of pure Christianity in Berlin. At 6 p.m. of that day the elegant new building of the "Christlicher Verein Junger Maenner zu Berlin, was dedicated in the presence of a truly notable assemblage of people. The structure is in two parts, one of which is to be used as a hospice, the proceeds of which will go into the treasury of the Association, while the other is to be devoted to the legitimate work of the Verein. One of the interesting features of the building is that the different rooms in the part used for Association purposes were furnished by members and friends from the various provinces and countries represented. The reading-room was furnished by Americans, and is known as the American room.

It is a striking proof of the efficiency of the Association that, although it is not yet seven years old, it now occupies so costly a structure. This is all the more remarkable when we remember that the movement has been obliged during this time to prove even its right to exist. At first it was opposed by almost all the pastors, who feared that it would interfere with the influence of the Church; and on the ground that it was an exotic, not necessary to the life of the German people, and while, perhaps, well suited to America, or to Great Britain, ill-suited to Germany. To-day it has the co-operation and earnest support of all the better class of the clergy, who cheerfully labour as members and friends. While many still neglect or ignore, its only opponents at present are the irreligious classes, especially the socialists. As one of the speakers at the dedication said, a new day has broken in Germany, in which the Church recognises her duty, especially to the young.

The Association represents the highest Christian sentiment of Berlin. Its officers are men who believe in Christianity in earnest. They do not all see certain questions as American Christians see them; but they emphasise the necessity of holy living, and the reality of Christian experience. It would have been impossible, from the tone of the addresses and prayers at the dedicatory services, to determine whether one were in America or Germany. The fact that the Association's work is grounded upon such emphatically evangelistic ideas, and not merely upon a moral plane, lends significance to certain facts which shall now be mentioned. First of all, not only are the Emperor and Empress friends and contributors to the Association, but her Majesty, the Empress, attended the dedication services, and sat as a humble listener while the great truths of the Gospel in their application to the needs of young men were being set forth in strongest words of eloquence. Not only was the good Empress present, but the grand old hero—General Field Marshal von Moltke—Count von Waldersee, chief of the general staff, and several other high military officers were present and took the liveliest interest in the exercises. Furthermore, the President of the Association is the Baron von Rothkirch, who gives many hours daily to its interests; while among the three Vice-Presidents are Counts Waldersee and Bernstorff, both of whom are in the most perfect sympathy with the work, the latter being well known to American Christians and all high officers of the German Court. These facts show that practical and spiritual work is taking hold of the ruling classes in a remarkable degree, and it promises great results for the future.

Among the many blessings which the work of the Y.M.C.A. is bringing to Berlin is the introduction of lay workers into the vineyard of the Master in Germany, which until lately has been held in abhorrence, especially by the clergy, many of whom even yet look with suspicion upon it if they do not openly oppose it. From the Association in Berlin, in the six years of its history, thirty-four young men have given themselves to missionary work either at home or in foreign parts. On the active committees for Christian work there are 170 young men out of a membership of 850. This is certainly a good showing. And there is an unlimited field for exertion, since in Berlin there are 300,000 young men without homes, taking their meals in restaurants, and having no home influences. To furnish a bit of home for these young men, the refreshment and reading rooms, the gymnasium and other of the secular departments, are open night and day. Refreshments are furnished at cost, not as a matter of charity so much as a means of attracting the young men immediately from their work to the rooms instead of going to other places of resort. The Association was the first organisation to enter the field in the practical work of breaking down distinctions of classes, which is so great a bane to German life. The Christian heart can but devoutly pray that this Association may carry out in the highest degree its excellent motto, "To honour God and to advance his kingdom," which blazed before the eyes of the Empress as she drove from the building on the evening of the dedication.—New York Independent.

THE MELBOURNE Y.W.C.A.

Last night, Tuesday Nov. 26, our magnificent town hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience to celebrate the seventh anniversary of this society. The whole of the area was occupied with tables loaded with good things; and I presume about 900 persons partook of an excellent tea. The repast was hardly over and the room fixed up properly before the crowd began to pour in to join with the earlier comers in the public meeting. The Hon. C. J. Ham, M.L.C., a constant and warm friend of the Association, presided. In his opening remarks he made the cheering announcement that the Association had now secured a very suitable building in which to carry on their increasing work. The fund, which had been largely increased by the efforts of the evangelist Mr. Clarke, now stood at over £7000 in the bank, besides some £3000 or £4000 promised and yet to come in. A third story is to be erected on the two-storied building secured, and when opened for the Association it was hoped it would be completed and furnished, and have no debt resting upon it.

Miss S. C. Booth, the hon. secretary, made an excellent speech and recorded some of the practical work engaged in by the Society. Addresses were also delivered by Revs. H. B. Macartney, H. Bath, and D. M. Ross (from Dundee, N.B.), which were cordially received by the sympathetic audience.

Having known the two secretaries, the Misses Booth, for some years, and having become acquainted with some of the everyday work of this Society, it is a pleasure to report this public demonstration of so admirable an organisation. The waiting on the Lord, the answers to prayer, the anxieties and difficulties attendant on the multifarious duties which have gradually been developing as the work has progressed, the grace and strength given for the time of need, are all but a repetition of what occurs in all such undertakings where the uplifting of the fallen, the spiritual strengthening of believing sisters, and the glory of God are the objects uppermost in the hearts and minds of the workers.

D. M. LOGAN.

Melbourne, November 27.

AN ANTI-GAMBLING DEMONSTRATION will be held in the Lecture Hall, Y.M.C.A., Aldersgate-street, this (Friday) evening.

THE Y.M.C.A. ORGAN in the United States, The Watchman, of Chicago, has had its title changed to the Young Men's Era.

WESTBOURNE GROVE Y.M.C.A.—Mr. George Hucklesby conducted a Mission for Young Men during the past week. A number have professed conversion.

REV. F. B. MEYER commenced a new series of Bible-readings for young men, on Saturday last, at the Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street. The subject of the present series is "The Basic Facts of Christianity," as suggested by the Apostles' Creed. The meetings are held every Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m., and are open to all young men.

"HOW TO FAIL" is the title of a quaintly suggestive paper read at a Y.M.C.A. meeting, and published in the current issue of The City of London Association News. One or two of the sharp sayings of the writer will indicate his peculiar but not ineffective logic:—"Do not attend the devotional meetings; only the live members of the Association come together at these meetings, and contact with them is apt to be dangerous." "Be careful to complain constantly of the want of life in the Association; this is a valuable remedy for en-

"FACTS FOR YOUNG MEN."—A happy thought has struck our wideawake friends of the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A. Having discovered from experience that the regulation "tract" does not always receive a hearty welcome from the average young man, they have hit on the expedient of compiling a little four-page sheet as a substitute, with the taking title at the head of this paragraph. The first issue, which is before us, has a short and pointed exhortation by Rev. F. B. Meyer, specially suited for young men. The remainder of the space is filled with certain live "facts" that are likely to be scanned and that must tell on those who read. These healing leaves ought to be scattered freely among our youth everywhere. Copies can be had of the Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C. 1s. 6d. per 100; 12s. 6d. per 1000.

THE BIBLE IN JAPAN.—Mr. W. G. Smith, of Tokyo, writes in Echoes of Service:—"For the three Bible Societies at work here one can feel unreservedly thankful. Last year they circulated in Japan 150,000 portions of God's Word, nearly one-third of which were complete Bibles or Testaments; and 214 colporteurs were employed for various lengths of time. There is seldom opposition to this dissemination of the Scriptures, but it is very difficult to get natives who are suited for the work of colportage."

WEEK OF PRAYER AT HAMPSTEAD.—Christian Union was illustrated in Hampstead. Rev. G. F. Head, vicar of Christ Church, arranged a series of prayer-meetings in the Bickersteth Memorial Hall, recently erected to commemorate the ministry of the present Bishop of Exeter. Christians of all denominations were invited, and joined in offering prayer. In the absence of Mr. Head through indisposition, for whose recovery earnest supplication was made, Rev. J. A. Bevan, curate of Christ Church, presided. Addresses were delivered on Monday, by Rev. J. H. Clay, vicar of All Saints', Child's Hill; Tuesday, by Rev. Newman Hall (Congregationalist), Christ Church, Lambeth; Wednesday, by Rev. A. G. Gristock, vicar of St. John's, Holloway; Thursday, by Rev. J. R. Gillies, of Hampstead Presbyterian Church; Friday, by Rev. Canon Girdlestone, of St. John's, Hampstead; Saturday, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, Baptist Church, Regent's-park. There were one heart and one utterance.

Gathered Gold.

The true spirit of the Sabbath appointment is, not that we should condense the religion of the week into the Sabbath, but that we should carry forth from the Sabbath its hallowed impulses and feelings into the other days of the week, to elevate and sustain us amid its wearisome secularities and depressing cares. The Lord has given us the Sabbath, not to relieve us of our religion, but so to revive our religion on that day as to impel its healthy tide into the remotest nook and corner of every-day duty.—Dr. Andrew Thomson.

Oh the work that sin has made in the world. This is the enemy that has brought in death; that has robbed and enslaved man; that has done the work of the devil and digged hell. This is that deadly poison, so powerful of operation, that one drop of it, shed on the root of mankind, has corrupted, spoiled, poisoned, and ruined his whole race at once. If Adam and all his children could be dug out of their graves, and their bodies piled up to heaven, and an inquest were made, what matchless murderer were guilty of all this blood? It would be all found in sin.—Joseph Alleine.

If thou carriest thy soul almost sinking under the burden of its guilt, to lay it down at the Redeemer's feet, what dost thou offer Him, but the spoil which He bled and died to recover and possess? And did He purchase it so dearly that you might reject it with disdain? Go to Him directly, and be assured that where sin hath abounded there grace shall much more abound! Be assured that, if one sinner can promise himself a more certain welcome than another, it is not he that is least guilty and miserable, but he that is most deeply humbled before God under a sense of misery and guilt.—Philip Doddridge.

Thanks to our God we pay;
For smile and tear,
For grief and cheer,
For gain, for loss,
For crown, for cross,
Thanks to our God this day.

Rev. R. M. Offord.

Weakest of believers, who go mourning under a sense of guilt, and conflicting with the ceaseless assaults of temptation; put off your sackcloth, and be girded with gladness, because Jesus is as merciful to hear as He is mighty to help; because He is touched with the tenderest sympathising concern for all your distresses; and He lives, ever lives, to be your Advocate with the Father. Why then should uneasy doubts sadden your countenances? Why should desponding fears oppress your souls? Turn, turn those disconsolate sighs into cheerful hymns, since you have his powerful intercession, and his inestimable merits, to be your anchor in all tribulations, to be your passport into eternal blessedness.—James Hervey.

Anxious inquirer! It is of infinite consequence for you to remember that you are received, not as worthy, but as unworthy; not as favourites, but as those who have been enemies; not as deserving life for your convictions, but as sentenced to death for your transgressions. "To him that worketh not, but believeth on Him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness" (Rom. iv. 5). Mark that expression; there is a vast comprehension of subject in it; it is the key to a correct knowledge of justification: "believeth in Him that justifieth the ungodly." We are justified, so far as we are concerned, under the character of "ungodly." If, then, we seek to make ourselves godly before we come to Christ, and wish to come under that character, we are shutting ourselves out from the blessing of justification; for this is granted only to them who consider themselves ungodly.—John Angell James.

Soldiers in Ireland.

It is now thirteen years since our Cork Soldiers' Home was opened, and it has pleased God so abundantly to bless the work* that, some time since, when our attention was directed to the great need which existed for a similar institution in the important city of Belfast, we felt compelled to respond. Belfast has a garrison of about 2000 men, and a large number of Royal Irish Constabulary. At present there is not a single safe place of resort for these men where they can spend their time out of barracks, free from temptations, in comfort, and with friends.

We are asked, "Where is the need of a Home when the soldier has everything he can possibly want in barracks." Barracks, they certainly have to house them, and duties to perform, which employ the greater part of their day; but four or five evenings in the week a soldier counts on having to himself from about six o'clock till half-past nine—many even till twelve. Where is he to go? What is he to do? The doors of public-houses, dancing-saloons, and all haunts of vice stand temptingly open.

Love of change is inherent in every one of us, and can we expect a man to remain quietly in barracks with hours to spare and nothing to do? No, he thinks he will "take a look round," as he expresses it, and strolls out of the barrack-gate with one or two special "chums." If there is no "Home" in the place, can one blame a man for spending the greater part of his evening in a public-house, or some such resort? He would have "nowheres else to go," as a young sergeant phrased it to us one evening; or, as a soldier in Belfast lately said to the writer, as she reasoned with him about the life he was leading: "We don't get a chance, Miss, to keep straight, for we are shut up to public-houses and to bad company."

Alas, this is only too true! Arriving strangers in strange towns, separated from all home ties and home influences, they find hundreds of hands stretched out to drag them down; a multitude of voices to cajole and tempt them; traps and snares on every hand; but how few, even amongst Christians, who will come to their aid in their battle against temptations, and try to win them for Christ.

Never was work in the army so important as in the present time. Now, under our short service system, the large majority of our soldiers are mere boys; they only serve for a few years, and then they scatter all over the country, carrying with them a great influence for good or evil. Frequently their time in the service proves a crisis in their lives; they are either led to give themselves to Christ and go forth to be a blessing to others; or it proves their ruin, so that with blighted lives they go out as agents of destruction to make others like themselves. The object of our work is to win them to Christ, in whom is surest safety from sin and temptation.

A most desirable site for a Soldiers' Home has been procured in Belfast, and the building has commenced; the total cost, including furnishing, will be £4000. £2700 has already been subscribed towards raising the amount required; our old and tried friends, Mr. T. A. Denny, Mr. Edward Denny, and Mr. S. Gurney Sheppard have kindly promised £100 each. In asking English and Scotch friends for help, we can plead that the large majority of the soldiers in Ireland are English and Scotchmen. In their isolated position in this country is to be found a wide and important field for Christian work among them.

Elise Sandes.

Soldiers' Home, Cork.

* A record of the work "Out of Barracks, or The Story of the Soldiers' Home at Cork," is published by Messrs. Nisbet & Co.

Mrs. Burnett, 40, High West-street, Dorchester, appeals for help in furnishing the new Y.W.C.A Institute in that town.

Prisons of the World.*

by charles cook.

When I was going through Portsmouth Prison some five or six years ago, a man, who was acting as cook, said: "I have been here twenty years." I asked, "What is your sentence?" He said, "For life." "What is your crime?" He said, "Murder. I was a soldier. I was taken to a party in India. I was made drunk. I came home. I rowed with my comrade, who stabbed me. I stabbed him in return. I recovered; he died. I was court-martialled, and sentenced to penal servitude for life." "What character do you bear?" And he said, "I have never been reported since I have been a convict. And as a soldier, the Duke would tell you, sir, there is not a mark against my name." I was soft-hearted enough to think that there might be yet something in that man, if he could be reached, which would be amenable to a kind and gentle action if blessed by God's Spirit. I said, "Take my card and give it to chief-warder George; mayhap you may want it in a few months' time."

To make a long story short, in less than ten weeks from that hour the man whom I met in Portsmouth convict prison was my hall-keeper at Hyde Park Hall. He was my servant for about fifteen months; and I have to say that at the end of the time during which he served me I found no evil in aught that he did. He was a good [illegible]: better still, I have a hope that he became a child of God. I got that good fellow parochial work at thirty shillings a week: and if I have done nothing else by all my travels, I would think that [illegible] He led me to do in being instrumental in saving that man and [illegible] work, and making him what he is to-day—an honest man and a good citizen.

We never put a man in a dark cell in England for longer than seven days; in France they confine a man for thirty-one days in total darkness. We never keep a man in solitary confinement in England longer than nine months; in France they keep a man in solitary confinement for ten years. I said to the officials, "What is the effect of this?" "Oh, sir," they said, "it has but one effect: it just drives them mad." That is one of the faults of the system which I pray God may soon be remedied. The [illegible] prisons in Paris in the course of one year, were visited, and in no instance was I stopped from distributing the Word of God. No Gospel preaching is ever heard in those prisons, no calls to repentance, no uplifting of Christ; and yet, by the goodness of our God, I have had the joy of leaving in those prison cells the blessed Word of God that can set the prisoner free.

I went from Egypt to Greece; and, excepting Morocco, Greece has the dirtiest prisons I know of. I could have scraped the dirt off the floors and stairs. It was more than a quarter of an inch thick on the stairs and the rooms where the men slept. I found ten men, sleeping and living, imprisoned in a room ten feet square; no ventilation but when the door was opened and shut. I found a second room, nineteen feet square, with twenty men in it, sleeping and living; no work to do and no books to read; and one poor man nearly dying, and with little or no food to eat. I could hardly ask them to accept the Bible till I had ordered coffee all round—for coffee to a Greek is meat and drink: and when they saw that we cared for their bodies, they listened to us as we told them we had something for their souls. We gave away, unhindered, as many copies of modern Greek Gospels as there were prisoners in that prison of Athens.

* Extracts from Mr. Charles Cook's lecture, "The Prisons of the World," published at one penny, by Passmore & Alabaster.

For the Young.

CHRISTMAS AT ANCELON.

TO ENGLISH BOYS AND GIRLS.

DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS—

I SUPPOSE you are so accustomed to Christmas trees that you think little of them. I would like to tell you about the Ancelon Christmas tree, for in some ways it was the most interesting I have ever seen. But to see it, it was needful to get to Ancelon, and that is not the easiest thing to do, as we soon found. True, mules were waiting us when we left the Diligence, but one was needed for the magic lantern, &c., so "Gris" took the baggage, and "Rubi" was to let us ride by turns.

Once out of the sunshine, and off the high road, we found the steep path a sheet of ice; every step was difficult, not to say dangerous, and soon our muleteer told us he dare not let us ride any further. Helping one another as best we could, we came out at last on the top of the "col." No ice here, but the descent was too steep for riding, and again in the ravines it was too icy. Rubi did give us some help.

I can assure you that after four hours of climbing, or descending, or scrambling, we were heartily glad to find ourselves, just after sunset, in Ancelon, where warm fires, hot tea, and a hearty welcome, made us very glad we had made the effort. It was Christmas Eve, and the pastor and family, leaving us to rest, went to the service in the temple. In spite of heavy rain, which began half an hour after our arrival, they told us there were perhaps sixty people at the service.

Christmas Day was cold and bright; the rain had soon changed to snow, and the mountains near and far-off were dazzling in the sunshine. At noon the temple filled, the women bringing their "chauffettes," which seem to serve instead of cloaks and muffs. There is no fire in the temple; the stone floor is damp; the roof is threatening to fall in. It made me nervous to see where one of the great crossbeams had bent in, and was supported by a not too solid-looking prop. "Why not mend it?" do you say? Well, those very beams had to be brought on men's shoulders the very road by which we had come. No wonder they put it off as long as they dare, and your fathers will understand how great the cost will be where there are no roads. I do hope no accident will happen.

The Christmas tree had been brought by the pastor's boys in this way from a forest above the col, two hours' distance. You would have been puzzled by the first directions given by Madame after dinner. "Now," she said to the boys, "plant the tree firmly in a hive!" But then you don't know how hives are made among the mountains. They are simply very thick slices of a hollow tree, covered with a flat stone; so you see that a hive like this did very well to plant the pine tree in. It was a very fine tree, and no wonder the boys and their mother admired it. It had none of the garlands of paper flowers with which the people in the towns often spoil them. There were tinsel or glass ornaments. There were tapers, of course, and walnuts covered with silver paper, and some oranges we had brought. Only once before had oranges been seen on an Ancelon tree, so they were much appreciated; a few sugar fish which had suffered during the journey, and had to be glued before they could be hung on the tree, and then a few tiny print work bags, made by Madame, with a thimble, or a few comfits, or a few needles, or a ball of thread, some scrap books, with pictures. These last were prizes for the most regular attendance. I saw one hanging up as an ornament in the house of the man the next day.

But the great ornament of the tree were the Brassados—I cannot answer for the spelling, for it is patois, and patois is not a written language; as near as I can come to it, I give it phonetically. You would have admired them I think, as they hung among the dark green foliage. They are a special mountain cake, made of little but eggs and flour, well kneaded, and then poured into a mug, and dropped into boiling water before baking them. Some of the women had brought the eggs, and Madame had made them. I think Monsieur himself had baked them in the great village oven. Any way, they looked very pretty, and tasted very nice.

The lights burnt somewhat unsteadily in the draughty temple, but no one seemed in a hurry to go away, and all listened attentively to what the pastor said to them. They have so few fêtes, that they like to prolong the few they have. You would not have thought any one was cold or tired if you had heard them sing the last hymn, a pretty, simple, Swiss evening hymn. They seemed to sing with all their hearts, and then came the parting salutations, and then for some of them the long walk, two hours or more across ravines and through the forest, before they could reach their distant homes.

I wish I could tell you that everyone is good at Ancelon; but a very sad thing which happened the day after, shows how impossible it is to shut out temptation, and what need there is for the temperance cause to make progress in France. A little mountain shepherd twelve years old had earned the sum of two francs. Feeling himself quite a man, he wanted to act like a man. His idea of manliness was to take six or eight little fellows, younger than himself, to the cabaret, and to treat them to brandy! Poor little boys! The cabaretier thought it fine fun to see them drunk, and to make them sing. It was no fun for their mothers, nor for Madame who takes such pains with them in the Sunday-school. But where their fathers go, it is no wonder the children see no harm in going.

We had intended returning home on Monday, but heavy rains fell, and blocked the cols, so we had to stay over the New Year. One night the temple was even fuller than on Christmas Day, for they came from all quarters to see my magic lantern, with its views of Palestine, and scenes in the life of Christ. How they sat for two hours in the deadly chill of the fireless temple, looking and listening with breathless attention, is more than I can tell. We were fairly ashamed of our warm wrappings, when we saw the women in their ordinary indoor dress, with, perhaps, a little handkerchief round neck or shoulders, and the men with their dark blue blouses, not a great coat nor cloak to be seen.

The day after the New Year was calm, and the cols were reported passable, so again Rubi was brought, and this time his mistress came with him. The snow was all gone from the southern slope, but the north side of the col, with its icy paths, was deep in snow. It seemed a nice conclusion to our visit when she said suddenly "There is a hymn I want to learn; something about a green hill." You know the hymn, of course. We began to sing it in French, but that was not what she wanted. She cannot read, and we were first to teach her the words, and then the tune. She left Rubi and the lantern to themselves, and, passing her arm through mine, gave herself up entirely to learn the hymn. She seemed quite sure we were as eager to teach as she was to learn. So, slipping occasionally, getting off the path now and then into the deep snow, singing and saying over and over and over the same words, we got down to the foot of the col. At last she seemed satisfied, and went back again to Rubi, and we heard her singing softly to herself, making a slight mistake which we did not care to correct:—

Pour que notre âme soit sauvée,
Et recueillie aux cieux;
Il fallait qu'elle soit lavée,
Dans son sang précieux.

We were soon on the level of railways and diligences. There is no need to tell you of our homeward journey. Only we were astonished to find that while the sun had melted the snows of Ancelon; the roads in the valley were so deep in snow that they had been opened by the snow plough. The snow lay in heaps all along, and the cold was certainly far more severe in the valley than even on the summit of the col.

I wonder if any of you will ever visit Ancelon.—Yours very sincerely,

S. R. GELDARD.

JACK AND TOMMY:

AN INCIDENT OF THE FOREST GATE FIRE.

He had brought one lad from the blinding smoke,
Where the cool, clear air to new life awoke;
Then a vision of "Tommy" before him broke:
And, as he again to the furnace sped,
With a dauntless spirit, he bravely said,
"I'll go, if it cost my life."

I wonder what links formed the golden chain
That could draw him back to the fire again;
To search for "Tommy," yet search in vain.
Brave "Jack"! he manfully did his part.
But the smoke-snakes coiled round his noble heart:
He went, but it cost his life.

We were perishing thus 'mid fires of sin,
When our Brother, Jesus, resolved to win
Our lives from death. Plunging bravely in,
The angels watched Him, and heard Him say,
As He forward rushed in the fatal way:
"I'll go, if it cost my life."

We stand to-day where the mounting flame
Illumines the heart that it must not claim:
We are saved, and honour our Saviour's name;
For not in vain did the Hero dash
Through the scorching fire and final crash—
He saved, but it cost his life.

Do you see yon lepers? A loathsome prey!
They need the songs of our "Happy day";
But who will go to them? Heaven, say?
There are fearless spirits who love them well.
Who once were snatched from the gates of hell;
They'll go, though it cost their life.

Do you see where the fires of fever burn?
Where widowed toilers with grief return?
Hush! who for the African's life will yearn?
New forms arise! on swift feet to go
Where fevers do hottest and fiercest glow;
They'll go, though it cost their life.

In the common task and the daily toil,
There are still brave deeds where our fears recoil;
But love speeds on though the flame-swords foil;
And lads and lasses, and man and maid,
Say bravely still, of no fire afraid:
"I'll go, if it cost my life."

WILLIAM LUFF.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Jan. 26, Matt. ii. 1—12; Mon., Jan. 27, Matt. ii. 13—23; Tues., Jan. 28, Matt. iii. 1—17; Wed., Jan. 29, Matt. iv. 1—11; Thurs., Jan. 30, Ma. iv. 12—25; Fri., Jan. 31, Matt. v. 1—16; Sat., Feb. 1, Matt. v. 17—32.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Market Rasen, Jan. 26—31; Lincoln, Feb. 1, 2; Bircham Newton, King's Lynn, Feb. 3, 4; Mr. T. L. Sayer, St. John's, Chelsea, Jan. 27 to Feb. 1.

NO WHITE NATION has much occasion to boast itself as to its treatment of inferior races; but among Protestant nations Holland, and among Catholic nations Spain and Portugal, enjoy a peculiarly bad eminence in this respect. There is this difference, however, according to Mr. Mackenzie, in his history of Spanish America: the Spanish Government and the Spanish Church, in the prime of their dominion, were unwearied in their efforts to restrain the harshness and rapacity of covetous adventurers, who had a long way the start of them, and very slowly did prevail against them; whereas the Dutch Government itself is still the main extortioner. We are glad to see that sections of the Dutch Church are beginning to bear a faithful witness against this iniquitous tyranny.—The Missionary Review.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER X.—TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS

(Concluded).

JAMIE'S TESTIMONY.

JAMIE D., a lad of fifteen, was a reader of the vilest fiction, a reckless youth, a hater of God's house and all good. One evening he was induced to attend a revival meeting and was impressed. Conviction of sin seized him; quickly the evil books were put away, the Bible took their place, and Jamie became an earnest seeker of the Lord. By and by the glad message of the Gospel entered his heart and he rejoiced. One of his first steps in the new way was to seek the conversion of his brother.

"Come to the meetin', Johnnie!" "Na, na, nae meetin' for me, Jamie."

"Man, Johnnie, ye've nae idea hoo happy ye would be if ye got Christ." "Pooh! Jamie, it's a' nonsense."

"Ye micht come tae the meetin' for ance." "No, I winna," said Johnnie, tartly.

"Man, Johnnie, I'll gae you this saxpence if ye'll come." Jamie had received the sixpence from his master for extra good service. The little bit of silver was tempting; Johnnie took it, went to the meeting, but did not come to Christ.

Jamie held on his own happy way. Not long was he in Christ when severe illness laid him low, and he was thought to be dying. Earnestly he prayed for recovery. "If the Lord spare me," he said, "I will serve Him upon my knees." His prayer was heard, and he was spared to serve God upon his knees in a manner wholly unexpected. From the peculiar nature of his disease he could not lie down; and most of his time was spent sitting on his knees. His sufferings were often excruciating; but he would say cheerfully, "My sufferings won't merit heaven; no, only the Blood—the blood of Christ." When promises of peace were quoted for his comfort, he said, "Beautiful promises! but the Blood, the Blood for me!" In his last hours, when suffering agonies of pain, he called his relatives to the bedside, and solemnly addressed each in turn. "O Johnnie, what will you do in the torments of hell when there will be no mother's hand to soothe you?" To another, he said, "F., give up your drinking." "I don't drink much," was the reply.

"You drink enough to keep you out of the kingdom of heaven," said the dying boy.

"Give up your swearing." "Oh, I don't often swear."

"Ah! you swear enough to keep you from being saved."

So Jamie delivered his dying testimony, and entered into rest.

"SAVED BY HALF A HAIR'S BREADTH."

An old man, who had been a church-goer all his days, was awakened from the sleep of self-righteousness in the last year of his life. The discovery of his state before God filled him with alarm. He sought and found salvation in Christ. When the visitor told him of one who affirmed that she had been saved from hell by a hair's breadth, the old man said: "If you could split a hair into two parts, I may say I have been saved by half a hair's breadth." He filled up the remaining five months of his life with loud and joyful testimony to the grace of God—"Salvation by grace; all from first to last by grace." And his impressive testimony was attended with the blessing of God.

A lad of sixteen lay dying, and was greatly afraid to die. He was visited, and the way of salvation explained to him. He was left to ponder this truth: Christ the Redeemer, and His death the ransom for sin and sinners. At the next visit the boy was found rejoicing; he was no longer afraid to die.

"What, not afraid to die!—how has that come about?"

"I'm going to heaven, and I needn't be afraid to die."

"Oh, indeed! you are going to heaven, are you? How is that?"

"Because," replied the dying lad with a look of bright intelligence, "Christ has paid my way! Oh yes, I see it; Christ has paid my way."

That is the marrow of the Gospel as put in the old lines:

> Upon a life I did not live,
> Upon a death I did not die—
> Another's life, another's death
> I stake my whole eternity.

A SAILOR LEPER.

A truly pitiable object in the district was a leper, a sailor who had contracted that terrible malady in a Maltese hospital, where he had lain ill of dysentery. He suffered in hands and feet from the disease, and his whole body was emaciated. He had been in several hospitals, from which he was invariably discharged as incurable. He was driven from post to pillar; nobody cared to have anything to do with him. His own wife and children were cruel to him. This, at first, we did not comprehend; at length it dawned on us that they wished to drive him from the house. In this they succeeded. He was a quiet, inoffensive, tender-hearted man. Never while I live shall I forget the picture of abject, unutterable misery presented by that poor leper when last I saw him. We had done what we could for him, and he was deeply grateful.

"Sir," he said, with choking utterance, "I do not mind the leprosy; it can only kill me, and I know I am a dying man: but to be cast off by my wife and children: this is a thousand times worse to bear. Yes, yes, I believe you, sir; though nobody will take me in, Jesus, the leper's friend, will not cast me out. Still, it is very hard to be turned adrift by one's own flesh and blood; I am dying of a broken heart, and believe me, sir, that is worse than leprosy."

And so he died. The remembrance of that wretched, cast-off, broken-hearted leper dims my eyes as I write.

One Sabbath night in winter a little ragged, barefooted boy, made his way to the door of the Mission School. The night was intensely cold; a chill wind with showers of hail swept the streets; everybody was within doors, and even the children of the district were not to be seen. At such seasons the Mission school-room presents powerful attractions to the little waifs. The light streaming through the windows, the warm air coming out of the open door, the cheerful hum of voices, the singing of the hymns, the happiness of the children within, combine to make the school, in the eyes of the little ones starving of cold outside, a very paradise of delights. It is too cold and wet to play; there is no comfort at home; and to get their bare feet and shivering limbs warmed for an hour would be a little heaven on earth. That night quite a number of children seeking admission into the school had been refused, for the good reason that the room was already overcrowded.

A CHILD OF THE SLUMS.

With sad hearts the shivering waifs went away back into the cold night, and with sadder hearts the teachers saw them depart. After these had been refused admission, this little fellow in his tatters and squalor knocked at the door and begged to be taken in; and somehow the person in charge of the door, without any sufficient reason, allowed him to enter. He could not read, he did not know even the letters of the alphabet; but he quickly learnt a few lines of a hymn from the lips of the teacher. He proved to be an eager scholar; and week after week he reappeared in the same rags, but with the same lively, happy look.

One night he brought with him a curious bundle of printed leaves: he said it was his own Bible. It consisted of portions of the sacred volume, the greater part being mere fragments and loose leaves, all tied together by a piece of rope. How had he come by it? Neighbours removing had thrown a quantity of chaff and other refuse into the street. In this heap of rubbish our little scholar had espied the old book; and, having carefully gathered the fragments together, bound them up by the bit of rope found in the same heap, and carried the prize away. How did he know it was the Bible? He could not read; but the quick intelligence of the child somehow led him to the conclusion that it was God's book. Proudly [illegible] proudly to the teacher: "It's my own Bible." Night after night he returned, always fondly carrying his Bible with him.

One [illegible] he did not appear: for several weeks he was a mystery. The teacher made [illegible] and learnt that in a wretched hovel, and in a dying state. There he lay on a bed of old rags [illegible] without a single visible comfort. On his rude pillow lay, near his head, his Bible, with its curious rope binding. He hailed his teacher with joy. "Teacher," he said, "I'm going to heaven; I'm going to Jesus!" From beneath his pillow he took out his Sabbath-school tickets, which he had carefully tied up in a rag, and said: "Take them back to the school, teacher; I won't need them. I'm going to Jesus!" With a thin, faltering voice he tried to sing his little hymn, and with the old tattered Bible pressed to his bosom, he went home to God.

Yes, reader, down in those dreary abodes we have heard the rustle of angels' wings; in the mire of the slums we have, with throbbing heart, traced the footprints of the Son of God; and through tearful vision have seen low in the gutters the foot of Jacob's ladder; and little children, aye, and old sinners, going up the steps to heaven.

EAST LONDON SEWING-CLASS.

THE help received last winter only enabled the ladies who carry on this work to keep up the class in Sidney-street, Mile End; and this has caused terrible disappointment to the poor applicants, who are chiefly widows, and to [illegible] the sewing-class is often the one means of relieving anxiety. The class, consisting of about seventy women, meets twice a week for three hours; many of the women are very old and feeble; three of the members have attended regularly for [illegible]. The women are visited in their homes, and their cases inquired into.

The work of the sewing-class extends beyond the giving of temporal relief to the very poor. Every afternoon the Bible is read, with a few words of comment and application: prayer is offered, and hymns are sung. One or more of the committee personally superintends the class once a week. The classes are open during the winter months to allow the women to earn the small sum of 1s. or 1s. 6d. each a week. Every £1 subscribed gives help to one poor woman by letting her earn 1s. 6d. weekly during the most trying months of the winter; and every £15 provides for a class of fifty women for one month. Lady A. Hobart-Hampden, 63, St. George's-road, S.W., will gladly give further particulars.

AFRICAN RACES AND THE BRUSSELS CONFERENCE.—A public meeting will be held at the Mansion House on Jan. 29, to consider questions affecting the protection of African races in connection with the International Conference at Brussels. The Lord Mayor will preside, and Earl Granville, Sir Robert Fowler, M.P., Sir T. Fowell Buxton, Sir Roper Lethbridge, and others have promised to attend.

* This deeply interesting and stimulating life history is now ready in book form; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards and gilt edges, for presentation, 3s. 6d.

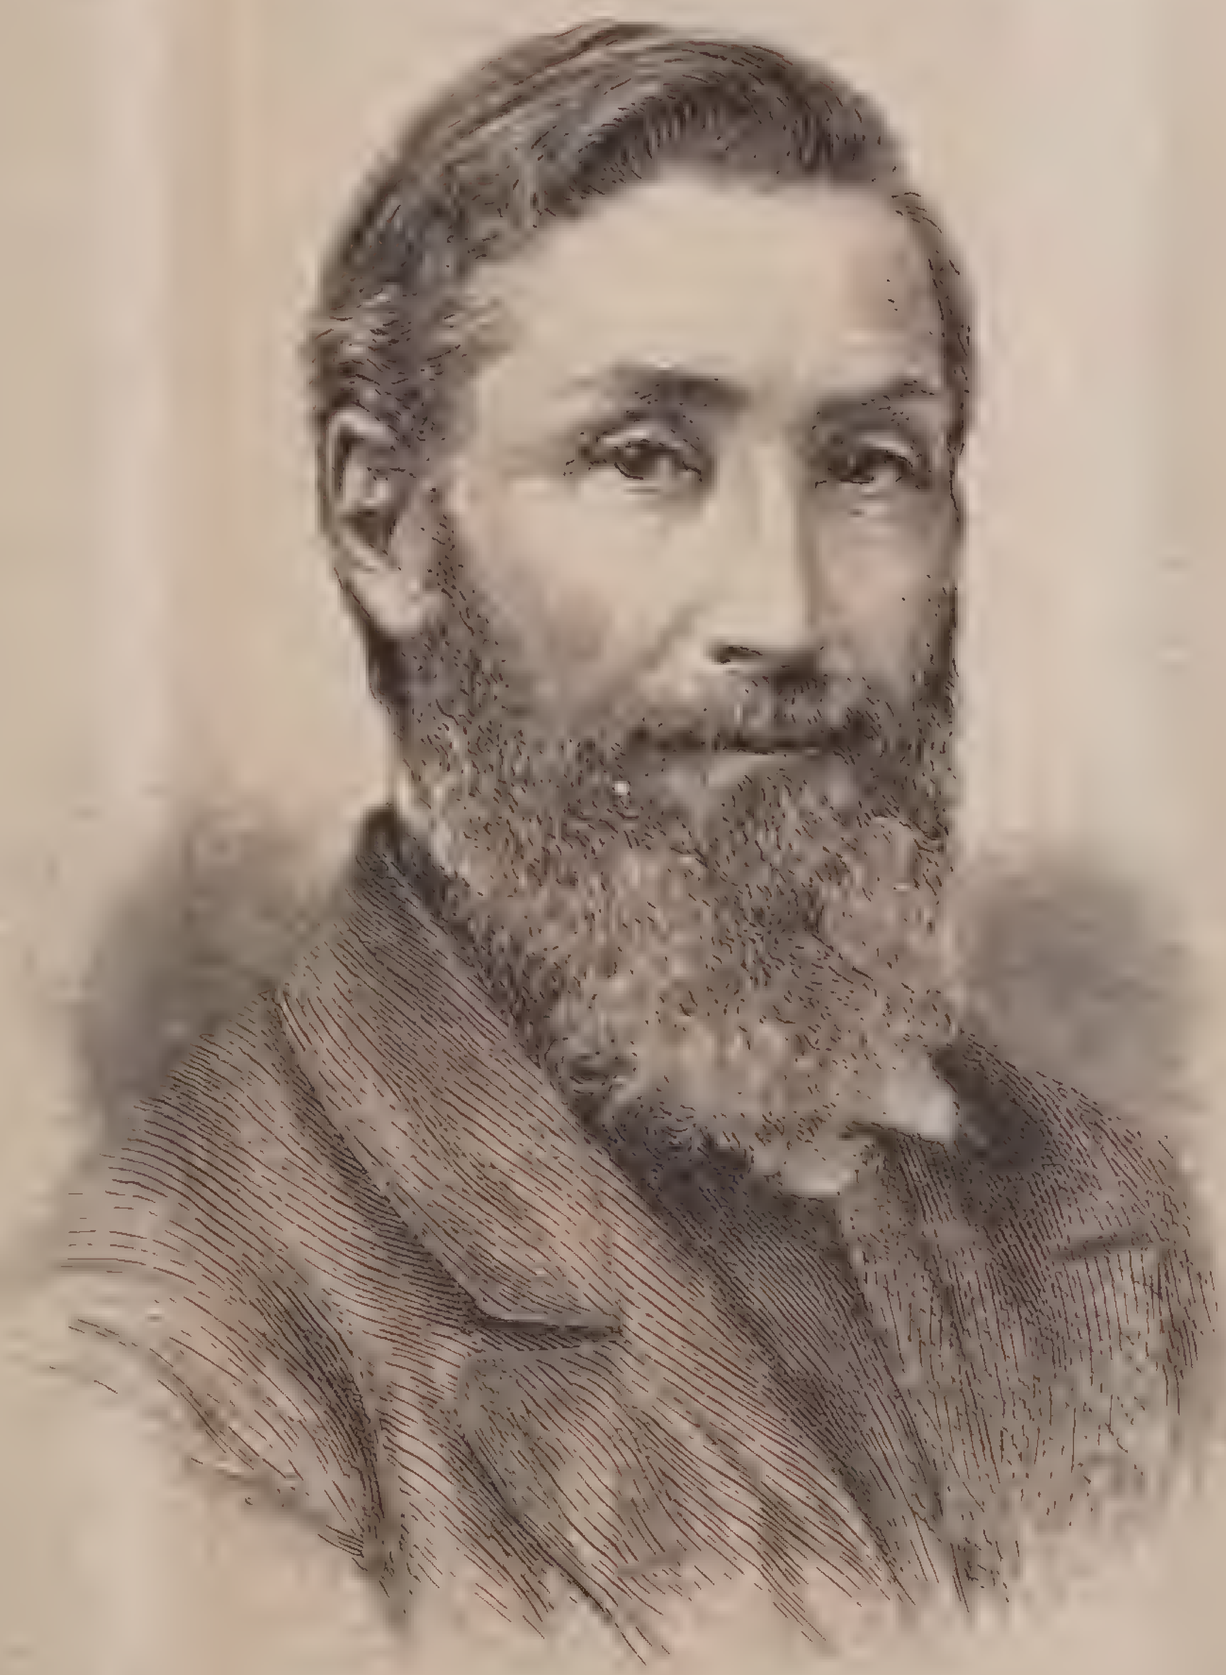
MONSIEUR M. F. COILLARD,

Founder of the French Zambesi Mission.

FEW men have done more to make the missionary cause beloved in France than Monsieur Coillard; and we do not wonder at it. He is endowed with such a combination of gifts as to make him the type of an ideal missionary. His enterprising character makes him a hero to all lovers of adventure; his mental powers win for him the admiration of the learned; while his amiable manner, tact, and pleasant conversation make him a general favourite, whether in a European drawing-room, at the kraal of a Zambesi chief, or in the rough camp of an African trader or explorer.

Though weak in appearance, his physical constitution must be naturally strong, or he could not have undergone all the privation and the effects of bad climate without breaking down. His mental faculties are rich and varied. His letters might be cited as models of literary prose. He knows English, and speaks the Lessouto language to a rare degree of perfection. He has made use of his poetical and musical talents by translating into the language of the Basutos a great many hymns. He is also remembered among them as an eloquent and powerful preacher.

The secret of his spiritual power is his absolute trust in God and his abiding communion with his Saviour. Madame Coillard walks with him in this life of faith.



FRANÇOIS COILLARD was born at Anières-les-Bourges, in the centre of France, in the year 1833. When still very young, he gave evidence of simple, childlike faith, which his pastor, the venerable Ami Bost, endeavoured to develop. It was at first supposed that young Coillard was preparing for a schoolmaster's career, but it was soon discovered that his cherished hope was to become a missionary. The committee of the Paris Foreign Mission having accepted his offer of service, placed him in a preparatory school. He then studied for two years in the Mission Institute, which had been shut for some time through lack of funds, but which then opened under the direction of Monsieur Eugène Casalis. This venerable missionary, who had worked during twenty-three years in the south of Africa, filled the heart of his young pupil with his own ardent love for the cause.

In 1857 Monsieur Coillard left Europe, bound for the field occupied by the French Mission in Basutoland. A severe trial awaited him. On his arrival at the Cape, he found that war had broken out between the Basutos and the Boers of the Orange Free State. It was only at the end of 1858 that he could make his way to Basutoland. Six months later he was put in charge of the new missionary station of Léribé.

Molapo, the chief of Léribé, was a son of King Moshesh. He had been brought to Christianity through the missionary Arbousset, but had relapsed into paganism and dissipation. Nevertheless, he kept in his heart the remembrance of happier days, and had expressed the wish to have a missionary in his capital. Monsieur Coillard was entrusted with this difficult post. He set himself to discharge the varied duties of a pioneer missionary; using the trowel, the saw, and the hatchet; teaching in the school, preaching, &c. He seemed equally fitted for all the branches of his arduous work. Wishing to live entirely in the midst of his people, he had built his hut in the centre of the village, though it was trying to him to hear day and night the distracting noises of music and dancing that went on close by.

After his marriage to Miss Mackintosh, who was to be the devoted companion of his life, the station that is still in use was built outside the village. The five subsequent years were full of successful work. The Gospel not only made progress in Léribé itself, but all the surrounding villages were visited, and native evangelists placed in many of them.

In 1865 the war with the Boers broke out again. During two years Monsieur Coillard remained at his post trying to ameliorate the horrors brought on by war; but one day a troop of soldiers bringing empty waggons with them, arrived at Léribé. The "Volksraad" of the Boers had sent them to carry away the missionary, hoping that the Basutos would submit, once they were deprived of their friend. Such was the haste of the soldiers that Madame Coillard had to take her bread unbaked from the oven. Monsieur and Madame Coillard were taken to Natal, where they were cordially received by the English settlers: Monsieur Coillard occupied his time by taking charge of an American station during the absence of its missionary.

In 1869 peace was restored, and Monsieur Coillard went back to Léribé. He found his station devastated, and had a great deal of trouble in repairing it. He was much comforted, however, when he saw that the trials gone through during the war had softened many hearts which were now ready to receive his message. A blessed revival broke out, and spread through the whole neighbourhood.

From 1870 to 1877 Monsieur Coillard remained at Léribé. It was a time of fruitfulness, both in his own immediate field and in the help he gave towards the organisation of the churches which had sprung up all over the country, thanks to the labours of the French missionaries. But he was soon to be called to a life of yet greater self-sacrifice. God laid on his heart the claims of the dark tribes living on the shores of the Zambesi River. We must go back to 1876 to trace the origin of the Zambesi Mission. The missionaries of Basutoland, thinking that the time had come for the native Christians to begin a missionary work of their own, sent a little band of evangelists to explore the country north of the Limpopo; but hindrances forced them to retrace their steps before they had arrived at any result, and it was deemed necessary that a European missionary should conduct the expedition.

Monsieur and Madame Coillard had toiled for twenty years, and now needed a little rest in their native country. They were just about to start for Europe, when the "Missionary Conference" asked them if they would not change their holidey for an exploration tour to the Banyaï country. The devoted missionary laid this appeal before the Lord, and soon was able to answer: "Here am I, send me." On May 6, 1887, he, with his wife, his niece, and four native evangelists and their families, started on their travels. Their little camp consisted only of three waggons and three tents. At first all went well. The caravan crossed the Limpopo and reached the country inhabited by the Matabele tribe. Monsieur Coillard sent a deputation to the king, asking to be allowed to cross the country. The king would not see the messengers. The missionary went to him in person, and the king was polite, but peremptorily refused his demand. Nothing would shake the despot's resolve, and it was with heavy hearts that the little band retraced their steps.

But it was not in Monsieur Coillard's nature to return to the Lessouto in consequence of an unsuccessful expedition. A new idea had occurred to him. He had heard of a people called the Barotsé, who long ago had formed part of the Basuto tribe. They had settled north of the Zambesi and had preserved their old religion, habits, and language. The native Basuto evangelists would feel quite at home among them. Therefore, when Monsieur Coillard arrived at Shoshong, he resolutely turned to the north with a part of his caravan: decided to cross the Zambesi, and visit the Barotsé tribe to see if the new Mission could not be started among them. Passing through Mparera and Leshuma, he arrived safely at Seshéké; from thence he sent messengers to the king, Robosi. After long delays Robosi sent word that he would be glad to receive the missionary in his country. All the members of the caravan, however, were ill with fever. Their supplies were exhausted, and the rainy seasan had set in; so they were obliged to turn back, and at last reached the Lessouto, leaving three tombs dug in the desert, like sentinels at the outposts.

The aim of their journey had been attained: a new missionary field had been discovered where native evangelists could work under the supervision of a few French missionaries. But fresh resources were necessary for this new enterprise, and it was decided that Monsieur and Madame Coillard should return to Europe to plead the cause of the Zambesi Mission before the churches of France.

Arriving early in 1880, they visited a great number of congregations in France, Alsatia, and Switzerland. They also travelled in Scotland and England. Monsieur Coillard was received with enthusiasm wherever he went, and the courageous pioneer started back for Africa in February, 1881, looking for the prayers and the support of the Christians of his native land.

He again left the Lessouto in January, 1884, to establish the "Barotsé Mission," which had been undertaken by the Paris committee. Monsieur Jeanmairet, a young missionary from Neuchâtel, had been added to the band. The journey was long and difficult; and it was with the utmost difficulty that the waggons were transported across the three tributaries of the Limpopo River. Then the travellers waded for weeks through dreadful marshes; the native guides and drivers gave Monsieur Coillard no end of trouble. At length, after passing through Leshuma and Sheshéké, the party reached Léalui (the capital of the Barotsi) in January, 1885; he had been one year on the journey.

The day after his arrival, Monsieur Coillard was presented to King Robosi (at Liwanika). The king was seated in the open space of the village, surrounded by his chiefs, ministers, servants, and players of various instruments, making a deafening noise. The missionary explained his purpose, and the favourite minister answered:—

> You are welcome, you who bring us rain and peace, sleep and prosperity; we have been waiting for you many years, and we were beginning to think you would never come. Now we are happy to see you, and to know that you come not only to visit us, but to live amongst us. Our hearts are yellow; our land is a land of blood; what we want is that you should train our minds and teach us peace.

Monsieur Coillard had soon to go through a long trial of patience. Civil war broke out among the Barotsi, and the missionary band had to wait eight months at Leshuma till the storm was over. At last, in August, they were able to move to Sheshéké, where a station was founded, and confided to Monsieur Jeanmairet, who had married Monsieur Coillard's niece. In October, 1886, Monsieur Coillard reached Léfula, which was to be his residence. In the following August the arrival of a band of helpers gave him great joy. It was composed of four missionaries—Monsieur and Madame Julla (both from the Waldensian valleys), Monsieur Dardier, a young medical missionary from Geneva, and Monsieur Gay, a Swiss agriculturist. Six months later Monsieur Dardier died from sunstroke, the first European martyr of the Zambesi Mission.

In August, 1888, M. Coillard wrote telling of the firstfruits of the Zambesi Mission:—

> Our little servant boy, Nguana-Ngombé, was converted, we think, a year ago; we often found him praying in the thicket near the house. One evening he came to me and shyly asked, using the very words: "What shall I do to be saved?" From that day he began talking to the people who came to the house....Last Sunday I spoke before a large audience about the unknown God. When I stopped, Nguana-Ngombé got up and asked if he might speak; he looked very much moved, and said: "My fathers and mothers, you wonder at my speaking here, but I feel I must tell you that I have long sought the unknown God of whom the moruti has spoken. I have found Him; I am a believer. You look astonished, but I am now a Christian; I was lost, and God has saved me."

Monsieur Coillard then repeats the account the boy gave of his conversion, and closes the letter with these words: "Was it not worth our while to come so far? Is it not enough to make us forget all our difficulties and trials?" News comes but seldom from these remote regions, and we have no recent tidings of this brave ambassador of the cross. We commend him to the prayerful remembrances of the Christian churches of Europe and America, and hope that, in this day of reviving interest about foreign missions, especially with respect to Africa, some consecrated men and women may be moved to emulate his noble and self-sacrificing life.

Miss de Broen's Belleville Mission.

Sir,—I should like through your columns, to wish my friends God's blessing in the new year, being unable to send out my usual cards on account of illness, from which, thank God, I am recovering. To those who live in poor quarters, winter is always a time of distress; but this season the sickness and want have been greater here than ever. Will friends uphold us by their prayers?

We are in great need of more workers and of funds. Our hearts are heavy by reason of all that surrounds us, and of our own insufficiency, although we do and can rejoice in the Lord's Word being proclaimed and received unto salvation. At our Medical Mission alone, the attendance during the year just closed, was 27,360,—Yours, in the Lord's service,

J. de Broen.

3, Rue Clavel, Belleville, Paris.

SHELTERING "DOSSERS."

The first anniversary of the Clerkenwell Shelter of the Salvation Army was celebrated on Thursday evening at St. John's-square, when Mr. Railton delivered a short address to an audience consisting almost entirely of "dossers." He pressed upon them the advantages of perseverance in right-doing. It may be, however, that the speeches of their converted comrades were more enjoyed by the men. One speaker, twenty-seven years of age, had spent fifteen years in prisons on the Continent. Another, who had been thirty-three times in gaol, described himself as having been a man of the most determined obstinacy in evil courses. "Lunatic broth" was the description given of strong drink by another speaker. A nineteen years old youth had been incarcerated thirteen times; but now he is "happily saved." Another had served forty-two times in prison.

The 200 men who nightly pass through the hands of Captain Keats and his assistants, come from every class of society. Last year the converts included two cashiers, a minister, three schoolmasters, eleven clerks, one land surveyor, and several artists. A minister's son who sought admission to the shelter has been converted, and a very interesting case is that of a man from Cambridge, Massachusetts, who after spending thousands of pounds in drink, came to the shelter, was saved, and is now the valued manager of a warehouse. As 140 are nightly turned away from the doors, another depôt will shortly be opened at Westminster.

NAPLES SAILORS' REST. — Mr. Stephen Burrowes writes: "God is blessing the work here. Of late there have been several awakenings on board ships and in the Rest. I hope to start on the 22nd inst. for Egypt and other countries, on my long-projected mission to encourage social, moral, and religious movements. Mrs. Burrowes and others will attend to the Rest work in my absence; personal letters to me during February should be addressed to the Grand Khedival Hotel, Cairo."

Waifs and Orphans.

DR. STEPHENSON'S ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

HIGH up in the bead-roll of the world's best benefactors are those men and women who devote time and energy to the finding of the poor and needy children of our great cities, and the training of them for holy and useful lives. Among such is Dr. BOWMAN STEPHENSON, in whose Homes some eight hundred boys and girls are sheltered and cared for till they can safely be sent out to do battle in the world on their own account. About three out of the eight hundred were present at Exeter Hall on Thursday evening, last week, when the customary New Year's festival took place. They were set in orderly array on the spacious orchestra, and, sooth to say, they formed a most goodly spectacle. Such gatherings are very popular with Exeter Hall habitués, and this was certainly no exception, judging from the large number of friends present.

Mr. WM. VANNER was a model chairman. He did not inflict a long speech on the audience, but his words were sensible and much to the point. He said that the spiritual character of the work was the main secret of its success, and to this must be attributed the fact that very few of the children turn out badly. One had only to look at them to see what a splendid and pretty object-lesson they presented—one which must appeal to the warmest sympathy of every Christian heart.

On these festive occasions there is always plenty of song by the children. Their sweet fresh voices are as much an argument to the ear as their appearance is to the eye. But there was a sufficient quantum of speech, and one of the chief orators of the evening was Rev. C. H. KELLY, the President of the Wesleyan Conference. The very best way, he said, to secure good citizens for the State is to take hold of the young. A large section of the community are so far gone and so Gospel hardened that there is little or no hope of their regeneration. But much is to be hoped for as the result of a right training of the young. No doubt it is costly work, and that is sometimes a beautiful excuse for some people to close their hearts and their pockets. But such work is worth far more than can be represented by any money expenditure. There will always be in this sad and sinful world fatherless and destitute children who need to be housed and fed. Start them well, as Dr. Stephenson does, and they will live sweet and good lives, that must blessedly tell far beyond the narrow bounds of their individual careers. With great earnestness, and from the bottom of his heart, Mr. Kelly wished that God's abundant blessing might rest on these Homes in the future as it had done in the past.

Dr. STEPHENSON'S own "statement," of course, was a very interesting one. He said that about half of the children had been affected by the fashionable influenza, and, at one time, he feared they would be unable to have a meeting at all. The work has been going on almost night and day all the year. They receive on an average one poor forlorn child every day in the year, excepting Sundays. There are now resident over 800 children, and a new house at Edgeworth, to be opened in March, will accommodate a further instalment. The Homes are carried on in a thoroughly unsectarian spirit. The orphans of poor, godly people are not left out, though the original idea of waif-rescue is kept well to the front. Some of the cases dealt with during the past year were recited, showing the great need that is met by the Institution. Bereavement, misfortune, the neglect or cruelty or sin of parents, are some of the causes that provide the Homes with the raw material. This fact of parental cruelty led Dr. Stephenson to refer in high terms to the good service done, in coping with that terrible wrong, by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Alluding to the religious nature of the work, he said that four of his "old boys" are now studying for the Christian ministry. The "family system" is carried out, and in every respect the instruction and training of the children are carefully seen to. The Homes are scattered over the country, and it is really a national work. On the financial point, Dr. Stephenson said that unless the ordinary income is increased by £800 a year some of the existing Homes will have to be closed. The good Doctor hoped the reporters would not fail to mention this fact, as it was the most practical point in his speech. We not only readily comply with his request, but venture to add that surely there will be no fear of such a contingency coming to pass. It would be a burning shame to wealthy, Christian England, if the exchequer of such a noble institution is not kept full to overflowing.

We have said that the music of the children was a big item in the evening's programme. If all the other branches of their education are carried out with the same thoroughness and success as their musical training, they must go out into the workaday world splendidly equipped. The precision and taste with which the various pieces—some of them by no means simple—were rendered, would have done credit to an adult choral society. Mendelssohn's fine production, "Hear my Prayer," as given by these youthful songsters, was a treat to hear. The solo parts were sung by a fair maiden of some fourteen summers with such ease, skill, and expression as boded well for her future musical career. Not only can these young people sing, but they can deftly handle all manner of musical instruments. The "Eclectic Orchestra" would surely have charmed and soothed the savage breast of Nebuchadnezzar himself, accustomed though he was to "the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, dulcimer, and all kinds of musick."

Dr. Stephenson wanted the collection to make up a present deficit of £200, and to provide a nest-egg for the coming financial year. We believe the collective pocket of the meeting did not quite yield the desired amount, though a few generous gifts were announced. There is therefore an opportunity yet for the co-operation of all lovers of the little folk. These children are well worth saving, and Dr. Stephenson's Homes evidently do the work in first-rate fashion.

DEPTFORD MEDICAL MISSION.

OUR first report should ere this have been in the hands of the printer, but the press of work at the Mission House during the past few weeks has been so great that I have been quite unable to do anything but care for the multitudes of poor and needy sick who have sought our help and advice. Last week our Patients' Mid-day Mission service was attended on the two dispensary days respectively by 142 and 118 persons. The visiting work has greatly increased, and many severe cases of influenza have been under our care. Cases of starvation need are being relieved, and opportunities for mission work are abundantly provided at the bedside of the sick and the dying.

May I ask our Christian friends to remember the deep and pressing needs of our epidemic-stricken district. F. A. PRING, M.R.C.S.

188, High-street, Deptford, S.E.

THE GOVERNMENT OF CHINA, says The Indian Witness, have the option of refusing to receive opium from India in 1890. The petition calling upon that Government to do so, which has been so extensively signed within the last three months, will be taken to China by a deputation from India, and presented at the Chinese Court. It will thus be given the best possible chance of success. If China should exercise her treaty right and prevent further importation, the Indian Government would be forced to raise its revenue from some other source. A slight import duty on piece goods, and a stiff import duty on all European liquors would make up for the loss, and leave a margin for Burman railway extension.

CONVERSION OF A SPANISH PRIEST.

THE conversion of Rev. Rafael de Zafra Menéndez, ex-Roman Catholic priest, has greatly cheered Pastor Lopez Rodriguez and his devoted wife in their important work in Northeast Spain. Having been friar, Jesuit, professor, apostolic missionary, parochial rector, and mission preacher, in Spain, France, and Africa, Father Zafra has had a varied experience. He is a Doctor of Divinity and an eloquent speaker. His public recantation of the errors of Rome, and confession of faith in Christ as the one Mediator, caused considerable excitement throughout the province of Gerona, and a copy of his letter of abjuration was sent to every priest and mayor.

The occasion of the recantation was admirably improved. In words of truth, lovingly expressed, Father Zafra declared how ardently he had devoted himself to all that is enjoined by the Church of Rome, animated by the hope of thereby gaining salvation, and ultimate glory. But he had failed to find the peace and satisfaction he longed for. All was doubt and unrest. Like Luther, he imagined that surely in the "Eternal City," where dwells his Holiness, "God's Representative," he would obtain that which he so fervently desired. Sad deception! Instead of purity and godliness, he found a revolting mass of worldliness, and hollow ceremonial. Almost crushed in spirit, he sought a copy of the Scriptures, but found the sacred volume distorted, and soiled with human additions and subtractions. At last he obtained a true (Protestant) version, and as a traveller in the dark seizes a torch to guide his benighted steps, so he grasped the precious "lamp" of God's Holy Word, the entrance of which gave him light. In it he found all, and more than he had for a lifetime so eagerly sought.

Satisfied that the simple Gospel is the truth, Father Zafra resolved at all costs to throw off the chains of error and superstition which had so long bound him, and openly

TO LEAVE THE CHURCH OF ROME.

But who was there to extend a helping hand? To have disclosed his secret to personal friends or ecclesiastical brethren would have been fatal to his safety. In the disguise of a peasant he went to the depôt of the Religious Tract Society in Barcelona, and inquired for a Protestant pastor. At that moment, Pastor Lopez Rodriguez, on business from Figueras, entered the shop, and, was introduced to the inquirer. Shown into a private room, Father Zafra told his story, and, after answering searching questions, the interview, which was long and interesting, closed with united prayer for grace and guidance. Having narrated these matters, Father Zafra solemnly recalled all the vows and oaths which, in days of darkness, he had made and taken. Being thus free from Romish ties, he promised, by God's help, in future "not to know anything among men but Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

Since his recantation, Father Zafra has accompanied Pastor Lopez Rodriguez to various towns and villages in the province, and has delivered powerful Gospel addresses to crowded audiences in theatres and ball-rooms. There can be no doubt about the sincerity of the convert; for he has exchanged a position of influence and pecuniary advantage for that of a humble preacher of the Gospel, and a mission-school teacher, with a small living allowance. Such of our readers as desire more details of this very interesting case are recommended to procure copies of recent "Letters from Spain," by Madame Lopez Rodriguez, from Rev. J. C. Stewart Mathias, Theberton Rectory, Saxmundham, Suffolk, who is hon. treasurer of the Figueras Mission.

Mission Work in China.

LETTER FROM MR. HUDSON TAYLOR.

IN an excellent article by my good friend Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, entitled, "Is the Church aroused?" which appeared in your issue of the 3rd inst., there is a reference to the desirability of a thousand special evangelists going out to carry the Gospel to every creature in China. In that article, however, our friend makes the mistake of supposing that the China Inland Mission is planning to send out two hundred of these evangelists yearly for five years. This is not at all our thought.

In a leading article in the December number of China's Millions, I endeavoured to show hat if one thousand evangelists were at once sent out by the united action of the various churches and denominations on both sides of tthe Atlantic, then, allowing two years for study and preliminary arrangements, every family in China might have the Gospel offered to them by the end of the year 1895. Estimating the population of China as we do at 250 millions, or 50 millions of families, one thousand evangelists working for one thousand days (less than three years), and reaching fifty families (or little more than one hundred adults, together with their children of intelligent age), would effect this work.

I further suggested that of such a contingent, America, with her 3000 or 4000 college students pledged to missionary work, might easily furnish one-half; leaving only 500 to be drawn from Europe. From a recent visit to Norway and Sweden I am convinced that Scandinavia could furnish 100. Can we doubt that the Episcopal Church of Great Britain, and the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches of the United Kingdom, could each furnish their contingent of 100 workers? leaving only 100 to be supplied by other Nonconformist churches of Great Britain and by the Protestants of Continental Europe.

I cannot here stay to discuss the feasibility of carrying out this plan of work, nor the benefits that may be expected to accrue from thus rapidly evangelising the whole Empire. I must refer those interested to the article in the December issue of China's Millions, and to one which I hope will appear in the February issue of the same paper. But I may, perhaps, point out here the ease with which such workers might be supported. Many Christians, unable to go themselves, might sustain a representative in the mission-field; for in the interior of China the expense need not exceed £50 a year. In some cases several might join in praying for and sustaining one of the evangelists. We know cases in which praying bands of five or ten persons do support a missionary in this way. Then a church, Y.M.C.A., or Y.W.C.A., containing thirty-five men or women willing to give 1d. a day, could have their own missionary. How easily many could save 1d. a day—the price of a newspaper, of a postage stamp, of a tram or omnibus ride! But if this were too much, double the number of contributors, and let them give ½d. a day.

Again, a Sunday-school from which forty teachers and children could each collect 6d. weekly, could have their own evangelist. But we need not multiply illustrations of the case with which the churches, if really roused, might carry out this work. If, however, they were unprepared to take up the responsibility of it, surely there are more than 500 men and women in Europe who could go out at their own charges on so glorious an errand; nay, there are individual Christian men who could, if sufficiently impressed, provide the £20,000 which would cover the outfit and passage money of the whole 500, or the £25,000 which would support the whole of them for a year in China.

I commend this subject to the prayerful consideration of your readers, earnestly desiring that it may be speedily taken up by the Church as a whole. J. HUDSON TAYLOR.

[90]

METHODS.

In September last we published a letter by Mr. C. H. Judd, of Ninghai, near Chefoo, in which reference was made to the comparative smallness of the increase of converts in China. Endeavouring to account for this, he found one reason in the fact that many missionaries are not easily accessible to the people, owing to their not living in native style. We have received a communication, by way of reply, from Rev. Edward S. Little, of the Methodist Episcopal Mission, Kin-Kiang, in which facts and figures are adduced in disproof of Mr. Judd's too sweeping allegation. Mr. Little says: "Foreign style is not the least bar to a full and free intercourse with the Chinese. Every day of the year men come in ever-increasing numbers to my house, to see me in reference to our religion. They are of all kinds—small officials and literary men, but the majority people of the humbler class. I am a foreigner, whether living in foreign or native style, and it is no use to conceal it. I have found that it is the heart that can reach the heart, and a man in native style can be just as forbidding as one in foreign style. A native house can be just as easily barred against the Chinese as a foreign. My church is thronged with attentive hearers; thousands and thousands of people come to hear me preach.

"Dr. John, at Hankow, lives in the 'palace' Mr. Judd so unguardedly speaks of; no man has a better influence there than Dr. John. Every Chinaman knows he can go to his house at any hour of the day or night and see him, and they do go, multitudes of them. Go to the chapels, and you will find large buildings, foreign style, crammed with Christians. I have seen it within the last two weeks. Glory to God, we can chronicle victory all along our lines. Look at the grand Wesleyan workers in Hankow, mostly living in foreign style. I saw their compounds filled with Chinese, and a great work going on.

"We will not attack our brethren who live native style; if they think this is the best way for them we cordially say, 'God bless you and prosper you!' China is too big, and workers too few; we cannot afford to be fighting ourselves, but should be joining hands, you in your way and I in mine, for no one method is absolutely faultless against our common foe."

HINDRANCES.

DEAR SIR,—We are commanded by our risen Lord to pray the Lord of the harvest to thrust forth labourers into his harvest. We do so, and He answers prayer in sending us out labourers. What then? These witnesses of the cross must be located in the various provinces to work. They come up to the central stations, stay awhile, and then go off to stations in new cities to work. All very good and nice; but what about these new cities for mission stations? Are they easily opened as a rule? I reply emphatically, "No." We have great difficulties in renting houses, mostly owing to the magistrates being unwilling to allow us into their cities.

I hear some good people, who have prayed for us in the Lord's work, say: "I thought China was open to the Gospel long ago, and that the Chinese are glad and ready to receive us into their cities. Is this not the case?" Let me sum my reply up in these words, regarding this huge Province of Sz-chúan. The officials do not want us foreigners at all, and try their best to hinder our getting houses. Thus are we hindered from opening fresh stations, and thus is the blessed Gospel not spread. At the present date we want to open fresh stations and are positively denied an entrance into the cities by the Mandarins! The people, as a rule, are nice; but these officials will not allow our renting houses!

The Lord is graciously sending us reinforcements; but where are they to be stationed? We cannot all cram into the two or three stations we have, but must scatter in twos or threes into new stations according to the Scriptural methods. Our Captain knows well his children must have places to live in amongst the poor heathen. Therefore let us pray in deep earnest that He, who hath the hearts of all men in his hands, will speedily make these officials willing to receive us ambassadors of the cross, and that we may live in peace amongst the heathen, preaching Jesus and the resurrection.

He wills his salvation should be made known through every city, market, and village in China, therefore we "go forward" in full confidence in this fight against Satan and his hosts, knowing "the Lord reigneth as Head above all." But oh how we crave the daily prayers of all true believers, that Satan's attempts to hinder the spread of the Gospel may be frustrated, and that we may be strong in Him, faithfully toiling on in our "high calling" for the salvation of these precious souls, "till Jesus comes."—Yours in Him,

W. HOPE GILL.

Pao-ning Fu, Sz-chuan, West China,

CONVERSIONS.

At Tan-Lin out-station, worked from here, eleven were recently baptized. The following notes will doubtless be interesting to our praying friends:—

THE CHANG FAMILY.

Of this family three members were baptized, viz., the old grandparents and a married son, a man of about forty years of age: the old people were over sixty. Chang, the son, was cured of opium-smoking through the help of our native helper, Wang. After hearing the Gospel a few times he gave Wang a present of a basketful of idols, retaining two idols to cook that day's rice! This happened before the opium cure. Chang's family, through him, came to know of the truth, and with one mind all believed. Three of the family are not yet baptized; one girl of a few years wanted her name down as a disciple. It was a great joy to us to see a whole family of six becoming believers.

KWEH.

A man about sixty years of age, farmer and oil seller. For nine years Kweh had been a religious devotee, seeking for truth but finding it not. Buddhism was the last of the various ways he had sought, and when the Gospel took hold upon him, he was acting after the fashion of a precentor on high days, when the Buddhist idols were publicly worshipped. Old Kweh was sorry that he had not found the true way in his younger days. Here may I ask. Who is to blame that he did not hear it earlier? His home is now cleared of idols and incense, otherwise than the sweet incense of a heart given to the Lord.

SHAO TA YEH AND WIFE.

These are a couple of poor but independent farmers living a little way outside the city. Before they believed the Gospel they had no peace at home; so disagreed were they as to have separate pans to cook their rice. Now they live in peace, the husband teaching the old wife to read the Scriptures. Both are outspoken in their witness for Jesus as their Saviour.

CH'ENG.

This brother is a carpenter, a quiet unassuming man: he was for years a Buddhist devotee. Every evening he would light a long stick of incense, and until it was burnt out he would sit on a mat meditating on the person of Tamo, a Buddhist patriarch who came to China after the introduction of Buddhism. When Ch'eng heard the Gospel he readily believed. Some twelve years ago a scholar, who had seen a Christian book, told Ch'eng that this doctrine was coming: the scholar is long since died, and Ch'eng was glad that the doctrine had come at last. 'Twas a long time coming!

CHEN CHUI EZ.

A young woman who has been a sufferer from lupus for a long time; medicine barely keeping the disease in check. With such a malady she had no peace or joy. Hearing the Gospel, she believed, and the peace of Jesus Christ became hers, chasing the gloom and darkness from her sad heart.

R. GRAY OWEN, China Inland Mission.

Chen tu, West China.

Evangelical "Churchmen."

REV. H. C. G. MOULE'S SERMON.

THE sermon by Mr. Moule at St. Paul's, Onslow-square, last week was rather expository than controversial. His text was Phil. iii. 3: "We are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh." The aim of the preacher was to show that the immediate relation of the individual to God is of primary importance; questions of Church order and the like occupy a secondary and subordinate place. Everywhere in the New Testament we see, on the one hand, the conspicuous absence of even the germs of sacerdotal hierarchy, in which practically the realities of spiritual life tend to be sacrificed to alleged right methods of government and conveyance; on the other hand, the presence of a simple, temperate, gentle, generous, but real regimen, intended to hold the individual in a practical as well as spiritual solidarity with his brethren. Never did the pastor with his mild and constitutional authority pose as the mediator through whom the Christian must receive grace and deal with its Giver. Further than this, all views of Church unity, of governmental order, of authority, and discipline, were always subordinated to the yet larger and profounder truths of the immediate spiritual relations of the man, of the individual with God. Mr. Moule throughout his sermon laid great emphasis upon this as the distinctive characteristic of Evangelical teaching. He showed the crucial difference, the line of cleavage, between the real and the unreal claimant of the Christian name. They who claimed to be Christians must worship God in the Spirit, rejoice in Christ Jesus, and distrust all other ground of hope.

We are met together, he explained, as members of the Church of England, as Churchmen profoundly concerned for the maintenance within and by our Church of what we hold to be the central and vital principles of spiritual Christianity as against a prevalent cast of thought and practice which we hold, in charity, but with decision, to be not in harmony with those principles. We believe in the importance of Church life, of corporate organisation and action, of Church order. We believe in the importance of national religion. We recognise with reverent and deliberate conviction the often made (and often misused) statement that our Master came to be the founder of a society as well as the Saviour of the soul. But we are here also as those who hold that all these great facts and principles are neither the radical secrets of Christianity, nor meant to be its foreground phenomena. A distinctive point in our conviction and confession as Evangelical Churchmen is that while the relation of the individual to God and the relation of members to the Church as an organisation are both momentous matters, and have manifold references to one another, the relation of the individual to God is the primary thing, and the relation of members to the Church the secondary and subordinate.

Repudiating any intention of claiming that none but Evangelical Churchmen recognised or affirmed the solemnity of the personal question, Mr. Moule proceeded to show that the scale of Scriptural teaching upon spiritual life was altogether for a subordination of the corporal to the personal, and not the other way; and that the true emphasis upon the individual question as supreme and vital is the true way to secure that the ecclesiastical conditions shall be helpful and true to the ideal. And we are humbly resolved, by the grace of God, to maintain and to develop this our affirmation of truth and its proportions: not for the miserable purposes of a mere party victory; most assuredly not with any hope of the applause of a world with which such affirmations can never be popular; but in the strength of truth, and with the longing desire to serve, if it may be, the whole Church. We long and we hope to serve even those regions of the Church where we are least liked, by maintaining out and out, and to the end, that to be the true circumcision men absolutely must worship God in the Spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh. Let us more and more rise to a view of the greatness and holy dignity of our work in this respect. Let us aim to serve the whole community to which we belong by maintaining, in faith and love, our distinctive teaching and testimony clear and full. Let us live as individuals; let us live as a body with this blessed raison d'être that we may witness to the supremacy of the question of a personal knowledge of Christ as the believer's righteousness, and life, and glory—and ours shall be a blessed and a blessing work. Not for our own sakes, but for the sake of all, we must not yield, we must not modify, we must not shut our lips, we must not ask for peace at any cost; and we must not, except under emergencies direr in kind than have yet arisen, withdraw.

Mr. Moule referred in passing very briefly to the subjects of Brotherhoods and the newly-formed Protestant Churchmen's Alliance. He recognised fully the possible existence of "families" of young clergyman who are in every way helpers to one another in the Lord. but his personal conviction was that the conditions for such an associate life were delicate in the extreme, while from Brotherhoods moulded on mediæval Church life as the main suggesting model he anticipated manifold evils. Of the work of the Protestant Churchmen's Alliance he spoke an earnest God-speed, expressing his great preference for its aim and methods over plans for a formal toleration and comprehension which seemed to him to involve a surrender of things historically certain as to the Protestantism of the Anglican Church, and a treatment of differences, vital in principle, as if they were but sides of one manifold truth. In conclusion, he solemnly urged upon all to remember that their own primary principles ruthlessly condemned them if they brought into their efforts one purpose or one method which Christ could not approve, which they could not spread wide open to Him.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS' UNION.—The fourth annual report of this Society tells of advance. Originally founded by and for the schoolboys in a North London suburb as one of the results of Mr. Payson Hammond's mission at Mildmay, in September, 1885, it has grown to have a twofold character. A senior section is composed of the old boys who are now entering on business life, and a junior maintains the original character of work among boys at school. The report tells of the acquisition of new and larger premises, and of increased attendance and interest. Those who desire to know more of the Society's operations should write to the hon. sec., Mr. F. Neal, Norfolk House, Queen Elizabeth's-walk, N., for a copy of the report.

THE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF BELIEVERS, in the Gospel Hall, St. Nicholas'-road, Bristol, proved a season of rich refreshing to a large number of Christians, some of whom came from London, Shrewsbury, Bath, Hereford, Llanelly, Weston-super-Mare, Carsham, Plympton, Yeovil, Musbury, and surrounding villages. The regions beyond were represented by Dr. Baedeker, whose work of faith and labour of love in Russian and Siberian prisons calls forth the prayerful sympathy of God's people. There were also Mr. Daniel Matthews, of the Maloga Aboriginal Mission, Mr. W. Redwood, from India, and Mr. Robert Sennington, from Spain. The subjects suggested for consideration were "The great Salvation" (Heb. ii.); "The great High Priest" (Heb. iv.); and "The great Shepherd" (Heb. xiii.). The former part of the Conference was occupied by humiliation, prayer, and praise, when Mr. Jas. Wright was borne up before the Lord, in the sore bereavement of his wife. The afternoon of the second day was filled with reports of the Lord's work in other lands. About 300 partook of tea together afterwards, and the evening meeting closed with stirring practical appeals to those who had accepted "the great salvation."

THE BIBLE IN BRITTANY.

AT length the people of Britanny have the Holy Scriptures, in their purity and integrity, translated into their own language. There has long been a Breton version of the New Testament, but not until now has the Old Testament been faithfully rendered into Breton from the original Hebrew. The poor people have from generation to generation been under the heel of Romish tyranny, and have suffered sadly from the spiritual darkness which characterises the Papal system. Now, through the devoted labours of Pasteur Lecoat, of Tremel, they have the Word of light and freedom well within their reach.

The work of translation has involved nearly seven years' of toil, and the book is published under the auspices of the Trinitarian Bible Society, 7, St. Paul's Churchyard, E.C. Describing the arrival of the book in Brittany, M. Lecoat says: "The first copy was sold to an old man of seventy-two, who had been putting a penny aside for many months, in order to purchase the precious volume. He has already read the five books of Moses. My wife went to see him yesterday. 'How is it,' said he, 'that this book was not put into Breton before? When I was young I saw a French Bible, which, of course, was of no use to me, not being able to read that language. At that time I said I should be of my wages if I could only get a Breton copy of that book. A priest told me that I need not be so anxious to have a book that had got rusty by time, and needed a complete change and renewal; and that book, he said, was too clever for a poor goose like me. I was then twenty-five years of age. Ever since, I have wished and longed to be able to have a Breton copy of the Bible. I feel glad and happy now; but in reading the fifth book of Moses I almost fell to the ground. The law of God was terrible, and his chastenings very severe; but what abundance of riches and mercies to those that kept his commandments! But who could keep them? Who could fulfil the law? I now understand the need of a Saviour standing between God and man. Never before did I understand the guilt of breaking the law and the need of a Saviour. O Madame, believe me, hundreds and thousands of poor Bretons like myself will gladly receive the book, and pray that God's blessing may rest upon both translator and Society. I hope before I meet my God to have read the book all through; and then I will die willingly. Oh, why has it been kept so long from Brittany? Is she the last of nations, that she be treated so?' The next morning another man was waiting at the door at half-past four for a copy of the Bible."

WILLING TO GIVE A POUND

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES.—Rev. W. J. Mayers is holding meetings on behalf of these Homes in Cornwall and Devonshire this month. But for the outbreak of influenza, Mr. Mayers would have been accompanied by some of Dr. Barnardo's musical boys.

KING EDWARD RAGGED SCHOOL.—For the twenty-second time in its existence, an industrial exhibition is being held at the headquarters of this excellent institution in Albert-street, Spitalfields. It was opened a few days ago by Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, along with a commodious gymnasium which has recently been added to the building at a cost of £1330. This new place will save the purposes of a technical as well as a Sunday school; and the subjects taught during the week will include needlework, carpentry, and other handicrafts. Mr. Charles Montague, the hon. superintendent, is not the man to exclude art from the curriculum. His son conducts a drawing class, and with such success that two former waifs are now professional painters. Altogether the Institute should prove more than ever a valuable agent in keeping lads and lasses of East London off the streets.

Obituary.

MR. JOHN HAMBLETON.

THIS beloved brother fell asleep in Jesus on Lord's Day, December 8, 1889, at his residence, The Victorian Bible Carriage Depôt, Foster-street, Geelong, Victoria. At the age of sixty-nine years our honoured brother—a grand old warrior—has entered into rest. Absent from the body, he is at home with the Lord: with Christ, which is far better.

After some thirty-five years valiant toil for the Lord in the old country, our brother came to this colony. For about five years he laboured in Victoria unceasingly in Bible-carriage work, Gospel preaching, and edifying his fellow-saints. His continuous zeal and energy put us all to shame, provoking many to love and good works. The vigour, freshness, and power of his ministry of the word of God, whether to saint or sinner, by the grace of God, we e maintained to the last. On the Lord's Da ybefore his departure he preached three times with remarkable power. A month before his decease he took part in united meetings for believers held at St. Kilda. After reading Luke xxiv., "The walk to Emmaus," he exhorted us to be continually looking off unto Jesus only; and showed that peace, joy, and power are the result of being occupied with our risen Lord Jesus Christ.

Two beloved sisters in Christ in Melbourne who esteemed him much, and oft entertained him and his wife, told him they thought he worked much too hard, and that he should come to stay with them and rest for awhile. He replied: "I have got my house and book-room in order, dug my garden (about a quarter of an acre), and planted it with fruit trees. Now I'll go home and send some boxes of books off to the Bible-carriage, and then take a little rest." He little thought at the time that he would, as he often loved to express it, be

> Bathing his weary soul
> In seas of heavenly bliss.

One of his last efforts was to pack a box of books for one of the Bible-carriages; put it on a wheel-barrow, and wheel it to the station, about 500 yards away from his house. Mrs. Hambleton remonstrating with him he replied, "It must be done, and who else is there to do it?" She watched him go up the street with his load; on the wheel going over a stone his load tilted over, causing him a severe strain. No doubt such hard work and exposure hastened his end. But, whether digging or wheeling Bibles to the station, he judged it was work that must be done, and did it heartily as to the Lord; and from the Lord Himself he will receive his rich and full and everlasting reward.

A renewal of an old trouble of an inflammatory nature carried him to heaven and home, after a week of extreme anguish and suffering. He was most tenderly cared for by his dearly loved wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ord, Mrs. Manders, and others of the Geelong brethren and sisters. He retained his consciousness to the last, recognising and speaking at times to those who ministered to him. On Saturday he called his wife to him telling her he had received his call from the Lord and giving her his parting blessing and instructions.

During his last hours, on account of his great weakness, he said very little to anyone. At one time he said brokenly and faintly, "God's blessing be upon you all," and a little later "He that shall come, will come, and will not tarry." He gradually became weaker, and peacefully passed away.

A few Christians came from Melbourne and Ballarat to join with the Geelong saints in committing the precious body of our departed brother to the grave, and to the care of the Lord who redeemed it. We found the body lying in the centre of his book-room, the four walls of which were lined with books for the Bible-carriage. All were neatly arranged, and kept with the greatest of care. He looked like a grand old hero resting, surrounded by emblems of his victories. One brother remarked: "The dear old warrior looks as though he had just washed his face and hands, and laid down to sleep." His face expressed the perfection of rest and peace. We quietly filled the room and passage adjoining, and after a few moments' silent weeping Mr. Ord gave out "Till He come." As many of us as could control ourselves joined in singing it. Then a friend led us in thanksgiving and praise to God for our brother's triumphant life and departure.

Four brethren carried the body to the hearse, we following to the cemetery, about two miles distant. On arrival, the precious charge was carried to the grave-side, and in silence it was lowered to its resting-place. Brother Ord gave out one of dear John's favourite hymns, "Oh, think of the home over there;" and then another of his favourites was sung, "Safe in the arms of Jesus." Mr. Ord read Rom. viii. 31, 39; 1 Cor. xv. 57; reminding us that at Mr. Hambleton's last lecture he was speaking of "The Mysteries of God," and this one among them. Mr. Ord also read 1 Thess. iv. 13, 18. During the reading of these Scriptures, for about one or two minutes, large splashes of rain kept falling, as though the heavens were shedding tears over his open grave upon the coffin resting below. It was a lovely bright afternoon, and his resting-place is a very beautiful spot in a remarkably picturesque neigbourhood.

Another friend from Melbourne read Rev. vii. 9—17, xiv. 13, xxii. 7—12, and 20, 21; exhorting to a diligent following of our brother as he followed Christ, and to the great importance of faithfully and diligently occupying this little while still left us. Brother Carnegie, from Ballarat, led us in prayer and thanksgiving; and Brother Cavanagh, from Melbourne, who was saved through dear John's instrumentality about twenty-five years ago, gave us a word of exhortation and comfort. After singing "Glory, honour, praise, and power," we left the hallowed and truly consecrated spot.

A meeting was held at Geelong in the evening, Mr. Ord, Mr. Hind, sen., and others taking part. The Lord deepened, I trust, the solemn, searching work of the afternoon in all our souls. Our dear brother's spotless life of labour and toil for the Lord since his conversion had been such that at his grave there was scarcely any room for tears. We were able to glorify and praise our God for him, for his past life and labours, for his present rest and bliss with Christ, and for his future satisfaction and eternal reward in that day for which we look.

The Bible-carriage work will be carried on by our brethren John Baird, Frank Brewster, John Fergusson, and others, Mrs. Hambleton still residing at the Geelong Depôt, and helping in the work. Our brother, John Baird, is quietly toiling on in Victoria, and our brethren Brewster and Fergusson in New South Wales, with very great encouragement in every way. The brethren merit our heartiest prayers, sympathies, and support. They are carrying the Scriptures and the Gospel to most needy and out-of-the-way parts of this vast Continent, and find open doors on every hand. It is interesting to remark that a Chinese brother, lately converted, was with John Hambleton during some of his last hours, and was also at the grave. Our brother took a deep interest in the welfare of the Chinese in these colonies. They were much on his heart before the Lord.

It is proposed to place a plain granite headstone at the grave, as a small token of affection and respect for our brother who held on his way sustained and cheered by the living God, not heeding or turned aside by the smile or frown of men or devils. Any Christians who would like to help with this little mark of esteem, might send their contribution to Mr. Charles Crosby, (of Melbourne), 1, Murchison-crescent, Edinburgh; or to the undersigned,

H. DALZELL HIND.

314, Collins-street, Melbourne.

M. THÉOPHILE JOUSSE.

This aged servant of Christ expired at Mentone a few days ago, after giving very impressive proofs of his faith. After having been for nearly thirty years a missionary in South Africa he returned to France in 1882, and devoted himself to further service of the cause which lay so near his heart in connection with the Paris Society of Missions, and other movements having for their object the evangelisation of the heathen. He was the author of two valuable books on mission work in Africa, and his loss is widely mourned among French Protestants.

MADAME BRIANÇON.

The Protestants of France are every week grieving the removal of some leader or helper in the war against Rome and ignorance. Yet another lady of eminence in the Church has been taken away in the person of Madame Briançon, well known for her faith and liberality. Greatly interested in all endeavours for the glory of God, she was specially devoted to the cause of circulating the Sacred Scriptures, and through her efforts thousands of New Testaments were distributed among neglected classes in Paris. Though for forty years an invalid, she was always overflowing with joy, and full of gratitude to God for his goodness to her.

ISLINGTON CLERICAL MEETING.

THIS interesting meeting of clergymen took place on Tuesday, last week, under the presidency of Rev. W. H. Barlow, the highly respected vicar of Islington. Canon Hoare, who first attended the annual gathering as long ago as 1836, was unable to be present. During the past fifty-four years he has only been absent [illegible] the infirmity of which fully accounts for his non-appearance. The papers and addresses were specially appropriate to the subject, and a spirit of earnestness and love pervaded the entire proceedings.

The Bishop of Colombo read a valuable paper on "Recent Investigations on the Authority and Position of the Old Testament Scriptures." He held them to be the author of Genesis, including the account of creation, contained in chaps. i.—ii. 3, all the other early narratives are called "generations," a word meaning a history, and especially that of the last person recited in each genealogy. Even in Gen. ii. 4 the words, "These are the generations of the heavens and the earth," do not suggest to an accurate Hebrew scholar the idea of a history of creation, nor is that their meaning. They mean a history of those reached by creation, namely, Adam and Eve in Paradise. It was usual among members of the Semitic race to preface a person's history by his genealogy. A short account of creation, so far as it concerned them, naturally prepares the way for the history of the first man and woman; and so there are not two accounts of creation after all! In some concluding words, the Dean said: Nowhere in any sacred book will you find so noble, ay, and so Divine an account of creation as that at the beginning of Genesis. Surely a man must have a dead mind who can bear to pick holes in it. Again, this book, compiled from old records, and intended by Moses simply, perhaps, to give the Israelites some knowledge of their origin, contains in it the germ of every truth unfolded in the rest of the Bible. Herein I see true inspiration, and bow reverently before God making Himself manifest to his creatures. Rev. C. R. Lloyd Engström also spoke on the same subject, showing that the revelation which God has made to mankind has been progressive.

Canon Bell read a paper on "The influence of revealed truth on the mind of the educated classes of the land." Having deplored that by many the cross of Christ is made a target for scorn, his resurrection treated as a myth, miracles declared to be impossible, and God regarded as helpless under the power of his own laws, he considered some of the reasons for this state of things. The first of these was the resistance of the natural heart to the holy will of God, and the second the doubt and perplexity resulting from the diffusion of ideas such as are the outcome of the "higher criticism." Glorying in true science, the Canon rejoiced in view of the ever-increasing confirmations of Holy Writ. He called upon his brethren so to live that their lives would be a continual protest against the rationalism which denies the supernatural. Revs. A. Pearson and H. Howlett enlarged upon the improved religious tone in the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe maintained that the great need is for ministers to live Christ—to live through the week what they preach on Sundays.

How to win for Christ the unevangelised portions of the population was the topic dealt with by Canon McCormick, who held that pastors must show the people that they are in earnest about their spiritual and temporal well fare, and go to them distinctly as evangelical Protestants. Rev. T. J. Madden, insisted upon the Spirit of Christ being manifested by al- who seek to evangelise the masses. He told of forward endeavour in Barrow-in-Furness and Liverpool, and concluded by showing that the Gospel, pure and simple, must be preached, if the millions are to be attracted.

Archdeacon Taylor opened a discussion on Home-Reunion, being followed by Rev. H. E. Fox. Many loving references were made to communions outside the Church of England. It was held that there is a higher than corporate or visible union, and suggestions were made for such a federation of Churches as would afford all the advantages of union among evangelical denominations, while leaving untouched the freedom and independence of the various bodies. Heart union and brotherly cooperation were also warmly commended by Canon Christopher, Rev. Gordon Calthrop, and the Chairman.

A Warning.

IN a recent issue of The British Weekly extracts from a Colonial journal were given describing the career of a pretended evangelist which had brought great reproach upon the Gospel of Christ in Christchurch, Wellington, Auckland, and other places in New Zealand. His real name appears to be Clampett, but he has adopted that of Sullivan.

Information reaches us that this man is now in England, under the latter name. We therefore warn superintendents of Missions, Y.M.C.A.'s, &c., and other Christian workers to be on their guard against him. He has an imposing presence and a fine voice, and evinces willingness to join in any Christian work going on.

When questioned, he denied that he was the man described in The British Weekly; but, being confronted with a private letter, which our informant had received from a brother in New Zealand, describing him, he admitted his identity, but declared that the printed statements were false. He then gave a very plausible, but evidently unreliable, version of his past troubles.

If he be a true man, he cannot prove it better than by returning to New Zealand, and there leading a quiet, consistent Christian life.

MRS. MEREDITH is the subject of an appreciative sketch with portrait, in last week's Queen. It is stated that a full account of the institutions under her care will shortly be published, under the title, "The History of a Mission."

THE MERCHANTS' LECTURES at Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C., were recommenced, after a short interval, on Tuesday. The lecturer during January and February is Rev. Dr. Allon, his theme being "Christ's own Exposition of his Mission." The subject of next Tuesday's lecture will be, "What is a Religious Life?"

The Temperance Cause.

IF the decline of New Year's calls in New York means the decline of wine-drinking, it is a blessing to the people. Many young men, says The New York Independent, have got their first downward impulse in the excessive potations of New Year's Day.

The South Wales and Monmouthshire Temperance Association at its recent meeting resolved strongly in favour of further restrictions on the liquor traffic, in Sunday and Saturday closing. Similar action with respect to Ireland has been taken by the Methodist Temperance Committee.

The Daily Graphic of Tuesday week contained the first of a series of letters on "The Hygiene of London," from the pen of Dr. Richardson. Alcohol is incidentally referred to as "the cause of the highest mortality incident to one cause alone," higher even than the enormous mortality caused by consumption.

A Presbyterian missionary in the Straits Settlements writes home that the drink habit—through the example of European Christians—is spreading in Christian Chinese families. This habit of taking alcoholic stimulants has to do with not a little of the spirit of quarrelsomeness which breaks out every now and again, to the great hindrance of the Gospel, especially in the country stations.

The Cape Parliament has appointed a "Commission" to inquire into the whole question of the drink traffic. This action on the part of the Government is the outcome of persistent agitation on the part of the temperance party in the country, and it has been hailed with delight by a very large number of all creeds and castes. The Commission have commenced their work in real good earnest.

That veteran temperance worker, Rev. Thomas Evans, cheered the members of the recent Calcutta Missionary Conference by the announcement that the Government of Bengal is really moving in the matter of abolishing the out-stills, and that a heavy import duty is to be levied on all European liquors. Mr. Evans is entitled to the thanks of all good people for his able and tireless opposition to this iniquitous system.

Prohibition in Kansas, according to the most trustworthy official estimates, has reduced the sales of liquor by from 90 to 95 per cent., since 1880. There is not a brewery or a distillery or an open saloon in the State, and illicit sales are becoming more and more difficult. In Topeka, the capital, a city of 60,000 population, there were sixty saloons in 1880. All these have disappeared, and a sober, prosperous city is the result.

The Redemptorist Fathers have been holding a mission in Montreal. At the close of a two hours' temperance sermon, the preacher asked those who were willing to take the pledge to rise and remain. The whole of the great congregation, it is said, to the number of 8000, arose en masse, less than twenty leaving the church. Then, for nearly an hour, the congregation filed past the altar—taking the temperance pledge—the majority for life.

The Edinburgh Town Council have all along shown a progressive attitude towards the prohibition movement. Years ago it abolished cake and wine at "the churching" of the Council. The latest service to temperance rendered by it is one for which temperance reformers cannot be too thankful. A motion, "That this Council shall not provide alcoholic liquors at conversaziones held at the expense of the corporation," was carried by sixteen to eleven.

Mr. Joseph Thomson, the African explorer, has again expressed, with characteristic fearlessness, his views upon the results of European intercourse with the African race, which, he unhesitatingly declares, instead of being a blessing, has been little better than an unmitigated curse. Referring to the German occupation of certain territories, he said it was almost certain that as soon as they had pacified the natives by means of copious blood-letting, they would continue their work of civilisation by the introduction of the gin traffic, which the late Mohammedan ruler prohibited. Mr. Thomson spoke in sympathetic terms of the labours of the African missionaries, but pointedly asked, "What was a missionary here and there compared with the thousand agents of commerce, who, with untiring and unscrupulous industry, dispensed wholesale the deadly products of Europe? What was a Bible or a bale of useful goods in opposition to the myriad cases of gin—the thousand guns which competed with them? What chance had a Christian virtue where the soil was so suitable for European vice?"

The Liverpool Vigilance Committee, suggested by Rev. Charles Garrett, has already borne good fruit. Quite a number of publicans have been convicted of breaches of the licensing laws.

"Evans's Temperance Annual" (6d.: 33, Paternoster-row) is this year entitled "So Very Unexpected," and is an excellent collection of temperance literature of the lighter and more entertaining sort—a good helper for workers in Bands of Hope.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held last week in the iron hall, adjoining Whitefield Tabernacle, Tottenham Court-road, in favour of Sunday closing in London. Addresses were delivered by various friends and nearly 200 persons joined the London League, the membership of which is daily increasing.

A meeting convened by the Southampton Temperance Society was held at the Philharmonic Hall, Southampton, to consider the practicability of a united effort to engage a temperance missionary for Southampton and neighbourhood. It was decided that a provisional committee should be appointed to make inquiries as to the best means to be adopted, and to report to another meeting.

The "National Temperance League's Annual" is a judiciously and carefully compiled résumé of the temperance doings or undoings of the past year. Temperance reformers will find it extremely helpful as an armoury of outstanding facts, and a record of progress. There is no standing still in this warfare. Let us make past successes a stepping stone to still greater triumphs over an insidious foe.

Dr. Kate Mitchell, lecturing on Saturday at Rectory-road Chapel, referred to the bad habits indulged in by City men. Little nips of sherry appeared to be an almost indispensable accompaniment to business life; gentlemen often took nothing but a glass of sherry during the day, and in the evening made up for twenty-four hours starvation by eating a hearty dinner. No stomach would stand such treatment, and it was no wonder that chronic indigestion resulted from such bad habits.

The second part of Dr. Burns's "Temperance History" is issued. The work is most instructive, and at the same time extremely interesting. The reader has spread out before him the events as they occurred year by year in all parts of the world, together with a brief notice of each of the prominent workers in the period under review. The author's familiarity with the minutest details of the movement, and the variety of the information which he presents to his readers is quite remarkable. (2s. National Temperance Publication Depôt.)

The two curses of Africa (says The New York Independent) are slave-hunting and rum-selling. We do not try to determine which is the worse. The slave-hunting is conducted by Arabs, who are all bigoted Moslems. The rum-selling is in the hands of merchants of Europe and America, who are all Christians, at least nominally. We do not undertake to say that the Christian rum-seller is better than the Arab slave-hunter. He violates the principles of his religion, while the Arab slave-hunter does not. Both are engaged in a crime against humanity, and the poor African is the miserable victim.

Mr. W. S. Caine, in addressing a conference at Manchester on the present needs of the temperance movement, declared they wanted more earnestness and devotion. The more they worked for the reformation of drunkards the more they were impressed with the need of preventing the creation of drunkards by work among the young, the most important part of which was carried on by the Band of Hope. They had a clear and settled demand for the direct veto, and by Sunday closing they meant absolute Sunday closing for the whole of the United Kingdom. It was only a question of another election, and they would get it.

A correspondent of The Times says that the Niger Company have reduced the import of spirits into the Niger Territories to less than one-fourth of what it used to be. They have absolutely prohibited spirits over one-third of their territory; they have declared their intention of speedily doing the same in another third. Besides, they declare that they would gladly welcome an arrangement between England, France, and Germany which would lead to the prohibition of the import into the remaining third. The total import of liquors into the 75,000 to 100,000 square miles of the Company's territories last year was 70,000 gallons, as against 1,200,000 gallons into the neighbouring colony of Lagos.

Letters to the Editor.

ROBERT BROWNING'S POETRY.

Sir,—Your recent remark upon the late Robert Browning and his contempt for vivisection tempts me to say a word or two about the Christian teaching of that lamented poet.

Indeed, this decided religious feeling running through the whole body of his work has been, I regret to know, studiously kept out of sight in the notices of his work given by secular journals. Surely the readers of The Christian must rejoice to believe that in one whom most unprejudiced Englishmen will allow to have been one of the greatest poets and thinkers of the century, these religious convictions are so firmly defined.

Mr. Browning has oftentimes expressed his dissatisfaction with existing forms of creed, but with the central doctrines of Christianity he was in full accord, as any reader of "Easter Day," "Saul," "Rabbi-ben-Ezra," or "An Epistle" must readily admit. In that admirable work, "A Library of Religious Poetry" (edited by Gilman and Schaff), there are several long extracts from Browning's best work—"Saul" being given entire. They deserve our deep and reverent study, indeed.

I do not think there is any English poet who is more intensely religious at heart than Robert Browning. Doubtless his writing is too hard for many—for those who are the ready readers of a ready writer; but some know from happy experience how invigorating and helpful is the imperishable verse "the dead hand" has bequeathed to us. Archdeacon Farrar has told us (and not a few will echo his sentiments) how thankfully he turns from many of the "songs of modern speech," ay, and from modern prose as well, to such strong and noble poetry as Robert Browning has given to the world. That poetry can never die as long as Englishmen love what is good, and pure, and true.

Westward Ho. E. H. Blakeney.

"AN OBJECTION TO JEWISH MISSIONS."

Dear Sir,—Permit me to thank Mr. Wilkinson for his letter. We all honour his zeal in the cause of missions to the Jews, although many of us (and amongst these a good many "pre-Millennarians" too) differ from him in regard to Israel's revealed destiny. I need say nothing in reply to his charges of Rationalism; for the particular ministers and missionaries of whom I spoke are as free from any "Down-grade" theological tendencies as Mr. Wilkinson himself.

The only relevant question is as to the alleged fact of God's having absolutely predestinated the chosen people to the perpetual rejection of Christ and salvation from the Apostolic age down to the "end of all things." This is an awful doom, if it be true, and a doom that has not been pronounced (thank God) upon any other nation.

(1) It is surely, in the first place, a startling comment on Mr. Wilkinson's exegesis that the New Testament, God's final revelation to the Jews, as well as to the Gentiles, appears to ignore his entire theory. The much-abused and much-despised "spiritualising" of these Old Testament promises seems to be the general rule of the Apostles. Even in the tenth and eleventh chapters of the Epistle to the Romans, where the very question we are discussing is expressly handled in the most thorough-going manner, by St. Paul, there is not one word said about Israel's eternal political separation from the believing Gentiles, but a gracious assurance is given to Israel of "salvation"—something infinitely more important. Whether this may be accompanied by a territorial restoration to Palestine, on the part of those Jews who desire to emigrate, and for whom that little morsel of land has room enough, is a question totally ignored by this inspired teacher, this "Hebrew of the Hebrews." It is a petty detail, in the new and glorious Gospel day.

(2) The use in the Old Testament of the well-known Hebrew words for eternity, or ceaseless perpetuity, cannot here be accepted, in their strict and literal meaning, even by Mr. Wilkinson himself, unless he believes that the Jews will be an earthly people throughout eternity; buying and selling, marrying and giving in marriage, "for ever and ever." Yet that is the "literal" meaning, which, on his own principles, he is bound to maintain.

(3) After all, however, there is one simple thought that is of more value, in this controversy, than many arguments. That thought is this: Those Old Testament texts are promises; they are, to use Mr. Wilkinson's own phrase, "guarantees" of grace and blessing. How can they be so, if this novel theory is correct? Surely it is anything but kindness and love, on God's part, to "guarantee" 2000 years of Christ-rejecting, and, therefore, hell-incurring, unbelief, for the great mass of his ancient people, as the indispensable preliminary to the happiness of their remote descendants in a future age! Truly, "the letter killeth"; and, whatever may be the right way of interpreting Mr. Wilkinson's "proof-texts," any interpretation that exhibits the God of Love in such a light as that, is thereby proved to be a wrong one.—Yours faithfully, A Scottish Christian.

Sir,—Close upon sixty years ago I was made a partaker of "the hope of the Gospel," and one of the first things which, at that time, I learned from the Scriptures of truth was the universal availability of that hope for sinners of every race and nation under heaven, on the sole condition of "repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ"—that God "willeth all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth." This is the Gospel that Paul testified, "both to the Jews and also to the Greeks," and the purpose of God to perpetuate the nationality of Israel was not deemed by him a hindrance to his doing so. He knew of no special responsibility to safeguard the Divine purpose by withholding the Gospel from his countrymen. On the contrary, it was his joy to announce it "to the Jew first," being "fully persuaded that what God had promised He was able also to perform." In any case his obligation was to preach the Gospel to the "children of the stock of Abraham," for to them especially was "the word of this salvation sent." And if his labours had seemed likely to result in winning to Christ every man and woman of "the thousands of Judah," or, for that matter, of "the ten thousands of Ephraim" also, I am sure that the man who could wish himself anathema from Christ for Israel's sake would have continued to preach, leaving the result with Him "who is able to work all things after the counsel of his own will."

Now Paul's responsibility is our responsibility to-day. We may neither withhold the Gospel from Israel in the supposed interest of his distinctive nationality, nor may we seek to neutralise an objection to its proclamation, and at the same time to satisfy our own theological preconceptions, by a theory which, whilst recognising the Divine purpose as to Israel's distinctiveness, at the same time assumes the existence of a purpose equally Divine to limit the results of evangelistic labours amongst that people during the present dispensation.

It is sad enough to know that there lives a Christian man or woman so lacking in spiritual intelligence and sympathy with the mind of Christ as to hesitate to preach the Gospel to the Jews, through fear of marring their separate nationality, notwithstanding such a Scripture as Luke xxiv. 47. But it is exquisitely painful to be told, even by an apologist for Jewish missions, not that God foresees that Israel and the world will not be converted by the preaching of the Gospel, and that, for the reason alleged by our Lord in John v. 40—an issue which every careful and unsophisticated reader of the Scriptures must admit, whilst he profoundly deplores it, but that "God's purpose"—that is the word used—in connection with the Gospel in this dispensation "is not the conversion of the world," and therefore, of course, not the conversion of Israel. Or, conversely, that God has purposed that in this dispensation the world and therefore Israel shall not be converted by the preaching of the Gospel. Can the writer of the letter on "An Objection to Jewish Missions" in The Christian for January 10 mean this?

I see no way of escaping from the conclusion, for lower down in his letter he quotes the saying of a Scottish missionary to the Jews, to the effect that "we want the entire nation of Israel to be converted here and now," and remarks: "This has the appearance of zeal for the glory of God and the salvation of souls, but our wishes are not to be the lines of our work, but God's clearly revealed will." These last words are emphatically true, but we must remember that they apply with as much force to our interpretations and applications of the Gospel as to our wishes with regard to the results of preaching it. Indeed, our interpretations are not seldom the outcome of our wishes, and the Scriptures are moulded to meet our preferences, and then are made responsible for our mistakes.

But where, I would ask, is it "clearly revealed" that there is a "Divine purpose" in the failure of the Gospel to convert Israel and the world? One would have thought that a heart touched with the love of Christ would have had deepest sympathy with the wish of the Scottish missionary, even though he knew from Scripture that it would not be realised, instead of deeming it to be going beyond "the clearly revealed will of God." Is the will of God, I ask, set against the conversion of the world and of Israel by the preaching of the Gospel? Rather is not man's free agency backed by his deep depravity the only obstacle to such a result? See John v. 40.

The writer of the letter thinks that an objector's difficulty as to preaching the Gospel to the Jews finds its solution "in the elective character of the present dispensation." He says it is an "individual dispensation," as indeed it must be in the absence of Israel gathered. And he adds: "The Holy Spirit confirms the individual character of this dispensation by saying, 'to the Jew first, and also to the Greek,' not 'to the Jews first, and also to the Gentiles.' To the Jew first as an individual now, and the Jews first as a nation in the Millennial Age on the return of our Lord."

I would not needlessly speak disrespectfully of a Christian brother's peculiarities of belief, so long as he holds to the foundation truths of the Gospel; but really the foregoing reads very like trifling with Scripture, an offence with which I am by no means disposed to charge the writer of the letter, so far as his intention goes, but where are we told that Paul's expression, "to the Jew first," is the Holy Spirit's attestation to the individuality of the dispensation, that is, in the sense in which the writer of the letter uses the term? And does not that same Paul, who in Rom. i. and ii. says—and doubtless by the Holy Ghost—"to the Jew first and also to the Greek," say, in Acts xx., and by the same Holy Ghost, "to the Jews and to the Greeks"? and if the former form be an attestation of the Holy Ghost to the individuality of the dispensation, to what is the latter form an attestation? And when Paul says that the Gospel is "the power of God unto salvation, to the Jew first and also to the Greek," does he mean either more or less than that "the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men" (R.V.), and not to the Jew, i.e., the Jews only? for as to the grace, of this dispensation, "there is no difference" between Jew and Greek, bond and free, but to each Christ is, equally, "all and in all."

It is quite true that the Gospel is not addressed to nations as such, but to individuals of all nations, with the intimation that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned"; but that therefore it works on the lines of your correspondent's theory is not true. The "he that believeth" in Mark's Gospel is the equivalent of "whosoever believeth" in the Gospel by John, and with these agrees the closing invitation of Scripture: "whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely"; and all are addressed to man universally as a free and responsible agent, but "only to parties." And the individuality of the dispensation, instead of proving a designed limitation of the results of preaching the Gospel, as the writer of the letter assumes, is really the expression of Divine sympathy with the entire human race; and has, and will have, the twofold effect of (1) enlarging the sphere of the operations of Divine grace to the utmost bounds of the earth, and (2) of winning to Christ and eternal life a multitude beyond human calculation (Rev. vii.), who otherwise would have lived and died "having no hope and without God." For this we should thank God, and by it we should be stimulated to send the Gospel to "regions beyond," where yet multitudes of both Jews and Gentiles sit "in darkness and the shadow of death."

As to "the elective character of the dispensation" being the solution of the objector's difficulty, I deplore beyond expression the use the writer of the letter makes of that thought. In simple English it is neither more nor less than this—that God is so using his elective grace as to ensure that there shall be Israelites enough unsaved at the close of the dispensation to constitute a nation, in order to their collective evangelisation "under the personal superintendence of our blessed Lord." This, in the words of your correspondent, "may have the appearance of zeal for the glory of God," if not "for the salvation of souls"; but he should remember that our fancies are, as little as our wishes, "to be the lines on which we work, but 'only' God's clearly revealed will."

I will only add, to this already long letter, a remark made by the Rev. Adolph Saphir nearly thirty years ago: "Everyone who believes in the d Jesus Christ's elect in this dispensation. That is election of Scripture, not the election of [illegible]. The Scriptures never speak of elect ers, only of elect saints."

This witness is true." There is no divinely ced limitation of the results of Gospel preach-

The election of Scripture excludes none. invitation is to all. The word is "Whosoever ," and nothing but the innate depravity of the an heart can prevent anyone, man or woman, every man and woman, Jew or Gentile, from icipating in the glorious provision of the pel of the grace of God, for "God is no re-ter of persons, but in every nation he that reth Him and worketh righteousness (of which eving in Jesus is the equivalent) is accepted n Him."

od deliver us from the tyranny of "systematic logy." It darkens and poisons the Gospel, prepares souls in numbers for the "Down-le."—I am, yours faithfully, arlswood-road, Redhill. JOHN LARRITT.

We have given this letter in full; but we cannot in-others of such length. Our correspondents will be e largely read if their letters are more condensed.

The Book World.

An Agricultural Story.

ONATHAN MERLE. By Miss Elizabeth B. ly. 6s. Jarrold & Sons. This is a story, ritten with an object." To all interested in the sent state of agriculture, it will commend itself, le those whose interest does not at present lie that direction cannot fail to have their sym-hies aroused on behalf of families and indivi-ls whose circumstances are represented by the ical cases described. Miss Bayly has had ex-ience which qualifies her to write as she does. characters are ably drawn and sustained, and en apart from the more serious questions in-ved) the book, as a story, reads well. It is ructive and full of interest, both in incident general line of thought. Among other things, Bayly pleads for the restoration of "small dings," and shows that the adoption of such a se would inevitably go far to relieve the con-ion of labour in our large cities, by providing loyment and industry in agricultural districts.

A Consecrated Life.

ARY JANE KINNAIRD. By Dr. Donald Fraser. s. J. Nisbet & Co. This seems to us a model hat a Christian biography ought to be. We spread before us a plain and almost unvar-ed narrative of the late Lady Kinnaird's ear-t and singularly fruitful life, told in a fresh breezy style, but happily devoid of anything adulation. It is in truth a charming story, one most profitable to read. We should think t few of the present generation of Christians e any idea of the multiplicity and variety of vice that Lady Kinnaird rendered to her country to the world. Would that all who occupy es of social influence, followed in her footsteps. ong the many lasting memorials of her lady-p's busy and beneficent life is the Young men's Christian Association. Anyone who uld be moved to present a copy of this inspiring k to each member of that Association would loing splendid service to this generation. Ex-ent photographic portraits of the late Lord and dy Kinnaird adorn the volume, which inciden-y also gives interesting details of the career of Lordship.

A Minister's Letters.

LETTERS OF THE LATE JOHN KER, D.D. 6d. David Douglas. The modern minister's is so full of public service that little or no time left for him to cultivate the gift of letter-ting. Indeed it seems, through lack of leisure the march of printing, to be almost a lost art. how valuable an art it is when exercised for highest of ends. What a loss the Church uld have sustained if Paul had not been a ter of Epistles to his children in the faith. e letters in this volume by that gifted United sbyterian divine, the late Dr. John Ker of Glas-, were not penned for publication; all the better. ause of that we have here glimpses of his shest, truest, most untrammelled thinking. All ts of subjects are handled in these chatty stles—family joys and sorrows; new and notable ks; travel jottings; political events; church troversies; foundation truths; besides the many ngs that enter into the daily life of a busy blic man, and a lover of his kind. And no topic touched without having some clear light cast on it. The family to whom they were written were fortunate in having such a correspondent, and they deserve hearty thanks for permitting these delightful productions to wield the wider influence that comes from publicity. For our weekly column of "Gathered Gold" we hope now and again to borrow nuggets from this rich mine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DOGMATISM, THE CONSCIENCE, AND AGNOSTICISM. An argument for faith and Christian belief. By Edward H. Riches, LL.D. Bagster & Sons. Here are three papers exposing the fallacies and inconsistencies of Agnosticism. Though quite unable to follow the author in his metaphysical reasonings, we allow that on some heads he has dealt heavy blows at Agnosticism.

SIMPLE LESSONS FROM NATURE. By M. Cordelia E. Leigh. 1s. 6d. Nisbet. A book of sterling worth. The lessons cover a wide range of subjects in zoology, botany, physiography, and astronomy, and are made to set forth God's power, wisdom, and goodness, and to inculcate faith, humility, and usefulness. There are a number of engravings, and the information is well up to date, and lucidly arranged. While calculated to prove of service in many a home, this little book will certainly help Sunday-school workers to illustrate Scripture teaching.

RECORDS OF THE PAST. New series. Edited by Professor A. H. Sayce. Vol. ii. 4s. 6d. S. Bagster & Sons. We are glad to observe that the new series of this valuable publication includes scholars of the highest celebrity among its contributors. The present volume has articles from Professor Maspero, giving translations of early Egyptian inscriptions of profound archæological interest. The editor furnishes translations of important Assyrian inscriptions, and Dr. A. Neubauer contributes a new rendering, with critical notes, of the now famous Moabite Stone. To such as study the Old Testament in the original Hebrew, every article will have a peculiar interest.

APPLES OF GOLD ON SALVERS OF SILVER. By Rev. A. B. Mackay, of Montreal. T. Nelson & Sons. A volume of Scripture illustrations of the Shorter Catechism, designed to help such as are engaged in the instruction of the young. It required not only intimate knowledge of Bible teaching, but considerable ingenuity, to produce such a book. Doctrinal truths are presented in historical settings, and the matter is so arranged that the entire field of instruction may be traversed in two years by one chapter being taken each Lord's Day. A suitable hymn has been appended to each chapter, so that the volume is fitted for devotion as well as instruction. Parents and teachers who use the Shorter Catechism will find this book specially serviceable; it will also be very useful to all who desire a cogent and attractive statement of fundamental truth.

A CHILD OF FAITH: Memorials of Andrew Kennedy Bremner. Compiled by his brother. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. A career of singular promise was cut short by the early death, towards the end of 1887, of the young Scotch student whose brief, beautiful life is embalmed in these pages. But he left a noble testimony behind him, and its influence will be perpetuated by this simple, fraternal memoir. The book is invested with a special interest because of the references to recent religious movements—the visits of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey; the revival among Scottish students, with which the names of Studd, Stanley Smith, and Professor Drummond are associated; the conventions for the deepening of spiritual life, &c. We earnestly trust that the perusal of such a touching life history may help to produce many another "child of faith in an age of doubt."

THE HAMMER: A Story of the Maccabean Times. By Alfred J. Church, M.A., and Richard Seeley. 5s. Seeley & Co. Here is a popular version of a story of unique interest in Jewish history. From the preface we learn that Mr. Seeley planned the work while Mr. Church filled in the story. The latter is a performance which fully sustains its author's high reputation as an interpreter of old-time events. How Judas Maccabeus —"The Hammer" of God—and his enthusiastic brothers led the movement which rescued the Jewish faith from the pollutions of Greek idolatry, 165 B.C., is told with great force. The main facts are taken from the first book of Maccabees, some picturesque incidents being introduced from the second book. The subsidiary characters are fictitious, but the narrative as a whole is as powerfully realistic as it is undoubtedly historically correct.

THE SAVIOUR'S COMMISSION. Messrs. John Menzies & Co., Edinburgh, have issued with this title the first of the "Christian Thought" serials, which are designed "to aid in maintaining and increasing a love on the part of the people for the truths and ordinances of the Word of God, the development of the Christian life, and the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom at home and abroad." It is a compact little book (192 pages, 6d.), illustrating the partial fulfilment of the Saviour's commission, by presenting encouraging statements made by missionaries from all parts of the world to the great Centenary Conference held in London in 1888. So far as relates to the progress of the Gospel in heathen lands, we have here something like the cream of the excellent two-volume report of the proceedings prepared by Rev. James Johnston, secretary of the Conference.

SAMOA PAST AND PRESENT. By Rev. Charles Phillips. 1s. 6d. J. Snow & Co. A well-known labourer in connection with the London Missionary Society here gives us a narrative of missionary work in the South Seas. Every page is deeply interesting. Sixty years ago the Samoans were enveloped in dense heathen darkness; to-day there is not one Pagan among them. The book is grand reading, as it not only shows that ninety per cent. of the people assemble for Divine worship every Lord's Day, but that towards the spread of the Gospel among the unevangelised in regions beyond, they give more, in proportion to their numbers, than do the Christian churches at home. Partaking of the character of a handbook to Polynesian missions, this volume records marvels of grace which effectually answer all sceptical questions as to the need and value of evangelistic endeavour among the heathen.

CHRISTIAN PERFECTNESS. By Rev. Holden E Sampson. Elliot Stock. Doubtless high motives prompted the writer of this "treatise on the Scripturalness and philosophy of the doctrine and experience of 'entire sanctification.'" Yet only by questionable definitions and laboured arguments does Mr. Sampson present his case, which, though it may square with his spiritual philosophy, is by no means in accord with the plain sense of Holy Writ. The author's governing idea is that "entire sanctification" is a blessing which, to use his own words, "brings with it total deliverance from the 'carnal' nature, that is, the 'old man'; that all antecedent states, after regeneration, are the various stages of the 'child'-state, or 'babe'-hood." In another place he explains that entire sanctification is not the "second blessing," but "only the true and full experience of regeneration." These views, although harmless in appearance, are, we regret to say, set forth in a manner distinctly favourable to human self-complacency, and the author's references to those who cannot agree with him are not always couched in the most gracious terms.

The Fireside News is henceforth to b known as The News. The increasing circulation of the paper has caused some trade confusion with The Fireside Magazine.

A FRIENDLY LETTER to Scripture-readers and all who desire to win souls to Christ is the latest of Miss V. M. Skinner's useful series. (6d. per doz. Partridge & Co.)

PICTURES OF THE CHILDHOOD OF JESUS. T. Nelson & Sons. Here are some very attractive coloured pictures, accompanied by passages from the Gospels, and choice hymns on the Nativity.

WALKS AND TALKS WITH JESUS; or, Great Sinners and a Gracious Saviour meeting and greeting. The penny edition (106th thousand) of a sterling little work, by Rev. Dr. Doudney. (W. H. & L. Collingridge.)

THE ADVERTISERS' GUARDIAN (2s. 6d. Louis Collins, 16, Great Marlborough-street, W.) contains, in addition to lists of British and foreign newspapers, a large body of facts and fancies about journalism and advertising.

THE TRUE SHEPHERD AND THE FOLD OF GOD. Fifteen pastoral illustrations, lithographed after drawings by Frederick Thrupp, with texts for every day of the month. (2s. 6d. E. J. Harty, 2, Vaughan Parade, Torquay.)

The One Thing Needful. A valuable booklet on the words of our Lord, showing the one indispensable state of mind in order to secure perfect peace and true prosperity. It is worthy of a large circulation. (1d. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling.)

OUR DANGER AND OUR SAFETY. By Rev. Septimus Hobbs. 3d. Hunt & Co. This is an address prepared by the rector of Compton Valence, for reading at a Provincial Protestant Association meeting. It exposes the dangers that threaten our civil and religious liberties through Romanising practices in the Church of England, and urges jealous fidelity to Protestant principles on the part of clergymen, and earnest activity on the part of laymen, to let those in authority in Church and State know that the superstition and tyranny of the Apostate Church will not be tolerated by the country.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol took part on Saturday week in an interesting and unique ceremony at New Swindon—the opening of a temporary church, built entirely by voluntary labour. The work was entered upon in the early part of last year, and the working-men members of the congregation gave their services most willingly after the day's toil was over. The edifice will accommodate some 350 persons.

Archdeacon Richardson, of Southwark, and Rev. Robert Lang, one of the secretaries of the Church Missionary Society, are to start almost immediately for a brief visit to Palestine to confer with the C.M.S. agents there respecting points of Church government and discipline. As a deputation from the London Jews' Society, Rev. Frederick Smith, rector of Woodchester, and a former secretary, and Dr. Chaplin, a former medical missionary in the Holy Land, are also visiting Palestine shortly, for objects connected with that Society.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Bridgwater Church (Rev. E. J. Dukes, pastor) reports 400 communicants. The three Sunday-schools include upwards of 700 scholars. The lay preachers supply about ten village chapels every Sunday.

Forty-eight members have been added to the fellowship of London-road Church, Derby, since the settlement of Rev. J. Pandy Williams as pastor in May last. The Sunday evening services are usually attended by crowded congregations.

In connection with Brixton Independent Church (Rev. Dr. Stevenson's) there has been recently started a "Young Men's Christian Union," the object of which is to give encouragement and help to young men to qualify them for greater usefulness in Christian work. Bible-readings for young men are held every Sunday afternoon in the church, at which free discussion is invited; young men will be cordially welcomed.

Very successful evangelistic meetings are held every Sunday night at 8 in the new lecture and recreation rooms connected with Redland-park Chapel, Bristol, of which Rev. Urijah Thomas is pastor. The elegant hall is well filled with just the class it is desired to reach. A string band, hearty singing, and a brief, earnest Gospel address secure the attendance and attention of some 500 or 600 people.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Intelligence has been received of a serious fire which occurred at the English Presbyterian Medical Missionary Hospital, Amoy, China. Dr. Lang was himself severely burned, and one of his ablest assistants so much so that he died the next day.

The English Presbyterians have decided to go forward with the building of a church at Cambridge. Services have been held in the Guildhall for many years by select preachers, but the building contract for the new church has now been signed. The cost is to be about £8000, which includes the value of the site.

At the meeting of the London Presbytery (North) last week, Rev. Dr. Verner White formally resigned his charge at South Kensington, he having completed his ministerial jubilee. Dr. White mentioned that in the fifty years he had addressed upwards of four millions of adults in connection with his ministry in Ireland, at Liverpool, and South Kensington. On the motion of Dr. Edmond, the Presbytery accepted the resignation, and gave expression to its brotherly regard for the "veteran workman who had spent such a laborious day in the Master's service."

BAPTIST.

Rev. R. F. Guyton, late of Delhi, has accepted the pastorate of Trinity Church, Huntingdon.

At Emmanuel (Union) Church, Duckett-road, Harringay, N., Rev. William Frith (editor of Consecration), commenced on Sunday morning a series of special sermons on some of the Davidic Psalms.

At a meeting of the council of the Baptist Union last week, at the Mission House, Furnival-street, Rev. J. R. Wood, of Holloway, was unanimously nominated to the vice-presidency of the Union, and, consequently, to the presidency in 1891-2, in succession to Rev. J. Owen.

Rev. J. T. Brown, of College-street Chapel, Northampton, has completed his ministerial jubilee. His first charge was at Oakham, Rutland, but after a three or four years' stay there he accepted a call to Northampton, where he has remained nearly forty-seven years.

Rev. W. Stott, who founded the Baptist Church at St. John's Wood, and who has laboured there most successfully for over twenty-seven years, has placed his resignation in the hands of the deacons; but by a unanimous vote of the church he has been asked to reconsider the matter.

At a meeting of the Evangelistic Association at the Baptist Chapel, Waltham Abbey, on Saturday week, under the presidency of the pastor, the vicar of the parish, and his curate, were present and took part. Several addresses were delivered on the subject of prayer. The members of the Association carry on a good work in various hamlets in connection with Baptist, Congregational, and Methodist bodies.

Rev. A. E. Clarke has resigned the curacy of St. Mark's, Preston, and is seceding from the Church of England, owing to a change of views on the subject of Baptism. He says that the Lord has taught him very clearly on the subject, and his conclusions, he has found, "are irrefutable on the inconsistency of the evangelical position in the Church of England; and a reply to their—the evangelical—objections means proving that, where infant baptism is taught, baptismal regeneration must be taught." Hence he has decided to take a definite stand on New Testament lines, against Romanism and Ritualism. Mr. Clarke purposes entering the Baptist ministry, and will seek a sphere of labour in that denomination.

SALVATION ARMY.

Major Jai Bhai, from India, has had some meetings at Wolverhampton, Leicester, and Burton-on-Trent.

Norland Chapel, Uxbridge-road, has been secured, re-christened "Norland Castle," and opened for the training of a limited number of cadets.

The Salvation Army is removing its "Foreign Office" from Queen Victoria-street to the premises above the District Railway Station at Blackfriars. Considerable inconvenience, even before the recent fire, was experienced at the premises in Queen Victoria-street, owing to the continued expansion of the Army operations at home and abroad. Further relief has been obtained by the acquisition of two large warehouses in Clerkenwell-road, where the printing and publishing of the Army literature will be henceforward carried on.

METHODIST.

An eight days' United Mission of the Wesleyan Churches at Leeds was commenced on Sunday. Services are being held in seventeen centres.

The Northern Advance is informed that the idea of bringing about a fusion of the United Methodist Free Church and the Methodist New Connexion is meeting with very favourable consideration. If the two Connexions can be blended, their united forces will include 600 ministers, 4600 local preachers, and 121,000 members and probationers.

The annual meeting in connection with the union of Methodists in Manchester and district was held in the Central Hall on Tuesday, last week. In the afternoon Rev. W. L. Watkinson preached, and in the evening a public meeting was held, over which Mr. Isaac Hoyle, M.P., presided. Addresses were delivered by representatives of the Wesleyan, Free Church, Primitive, and Methodist New Connexions.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Samuel and Deborah Lloyd, of Kansas, are actively and successfully at work in various parts of the country. They have just visited Gloucester, Cirencester, Cheltenham, Newport, and Cardiff. In Newport they were at the opening of the New Meeting Rooms on Friday last, and on Sunday, at Cardiff, remarkable power and blessing accompanied the meetings all day; several confessing and accepting Christ at the closing prayer-meeting. On Monday they went to Bristol and Somerset—Quarterly Meeting in Bristol—and from thence to Oxfordshire, where a wide field awaits the seed of the kingdom. They carry the love and prayers of the Church with them.

On Thursday, the 16th inst., Joseph Ernest Grubb, of Carrick-on-Suir, was set at liberty by his Monthly Meeting for religious service, including the visiting of families in Cardiff Meeting. The news will gladden many hearts, and help to revive a practice too little carried out in modern days. Family visiting rightly done is calculated to bless both visitor and visited.

"Two Nights Amid Strange Scenes," by Norman Penney, of Gloucester, gave much satisfaction to fair audiences in Cardiff on the 13th and 14th inst. The costumes of Syria and Palestine were worn by several men and women, and the lecture, thus illustrated, was very instructive in explaining a variety of Scripture passages.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

The semi-jubilee of Rev. H. M. Rathay, Ancrum Free Church, Roxburghshire, was recently celebrated by a very large attendance of the people of the village and district without distinction of denomination. The office-bearers and congregation presented Mr. Rathay with a beautifully illuminated address, full of expressions of esteem and affection. Perhaps not for a century were so many ministers seen in the parish.

NOTES FROM WALES.

The next autumnal meeting of the Baptist Union is to be held at Cardiff in October; the meetings will be presided over by Rev. James Owen, of Swansea.

A new and excellent little monthly has been started by the Welsh Baptist Union, called The Sower. It is meant to serve the Sunday-school.

The well-known Welsh Wesleyan preacher, Rev. John Evans, Eglwysbach, has lately been removed to the English circuit of Chester. His absence will be keenly felt at Bangor and throughout the Principality.

A gloom has lately been cast over the Principality by the death of Rev. J. Alun Roberts, Congregational minister. He held charges at Carnarvon, Cardiff, and in Australia. His courtesy, courage, and Christian character had endeared him to many.

Much attention is paid in Wales, nowadays, to the education of the ministry. The last six or seven years have seen quite a revolution in the inner and educational life of Wales. It is to be hoped that the cause of Christ will profit largely from this awakening.

All Welshmen are deeply interested in the movements of the great explorer, H. M. Stanley, and they rejoice at the success of his undertaking. There are many in Wales who were his schoolmates and companions, and all admire his humility and courage.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Lagan-street Mission, Belfast, started about fifteen years ago in a thickly peopled district, has been the means of doing much good.

The Methodist Local Preachers' Association, Belfast, is doing an excellent work in holding open-air services, and in conducting evangelistic and other meetings.

An admirable scheme has been adopted in Derry for seeking out and benefiting the non-church-going portion of the population. The city has been divided into four districts, to correspond with the four Presbyterian congregations, and each congregation has been assigned the district around its own church.

The Congregationalists of Ireland have or[illegible] Orphan Society. At the first election nineteen children were placed under its care.

During the past week a successful series of conferences on missions was held within the bounds of the Dungannon Presbytery. The subjects discussed were of a very interesting nature, and it is hoped that a fresh impetus has been given to missionary enterprise in the district, in addition to deepening the spiritual life in the hearts and homes of the people.

The Townsend-street Presbyterian Church, Belfast, of which Rev. Dr. Johnston is the well-known pastor, has had a successful year. It has 669 members, two day schools, with sixty teachers and 3300 scholars, four Sabbath-schools, with 100 teachers and [illegible] scholars. The congregation has several missionaries and voluntary workers, who carry on an immense number of evangelistic and other efforts.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. C. A. Gairdner, incumbent of Clonard, [illegible] Meath.—Rev. Ben. Wade, Chancellor of Armagh Cathedral.—Rev. F. H. Mylius, for twenty-six years rector of Elmdon, Warwickshire.—Right Rev. Dr. Douglas Mackenzie, Bishop of Zululand, South Africa.—Rev. J. Shalleross, from 1880 to 1888 pastor of the Congregational Church at East Shilton, Leicestershire, [illegible] lately of Coldsprings, Ontario.—Rev. John Locke, [illegible] entered the Wesleyan ministry forty-nine years ago.—Rev. Samuel Stafford, Primitive Methodist minister, of Glossop.

Appeals.

Child's Hill, N.W.—Mr. C. W. Dobson, 18, Avenue villas, Cricklewood, N.W., asks for contributions of good books and other readable literature for a recently formed library at a working men's institute in Child's Hill.

Christmas and Text Cards for Soldiers.—Mr. Henry Hull, Miss Papillon's Soldiers' Institute, Sandgate, Kent, will be glad to receive parcels (pre-paid) of old Christmas and text-cards, which are much appreciated by the soldiers.

Portsmouth and Gosport Seamen's Mission.—Mr. Henry Cook is just now in great need of Gospel books and tracts for distribution in the course of his excellent work ashore and afloat. His address is 47, [illegible] Gosport, Hants.

Texts in Tramcars.—The London Tramcar and Omnibus Scripture Text [illegible] texts in London tramcars and omnibuses. Last year's report shows the cost of placing the texts to have been £75. Contributions thankfully received by Mrs. Wood, Waterlooville, Cosham, Hants., by whom information will be given as to the success hitherto attained.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—H.H. J.C. J.W.A. J.E. C.D. C.R. A.M.H. J.L. W.L.T. E.R.H. W.P.S. E.B. M.B.M. J.E.C. H.J.B. E.H.S. J.N. R.H.H. E.W. F.W. M.C.W. E.J.P. F.S.P. J.H.S. A.H.H. E.K.J. D.R. D.C. [illegible] F.E. C.O. G.P. D.M. G.B. W.J.M. J.A.V. W.M. J.H. J.C. J.L. V.R.H. R.M. N.B.C. H.J. M.M. G. C.C. D.G. S.F. K.H.S. C.R.H. J.E. E.B. F.L.P. E.S.H.R. W.F.K. W.R.B. T.M. A.G.B. A.M. W.A.M. A.S. J.H.S. J.I. E.C. D.N.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—T. G. Tredennick, [illegible]; Mr. Dunk, [illegible]; E. C. Grimsdell, [illegible]; W. Miller, [illegible]; J. Hennor, The Manse, Primer, [illegible]; Pepper's Hill Farm, Long Crendon, [illegible] Miss Gertrude Lane, Halstead Hall; Mr. R. Gibbs, Post Office, Cranbrook, Kent; T. P. R. White, 153, Riversdale-road, Highbury, N.; [illegible] J. Turner, Yorkshire Light Infantry, Fort Brockhurst, Gosport; A. Ore, Hencroft-street, Slough; J. H. Rawle, 36, Warden-road, Kentish Town, N.W.; J. White, 9, Phillip's-street, Ashton, Birmingham; C. Dewar, Victoria-square, Nethergate, Dundee; G. R. Wilson, 21, High-street, Bangor, N. Wales; Miss E. Nash, 5, Fair-street, Oxford-street, Stepney, E.; M. Mercer, c/o Mr. Lambourne, Thruxton, Andover, Hants.; W. Kingsman, 96, Dudhope-street, Dundee, N.B.

CHRISTIAN LADS' SOCIETY.—This Society has been started at 20, Bedford-terrace, Durham-road, N., with the object of winning lads for Christ. God has blessed the efforts put forth, and many of the members have been truly converted and are seeking to live to His praise. Over fifty lads attend the institute at present, and there is sufficient accommodation for 150. Sympathy and prayer on behalf of the work are earnestly asked for. The help of several young Christian gentlemen, who will interest themselves in the spiritual welfare of the lads, is urgently needed. £200 a year is required to carry on this work, and £50 to complete furnishing. The treasurer is Mr. R. [illegible] Stewart, 61, Tenter-street, Goodman's Fields, London, E.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," issued and conducted by Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, Verses for Daily Readings, Mile End-road, London, E., of which Quarterly Sheets may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, price 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, JAN. 26.—2 Chron. VIII.

The greater part of this chapter was given in 1 Kings ix. 10-28 with very little variation.

(1) Solomon's building operations (1-10).—For carrying out his commercial enterprises, or for protecting his kingdom from foreign invasion, many cities were required, including those offered to but despised by Huram (1; 1 Kings ix. 11-13); and Tadmor (4), a famous city, which the Romans afterwards tried to name Adrianopolis; but the region is still called by its ancient name. Among his servants Solomon made a distinction between the descendants of the Canaanites (7, 8), and the children of Israel (9). He respected the law which determined who should be his bondmen (Lev. xxv. 44-46).

(2) The house for Pharaoh's daughter (11).—A separate abode was needed for her, because it is probable that either she herself or her attendants had brought to Jerusalem some of the idolatries of Egypt. Whatever Solomon may have gained diplomatically by his marriage with Pharaoh's daughter, he lost incalculably by introducing as his wife one whose presence would defile the house where God's ark had been. This unequal yoke (2 Cor. vi. 14) was the beginning of Solomon's sin. The same cause has hindered many who did once "run well."

(3) Solomon's piety and merchandise (12-18).—The two are closely joined together, as they ought always to be. While "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord," Solomon was "not slothful in business" (Rom. xii. 11). He set the work of the house of the Lord in order; gave daily attention both to the sacrifices of the altar (12, 13), and to the service of praise (14); and obeyed in everything "the commandment of the Lord" (13, 14, 15). In this way "the house of the Lord was perfected" (16). For the temple was nothing without the service for which it was erected. This spirit of devotion sanctified his commercial enterprises, and secured their success. It is one way in which men may still find the truth of Matt. vi. 33.

MONDAY, JAN. 27.—2 Chron. IX.

(1) The Queen of Sheba and Solomon (1-12).—This interesting incident was given in 1 Kings x. 1-13; and is quoted by our Lord in Matt. xii. 42. (1) In the queen we have the picture of a sincere inquirer. Note the difficult and dangerous journey she undertook. "She came from the utmost parts of the earth"; the purpose of her coming (1); she had heart questions which she longed to have answered. What led her to come (1, 6).—The report she had heard had seemed too good to be true; so she came to verify it. What an excellent and common-sense way that was of getting her doubts removed! If men would "come and see," they would give up their prejudices. The effect of her visit (3-12).—She not only opened her ears to hear Solomon's wisdom, and her eyes to behold his glory, but she opened her mouth in praise of him, and of God who had magnified him; and she opened her treasures too, and gave to him of her best. (2) In Solomon we have a type of Him who is even greater. No sincere inquirer ever came to Jesus, who is the wisdom of God, without finding more than he had conceived. The best report fails to represent fully his wisdom and glory. He not only answers all our heart's difficult questions, but his glory is shared even by his servants, and his bounty is displayed in giving to them all their heart's desire (12).

(2) Solomon's riches and death (13-31).—The records of both are very closely connected. In this book we have no account of his sad departure from God. Up to the very close of the record we see nothing but his prosperity and glory, immediately followed by his death. His gold, and its glory, and his wisdom could not purchase for him immunity from the grave. And what glory he had, as described here! Note the weight of gold that came to him annually (13, 14); his targets and shields of gold (15, 16); his ivory throne overlaid with gold (17-19); his drinking vessels of gold and silver (20); and his fame, reaching to all the kings of the earth (22, 23). Yet death had no respect for these things. However much we may acquire, we can only enjoy it for a few years. The richest man is poor—miserably poor—if he has no treasure beyond the grave.

TUESDAY, JAN. 28.—2 Chron. X.

With very little variation this chapter was given in 1 Kings xii. We have in it: (1) The folly of Rehoboam (1-15).—His very first public act makes him as conspicuous for his folly as his father was for his wisdom. The people's request (3-5) was a very reasonable one. During the latter part of Solomon's reign they had groaned beneath their heavy burdens. If these are not relieved, sooner or later, a rebellion must follow in any kingdom. The old men's advice (6, 7) was wise. No king can administer his kingdom without reference to the welfare of the people. He must serve them, if they are to render loyal service to him. Rehoboam was privileged in having such good counsellors. But young men go astray, not for want of sensible counsel, but for want of sense to take it. The young men's counsel (8-11) was very foolish. Why it should have commended itself to Rehoboam can hardly be understood. Probably it seemed the bolder, more independent course to refuse dictation from the people. What significant teaching the incident contains. A kingdom is to be preserved or destroyed; a single reply to an important message is to decide which; contradictory counsellors, some towards good, others towards evil; the evil chosen in preference to the good. How often the history has repeated itself in the lives of others beside Rehoboam!

(2) The revolt of the ten tribes (16-19).—God was working behind Rehoboam's folly for the punishment of his people (15), in fulfilment of his word (1 Kings xi. 29). This does not make Rehoboam's sin and folly any less. Note how wisely and righteously God overrules even the free actions of men. The division of the kingdom which Rehoboam's folly introduced continued throughout the subsequent history of Israel. What a warning record this is. Will not young men heed it?

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 29.—2 Chron. XI.

Rehoboam seemed to have learned some wisdom by the revolt he had occasioned. With great resolution he prepared an army for the purpose of subduing the ten tribes (1); but, in obedience to the prophet of the Lord, he refrained (2-4). There is hope for him when he is willing to hear and obey the word of God.

He displayed wisdom also in seeking to fortify his own kingdom by building cities of defence (5-12). These were wisely placed in quarters whence attack might be feared, and were put under skilful commanders (11).

His kingdom was also strengthened by accessions from the ten tribes (13-17). The priests and the Levites were cast off by Jeroboam (14, 15), that he might introduce priests for his own idolatries. Following these came all who were true to God (17). Not only the number, but the character of these people added real strength to Rehoboam's kingdom; so that for three years they walked in the way of David (17).

His father's example in multiplying wives was imitated by Rehoboam, though he did not repeat his father's sin in marrying "strange wives," for all his wives appear to have been chosen from his own people (18-21). Like David, he had his favourite son; and for the sake of Maachah he sought to make Abijah king (22), hence his stratagem in dispersing his other sons throughout the kingdom (23). It is gratifying to find that though he began so badly, his experience made him wise.

THURSDAY, JAN. 30.—2 Chron. XII.

Rehoboam could be religious only under the pressure of great need. Distress made him seek God; but in prosperity he forsook Him (1). As a king he could not sin alone; he carried "all Israel with him." No man ever falls without helping others down too.

Sin brought chastisement (2-12). As God punished the sin of Solomon through the folly of Rehoboam, so he punished the sin of Rehoboam through the invasion of Shishak king of Egypt. God never lacks instruments with which to correct his people. It is well to remember that Shishak prevailed, not because of the number and strength of his forces (3), but only because Israel had "transgressed against the Lord" (2). They had cast off his easy yoke, so should experience for a while the cruel service of others (8). Thus faithfully does God still deal with his children.

Chastisement produced blessing. Rehoboam was humbled by it (6, 7, 12). This was God's purpose in sending it (Job xxxvi. 8-12). Not destruction, but correction, was what God designed. "Some deliverance" (7) was granted to Jerusalem—enough to show that even while chastening his people He cared for them (Isa. xxvii. 9). But the glory of the kingdom in measure departed. The shields of gold gave place to shields of brass (9, 10).

The summary of Rehoboam's life and character is in ver. 14, "He did evil"—not without an occasional admixture of good. Under the pressure of certain circumstances, he could manifest some piety towards God, and some discretion in his government of the kingdom. But it is significant that God's summary of such a life is, "He did evil." The secret of his evil-doing lay in his unprepared heart. He was not ever, only, all for God. He cried to Him in distress; but did not want Him when things prospered. Oh for an established heart! We are reminded that Rehoboam's mother was "Naamah, an Ammonitess" (13). Does not this partly explain his defective character? What the son is to be depends in great measure on what the mother is.

FRIDAY, JAN. 31.—2 Chron. XIII.

Rehoboam was succeeded by his favourite son, Abijah (1). His mother is here described as "Michaiah the daughter of Uriel of Gibeah" (2). She is elsewhere called "Maachah the daughter of Absalom" (xi. 21). She was no doubt Absalom's granddaughter; just as, though called the mother, she was really the grandmother of Asa (1 Kings xv. 10). The character of Abijah is described as evil (1 Kings xv. 3); but, like his father before him, he could evidently appear, now and again, to be zealous for God.

Jeroboam and Abijah are prepared for battle (3). With the former are twice the number of men that follow Abijah. If numbers and strength mean victory, then Jeroboam has the best of it.

Zemaraim (4), where Abijah delivered his extraordinary speech, was in Mount Ephraim, near to Bethel. He had, therefore, entered the enemy's territory. This fact would seem to suggest that he was the aggressor; from his speech the contrary conclusion would be drawn.

The address (4-12) is a strange one. It describes in an aggravated form the guilt of Jeroboam in setting up a separate kingdom (6, 7), overlooking altogether the fact that the revolt of the ten tribes was a heaven-sent chastisement for the sins of Solomon and his people, and that the prophet of God had proclaimed the Divine sanction of the separation. Rightly enough Abijah condemns Jeroboam for his idolatry, and for having driven out of his kingdom the priests and Levites (8, 9). And he contrasts with this the religious condition of his own kingdom (10, 11); and bases his confidence upon the fact that, while the ordinances of God were faithfully observed, God would be their Captain, and would give them victory (12). We should value this harrangue all the more if Abijah's practice had been as good as his preaching. He was boasting of the form of godliness, while little concerned to possess its power.

Yet God honoured his people's confidence (13-20). While Abijah was talking, Jeroboam was acting; and when the speech was finished Abijah found himself hemmed in by the enemy before and behind (13, 14). Their cry for help (14) was followed by the shout of faith (15); and God, on whom they relied (18), fought for them, and defeated their enemies. The winning side of every conflict is always the side on which God fights. "God is with us" is the watchword of victory.

SATURDAY, FEB. 1.—2 Chron. XIV.

After the battle of Zemaraim, a long interval of peace followed, which extended far into the reign of Asa (1).

Every word in which Asa's character is described (2) is important. He did "good and right." He was certainly not faultless, as his after history proves; yet that description is accurate. He acted as under "the eyes of the Lord." It was his aim to please Him. The thought of God's eyes being upon Him restrained him from evil, and stimulated him to what was right. Emphatically, the Lord was "his God." To Asa this meant, not only a mild protest against prevailing idolatry, but a vigorous attempt to overthrow it (3-5). The overthrow was not complete (1 Kings xv. 14); but the record of what he did accomplish shows to what an extent idolatry prevailed in Judah at the time. He was proceeding on right lines. To put away that which is displeasing to God is the first step towards getting his kingdom established.

Following upon this, he sought to strengthen his kingdom (6-8). In this manner he made use of the period of rest which he thankfully recognised had come from God (7). God gives rest now to those who seek Him, in order that they may make similar use of it. We obtain rest that we may serve, and they who serve while enjoying God's rest will prosper. "So they built and prospered" (7).

With a vast army, Zerah, the chief of the Ethiopians of Arabia, came against Asa, and encamped by Mareshah (9), one of the cities fortified by Rehoboam (xi. 8). The scene of the battle was a plain near to Mareshah, called the valley of Zephathah (10). Asa entered the battle full of devout confidence in God (11). The fact that his followers were comparatively few, in no way discouraged him. In his view the battle was not between a thousand Ethiopians and a few people of Judah, but between mortal man on the one side, and God on the other—"let not mortal man prevail against Thee" (11). It matters not how strong the enemy, such confidence cannot but prevail. Note how the victory is described (12)—not, "Asa smote," but "the Lord smote the Ethiopians." Yet He did it "before Asa." The intervention of God does not render human instrumentality needless, but gives to it its right place.

Not only was the enemy defeated, but Asa carried away much spoil (13-15). So an invasion that threatened ruin to the kingdom was made the means of greatly enriching it. What made the change? Simply the prayerful confidence in which it was met. Every difficulty and temptation met in the same spirit will not only be overcome, but will ultimately strengthen and enrich us.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, February 2.

JESUS BROUGHT INTO THE TEMPLE.—LUKE ii. 25-35.

GOLDEN TEXT: VER. 32.

AFTER the circumcision and naming of Jesus (21), followed his presentation in the temple (22-24). (Compare Exod. xiii. 2; Lev. xii. 6-8). Note the poverty of Mary and Joseph represented by their offering (2 Cor. viii. 9). Note, also, how already the evidence of our Lord's being made under the law (Gal. iv. 4) appears. It was in connection with the presentation that the incident of this lesson occurred.

(1) Simeon's recognition of the Saviour (25-28).—Note (1) his character (25). "Just"—righteous in all his dealings with men. "Devout"—reverent and trustful towards God. These two qualities are connected. Morality and religion are inseparable. No man who is devout before God can be really unrighteous toward men. "Waiting," &c.—He was looking daily for the long-promised Messiah. What a beautiful and pregnant title for the Saviour—"Consolation of Israel." He is that now to all who trust Him. "Holy Ghost was upon him."—Evidently in an especial manner. The dispensation of the Holy Ghost was not yet (John vii. 38, 39); but in connection with the coming of Jesus there were persons to whom the Spirit came. Such was Simeon's character. Let him be a pattern to us. Look to, and for the Saviour. Let faith find expression in a spirit of devotion to God, and of righteousness before men. Seek, also, that fulness of the Spirit's presence and power which is the privilege, not of a few, but of all believers under this dispensation. (2) What the Spirit taught him (26).—We don't know how this revelation had been made, nor when; but the subject of it is very important. "Death and the Lord's Christ" are the two subjects which all men are to see. Everything depends upon the order in which they are seen. If death first, then what terror accompanies the sight of Jesus! If Jesus first, then how changed the aspect of death! Let every scholar look now to Him who has destroyed death by dying. (3) The Spirit's leading (27).—He leads to the temple—the house of God, where the desire to meet with the promised Saviour may be satisfied. The Holy Spirit has a special care of those who seek the Lord. He led Simeon at the right time to meet the infant Jesus. By the Spirit's leading Simeon knew the Saviour; for it is not everyone who would have recognised Him in that helpless babe. And he embraced Him (28). Does not the act represent his personal appropriation of Christ for himself? The Holy Spirit will lead every inquirer to that, if He is faithfully followed.

(2) Simeon's testimony concerning the Saviour (28-35).—There are two parts in his testimony. (1) "He blessed God."—Having received the Saviour, he began at once to give thanks and to glorify God. Possession of Christ should always lead to confession. If the heart is full, the mouth will speak. He had reason for praise, because death was now no terror to him; it was simply a departure and a departure in peace (Ps. xxxvii. 37). Paul spoke of death in a similar manner (Phil. i. 23; 2 Tim. iv. 6). To know Christ is to be prepared both for living and dying. Simeon saw Jesus as God's salvation (30). It was surely an act of faith. The eye of sense would not see God's salvation in a helpless child. How his faith reproves our unbelief! See how God's salvation is connected with the person of Christ. To have Him is to have salvation (1 John v. 12). Simeon saw Him not for himself alone, for all people (31), even for the Gentiles, as well as for Israel (32). This comprehensive view of the kingdom of Christ filled Simeon with greater joy and thanksgiving. One proof that we have received the Saviour is in our desire that He may be uplifted before others, that they may receive Him too. (2) "Simeon blessed them."—Joseph and Mary (33). His testimony to them was strange and painful; yet, in speaking it, he "blessed" them. To have fellowship with the sufferings of Christ is a great honour and privilege (Phil. iii. 10). "Fall and rising again" (34).—The words refer to the same persons, and describe the manner in which the Gospel raises men. It abases that it may exalt. We must die in order to live. How true Simeon's words were! Jesus was Himself, by his character and his works, a sufficient sign to those who were willing to be convinced; but was rejected by many. Yet note how men's attitude towards Him reveals "the thoughts of their heart" (35). Your true character before God is declared by your treatment of the Saviour. Even Mary, though "blessed among women" (i. 42), was not to be without suffering. To witness his rejection by men, and at last to stand by his cross (John xix. 25) was the fulfilment of this word. Like her Son and Lord, and like all the family of God, she, too, was perfected through sufferings (Heb. ii. 10, xii. 5-7).

Personalia.

Dr. A. J. Gordon, of Boston, has issued a new book on the Coming of our Lord, "Ecce, Venit" (Behold, He Cometh).

Rev. G. F. Head, vicar of Christ Church, Hampstead, is suffering from an attack of influenza, with bronchial complications, and is entirely laid aside.

Dr. H. Grattan Guinness is expected to return to America on Saturday next. He preached on Sunday evening last at Kilburn Hall, Kilburngate, to a large and deeply interested congregation.

Mr. Spurgeon is returning to London this week, after nearly two months' absence at Mentone, and is announced to preach at the Metropolitan Tabernacle next Lord's Day, morning and evening.

Mr. John Ripley has been suffering for the last six weeks from an accident; he fell, and broke the fibula of his right leg at the ankle. He is so far recovered that he hopes to resume work in March with Mrs. Ripley.

Mr. J. B. Wookey intends paying an extended visit to Scotland, beginning with February, in the interests of Dr. Barnardo's Homes. He will be prepared to tell the story of Christ's work in these institutions, throughout the churches, in public halls, at drawing room meetings, &c., and to avail himself of every open door that may be placed before him by Christian friends and helpers. Communications upon the subject of the Scotch tour will be gladly welcomed by Mr. Wookey if addressed to care of Mr. William Oatts, Christian Institute, Bothwell-street, Glasgow.

Dr. Moon.—This month Dr. Moon, of Brighton, attains his jubilee in his labours for the blind; and it has been suggested that such an occasion would present a fitting opportunity for suitably acknowledging the noble services of one who has done so much for that class, not only in this country, but over the whole world. For more than a generation his name has been a household word amongst the blind, and they hold him in the highest esteem. By his persevering energy and enterprise, as well as his skill and genius, he succeeded in perfecting an admirable system of reading for the blind—especially for the adult blind, who constitute about 75 per cent. of the whole. A number of gentlemen have proposed to act as a committee, of which Mr. John Macdonald, 4, Bath-street, Glasgow, is secretary.

Evangelistic Notes.

Wroughton, near Swindon. — Mr. J. Elliott is conducting services nightly in the O.[illegible] fellows' Hall. The word preached has been with power, and hearts and homes have been made glad as a result.

Mr. James Wharton has lately been holding meetings with his Bible van, at D[illegible], Lower-on-Windermere, Kendal, Liver[illegible]l, and Nethenden. In all these places the Word has been much blessed to both saved and unsaved.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith have been holding at Weston-[illegible] M[illegible], and [illegible] their labours with [illegible]. Many and workers of different denominations united in the work, and as a result over a hundred have confessed conversion. The evangelists are now [illegible] at Stroud.

Mr. W. R. Lane commenced a ten days' mission in the Brassey Institute, Hastings, on Sunday last, in connection with the Y.M.C.A. In the afternoon he had a good [illegible] for men only, with encouraging results. Prayer [illegible] that the meetings may be fruitful [illegible].

Rev. W. J. Mayers (of Dr. Barnardo's Homes) preached on the first Sunday evening in the year at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, and the week following took part in united special services at the Congregational, Wesleyan, and Baptist Chapels at Leytonstone. Last week Mr. Mayers gave three evangelistic addresses in Falmouth, and as the result several profes-ed to be led to the Saviour.

Mr. Henry Varley has concluded a mission in Sydney. He came to the city in August last. From that time till now [illegible] has held 127 Bible and mission meetings. In addition, he has held six meetings for men only, so that in [illegible] addressed the public 133 times. Mr. Varley has since been conducting a mission at Maitland. His subsequent engagements are Windsor and Bathurst.—Australian Christian World.

Tiverton.—A successful mission has closed here. The committee of the Congregational Church invited Rev. W. A. Morton to conduct [illegible] days' services. The [illegible] growing [illegible], and the power of God being manifested [illegible] to bless. The mission was extended to [illegible] days. Conversions have been [illegible], and many have been brought to the Saviour's feet, many of whom being of persons [illegible].

Mr. J. Crofton Rainey, in leaving home for special Gospel Mission work elsewhere, writes of a continuous stream of blessing in the ingathering of souls at the Gerston Mission Hall, in Paisley, [illegible] while there is not room enough to accommodate the crowds that throng there Sunday by Sunday. In giving thanks for this, he would be grateful for the prayers of God's people on the opening of a new hall in Rochford, Essex, on Friday 24th inst., and a subsequent sixteen days' mission there, commencing Sunday 26th inst.

Ireland.—Evangelistic services have been held in the following places: At Clones, by Rev. James Stewart, Methodist Conference evangelist; at Priesthill, Hillsborough, by Mr. and Mrs. Powers, of England; at Ballinacoy, co. Antrim, by Revs. Robert Orr and H. N. Kevin; at Moyallon, co. Down, by Miss Smith and Miss Bax, of England; in the hall of the Y.M.C.A., Belfast, by Mr. Robert Clarke, evangelist from Dublin; also a ten days' mission in connection with the Railway Mission, Belfast. Rev. James Stuart has closed an excellent Gospel mission at Cockstown; a similar mission has been held at Scarth, co. Cork, by Revs. H. Moore and J. W. Parkhill; at Tullamore, by Mrs. Caldwell, of America; and at Belfast, under the auspices of the Central Presbyterian Association.

Major Whittle's Mission, Highgate-road Baptist Chapel.—Jan. 19 to 31: Sundays, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Week evenings, 8. Bible-readings: 3.30 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday.

POOR IN MARYLEBONE.—The members of the mission band in connection with Church-street Baptist Chapel, on Friday evening last, gave a free tea to nearly four hundred of the poor residing in the vicinity.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S NEW WORKS.

THE LATE DR. SOMERVILLE.

This Day. Crown 8vo., cloth. with Photograph, price 5s.

PRECIOUS SEED SOWN IN MANY LANDS.

SERMONS by the late Rev. A. N. SOMERVILLE, D.D. With BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

Now Ready. Elegantly bound, cloth gilt, 3s. 6d.

A CHILD OF FAITH IN AN AGE OF DOUBT.

MEMORIALS OF ANDREW KENNEDY BREMNER. By his BROTHER.

The life of Andrew Kennedy Bremner was very short, but there was in it an element of spiritual intensity which made it to those who knew him best more impressive than many longer lives.

NEW WORK BY THE REV. HUGH PRICE HUGHES, M.A.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

THE PHILANTHROPY OF GOD.

Described and Illustrated in a Series of SERMONS.

NEW WORK BY THE "NUN OF KENMARE."

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 7s. 6d.

LIFE INSIDE THE CHURCH OF ROME.

By M. FRANCIS CLARE CUSACK, "Nun of Kenmare."

CONTENTS:—The Celibacy of the Clergy—The Moral Effects of the Celibacy of the Past and in the Present—The Celibacy of the Clergy in the Middle Ages—The Outside Teaching and the Inside Practice of the Church of Rome—Importance of Understanding the Roman Catholic Doctrine of Infallibility Clearly—The Fallibility of Infallibility—The Historical Frauds of the Roman Catholic Church—How the Pope was made Infallible in the Nineteenth Century.

"A book which should find a place on every Protestant family's bookshelves."—English Churchman.

Sixth Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 5s.

IMAGO CHRISTI: The Example of Jesus Christ.

By Rev. JAMES STALKER, M.A., Author of "The Life of Jesus Christ," "The Life of St. Paul," &c

"This work supplies a real desideratum in theological literature. Dividing the circle of human life into segments, each of which represents an extensive sphere of experience and duty, the author follows our Lord through them one after another, and shows us how He conducted Himself in each. The pages are beacon lights, guiding us in our life's journey; and no one can peruse them without being profoundly impressed with the wealth of the Gospels in counsels of perfection as to human conduct."—The Christian.

JOHN G. PATON, Missionary to the New Hebrides.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. Edited by his Brother, the Rev. JAMES PATON, B.A.

PART I.—WITH PORTRAIT.

Eleventh Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s.

Dr. T. L. CUYLER says:—"I have just laid down the most robust and the most fascinating piece of Autobiography that I have met with in many a day. It is the story of the wonderful work wrought by JOHN G. PATON. He is made of the same stuff with Livingstone. A book which is as thrilling as any romance."

The Rev. Dr. PIERSON, author of "The Crisis of Missions," says:—"I consider it unsurpassed in missionary biography. In the whole course of my extensive reading on these topics, a more stimulating, inspiring, and every way first-class book has not fallen into my hands.

PART II.—VIEW OF MISSION HOUSE.

Eighth Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s.

"This second half is not a whit behind its predecessor in genuine, living, fascinating interest. As we read the wondrous tale of 'something attempted, something done,' told in words that come red-hot from the heart of the honoured worker, we feel that of a truth the days of miracles are not ended."—The Christian.

"No modern missionary story is more thrilling, romantic, or, in parts, pathetic than this; none furnishes more convincing proof of the power of the Gospel or the efficacy of prayer."—Methodist Times.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

LIVING in LODGINGS.

See OUR OWN GAZETTE for February, which also contains "Fine Gold" (New Serial Story by Emma Marshall); "Hints on the making of Winter Comforts," by Ellen T. Masters; Complete Story by Mrs. Hayeroft; "Cap and Apron" Competition (£2 in Prizes), &c., &c. Now ready, attractively illustrated. Price One Penny. Through any Bookseller, or direct from OUR OWN GAZETTE Office, 18, Paternoster-square, London, E.C.

REGENT SQUARE PULPIT.

Rev. JOHN McNEILL'S SERMONS.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, PRICE 1d.

Nos. I to II NOW READY.

JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

Now Ready. Price 6d.; post free, 6½d.

REUNION AMONG CHRISTIANS. What are the Limits assigned by God's Word within which we may Labour and Pray for it? A Plea for its speedy accomplishment especially between Evangelicals and High Churchmen. By REGINALD SMITH, Canon of Sarum.

Cassell & Company (Limited), London.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS,

Printed in Blue Ink. Size 31 by 20 inches.

70 Different Texts at 3d. each. Lists sent on application.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

REST FROM SORROW: Or, The Ministry of Suffering.

By Rev. WILLIAM GUEST, F.G.S.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS.

London:

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, 56, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Price One Penny; 1s. per dozen, post free.
7s. per 100, or £3 per 1000.

THE DEVIL'S MISSION OF AMUSEMENT.

A SEQUEL.

The Former Protest Vindicated and Illustrated by

ARCHIBALD G. BROWN.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

In Crown 8vo., Five Shillings.

DEMONOLOGY AND WITCHCRAFT:

WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO

MODERN "SPIRITUALISM," SO-CALLED; AND THE "DOCTRINES OF DEMONS."

By ROBERT BROWN, Author of

"Outlines of Prophetic Truth," "The Personality and History of Satan," "Gleanings from the Book of Ruth," &c., &c.

"His tenacious hold and his fearless declaration of the 'Old Gospel' is refreshing. The book is sure to be read. The incidents with which it abounds are often thrilling and exciting to the last degree: and the teachings and warnings accompanying them cannot fail to do good."—The Christian.

"The writer has produced a curiously interesting book, and one in which Sir Walter Scott would have delighted."—Public Opinion.

"We are very glad our readers can be supplied with a masterly and comprehensive treatise on the subject of 'Spiritualism' by the purchase of this book. Mr. Brown is mighty in the Scriptures and sound in the faith. His book is eminently spiritual, . . . which bespeaks by anticipation a blessing for it."—The Rock.

"The volume generally is quite a mine of fact information, gathered from an immense variety of sources, on all points connected with 'Spiritualism'"

European Mail.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

JUST READY, OF ALL NEWSAGENTS.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S

Illustrated Monthly Magazines

for February, 1890.

"A.1." Monthly Part, for February, Price 6d., contains—

THE TRUE GENTLEMAN.

By THAIN DAVIDSON, D.D

"NOLENS VOLENS;" or, The Adventures of Don Lavington. Serial Story. By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN.
HAMILTON OF KINGS. Serial Story. By ALICE PRICE.
PHOTOGRAPHY. By WALTER E. WOODBURY.
A SUSPECT. By F. E. BEDDARD.
THE CITY OF THE GREAT WHITE TZAR.
A DAY AT CALAIS. By MICHAEL EASTWOOD.
THE WEAVERS OF SPITALFIELDS. By J. FULLER HIGGS.
CURIOUS REMEDIES. By W. H. DAVENPORT-ADAMS.
FRONTISPIECE, "February Days," and Forty-five other Illustrations.

THE BRITISH WORKMAN, with full-page Engraving, "Save the Children First" (the Wreck of the Danmark), and article by the Rev. Charles Garrett, also Biographical Sketch and Portrait of Samuel Smiles, LL.D., Author of "Lives of the Engineers," &c., &c., "Nothing There. No, Nor Anywhere," by Rev. P. B. Power, &c., &c. One Penny.

THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW, with splendid full-page drawing, "Billy's Lantern," by W. Hatherhall; also brightly-written stories on Temperance, &c., &c. One Halfpenny.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND. With Six Full-Page Engravings, and Serial Story, "Bel's Baby," by Mary E. Ropes, and several other interesting Stories for the Young. One Penny.

THE INFANTS' MAGAZINE. With Charming Pictures and Stories for the Little Ones. A Morning Call—Spring Music—A Tale of a Vase—Grandmother's Story, &c., &c. One Penny.

THE FAMILY FRIEND. With Serial Story, by Emma Leslie, entitled, "Gerald's Dilemma," "The Great Necessity," by Mark Guy Pearse, Interesting Articles for the Members of the Family, &c. Fully Illustrated. One Penny.

THE FRIENDLY VISITOR, with 7 Engravings, contains—"Where art Thou?"—"I Hope My Time will Come Yet"—"Never Too Late, Tom"—and other Articles of Simple Gospel Teaching. One Penny.

THE MOTHERS' COMPANION. Full of Interesting Reading for the Family. Several Illustrations. Serial Story, by Emma Marshall, entitled "The Mo[illegible] The Broken Link," &c. One Penny.

 A SPECIMEN PACKET containing one of each of the above will be sent post free by the publishers on receipt of 1s. in stamps.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Notice.

A Fourth Edition of the First Part of the New Volume of

THE QUIVER

Has already been called for, and is on Sale at all Booksellers, price 6d.

THE QUIVER.—"Best of all the Magazines devoted to Sunday reading."—Saturday Review.

THE QUIVER "contains a rich variety of matter, religious and secular. It is unquestionably ahead of its contemporaries in its illustrations."—The Times.

THE QUIVER "is an amazing sixpenny-worth; the illustrations are so good, and the style so fresh and attractive, combining solid instruction with much that is entertaining and bright."—The Rock.

THE QUIVER.—"This old-established periodical for Sunday and general reading is a long way ahead of any of its rivals."—Nottingham Express.

CASSELL & COMPANY, Limited, Ludgate-hill, London.

THREEPENCE MONTHLY.

THE CHRISTIAN TREASURY.

Editor—F. B. MEYER, B.A.

It is regretted that the entire issue for January was sold out before all demands were met. A larger edition will be prepared in future. Order of all Booksellers.

MARSHALL BROTHERS, 10, Paternoster-row.

DR. PIERSON'S ENGAGEMENTS.

FEBRUARY.

Sunday	Feb. 2	—Aberdeen, N.B.
Monday.....	,, 3	—" "
Tuesday	,, 4	—Fraserburgh.
Wednesday...	,, 5	—Peterhead.
Thursday.....	,, 6	—Aberdeen.
Friday	,, 7	—Brechin.
Sunday.....	,, 9	—Perth.
Monday	,, 10	—"
Tuesday	,, 11	—Dundee.
Wednesday...	,, 12	—Forfar.
Thursday.....	,, 13	—Arbroath.
Friday	,, 14	—Montrose.
Sunday.....	,, 16	—Dumfries.
Monday	,, 17	—"
Tuesday	,, 18	—Lockerbie.
Wednesday...	,, 19	—Moffat.
Thursday.....	,, 20	—Glasgow.
Friday	,, 21	—Coatbridge.
Sunday.....	,, 23	—Melrose and Galashiels.
Tuesday	,, 25	—Hawick.
Wednesday...	,, 26	—Selkirk.
Thursday.....	,, 27	—Kelso and Jedburgh.
Friday	,, 28	—Berwick.

Next week Dr. Pierson addresses meetings in the West of England, including Swindon, Bristol, &c.

In May he hopes to speak at the Baptist Missionary Meeting (May 1), and at the London Missionary Society meeting on May 14. From May 5—7 he will be present at the U.P. Synod in Edinburgh.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

MESSRS. MIDDLETON and HOGBEN are prepared to conduct evangelistic missions in town or country.—Apply to Mr. William Baker, Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C.—Bible-readings on Daniel, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, Tues. 6 to 7 p.m. Missionary conference, Thurs., Feb. 6, at 6.30.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45. p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30, public. Gospel meetings for men nightly, at 8. Bible-reading, Sat. at 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., at 8. Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2.

Y.M.C.A., HACKNEY, 275, Mare-street, N.E.—United Mission, by Mr. Henry Thorne, Jan. 25 to Feb. 10.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sat., Jan. 25, 3 p.m., address to young men, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, on "The Divine Sonship of the Lord Jesus." Tues., Jan. 28, illustrated lecture, "How a Photograph is Taken," by Mr. Edgar Clifton, of the London Stereoscopic Company.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 22, Savile-row, W.—Thurs., Jan. 23, 8.30 p.m, lecture by Rev. A. B. Boyd Carpenter, on "The English: their Conquest of Britain." Sun., Jan. 26, 3.30 p.m., young men's meeting. Address by Rev. George Wilson.

Y.M.C.A., BAYSWATER, 172, Queen's-road, W. (opposite Whiteley's).—Bible lectures for men, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, on "Daniel the Prophet," Tues., Jan. 28. Feb. 4 and 11, at 8.30 to 9.30 p.m.

Y. M. CHRISTIAN INSTITUTE, 309, Regent-street, W.—Sun. afternoon next, at 3.15, special address to young men, by Rev. John McNeill.

Y.W.C.A., 316, REGENT-STREET, W.—Bible-reading by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Subject—"Epistle to the Colossians," Thurs., at 11.30 a.m.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Piccadilly: Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. Josiah Nix. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Major, Headley Sun., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Meeting, concerning Turkey in Asia, Room No. 6, Thurs., Jan. 23, 7.30 p.m. Rev. Prebendary Calthrop in the Chair. Addresses by Madame Thoumaian, from Marsovan in Anatolia, Rev. Dr. Edmond, and Dr. J. L. Maxwell. Sun., Jan. 26, 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Wm. S. Fleck; Tues., Jan. 28, 7.30 p.m. Dissolving View Lecture, by Dr. H. Grattan Guinness. Subject—"Africa."

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Jan., 26, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. W. E. Boardman; Thurs., Jan. 23 and 30, and Feb. 6, 8 p.m., Rev. James Neil, on "Figurative Language of Scripture." Meeting for prayer, Suns., 7.45 a.m.; Weds., Fris., and Sats., 7.30 p.m.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—A Quiet Day, Portman Rooms, 32, Dorset-street, Portman-square, W., Fri., Jan. 31. Morning, 11.30, Revs. F. B. Meyer and C. A. Fox; afternoon, 3.30, Revs. Nevile Sberbrooke and Evan Hopkins; evening, 8, Revs. F. H. White and H. J. Berguer.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C.—Subject for Jan. and Feb.—"Christ's own Exposition of his Mission," by Rev. Dr. Allon. Tues. next, at 12 noon—"What is a Religious Life?"

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, Park-square East (near Portland-road, Station), N.W.—Weekly Bible-class for workers, Fri., 8.15 p.m., conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Sun. services, 11 and 7.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Feb. 7. Tea at 6 p.m. Meeting at 7. Mr. J. Christian Hickins will preside. Addresses by Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun., on "Ambassadors for Christ." Mr. E. H. Glenny will give an account of his recent visit to Morocco and Algiers.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Regent-square, W.C.—Rev. John McNeill, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 7.30. p.m.

PARIS DAILY INTERNATIONAL PRAYER-MEETING—9 a.m., at Miss de Broen's Temperance Refreshment Rooms and General Inquiry Office, 205, Rue Saint-Honoré, within easy reach of most of the English and American hotels.

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W., Sun., at 11 and 7, and at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, Wed., at 8.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services every Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, 11 and 6.30, Mr. Charles Inglis.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, 11 a.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright; 7 p.m., Mr. Joseph Clarke.

DUNDEE.—Convention for the deepening of spiritual life, Kinnaird Hall, Feb. 26—28.

CONVENTION FOR THE DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Guildall, Doncaster, Jan. 25—26, conducted by Rev. E. W. Oakes, late pastor of "The People's Tabernacle," Manchester, New Hampshire, U.S.A., Mrs Oakes and Mrs. M. Baxter; meetings at 3 and 7 p.m.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO MONDAY, JANUARY 20, 1890.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

	£	s.	d.
Kolar Mission (Miss Anstey)—H.W. 10s; A.M. 10s; Mr. P. 5s	1		0
Sailors' Rest, Smyrna—H.S.B.	2		6
China Inland Mission—Pres. Ch. per Rev. G. Bennett, £1 14s 3d; S.N. £10; M.D.O. 5s; Bessbrook Y.M.C.A. £1; W.H.H. £2	18		3
McAll Mission—F.P. £1 1s; B.C. £1 1s; R.T. £20; M.S. £5			0
Signor Capellini's Work among Soldiers—H.S.B.			0
Japanese Work (Miss Maclean)—M.S.		2	0
North Africa Mission—H.S.B. 10s; S.N. £5		10	0
British & Foreign Bible Society—S.P....		0	0
Paris City Mission—M.S.		2	0
Church Missionary Society—M.O.M. £1 10s: A.A. £5		10	0
Mr. C. E. Faithfull's Work, Marseilles—M.S. ...		3	0
Beyrout Moslem Girls' School—H.S.B...		2	0
Mr. C. B. Ward's Work among Telegus—Miss A.		10	0
Mr. Rabinowitz—S.C.		5	0
Dr. Comandi's Orphanage—Misses C.	1	0	0
Cape General Misn. (Mr. Spencer Walton) C.S.H.		5	0
Turkish Missions Aid Society—R.T.	10	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—R.T. £10s; A Friend, £2	12	0	0
Spanish & Portuguese Church Aid Society—R.T.	10	0	0
Palestine Jews (Mrs. Finn)—A.	10	0	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—A.R. ...	6	10	0
Pastor Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—R.T. ...		0	0
Spezia Mission (Rev. E. Clarke)—Misses C. ...	1	0	0
Miss Jerrom's Work, Lodiana—Misses C.	1	0	0
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—M.S...	3	3	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—Mrs. M. Annan, 10s; C.H. 10s; S.P. £1; E.A.R. 5s	2	5	0
Free Meals, &c. (Very Poor)—Mrs. M. Annan, 10s; M.A. 2s 6d.	0	12	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—C.H. 10s; "Poly," £1; S.P. £1; R.M.W. £5; A.P. £1; M.N.B. £1; Miss T.A. 14s 6d; G.S.J. £1; C.A.E. 7s 6d; M.R.C. 5s; "Slugs," 3s 6d; C.C.H. 10s... ...	12	10	6
Misn. Deep Sea Fishermen—Miss F., Danesford, 5s; Miss K.C. 5s; M.O.M. 15s; L. 10s; G.S.J. £1; R.T. £5; E.G.C., In Memoriam, 10s	8	5	0
Cloudesley Institute—M.S. £3 3s; R.M. £2 2s	5	5	0
Railway Officers' & Servants' Institution—M.S.	1	1	0
Dr. Stephenson's Children's Home—Mrs. S. & H., Verulam	1	19	6
Bible & Prayer Union, Aged Pensioners' Fund, Umballi, £1; H. B. 10s; R.T. £5; W.H.H. £2	3	17	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—"Poly," 10s; E.P. £1 9s 6d; A. £20; M.W.B. 10s; Mr. [illegible] ...	25	19	[illegible]
East London Training Institute—R. £2 10; Dock Mission, R. £2 10; Young Church, "Poly" 10s ...	5	10	[illegible]
Miss Weston's Work Royal Navy, H.S.B. £1; F. & R. V. £2; A. £20	23	0	[illegible]
Mr. H. Cook's Gospel Ships—H.S.B. 10s	[illegible]	10	0
Peace Society—S.P.	1	0	0
London City Mission—M.O.M. £1; A. £20; H.S.B. £2 2s; (Aged Ministers' Fund, A. £5) ...	23	2	0
Irish Church Missions—M.O.M. 10s; P.T. [illegible] ...	5	10	0
Salvation Army—I. P., [illegible] H.... ...	0	5	0
Cow Cross Mission—Bath	0	10	0
Latymer-road Mission—Bath, 5s; M.S. £3 3s...	3	8	0
Christian Community—Bath	0	5	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—L. 10s; M.S. £3 3s	3	13	0
Religious Tract Society—N.L.Y.	0	[illegible]	[illegible]
Miss Robinson's Work, Portsmouth—F. & R. V. £2; A. £20...	22	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—F. & R. V....	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	6	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	[illegible]	[illegible]
South-East London Gospel [illegible] R.T. £5; M.S. £5	11	[illegible]	[illegible]
Blind Pension Society—B.C. £1; [illegible]	1	10	[illegible]
George Yard Mission—B.C. £1; [illegible]	11	0	0
[illegible]	1	0	0
[illegible]	5	15	0
[illegible]	0	5	0
[illegible] M.B.	0	5	0
[illegible]
[illegible]	10	0	0
Dock Labourers' Mission (Mr. Coleman)—R.T. £10; F.J. 5s; Miss L. 5s	10	10	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—R.T.	[illegible]	0	[illegible]
Home of Industry (Widows)—R.T...	5	0	0
[illegible]	5	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible] R.V.	5	0	[illegible]
Jewish Mission Society (Dr. G. [illegible]	10	0	0
Lady Hobart-Hampden's Work: S[illegible]	10	0	[illegible]
Tower Hamlets Mission [illegible] £10; (Poor and Aged), A. [illegible]	20	0	[illegible]
[illegible]	20	0	[illegible]
[illegible]	20	[illegible]	0
[illegible]	1	1	[illegible]
[illegible]	10	0	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	0	[illegible]
[illegible] ...	0	10	[illegible]
[illegible]	0	10	[illegible]
[illegible]	2	2	[illegible]
[illegible]	2	2	[illegible]
[illegible]	1	7	[illegible]
[illegible]	2	0	[illegible]
[illegible]	3	0	[illegible]
[illegible]	2	2	[illegible]
Mount Hermon Orphanage—M.S.	5	[illegible]	[illegible]
Miss Mason's House of Rest—M.S.	3	3	[illegible]
London Medical Mission—M.S. ...	5	0	[illegible]
Marylebone Medical [illegible] M.S. ...	3	3	[illegible]
[illegible] M.S.	5	0	0
[illegible]	1	1	0
[illegible] ue—M.S.	2	2	0
[illegible] M.S....	2	2	0
[illegible]	2	2	0
Open-Air Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
Joshua Poole—M.S.	2	0	0
Princess Mary Village Homes—M.S.	5	5	0
Rev. D. M. Cameron's Work, Wandsworth—M.S.	3	3	0
Mildmay Conference—R. £2 10; [illegible] Hospitl.), R. £2 10; [illegible] M.S.	5	0	0
Mr. C. Byatt (Writing [illegible] J.C.	1	0	0
[illegible] Mrs. W.B.	0	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society [illegible]—M.S. [illegible]: R.M. £3 3s; (Ladies' Fund, R.M. £2 2s ...	10	5	0
	£559	15	3

[illegible] ENTS.]

Home of Industry—A.E., Widows' Tea, 5s.

Ashley Mission (For the Poor [illegible] L.St.L. 2s 6d.

Leighmarly Endowment Fund (Rev. W. Hanlon)—G.H.H. 10s.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E. (New Building Fund)—F.A.B. £25; Mr. F. A. Bevan, Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Mission to Buddhists—Mr. E. H. Soper acknowledges the receipt of the following donations, and returns thanks for same—Mrs. M. £2 10s; Miss M. £2 10s; Mrs. D.E. £2; Mrs. M. £5; Friends at Oban, £1 9s; T.O. £1; Mr. S. 10s; Miss T. £1; Mrs. S. £2; T.H. 10s 6d; Mrs. J. £1 6s; H.N. 10s; S. School by Mr. R.A. 10s; A.S.L. £1 1s.

Evangelistic Mission—A Reader of THE CHRISTIAN, Nottingham, 2s 6d; Hurstpierpoint, 2s 6d; Chislehurst, 2s 6d; Reigate, 2s 6d; W.H. 2s 6d; E.H. 2s 6d; G.N.H, 2s 6d; M.H. 2s 6d; Mrs. M. 2s 6d; Mrs. A. 2s 6d; Anon. at Kilburn Hall, 2s 6d; Ditto, 2s 6d; Mrs. P. 3s; Anon. per W.H. 2s 6d; With the verse "Were the whole realm," &c., £1; Edinburgh, 2s 6d; Inverness, 2s 6d; Postal Order, Anon., 2s 6d; Brighton, 2s 6d; "An Urgent Appeal," 5s.

THE BEST BEVERAGE FOR CHILDREN

CADBURY'S COCOA is closely allied to milk in the large proportion of flesh-forming & strength-sustaining elements that it contains. It is prepared on the principle of excluding the superabundance of fatty indigestible matter with which Cocoa abounds —supplying a refined thin infusion of absolutely pure cocoa, exhilarating and refreshing, for Breakfast, Luncheon, Tea, or Supper —giving staying power, and imparting new life and vigour to growing Children, and those of delicate constitutions.

ABSOLUTELY PURE, Therefore BEST.

CADBURY'S COCOA

MONTHLY, ONE HALFPENNY

THE

HERALD of MERCY.

ILLUSTRATED.

A Monthly Messenger for Humble Homes.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" gives—what is so much needed by Tract Distributors—a constant variety of Awakening Gospel Appeals, Invitations, and Encouragements. The Subscriber for the Year is thus enabled to furnish every month to the persons in his or her District a complete change of reading and religious instruction.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" is supplied as follows:—

	For 6 Months.	For 12 Months.
8 Copies Monthly	2s. post free	4s. post free.
12 "	3s. "	6s. "
20 "	5s. "	10s. "
52 "	13s. "	26s. "
100 "	25s. "	50s. "

Intermediate quantities at the same Proportionate Rates. Larger quantities on Special Terms.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SUITABLE FOR A GIFT-BOOK.

The Christian Portrait Gallery:

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED Life-like Portraits and Biographic Sketches of Prominent Christian Workers of the Present Day.

Handsomely Bound, Demy Quarto, Cloth,
Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

"The perusal of the volume has been to us a delight and an inspiration. A better book could not be found for a present."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This handsome, large, quarto volume, beautifully bound, is one of more than ordinary interest to the Christian reader. It contains upwards of one hundred biographical sketches, with remarkably life-like portraits of men and women who have been—and some of whom still are—eminent workers for God at home and in foreign lands."—English Churchman.

"This handsome volume will be valued by all who are interested in the Christian life and work of our day. The portraits are very good, and the accompanying sketches are models of brief, terse, and adequate biographies. The volume will form a handsome feature for the drawing-room, and be especially suitable for presentation."—Baptist Magazine.

"This volume contains portraits of about a hundred of the best known Christian workers of the present day, with a short account of the life and labour of each. All who can purchase the volume will be very pleased with it."

Christian Progress.

"Messrs. Morgan & Scott have just published [illegible] Gallery, and contains portraits and biographic sketches [illegible] whole get-up of the book is first-class."—Divine Life.

"For half-a-guinea a collection of one hundred portraits of distinguished Christian workers of this period; a noble army indeed. This Portrait Gallery can claim a high artistic value; and yet the smallness of its price brings it within the means of many."

Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

One Halfpenny Monthly.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES.

"The Christian who desires to give a bit of good reading along with a word in season to any fellow-traveller by road, rail, or river, could not do better than lay in a stock of this periodical. It costs only a halfpenny; but its contents are of a high spiritual quality, fitted to awaken the careless, and to lead to decision."

Christian Leader.

"Very good. Cannot be better. The very thing for distribution."—Sword and Trowel.

"It is profusely illustrated, and full of instructive and profitable reading for old and young. The Gospel is presented in its most winning and attractive form."—Christian Age.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

8th Thousand.

"To the Work! To the Work!"

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIANS,

Calling to active effort in the Lord's service.

By D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS	1/
CLOTH LIMP	1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges ..	2/6

Appendix—Elihu Burritt on "The Good Samaritan."

"No better service could be done to the Church of Christ than to circulate this work—which is like a trumpet call from beginning to end—among Christians who are lagging in the Master's work."

Word and Work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

50th Thousand.

HEAVEN:

ITS HOPES, ITS INHABITANTS,
ITS RICHES, ITS REWARDS.

THE CERTAINTY OF GOD'S PROMISE OF A LIFE BEYOND THE GRAVE; AND THE REWARDS THAT ARE IN STORE FOR THE FAITHFUL.

AS GLEANED FROM SACRED SCRIPTURE.

By D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS, 1/- CLOTH LIMP, 1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges 2/6

"Mr. Moody presents to the mind a real and solid thing—the heaven of the apostle John. You may feel that he takes things sometimes too literally; but you will be at a loss to feel, when have read what he has to say, that heaven is more real to you it was before."—The Baptist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Suitable for a Birthday or New Year Present.

THE "GOLDEN TREASURY" BIRTHDAY BOOK.

In this country very few books, except the "Pilgrim's Progress," have been so largely appreciated as

"BOGATZKY'S GOLDEN TREASURY."

This Edition, ARRANGED AS A BIRTHDAY BOOK, it is believed will be welcomed by many. In this BIRTHDAY Edition four additional pages are introduced at the close of each month's portions. These extra pages are arranged with blank square spaces, one for every day. Each space is adapted for receiving four entries, consequently, the total number of names which can be inscribed in the "Birthday" edition amounts to OVER FIFTEEN HUNDRED.

With Beautifully Illuminated Frontispiece.

Elegantly bound in Cloth Boards,
Gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

PRESENTATION EDITIONS.

French Morocco, gilt edges.. .. .. 3s. 6d.
Rich Coloured Leather, Padded, gilt edges .. .. 4s. 6d.

Each of the Leather copies is sent out in a neat cardboard box, thereby securing safety in transit.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Important Work by Dr. A. T. PIERSON,
(Late Pastor of Bethany Church, Philadelphia; and at present ministering in London).

"MANY INFALLIBLE PROOFS."

The Evidences of Christianity;

Or, THE WRITTEN AND LIVING WORD OF GOD.

By REV. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.

Tinted Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"A most masterly treatise on the Evidences of Christianity. The book is full of argument and of suggestion, and lighted up with striking illustration. The volume is a very 'readable' one, and those who have to do with 'honest doubters' could scarcely find a better to put into their hands."—The Church.

"Terse, trenchant, and suggestive."—Life of Faith.

"We have read the book with interest and profit, and we cordially commend it to our readers as a volume which is likely to gain a hearing where a more set and sober treatise would hardly be looked at. The writer has the faculty of expressing himself in simple language, and the almost raciness of style which he adopts, and his frequent illustrations, force the reader to go on."

Church Sunday School Magazine.

"A handbook of Evidences of Christianity by which the author found his way out of the deep darkness of doubt into the full light of day, and found that the Bible was the Book of God, and Christ the Son of God. May it help many others out of Doubting Castle!"

Methodist Times.

"We [illegible] young men, and especially such as are exposed to sceptical influences, could get hold of this able work! It would fortify them at the [illegible] the Gospel and supply them with powerful weapons against opponents."

Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

"For half-a-crown any one may obtain here all that is best in the way of fact and argument on prophecy and miracles, on the scientific accusations against the Christian beauty and sublimity of the Bible and on the person and teaching of Christ."

Methodist Recorder.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

WORKS BY REV. DR. PENTECOST.

"It is well known in Boston that whenever Mr. Moody was obliged to be absent from the great assemblies or the inquiry-rooms of the Boston Tabernacle, in the winter of 1876, Dr. Pentecost was the only man who could fill the gap.

"I heard Dr. Pentecost several times in those days, and rejoiced greatly in his remarkable endowments, and their employment to the service of Biblical truth."—JOSEPH COOK.

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READINGS ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS.

NINTH THOUSAND.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Bright and manly in utterance, Scriptural in teaching, enriched everywhere with suitable anecdote and apt illustration, this volume is a most welcome practical commentary on the portion of the Word with which it deals."—British Messenger.

IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK.

OR, THE PLEASURE AND PROFIT OF BIBLE STUDY. Being an Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

With Introduction by Rev. JOSEPH COOK, and Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

NINTH THOUSAND.

Presentation Edition: Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Editions: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.

"There are few popular books about the Bible that we are more heartily prepared to recommend than that of Dr. Pentecost; for hardly one could be named, that is so likely to lead to a thorough and life-long use of the Bible itself. . . This is high praise, but any one who makes the acquaintance of the volume will find that we have not exaggerated its merits."—Christian Leader.

THE

Christian Worker's Hand-Book:

AND RECORD OF INQUIRERS & CONVERTS.

Price Eightpence.

THIS HANDBOOK, prepared by one who has had wide and lengthy experience in Revival Work, is specially intended for use in the "Inquiry Room." It contains a striking selection of Texts on SIN and SALVATION, for ready reference by the "WORKER." It has Five closely-printed Pages of HINTS TO SOUL-WINNERS; Four Pages for Lists of Persons to be Prayed or Conversed with; an INQUIRER'S and CONVERT'S CARD, with the Name, Residence, and other particulars regarding the Inquirer; and also a solemn Form of "Covenant with God," to be signed by the Convert—to whom is handed a Duplicate Copy to be placed in his or her Bible.

SMALL BOOKS by Dr. G. F. PENTECOST.

NEATLY PRINTED ON TINTED PAPER.

SUITABLE FOR THE INQUIRY-ROOM; FOR GENERAL DISTRIBUTION; OR FOR ENCLOSING IN LETTERS.

PACKET 1.

"I WANT TO BE GOODER!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE JAPANESE STUDENT. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I DREADS DE PROCESS!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"PEACE FOR THE LIKES OF ME!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"LET ME SEE THAT!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"SONS OF GOD." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE TWO SISTERS. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE PRECIOUS BLOOD OF CHRIST. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.

The above-mentioned Nine Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

PACKET 2

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE MODERN DANCE. 2/- per doz.
"I GETS SULKY WHEN I 'M SPOKE TO!" 1/- per doz.
CONSECRATION; OR, PRACTICAL HOLINESS. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I AM TRYING TO BELIEVE." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
ABBIE: A PASSAGE FROM A LIFE-STORY. 6d. per doz; 3/6 per 100.
"A SOUTH WINDOW." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
IN A SNOWSTORM. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN?" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.

The above-mentioned Eight Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

Price 2d. each; 14s. per 100.

A narrative of a business man, who, after many years' hesitancy, finally "unconditionally surrendered" to the Divine call. The narrative is issued with the hope that it may produce good among business men.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

EARNEST WORDS TO ANY WHO ARE WILLING TO WORK FOR CHRIST.

Price 2d. each, Tinted covers: 14s. per 100.
6 copies sent Post Free for 1s.

"Certainly this is true—that the blessing of God is sure to fall upon the church and people, whenever the children of God are willing-hearted toward the work of the Lord, and come with one accord to his help against the mighty."—EXTRACT.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANACK

1890. A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. by 30 in.) 1890.

Printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting various Scenes in the Life of Jacob. Also containing a carefully selected Text for each Day of the Year; Postal Information; Phases of the Moon, &c.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Departure for Haran.
The Stone at Bethel.
Jacob Meeting Rachel.
Reconciliation of Jacob and Esau.
Dinah Leaving the Tent.
The Coat of Many Colours.
Joseph Meeting Jacob in the Land of Goshen.
Jacob before Pharaoh.
Jacob Blessing Joseph's Sons.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' ALMANACK for 1890, which Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT have issued, is quite worthy of its predecessors in the several features that have in the past proved interesting and useful."
Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, October, 2, 1889.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' SHEET ALMANACK is beautifully illustrated. The Almanack is one that can be placed on the wall of any living-room."
St. John's Wood and South Hampstead Advertiser, October 14, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Newsagent or Bookseller in the Kingdom.

WORKS BY ANNA SHIPTON.

ASKED OF GOD.

EXPERIENCES OF ANSWERED PRAYER.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Editions, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

"A very beautiful exposition, and enforcement of the power of prayer."—The Preacher's Lantern.

May also be had in German, 1s. 4d.

GOD'S MESSENGERS: Or, THE LOST BLESSING.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d.

CONTENTS.

The Land of Promise.
The First-ripe Grapes.
"Jesus Only."
Imperfect Obedience.
Hidden Riches of Secret Places.
The Net and the Snare.
Limiting the Lord.
The Treasures of Darkness.

"The various chapters are mines of richest experience. The author lives at the feet of Jesus, or rather, in his bosom: and she receives intimations of guidance which none but such can know."
The Sword and Trowel.

Cheap Edition: Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

May also be had in German, 1s. 6d.

THE SECRET OF THE LORD.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"The main design of this book is to impress on the Christian mind the privilege of communion with its Lord; and to hold this up as the means both of obtaining qualification for religious service, and of guidance as to how and where that service is to be performed."
The Friend.

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

WAYMARKS OF MY PILGRIMAGE.

POEMS.

Elegantly bound in cloth, bevelled boards, gilt side and gilt edges, price 2s. 6d.

This work contains seventy-six pieces, now for the first time collected together into one volume.

"Some of the poems are full of a sweet and tender consolation that is calculated to soothe troubled hearts."—Sunday School Chronicle.

"These poems, gathered in a choice little volume, are truly spiritual songs, full of faith and sweetness and cheer."—Women's Work.

THE WATCH-TOWER IN THE WILDERNESS.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what He will say unto me."—Hab. ii. 1.

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

FOOTSTEPS OF THE FLOCK.

A SERIES OF NARRATIVES IN CHRISTIAN LIFE.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation). 2s. 6d.

"Illustrates Christian life in a way which can hardly fail in being useful."—Literary World.

Cheap Edition, Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

WAYSIDE SERVICE: Or, The Day of Small Things.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Cheap Editions: Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

"This book has greatly refreshed us. It is interesting from its many proofs of prayer heard and blessing bestowed: but more from its deep piety, and the manifest fellowship of the writer with her God."—The Sword and Trowel.

"The writer of this book, by details of her own experience, aims to incite believers to a life of deeper communion with God, and a more entire consecration to His service."—Watchman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NOW READY. FIFTH EDITION, REVISED AND IMPROVED.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME:

THEIR CONTENTS AND TEACHINGS.

By BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S., Chamberlain of the City of London.

WITH SEVENTY SMALL ILLUSTRATIONS.

Cloth Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Here is a dashing book, which leaves no need for a second review. The first two chapters give an unvarnished description of the utterly abandoned degradation of paganism, morally and socially, when Christ came on the scene, and also of the most horrible and brutal persecution to death of the early Christians by heathen Rome. The next chapter paints on this black ground the contrastive, fair, and lovely picture of the New Testament Christianity. In the two following chapters we have a most fascinating delineation of the Catacombs, showing that the ways and words of these primitive Christians were in perfect accord with the precepts and practices of Christ and his apostles. The sermons in stones (the monumental inscriptions in the Catacombs) are then used to prove in a relentless and unchallengeable fashion the wholesale departures from primitive Christianity by the modern Church of Rome. The verdict of the book is this: Romanism is baptised paganism. And we entirely endorse the judgment. In these days when Romanism is being stealthily spread among us, this book ought to be scattered in thousands all over the land."—Presbyterian Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME. 1056 pages.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS OF EARLY CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

By JOHN FOXE.

With Twelve Full-page Illustrations. Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"Messrs. MORGAN AND SCOTT deserve most cordial [illegible] this noble edition of a noble book. . . . Only let the [illegible] credit to Messrs. MORGAN AND SCOTT, to whom the Christian public are indebted for this timely publication."—Primitive Methodist.

"We are pleased to see the 'Book of Martyrs' well to the front. It is a [illegible] cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, in The Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS & SOLOS.

THE QUARTO EDITIONS OF

Sacred Songs and Solos,

COMPILED AND EDITED BY

IRA D. SANKEY.

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
(441 Pieces).

LARGE QUARTO EDITION; Tastefully Printed with Rule round Pages, Handsomely Bound in Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 16s. 6d.
Presentation Edition, Elegantly Bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges .. 30s. 0d.

CHEAP QUARTO EDITION. 441 Pieces.
Paper Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 6s. 0d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with the CHEAP QUARTO Edition as follows:
Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards .. .. .. 9s. 6d.

ADDITIONAL
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
With Standard Hymns. Containing Nos. 442–750.
Paper Boards .. .. 4s. 6d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
With Standard Hymns Combined.
Containing 750 Pieces.
Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 9s. 6d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with this Edition:
Cloth Boards .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 10s. 6d.

Sacred Songs and Solos,

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED
(750 Pieces).

Presentation Editions, Bound in Morocco.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

Quarto Edition, Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges. 17s. 6d.
Ditto, Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 25s. 0d.
FF 5. Old Notation, Large Type, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 10s. 6d.
FF 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 15s. 6d.
HH 5. Old Notation, Cheaper Edition, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
HH 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.
RR 5. Tonic Sol fa Edition, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
RR 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 9s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

CC 4. Pocket Edition, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 0d.
CC 5. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 4s. 6d.
DD 5. Large Type Edition, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 4s. 6d.
EE 5. Extra Large Type, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
EE 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
AND
The Christian Choir.

MUSIC AND WORDS. Quarto.

Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 20s. 0d.
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 27s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

BB 5. Ruby Limp, Persian Morocco Limp, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 0d.
Extra Large Type, Persian Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges .. .. 7s. 6d.
Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges .. 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"TELL JESUS:"

RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY CONVERSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth, 1s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: [illegible] 2s.

[illegible] happy; of suffering bodily [illegible] and being happy; and of dying, and being happy."—Western Times.

Cheap Edition: Tinted Covers, 6d.
Special Cheap Edition, for Free Distribution: Tinted covers, One Penny; 7s. per 100 net.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Seventh Thousand.

BRINGING IN SHEAVES:

A Record of Evangelistic Labours.

By REV. A. B. EARLE.

With Biographical Sketch of the Author

Tinted Covers, 1/—; Cloth Boards, 1/6.

"There is much in [illegible] stimulate and encourage. It is preceded by a [illegible] interesting sketch of the writer, who appears to be a man of remarkable devotedness, combined with [illegible] earnestness."—Preacher's Lantern.

"Local preachers will find [illegible] help them in their work, [illegible] recommend it."—Primitive Methodist.

London: [illegible] Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Morgan & Scott's Cheap Edition of BUNYAN'S

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS. 6D.

With Two Hundred Illustrations.

LIGHT TO THE HAND, and PRINTED IN A READABLE TYPE.

"This cheap edition of a book [illegible] out will be heartily welcomed."
[illegible]
"It is tastefully got up, and [illegible]

In ordering it name or mention MORGAN & SCOTT'S

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Five per Cent. Deposits.

STREATHAM AND GENERAL ESTATES CO.,

LIMITED.

ESTABLISHED 1881.

This Company has paid Dividends at the rate of 6 per Cent. since its commencement.

Share Capital £100,000
Paid-up Capital... ... ... £70,000

The Company was established in 1881, its object being to acquire freehold and other land, develop the same into building estates, and then re-sell at a profit—and in pursuance of this purpose it has dealt with large estates at Streatham (from which it derived its name), at Wandsworth, Stroud Green, Wimbledon, and other places within the Metropolitan area.

Deposits are received subject to two months' notice of withdrawal, bearing interest at FIVE PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

Offices: 5, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

Bankers—Sir Samuel Scott, Bart., and Co., Cavendish-square, London; The City Bank, Ludgate Hill, London.

REAL Witney Blankets

THE

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY

Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known

WITNEY BLANKETS.

Prices Per Pair:

Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 3in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 30/-

These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Parcels over 10s. sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application

ADDRESS—

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,

WITNEY, OXON.

THE DEAF HEAR

WHEN THE DEAFNESS IS CAUSED BY SCARLET FEVER, COLDS, MEASLES, CATARRH, &c. BY THE USE OF THE INVISIBLE

SOUND DISC

which is the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes, and may be worn months without removal.

Sold only by

H. A. WALES, 18, Upper Woburn Place, Tavistock Square, W.C.

HOUSTONS

EST^BD 1780 TRADE MARK

PRIZE MEDAL EDINBURGH 1886

A'OO HARRIS TWEEDS

For Suits, Ladies' and Gent.'s Jackets and Clothing, and Boys' Clothing.

FASHIONABLE, MORE DURABLE, COMFORTABLE, and MUCH CHEAPER

than the Homespuns made in the Western Isles. Write for patterns. Orders carriage paid. Any length cut. Manufactured only by

R. HOUSTON & SONS, GREENOCK

(Warehouse: West Blackhall St.; Mills: Rock Bank.)

The Trade Supplied.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

The Note Paper of the Day.
For Private and Professional use.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

See Watermark in Each Sheet.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

Can be obtained from all Stationers.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

1s. per 5 Quire Packet.
Court or Heraldic Envelopes to match, 1s. per 100

Wholesale only—50, UPPER THAMES ST., E.C.

NATURAL SANITARY UNDERCLOTHING.

For Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children.

Full particulars and Price List on application.

Combinations, 6/11, 7/6, 7/11, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6
" 11/6, 12/6, 13/6, 14/6, 15/6
Vests 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 8/6
Knickers 3/11, 4/3, 5/-, 5/11, 6/11, 8/11
Bodices 2/9, 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6

Skirts, Nightdresses, Sleeping Suits, &c.

FLANNEL UNDERCLOTHING in White or Scarlet.

LONGCLOTH or SILK UNDERWEAR in all Garments.

CORSETS.—The "Rational" and all best makes.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY.

263, OXFORD ST., REGENT CIRCUS, LONDON, W.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.

THE KING OF HOLLAND

IS HIGHLY PLEASED WITH

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

AND HAS GRANTED THE FIRM (Unsolicited)

THE RIGHT OF STYLING THEIR WORKS THE

ROYAL COCOA FACTORY.

(By deed of August 12, 1889.)

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME FROM THE AUTHOR

ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-Second Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

FURTHER REFERENCE TO A CASE AT DARTMOUTH PRONOUNCED INCURABLE.

This was a very remarkable case. The patient is a daughter of Mr. G. Jones, of 5, Union-street. Her symptoms were of a very aggravated nature, and she was sinking fast in consumption. The doctors could give no hope. The case first came under my notice in the early part of this year. She recovered, and the joy and gratitude of all her friends was great. The patient herself expressed herself thus: "You were sent into the world to cure consumption." This case I published in full about July last.

I have been much interested to find that the complete health of this patient has been permanently established. Mr. Jones, writing me October 17th, says: "Our daughter continues perfectly well, to our delight. She gets more vigour every day. This case has cut down the prejudice of some here who were the most stubborn of the 'Consumption Incurable' School. We are deeply indebted to you for your very kind attention to us. We are very anxious that others should know of her wonderful recovery, that hope may be inspired. There are many witnesses in this town."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Best Tooth Powder. Whitens the Teeth, Prevents Decay, Sweetens the Breath.

Ask anywhere for Rowland's Odonto.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5d per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED.

Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges

WINTER PATTERNS NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

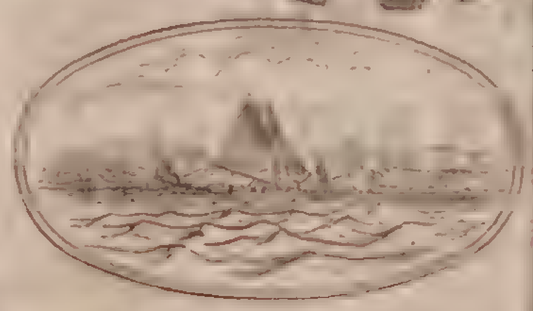
Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

SHETLAND DEPOT

4 BERNERS ST OXFORD ST. W.

PRICE LIST

LADIES' & GENTLEMEN'S UNDERCLOTHING.



Ladies' White Vests, Low Necks, Short Sleeves, 3/- to 5/-; high necks, long sleeves, 5/- to 6/-.—LADIES' Combination DRESSES, low necks, short sleeves, 5/9 to 8/-; high necks, long sleeves, 8/6 to 9/-. LADIES' SHIRTS AND DRAWERS, in White, Grey, ... front, long sleeves, 2/6 to 5/-. LADIES' SLEEPING DRESSES, close ... PETTICOATS, in white, grey, brown, and ... 2/- ... 4/-.—LADIES' DRAWERS with and without Bands, 5/6 to 8/-.—LADIES' WAIST BELTS, elastic, 1/9 to 2/7.—LADIES' KNEE CAPS, 1/3 to 1/6.—LADIES' SLEEVES, white, brown, grey, or scarlet, 1/- to 1/6.—GENTLEMEN'S UNDERSHIRTS in white, brown, or grey, 5/6 to 8/-.—GENTLEMEN'S DRAWERS, in white or grey, 6/9 to 8/-.

Carriage Paid on all Goods of 20s. value. Send for complete Price List post free.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

Is a Household Requisite of Constant Utility.

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses very valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods of life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dietetic authorities, as well as by universal public experience during over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour of other foods can only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and it remains true that no other kind of food can serve the special purposes of Corn Flour.

How to Knit. What to Knit.

50th Thousand. 1s. per Set of Eight Large Cards, Post Free.

THE "VICTORIA KNITTING CARDS."

The "Victoria Knitting Cards" are compiled so that beginners may knit from the first STRIP to a full-sized stocking or quilt without the aid of the Teacher.

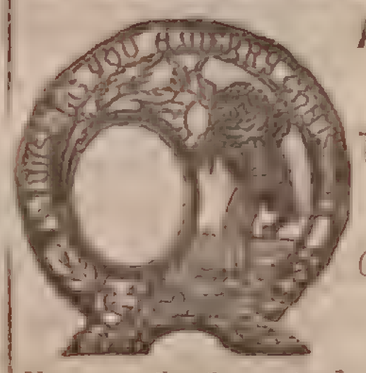
FIRST SET, Nos. I. to VIII., containing General Remarks on Elementary Knitting—Knitting for Standards I. and II.—Muffatees—Scarves—Socks and Stockings, ribbed and plain, thickened heels and toes, &c.

SECOND SET, Nos. IX. to XVI., contains Knitting on Examination Day for Girls and Pupil Teachers—Baby's Boots—Knee Caps—Muffatees (with thumbs)—Ladies' Vests—Child's Vests—Boys' Vests—Child's Quilt—Large Quilt—Diagonal Pattern Quilt, &c., with quantities and kind of Yarns needed for each article.

THIRD SET, Nos. XVII. to XXIV., contains easy directions for Infant's Vest, Gloves, Hood, or Helmet—Beaded Cuffs—Mat—Rug—Child's Gaiters—Shoulder Cape—Shawl—Tam o' Shanter, &c.

COX & CO., 99 & 101, New Oxford Street, London.

FRETWORK, CARVING,



AND AMATEUR WOOD WORKERS' TOOLS OF ALL KINDS.

Highest Award—Gold Medal for Tools and Patterns.

PRICE 10/6 & 12/6.

Fret-saw Outfit on Card, with Instructions, free... 2 6
No. 2, with Wood 3.6
Superior ditto 6.0
Set of 12 best Carving Tools, with Boxwood Handles, ready for use ... ... price, free 10 0

If you are competing for exhibition, try our designs, for which we receive testimonials daily.

☞ Complete Catalogue, 64 pages, quarto, containing the best variety of designs published, free, for 6 stamps.

HARGER BROS., SETTLE

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

REV. B. WAUGH AND THE CHILDREN. Page 9.

WITH THE BROUGH NURSES OF GREENOCK. Page 11.

PRINCIPAL

The QUEEN v. BARNARDO 8
Bible Women and Nurses in London 9
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Expedition 10
Gospel Seamen's Mission 11
A Sketch from Life 12
About a Spanish Peasant 13
Chinese in Australia 14
Some Scottish Missions.—XIV. 15
"To Comfort all that Mourn" 14

CONTENTS.

Wesleyan East End Mission 14
The Disastrous Gales 15
ISABELLA MACPHERSON'S Home Life 16
Gathered Gold 16
Portrait and Sketch of Dr. TALMAGE 17
Dr. PENTECOST in Scotland 18
The Brussels Conference 20
London Y.M.C.A. Committees 21
Prayer and Missionary Work 21

[Rev. Dr. Talmage.]

No. 1044.] FRIDAY, JAN. 31, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

FOR TERMS OF ADVERTISEMENTS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS, SEE PAGE 2.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION TO DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

CRITICAL STATE OF FINANCES.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

DEAR FRIENDS,

MR. WHEATLEY and myself are much concerned at the serious diminution in the receipts at Christmas time. For many years past we have been enabled to pay up all claims at the end of the year, and leave a substantial balance in hand; but this time we are some hundreds of pounds behindhand, and unless some fifteen hundred pounds is forthcoming within the next few weeks, we shall be compelled partially to abandon at least some of our efforts.

The work accomplished in the Prisoners' Branch during the last year has been enormous, and it is difficult for us to believe that the Christian public will suffer so serious a calamity to befall the Mission.

We have made, and are still making, the matter a subject of constant prayer, and leave it now in our heavenly Father's hands, waiting for His clear and distinct will.

Any donation should be sent either to our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; to our Secretary, Mr. W. WHEATLEY, 29, Brooke-street, Holborn, E.C.; or to myself, at 4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE HATTON,

Superintendent St. Giles' Christian Mission.

4, AMPTON STREET, REGENT SQUARE, W.C.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND has received with thanks from B., £1 1s. No name given, £1 1s. Captain Bruce, 20s., and a parcel of Clothing.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Ragged Schools. Evening Classes for Street Boys. Shelter for Girls and Boys. Home for Motherless Girls. Band of Hope. Toy Classes for Neglected little Ones. Children's Services. Sunday Schools. Various Missionary Agencies for Work Girls and Young Work Women. Important Agencies at work amongst Young Men and Lads. Mission to Inebriate Women. Mothers' Meetings. Various Bible Classes. Gospel Temperance Meetings. Room to Room Visitation. Fresh Air Homes for Men Women, and Children. More than thirty Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at G, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

DEPTFORD MEDICAL MISSION,

188, HIGH STREET, DEPTFORD,

LONDON, S.E.

OBJECT OF THE MISSION.

To reach the Masses of South East London, and to preach the Gospel to the whole, the sick, and the dying.

AGENCIES OF THE MISSION.

(1) Mission Services (5 weekly).
(2) Mission Dispensary (open twice weekly).
(3) Home Visits (daily).
(4) Supply of Nourishment to the Sick and Needy.
(5) Flower Mission amongst the Sick.
(6) Clothing Distribution to needy Sick Cases.
(7) Free Lending Library.
(8) Provident Sick Benefit Club.
(9) Provident Clothing Club.
(10) Provident Medical Aid.
(11) Temperance Entertainments (Saturdays).
(12) Distribution of Gospel Literature.

Funds are needed for the carrying on of this work, and may be sent to the Director, F. A PRING, M.R.C.S., 188, High-street, Deptford.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 31, Powercroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board School, coupon fuel, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 22 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.—For each 10s. subscribed, 10 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widows and other needy people with Food, Coals, and Clothing. Bankers: L. & County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 6b, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 20, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 101 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 32, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—[illegible], Lauriston-place, W.

A STRUGGLING CHURCH (Congregational) needs help. £1,500 required for repairing chapel and building new school. Friends attending Conventions at Keswick specially appealed to. Donations thankfully received by the pastor, Rev. W. DAVIS, Nantwich, Cheshire, who will gladly furnish full particulars.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 125 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in Clerkenwell.—160 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

CONTRIBUTIONS of money, clothing, coal and bread tickets, are earnestly solicited by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, in aid of the more destitute patients and their families. The smallest gifts will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

Educational.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, GLASTONBURY.—High-class Ladies' School. Miss M. GREGG receives a limited number of Boarders. Pupils prepared for University exams. Kindergarten for juniors. Individual influence and attention. Excellent references.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	6
48 Words	4	0

And 9d. for every additional line of 9 words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publisher cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION to "The Christian"

published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms post free, and including double numbers.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

If paid,	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage 1d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	6
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKLEY. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced January 21.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON.—High-class boarding-school. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHREY and Miss ALBERT SMITH.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERRIS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of home care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELAMAIN, 62, Kensington-park-road, W.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. LEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Modern fees 20 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE. Thorough preparation for commercial or professional life.—WALTER J. KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to the PRINCIPAL. Term commenced January 21.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Literary and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references, apply to Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc., London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and dalilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Dukinfield, Cheshire.—A sound education, with home comforts and religious training. Healthy [illegible]

HOME SCHOOL FOR LITTLE GIRLS AND BOYS.—Large house and garden. Open situation. References to clergy, doctors, and parents of pupils. Terms from 2? guineas per annum.—The Misses COPE, St. Columb School, Forest-hill, S.E.

GERMAN AND FRENCH SCHOOL for Gentlemen's Daughters, 21, Feurstrasse, Friedenau, Berlin. Lady Principals, Frl. HOFFBUS and [illegible] VIVIER. Earnest religious teaching. Thorough mastery of languages. Advantages for study of art and music. Home comforts. References in London and abroad. Pupils escorted to Dresden. Apply to Miss ISAAC, 21, Cornwall-gardens, S. Kensington.

SCHOOL.—A Lady, experienced in teaching, wishes to purchase a Girls' School. Possession at the end of this term.—Full particulars to BOSA, 8, Bridge-st., Brighton Bayswd, Brighton.

SWITZERLAND.—Two educated ladies (sisters) residing in a beautiful and healthy elevation at the entrance of Lausanne, combining town and country, receive young ladies desirous of pursuing their French studies. German, Italian, music, drawing. Agreeable family life, considerations moderate. References to parents. MADEMOISELLES, Marguis Villa, Vertbois, route de Marguis, Lausanne, Suisse.

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND.—Mrs. HENRY WOODCOCK, late of Hull, receives a few young ladies as family. Great educational advantages, especially in language and music. Maison de Credit. Lycomals 2me.

SCHOOL (country) wanted for Girl of eight. Christian influence (Church). Sound education, to fit her for teacher, &c. Health considered. State terms and references to Prescott, 1, Cranley-place, London, S.W.

EDUCATION.—Seaside, adjoining Southwold. Vicar desires to receive two boys as companions to nephews, 7 and 10 years old, for tuition together. Comfortable home. £25 per term; brothers, £20 each.

Rev. T. HARRY R. OAKES, Southwold, Suffolk.

ROCKSTONE HOUSE, Southampton. High-class Education for young ladies. Resident English, French, and German governesses. Visiting professors. Refined, comfortable home. Terms from 2 guineas. Governess-Pupil required.—Principal, Miss JOHNSON, assisted by Fraulein [illegible]

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Hurstpierpoint (near Brighton), Sussex. Home comforts. Christian training. Special attention to delicate, backward boys. Visiting masters. Preparation for public schools. Twenty guineas. Indian children received.—LADY PRINCIPAL.

WORTHING.—HOME SCHOOL for Girls. Christian training. Limited number. Special care for delicate girls. Visiting professors. References to parents and clergy. Terms moderate. [illegible]

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester. Lloyd taught. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss Keller; or to Rev. J. D. Libbey. For Boys' School, to Rev. W. J. Birtill.

EDUCATION.—A Lady residing on the South Coast, who has an only child, a girl of seven, wishes to meet with one about that age to educate with her. Quite a Christian home.

MRDE, 1, York-buildings, Hastings.

A WIDOW LADY, very successful with delicate children, wishes to receive one from two to six years. Highest references from clergy or guardians.—MOTHER, 51, Bath-road, Exeter.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter. [illegible]

NEW COLLEGE, GLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE. High-class [illegible] dent graduate. [illegible]

MANITOBA.—A Gentleman, [illegible] to [illegible] Lincoln

MARGATE.—[illegible] Local and Public School Examinations. Comforts of a Christian home. Special care taken of Indian and delicate children.—For prospectus, address, The PRINCIPAL.

STANLEY HOUSE CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough modern education with decided Christian training. Delicate or backward boys receive special attention. Prospectus, references, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr. ALBERT CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 4? guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in [illegible] and mathematics, and have been successful in Cambridge Local [illegible] care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home. 95, Buckingham-road, Brighton. References: Mrs. W. Poole Bolfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. [illegible] Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. M. Gosling, Clarence Gardens, Regent House, Bay-road, Cambridge Gate, Regent's Park; Rev. [illegible] Hereon, St. Marks, Sheffield.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WILLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen, established 1855. Principals: DR. CHASAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principals: ROBERT WILSON, Esq., M.A., Trinity College, Dublin; G. E. W. CHASAGE, Esq., B.A., Trinity College, Oxon.

Dr. Cottage's constant, prayerful aim is to bring his pupils to Christ as their Saviour, and to help them to walk like Jesus as their example. He offers a refined Christian home and superior Education for Gentlemen's Sons.

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY.—Moravian School for Boys. Pupils successfully prepared for Public Exams. Cricket Field 10 acres; large shooting bath; hot baths in the house. Milk from school farm. Playground sheltered from north and east winds.

Rev. J. MALLALIEU, Head Master.

HIGH-CLASS PREPARATORY SCHOOL, well recommended by clergymen and [illegible]

AID PER TERM.—Educa[illegible] old endowed [illegible] competing SCHOLE[illegible]

ORWELL HOUSE SCHOOL, CHIPPENHAM.

Boarders from [illegible]

TUCKERS FOR GENTLEMEN of limited income. [illegible] School Boys'. [illegible] for delicate boys [illegible]

SCHOOLMASTER. Kitchen [illegible] parents [illegible] ALPHA, [illegible]

GOVERNESS PUPIL required [illegible] Local Board [illegible] Terms [illegible] for examinations.—[illegible] House, Woodbridge, [illegible]

A LADY with considerable [illegible] patience, having [illegible] a healthy open [illegible] moderate. [illegible] H. L. D., [illegible]

A TEACHER, certificated, and [illegible]

YOUNG LADY BOARDER [illegible] or one engaged in the City, could find [illegible] refined society in [illegible] London by applying (letter) to A., Printer's Printing Works, [illegible] Cornhill.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—The [illegible] no way connected with [illegible] of recommending an old- [illegible] ENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, [illegible] the constant aim of the [illegible] to train [illegible] committed to his care in [illegible] of the Lord [illegible] the power of Gospel [illegible] principle [illegible] action among the boys, [illegible] a thorough and first-class [illegible]

[illegible] GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS [illegible] SEA, on the South Coast, a short run [illegible] London, and afford especial facilities for out- [illegible] of Examinations passed [illegible] will be forwarded on applica- [illegible] of the Vice-Chancellors have [illegible] Wards as Pupils to the School. [illegible]

Dr. THORP, Paddington, London.

A GRADUATE desires Tutorship in a Gentleman's family, or Mastership for present term. Strong point mathematics. Churchman, thoroughly evangelical. Abstainer, non-smoker. References given.
CANTAB, Littleworth House, Newport, Shropshire.

CAN ANY LADY recommend a [illegible] some experience with children, to take charge of a little girl nearly four years old, who is not strong, and to teach a boy of five. A good needlewoman. —Mrs. MITCHELL-CARRUTHERS, 6, Inverness [illegible]

DECIDED CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS. Recommended by Rev. William Haslam. English, French, music, rudiments Latin, drawing. Young pupils preferred. Much experience. Highest testimonials. Goodsalary.—F 1008, Albion Printing Office, Upper Sydenham, S.E.

RE-ENGAGEMENT required by a Lady. Seven years in last situation. English, French, music, elementary German and Latin, and drilling. Excellent testimonials. Disengd.—Miss BROWN, 36, Compton-terrace, Highbury, London, N.

VISITING EVENING GOVERNESS. —A lady having high testimonials is ready for an engagement to prepare children for school, superintend the [illegible] of elder girls, or undertake [illegible] entirely. Good French and [illegible]

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

EVANGELISTIC MISSIONS.—Who ever Christians will combine for united effort in town or country, Mr. Lancelot Middleton and [illegible] are prepared to conduct services together or separately.—For vacant [illegible] apply to W. BAKER, Esq., M.A., Lancaster-road, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, [illegible]

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE. [illegible]

AS SECRETARY, MANAGER, &c.—A Christian Man (42) of good abilities, with twenty-five years' commercial experience, accustomed to [illegible] ing, and for many years actively engaged in unsectarian evangelistic work, now seeks an appointment as Secretary, Manager, or otherwise, either in connection with Institutional or Mission work (which would be preferred), or with a commercial firm or company. Highest references as to character and ability.
[illegible]

TO FARMERS IN YORKSHIRE OR LANCASHIRE.—A young Man wishing to learn farming with a view to emigration wishes to place himself as Labourer with a respectable Farmer. Would at first be willing to pay partially for board and lodging.
R. W. D., 118, North-road, St. Helens, Lancashire.

AS GARDENER, well up in vines, melons, hardy fruit, flower and vegetable culture. Active and willing. Single. Can glaze.
THOMAS ROADS, Whitfield, Falfield, Gloucester.

HEAD-GARDENER, where several are kept. Age 28. Late foreman in the gardens of Sir Hugh Cholmeley, Bart. Abstainer. Good practical knowledge of land and stock.—W., 18, Salisbury-road, Upper Holloway, London, N.

A CHRISTIAN TRADESMAN (38), [illegible] has been struggling against difficulties for [illegible] years, seeks a situation. Well acquainted [illegible] the furniture and jewellery trades, but is open [illegible] any engagement. Total abstainer. 18 years' [illegible] references.
[illegible], 8, Villiers-road, Willesden-green, N.W.

YOUNG MARRIED MAN [illegible] Steward or Caretaker, Housekeeper, Collector, or [illegible] Total abstainer. Served his time in Colonial Household. Good references.
[illegible] WILSON, 1 Tavistock-street, London, N.

MAN-SERVANT, honest, sober, [illegible] ful, obliging, seeks re-engagement in quiet Christian household. Country preferred, where [illegible] two or three in family. Low wages [illegible] to particulars early.
[illegible], F, Northcote-terrace, [illegible], S.W.

WILL ANY LADY, for love of the [illegible], undertake the charge of a small Refuge for [illegible] in Bradford, [illegible]—Mrs. J. [illegible], Shannagoon Lodge, Bradford, [illegible]

AS GOVERNESS, COMPANION, OR LADY HOUSEKEEPER.—A Christian Gentlewoman [illegible] Experienced Resident Governess. English and Continental experience. Excellent testimonials and references. Churchwoman. Accomplished English, thorough French, [illegible], good needlewoman, [illegible] drawing and water-colours.—Address stating salary, and full particulars, RUTH, 4, Coldstone-villas, Hove, [illegible]

MR. ROSIER, Foley House, Ledbury, Herefordshire, engaged from 1878 to 1887 in the Evangelistic work at the Abbey Hall, Reading, carried on by Mr. M. J. Sutton, and for the past 2½ years superintendent of Lady Henry Somerset's Mission at Ledbury, is open to accept an appointment as Director or Manager of Evangelistic work, under a committee or otherwise. References—Lady Henry Somerset, Eastnor Castle, Ledbury; Mr. W. H. Mills, Exeter Hall, London; and Mr. M. J. Sutton, Reading.

LADY (young widow) highly recommended as Companion, Companion-Nurse, Housekeeper. Good appearance, cheerful, domesticated, very clever manager and needlewoman. Invaluable where trust and confidence required. Salary about £30.
G., 30, Woodland-road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

LADY COMPANION OR HOUSEKEEPER. Would not object to travel. Good references.
H. C., Cairo Craig, Trinity, Edinburgh.

MRS. PRICE HUGHES recommends competent Lady as Housekeeper, Companion and Matron. Musical.
8, Tavistock-street, Gordon-square, W.C.

COMPANION.—Young Lady (23) seeks re-engagement to elderly or invalid Lady. Would be glad to gain experience in sick nursing. Domesticated. Needlework. [illegible]

A YOUNG LADY [illegible] help with any [illegible], desires Library, 82, High-street, Clapham, S.W.

REV. J. B. BARNACLOUGH [illegible] employment for a young Jewess, aged 16. Has learnt dressmaking. Speaks French, German, Spanish, Italian, Arabic, and Greek.
40, King Edward-road, Hackney.

RE-ENGAGEMENT required as Nursery-Governess or Governess-Housekeeper. Age 22. Highly recommended. Thoroughly domesticated. Capable of managing a widower's home. A. P., 86, Bernard's Villa, Albion-terrace, [illegible]

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS or Lady Help, wanted by young Lady (22). Cheerful and domesticated.
M. M., Somerford, Chippenham, Wilts.

AS NURSE, Companion and Housekeeper, by a Lady, trained, domesticated, cheerful, and active. Good testimonials and references. A. H. S., Hilburn's Advertisement Office, 99, Strand, London.

WILL ANY LADY take young person, not strong, as Housemaid, or any light situation in country. Would give services without wages until stronger. C., 22, Duke-street, S.W.

MATRON in a small training home, or similar position, by an experienced Christian, middle-aged. Industrious, reliable, methodical. Good references.
E. M., 2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, London, N.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER. —A Lady strongly recommends Mother and Daughter for care of house, offices, mission house, or any place of trust. Communicants Christians. WILSON, 4, Stock Orchard-street, Caledonian-road, N.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, [illegible] duce Ladies to Governesses, Companions, Housekeepers, Medical and Surgical Nurses. Also apply for Domestic Servants (Male and Female). Hours 10 till 5.

SITUATIONS ARE REQUIRED with Christian mistresses for two or three young women. Also a place for a seamstress or useful Help. Miss STEER, Bridge of Hope, St. George's, London, E.

AS PLAIN COOK in Christian family where housemaid is kept. Active, middle-aged Woman, member of Brethren.
70, Wellesley-road, Gospel Oak, N.W.

A LADY WISHES to recommend her late Mother's Nurse. Kind and trustworthy. Age over 40. Nonconformist and abstainer. Salary £20.—For particulars, apply, Miss BREATH, Hill Farm, Brancliwood-green, Welwyn, Herts.

A YOUNG GERMAN LADY who has lived eight years as useful Companion to a Lady, wishes to obtain a similar position, or to make herself useful in a family. She speaks French, Dutch and German, and a little English.—FRANZISKA, 2, Rue Noguez, Pau, B. Pyrénées, France.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER, both educated and capable women, desire care of house, offices, mission-house, or any place of trust. Good managers. Active, decided Christians. Highest references.—C. R., 184, Camden-road, N.W.

A SPHERE OF WORK wanted, by one who desires to know nothing among men, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified. Town or country.
J. C., 141, Burdett-road, London, E.

A WIDOWED CHRISTIAN LADY will be pleased to superintend the home of a Widower or elderly Lady, in return for one or two rooms or other mutual arrangement. No post-cards.
BETA, Mr. Davies, 36, Ladbroke Grove-road, W.

GOOD FIRST-RATE COOK, who, through trouble in married life, has given way to intemperance, is ready for Home for Inebriates on nominal wages, or into good family, where she could receive Christian surveillance. Highest testimonials. Travelled on Continent.—THE HOME, 13, Wyndcliffe-road, Fawcett-road, Southsea.

A CHURCH OFFICER wanted, to attend to Church and Mission-room. Must be married and an abstainer. Salary £80 a year, with free quarters.—Applications to be addressed, Church Officer, 40, Barnett-road, W.

ADVERTISEMENT CANVASSER wanted for a religious monthly, on good commission, in connection with existing work.
ADVERTISING, 83, Bow-road, E.

TO ARCHITECTS.—The Advertiser, who has filled the positions of shop and general foreman on several occasions, and whose last building was a new bank (16 months' job) seeks a sphere of labour as Clerk of Works, where Christian character as well as practical knowledge of building would be appreciated. Joiner by trade. Aged 47 years.—INDUSTRIA, c/o Mrs. Hooper, Myrtle Cottage, College-road, Bromley, Kent.

LADIES NEEDING SERVANTS should apply to, and
SERVANTS seeking situations should lodge at the Homes of the Female Servants' Home Society; 21, Sutford-place, Edgware-road, W.; 229, Great Portland street, W.; and 143, Camden-road, N.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

TUTOR.—Wanted (in the country, about 50 miles from London), a Gentleman, thoroughly competent, for a family of three boys, ages 12, 8, 6, and two girls aged 14 and 10.—Address, stating requirements and antecedents, [illegible], 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

DOVER SOLDIERS' HOME.—Wanted a respectable, middle-aged Woman as General Servant. Must be strong, active, and a good plain cook.—Miss WRIGHT, Lady Superintendent, Soldiers' Home, Dover.

WANTED FOR MALTA, Nurse Attendant, not a lady, for elderly nervous invalid. Christian preferred, not nonconformist. Must be strong, quiet, patient, and have had some hospital training.—Apply by letter, Mrs. TROTTER, 32, Talgarth-road, West Kensington.

AS KITCHEN MATRON in a small Home for Girls. A Christian young Woman of some experience wanted at once.
Miss EBEY, W. C. Home, Friars-street, Ipswich.

COACHMAN, single-handed, to drive a pair. Christian abstainer preferred. State wages and full particulars, to X. Y., Baker, Stationer, Hailsham, Sussex.

FOOTMAN (single-handed) wanted. Quiet place in country. Not under 25. Thoroughly experienced, active, Churchman. Abstainer. First-class references. Height about 5 ft. 10 in.
L., Ingersley, Lordswood, Southampton.

FOOTMAN, second, wanted, in the country. Butler and first footman kept. Tall. Abstainer. Christian valued.
Mrs. ARBUTHNOT, East Grinstead.

A LADY IS WANTED to act as Superintendent of Classes and Clubs for Young Women and Girls in connection with a Congregational Church Mission in Bristol, and also to assist generally in the work amongst women. She must take a real interest in such work, and should be prepared to give her whole time. A moderate salary will be given. Apply, stating age, references, &c., to Mrs. GILMORE BARNETT, Abbey House, Bristol.

LAUNDRY MATRON wanted, for a Home for Women. Must have practical knowledge, and be well recommended as to Christian character. Salary £20.—Address, stating age and references,
EDMUND GLEATON, 3, Chapel-street, Liverpool.

MATRON.—Wanted, an Assistant Matron, experienced in laundry work, for the London Female Penitentiary and Guardian Society. The SECRETARY, 191, High-st., Stoke Newington, N.

MATRON.—Christian Lady, full sympathy rescue work, for small Industrial Home (ten Inmates). Experienced. Particulars of age, salary required, references, to Rev. J. T. WREN-FORD (Vicar of St. Paul's), Bellevue-court, Newport, Mon.

RESPECTABLE MAN AND WIFE wanted, about 70 years of age, as Caretaker in City offices. Without family. Total abstainer preferred. —Address, with full particulars of his previous occupation and length of character, to HOUSEKEEPER, 127, King's-road, Brighton.

A BIBLEWOMAN-NURSE wanted, for Mission work at the Docks. One who has had hospital training. Young, strong, and full of holy yearning for the salvation of souls. Also a Bible woman for a large but poor district.—C. J. P., Mr. Dickson, Stationer, Leytonstone-road, Bradford.

MOTHER'S HELP wanted in Gentleman's family. Capable to take charge of two small children, assist in the house, and good needlewoman.—Mrs. FRANCIS A. WALLIS, Type House, [illegible]

FRENCH CHILDREN'S MAID. —Wanted for one little Girl of 7. Must be Protestant, and about 21.
Mrs. C., St. Margaret's House, Ipswich, Suffolk.

AN EXPERIENCED NURSE wanted to take baby from month. Must have a good character, be a good needlewoman and an abstainer. —Apply, stating particulars, to M. J. B., The [illegible], Weston-super-Mare.

MOTHER'S HELP OR NURSE wanted. Both can apply, with particulars. Must have aptitude for children. Good needlewoman indispensable. One wishing for comfortable home rather than high wages. A decided Christian would be appreciated. Hand reference.
Mrs. MACKENZIE, Castlehill, Inverness.

CHRISTIAN NURSE wanted for five little children, youngest an infant. Help given. Two other servants kept. Comfortable home. Cumberland Lodge, Lingards-road, Lewisham.

WANTED by Lady formerly Governess, opening fancy business in small country town, another Lady thoroughly understanding dressmaking, good fitter. No capital necessary. Board, Lodging, and share dressmaking profits. Good personal references exchanged.
A., 2, The Cedars, Clapham-common, London.

NURSING.—Wanted at once, a thoroughly competent, trained, Hospital Nurse, or Sister to take chief charge of Infirmary, at Girls' Village Home, Ilford. Must be earnest, Evangelical Christian and total abstainer. Some knowledge of dispensing requisite. Salary £35 to £40 per annum.—Applications, personally if possible, with testimonials, to GOVERNOR, Village Home, Ilford.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted. Age 25 to 35. Wages £16 to £18. Good waitress, plate cleaner and lamps. Christian family, very comfortable situation.
9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

NURSES, COOKS, Parlourmaids, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Good Generals wanted. All servants of good character requiring situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situations.—Miss MAUDERS, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

SERVANTS SEEKING SITUATIONS.—Miss LOVEJOY offers comfortable Home to respectable Servants wanting such. Lodging, 1s. and 1s. 6d. per week. Terms for meals—Breakfast, 4½.; dinner, 6d.; tea, 3d.; supper, bread and butter or cheese, 2d.—32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, S.W. Established 1231.

TO CHRISTIAN SERVANTS.—Miss HOOPER, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W., has good places now vacant, and takes special interest in placing reliable servants in suitable situations. Hours 10 till 5.

PARLOURMAID wanted, middle of February. Must be in strong health, and not under 25. Early riser, thoroughly good waitress, plate and electro-plate cleaner, and needlewoman. Drawing-room and library under her care. Gentleman's family; no children. Five servants, coachman, &c., kept. All found.
E. P., The Bazaar, Alton, Hants.

AS PLAIN COOK.—Can any Lady recommend a really Christian Woman. Must understand a dairy. Assistance given. State wages.
Mrs. A., Copsley, Outwood, Redhill.

COOK WANTED for House of Rest at Dover, about eight in family. Age about 30. Wages £20. Nice but plain cooking required. Four servants kept.—9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

GOOD COOK wanted for single Lady. Must be good baker. Age about 28. A Christian valued. Comfortable place, everything found, excepting beer. Four servants kept.
BANNERMAN, Hazlehurst, Hazland, Chesterfield.

A CLERGYMAN in Somersetshire requires by March 1st, a Plain Cook, Christian, Churchwoman, early riser, tidy and clean in her work. Small dairy, two cows. Gardener kept who does the milking, &c.—Apply, with references,
The VICAR, Stoke St. Gregory, Taunton.

GOOD COOK wanted who would appreciate Christian privileges and the country. Must understand dairy. Kitchen-maid kept.—Apply by letter to COUNTRY, c/o Messrs. S. Deacon & Co., 154, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted in a small family. Good home. Must be an abstainer. Not under 20. Good personal character.—Apply, stating wages, &c., to Mrs. DOWNES, Redhill, Surrey.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for plain cooking and portion of housework. Another maid kept, nearly all washing put out, and boy to clean knives, boots, &c. Abstainer. Wages £16.—Apply by letter, stating age, last situation and references, to Mrs. COLIN TAYLOR, The Bury Cottage, Rickmansworth.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, abstainer, to proceed to Cape Colony with Lady, February 21, under three years' engagement. English family.—Apply at once,
Mrs. CRANSWICK, 70, Charendon-road, Manchester.

A GENERAL SERVANT wanted, age about 18, to go to Canada with a Lady, the latter part of February. Two servants kept.
N. B. S., Burt's Library, Weymouth.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, good plain cook. Housemaid kept. Personal character indispensable. Wages £16, all found but beer. Five in family, no children.
J., [illegible], Coronet-road, [illegible], W.

KITCHENMAID wanted, in the country. Scullery-maid kept. Abstainer. Christian valued. Age not less than 24. Wages £19
Mrs. ARBUTHNOT, East Grinstead.

HOUSEMAID, second, where four are kept, in the country. Tall. Abstainer. Christian valued. Age about 24. Wages £18.
Mrs. ARBUTHNOT, East Grinstead.

A HOUSEMAID wanted. Strong. Six in family. Must have good character.
Mrs. KEMBLEY, Oakfield, Woodford-green.

GOOD COOK-HOUSEKEEPER wanted. Strong, not over 45. Good wages given. Kitchen and Scullery-maid kept. A Christian would be valued. Apply before 1 o'clock.
Mrs. GOODCHILD, 14, Sloane-terrace, S.W.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.

First-class Private. Under new management. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing-room, bath-room. Largely patronised by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to
Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Ootacamund, St. Peter's-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Board- ing Establishment, Melora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 2½s. per week.
Miss SEARLE, Eversley, Bournemouth.

BRIGHTON. — Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for perma-[illegible].
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

HASTINGS. — Home of Rest for Christian workers and others. Clergymen and ministers will find this a desirable home. Central, lovely position. Near sea and rail. Terms moderate. — PROPRIETRESS, Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

FOLKESTONE.—BOARD AND LODG- ING for Christian workers at the London City Missionaries' Seaside Home, 1, Earl's-avenue, from January 1 to April 30. Terms—women, 15s. a week; men, 17s. 6d. For forms of application apply to the LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and Residence for Ladies. Good central position, near the Downs, and places of worship.—Miss HARRIS, Worcester House, Worcester-terrace, Clifton-park.

VERY COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME for Lady, with opportunities for Christian service. Near tram and railway, north.
B., Hallcooper, 186, Aldersgate-street.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Gainsborough, West Cliff. High-class Boarding Establishment. Near sea, pier, gardens, chines, &c. Handsome public rooms.—Address PROPRIETOR.

INTEMPERANCE, OR NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Private Home for a limited number in a delightful winter and spring locality, where the above has been long and successfully treated with or without massage. Christian influence, judicious supervision, and home comforts. Highest references.—MEDIOUS, c/o Messrs. Pascoe, 28, Stoke's Croft, Bristol.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Branksome Temperance Hotel and Boarding House and Private Apartments. Under new management. Central. A home for Christians away from home. Terms moderate.—G. B. WILLIS, Proprietor.

INTEMPERANCE.
Buxton House, Earl's Colne, Essex.
PRIVATE HOME FOR SIX LADIES.
Fourteen years' experience. Very satisfactory results. Excellent references. Inspection by applicants welcomed. Terms, 2 and 3 guineas weekly. Medical attendant, J. Taylor, M.R.C.S. Lond.
Address, Miss PUDNEY.

THE ALEXANDRA HOME, Southend-on-Sea (in connection with Y.W.C.A.).—Ladies desiring a Home for the winter months or for a short period, with complete rest and home comforts, on moderate terms (15s. to 20s. a week), are requested to apply to Mrs AMAND ROUTH, 14A, Manchester-square, London, W.; or to the Lady Superintendent, Miss WITHERS, at the Home.

LITTLEHAMPTON. — Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and ease of family life. Climate bracing, not severe. Board and lodging, 12s. 6d. weekly.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope,
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

TORQUAY.—Comfortable Home, with board and residence. Ladies or Gentlemen. Bath; near the sea, station, and church. Terms from a guinea to 25s. per week, inclusive.
PIGOT, Leskinnick, Chelston, Torquay.

A HOME FROM HOME

Bristol Residential Turkish Baths

For the Prevention of, or the Cure of, or to restore from the Effects of,
INFLUENZA.
The treatment carried out at the Bristol Residential Turkish Baths is unequalled. Charges moderate.—Prospectus from MANAGER, Turkish Baths, College-green, Bristol. Resident Physician, Dr. SPOON.

Vide Article in "Christian World," by CHRISTOPHER CRAYON, Dec. 5, 1889.

THE SOUTH DEVON HEALTH RESORT
BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest station.)

This Establishment has now the reputation of being unique as a health resort. The late Right Hon. Lord Mount Temple says in his testimonial, that it "has all the charm and comfort of a gentleman's country home."
Turkish and other Baths, beautiful private Grounds, Lawn-Tennis Courts.
Strongly recommended for those who need rest and pleasant, healthful, change.
Sea and Moorland Air.
For Prospectus apply to C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable, refined home offered Lady, young or delicate. Private house, sheltered, central, cheerful situation near church. Piano, painting, languages. References exchanged.
STANLEY, Albert Reading-room, Bournemouth.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Most comfortable Boarding House in this mild sunny climate for those seeking winter residence. Sea and land views. Liberal table. Late dinner. Special arrangements with clergymen and ministers. Terms moderate.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI (wife of Rev. P. Warschawski), 45, West-hill.

BRIGHTON.—Apartments comfort- ably furnished, near sea; drawing-room and bedroom over. Large, pleasant, sunny rooms, 15s a week inclusive. No children or other lodgers.—Mrs. THOMPSON, 54, Westbourne-terrace, West Brighton.

A CHANGE wanted for a young Lady (an abstainer), suffering occasionally from insomnia, and its consequent excitement, in a kind and Christian home. It must be in a healthy neighbourhood, and terms moderate.—Apply by letter to Z., Mr. Orage, 30, High-street, Clapham, S.W.

REV. W. LANGHORNE, Vicar St. Luke's, Hackney, highly recommends private Home for Ladies of limited means; 14s. to 17s. weekly (inclusive). One vacancy at 12s.
PRINCIPAL, 4, Clapton square, N.E.

A WIDOW LADY seeks a Christian Lady to share her country home. Near church, chapel, post-office, and station. Terms 25s. to 30s. weekly.—Mrs. BRYAN, Tidenham, Chepstow.

IN THE N. OR N.W. of London, half-House wanted, unfurnished, not less than six rooms; or Flat. Terms moderate.—W., c/o Mrs. Hudson, 1, Mornington-terrace, Wanstead.

BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, Sunnyside, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table. Smoking-room. Halls and staircases heated in the winter. Established ten years. Can be well recommended.
Proprietress, Mrs. BUTTERWORTH.

ST. HELEN'S GARDENS, N. Ken- sington.—Furnished Flat, drawing-room, two good bed-rooms, box-room; use of bath, good piano. Private house. Moderate rent. Very healthy locality.
FAITH, 34, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill.

BED AND SITTING-ROOM to Let, to a Christian Gentleman. Bath-room, [illegible]. Near 'bus, tram, and station, also park. Terms moderate. Highest references.
123, Wilberforce-road, Finsbury-park, N.

HOME FROM HOME.—Evangelical Clergyman can receive one or two young Gentlemen coming to London for business or study.
X., 27, Belgrave-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

AN EXPERIENCED NURSE has comfortable Apartments for one or two aged people, or invalids requiring change. Close to common. Good cooking, every attention.
Mrs. VERRALL, 31, Dudley-road, Tunbridge Wells.

A LADY living in her own house desires to meet with a Lady to share it under mutual advantages. Opportunities for Christian work. Genial companionship. Close to Crystal Palace, High Level.
M., Fricker's Library, Upper Norwood.

APARTMENTS, with or without board, in the house of a widow Lady. Three minutes' walk from Lewisham Junction Station and Blackheath. Most healthy locality, gravel soil. Terms moderate. First-class references given and required.—Mrs. GRAHAM, 5, Dartmouth-terrace, Lewisham, S.E.

A MIDDLE-AGED CHRISTIAN COUPLE, residing close to London Bridge, have cheerful combined Room as bed-sitting to Let. Close to Christian ministries. Suit either married couple or single Gentleman. Rent moderate.
A. Z., c/o Tapping, 2, Great Dover-street.

GLOUCESTER.—Gentleman and Daughter, having larger house than required, desire to receive married Lady and Gentleman as Boarders, or an Orphan of means, requiring guardianship. House nicely furnished, and garden pleasantly situated, on highest ground near City.—Z., Mr. Brigden, Stationer, Westgate-street, Glou-[illegible]

A TRULY CONSECRATED SISTER invited to communicate with another desirous of opening a house (seaside) to receive Christians and hold meetings for holiness and Divine healing, visitation, &c. Some means or furniture needed.—Letters, Mrs. K., 244, Dalston-lane, E.

A LADY REQUIRES Board and Lodging in London, very moderate terms. Would be happy to assist in light household duties.
C., Shelmerlie, Lansdowne-road, Bournemouth

A LADY can share a suite of most eligible Furnished Apartments, with another, on very moderate terms. References exchanged.—TRUST, Corpusty House, Burton-road, Kilburn, N.W.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 88, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX [illegible]s.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Chris- tian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. Romans v. 8.

TWO IRON MISSION ROOMS (new) for sale. Will accommodate 150 and 200 persons. Floored, lined, and varnished.—Price, R. C. HARRIS, Iron Buildings Manufacturer, 7 and 8, Idol-lane, London, E.C. Please mention this paper.

TO GET HOLD OF PEOPLE NOW, there is nothing like good Dissolving Views. Experienced Christian Exhibitors wanted. Lanterns and slides on sale or hire.—WILLIAM CATLIN, 77, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London.

£6 MONTHLY added to income by selling our celebrated Teas in Packets, French Coffee in Tins, and Cocoa.—Write for particulars to OLIVER, OLIVER & CO., 323, Southgate-road, London.

FURNISHING.—A suburban busi- ness in the above to be disposed of, in a market thoroughfare close to railway station. A genuine bargain.—Apply by letter,
FURNITURE, 6, Rose-villas, Hornsey Park-road, N.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE- COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

OWING TO REMOVAL from Bristol, the Advertiser wishes to find a co-worker, a Gentleman of private means with considerable [illegible] ability. A splendid Mission work on Ba[illegible]les. Large congregation. Hall seats nearly 600. Bible-classes and school in full operation. Work is self-supporting.—Details of PASTOR, c/o Mack, Park-street, Bristol.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING ASSOCIATION furnishes mission-rooms, Institutes, private houses, &c., with every requisite, harmoniums, pianos, &c., direct from the wholesale manufacturers on the Hire-Purchase System at ordinary cash prices. No fees or formalities. Large discounts for cash.—H. ABBOTT, Manager, 25, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.

The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

WILL ANYONE ADOPT entirely a healthy Boy, 2 years old. Mother afflicted through accident. Deserving case. Reliable information given by Miss FOWLER, 6, South Parade, Weymouth.

ADOPTION.—A Lady and Gentle- man, without family, wish to adopt a nice little Girl, well brought up and of good birth, about three years old. Highest references given and required.—Write full particulars to Mrs. BAKER, Post-Office, Ashford, Kent.

TO CLERGYMEN, SECRETARIES of Societies, and Hall Proprietors.—Mr. WILLIAM COURTNEY, who has been for 38 years in New Zealand, is prepared to give Illustrated Lectures free of charge, but to receive share of profits.
[illegible]-street, E.C.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

[illegible] to eradicate, to cure the [illegible], as I treat the treatment is [illegible] [illegible]. The [illegible] he [illegible] [illegible], cut [illegible] up and tone [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], both reduce and [illegible] [illegible] and rapidly cure OBESITY [illegible]
F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

HIGH-CLASS WASHING. — The Mayfield Laundry Company is now prepared to undertake the work of several more families. Send post-card for prices and particulars.
MANAGERESS, 93, Gillespie-rd., Finsbury-park.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7½s. Organs from 8½s. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN, nine stops, double couplers, two knee swells. Great bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

W. R. BRADLAUGH'S PENNY ANTI-INFIDEL TRACTS.

Answers to Infidel Objections. Nos. 1 to 12.
Why am I a Christian?
The Bible: Is it true?
The Six Days of Creation.
The Sceptic Defeated with his own Weapons.
[illegible] Besant.
Christianity Established by Jewish and Pagan Testimony.
Theosophy. [illegible] of a Nineteenth Century Imposture.
These are the Tracts for Working Men.
TRY THEM.

"Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has rendered signal service to the various sections of the Church by his Anti-Infidel work."
The Rock.

"[illegible] are almost an essential [illegible] of our work." Rev. F. E. Rogers, Navvy Mission Society.

"Mr. Bradlaugh deserves hearty encouragement in his praiseworthy efforts to make every issue a heavy charge upon the strongholds of error and darkness."
The Christian.

6s. per 100; 45s. per 1,000, assorted.
Sample Half-dozen, post free, 6d.

London: JOHN SNOW & Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.
W. R. BRADLAUGH, Anti-Infidel Tract Depôt, 70, King's-cross-road, W.C.

"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA.

1/6 First Hand.

(PURE INDIAN), as appreciated by Anglo-Indians, at "Chota-hazri" (early breakfast). Absolutely unrivalled. Sample pound post free, for 1s. 6d. Parcels carriage paid. 5 lbs., 7s. 10d.; 10 lbs., 15s. Choice Teas, 1s. 9d., 2s.; 5 lb. tins, 8s. 9d. and 10s.
"CHOTA-HAZRI" TEA CO.,
17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

NEAVE'S
FOR INFANTS, INVALIDS, AND THE AGED.
FOOD.

MADE WITH BOILING WATER.
EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
MADE WITH BOILING MILK.

A CHRISTIAN MAN, with twelve years' experience in the Drapery and Boot and Shoe business in the West Indies, wants a Christian partner with £3,000 to £4,000 to join him. Store in good position, doing pushing cash trade, with good connection, wants extension. Beautiful climate.—Apply in first instance to H. C. OAKESHOTT, 11, Finsbury-square, E.C.

POPULAR TEMPERANCE STORIES.

16 pp. illustrated. ONE PENNY each, or 1s. per Dozen.

1. LUCY ELLERTON'S FALL.
2. "OUT OF THE DEPTHS."
3. RUPERT HARCOURT'S RUIN.
4. SHADOWED BY A CRIME; Or, Rupert Harcourt's End.
5. A DEADLY FOE.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

Price 1s., post free.

COLD-CATCHING,

COLD-PREVENTING, COLD-CURING.
By JOHN H. CLARKE, M.D.
"A book for every house."—Christian World.
London: JAMES EPPS & CO., 170, Piccadilly, and 48, Threadneedle-street.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets, and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall-court.

TO ADVERTISERS.

To Insure Insertion in the Next Number, it is necessary that Advertisements arrive not later than FIRST POST ON MONDAY MORNING.

DAILY LIGHT ON THE DAILY PATH.

A Text Book in the very Words of Scripture.

Two Vols. Morning and Evening. Sold separately or in sets. Small Edition, from 1s. to 12s. 6d. Large Type Edition, 16mo., from 2s. 6d. to 10s.

"They are very precious little books, and few more suitable gifts could be found."—Christian.

New Edition with Red Lines, for presentation, prices from 1s. 9d.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, LTD. 15, Paternoster Row, London.

TO THOSE GOING ABROAD.—Kindness to Animals Cards. Interesting, illustrated. French, German, Italian, English. 20, 1s.; 100, 3s. 9d.; 500, 12s.; carriage free.
C. BARROW, Amptou-road, Birmingham.

1s., post free.
CANCER and Simple Tumours dispersed by Electricity. By G. EDGELOW, M.D.
H. RENSHAW, 356, Strand, W.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1889. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100: foreign, 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE MORAL REFORM UNION (Established 1831, in the interests of pure Family Life), and Price Lists, to be had at the office, 2, Leinster-place, Bayswater London, W.

Supplied at 1s. and 2s. (and an extra large size at 2/9) per packet of One Dozen, being the actual cost of washing, by Outfitters, Chemists, and Drapers, Everywhere.

Wholesale Agents:—SHARP, PERRIN & Co., 31, Old Change; and STAPLEY & SMITH, London Wall, London.

PARIS, RETAIL:—"Old England," "Au Gagne Petit," Paris (Rayon de Trousseau). Wholesale and Shipping:—W. J. ARLETT, 10, Rue d'Uzès, Paris.

Royal Letters Patent.

SOUTHALL'S SANITARY TOWELS

(TRADE MARK.)

For protection against useless and injurious imitations, each Packet bears the signature of the Patentees.

They have the approval of the entire medical press, and are strongly recommended by the most eminent physicians and trained nurses, as an immense boon to ladies travelling, for health, comfort, and economy.

SOUTHALL BROS. & BARCLAY, BIRMINGHAM.

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY For the BLIND.

THE Committee urgently Appeal for Help to carry on its work among the Blind Poor in London and throughout the country, where many Branch Societies have been formed.

Chairman: The Bishop of Bedford.
Treasurer: R. C. L. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street.
Secretary: RALPH TATT, 31, New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, E.C.

HEAVEN: 50th Thousand.

ITS HOPES, ITS INHABITANTS, ITS RICHES, ITS REWARDS.

THE CERTAINTY OF GOD'S PROMISE OF A LIFE BEYOND THE GRAVE; AND THE REWARDS THAT ARE IN STORE FOR FAITHFUL SERVICE:

AS GLEANED FROM SACRED SCRIPTURE.

BY D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS, 1/- CLOTH LIMP, 1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges.. .. 2/6

"Mr. Moody presents to the mind a real and scriptural heaven—the heaven of the apostle John. You may feel that he takes things sometimes too literally; but you will be as likely to feel, when you have read what he has to say, that heaven is more real to you than it was before."—The Baptist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

8th Thousand.

"To the Work! To the Work!"

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIANS,

Calling to active effort in the Lord's service.

BY D. L. MOODY.

TINTED COVERS 1/
CLOTH LIMP 1/6
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, Gilt Edges .. 2/6

Appendix—Elihu Burritt on "The Good Samaritan."

"No better service could be done to the Church of Christ than to circulate this work—which is like a trumpet call from beginning to end—among Christians who are laggards in the Master's work."
Word and Work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

THE QUARTO EDITIONS OF

Sacred Songs and Solos,

COMPILED AND SUNG BY

IRA D. SANKEY.

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

(441 Pieces).

LARGE QUARTO EDITION; Tastefully Printed with Rule round Pages, Handsomely Bound, in Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 16s. 6d.
Presentation Edition, Elegantly Bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges.. 30s. 0d.

CHEAP QUARTO EDITION. 441 Pieces.

Paper Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 6s. 0d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with the CHEAP QUARTO Edition as follows:

Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards .. .. .. 9s. 6d.

ADDITIONAL

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

With Standard Hymns. Containing Nos. 442—750.

Paper Boards .. .. 4s. 6d.
Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

With Standard Hymns Combined. Containing 750 Pieces.

Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 9s. 6d.

"THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR"
may also be had Bound up with this Edition:

Cloth Boards .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 10s. 6d.

Sacred Songs and Solos,

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED (750 Pieces).

Presentation Editions, Bound in Morocco.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

QUARTO EDITION, Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges. 17s. 6d.
Ditto, Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. 25s. 0d.
FF 5. Old Notation, Large Type, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 10s. 6d.
FF 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 14s. 6d.
HH 5. Old Notation. Cheaper Edition, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges 6s. 6d
HH 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.
RR 5. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
RR 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges.. .. .. 9s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

CC 4. POCKET EDITION, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 0d.
CC 5. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Rounded Corners .. 4s. 6d.
DD 5. LARGE TYPE EDITION, Persian Morocco, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 4s. 6d.
EE 5. EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco, Gilt Edges .. .. 6s. 6d.
EE 6. Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined .. .. 9s. 6d.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

AND

The Christian Choir.

MUSIC AND WORDS—(QUARTO).

Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. ..20s. 0d.
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. ..27s. 6d.

WORDS ONLY.

BB 5. RUBY LEADED, Persian Morocco Limp, Rounded Corners, Gilt Edges .. .. 3s. 6d.
EXTRA LARGE TYPE, Persian Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges .. .. 7s. 6d.
Ditto Do. Yapped, Kid-lined, Gilt Edges .. 10s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

New Books by CAPTAIN DAWSON,

Author of "Notes and Thoughts, 23rd Psa.," "Communion and Conflict," &c., &c.

SUITABLE AS GIFTS.

GRACIOUS WORDS and GLORIOUS WORKS. Leather, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 1s.; paper, with picture, 6d.

"Terse and suggestive expositions . . . . full of freshness and power."—Life of Faith.

"A charming book, and full of 'points,' as all Captain Dawson's writings are."—The Christian.

FOUR BEES WITHOUT STINGS. With Picture, One Penny.

"Most excellent . . . . It is thoroughly characteristic of the author, and should be widely circulated."—The Fireside News.

"Its pointed and practical setting will win for it appreciative perusal."—Word and Work.

LIFE PICTURES. Six attractive little Books for Distribution. Packet, 6d.

"A capital series. Will be welcomed by young men."
Fireside News.

"Written in a singularly lucid and forcible manner. These original and graphic booklets, with their attractive floral covers, should be displayed on the bookstalls of all Y.M.C.A.'s."
Rest and Reaping.

"Most attractive. The get-up is such as to make them presentable on any table. The lessons given are illustrated and enforced by vivid anecdotes that fix and carry attention. These packets would be serviceable for distribution by the Army Scripture Readers."
The British Flag and Christian Sentinel.

"As charming a packet as we have seen for a long time. The titles are striking, such as 'Stanley's March,' 'The Pennsylvania Flood,' &c. They are written in a popular style, and are sure to be read. . . Nobody can refuse them."—Word and Work.

London: J. F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

LESSONS FROM STANLEY'S LETTERS, with picture, 1d. Marsom, Mildmay House, Bournemouth.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL CANTATA.

CHRIST, OUR REDEEMER.

By GEORGE STOKES.

The Solos are for children, and the choruses, being in two parts, are for children also. Good music.

Price 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 4d.

London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, Warwick-lane, E.C.

THREEPENCE MONTHLY.

THE CHRISTIAN TREASURY.

Editor—F. B. MEYER, B.A.

It is regretted that the entire issue for January was sold out before all demands were met. A larger edition will be prepared in future. Order of all Booksellers.

MARSHALL BROTHERS, 10, Paternoster-row.

IN ONE VOLUME, COMPLETE.

WESLEY AND WHITEFIELD:

THE TWO GREAT EVANGELISTS.
OF THE LAST CENTURY:
Their Lives, Their Work, and Their Times.
With Portraits.

JOHN WESLEY. By JOHN W. KIRTON, LL.D., Author of "Buy your Own Cherries."

GEORGE WHITEFIELD. By J. R. ANDREWS Barrister-at-Law.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

A better bit of biographical work in the same compass and at so moderate a price we have seldom if ever seen."—Christian Leader.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ADDITIONAL

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED.

Compiled and Sung by IRA D. SANKEY.

BOOK OF WORDS: Paper covers, One Penny.

Printed Cloth, Twopence.

"We have gone through this book, and tried many of its pieces, and are much pleased with it."—Railway Signal.

"The collection will, no doubt, be readily welcomed wherever its predecessor is found. And where is it that it is not found? It is almost an omnipresent book."—Footsteps of Truth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THIS PART BEGINS A NEW VOLUME.

Price Sevenpence.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL

FOR FEBRUARY.

CONTENTS.

MY SHIPMATE LOUISE: The Romance of a Wreck. By W. CLARK RUSSELL.
THE LABOUR COLONIES OF HOLLAND.
JULIUS VERNON: A Story of Hyde Park.
CURIOSITIES IN OUR ANCIENT CHURCHES.
JIM THE TRAMP. COMPLIMENTS.
LEPERS IN CANADA. THE VACQUERO.
HOW OUR DRUGS ARE IMPORTED.
A MEMORABLE GAME OF CHESS.
THE STORY OF A WOMAN-HATER.
THE BELLS OF LONDON. THE GIANT SUN.
IN A REGIMENTAL ORDERLY-ROOM.
FUGITIVE FACTS FROM NORMANDY.
SOME PREDICTIONS AND COINCIDENCES.
ABOUT COMMON COLDS AND THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC. By a London Physician.
WITH ROD AND GUN IN THE HIMALAYAS.
THE MONTH: SCIENCE AND ARTS.
TABLET TRAIN-SIGNALLING.
POETICAL PIECES.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL for February.

W. & R. CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

REST FROM SORROW: or, The Ministry of Suffering.

By Rev. WILLIAM GUEST, F.G.S.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS.

London:
RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, 56, Paternoster-row, E.C.

LIVING in LODGINGS.

See OUR OWN GAZETTE for February, which also contains "Fine Gold" (New Serial Story by Emma Marshall); "Hints on the making of Winter Comforts," by Ellen T. Masters; Complete Story by Mrs. Haycroft; "Cap and Apron" Competition (£2 in Prizes), &c., &c. Now ready, attractively illustrated. Price One Penny. Through any Bookseller, or direct from OUR OWN GAZETTE Office, 18, Paternoster-square, London, E.C.

NEW EDITION OF THE

ENGLISHMAN'S BIBLE.

Combining the Precision of the Originals with the Authorised Version.

By THOMAS NEWBERRY.

Printed at the University Press, Oxford, on their Best [illegible].

Superior French Morocco Yapp, elastic band ..	18s.
Palestine Morocco Yapp, elastic band	28s.
Levant Morocco Yapp (the strongest and [illegible] flexible binding extant)	35s.
Large Print Edition, 3 vols., cloth	30s.

DAVIES BROTHERS, Weston-super-Mare.
London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

REST and REAPING

One Penny Monthly. Vol. for 1889, 2/6.

"This volume is full of good things. All the articles and extracts are instructive and helpful to Christian workers. The twelve papers by the editor on "The Holy Spirit" are worthy of special notice."—The Reaper.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

JUST PUBLISHED.

EARTH'S EVENTIDE.

SIXTH EDITION.

By the Rev. J. G. GREGORY, M.A.

Crown 8vo., 204 pp. in handsome Cloth, 3/-.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co. Brighton: D. B. FRIEND.

SUITABLE FOR A GIFT-BOOK.

The Christian Portrait Gallery:

Consisting of OVER ONE HUNDRED Life-like Portraits and Biographic Sketches of Prominent Christian Workers of the Present Day.

Handsomely Bound, Demy Quarto, Cloth,
Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

"The perusal of the volume has been to us a delight and an inspiration. A better book could not be found for a present."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This handsome, large, quarto volume, beautifully bound, is one of more than ordinary interest to the Christian reader. It contains upwards of one hundred biographical sketches, with remarkably life-like portraits of men and women who have been—and some of whom still are—eminent workers for God at home and in foreign lands."—English Churchman.

"This handsome volume will be valued by all who are interested in the Christian life and work of our day. The portraits are very good, and the accompanying sketches are models of brief, terse, and adequate biographies. The volume will form a handsome feature for the drawing-room, and be especially suitable for presentation."—Baptist Magazine.

"This volume contains well-executed and life-like portraits of about a hundred of the best known Christian workers of the present day, with a short account of the life and labour of each. All who can purchase the volume will be very pleased with it."
Christian Progress.

"Messrs. Morgan & Scott have just published a superb book. It is entitled The Christian Portrait Gallery, and contains portraits and biographic sketches of one hundred present-day Christian workers. The whole get-up of the book is first-class."—Divine Life.

"For half-a-guinea a collection of one hundred portraits of distinguished Christian workers of the period; a noble army indeed. This Portrait Gallery can claim a high artistic value; and yet the smallness of its price brings it within the means of many."
Sword and Trowel.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

In Crown 8vo., Five Shillings.

DEMONOLOGY AND WITCHCRAFT:

WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO

MODERN "SPIRITUALISM," SO-CALLED; AND THE "DOCTRINES OF DEMONS."

By ROBERT BROWN, Author of

"Outlines of Prophetic Truth," "The Personality and History of Satan," "Gleanings from the Book of Ruth," &c., &c.

"The writer has produced a curiously interesting book, and one in which Sir Walter Scott would have delighted."—Public Opinion.

"His tenacious hold and his fearless declaration of the 'Old Gospel' is refreshing. The book is sure to be read. The incidents with which it abounds are often thrilling and exciting to the last degree; and the teachings and warnings accompanying them cannot fail to do good."—The Christian.

"The volume generally is [illegible] mine of fact information, gathered from an [illegible] variety of sources, on all points connected with 'Spiritualism.'"
European Mail.

"We are very glad our readers can be supplied with a masterly and comprehensive treatise on the subject of 'Spiritualism' by the purchase of this book. Mr. Brown is mighty in the Scriptures and sound in the faith. His book is eminently spiritual, . . . which bespeaks by anticipation a blessing for it."—The Rock.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.

What is the Trinitarian Bible Society?

The Trinitarian Bible Society was formed on the seventh of December, 1831, by "some of the best, and warmest and holiest friends" of the British and Foreign Bible Society,* under the following circumstances:—

The British and Foreign Bible Society had been formed in 1804, and one of its earliest correspondents was a Romish Priest in Swabia, who wrote, asking it for Roman Catholic versions of the Bible.

Roman Catholic versions of the Bible are not like our own Bible. Our English Bible is a translation made from the original Hebrew Old and Greek New Testaments. It is a noble example of pious veracity, and an honest attempt to give a faithful representation of God's Word, aiming only to glorify God in His Word; though, like all things that man touches, it is marked by imperfections. Roman Catholic versions, on the contrary, are translations of another translation, which is known as the Latin Vulgate; and are made on quite another principle and with quite a different purpose.

The Latin Vulgate is a very ancient version, made in the fourth century; being a revision by Jerome of still older Latin versions. In its original form it is very useful to scholars. But this is not the Vulgate from which these Roman Catholic versions are made! They are made from an edition which was authorised by the Council of Trent in 1546, and afterwards printed by Pope Sixtus V., and finally by Pope Clement VIII., in 1592. This is known as the "Clementine Vulgate," and is the standard Vulgate of the whole Romish Church, from which its versions are made. It differs from Jerome's ancient Vulgate, having a multitude of additions, omissions, and alterations, made in order to give a Divine support to the various errors and corruptions of the Romish Church.

The Romish Church has always been an enemy of the Bible, and when she could no longer hinder the spread of the Bible by the tortures of the Inquisition, she set about making translations of her own from her Papal Vulgate. She called these the "antidote," and the faithful versions which had been made from the originals by the Reformers she called the "poison"!

These Roman Catholic versions were made in various languages, viz., French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, German, Dutch, Flemish, Polish, English, &c.

The translation of this Papal Vulgate in English, is called the Douay Bible, but it does not differ in its general character from the others.

They all contain additions to the Word of God: they all omit many things: they all make alterations: and with one object, viz., to make God support Idolatry, Mariolatry, the Mass, Penance, Salvation by Works, Saint Worship, and other vital errors and corruptions of the Romish Church.

The following are specimens of the character of some of these corruptions:

"SHE SHALL BRUISE THY HEAD."

(Gen. iii. 15. Vulgate and its Translations.)

"This mistake of the Vulgate became the support of the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception, and has worked deeply into the Marian system."—Dr. Pusey, Eirenicon, p. 168.

"THOU SHALT NOT RENDER TO THEM [i.e., to images] THE SUPREME WORSHIP."

(Exodus xx. 5. French Romish Version of De Saci.)

It is manifest that the addition of "souverain" is nothing less than a forgery, and a falsification of the text; a crime so great that we want words by which to express it. It indicates that worship of a lower kind (as inculcated by Romish teaching) may be rendered.

"REDEEM THY SINS BY ALMSGIVING."

(Dan. iv. 17. Vulgate and its Versions.)

"The soul of man is not subject to any ills from which it cannot obtain deliverance by almsgiving. . . . See this Prince (Nebuchadnezzar) whom an ignominious catastrophe is about to punish for his pride; the prophet (Daniel) while pronouncing his sentence shows him there is reason for hope in almsgiving," &c.—From sermon of Cardinal Donnet, Archbishop of Bordeaux, quoted in Evangelical Christendom for March, 1856.

"DO PENANCE."

(The general equivalent for "repent" in all the Versions from the Vulgate.)

"St. John demands not only a change of life and repentance of our sins as the Lutherans pretend, but also that we should perform worthy fruits of penance in order to appease the anger of God irritated by our sins."—De Saci.

"BY FAITH JACOB . . . WORSHIPPED THE TOP OF HIS STAFF."

(Heb. xi. 21. The Vulgate and its Versions.)

"Observe in these words . . . that adoration . . . may be done to creatures, or to God at and before a creature; as at or before the Ark of the Testament, now at or before the crucifix, relics, images, . . . by all which it is evident that it is false which the Calvinists teach that we may not adore image, crucifix, or any visible creature."—Note from a Romish Version.

"TURN TO SOME ONE OF THE SAINTS."

(Job v. 1. Vulgate and Versions.)

"This derisive question, 'To which of the saints wilt thou turn?' the Vulgate and its Versions thus change into a deliberate command, as above; and give a Scriptural support to the invocation of Saints."

"THEY [i.e., the Apostles] WERE OFFERING THE SACRIFICE."

(Acts xiii. 2. Wuyk's Polish Test.)

"This is the very passage concerning which M. Vernon, when asked why he wrested it from its natural meaning, replied, 'Because he had often been asked by Calvinists, what Scripture affirmed, that the Apostles said mass.'"—Rev. T. H. Horne, Introduction, 9th ed., vol. v. p. 117.

* History of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Browne, Vol. I., 134.

"EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH, WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED BY TRADITION TO THE SAINTS."

(Jude 3. French Romish Version of De Saci.)

The interpolated words "par tradition" are not even in italics.

"THE PRIEST SHALL PRAY FOR HIM . . . AND IT SHALL BE FORGIVEN HIM."

This is the general equivalent for "the Priest shall make an atonement for him, &c.," throughout the Pentateuch, in all the Romish Versions. By this systematic perversion, the prayer of the Priest is exalted into the place of the atonement.

When the British and Foreign Bible Society was first invited to circulate these versions, the Committee steadfastly refused on principle. "They declined again and again to assist in publishing any Roman Catholic translation."*

"If foreign versions were printed . . . . they were most carefully reported as Protestant versions."* If grants were made, "they were to be sacredly applied to the reprint of some Protestant version."

When the first invitation was received, it "was regarded by the Committee as an invitation to occupy a field from which they had considered themselves altogether excluded."† A second discussion ended in the resolve, "that the proposal could not be acceded to."† And when the Nuremburg Society had gone too far in a negotiation in the wrong direction, to recede, "then, so scrupulous were the Committee, and so jealous were they of Roman Catholic translations, that some members of their body undertook to defray the entire charge, rather than involve the Society in a transaction the propriety of which might be questioned."†

But the qualification for serving on the Committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society was chiefly a money payment,‡ and therefore in a few years men were found who forsook its fundamental principles, and step by step adopted these corrupted and falsified versions, and sent them abroad as the Word of God.§

Further, these versions contained the fourteen books of the Apocrypha, and hence there soon arose a controversy which had its chief seat in Scotland. It is known as "the Apocrypha Controversy." The brothers Haldane and the late Dr. Andrew Thomson took a prominent part on the side of orthodoxy; while the Committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society defended the circulation of the versions containing the Apocrypha on the ground of expediency, viz., that they did good, and that some people would receive no other.

After some years of protracted struggle the voice of the Christian public forbade the continuance of this sinful practice; not, however, until Scotland had broken away, and formed its own independent Societies. In 1826 and 1827 the point was yielded, and new "Regulations" on the subject were appended to the Laws of the British and Foreign Bible Society forbidding the further circulation of the Apocrypha.‖

Why was this controversy so bitter? was then the question that occurred to many persons whose consciences had been deeply exercised, and the answer that suggested itself to some was—It is because we never pray. It was but too true. God had never been acknowledged in prayer! Prayer was not allowed in the councils of the British and Foreign Bible Society!¶

The question was then changed to this: Why do we not pray? And the reason was: Because of the presence of Socinians and others on the Committee. The remedy therefore seemed to be, first, to effect the exclusion of Socinians—then they would be able to pray, and then they might hope that all would come right.

To accomplish this, those who were zealous for the glory of Christ brought forward the following resolution at the Annual Meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Exeter Hall, on May 4, 1831:—

"That the words in Law IX., and "of the others which prescribe the "terms of admission to the agency "of the Society, be not taken to "extend to those who deny the "divinity and atonement of the "Lord Jesus Christ."

This Resolution (and another to the same effect) was rejected, mainly on the ground that the British and Foreign Bible Society was "not a Religious Society."

A conviction that this decision had a direct tendency to dim the lustre and impair the power of Scriptural Truth,

---

* "A Defence of the British and Foreign Bible Society," by John Radley, Esq., a member of its Committee, 1857; pp. 2, 3, 4.

† Ibid.

‡ Besides 36 elected members (laymen), the following, among others, were all bonâ fide members of Committee:—

(1). All Subscribers of Five Guineas annually.—(Law V.)

(2). All Donors of Fifty Pounds in one or two payments.—(Law VI.)

(3). All Executors of Bequests of One Hundred Pounds, and upwards.—(Law VIII.)

(4). "Every Clergyman or Dissenting Minister" who subscribes One Guinea annually.—(Law XIII.)

§ When these versions were adopted and circulated, the Douay version (English) was excluded by the first Law, which declares that "the only copies in the languages of the United Kingdom . . . shall be the authorised version." Hence foreign Roman Catholics can obtain their respective versions in our country, but English Romanists are prohibited from doing so. From this we argue (1) that it cannot be right to do abroad what it is wrong to do at home; and (2) if these versions do good to foreigners, why not do good to our own people? (3) The plea that Romanists will not receive any other is not allowed in the case of those who speak only English!

‖ Ever since the exclusion of the Apocrypha, the same Roman Catholic Versions have been circulated with all their corruptions. These corruptions have been defended very earnestly. But all defence is now practically given up, for our contention has been admitted by the correction of the worst of the errors in recent editions, by what are called "alternative readings." But while our argument is thus yielded, the evil is not remedied, for a "reading" cannot be really "alternative" if the original text does not admit of the two different modes of translation. If "penance" is alternative with "repentance," and "she" with "he" (Gen. iii. 15), then these "readings" are "alternative," and the evil is remedied. But not otherwise.

¶ And prayer was not allowed till June 8, 1857, when the motion "that this Committee do open their meetings with prayer" was carried, and option was thus given to its auxiliaries to do the same. But it was only an example, not an injunction, hence it was an example that has not been universally followed.

 The rejection of this Resolution placed that Society in a still more marked and friendly position in its relation to Socinians, and in the following July a public vote of thanks was accorded by the British and Foreign Unitarian Association to those who had advocated their cause in Exeter Hall on the 4th of May, 1831.

Whether or not Socinians happen to be on the Committee now, is not the question. The fact remains that they are entitled: for the rejection of this Resolution has never been rescinded, and it stands to this day as an open dishonour to our Lord Jesus Christ.

led to the appointment of a "Provisional Committee," to procure if possible a reconsideration of that decision.

For six months every attempt was made to induce the British and Foreign Bible Society to retrace its steps. But all efforts and remonstrances of numerous Christian friends throughout the country were alike in vain.

Those who had taken action in this matter were now placed in this position—

(1) They must either countenance this dishonour to Christ, and the other evils which had come in, from the attempt to work for God, without prayer;

(2) Or they must withdraw, and give up the work of Bible circulation altogether;

(3) Or they must form another Bible Society upon Scriptural principles.

They decided to take the latter alternative, and on December 7, 1831, a new Society was formed, Catholic in its spirit, Scriptural in its principles, Religious in its constitution, and Protestant in its operations.* To mark the circumstances out of which it grew, and the causes which had led to its formation, it was called

"THE TRINITARIAN BIBLE SOCIETY."†

(1) It believes that its work is religious, and that union in prayer is incumbent on all who engage in it; for it is written, "in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." (Phil. iv. 6.)

(2) It believes that God's servants should "honour the Son even as they honour the Father" (John v. 23); and it is written, "if there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds." (2 John 10, 11.)

(3) It believes that the circulation of systematically corrupted versions of the Bible is displeasing to God, being in direct opposition to His express commands:—

"Add thou not unto His words, lest He reprove thee, and thou be found a liar." (Prov. xxx. 6.)

"Thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it." (Deut. xii. 32.)

"He that hath My word, let him speak My word faithfully." (Jer. xxiii. 28.)

"If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life. (Rev. xxii. 18, 19.)

There is no appeal against these plain commands. A child can understand them. We have no choice, no liberty, no option but to obey. We cannot go beyond them to say less or more. No one on earth can give us a dispensation to disregard them. To disobey them on

The plea of expediency, is sin!

For, if on the plea of expediency it be urged of these corrupted Roman Catholic versions—

1. That they contain more truth than error. We reply: "It is written," "Ye shall not add to the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it." (Deut. iv. 2.)

2. That many will receive no other. We reply: "It is written," "THUS SAITH THE LORD, . . . Thou shalt speak MY WORDS unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear." (Ezek. ii. 7.)

3. That many "good men" advocate the circulation of Roman Catholic versions. We reply: "It is written," "We ought to obey God rather than men." (Acts v. 29.)

It is worthy of very serious note, that not one passage of God's Word has ever been found in support of the circulation of corrupted Bibles, or against the great principles of the Trinitarian Bible Society.

In 1881, before celebrating the Jubilee year of the Trinitarian Bible Society, the Committee appointed some of its members for conference with a similar sub-committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and engaged to recommend the dissolution of the Trinitarian Bible Society if a satisfactory agreement could be arrived at upon these two great principles, viz:—

"First, that all persons having a share in the management of the British and Foreign Bible Society, shall, by the rules of the Society, be held as acknowledging the doctrines of the Trinity and the Atonement.

"Second, that no copies of the Scriptures shall be circulated by the British and Foreign Bible Society except such as it shall consider faithful translations of the Original."

But the Committee of the British and Foreign Bible Society saw no reason to adopt any such changes as were suggested, and so the proposed conference never took place!

The Trinitarian Bible Society has therefore no option but to maintain its own separate position, and its Scriptural principles—

(1) By acknowledging the ignorance and helplessness of man, and expressing its entire dependence upon the blessing of a Triune Jehovah by offering up prayer and praise at all its meetings.

(2) By excluding from its management all who deny the doctrines of the Trinity and the Atonement. And

(3) By circulating only the best and most faithful versions which can be obtained.

The Society is undenominational, and its work is essentially gratuitous and not commercial. Its field is the world, and it seeks the assistance, not of any particular church or nation, but of all in

---

* The Edinburgh Bible Society expressed its happiness at the stand "made against the corrupt practices and principles of the British and Foreign Bible Society," and hailed "the institution of the Trinitarian Bible Society as an event which promises well, by the Divine blessing, for the interests of the truth in our own land, and for its dissemination throughout the earth."

† In 1881, the Society's Jubilee year, the following additional title was given to the Society,—

"For the Circulation of Uncorrupted Versions of the Word of God."

It was felt that the word "Trinitarian," referring as it did to the historical circumstances out of which the Society grew, was not sufficiently intelligible to those who had grown up in ignorance of these events.

every place who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth. Unlike the British and Foreign Bible Society, its object is not "to circulate the best translations which people will take," but the best and most faithful that can be obtained. It granted and sold last year 93,829 Bibles, New Testaments and Portions in 21 different languages. It made grants to 36 Missionary Societies, and to workers connected with Hospitals, Asylums, Prisons, Police Cells, Workhouses, Sailors' Homes, and Strangers' Rests; also to Railway Employés and Firemen. It has given thousands of Books to Sailors in 18 British and Foreign Ports; and to Emigrants of many nations, who have left our shores or passed through our country. It published in 1886 a New Translation of the Hebrew New Testament, by the late Isaac Salkinson, that is rapidly superseding all others. A second edition of 100,000 copies was printed for Special Distribution throughout Europe and North Africa, &c., by the "Mildmay Mission to the Jews." Nearly the whole of this edition has been circulated by that Mission. The effect of this distribution is simply wonderful. Those who read its details can only say, "What hath God wrought?" "It is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes." More than 50,000 have been distributed in Russia alone, in which country no Missionaries to the Jews are allowed. The Society is also printing a correct Massoretic Text of the Hebrew Old Testament, a work that is called for by all Bible Translators, and which must form the basis for all future Old Testament Revision. It has just printed the whole Bible in the Breton language, for a people who have never before had the Word of God thus circulated amongst them.

The First Breton Bible.

Our agent's account of the arrival of the first consignment of Bibles in Brittany in December last (1889) is most touching. He writes: "The first copy was sold to an old man of seventy-two, who had been putting a penny aside for many months, in order to purchase the precious volume. He has already read the five books of Moses. My wife went to see him yesterday. 'How is it,' said he, 'that this book was not put into Breton before? When I was young I saw a French Bible, which, of course, was of no use to me, not being able to read that language. At that time I said I should be willing to give a pound of my wages if I could only get a Breton copy of that book; when a priest told me that I need not be so anxious to have a book that had got rusty by time, and needed a complete change and renewal; and that book, he said, was too clever for a poor goose like me. I was then twenty-five years of age. Ever since, I have wished and longed to be able to have a Breton copy of the Bible. I feel glad and happy now; but in reading the fifth book of Moses I almost fell to the ground. The law of God was terrible, and His chastenings very severe; but what abundance of riches and mercies to those that keep His commandments! But who could keep them? Who could fulfill the law? I now understand the need of a Saviour standing between God and man. Never before did I understand the guilt of breaking the law, and the need of a Saviour. May the people or Society that has printed this book, together with the printer and all the printing machinery, be blessed; and may the light that has come over me shine brightly all through Brittany! Oh, believe me, dear madam, hundreds and thousands of poor Bretons like myself will gladly receive the book, and pray that God's blessing may rest upon both translator and Society. Please thank them for me, and tell them that if I am the only one that be made happy, I shall never cease praying for their prosperity. I hope before I meet my God to have read the book all through; and then I will die willingly. Oh, why has it been kept so long from Brittany? . . . . Is she the last of nations, that she be treated so?'

"The next morning another man was waiting at the door at half-past four for a copy of the Bible."

The Committee appeal to all who value the great principles of this

Protestant Bible Society

to aid it in maintaining those principles, and in its circulation of ONLY uncorrupted versions of the Word of God. The work and usefulness of the Society are limited only by the means placed at its disposal.

The Trinitarian Bible Society.

(FOR THE CIRCULATION OF UNCORRUPTED VERSIONS OF THE WORD OF GOD.)

Vice-Presidents.

THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF TANKERVILLE.

R. C. L. BEVAN, Esq.
SIR CHARLES LOWTHER, Bart.
W. BASSANO, Esq., J.P.
HUGH EVANS, Esq.
LIEUT.-GEN. SIR ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.
JOHN MURPHY, Esq., J.P.
A. A. MURRAY-KER, Esq., D.L., J.P.
EDWARD HOYLE, Esq., J.P.

Treasurer.—JAMES MADEN HOLT, Esq. Chairman of Committee.—HARRY CURTIS NISBET, Esq.

Bankers.—MESSRS. MARTIN & CO., 68, Lombard Street, E.C.

Secretary.—REV. E. W. BULLINGER, D.D.,

Of whom further information may be obtained at the Office of the Society,

7, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

(Office in Ireland, 17, Upper Sackville Street, Dublin.)

JANUARY 31, 1890.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late DR. LIGHTFOOT, Bishop of Durham.

We heartily thank the many friends who have sent contributions to our weekly column of "Gathered Gold." A good proportion of the extracts that have reached us are of excellent quality, and we shall give them as our space permits. Friends are asked to bear in mind that the items must be brief, terse, and incisive.

It is with extreme regret that we learn that the funds of the St. Giles Christian Mission to Discharged Prisoners are in a critical state. The receipts at Christmas time showed a serious diminution, and the treasurer was unable to pay up all claims as usual. It seems that unless £1500 is forthcoming within the next few weeks, the work will have to undergo curtailment. We sincerely trust that this disastrous step will be obviated by adequate help being speedily sent to the superintendent of the Mission, Mr. George Hatton, 4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

The spirit of Mr. Plimsoll, the sailors' friend, is still moved within him at the indifference of British statesmen to the claims of those who follow a seafaring life. He is publishing "another appeal in twelve chapters" on behalf of seamen, and the second chapter deals with the question of "deck loading." His contention, backed up by an array of facts and figures, is that during the period (from 1839 to 1862) when deck loading was prohibited, the proportionate loss of life at sea was very much smaller than it was before, and has become since. Mr. Plimsoll is in dead earnest in this matter, and frankly avows that for the future, ignoring party calls, his politics will be—"How best to wipe out England's deep disgrace: her criminal neglect of her people at sea." Every true-hearted man and woman will wish him speedy success in his crusade against neglect and selfishness.

An illustration of the tendency of so many modern writers on religious subjects to whittle away the distinctive doctrines of the Gospel and the revealed facts of Scripture is furnished by a recent book entitled, "Socrates and Christ." In his endeavour to "eliminate doctrinal considerations," the author leaves entirely out of sight the most essential requisite to any real comparison, declaring that "what we believe regarding God's nature matters very little." Such being his basis, it is scarcely surprising that the comparison which he draws is simply that between one good man and another; the Greek philosopher is contrasted, not with the Christ as revealed to us by the Evangelists, but with a Christ who is no more than a very holy man, who is to be loved and admired as setting an example for all men to follow. That our Lord's moral teaching was so much superior to that of Socrates is attributed to the difference in their surroundings and to "racial diversity"; of Jesus Christ as God and as the Redeemer of the world there is no mention. Thus it is that this "study in the philosophy of religion" is permeated by a subtle Unitarianism which is becoming only too common in some of our semi-religious liturature—and, alas! in some of our pulpits too.

A friend in Glasgow sends us the following, which will explain itself:—

DIPLOMA OF ADMISSION.

S..... N.....

CONVERSION OF SCOTLAND;

Or, the Return of the Scottish People to the Ancient Faith of their Forefathers.

UNIVERSAL ASSOCIATION

Of Masses, Communions, Prayers, Merits, and Good Works,

IN HONOUR OF

ST. NINIAN, First Apostle and Bishop of Scotland [360-432].

Canonically Established in Scotland.

I, the undersigned, Director of the Society of St. Ninian, for the Conversion of Scotland, certify that.....has been admitted into the aforesaid Association, and can participate in all the advantages, indulgences, and privileges granted to it.

PONTIFICAL BRIEF OF LEO XIII., December 1, 1889:—We hereby grant sixty days indulgence to members joining this Association.

✠ CHARLES, Archbishop of Glasgow.

Glasgow, January 18, 1890.

Whithorn,..... 189 F. GONZAGA, Director.

Seat of Society: Norbert House, Wigtown.

The American Christian Union inserts a letter from a subscriber, who first speaks of having recently conversed with theological students from two prominent colleges, who threw doubt upon the account of our first parents, upon the Flood, on Jonah, on the restoration of a dead child by Elijah, and the insertion of the book of Esther in the Canon. He then pertinently says:—

> Now, I am an old man; have been taught to take the Bible and follow its teachings, and I shall be led safely across the continent of life. But with these modern teachings of prominent and scholarly D.D.'s, supplemented by teachings of irreverent and scholarly sceptics, what may I believe and teach my children? I ask one of these men for directions to Alaska; he says: "Why, man, get 'Appleton's Railway Guide,' and follow its instructions." I do so, and suppose I find in my travels that it is full of blunders; no railway at all where it gives the name in the book; that the time tables are all wrong; and here and there the directions are printed in Sanscrit, Hebrew, or Greek, and in parenthesis here and there "poetic," "hyperbole," "tradition." Would I not throw away the guide in disgust, and trust to luck to get safely to my journey's end? Must one be an Oriental, Hebrew, or Greek scholar in order to read the Bible in confidence? What are we poor laymen to do?

Albert Barnes was a great preacher and able commentator. He said, late in life, that the difficulties he had earlier experienced in reading the Bible had one by one passed away. It is a pity that theological students do not act on the principle of waiting for more light before they scatter abroad their scepticisms at every opportunity.

Some of the Evangelical clergy, very naturally offended at recent proceedings at the Church Congress, had made up their minds that henceforth the best protest was to refuse to attend. At a late semi-private meeting, however, of the Representative Council of the Union of Clerical and Lay Associations there was a unanimous feeling, we are told, that, if only to protect evangelical interests, the Evangelicals should attend the autumn meeting of the Congress at Hull. A larger attendance of Protestant churchmen may therefore, says The Record, be witnessed than at previous gatherings for some years past. Certainly the records of the Church history of the fourth century show that it was the presence of the orthodox at Church councils that carried the victory for truth against Arianism.

The following confession of Keshub Chunder Sen, a half heathen, half Christian rhetorician of India, which was recently quoted in a sermon by the Bishop of Huron, may be worth repeating in these columns, as a remarkable and valuable testimony to the reality and the success of Christian missions in our Indian Empire:—

> "The spirit of Christianity," he says, "has already pervaded the whole atmosphere of Indian society, and we breathe, think, feel, and move, in a Christian atmosphere. Our hearts are touched, conquered, overcome, by a higher power, and this power is Christ. Christ, not the British Government, rules India. No one but Christ has deserved the precious diadem of the Indian crown, and He will have it."

In connection with this subject our readers may be reminded how two years ago Sir W. W. Hunter, an eminent Indian administrator of twenty-five years' experience, has spoken of the whole fabric of native society being profoundly affected by the influence of Western ideas. In a valuable magazine article he also bore emphatic witness to the eminent success which was attending the labours of missionaries in India. He has further stated his impression that there will presently be a great religious revival in that country. It cannot, then, be too often or too urgently pleaded that it is for Christian England, whose possession of India involves a very grave responsibility in religious no less than in civil and Imperial matters, to see that such a revival shall be in the direction of Christianity, which, in Sir W. W. Hunter's words, "comes to the Indian races in an age of new activity and hopefulness, as a fully equipped religion of effort and of hope." It may also be borne in mind that there are millions on the fringe or beyond the pale of Hinduism, to win whom to Christ is a vast and urgent task which faces the Christian churches. The testimony quoted above, though pitched in a somewhat hyperbolical key, shows that it is a task in which there is much that is most cheering and encouraging.

Students of the Word of God, and of ancient history, are well aware of the unpleasant fact that underneath each of the old civilisations, despite the parade of knowledge, and art, and courage, there was always a festering mass of corruption that, sooner or later, overran and destroyed the State. Much of the romance is taken from our ideas of such a civilisation as that of Ancient Greece by a thoughtful perusal of such a volume as Professor Mahaffy's "Studies." We there find that much of the morality of the Greeks had not sufficient decency to condemn the most scandalous of offences, and that many of their public men openly practised vices, the pursuit of which to-day would probably end in penal servitude for a term of years.

That these vices are dealt with in detail in some of the classic authors, is only too well known, and one can but wonder how long such compilations will be permitted to remain the class-books at our colleges, especially now that the "higher education" is being availed of by our daughters. To be familiar with vice, even in classic lore, cannot be anything but a curse, and it behoves parents to take measures to protect their children from running such risks.

A curious suggestion has been made in the recent papers of the Palestine Exploration Society which cannot be at once endorsed by us, but deserves mention. Although the Evangelist John (xxi.) speaks of a later meeting of our risen Lord with some of his disciples at the Lake of Galilee, he joins with Mark and Luke in conveying the impression that the first meetings were either in Jerusalem or the immediate locality. But Matthew makes the trysting-place to be "a ('the' in the Greek) mountain" in Galilee. We are now told that the Mount of Olives was named "the hill or mountain of the Galileans"; having, in the influx of Passover pilgrims, been appropriated to visitors from the northern province. It would thus come to be called "the mountain of Galilee." Without committing ourselves, it is becoming clear that certain superficial differences in the Evangelists will be shown to be explainable by the usages of language at the time.

CANNING TOWN MEDICAL MISSION.

This Mission has completed another year's work among the casual "dockers" and other poor residents of a very poor district of East London. The spiritual character of the agency is fully recognised by the people, and such as have benefited by the Medical Mission have often fetched the workers to comfort and enlighten sick or dying neighbour.

During last year, 8961 patients were seen on dispensary days, and these, with 2000 others who were visited at their homes, were urged to accept God's offer of salvation. Said a woman on one occasion: "Please come at once and see Mrs. L——; she is very ill." Upon the superintendent, Dr. Laird, declining to interfere with another doctor's patient, he was told: "She don't want medicine; it's the other thing." "The other thing" meant "an anxious soul." The superintendent then hastened to see the woman, and had the joy of knowing that a seeking sinner and the seeking Saviour soon met. Some who have thus been visited, have passed through the dark valley, which, however, has been made light by the presence of Jesus. The Mission premises are in Quadrant-street, and the work is deserving of hearty support.

OPIUM IN INDIA.—At a meeting in Newcastle, under the presidency of Bishop Wilberforce, a resolution was unanimously adopted, protesting against the manufacture and sale of opium in India by the British Government, either for export to China or other countries, or for consumption in India itself, except for legitimate medical use.

The Queen v. Barnardo.

On Monday, sitting as a Court of Appeal, the Master of the Rolls and Lord Justice Fry confirmed the recent decision of the Divisional Court, that a writ of habeas corpus should issue for the production of the boy Harry Gossage, at one time an inmate of the Stepney Homes, and now resident somewhere in Canada. As four judges of the Supreme Court have declared that this decision is in consonance with the existing law of these realms, it would probably be an act of temerity on the part of any "layman" to dispute their ruling in its strictly legal bearings. Dr. Barnardo acted as his own counsel before the Court of Appeal, and made a gallant fight in defence of his position. He contended with vigour and force that the law and the practice in past times relating to writs of habeas corpus were never intended to apply to cases such as those in which he has been obliged to appear as defendant. So firmly is he convinced as to the strength of this contention that he has intimated a further appeal to the House of Lords, the ultimate depositary of available truth with respect to what British law is and is not. Human law is certainly a queer entity; and, considering the divergent interpretations of it that we so often find among the august occupants of the Bench itself, the average Briton may be forgiven if he hesitates to bow to the dictum of any one Court, or of any two Courts, on such a debateable point as the true and proper scope of the statute that has secured such an undoubted boon as this powerful engine—a writ of habeas corpus.

Leaving the niceties and intricacies of legal disquisition, and passing to the broad question of equity as it relates to the case before us, we feel on more solid ground. Here we can say, without hesitation, that all our sympathies and good wishes go with Dr. Barnardo. We say further, viewing the question from this stand-point, and having regard to the extremely strong expressions used by the Master of the Rolls himself in describing the "brutal" character and conduct of the mother of Harry Gossage, that the judgment he gave fills us with a sense of deep disappointment. Parental rights are the precious and inalienable inheritance of every well-disposed British father or mother. But, if it be not law, it certainly appears to us to be the plainest equity and good sense, that every parental "right" is conditioned by the due discharge of parental duty and responsibility. Where, then, on the showing of the Master of the Rolls himself, are the rights of a parent such as the mother of this unhappy boy has been clearly shown and admitted to be? Speaking always from the broad platform of equity, we assert that they are simply non-existent. And if they are non-existent, how could they be transferred to Mr. Newdigate, the real promoter of this action, who did nothing whatever to rescue the boy from the misery and peril into which he had sunk, through the gross and "brutal" neglect of the mother, in whose welfare it is said that this Roman Catholic gentleman has been so greatly interested? The Master of the Rolls, in a rough and almost contemptuous way, brushed aside the attempt of Mr. Newdigate's counsel to show that the mother's claim to consideration was not affected by her unspeakable behaviour; neither did he spare his criticism of the methods adopted by the real promoters of the action against Dr. Barnardo. Yet, ignoring all he had said on this aspect of the case, by his decision he virtually admits the right of Mr. Newdigate to set the law in motion for the recovery of the child of this degraded woman.

Whatever may be the final issue of the unseemly struggle, it cannot for a moment be denied that Dr. Barnardo has been actuated solely by a desire to further the true well-being of the boy, whose pitiful cry for help he heard and heeded. At the most, he can only be charged with a "technical" and, as he maintains, unconscious, infraction of the law, and his appeal to the highest Court holds even that view in suspense. The Master of the Rolls admitted that he may have done the very best thing for the boy, and that his action might be morally justifiable. If Dr. Barnardo fail again in his contention on the legal point, he will, of course, have to submit to the inevitable, and do his utmost to obey the mandate of the Court; this we are certain he will readily do. Lord Esher candidly remarked that, even if the boy were produced, it did not at all follow that he would be handed over to the mother, or to those who say they are acting in her name. If the Court is to consider first and foremost the welfare of the boy, we deem it very unlikely that such will be the result; and our belief is that this harsh procedure of the Roman Catholic proselytisers will not yield them any advantage.

We earnestly trust that, in the meantime, the friends of Dr. Barnardo's general work of rescue and redemption will strain every nerve to uphold and strengthen his hands in its thorough and unstinted maintenance. It is not Dr. Barnardo's work: it is the work of the whole Church of Christ. If he is now trying to do what the great body of Christians have so long left undone, there is all the more reason why they should aid him in its performance.

We understand that Dr. Barnardo contemplates issuing in pamphlet form, at an early date, the speech which he delivered before the Court of Appeal.

GARFIELD HOUSE, RYDE, I.W.—A lady writes us: "For the benefit of governesses, teachers, and ladies of limited incomes, who may desire change of air, with the comforts of a refined home, I strongly recommend Garfield House. It is conducted under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A., and principally intended for young women in business requiring rest and recreation. It is presided over by a Christian lady, with an efficient assistant, whose duty and pleasure it is to contribute to the comfort and happiness of the Home. To all lovers of nature there is much of beauty in and around Ryde. The house stands high, and is situated in one of the best and most healthy parts of the town, to which it has immediate access."

A SCANDAL TO CIVILISATION.—If certain recent statements in The Newcastle Daily Chronicle are to be trusted, the horrors and evils of overcrowding have been developed by Tyneside to a degree of perfection surpassing anything yet recorded. Case after case is reported in which ten or a dozen persons live and sleep in one room, as many as four, five, and six adults, regardless of sex, occasionallly occupying the same bed. Whole rows of streets are described where crowds of tenants herd in underground cellars, scarcely fit habitations for animals, and, what is more, pay 2s. 6d. or 3s. 6d. a week for the privilege. It would only shock my readers to no purpose were I to transcribe the moral and physical ruin resulting from this state of things. Surely there must be philanthropy or public spirit enough in Newcastle to grapple with such a scandal to civilisation.—Truth.

BERLIN.—In 1881, Pastor Stöcker, Court Chaplain, founded a work whereby sermon tracts are regularly distributed among persons unable to attend public worship. The Mission has grown steadily until, to-day the weekly circulation averages 124,000. Copies are also sent to isolated Germans in distant countries, including Egypt, Syria, and America.

"Come, ye Children."*

MR. WAUGH is well and favourably known as secretary of "The National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children." With the kindly object Mr. Waugh has in view, every true Christian must feel in utmost sympathy. We can hardly conceive of legislation being better applied than in the endeavour to rescue children from the shameful neglect and cruelty to which, alas! they are too often subjected by parents and guardians, who are only such in name. If any humanitarian rights deserve to be conserved, it is certainly those to which the defenceless young of our country lay claim, and, to all fit and proper action in that regard, we wish the heartiest God-speed.

There are, however, interests higher than humanitarianism can touch. It is possible to have benevolent feeling, and little or no spiritual perception. Mr. Waugh assumes that they are synonymous; in many parts of his book he virtually states their identity; but we cannot go with him in such a contention. That the Christian must be humane goes without saying, but to put the converse of the proposition as true is, indeed, to perpetrate a glaring non sequitur. To say that in Mr. Waugh's work the humanitarian conception overrides everything else, that it is the touchstone and resultant of all excellence, is to do him no injustice. In the whole course of our reading we have met with no work in which mere humanity, or natural kindliness of feeling, counts for so much. Even Christ Himself, according to these representations, describes in effect no other orbit; and the highest and apparently the only claim to be his, is made to centre in kindness to one's kind.

We feel that Mr. Waugh, in issuing this work, designed for the perusal of children and their teachers, has incurred very grave responsibility. No doubt the book has certain points of interest; it is a repertory of stories, many of which are illustrative of child life, and occasionally a Scriptural expression is explained in a fresh and forceful way. But, when we have said that, we have said all that may be favourably instanced. His theological teachings are deplorable, and, as these constitute the moral of every story, there is scarcely a chapter in the book that we can commend. Some are worse than others, and we earnestly hope, despite the attractions of story and illustration, that but few of the young or their teachers may have their religious sentiments formed by the work.

It is unspeakably sad to have young people taught that they may be Christians without any new birth. That this is a favourite doctrine of the author appears ever and anon. Let one passage suffice:—

> When you are a man or a woman grown you cannot then begin to be a field-flower pupil of Jesus without becoming a simple child again. You will need to be born again. Babes and sucklings can begin; but not the wise, until they are willing to be as innocent and foolish as the world always counts the religion of a child.—p. 95.

Another favourite article of teaching is the inherent goodness of the human heart. Even the worst men, it is said, "respect, honour, indeed, revere the Divinely good—hav e, indeed, something in common with it.' —p. 9. According to the Master, "the world loves its own," and hates his people. But, according to Mr. Waugh, the world has kinship, even at its worst, with the Divine.

In several chapters the baby is all but deified. Thus p. 21: "The true beginning of the eternal religion was neither in the prophet nor in the priest. It was in the power of a baby's sleep and smiles." Again, "There is very little distance between a baby and his rule and the rule of God. They are both majesties by the same spirit."—p. 40. Later on in the same page the baby is styled "God's vicegerent." We cannot too seriously deprecate such a line of description.

We touch a still graver point, however, when we come to Mr. Waugh's interpretation of the cross of Christ. Essential error here is fatal, and nothing can make amends for such a fault. Mr. Waugh has not a word to say of the sufferings of Christ as expiatory; or as a satisfaction to Divine justice; or as an atonement for guilt. There is nothing about substitution for offenders; or justification by his blood; or salvation from wrath through Him. The whole transaction is reduced to the level of necessary interposition. As William Ingram, engine-driver, sacrificed his life to save the passengers, so did Christ interpose for our rescue. The question arises: How is the parallel made out? William Ingram bore the consequences, in his own person, of the bursting boiler, having given such warning as enabled the passengers to make good their escape. But what answers to the bursting boiler in Christ's case? If there be no wrath against the sinner, no guilt to be expiated, no demands of justice to be met, how are the wounds of Jesus to be explained? And what is the nature of the deliverance rendered? How does his dying save? Can it be credited that the only answer Mr. Waugh has to such inquiries is the moral effect which the story of Christ's sufferings has on the sinner's heart? We would not, on any consideration, do the author injustice, and we have pondered his teaching on this point with especial care, but can find no other result than that above noted. His meaning, indeed, is but too obvious. The story by which it is feathered tells how a boy named Tom unwittingly grieved a friend by robbing a bird's nest; and the sight of the friend's distress—the knowledge of the wounds he had caused his friend—opened Tom's eyes to the God-life within himself, which for eleven years had slumbered all unknown to its possessor. "So it is through One who was wounded for our transgressions that we get power to become the sons of God."—p. 268. Thus children are taught that the sight of "their selfish ways wounding their parent's heart, and, above all, wounding the heart of that Friend of children, the Man Christ Jesus," is the means of bringing out of its hiding-place in the heart "the diviner, nobler, more blissful and hidden life."—p. 268.

In conclusion, we entirely fail to see, on Mr. Waugh's principles, any sufficient place for the doctrine of regeneration. Thus, based on a simple act of ordinary humanity, as shown by Henry VIII. of England, Mr. Waugh observes: "That was a little bit of 'the spirit of life'—the same life that was in Jesus. King Henry might not know it, but for that moment he was moved with the feeling of God. If he had always felt towards all flesh and blood as he felt then to that girl, he would have known what is the constant fulness of Christ. It is such men, in such moments, who are 'children of the Highest.'"—p. 145. After this, it can surprise no one t learn that "his (i.e., Christ's) Spirit is a way of treating people and feeling to them."—p. 113. To such a lame and impotent conclusion is the Scripture, "He hath given us of his Spirit," reduced.

But enough! The judgment of this work we leave to our readers. If our finding is adverse, we can truly say it has been arrived at with the utmost reluctance and pain. We esteem and love the author for his work's sake, and nothing but a sense of faithfulness to God and responsibility to souls has led us to give such prominence to our view of his book.

* "COME, YE CHILDREN." By Rev. Benjamin Waugh. Cassell & Co., Limited.

BIBLE WOMEN AND NURSES.

THE record of the London Bible and Domestic Female Mission is in every respect full of living interest. The Mission employs no fewer than 150 Bible-women and seventy nurses in all parts of the Metropolis, under the guidance of 160 lady superintendents. Moreover, forty-one Bible-women and two nurses are engaged, under the auspices of the Mission, in similar work abroad. Several admirable institutions, including a Training Home for young servants, and a Convalescent Home, are affiliated to the work, which is described month by month by sympathetic pens in the pages of Bible Women and Nurses. (Cassell & Co.) This magazine is rendered specially attractive from the fact that the articles are frequently brightened with illustrations of London as it was in days long gone by.

The work of the Mission is beyond all praise. It proceeds so silently that many friends of Christian benevolence are quite ignorant of its operations. Yet, in Bible Women and Nurses, Mrs. Selfe Leonard, the hon. secretary and general superintendent, who has some devoted helpers, affords ample evidence of the deep and wide-spread influence of the Mission. The Bible-woman, by house to house visitation, is brought face to face with each family in her district. Her office is to instruct the ignorant as to the better life; she is, moreover, a true friend of the people, inviting them to meetings, as well as putting the Word of God within their reach. The nurses who work by their side are also earnest Christian women, and they endeavour, in all patience, to benefit the poor and comfort the infirm. Mrs. Leonard, describing this type of labourer for God, says: "A larger share of patience must she possess than those who work in the well-regulated hospital, where cleanliness and order reign. She must be of good physique, and able to stand exposure to all weathers. She must be above no kindly office; and she requires great tact and persuasive power in dealing with the people."

The nurses are a blessing to many mothers in trying times, and their daily attention has given many young children a start on the road to good health. They teach undomesticated women how to prepare wholesome food, and drive home their verbal lessons by consistent practice. It is well that the Gospel message and loving care for the sick should thus go hand in hand. Generous friends enable the workers to help some of the poor by providing them with clothes and other comforts, and altogether the Mission promotes a gracious and very needful ministry.

Writing of the nursing work, Mrs. Leonard says: "Vast strides have been made during the last few years in all that concerns the nursing of the sick. We endeavour to keep au courant with all that is done by others, and we rejoice to know that there is no nursing institution in London, caring for the sick poor in their own homes, that sends out its nurses on their districts better provided than our own."

The central office of this excellent Mission, which is affiliated to the British and Foreign Bible Society, is 2, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, W.C.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XX.—THE DAYS OF NOAH.

1 Peter iii. 20.

It would be unwise to load these columns, where space is so precious, with laboured references to the various and conflicting interpretations which have been put upon this difficult and much-debated passage. It appears better, after much studying of them, to take the words as they stand, and seek to set forth in clear outlines the thought which seems to have been in the Apostle's mind; so far at least as the present writer conceives of it. The main idea is of course a comparison between the experiences of our Lord and those of his suffering followers. The sacred writer was striving to the utmost to sustain and comfort them under the severe stress of persecution through which they were passing. "Take heart," he seems to say, "your sufferings are not exceptional; they run in the Divine family; even our Master was not exempt from them; He also suffered in the flesh; but his sufferings did not stay his blessed ministry; nay, they even augmented his sphere of usefulness; "He was quickened in spirit," in which also He went forth to herald his accomplished work in regions to which, but for death, He had not obtained access. So shall it also be with you. Your sufferings shall not clip your wings, but add to your powers of flight. The things which happen to you shall fall out rather to the furtherance of the Gospel; and it is through death that you must pass up to share his glorious resurrection and imperial power.

I. An Historical Fact.—"Quickened in spirit, in which also He went and preached unto the spirits in prison, which aforetime were disobedient, when the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah."

In one of Isaiah's most splendid passages, the king of Babylon, having fallen at last before that mightier monarch who comes with equal foot to the hut of the peasant and the palace of the king, is depicted as a thin, pale ghost entering the abodes of the departed. And as he comes the shades of the kings of the nations and chief of the peoples stir themselves, and with thin voices accost him in tones of withering sarcasm: "Art thou also become weak as we? Art thou become like unto us? Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms?"

But surely the abodes of the departed were stirred after another fashion when the Son of God, having welcomed the dying thief to Paradise, refused to rest there after the strain of his long conflict and agony, but started forth to spend the brief interval until his resurrection in proclaiming with herald voice the wondrous news of accomplished redemption. This is surely the emphatic teaching, not of this passage only, but also of that marvellous announcement of the Apostle Paul in the Epistle to the Ephesians: "He descended into the lower parts of the earth," a phrase which was constantly used among the Jews for the nethermost abyss, the unseen Hadean world, the abode of the departed. On such testimony as this, the Church in all ages has affirmed, He descended into Hell (the word Hell, of course, standing, as it does so often on the page of Scripture, for Hades). We do not know the full burden of our Master's message there. It is not declared, and all our surmisings must fall short of the reality. All that we need to notice is that the word employed of his ministry is carefully chosen, and only includes the work of a herald, as distinguished from that of an evangelist.

It may be asked why He preached only to those who were disobedient in the days of Noah? Why were his messages confined to these? Were there not many more who had been disobedient at other periods of the world's sad story? But none of these are excluded. The sacred writer does not say that the Lord addressed no others, but that He certainly addressed these. And our attention is thus focussed on them, because it was his desire to guide our thoughts to a comparison, already forming in his mind, and casting its shadow over his words, and which would draw lessons from the days of Noah for our own.

Are we then to think that these spirits had another chance, and swarmed, as the mediæval artists loved to depict, in rejoicing crowds after Christ into Paradise. There is nothing of this sort in these words. And it is a mistake to trust exclusively to inference in a case so utterly removed from human cognisance and experience. We shall know soon. The Bible turns our thought from speculation about the future to life in the living present. "What is that to thee? follow thou Me."

All that we need to concern ourselves with now is this fragment which Peter has handed down to us from the posthumous sayings of Christ, when He taught them for forty days, and "spoke to them of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God." We must clearly understand that Christ's death did not stop his usefulness, but that He ministered still, just as Joseph, when cut off from his duties in the palace, ministered to his fellow-prisoners, proclaiming to one his deliverance, and to another his doom.

(2) A Confession.—The story of the Flood seems to have made a great impression on the mind and heart of the Apostle, and the event is constantly on his lips (2 Peter ii. 5, iii. 5, 6, and 7). And here he follows closely on the words of his Master, who compared the days of Noah with those of the Son of Man.

We need not stay to describe in detail the days which were before the Flood, or the condition of the old world. Its course was precisely similar to that of the world around us still. "They ate, they drank, they married, and were given in marriage." The arts and sciences were richly cultivated. Gigantic engineering and architectural works must have abounded, or it would have been impossible to construct such a marvellous vessel as the ark. Refinement and civilisation, side by side with abnormal and horrid crimes. The giddy pursuit of pleasure; the eager search for wealth; the lawless gratification of evil propensity; the reckless disregard of the claims of God; the rush of the torrent of evil and unholiness in spite of the remonstrances and pleadings of the grey-headed preacher for a hundred years. All these are what we see to-day around us in confused and grievous manifestation.

And there is as little need to describe the new world into which Noah and his children stepped down from the mountain slopes on which their ark grounded. How delicious the balmy air, the green grass carpeting the ground, the luxuriant growth of vegetation from the soil enriched and fructified by the alluvial deposit of the waters! It was a world from which sin, and crime, and evil, had been purged, and Creation seemed already to anticipate the vision of the seer: "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea."

But surely that old world is very significant of the old life into which we are born by nature; and that new world of the new life into which we enter in regeneration. And the Flood of water, through which Noah passed from the old into the new, bearing him onwards on its broad and swelling bosom, from evil and familiar scenes into new and ecstatic surroundings, is a type of the blessed experience of which the Epistles so often speak; when believers through faith in Jesus pass out of the old life of selfishness and death, into the glorious new life of resurrection blessedness; when they sit with Christ in the Heavenlies; when they reckon themselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God; sharing the spirit of the Saviour's death, and of his resurrection; at such times they may be said to repeat the experience of the patriarch, when he passed from the old world into the new.

The early Church was accustomed to set forth this spiritual experience by the outward act of immersion in water. Believers who had avowed their desire to pass from their previous life of sin into the blessed life of fellowship with the risen Saviour were buried under water in the likeness of his death, and were lifted again above the water in the likeness of his resurrection. The water in the pool or river might thus be compared to the waters of Noah's Flood, because through each there was a passage from the old to the new, just as in the grave of Jesus there was a passage from the more limited life of the flesh into the freer life of the Spirit. "Though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we Him no more. Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." Baptism, then, has no sacramental efficacy. It does not cleanse away any stains of filth contracted by the spirit. The early believer left the water as he entered it, with this difference only, that he suffered no longer from an evil conscience, but had the verdict and comfort of "a good conscience," looking up clear-eyed and glad into the face of God. There are no trifles in the kingdom of God. And the obedience to a mere outward rite may make a world of difference between the uneasiness of an evil conscience and the answer of a good one.

III. An Analogy.—We have now seen three facts. First, that Christ's sufferings did not hinder his heralding his finished work. Second, that He heralded it to the spirits who in Noah's day were disobedient. Third, that we are like Noah, and Christ, too, in having passed through the waters of death; not the death of the body, but the death of the spirit to its former tastes and delights, because it has entered so fully into the meaning of Christ's death, and into participation with his new life.

What then? Since we have entered into this new and blessed life, are we to be indifferent to those who belong to the old world and life from which we profess to have passed away? Nay, that cannot be; the very metaphors on which we have been dwelling exclude such a thought, and banish it into the limbo of ghosts. In the light of these analogies it cannot be tolerated for a moment.

Of course it would have made the analogy more complete if it had stood on record that Noah, after the Flood, had continued preaching to his old companions. But that could not have happened. Yet the same purpose was served, though with a slight change in the person of the herald. For Jesus, whose death and burial were symbolised in the Flood, of whom Noah was a type, and with whose death we are identified, went to these self-same spirits, and spake with them. It was equivalent to Noah going; nay, it was better. Certainly the spirit of Noah's ministry was fully realised in that of his great Antitype.

Judging then by analogy, if by nothing else, it becomes us to herald the tidings of the cross to the old companions of our former life. Let us, as it were, go back to them across the waters of the death-flood, not to live again in that world which we have abjured, but to fulfil some office to those who have been left behind, and who, in this case, have a further opportunity of embracing the Gospel message, and crossing with us into the true life which we proclaim.

Yes, and even their persecution of us should not hinder our efforts for their salvation. Indeed, we shall probably discover that our very sufferings will loose our tongues and enlarge our opportunities. In the stocks we may so sing praise that the prisoners may hear. In Cæsar's house, our bonds for Christ will be manifest in all the palace. In our martyrdoms we shall light fires which shall flame up over the world, and shall never be put out.

Noah's Flood makes us think, not only of that symbolic death which is as much the theme of Rom. vi. as of this passage, but of that literal death, which these believers had to face in the form of martyrdom, and which, unless the Lord come first, we too must experience. But in whatever form death comes to the believer, whether in the acts of daily self-denial, or in the definite abjuring of some form of evil, or in the dissolution of this natural body, it may be met calmly and joyfully, because it is always followed by resurrection.

Through death we follow our Master's steps, which lead to the upland lawns through the valley of the shadow of death. Let us fix our constant gaze on his resurrection, which is a type of ours also, as He takes his place on the right hand of God, "having gone into heaven, angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto Him." We shall share that power only in proportion as we are willing to share his death.

MARIENHAUS, WIESBADEN, conducted by Pastor and Mrs. Ziemendorff, finds its work in various spheres. Four ladies have already associated themselves as deaconesses, and carry on Sunday-school and visitation work, including the nursing of the sick. Other operations will be embarked upon, as God may give blessing and dispose his servants to help.

CAPE GENERAL MISSION.—In the second "Quarterly Letter," issued by Mr. Spencer Walton, the following details are given of the locale of the workers:—"Mr. D. Kidd has gone with Mr. Michael Coates to the Orange River Railway Extension for a few weeks, to give the latter, our youngest Missionary, a good start; they are doing a real work, both among coloured and white people. Mr. Malcomson, whose destination will eventually be the Gold Fields, has gone for a few months to Wimberg, in the Orange Free State. God is owning his quiet, steady, plodding work wherever he goes. Mr. Walklett is fairly established in the Kimberley compounds at last, and doing a good work among the dark heathen. Mr. Jackson, the Railway Mission representative, is working his way back to Cape Town from the Eastern province. He is doing a most blessed work among the railway employés. Miss Wright starts from Kimberley on a mission tour as far as Natal. She has been doing good service at Kimberley, and has had some very real conversions there."

With the Brough Nurses.

IN one of the late Lord Beaconsfield's novels an advice to this effect is given: "Keep your eye on Paisley." Whatever may have been in the writer's mind when he penned these words, this is certain, that there are many labours of love carried on in Paisley which deserve the attention of all who are earnestly grappling with "the sins and sorrows" of our large towns. Among these, the work done by the Brough Nurses deserves honourable mention. They are four in number, and dwell together in an institution which is situated at 7, George-street. The superintendent is Miss Mackay, a lady of ripe Christian experience, sound judgment, and great tact.

One of them is detailed for special work in the local infirmary, among those who as convalescents leave that admirably managed Institution. The others, the superintendent included, are employed in visiting in the town. Cases are brought under their notice by the missionaries and Bible-women, who are held bound by the Brough trustees to visit regularly all the poor families of the town. These trustees are seven in number, and to them is committed the administration of the large sum of about £140,000, which was bequeathed for educational, charitable, and religious objects by Mr. Peter Brough, who died in Paisley a few years ago. One of these objects is thus set forth in his will:—

> My trustees shall apply annually six hundred pounds of said income in employing and paying such number as they may judge proper of qualified females (or of males when they deem it expedient), who shall devote their whole time to the visiting, consoling, and comforting of afflicted Christians, and to the reading to them of the Bible (see Matt. xxv. 36: "I was sick, and ye visited Me")...My trustees may from this fund, should they deem it expedient, make distribution of coals and clothing to persons recommended by the visitors before referred to.

It is in the carrying out of these instructions that the Brough nurses are employed, and the sum spent last year on and through them and their coadjutors, the missionaries and Bible-women, amounted to £858. Full reports as to the work done by all employed under this scheme are regularly handed in to the trustees, who are assisted in the practical oversight and management of it by a committee of seven ladies. These reports are very thoroughly considered by the trustees, and every care is taken by them that the real objects of the testator are carried out.

The nurses are not allowed to assist the sick poor with money, unless in very exceptional circumstances, as there is in the town an efficient "Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor"; but they are expected to see that their patients have proper nourishment and sufficient clothing; they also can employ women to clean and keep comfortable the houses in which the sick poor are found, and also to wait night and day upon lonely patients, who, without their help, would be dependent upon neighbours for occasional visits.

In their daily round of duties they go through a great variety of work, as may be learned from the following facts in the report for 1889:—

> On the books at the beginning of the year, 51; reported during the year, 356; received the use of air beds, iron stretchers, &c., 111; died, 77; on the books at the close of the year, 61; total number of visits by the nurses, 5809. Attendance was given on 41 cases of consumption, 17 of bronchitis, 13 of paralysis, 10 of abscesses, 8 of cancer, 7 of spine disease, &c., while the largest proportion of those visited suffer simply from age and debility. In connection with the infirmary work 386 received clothing.

Whilst all these people are being regularly ministered to by the missionaries or Bible-women, they also have their spiritual interests looked after by the nurses, all of whom are earnest Christian workers. The results of their labours are very gratifying, and this is not to be wondered at since they prove themselves friends indeed because friends in need. They enter a home where hearts are softened by affliction, and, as they manifest a kindness which all can appreciate, they get a ready ear to the story of redeeming love. Many conversions have taken place under their quiet yet telling ministry, and they can now point to happy homes which were scenes of riot and debauchery when they began to visit. Often, too, they come upon devoted Christians who have been reduced to great straits through misfortune and affliction, and these have their tenderest care.

An illustrative case of this kind may fittingly close this brief notice of a most useful and Christlike Mission. The Superintendent, some months ago, climbed the rickety stairs of an old thatched house in a poor part of the town, and, on knocking at the door to which she had been directed, heard from within the words, feebly uttered, as by one in great pain, "turn the key." On entering the low attic-room, she saw an aged woman, lying on some straw spread on the floor. She was suffering from cancer and rheumatism. She had not always been so destitute as she now was, having for long years kept a gentleman's house. On his death, her reverses began, as she was getting old and had no relatives. Lower and lower she sank as disease crept upon her, and now she was in her extremity, which she had been told was God's opportunity. She had been for years a decided Christian, having been led to the Lord through earnest searching of the Word, to which she went on being awakened by a neighbour putting to her the direct question, Are you saved? but her faith had been greatly tried by the privations through which she had passed. Sunshine, however, came to her, when the Brough nurse entered her room; and now she lies in a comfortable bed, whilst her room is tidy, and in it Christian friends gather to sing the hymns she loves and pray with her. Two of these are her own spiritual children, who were led to decide for Christ by her faithful words, backed as these were by her whole manner, which beautifully illustrates, from day to day, that suggestive saying of Paul, in his old age, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

GOSPORT SEAMEN'S MISSION.

THE thirty-sixth anniversary of the Portsmouth and Gosport Seamen's Mission was recently held. Major-General Stirling presided, and briefly spoke. Those who braved the storm and attended the meeting were amply repaid by the stirring news that Mr. Cook and his helpers had to tell.

The most important branches of the Mission are: a Bethel, situated in South-street, Gosport, where the poor of the town are gathered week by week to hear the Gospel; a Resort for Watermen and Fishermen, who frequent the locality known as the Beach. The work that seems to be the most important is that carried on by the two Gospel ships, Mystery and Herald of Mercy. For the past nine years Mr. Cook has visited many of the French seaports. The people eagerly flock on board wherever the Mission vessel puts in. One outcome of these visits is the Mission House and Hall in Trouville, opened in August last. It was hoped that it would be opened free of debt, but there is still about £250 to be raised.

Mrs. Deane Browne, who nobly helped Mr. Cook last year, testified at the annual meeting to the good the Mission is doing at Trouville and in other places on the coast of France. This work needs the prayerful and hearty sympathy of all Christians.

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.—A monthly prayer-meeting has been established, under the auspices of the Christian Union for the Severance of the Connection of the British Empire with the Opium Traffic. The meetings are held on the first Wednesday in each month, from twelve to one o'clock, at the Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N. Dr. Maxwell, 104, Petherton-road, N., is hon. secretary of the Union.

Sketches from Life.

THE STONE-MASON.

A PLEASANT afternoon for a walk. Which way shall I go? Master, guide where Thou hast need of me. The answer seemed clear: to go down with some sheet almanacs to a certain wayside inn, and back by the Potteries. Thus provided, I set out.

A more timid, nervous person, by nature, than I, it would be difficult to find; but the Lord has lately been teaching me that his strength can be made perfect in weakness; that when I am weak, then am I strong. Praying Him to prepare the way, and give me words to speak, I felt my courage rise.

Two men standing near the public-house accepted tracts, and I then made for the door, and knocked. I asked for the landlady, and after a few minutes a young woman came down. Unfolding the almanac, I pointed out the "royal invitation," and told her I wanted it put up where the men could see it. I went on to speak of the everlasting life beyond: would it not be well, if, even here, some might read the message of God's love, believe, and be saved? She willingly agreed to put it in the parlour adjoining the bar. After a little more personal talk about Jesus, who not only is our Saviour from sin and eternal death, but our living, present Friend, I left.

Arrived at the Potteries, I inquired for the foreman. Not seeing him at first, I gave the almanac to a young clerk at the office, telling him it was my wish that it should be placed in the shed where the workmen had their dinner. While I was giving a few tracts to the men, I came upon the foreman himself, and explained my errand.

"Oh, yes, I shall be glad to; it was what I was thinking of and wanting; much obliged to you."

Full of thankfulness, I went on my way. Just before reaching the village, I noticed a stone-mason at work. I handed him a small book, asking him to accept it, if not too busy. The old man came forward with alacrity, and said: "About Jesus? Yes, indeed I will, and wish there were more about Him. He is worth it. Why, He's everything; not only Saviour, mind you, but High Priest, Friend, King, everything—substitution, intercession, sanctification—isn't it glorious? and then there's all that's to come!" So we spoke together of the riches laid up for us in Christ, and of the present knowledge of them, imparted by the Holy Spirit through the Word.

The dear old man seemed brimming over with joy as he related the goodness of the Lord to him, and went on to tell me about a mission work that he had just commenced in a district some two miles off. "To think, miss, that it's only the last fortnight I've begun to speak for Him, now in my seventy-sixth year. It was all by accident, like. I could not sit under the new minister where I'd always been, for it wasn't the Gospel he preached. So I went to a place where they don't mind about names, but just "Jesus only." Someone asked me to speak a few words, and I did, and afterwards the people all came about me, and I felt 'twas wonderful. To think of its being a talent, like, lying buried all these years! So we've opened a mission-room, away where there's no church or chapel within a mile, and a lot of people come, all poor people. I wish, miss, you'd come and speak to them some Sunday afternoon; why, if it's one soul saved, think what that is for all eternity."

True, dear Christian brother, and I love the poor; for did not my Lord choose his earthly friends from amongst them. I have promised to go some Sunday across the heather hills, if the Master sends me; and my old friend and I both think He will. H.

Teachers are much wanted in the Sunday-school of St. James' Ragged School, Notting Hill. Address—Miss E. F. Powell, 5, Notting Hill-square, Campden-hill, W.

ABOUT A SPANISH PEASANT.

FRANCISCO GUTIERREZ, a simple peasant of the south of Spain, was converted through reading the Word of God in 1870. In the early days of his Christian life his zeal was an all-devouring one. He was a man of the Book, early and late, anywhere, everywhere, he was preaching the glorious old, but to him new, Gospel, till people told him that the book was turning him mad. Those who knew him at that time say that his denunciations of sin and of the system of the Church of Rome were terrible; people fled from them and from the preacher, shutting themselves up in their houses.

Of course such a John the Baptist was soon persecuted, and was brought before governors, both civil and ecclesiastical, for Christ's sake. None of these things moved him; fearlessly he held on his way, and God upheld and blessed him. Of the few who followed him in those dark days some turned back to Rome, while others were afraid to confess him. Thus it came to pass that one Sunday morning, Francisco found himself all alone in the little room in which he had been wont to preach the Gospel. Opening door and windows he preached to an empty room with all the force of his powerful voice, "If they won't hear inside," he said "they shall hear outside." This would appear to have been a turning point in his life, for ever afterwards men and women gained courage to come to the front and were converted.

Thus amid storm and persecution was founded a true Church in his native town of Tznatoraf, on the slopes of the Sierra Nevada. To-day, in the largest room of Francisco's house, forty souls meet every Lord's day to worship God in spirit and in truth. As the direct and indirect effect of his labours, there exist in his native province five other little groups of Christians, who speak of Francisco as their "father in God." It is said that one hundred souls have been led to Jesus through him.

At the beginning of 1888 this good man experienced a failure of health, and, in the hope of prolonging his life, he was induced to leave his mountain home and seek new strength on the warmer plains. This was not however, the Father's will. August last found him once more at home, very ill, and, though he rallied a little and paid one more pastoral visit to an out-lying congregation, his public service was over. At this time he said to a Christian brother, "When I am taken I hope that my friends Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will be with me." God arranged that it should be so. The good man was suffering from that most painful complaint, cancer, but he grew daily in grace; and humility, gentleness, and love, shone out more and more. A few of the members of the church were assembled in his room. They were praising the Lord, for no one doubted that glory was soon to be the eternal inheritance of their brother, when the dying man said in a loud voice, "I am saved, I am saved." These were his last words; there was a short time of suffering, and Francisco Gutierrez fell asleep in the Lord. The text for the day was Heb. xii. 22-24. Next day his remains were laid in a new Protestant cemetery and many of his townsfolk heard at the side of the open grave that Gospel which had been to our brother "the power of God unto salvation." The message was not spoken in vain "We have been deceived," they said (by the priests), "what the Protestants preach is the truth."

As to the work at Tznatoraf, God has provided for it. For some time Juan Tavera, whose Christian wife is a Swiss, is the unpaid pastor. This Spanish brother is an out and out Christian. God has placed at his side an elder of tried faith and considerable experience. We expect to see God's blessing in this place increasing, for is it not written "Their works do follow them?" L. B. ARMSTRONG.

Linares, Spain.

CHINESE IN AUSTRALIA.

BEING on a visit at Ballarat, in Victoria, lately, I went with some friends to a meeting, one Friday evening, for Chinamen, at the small Chinese Mission Church in Ballarat East. A Christian lady, the president of the Women's Prayer Union at Ballarat, takes a very great interest in the Chinese, and helps the native Chinese minister in conducting this meeting every Friday. She also gives the Chinese a tea sometimes. Though a very wet evening, there were about thirty Chinamen present. Hymn books, with some of Mr. Sankey's hymns translated into Chinese, were distributed. The Chinamen sang heartily. One hymn was "Rock of Ages, cleft for me." Nine other Chinamen prayed earnestly in Chinese, one after another. There were no long pauses and tedious waiting for one another, as is often the case in our white people's meetings—they just seemed to pour out their souls in prayer to God.

Mrs. M—— prayed in English, and read a portion from the Bible; then I was asked to tell them something of the mission work I had seen in South Africa. One of the two native Chinese ministers translated my words into Chinese. The other prayed in English. We shook hands with many of these dear Christian Chinamen afterwards. One old Chinaman was introduced to us who had been an opium smoker for twenty-five years; but had not touched it for the last six months. Those who know what a terrible disease opium eating becomes after a few years or less, will understand that only the grace of God could have accomplished this.

I well remember visiting a Chinese town between Scaredale and Ballarat a few years ago with a friend, who at the time conducted a fortnightly service for the English wives of the Chinamen at Sleddon. We visited the houses first to invite the women to the meeting. One young English woman was an opium eater; her face looked white and bloodless, her hair thin and gray, and her teeth decayed. She told us, in a tone of utter despair, that it was no use asking her to come to the meeting; she had become too confirmed an opium eater to be able to give it up now; but she told us to try and reach the younger women, who had not yet become confirmed opium eaters—there was still hope for them, but for her it was too late—and she herself tried to persuade them to come in. She seemed to have not the slightest doubt that she could not receive the Gospel unless she was willing to give up opium. And though she so far yielded to our entreaties as to be present in our meeting, not one ray of hope seemed to illuminate her poor, prematurely aged features.

Her white hopeless face haunts me still. Surely one of the proofs, as noticed not long ago in THE CHRISTIAN, of the awful consequences following our sin as a nation in having forced opium upon the Chinese. One who has worked in the Chinese opium-dens in Little Bourke-street, Melbourne, trying to rescue young English girls who are found in such numbers there, told us a few days ago that he has seen English girls as young as ten years of age in these opium dens. He also mentioned that, thank God, the Salvation Army has been able to rescue several of these. Shall we not—all God's children—plead with God in prayer, and use all the means in our power to seek to abolish this awful opium traffic.

E. S. H. R.

LADS OF PENTONVILLE HILL.—The "Red, White, and Blue" Christian Institute, of Cumming-street, Pentonville road, N., is open every night except Wednesday for lads over fourteen. The immediate object is to provide for the recreation and education of many who would otherwise be on the streets; and, beyond this, efforts are made to influence the young for their highest good. The work has grown so much of late that the accomodation has had to be increased. At the present time additional helpers are urgently needed, and the superintendent, Mr. E. W. Dresser, will be glad to hear from gentlemen willing to give one or two evenings a week.

Some Scottish Missions.—XIV.

Another branch of the work of the Glasgow United Evangelistic Association among the very poorest is the

HOMES FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN,

at Saltcoats, commenced in the beginning of 1876, when Canal Bank House was leased for this purpose. Here forty children are accommodated, and seven years later Rockvale House was purchased to take in as many more.

Saltcoats is a small sea-coast town about thirty miles from Glasgow, and as all the children come from that city, a thorough break is made in their young lives. They are drawn from the very lowest stratum of society, many of the parents belonging to the criminal class; indeed, so low are they that comparatively few of their parents ever inquire for them until they think they are old or capable enough to be of some monetary value. Then they would if they could drag them back again to the haunts of vice; and become their worst foes who should be their friends.

When once they arrive at Saltcoats, everything is done to give the atmosphere of a real home. There are not so many in either house as to cause any child to lose its individuality. The children are not clothed uniformly, so are not pointed at as a reminder that they are objects of charity; and they are sent out to the Board school to mix with other children. The cleanliness, regularity, &c., warm clothing, and good food have a wonderful effect in regard to their health. Only four children have died in the Institution since its commencement, and in each case the disease had been contracted previous to admission.

VISITS FROM THE DOCTOR

are, happily, events of very rare occurrence.

Boys are not admitted above eight years of age, nor girls above ten; and, as most received are under these years, and all are kept until they are fourteen years of age, the "turnover" is not so great as in some Institutions, but the results are very satisfactory; and the day-school teachers bear testimony to the high position which these children take in their classes, and to their general good conduct.

This is a pleasing tribute to the energy and tact of Mr. John Galloway, a Glasgow merchant, to whose care the Homes have all along been entrusted.

Of the eighty children who are within the walls of the Institution, not above five or six need be there, but for the ravages of strong drink. Here, as in every other department of philanthropic effort, it is the drink fiend and his horrible work which have to be faced and grappled with; and the loud wail which is rising throughout our land from desolate homes, from helpless women, and still more helpless children, appeals to every Christian heart that no exertion should be spared to put down this dreadful evil. The dens of sin and misery out of which these children are rescued are sometimes terrible, and what they have to endure is heartrending. It was but lately that a little boy was rescued from a drunken mother, who had placed him upon the fire, and was in the act of pouring paraffin oil over him, when the neighbours, attracted by his screams, rushed into the house and rescued him. Another minute, and he would have been

ENVELOPED IN FLAMES.

On several occasions, children have been received so utterly emaciated that onlookers thought they were being received only to die within a few days; and yet in almost every such case they have, by the blessing of God, pulled through, and become strong and healthy. Did space admit many stories could be told of the terrible sufferings through which these little ones have passed, and of the utter hopelessness of their case, humanly speaking, but for the arms which such institutions stretch out to save.

Although in every suitable way the comfort of the inmates is considered, strict economy is practised. There is in each "Home" a matron and one servant girl, assisted by the older children who do as much house work as possible, so as to prepare them for the positions they are afterwards to fill. To each house a large garden is attached, where potatoes and kitchen vegetables are grown, nearly sufficient to supply the year's wants of the inmates. Friends are kind in giving cast-off clothes, which, by a tailoress and dressmaker, are made into suitable garments for the children. At the annual Christmas tree most useful presents of hats, mufflers, shawls, &c., are supplied. By these means the actual outlay of money is restricted; but even with all this taken into account it will be admitted that when to feed, house, educate, and superintend, the small sum of is all that is required, great care must be exercised; and this result is achieved at no expense of either the comfort or the health of the children.

£8 PER HEAD PER ANNUM

But yet, whilst their temporal welfare is thus looked after, the chief aim is to lead them to the Saviour. By means of daily Bible lessons, Sabbath-schools, weekly Bible-classes, and personal dealing it is sought to bring them to the Lord Jesus, and these means have been graciously owned in many cases. The minister of the church where they attend takes a special interest in them. At both diets of worship on the Sabbath a part of the service is devoted to the children, on each occasion a little sermon being preached to them; and it is very gratifying to find after they have gone out into the world, the seed thus sown springing up to everlasting life.

One of the most interesting phases of the work is the "following up" of those who leave the Homes for the active duties of life. With these a connection is, as far as possible, maintained by letters, and, when possible, by visits. No old inmate, who through illness or other misfortune is reduced to poverty, is ever allowed to want. So much of their wages as are not required for necessaries is brought to the managing director, who lodges it in the savings bank for them; and in this way about £300 belonging to those who have thus been rescued, is laid by against a rainy day.

In Glasgow there are many similar institutions, perhaps more for its population than in any other city in the kingdom, no fewer than 4050 children being cared for in the same way as is done by the Saltcoats Homes; and the consequence of so many candidates for prison being rescued is happily apparent in the large decrease of juvenile crime in the city during recent years. Let all who know what the sunshine is that children bring to their homes, think of the foul dens where little ones, as tender as any who are near and dear to them, are being reared, help in the great work of rescue being carried on, and thus remove the barriers which are preventing them from coming to Him whose great heart of love is going out towards them; and whose voice ought to be ringing in our ears, saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not."

G. E. M.

[I have been in correspondence with Rev. Dr. Lowe (the secretary of the Edinburgh Medical Missionary Society) upon the subject of my article on the home work of that excellent agency, and of the "correction" which subsequently appeared. In the former I named Dr. Handyside as the founder and promoter of the Cowgate Medical Mission; the latter attributed the honour to Dr. Burns Thomson. Dr. Lowe informs me that the first statement was correct, and supplies me with the following facts, along with extracts from printed official papers and reports, which ought to set the question at rest.

On November 25, 1853, Dr. Handyside opened the Main Point Mission Dispensary, the first Home Medical Mission of which we have any record. In the spring of 1858, Dr. Handyside secured the unexpired lease of a whisky-shop, 39, Cowgate, and at Whitsunday the same year removed the Main Point Mission Dispensary to "dear old 39." Mr. John M. Hunter was the first resident assistant. His period of service extended from the date of the opening till May 31, 1859, when Mr. Lowe, though still a student, took his place, and resided in the dispensary during June and July. At the commencement of the winter session, 1859-60, eighteen months after the "old whisky-shop" had been transformed into a Medical Mission Dispensary, Dr. Burns Thomson accepted the appointment, and entered upon his duties as "superintendent and dispenser." The following extracts from the first two annual reports of the Cowgate Medical Mission confirm the above dates. The first is dated June 10, 1858: "At the new premises there will be a resident assistant and dispenser, and a corps of suitably qualified young men (there were then five medical missionary students) under the superintendence of Dr. Handyside. The institution offers a school of instruction and of training to the medical missionary student in both departments of his future work. It thus assumes even higher importance than could be attached to it as a mere local charity."

The report from which the following extract is taken is dated November 25, 1859:—"It is with great satisfaction the Committee now report that, after much consideration, they have recently appointed Mr. Burns Thomson as superintendent and resident dispenser...an office which they and many friends of the Medical Mission Dispensary have long desired to see well filled. It would be ungrateful and unjust to Dr. Handyside, who may well be regarded as not only the founder, but the great support of the dispensary, if the committee failed here to record their sense of his devoted and unwearied services during this trying season (the vacancy) and at all times. To his great efforts and zeal it is owing that the Institution has been preserved, and that the interesting experiment connected with it (the training of medical missionary students) has been prosecuted to what they now regard as a successful issue, full of promise."—G. E. M.]

RAINHAM, ESSEX.—A commodious mission-hall was opened here on Friday last. Only a few years ago, evangelists could only deliver their message in the open air. A warm-hearted Christian and his wife taking a farm in the neighbourhood, real earnest Gospel work was begun. A small iron room was put up, and the preaching of Christ crucified was attended by much blessing. The new hall will allow of considerable development of the work. Hearty meetings were held on the day of opening, addresses being delivered by Messrs. C. Inglis, G. Hucklesy, E. Glenny, C. Cook, and others. On Sunday, Mr. J. Crofton Rainey commenced a sixteen days' mission. There have been some interesting cases of sinners finding pardon.

COASTGUARDS.—The comparatively lonely and isolated life of the coastguards stationed round our shores has led to a wish in the hearts of some Christian workers to supply them with a monthly packet of Christian periodicals, tracts, &c., supplemented by an occasional letter. Some work of this kind is being carried on in various localities, and it is now proposed to put all the individual work done in England, Scotland, and Wales, among the coastguards, on a properly organised plan, so as to avoid supplying some stations with duplicate magazines, and altogether overlooking others. Miss Jackson, Valetta, Coombe-road, Weston-super-Mare, has undertaken the secretaryship of this Mission, and she would be glad to hear from all who are working amongst the coastguards in England, Scotland, and Wales, if they will kindly favour her with the names and addresses of the men to whom they send monthly packets.

WESLEYAN EAST-END MISSION.

THE operations of the Wesleyan East-end Mission, of which Rev. Peter Thompson is the superintendent, are extending at a very encouraging pace. The need is very great, the sad state of things being by no means exaggerated in the "Record of Work" for last year, just issued. In these deeply interesting pages we read: "It seems to us that this East-end is getting poorer and poorer. Those who remove from us are the better classes, and there is drifting into it, constantly, all that is most vile and wretched. Crowded as we are, it seems as though we were getting more crowded. Many get blessed, and, their lot being improved, they leave us; we cannot but rejoice on their account, though we regret to lose them."

The Mission has now five important centres:—St. George's Chapel, Cable-street; Paddy's Goose, Shadwell; Spitalfields Chapel, Brick-lane; The Old Mahogany Bar, Wellclose-square; and Stepney Temple, Commercial-road—besides the Old Gravel-lane School in Chandler-street. During the past four years over £10,000 has been received for the purchase and alteration of properties, and for social work. The workers are now largely free for concentrated effort upon the various agencies, all of them directed to raising the fallen and awakening them to a sense of their spiritual degradation and need. The drink demon is fought vigorously, and the children are looked after with a view to their being influenced for good.

Of the work at the Old Mahogany Bar, the "Record" says: "We have peculiar joy in our work here, and in its results. Our position is very difficult. We feel that we are attacking the very stronghold of sin, and where Satan's sway is scarcely disputed. The life around is unspeakably horrible. The conflict is fierce, and the war will be long and trying; yet already we rejoice in the earnest of victory. It is not often that a meeting passes without one or more coming out to find Christ."

The Medical Mission, under the superintendence of Dr. and Mrs. White, has made a good beginning. Visitors connected with this agency have found easy access to rooms to which no Christian worker had previously been admitted, and in some cases several families in one and the same house have been brought under Christian influence. Dr. White says: "The large majority of cases I attend are in a state of great poverty. When illness overtakes them, they have no reserve fund on which to fall back, and recovery is well nigh impossible unless assistance is given them."

Preventive and rescue work has of late been pressed upon the attention of the Mission workers. Not having any night shelter or refuge of its own, the Mission has sent some cases into the country, and others have been got into Homes. Summarising the year's experience, Mr. Thompson says: "The growth of our work has been surprising. It has been the year of hardest toil and also of greatest blessing. The four Workers' Houses are now full, and in order to provide for the Medical Mission staff, as well as for additional workers, we have rented a large house in Leman-street, very conveniently situated. With the continued help of those who have steadily supported us and the vigorous efforts of fresh workers, we are adjusting our plans to the extended demand, and securing such combination of effort as will produce the best and most permanent results."

MAJOR AND MRS. EVERED POOLE have been conducting a Gospel Temperance Mission at Sidcup. Much interest was awakened in behalf of the movement. One of the meetings was in connection with the Children's Scripture Readers' Union, and another had reference to the subject of social purity.

"TO COMFORT ALL THAT MOURN."

BY MRS. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

IN the gayest city in the world, and perhaps the most ungodly, there exists an effort to meet men and women at the moment when they are most ready to receive serious impressions with a message of compassion and mercy from God. A venerable saint, now nearing the close of a long life-pilgrimage, founded, eight or nine years ago, this Mission to Mourners in Paris. M. le Pasteur Armand Delille, no longer able actively to conduct its operations himself, is assisted in the "Œuvre des Affligés" by a singularly suitable and highly gifted coadjutor, a converted Israelite, M. Hirsch. The president of the little committee that directs the work has lately been called up higher, and passed unexpectedly and prematurely from unbelieving Paris to the blessed paradise of God—the great and gifted preacher, Eugène Bersier. But the well-known Théodore Monod is still secretary of the Mission, and its true and spiritual character may be judged from that fact.

It has been said, with only too much truth of the mass of the Parisians, that their principal religion is like the Chinese, a worship of the dead. The cemeteries attract the thousands who never enter the door of a church. Many who think they have quite done with all religion feel, as they approach "God's acre," there to deposit the dear dust of some departed friend, a yearning desire to believe something, someone, to cling to any hope, to listen to any voice that tells of immortality, and promises reunion.

The lady that pays a daily visit to the grave of her only child suddenly taken from her by diphtheria, and who has been drawn by her yearning after some comforter into the little chapel at the cemetery gate, has gone hence with the bitterness all left behind, softly saying amid submissive tears, "I shall go to him, but he will not return to me." The young girl whose noble lover had been killed in a railway accident, learning in the same spot of the love of God in Christ, has received consolation; and, though the broken heart could not be healed, has died trusting and rejoicing in Jesus. The young infidel has asked for Christian burial through influences brought to bear on him at his free-thinking father's funeral. From the grave-side to the darkened home the evangelist easily finds his way, and relations formed in the hour of grief often prove permanent and influential for life.

It is a Christlike work, "to comfort those that mourn," and an agency peculiarly useful in Paris and other Godless French towns. The little chapels open for hours every day at Saint Ouen and Pautin, the large Parisian cemeteries just outside the fortifications, confront crowds of sorrowing relatives with softened hearts; and we should wish God-speed to the dear labourers in this work. It is an inexpensive one, but half the income needed to sustain it has to come from England. We think it a pity the friends conducting it should have to leave it and come on a collecting tour to this country to gather this sum. So we have ventured to remind those English friends who sympathise with the "Œuvre des Affligés" that the time is come when it again needs their help, and to intimate that we will gladly forward anything sent to our care.

A little notice of the year's work with balance sheet has been issued, and can be had on application to Harley House, Bow, E. There ought to be similar Gospel halls outside all the Parisian cemeteries, to seize the one opportunity when even worldly, infidel hearts may be moved to think, not only of death, but of that which comes "after death—the judgment."

Y.W.C.A.—The seven days, commencing on Sunday next, are to be observed in connection with the Y.W.C.A. as the annual week of prayer on behalf of young women all over the world. In many of the associations throughout the country special missions are to be held during the week.

LOVE'S DESPAIR AND HOPE.

LOVE'S DESPAIR.

O HELPLESS, hopeless hands of human love,
How sadly stretch ye forth into the air;
How vainly seek, in passion of despair,
For your Beloved's sake the world to move!
O thou with alien anguish pained andpressed,
O yearning heart, prepared to ache or bleed,
To weep, to suffer, or to break at need,
If so the soul thou lovest might be blessed,
In vain, in vain! Weak as a babe's weak hand,
Thine wrestles with the fateful force of life,
Most impotent to help; upon the sand
It writes the record of a hopeless strife.
To suffer only strong, too weak to bless,
Love's heart must break from its own helplessness.

LOVE'S HOPE.

And yet, O God, Thou sittest, strong to save,
Above the fever of our saddest fears,
Above the anguish of our bitt'rest tears.
Above the strife, above the stormy wave.
Stronger than our weak love, O God, is thine!
We love with all we are, but cannot bless;
Thou lovest with thy whole Almightiness,
With pity and with power alike divine.
O Tenderness Omnipotent! we rest
Our longing and our love upon thy heart,
Our wishes and our weakness on thy breast;
And will not, dare not, fear, because Thou art.
Ye weeping souls, look up from your despair,
Love's heart need never break, for GOD is there.

FLORENCE MEDICAL MISSION.

THE annual report of the Florence Medical Mission is cheerful in tone and encouraging in contents. Reformation is assuredly dawning in Italy; although dark clouds cover the sky, there is light behind them. In the meantime, by means of medical missions, the people are being taught something of the true spirit of Christian life and work. Dr. Paggi's accession to the Mission has been a source of great increase in the number of members, as he is well-known and highly esteemed as a physician and surgeon.

The premises, 6 bis, Piazza Cavour, having for some time been too small, the managers contemplated the erection of a more commodious building. The property in the neighbourhood belongs to the Anglo-Italian bank, the authorities of which have, we rejoice to say, undertaken to provide the needful premises and let them to the Mission. The contract of tenancy distinctly states the object and use of the new building, which will, all being well, be opened in the spring.

The affiliated Mission at San Frediano has had its cares and joys, and the same may be said of that at San Gallo. At the latter place, a man went into the hospital for an operation, and begged that the Mission workers would visit him there. A lady gave him a New Testament, which he not only studied himself, but read to the other patients. The attendants could not but remark the man's earnest disposition, and his serious attention to the spiritual needs of his fellows in affliction.

One day, one of the doctors, addressing a monk, said: "There is no need for you to go into that ward; one of the patients is doing your work better than you can." A nun went to remonstrate with him, but all she could get was:—"We are all men and women in the sight of God; I do not think that the dress makes any difference." She said: "Then you do not believe that you are commanded to respect those who are put in authority over you?" The poor fellow put his hand under his pillow, drew forth his beloved Testament, and said, "Oh, yes, I do; but...I am not learned...I cannot argue these points; but this book, lady, will tell you all about it."

For the Young.

POOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

GOOD children cannot but rejoice to hear of acts of kindness to the poor and needy. They should be specially pleased to learn that weary mothers and their neglected little ones are made glad by Christian workers. Much in this line is done in the East-end of London, where there are so many women and children who live hard and cheerless lives. Mr. C. L. Boyer, from America, who has for years been engaged in befriending "drift" children—little ones who have but slight care bestowed upon them—hunts up poor boys and girls, and, after telling them something of Him who was "once a babe in Bethlehem," sees that they are made happy with food or toys, sometimes with both.

On Wednesday last week, in the schoolroom of Blackthorn-street Chapel, Bow Common, E., there was a tea-party which was attended by 170 poor women and 80 babies. Miss Mason, of the House of Rest, Kilburn, delivered a kindly address. Just afterwards about 150 children were gathered in the chapel; they sang several hymns right joyously, and were told of God's love and the salvation which is open to all in Christ. It was sad to witness the condition of many of the children—with dirty faces, without shoes or stockings, and with very ragged clothes. The little talks being over, each child received a large slice of hot plum-pudding, kindly provided by Mr. Simeon Clayton, a friend who lives quite near.

Blackthorn-street Chapel is in the midst of a very poor neighbourhood. The missionary, Mr. T. J. Hazzard, finds a great difference between his present squalid surroundings and the beautiful county of Wilts., which he left in order to come to East London. He is a devoted labourer for God, and it is gratifying to know that some generous Christian people have recently come to his aid. Two or three friends have arranged for the appointment of a Bible-woman to visit the homes of the people. God has been blessing the work. Loving children might well pray that very many of the mothers and little ones, as well as others who live in the crowded district, may be led to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

A MOTHER'S PRAYERS.

Not long since, in a large American city, a young man, shabbily dressed, and whose face showed marks of dissipation, went into a testimony meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association. As one after another of the young men arose and spoke a few words for Jesus and what He had done for them, this young man sat with the tears rolling down his face, listening earnestly to every word. Just before the meeting closed he arose and told his story—the story of so many young men who come to the city and get into bad company. After he had given a true account of his wanderings from the ways of right-doing, he said, "But to-night, when I was going into a place of resort where I have spent many Sunday nights, something seemed to take hold of me and pull me back. I thought of my mother, and I knew that at that very time she was praying for me. She wrote me that she always prayed for me in her little bedroom at that time—a special hour of prayer for me. I could see that little room in the old farmhouse away up in the Vermont hills so plain; could see my dear mother on her knees; and her face looked so careworn, so sad, that I said, 'By God's help I will begin to-night to try to get back to the path of peace.'"

The Christian young men gathered around their weaker brother; they prayed for him and with him; they looked after him during the week; they found a situation for him where the influences would be helpful; and to-day there is no more consistent, earnest worker in their Association than that very young man. When the mother, who had not heard from that son for weeks, received his penitent letter, with the story of his sudden change of purpose, she exclaimed, "It was the very time that I was pleading with God for him!" and she wrote back, "My dear child, at that very hour I was praying for you. I had prayed for a long time, but I felt sure that the mother's prayer of faith would be answered."

Do not give up praying, good mothers. You may not see the results of your prayers now, but God answers prayer in his own good time and way, therefore be patient, faithful, and believing. Our duty is to offer the prayer of faith—the results are with God. What we cannot do for our children, He can do and He will.
—American Messenger.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Feb. 2, Matt. v. 33—48; Mon., Feb. 3, Matt. vi. 1—18; Tues., Feb. 4, Matt. vi. 19—34; Wed., Feb. 5, Matt. vii. 1—14; Thurs., Feb. 6, Matt. vii. 15—29; Fri., Feb. 7, Matt. viii. 1—17; Sat., Feb. 6, Matt. viii. 18—34.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.—An eight days' mission has been held by Mr. Hutchinson in the Corn Exchange, Ross, Herefordshire. The Lord has been pleased to bless it to many little ones, who have listened most eagerly, day after day, to the ardent words of the missioner, who so earnestly invited them to become "Little friends of Jesus." Our older friends, of all denominations, have also found a blessing, it being the means of bringing many to decide for Christ; those who were Christians have been helped and encouraged to trust Jesus more, and have felt something of the joy of the fellowship of saints.

E. B.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Market Rasen, to Jan. 31; Lincoln, Feb. 1, 2,; Bircham Newton, King's Lynn, Feb. 3, 4; South Creake, Feb. 5; Wickham Brook, Feb. 6; Stansfield, Feb. 7; Mr. Alfred Armitage, St. John's, Chelsea, to Feb. 1; Tewin, Feb. 4—6; Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Hanbury-st. School, Whitechapel, Feb. 4—7.

SOLDIERS' HOME AND MISSION-ROOM.—Mr. F. Adie, in the last report of his work, says he is always well received by the men in the barrack-rooms and hospital. The soldiers greatly need Christian sympathy, and they are prompt in recognising it. Recently, in a country newspaper, Mr. F. L. Hill, late sergeant-major 4th Hussars, wrote: "I was over twenty-seven years in the army, and never knew a Home so homely and spiritual as the Norwich Home." Mr. Adie (whose address is Lollard's-pit, Norwich) continues his labours among the poor in the neighbourhood of the barracks, and God has blessed his endeavour all round. Gospel tracts and books are much needed at the present time.

SOUTHSEA MISSION.—During last year the many agencies of this well-known Mission were conducted with vigour and encouragement. The Gospel Tent on Southsea Common was, during the summer months, the scene of meetings at which thousands heard the message of salvation set forth with plainness and point. Gospel preaching and efforts in aid of the poor are still carried on in the Mission-hall in King-street and the Army and Navy Institute. Open-air work and house-to-house visitation are other means of reaching the people. Mr. John Denning, the superintendent, also directs two Bible-carriages, which are engaged in work full of interest. Mr. Denning's address is, "Ebenezer," Saxe-Weimar-road, Albert-road, Southsea.

MISSIONARY STUDENTS.—Many have doubted seriously whether schools of theology did not withdraw young men from the work of the ministry proper. It has been thought that what we are apt to call the habits of the cloister were formed in the seminary, and that young men did not gain the habit of "touching elbows" with those with whom they are marching in life. The Union Theological Seminary in the city of New York has met the difficulty in a most practical way. Every student who is on any one of the "beneficiary funds" of the seminary is required to give his service in ministry, or in mission work connected with the evangelising of a great city. Dr. Schauffler has taken the superintendence of this work, and speaks highly of its value.

AN EVENING MEDITATION.

OH should this be of days the day,
Time's solemn evening hour, for me:
Earth's clouded sunset heralding
The dawning of eternity;
Review my soul, the priceless hours:
What hast thou done with all thy powers?

Ah! what indeed that dares to live
Beneath an atmosphere so high?
Ah! what indeed that fails to shrink
Beneath the Master's searching eye?
Review, my soul, the misspent hours:
What hast thou done with all thy powers?

Ah! what indeed for Him who lived,
And died, and rose again, for me?
What deed of love attests my love
To Him, who anguished on the tree?
Review, my soul, th' entrusted hours:
What hast thou done with all thy powers?

Ah! what indeed of holy thought:
A bud that bore the heavenly dew
What opening flower of high desire
That did not languish ere it grew?
Review the sad, unfruitful hours
What hast thou done with all thy powers?

Ah! what indeed one soul to warn
From dark temptation's precipice?
Ah! what to snatch one diadem
For Jesus' crown from earth's abyss?
Rehearse, my soul, the useless hours:
What hast thou done with all thy powers?

Master! I search, alas! in vain,
Nought, nought is worthy of thy look!
For all is marred by sin's dark stain!
Oh cleanse from thy remembrance-book
The failure of these barren hours:
Henceforth for Thee be all my powers!

F. C.

THE DISASTROUS GALES.

THE wild storms of the past few days have strewn our shores with wreckage, and many a brave sailor has found a watery grave. Thank God, the number has been greatly lessened by the noble service rendered by our lifeboats. During the gale last Sunday week a large full-rigged ship was wrecked on the North Devon coast. In response to signals of distress the Braunton and Appledore lifeboats were quickly manned and launched. Making for the wreck, the Appledore boat came near enough for her crew to see the poor fellows on the wreck, but the seas were so heavy that she could not get close enough to take them off, and after several attempts the lifeboat was driven ashore with all her oars broken. Meanwhile the Braunton boat, manned by Appledore men, had succeeded in reaching the wreck and rescuing part of the crew, and, after landing them, returned for the rest; thus the captain and the whole of the crew, numbering thirty-one, were saved.

The people of Appledore vied with each other in showing the poor fellows every kindness. On Monday afternoon they were entertained at the Seamen's Christian Friend Society's Sailors' Rest, and after tea an impressive Gospel service was held. The poor fellows seemed deeply grateful for the interest taken in them. On the following day Mr. and Mrs. Blakeney entertained the crews of both lifeboats to tea at the Sailors' Rest, and this also was followed with a hearty service.

A report appeared in many of the daily papers last week, that the London Samaritan Society's new Convalescent Home at Sandgate had been damaged by the terrible gales and high tides. Happily no damage has been done, but to secure the future safety of the building it will be necessary to erect a groyne on the beach, and to underpin the sea-wall, at a cost of about £250. The friends of this good work will doubtless enable the Society to meet this inevitable, but unlooked for expense.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER XI.

HOUSEKEEPING AND HOME LIFE.

In June, 1874, Isabella was married to Rev. James A. Simpson, who for several years had laboured as missionary in the district, and was now the ordained pastor of the mission congregation, known by the name of the ancient street on which it stands as Bonnethill Free Church. Passing from the charge of one minister's house to another made little difference in her position and work. Her passion for perfection in all the details of housekeeping was no less manifest in her new home than in her old one. Nor was she without difficulties and trials...Her husband's health became a serious care. A dangerous throat complaint and other maladies more than once threatened to cut short his life. These events brought into full play her skill as a nurse; her resources as a housewife; her staying powers in the endurance of sleepless watchings and exhausting fatigues: and, above all, her self-sacrificing love and tenderness. Very joyfully did she sacrifice not only her ease but her health also to save her husband's. The less work he was able to do, the more she did; without leaving the proper sphere of woman, she became his assistant in the ministry. In all her labours she was born up by a bounding enthusiasm of love and cheerfulness.

A minister's house is a Christian hostelry, and the mistress of it has no easy task to perform. Evangelists, missionaries, ministers assisting in Communion services, pastors out collecting, brethren passing through, and others engaged in the Lord's work, must receive hospitality. In the olden times the people shared with the pastor in the duty and privilege of entertaining strangers. Too frequently the only hospitality dispensed nowadays in the mansions of our wealthy communicants consists of sumptuous dinners, fashionable entertainments, with more grandeur than grace; where silver and self shine with equal lustre, and only they are invited who can appear in purple and fine linen; while the real guest, according to Christ's rule of hospitality, is absent. When a humble evangelist, or other servant of God, engaged in the work for which Jesus died, needs a two or three weeks' bed and board, he must go to the minister's house; though in many a case that means household difficulty and debt. "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests," and the rich Christians have splendid mansions; but the lowly servant of Christ is sometimes at a loss where to lay his head.

In her hospitality Isabella Macpherson was generous to a fault. Her joy in showing kindness on the one hand, and her dread of debt on the other, sometimes led to a severe pinching of herself in respect of very legitimate wants. But a fuller wardrobe or a richer diet for herself would have been to her a poor substitute for the happiness she found in giving away what she had, and in making others glad. Now it was a minister, or an evangelist, or a pastor from some poor country charge raising money to clear away debt from church or manse; again it was a company of students plodding on in their rugged way to the ministry, in whose eyes, grateful as they were for a little warm, genuine kindness, she seemed to be the greatest and best of women. Such was her enthusiasm in attending to her guests that many a time her health suffered severely; but it was all for love of God and souls.

Perhaps she was never happier than when dispensing aid to her pensioners, of whom her friends thought she was apt to have too many. A case of real need always touched her heart, and often commanded her last shilling. And here, kind reader, let me whisper this into your ear: her generosity went far down the scale of being; for all the strayed and starving cats of the locality knew her door, and she had joy in making glad the suffering and homeless of God's forsaken creatures. As she did not leave her religion at the church gate, so she did not draw the line of her sympathies at human-kind. She loved God's "poor beasties," and like her ancestor of Culloden she took them in; for she could not forget that she was herself but a pensioner on the divine bounty, and that her own Lord was once homeless and poor. She knew that in dealing with human suffering nothing on earth goes further for good than a little warm sympathy, the one real salve for a thousand wounds. Despite all that is said about man's ingratitude, there is nothing that pays better than kindness. The pain and sorrow assuaged is a good return. The happiness produced is a rich harvest. The kindly feelings evoked is like a hundred per cent.; and the door thus opened to the healing influences of the Gospel is a glorious reward.

But that was not all her home service. She cherished a passion for thoroughness in housekeeping, for perfectness in all the laborious details of cleanliness and comfort. To her this was real Christian work. To see her busy in kitchen and scullery, the fellow-servant of her servant, you would never dream that all this enthusiasm about the "many littles" that "make the meikle" of domestic comfort could possibly leave room for hard missionary work. This zeal in things material and earthly seems to be utterly inconsistent with hunting for souls. This crusade against the infinitesimal beginnings of dustiness and dirt, one might imagine, would leave neither time nor strength for the difficult task of cleansing some house in the district of its moral filthiness, or of guiding a poor fallen one to the fountain of cleansing.

To see her in the slums, standing in dens where sitting is impossible or unsafe, kneeling by fever beds, pleading with drunkards, arguing with infidels, comforting the broken in heart, showing the way of salvation to the ignorant, appealing to careless sinners with tears, meeting with scorn and cursing with serenity and tenderness, standing by the street preacher on a dark and stormy winter night, or marching down the slushy street amidst showers of sleet with the spoils of victory, souls captured from the devil—you would little imagine that early morn had seen her cleaning and cooking; that noon still found her rubbing and mending; and only when a hard day's domestic work had been gone through did she reckon herself free as one of Christ's volunteers to try her hand at the hardest of all tasks, doing good to them that hate good, and seeking to save those who are bent on ruin. To her the field was one and undivided: she served her Master as heartily on the one side of it as on the other. She went about her spiritual work in a natural way, and her earthly toils were wrought with a heavenly motive. From the one set of things she passed to the other by a single step: it was only going out of one room of the house into another. When busy on Saturday nights cooking the Sabbath dinner, in which she took some pride and much pains, she invariably retired in the midst of this work to pray for the busy student then immersed in his pulpit preparations. Her heart relieved of this burden, she would return singing to her labours in the kitchen.

By putting herself alongside of her servants, she won their affection, and in several instances was instrumental in their conversion. To many a Christian lady, a round of household work would be a means of grace and health, and would increase their usefulness and joy. There are thousands of gifted women who sincerely desire to do some real work for God, but they cannot find their hands. Their moral fibre is relaxed in the lap of luxury; their spiritual talent is tied up in the napkin of ease. Possessing money, leisure, knowledge, and the kind heart, they lack only the rude health, the nerve to "rough it." Now, this they could acquire by hard, menial work at home; self-denying exercise in the house is the best training for joyful, self-sacrificing work on the mission-field. This home work, too, serves to complete and round the character of Christian workers—it broadens their sympathies; renders them more natural; checks the tendency to spiritual pride arising from much work in public; and saves from a narrow religiosity and a morbid pietism, so unlike Christ in the breadth of his humanness and the realness of his life.

* This deeply interesting and stimulating life history is now ready in book form; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards and gilt edges, for presentation, 3s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.

[110]

Gathered Gold.

DAILY BREAD.

WHEN means hold out, it is easy to be content. Who cannot pray for his daily bread when he hath it in his cupboard? But when our own provision fails us, then not to distrust the provision of God is a noble trial of faith.—Bishop Hall.

LIFE'S SUNSET.

It is sweet to see a Christian die; it is the noblest thing on earth—the dismissal of a saint from his labours to his reward. The glory of the setting sun is not to be compared with the heavenly coruscations which illumine the soul as it fades from the organs of bodily sense, and is ushered into the glorious presence of the Lord.—C. H. Spurgeon.

DIVINE LOVE.

God doth deserve our love, not only by his matchless excellency and beauty, but by his matchless love to us, and that is the strongest loadstone of love. "He hath loved me," saith the Apostle (Gal. ii. 20). How appears that? In no less than this, "He hath given Himself for me." Certainly, then, there is no clearer character of our love than this, to give ourselves to Him who hath so loved us, and given Himself for us.—Archbishop Leighton.

DAY BY DAY.

"His allowance was a continual allowance given him of the king, a daily rate for every day, all the days of his life" (2 Kings xxv. 30).

Charge not thyself with the weight of a year,
Child of the Master, faithful and dear—
Choose not the cross for the coming week;
For that is more than He bids thee seek.

Bend not thine arms for to-morrow's load;
Thou may'st leave that to thy gracious God.
Daily, only, He saith to thee,
"Take up thy cross and follow Me."

Anon.

CREED AND CONDUCT.

It is the fashion nowadays to stigmatise the "Evangelical School" as very narrow; but whatever may be the fault or foible of individual teachers, it is easy to show that the evangelical doctrine, or doctrine of grace, has yielded better fruit in human lives and has developed bigger and more heroic souls than any latitudinarian school of thought has ever been able to produce.—Dr. Donald Fraser.

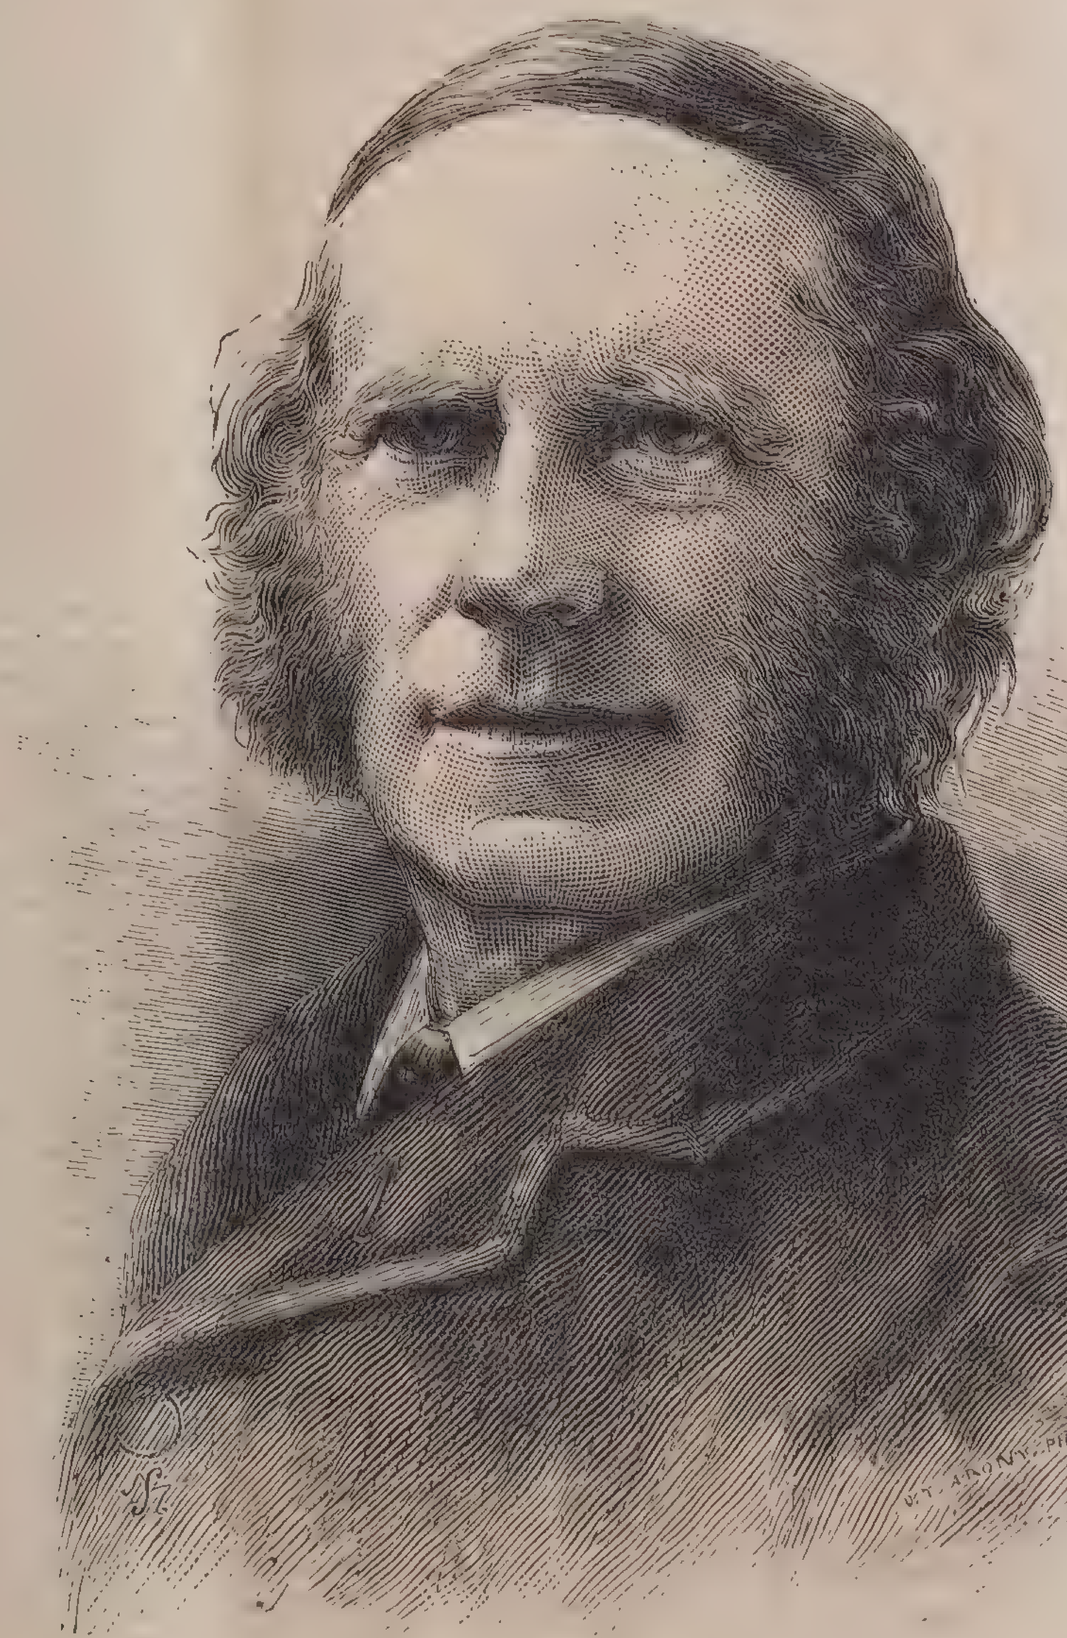
SELF-DISESTEEM.

Amongst other holy counsels which thou must observe, remember well this: Look not upon other men's faults, but thine own....Perfect resignation is attained by remembering that God permits grievances to fall upon us, to humble and annihilate us and to make us live wholly resigned. Hold it for a true maxim, that nobody can do a grievance or injury to a soul despised by itself, and one that is nothing in its own account. Never be disquieted by any accident, for inquietude is the door by which the enemy gets into the soul to rob it of its peace.—Michael de Molinos.

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.,

Pastor of Brooklyn Tabernacle.

WE have heard of discussions as to the relative influence of the pulpit and the press. The two spheres of operation are so markedly distinct that comparisons of that sort seem to us not only invidious but unjust. But when the one becomes the handmaid of the other, the potential capacity of each for good is vastly enlarged. The history of the world, we suppose, does not afford a more notable illustration of this than the ministerial career of the famous Brooklyn preacher whose portrait we give to-day. His pulpit, beyond doubt, has the largest sounding board of any in Christendom. According to the most recent estimate, his discourses (which are heard on delivery by 5000 to 6000 people) are now published regularly in 3000 periodicals, circulating in America, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, France, Sweden Norway, and other countries, to the number of some thirty million copies weekly. The man who can secure and retain a congregation of such gigantic dimensions, must possess unique gifts for catching the popular ear and impressing the public mind.



DR. DE WITT TALMAGE is now verging on three score, having been born in January, 1832. His birthplace was Bound Brook, in the seaboard State of New Jersey. He was the youngest of eleven children, four of whom became preachers of the Gospel. He has described his parents as the most consecrated persons he ever knew. They were, in truth, living epistles of that Saviour whose claims and attractions they did not neglect to impress on their offspring. Their youngest son, in several of his sermons, has spoken in terms of touching tenderness and filial love of both father and mother. All the children, as they grew up, made public profession of the faith of their parents, and became active in Christian work.

During the early years of his education, the subject of our sketch was inclined to follow the legal profession, and made some steps in that direction; had he carried out this intent, he must certainly have become an illustrious advocate. In the good providence of God, and in answer to many maternal prayers, he set aside the practice of the law for the preaching of the Gospel; we cannot suppose he has ever been tempted to regret the exchange. Having graduated at New York University, he passed on to the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, where he completed his mental equipment for the Presbyterian ministry. His first settlement was in the village of Belleville in his native State. Three years afterwards he responded to a call from the wider sphere of Syracuse in the adjoining State of New York, where he also laboured for the space of three years with abundant tokens of present success and of future promise. It seems to be a principle, almost as fixed in its action as the law of natural gravitation, that the large cities attract preachers of outstanding gifts of speech. Rightly enough: their special talents can there be used to the highest advantage. Philadelphia was only one of many places that wanted the young pastor of Syracuse; but the City of Brotherly Love prevailed, and for seven years Mr. Talmage filled the pulpit and the pews of the "Second Reformed Church" in the Quaker Capital. By that time his fame as an eloquent and effective speaker was pretty well established, and to his labours in the pulpit he added those of a successful platform lecturer. Growing pulpit renown, of course, brought plenty of tempting invitations to change his sphere of service, but for seven years he abode in Philadelphia, testifying to rich and poor of the Gospel of repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ; at the same time lifting up his voice, far and near, on behalf of social and national righteousness.

At the end of those seven years three calls came to him almost simultaneously from places so far removed as Chicago, San Francisco, and Brooklyn. The Central Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn had sadly declined in numbers, and the young pastor elected to go northwards and step into the breach. Events have evidently justified the step, for he has remained in the City of Churches for nearly twenty-one years, and has long since reached the topmost pinnacle of pulpit fame. If increasing congregations are a true criterion of success, he may be said to have been on the up-grade all those years. His congregation has burst its bounds by expansion four times. The well-nigh empty church was soon filled, and had to be enlarged. Then came the building of the first Brooklyn Tabernacle, which, after a couple of years, had also to be enlarged so much as almost to constitute it a fresh structure. Not many months after the enlargement, the building was burnt to the ground. From its ashes rose the spacious Tabernacle, seating 5000 persons, which has been the scene of Dr. Talmage's prosperous ministry for nearly seventeen years, and which in its turn was consumed by the flames last October. The origin of that catastrophe remains, to a very great extent, shrouded in mystery, but it is generally understood that the subtle electric fluid was the incendiary agent; whether it came from the clouds or along some of the wires used for illuminating purposes in the church, will probably never be discovered.

It would seem to be a serious matter for a pastor and his flock to be thus suddenly and ruthlessly evicted from their corporate house and home. To a man of Dr. Talmage's elastic and vivacious temperament, however, such a visitation appears to have few terrors. Another and a still bigger tabernacle is now in course of erection. The Pastor has issued an appeal for help in this unavoidable enterprise, from the readers of his sermons all over the world, and no doubt many of them will want to possess a brick in the new building. Meanwhile Dr. Talmage with his wife and daughter have been utilising the interregnum by paying a visit to the Holy Land, from which they returned to England in the early part of last week. The day after their arrival in London a member of our staff called at that most comfortable of modern hostelries, the Hôtel Métropole, Northumberland Avenue, to ascertain how the party had enjoyed their visit to the East, and to ask some questions about plans for the future.

Our representative was fortunate enough to find the object of his quest, apparently quite recovered from the influenza. The genial Doctor cordially received him and readily imparted the desired information, which was briefly to the following effect:—

"I had announced to my congregation (said Dr. Talmage) the Sunday before the fire, that I was going to Palestine for purposes connected with a book I am preparing on 'The Life of Christ.' I wished to be properly certified on the topography of the Holy Land and on other points. When the Tabernacle was destroyed I gave up all idea of carrying out my projected tour. Within a week, however, we had selected another site, and laid all our plans for a new church. The congregation told me that if I was ever to go, now was the time, and therefore we started. Now that we have returned I can say that we have had a most delightful time; during our entire journey through France, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Palestine, and Syria, we have only had one half day of storm, and that was as we were crossing the shoulder of Mount Hermon.

"My experiences in the Holy Land have been to me a strong confirmation of my views of the Bible. Henceforth it will be to me another book, mightier and more real. The scenery and the social life of Palestine and Syria are really a commentary upon the Scriptures. It is the richest land in the world. There is such a large amount of stone throughout the land that one wonders how the people can raise such crops in many parts. But the rock is mostly limestone, and it is the pulverising and melting of this rock into the soil that gives it such richness of quality."

The incident reported in the papers, of a baptism in the Jordan, was confirmed by Dr. Talmage. "A gentleman desired to be baptized, and he asked a gentleman of our party whether I would baptize him. I said that if he were a proper candidate I had no objection to do so. I ascertained that he was, and, as there was much water there, there was no reason why we should not baptize. I wore the robe of the Arab sheikh who had charge of our party, and the gentleman wore the robe of another Arab. I led him down into the water and baptized him. Quite a congregation assembled—Englishmen, Americans, Arabs, and other nationalities. Those of us who understood English sang the classic hymn: 'On Jordan's stormy banks I stand.'"

After this little bit of realistic recital, a question was asked as to the probable return of the Jews to their own land. The Doctor replied that there had been large purchases of land, and numbers of Jews had settled there. As to the final and complete settlement of the country, he had no doubt, but what the nationality would be he would not take it on himself to say. He expressed his regret that he had been unable to carry out his engagement to preach in London and other places. All the party were in perfect health till they reached Vienna on the return journey. There Mrs. Talmage was attacked by the influenza, and it also got hold of himself in a milder form. His doctor advised that it would not be wise for him to speak in public. They were returning immediately to America—sailing by the Cunard s.s. Aurania.

In the course of conversation Dr. Talmage said that the new Tabernacle will be so arranged as to accommodate 7000 hearers. The main auditorium will contain 5000. Rooms are being erected for prayer-meetings and lectures that will seat another 2000; these are being constructed so that they can be partitioned off by sliding doors when necessary, and yet form part of the church for the Sunday services. The site is about a mile from the old one. The congregation have largely moved further "up town" and the new site will be more central.

The Doctor made sympathetic inquiries after Mr. Spurgeon, Dr. Parker, &c., and as to the state of religious movements generally in this country. Having learned from him that the complete MS. of his volume on "The Life of Christ" must be in the printer's hands in Philadelphia in March next, and that it will probably be published on this side the Atlantic, our reporter bade him a grateful adieu.

It will be seen that Dr. Talmage is active with pen as well as voice. It is quite a common custom in America for leading ministers to find a place on the literary staffs of religious and other newspapers. Dr. Talmage has had an ample share in that kind of work, for which his shrewd, incisive style of diction well qualifies him. For some time he has been contributing to The New York Observer a series of clever notes on all sorts of themes under the caption of "Sparks from the Anvil." But he shines chiefly as the popular preacher. He seems rather to pride himself on eschewing points of theological and doctrinal controversy; and confines himself very much in his discourses to the simple statement, in general terms, of the blessings of the Gospel, and its operative influence on daily life. To the enforcement of these he calls in the aid of an extraordinary gift of verbal rhetoric and a play of imagination that are almost bewildering to the old-fashioned reader. Much travel and observation in many lands have enabled him to lay up a rich store of illustrative facts, culled from the moods and aspects of nature, and the play of passion or affection in social life. To show that his preaching meets with approbation from his own flock, it is only necessary to say that he has a church membership of 4500, who are reported to be active in all kinds of good and philanthropic work.

Doubtless, like other men, he has his weaknesses and idiosyncrasies, but it does not enter into our purpose to magnify them. A London daily paper has rather flippantly accused him of seeing every subject through the medium of his own personality; the same might be said of every public man who goes out of the beaten track in his methods of speech. We think it is matter of satisfaction that his unique gifts in this direction are devoted to the highest ends.

The day before he sailed for his home, he had the privilege of paying, by special invitation, a visit to Mr. Gladstone, at Hawarden. Such a fraternal interchange of courtesies is an indication of the good feeling that exists, and we trust will ever exist, between Old England and her daughter across the sea. The go-aheadism and daring of youth, tempered by the caution and wise conservatism of age, ought to accomplish great things in moulding and directing the character and conduct of the English-speaking races.

DR. PENTECOST IN SCOTLAND.

(From a Correspondent.)

This honoured evangelist commenced work at Broughty Ferry, on Sabbath, Dec. 13. For months past a little band of Christians had been pleading, as one said, "Not for drops, but showers of blessing." Now, at the close of the mission, we can thankfully testify that the Lord has "caused to come down...the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain," upon the dry ground.

Bible readings were arranged for in St. Luke's Free Church, which were fairly well attended and much appreciated. Dr. Pentecost took for these afternoon addresses, "the Shepherd Psalm" (xxiii.), and drew from it many precious and comforting lessons.

The evangelistic meetings have been held throughout in the West Free Church (Rev. G. E. Troup), and have always been preceded by a short prayer-meeting, conducted by Dr. Pentecost himself. From the first day blessing was given, and the hearts of believers were raised in joyful praise, as one and another presented thanksgiving for souls saved.

Dr. Pentecost's method of conducting an after-meeting has indeed had the Lord's seal of approval, and many have risen to testify their allegiance to the Lord Jesus. He deals with the heart and conscience; bringing his hearers face to face with God's word, he has made it convict or comfort. It has been remarked that where the blessing has been given it has come to prepared hearts. Though there have been cases of immediate conversion, for the most part those have accepted Christ with whom the Spirit had been previously dealing, and who needed some such opportunity as this to step out into blessing and decision for Christ.

Some touching incidents may be noted. A poor woman, who had been ensnared through strong drink, was found under deep conviction of sin, and could get no rest. She was enabled to trust Jesus, and now prays in her helplessness for the almighty power of her Saviour, to keep her from falling. The old man, whose case aroused so much interest in Dundee, was present at one of the services, showing by his personal appearance his change for the better.

A gentleman, who had always been regarded as an earnest Christian, was enabled to accept Christ fully, and now "rejoices with joy unspeakable." He has been so blessed in his testimony to others. In some cases whole households have been blessed, night after night, seeing the conversion of one or more of its members. Husbands and wives have been united in Christ; sons and daughters have been doubly given to their parents, as alive from the dead. The many thanksgivings that have been offered testify to the yearnings of hearts fulfilled in the salvation of their relatives and friends.

Dr. Pentecost has received many grateful acknowledgments of the blessing that has attended his appeals to Christians. One aged saint, who had travelled fifty miles to be present at the services, went away filled with joy and peace through believing, and refreshed in soul. Dr. Pentecost has left us for Greenock, and carries with him the heartfelt prayers of Broughty Ferry Christians that even "greater things than these" may follow the preaching of the word there.

THE EVANGELICAL SOCIETY OF FRANCE continues to report cheering fruit of labours in various parts of the country. Specially interesting reports have been received from Yonne, where several Romanist families have during recent months come over to Protestantism. The people are poor, and the priests have been attempting to buy their consciences. An artisan wrote to one of the agents: "I do work for Catholic families; when it came to their knowledge that I was attending your meetings, they refused to employ me any more, and there are six of us in family." Pasteur H. Mouron is the secretary and director, the office of the Society being 76, Rue d'Assas, Paris.

Letter to the Editor.

AN OBJECTION TO JEWISH MISSIONS."

DEAR SIR,—Allow me, as briefly as possible, to ply to Mr. Tait. He thinks a distinction must made between Jews and Israel. He reminds us at the former name came into use at the return om the captivity, and he assumes (and this is of e utmost importance to his argument) that the me was used with genealogical accuracy, and at all who have ever since borne the name of w are children of Judah.

But the mere use of the name is no evidence of is. We all in this land are called English, that Angles, but we are not all children of Angles, t of Saxons, and Jutes, and Danes, and Scots, d Normans; and all we know is that the Angles re sufficiently influential at one time to furnish ame for all the people of the land, and that the me has clung to us.

We shall find it was so with Judah and Israel; d the new name was not unworthy to be borne, ing the name of the tribe chosen by God to be e royal head of the tribes of Israel. At the me time it may be noticed that the people called ws have never, to this day, accepted the name w as their proper designation: they are "Hewews, Israelites, seed of Abraham."

Mr. Tait further asks whether the kingdom of rael did not cease at the captivity of Samaria, d again assumes that the kingdom of Jeroboam d his successors was the very kingdom of Israel, d the heir of the promises.

But, when we examine the records, we find that e sons of David were ever kings of Israel ehoshaphat is so called, 2 Chron. xxi. 2), and mong their subjects were men of all the tribes i. 13-16, xv. 9). And, after the kingdom of maria was destroyed, they exercised authority er what remained of the ten tribes—we read of phraim, Manasseh, Issachar, Zebulun, and Asher, the days of Hezekiah (xxx.), and of Manasseh, phraim, Simeon, and Naphtali, in the days of siah (xxxiv.)—and their subjects are called rael. "All Israel" (xxxv. 3). "All the children Israel" (xxxi. 1).

The prophets Hosea and Amos foretold the final struction of the northern kingdom, but gave no romise of any restoration, except in the union of l the tribes under the line of David (Hosea i. 11, . 5; Amos ix. 11). Isaiah, and the other prophets, ho were sent to Judah and Jerusalem, continually e the name Israel of the people to whom they ere sent.

Coming to the history of the return from capvity we find a proclamation addressed to "the eople of the God of heaven," sent forth by a king ho ruled over all the lands to which the various ibes of Israel had been carried captive, and in sponse to this proclamation a remnant returned the land of Canaan; and in 1 Chron. ix. we have census of the new colony. "In Jerusalem dwelt the children of Judah, and of the children of enjamin, and of the children of Ephraim and anasseh," and there were also many of the tribe Levi. Here we have the principal tribes represnted, and these are the people whom the Gentiles en began to call by the name of Jews.

Zechariah, who lived after the return, speaks of e "brotherhood of Israel and Judah" then existg, and we may infer that the old tribal jealousies d then quite disappeared. The prophet foreells that this brotherhood would be broken up if e people rejected the Good Shepherd, and we now that all this took place, and it is with the attered fragments of this brotherhood that we e now concerned.

It is superfluous to point out passages in the ew Testament in which the names "Israel" and he Jews" are used of the same people. The me Jew, like the name Israel, is used (1) of the tural seed of Israel (compare, for example, Acts . 5 with verse 22), and (2) of the spiritual seed of rael (Rom. ii. 28, 29; Rev. ii. 9, iii. 9). St. aul (who calls himself in one place a Jew, and in nother an Israelite of the tribe of Benjamin) eaks of the Jews (no one can doubt he is speakg of them) as "our twelve tribes instantly rving God day and night, hoping to attain to the romises made to the fathers." St. James adresses his letter to "the twelve tribes."

In regard to the ancient prophecies of the kingm, we should do well to remember that Christ me to fulfil the prophets and to establish the ingdom—a kingdom "not of this world," and open Gentiles.—Yours, &c., W. F. K.

Evangelistic Notes.

Rev. George C. Grubb is meeting with much success in his evangelistic work in Ceylon. Many are being saved, and led into Christian work.

Dartmouth.—Mr. James Harris, evangelist, has concluded a fortnight's Gospel mission in the Iron Church with much blessing and success.

Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has been meeting with much success in the Evangelical Union Church, Langholm, N.B. Believers have been refreshed and sinners converted. Mr. Bradlaugh next evangelises at Partick, Glasgow.

Mr. James Wharton has, since the Bible-van was "housed" for the winter, been holding Gospel meetings at Dalton, Bowness, Kendal, Liverpool, and Northenden. In each place God has blessed the word to the conversion of sinners.

Birmingham.—Mr. Henry Smith, of the Evangelisation Society, has just completed a three weeks' mission in the Stour-street Mission-hall, Birmingham. It has been a successful and encouraging one, and many have professed to find peace. The Stour-street Mission has been in existence for some years, and is supported by working-men and women.

Swaffham, Norfolk.—Evangelistic services have been held in the Baptist Church by Rev. J. S. Harrison, whose clear and forceful preaching was owned of God in awakening the consciences of many. The afternoon Bible-readings were much enjoyed by believers. Mrs. Harrison's gift of song, and her tact in dealing with the anxious, made her a valuable helper.

Village Work.—Mr. R. Jones has, for some time been going through the villages in the West Midland counties. He writes: "Those who have not had actual experience in this work, would hardly realise the need there is for Gospel preaching among the rural population. The hamlets and the homes which are distant from our towns and larger villages, are sadly neglected."

Lady Henry Somerset preached the Gospel to a crowded meeting in the lecture-hall of the Cardiff Y.M.C.A., on Sunday, Jan. 19. The appeal for decision for Christ was very emphatically put, also the responsibility of those present in the acceptance or rejection of God's offers of mercy. There is reason to believe that fruit will result from Lady Somerset's brief mission in Cardiff.

Ireland.—Successful evangelistic services have just been held at Dundrum, co. Down, by Rev. J. M. Sayers; at Cloughjordan, co. Tipperary, by Rev. G. M. Clarke; at Moira, by Rev. James Stuart; at Derrygonnelly, co. Fermanagh, by Rev. William Addy; and at Limerick by Revs. S. T. Boyd, B.A., and S. A. Robertson. In each case there was a large attendance and much good was done.

Cork Y.W.C.A.—The past week has been a season of much blessing here, a mission having been conducted by Miss Hull, of Eastbourne. Her Bible talks with Christians were particularly helpful. Many have been led into fuller blessing than heretofore. Evangelistic meetings were held in the evening, and were fairly well attended. Two workers' meetings were held, when heart-searching addresses were given.

Special services were conducted by Rev. George Wainwright, of Bournemouth, in the Andover Baptist Chapel from Jan. 13—17. The attendance steadily increased, and considerable power was manifested in all the meetings. At the close of the Friday evening service, a meeting of inquirers and those who had been blessed through the mission was held in the vestry. There were many brief utterances of praise for blessing received, some from those who had been converted during the week. The mission has resulted in several clear cases of conversion, and in the quickening of the life of the members themselves.

Mr. Henry Thorne.—A successful evangelistic mission has been concluded at Redruth, Cornwall, by Mr. Henry Thorne. After the conclusion of each service, in accordance with true Cornish fashion, little groups of workers could be seen in various parts of the chapel around anxious inquirers; others were working similarly in the inquiry-rooms. On some evenings the whole building was in reality one large inquiry-room. The afternoon Bible-readings were much appreciated. A large number of inquirers and converts assembled at the close for a social gathering, when Mr. Thorne counselled them to be true disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Corfe Mullen, Dorset.—The fifteen days' evangelistic mission conducted by Mr. R. Cairns, was brought to a close on Jan. 19. On the following evening six persons were baptized on a profession of faith.

Mr. Moody, accompanied by Mr. Stebbins as singer, and assisted by Messrs. Douglas Russell, and Richard Hill, evangelists, has held a series of Gospel meetings in London, Ontario. Their labours have been rewarded with much manifest blessing. A correspondent reports that one of the largest hotel keepers in the city has been converted, and has ceased to sell strong drink.

Messrs. Thomas and Graham, Pastors' College, London, have conducted a ten days' special mission at the Gospel Mission, Radford, Nottingham. The meetings were the best attended of any mission services we have ever held. Clear proofs of the power of the Gospel were nightly seen as men and women, young men and maidens came to the inquiry-rooms and sought and found Jesus.

Personalia.

The Dowager Countess Cairns has been prostrated in health at Bournemouth, owing chiefly to the shock caused by the unexpected death of Earl Cairns, but is happily recovering.

Mrs. Bentley, the wife of one of the best-known African missionaries, is teaching telegraphy to some black boys on the Congo. She hopes to have them ready for service by the time the Congo railway is laid.

Mr. John Chapman, of Torquay, is about to start for Australia on an evangelistic mission. He purposes being away about eighteen months or two years, and hopes to sail by the s.s. Austral, Orient Line, from Plymouth, on February 15.

The late General Napier, who was buried last week in St. Paul's Cathedral, is described as "a man cast in a heroic mould, brave, simple, pious, full of years, and honours well deserved." He was a member of Canon Fleming's congregation.

Mr. C. H. Spurgeon was to have been back at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday but, he was seized with illness last week which prevented him from leaving Mentone. He has since much improved in health, however, and hopes to preach at the Tabernacle next Lord's Day.

Miss Von Finkelstein, having concluded a second successful lecturing campaign at the Antipodes, is now on a brief visit to Ceylon and India. The incessant labours of past months have compelled her to take a season of rest. She purposes returning to London about the end of March, paying another visit to Jerusalem on the way.

Mrs. Emma E. Hornibrook, author of many well-known books and serials, and who has circulated hundreds of Gospel articles through the press, proposes to sail for the United States and Canada about the end of May (D.V.). She is accustomed to mission work, has edited two mission magazines, addresses meetings, conducts Bible-readings, &c. Heads of Missions whom she may serve while on her tour will kindly communicate as early as possible. Address 22A, Queen's-road, Bayswater.

Mrs. Osborn, of the Cape General Mission, was to sail for England on January 15. Those who can arrange public or drawing-room meetings for her are asked to inform the hon. sec. of the Mission, Lancaster-road, Wimbledon. Any friends convening conferences would find in Mrs. Osborn a good representative of South Africa. Eight years of truly devoted service out here has given her much experience, which has been increased by long journeys extending up to Zululand. The Cape General Mission is the outcome of work done here by her and Mr. Howe.

Mr. David Baron leaves London on Monday next for a missionary tour in the East, accompanied by Dr. Dixon, also of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews. They purpose being absent about three months. They will travel from England to Alexandria, by way of Brindisi, and purpose visiting Cairo, Port Said, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Beyrout, and other ports on the Syrian coast, Smyrna, Salonica, &c. In each of these places they will preach the Gospel and distribute copies of the Hebrew New Testament among the Jewish communities. Prayer is asked that the labours of these brethren may be fruitful to the Glory of God and the salvation of Israel.

THE BRUSSELS CONFERENCE.

DEAR SIR,—I have read with much interest the article by Mrs. Guinness which appeared in THE CHRISTIAN of January 17, with regard to the Anti-Slavery Conference at Brussels. Having been one of the delegates sent by the Society of Friends to present a memorial to the Conference on its reassembling (which was to have taken place last week, but has been postponed owing to the prevailing epidemic), I can cordially endorse her views, and hope that many influentially signed memorials may be sent to the Conference. Special value will attach to memorials coming (1) from missionary societies and other similar bodies which are able to contribute personal testimony as to the evils with which the Conference has to deal, and practical suggestions as to the modes of dealing with those evils; and (2) from town meetings, convened by the local authorities, held in places which are concerned in the trades in firearms and spirits. In this respect Birmingham has set an excellent example, which might with great advantage be followed by Glasgow and Liverpool. London is already moving, in the Mansion House meeting announced for Wednesday last.

Allow me to correct one error into which Mrs. Guinness has fallen. Lord Vivian, our Ambassador at Brussels, himself told us that the Conference has decided that all memorials must be sent to its president, M. le Baron de Lambermont (au Ministère d'Etat, Brussels), and not to the plenipotentiaries of the respective countries. British memorials, therefore, should not be sent to Lord Vivian.

I do not like to close without saying that British Christians and philanthropists have cause for deep thankfulness in regard to the representation of our country at the Conference. Lord Vivian and Sir John Kirk, Her Majesty's plenipotentiaries, possess great experience in questions affecting the welfare of Africa, and wide sympathy for the native races of that great Continent; and they are supported by Mr. Wylde, representing the Foreign Office, Sir Arthur Havelock, for the Colonial Office, and Captain Moore, for the Navy, all enlightened men of high character.

JOSEPH G. ALEXANDER.

Lambridge, Croydon.

The deputation to which Mr. Alexander refers consisted of Mr. John Hilton, Mr. John Taylor, and himself. The memorial of which they were the bearers embodied a strong protest against the evils caused to the African native races by slavery and the introduction of strong drink. The deputation had interviews with the British Ambassador, the two British plenipotentiaries, and with the President of the Conference, Baron Lambermont. They also had audience with the Belgian King, who gave them a cordial reception and showed interest in the cause they were there to promote.

We are desired to say that, though the Church Missionary Society did not send a deputation, they forwarded a strongly worded memorial with reference to the points under consideration.

The Conference met on Monday for the first time after the Christmas vacation. The committee for studying the measures for the repression of the Slave Trade also met and discussed the prohibition of the import of firearms into Africa. The British delegates are about to submit a fresh proposal in reference to this prohibition.

DUBLIN HOLINESS CONVENTION.—The second Christian Convention in Dublin for the advancement of spiritual life was held last week, from January 20 to 25, in the Ancient Concert Rooms. The speakers included Rev. Dr. Elder Cumming, Mr. R. Wilson, Revs. J. B. Figgis, J. F. Butlin, Evan Hopkins, and J. Gelson Gregson. Some stirring addresses were delivered, and the meetings were largely attended.

[114]

Obituary.

PASTOR GAGNEBIN.

M. Ferdinand-Henri Gagnebin, for thirty-two years Protestant pastor at Amsterdam, recently passed away at Neuchâtel. Of Swiss origin, he was well known and highly respected by the leaders of evangelical effort in Holland and France. It is only a few months since he retired from active work, after a career of great usefulness. M. H. Gagnebin, the energetic pastor at Liège, is a son of the deceased.

SISTER VANDENKIEBOOM.

The Deaconesses' Institution of Paris has sustained a serious loss by the death of Mdlle. Victorine Vandenkieboom, at the age of fifty-six. Belonging to a highly respectable Belgian family, and early left an orphan, she was educated in the Roman Catholic faith. As a young woman, she accepted employment in the establishment of a Protestant merchant. She had no spiritual peace, for religion was but a form with her. On the occasion of a faithful pastor visiting her employer, she heard for the first time that pardon and salvation were by faith in the merits of Jesus Christ. Her conversion was immediate and complete. That was many years ago; and without delay she gave herself to deaconess work. Since the siege of Paris her health has not been what it was previously. She ended her course with joy, after devoted service extending over thirty-three years.

MRS. VICARS.

Under the well-known initials of the author of the memoir of Captain Hedley Vicars, an obituary notice appears in last week's Record, of which we reproduce the opening paragraph:—

"On January 9 there passed away from earth the gentle and saintly spirit of Marianne Vicars, after long years of widowhood, and after seeing all her children pass on before her into the heavenly home, excepting one daughter, Clara Lady Rayleigh, the constant and devoted friend, companion, and cherisher of her aged mother, now left the solitary survivor of the happy family who delighted to gather around their tender parent. Mrs. Vicars was little known beyond her own family and a large circle of friends. Her delicate health prevented her from engaging in any extensive work beyond her home; but her simple faith, her loving spirit, her Christian life, and her remarkable patience and resignation under a succession of heart-breaking bereavements, could not but be recognised by all with whom she was brought into contact."

DR. ADLER, CHIEF RABBI.

Dr. Nathan Marcus Adler, Chief Rabbi of the congregations of British Jews, was gathered to his fathers early last week at the patriarchal age of eighty-seven, after a long decline, followed by a brief illness. His family is a branch of the priestly descendants of Abraham, and he was a son of the Marcus Beer Adler, who was Chief Rabbi of Hanover when that State still owed allegiance to the Throne of England. After graduating as Doctor of Philosophy and Master of Arts at the University of Erlangen, he was ordained a Rabbi in 1828, being then twenty-six years of age.

Having for a few years officiated as Chief Rabbi of the Duchy of Oldenburg, he succeeded his father in the Rabbinate of Hanover, holding the post for fourteen years. His policy was to conserve the traditional principles and customs of Judaism. In 1845 he was elected Chief Rabbi of the congregations of Great Britain. During the past ten years his health has been failing, and his duties have been performed by his distinguished son, Dr. Hermann Adler. Forty-five years ago, the synagogues of Britain were much agitated through various proposals in the way of "reform." The changes which found favour with not a few in those days would have gone far towards stripping Judaism of what religious features yet appertain thereto, and reducing it to an empty latitudinarianism. Dr. Adler, though ever desirous of maintaining peace among his people, was unswerving in his championship of the so-called "orthodox," side, and the fact that the "progressive" party is to-day little more than a name in Britain, is attributed to his wise and steady administration. To Dr. Adler Judaism was not a name, but a reality. He impressed upon his people the fear of God, and thus secured a widespread respect among Christians, who could not look with favour upon the reform movement, because of its tendency to Rationalism.

MRS. SANDISON, EDINBURGH.

Many will hear with sorrow of the decease of Mrs. Sandison, which took place on Wednesday last week at Alder Lodge, Lauder-road, Edinburgh. She was the widow of the late Rev. John Sandison, of Arbroath, and a generous supporter of many good works at home and abroad.

REV. DR. GIDEON DRAPER.

We regret to have to record the death of this American pastor, which is reported from Japan, whither he had gone on a visit to his son, Rev. G. F. Draper. Dr. Draper was well known in this country, and was active in good work both by lip and pen. He was over sixty years of age, and had been in poor health for some time past.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—This week is set apart by the Mission for special prayer. Every night the missionaries assemble at the Mission House, Bridewell-place. The meetings are continued for a couple of hours. This is the fourth year in which a whole week has been set apart for special prayer for the work of the Mission.

THE TASK OF STATESMANSHIP (says Mrs. Fawcett), is not to avoid dangerous and difficult tasks, but to perform them in such a manner that the risk may be minimised, and the good sought for achieved with the least possible drawback and friction. It was a political danger to stop suttee, but the generation of Englishmen in India fifty years ago were men with some backbone and determination in them, and they felt that the demoralisation and wickedness of suttee were a worse danger than that which would be encountered by stopping it. A little of the same courage, and the same clear-headedness, applied to the subject of infant marriage, would soon lead to the abolition of the present legalised torture and murder of little girls, and would be one of the greatest blessings which English rule has ever conferred on India.—The Child's Guardian.

BAND OF HOPE UNION.—The annual soirée in connection with the Christmas and New Year's collection in aid of the funds of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union and the Temperance Hospital was held at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, on Monday. The entertainment was prefaced by a brief address of welcome by the chairman, Mr. Frederick Smith; later on addresses were delivered by Mr. Charles Wakeley, the secretary, and Rev. R. M. Thornton. The former, in the course of his remarks, stated that the net result of the collection was expected to amount to about £1000—a very satisfactory amount. During the evening prizes were presented to the collectors, the special award of a small library of temperance books to the school securing the largest amount for the collection being taken by the Hinde-street, Marylebone, School.

REQUESTS FOR PRAISE AND PRAYER.—PRAISE: For great blessing received during a mission at Stanmore, near Newbury; pray for blessing on a "Bible-meeting," every Monday evening.——PRAYER: For blessing on a mission in Dunfermline, N.B., in connection with the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A., beginning Feb. 2, conducted by Mr. John M. Scroggie.——For blessing on three weeks' special services, to be conducted at Coombe, Cornwall, by Mr. John Elliott, of the Evangelisation Society, commencing on Sunday, Feb. 2.——For blessing on a week's special services in the Gospel Hall, Axminster, by Mr. Herbert Veasey, commencing Sunday, Feb. 2.——For blessing on a fortnight's mission, being held by Mr. Henry Lakin, at Rev. T. F. Salt's Church, Curbar.——For blessing on a fourteen days' mission, at Brixham, Devon, by Mr. J. Harris.——For blessing on a Gospel mission being held by Mr. Henry Thorne, at Hackney, to Feb. 10.——For blessing on services by Mr. T. Shuldham Henry, at Merrion Hall, Dublin, during February.——For blessing on a mission to be held at St. Peter's, Norbiton, by Rev. Charles Courtenay, from Saturday, Feb. 1, to Monday, Feb. 10.——For blessing on a mission, by Mr. John Peck, of the Evangelisation Society, at the Christian Lads' Society, 20, Bedford-terrace, Durham-road, N., from Feb. 2 to 9.——For blessing on a mission being held at Wisboro'-green, Billingshurst, by Rev. E. Lee.——For blessing on special services at a Mission Hall in Southampton, in February and March.——For blessing on a mission to be held at Chiseldon, Wilts, from Feb. 1 to 17.

INQUIRER'S COLUMN.

AN BELIEVERS FALL AWAY AND BE LOST?

Will you kindly explain how these passages are be harmonised?—"I give unto them eternal fe, and they shall never perish" (John x. 28); He became the author of eternal salvationto them hat obey Him" (Heb. v. 9); "This is the record, hat God hath given unto us eternal life" (1 John .11), and many others; with, "I am the Vine, ye re the branches"; and, "I am the true Vine, and y Father is the Husbandman. Every branch in le that beareth not fruit He taketh away....If a an abide not in Me, he is cast forth as a branch, nd is withered; and men gather them, and cast em into the fire, and they are burned" (John v. 1, 2, 6).

If the withered branches had represented fruits r works, the explanation might have been suggested y 1 Cor. iii. 12-15, but our Lord plainly says that we" are the branches.—Yours, &c., J. A. S.

ANSWER.

True, those who believe "have everlasting life." n God's sight men are either branches of the true ine or not; but to human appearance some are ranches who in reality are not vitally joined to he living Lord. Of his real disciples Christ said, They shall never perish"; others, not real, will ventually be cast aside, as withered branches are rom a living tree. The details of parables and llegories should not be pressed to teach truths dditional to the main purpose. The allegory of he Vine was intended to show that Christ Himself s the source and centre of true life and activity. ertain it is that, as the fruitless branch can have no ving connection with the vine, no more can fruitss professing Christians with Christ. Let it be oted that it is distinctly said that the branch is ndebted to the vine's vitality for its existence, and lso for its continued fruitfulness (John xv. 4).

To his true disciples our Lord had no disquieting ord in this allegory. To them He said, "Already re ye clean...Abide in Me, and I in you." Enorcing this, he says impersonally, "If a man abide ot in Me." Again He reassures his faithful disiples: "I appointed you that ye should go and bear uit, and that your fruit should abide" (16). evertheless, Christ's true disciples have ever earned much from the experiences of those who re merely ostensible followers of their Lord.

EWISH OBSERVANCES, OR CHRISTIAN RITES?

If the Lord's Supper (which appears to have een in its origination an attachment to the Passver feast), and baptism by immersion, had been ntended by our Lord as perpetual ordinances in hrist's Church, and not to terminate after his own tonement and death on Calvary, like other Jewish bservances to which, as a Jew, He subjected imself during his life on earth, why was neither f them referred to and enjoined by the council net to consider what ordinances were required of he Gentiles? See Acts xv. 28, 29.—Yours, &c., J. A. S.

ANSWER.

It is true that the Lord's Supper was instituted t the Passover feast, but neither in its elements or in its character was it part of the Israelitish rdinance. It was no mere "Jewish observance," s suggested, but was instituted in memory of the vent which the paschal lamb prefigured. It was minently fitting that the ordinance setting forth he accomplishment of the work of redemption hould be brought in just when "Christ our Passver" was about to be "sacrificed for us." The postle Paul tells us very plainly that the supper s a Christian ordinance, and of it he says, in 1 Cor. i.: "I received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you," &c. Then, saying that the bject of the ordinance is to have Christ in remembrance, he writes: "As often as ye eat this bread nd drink this cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death ill He come" (vv. 23-26). Thus, it is clear that, ntil the Lord comes, the observance cannot beome obsolete.

The same applies to the baptism of believers. s surely as this was no mere ablution, it was, in s essential character, no Jewish ordinance. On he contrary, Jews who submitted to it were ingled out for persecution by their brethren as nsensate sectaries, if not traitors to their God and ation. Moreover, when giving command to his isciples, after fulfilling all the types of the Jewish conomy, the Lord said, "Go...preach the Gospel every creature, baptizing them," &c.

As baptism and the Lord's Supper were not included in the Mosaic law, they did not come under discussion at the council at Jerusalem, which was held for the special purpose of defining the relation of believers in Christ to the ceremonial law. That council did not review the teachings of the Lord, and most assuredly it did not abrogate any of his injunctions.

LONDON Y.M.C.A. COMMITTEES.

THIS gathering, known as "Radley's meeting," because it was originally held at Radley's Hotel, met on a recent evening in the smaller Exeter Hall. Mr. George Williams, chairman, was supported by a number of secretaries and other friends. After prayer, and the reading of Scripture by Mr. Howard Williams, words of welcome were spoken by the Chairman, who based his remarks on the Y.M.C.A. motto for the year, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men."

According to custom, reports of the condition of their respective Associations were given by many speakers; but, contrary to custom, the meeting was thrown open for spontaneous testimonies.

STRATFORD.—Mr. Fox Butlin, the secretary, had a cheery report to present. He said the conviction that the work is the Lord's, and that he was only a servant, had been a source of peace and rest. He had not regarded God as a partner but as Director. The thought of George Müller's successful prayers had led him specifically to make the deficient funds a matter of special prayer, with the result that the year had closed with a surplus of a few pounds.

EGHAM was represented by a lively, fervent, young member, who also spoke of a clean balance-sheet.

STAFFORD ROOMS, EDGWARE-ROAD (Mr. Worreker) had been maintaining a steady, many-sided work. With the co-operation of the newly appointed secretary, Mr. Rogerson, increased prosperity is anticipated.

SOUTH WOODFORD (Mr. Langridge, hon. sec.).—This Association works chiefly amongst artisans. The thoughts on this speaker's mind, very cogently delivered, were (1) the work that had not been done: thousands of young men unreached; and (2) the method by which it must be accomplished: faithful, self-denying work on the part of individual members.

NORTH WOODFORD.—Another live member reported that this Association had recently acquired very eligible premises. The work is progressing, if somewhat slowly, yet steadily.

WESTBOURNE GROVE (Mr. C. M. Baker, hon. sec.)—Much blessing had been experienced during the year, tested not by numbers nor by the impressions of the workers, but the testimony of spiritually-minded men who had visited the Rooms, and who had reported, "You are all alive here." The financial balance is on the right side.

EALING (Mr. Kidner, hon. sec.).—The Association had a stir-up last year. A general evangelistic mission resulted in much blessing. The Sunday Bible-class had risen from thirty-five to sixty. The attendance at the devotional meeting was small. The balance-sheet was kept right by prayer—conjoined with effort; the members had rendered much assistance with collecting cards.

CAMDEN TOWN (Mr. Jervis, secretary).—Bible-class on Sunday flourishing; average attendance, seventy-nine. A week-night Bible-class, conducted by the members themselves, was proving very successful, the weekly attendance varying from eighteen to twenty-seven. Increased attendance is secured by personally canvassing and interesting the members.

WOOLWICH (Mr. Bird, hon. sec.).—Amid much to discourage, the members had been greatly encouraged in the foreign missionary interest which had been manifested. One of their members had recently gone to India, as a missionary; another to the Congo; and five had entered into missionary training during the year.

CLAPHAM (Mr. John Hayward).—The Association is flourishing, especially the Sunday Bible-class.

HACKNEY (Mr. Doubble).—The work is being very efficiently done. The Sunday Bible-class, conducted on one Sunday by the Lord Chancellor, is very successful.

CROYDON (Secretary).—A daily noon prayer-meeting has recently been established. On Sunday evening an evangelistic meeting has been started only for men who attend no place of worship. The committee desire to build a hall on a portion of their unoccupied land, but are held back by a debt on the building of £420.

EPSOM.—A member briefly testified to the curse of gambling by which the town is afflicted. Many young men who promised well have been dragged down into ruin by this mania.

KING'S CROSS (Mr. Pitman, secretary).—A tent had proved an invaluable aid during four months last summer. This Association undertake, through its members, to meet young men arriving at the adjacent termini of the three northern railroads. In conclusion, Mr. Pitman urged members of committees to take a more active and intelligent interest in the members and associates, and in the work of the Association generally. After a few words of interesting personal testimony from Sir Robert Phayre, the meeting adjourned.

THE VICTORIA INSTITUTE.

THE Lord Chancellor, as Vice-President of this Institute, took the chair at a meeting held on Monday week, when Rev. J. Neil read a paper descriptive of the way in which lands were held and cultivated in Palestine in ancient times. He pointed out how an acquaintance with this and certain other customs solved many a Biblical statement which had puzzled students. He referred to instances of some similar customs in regard to the cultivation of land being traceable in early times in England even, but here the advance of modern civilisation had already rendered them matters of the past, as indeed they were fast becoming in Palestine; and, therefore, it was desirable to note them, whilst we were able, in that land where customs which were in force in the time of Abraham would soon be buried in oblivion.

The Lord Chancellor conveyed a vote of thanks to Mr. Neil, and expressed himself as deeply interested in his paper. A discussion ensued, in which Mr. Seebohm bore out the statements made, and described the results of his own investigations. Dr. Bergheim, from Palestine, added matter of much interest as regards his native land. Dr. Chaplin also gave the results of his study of the matter in the East, Mr. St. Chad Boscawen quoted several Babylonian inscriptions showing certain similar customs had existed in Babylonia, and some remarks by Mr. David Howard, chairman of the London Chamber of Commerce, and others, concluded the discussion. The Lord Chancellor then spoke, and concluded by congratulating the Institute on the value of the evening's work.

MALDEN HALL, HAVERSTOCK HILL, N.W.—Meetings in connection with the sixteenth anniversary of this branch of the Evangelistic Mission were held on Thursday last. Mr. T. B. Miller spoke from Rev. ii. 24, iii. 11, dwelling specially on the words, "that which ye have," "that which thou hast." It is not what we know, but what we hold by faith, that is really ours. It is well for us to "take stock" as to what will stand by us at the judgment-seat of Christ. Rev. F. B. Meyer maintained that every believer in God might realise the import of the words, "He that believeth on Me, out of him shall flow rivers of living water." The more Christian workers live and speak Jesus, the more will the people be blessed. Addresses were also delivered by Dr. Popham, Messrs. C. Russell Hurditch, Charles Inglis, and other friends. Mr. Bateman made a brief statement, reviewing the progress of the work in connection with the Hall.

A "KESWICK CONVENTION" AT GUILDFORD.—In a penny pamphlet on this subject, issued by Messrs. Marshall Bros., Rev. F. Paynter, Rector, Stoke-next-Guildford, invites Christians to meet together at Guildford in June, 1890, for a week's conference. "Although there are various conferences in the south, there are (as far as we know) none on precisely the same lines as those at Keswick. We believe that there are many Christians in our southern counties who cannot go to Keswick, but who would gladly attend a Convention held here. We propose to erect a large tent within sight of the London-road Station, Guildford, and to have meetings in it for the week, similar to those at Keswick. A circular letter of invitation will be issued about two months before the time, giving full particulars. Colonel Brown, of Albuhera, Churchill-road, and General Hankin, Newlands, Guildford, have kindly consented to act as hon. secretaries, to whom applications for lodgings or hotel accommodation may be sent, stating particulars of what is desired."

The Book World.

FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.

The British Messenger (1d. Stirling Tract Depôt) is a wholesome and useful publication. "The Girdle of Love," by Rev. Dr. Cuyler, is well worth reading. Every issue of this monthly is a Gospel herald, and the message is always delivered with commendable directness.

The British & Foreign Bible Society's monthlies, the Reporter and Gleanings for the Young (a halfpenny each) are always attractive. The history of the Bible and its circulation at home and abroad form the theme of the amply illustrated contents. The February issue of the Reporter presents interesting notes on Bible work in India and France.

The Preacher's Magazine. 4d. C. H. Kelly, 2, Castle-street, City-road, E.C. Edited by Revs. Mark Guy Pearse and Arthur E. Gregory. This is a monthly of special value. The contributions, from various pens, cover a wide range in the departments of doctrinal statement, Scripture exposition, and practical counsel to those who preach the Gospel.

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY.

The Boy's Own Paper (6d.) is always bright. Dr. Gordon Stables continues his story of struggle and adventure, "Our Home in the Silver West"; there are articles on photography and other profitable pastimes; and W. J. Gordon writes on "Stanley the Explorer." Tales of wonder are interspersed with inspiriting sketches. The illustrations are numerous and high class.

The Girl's Own Paper (6d.) is fully up to the mark. If some of the articles are absorbingly entertaining, others are essentially practical. R. Patterson writes on "Tobogganing," and James Mason on "Curiosities of Food and Feeding," Edward Watford contributes "Tales of Great Families," and Sarah Tytler begins a series of sketches on "Tudor Queens and Princesses." There are short stories as well as serials; the contents are varied, and from first to last the tone is good.

Friendly Greetings. 4d. The frontispiece is a lithographed picture of Mount Ararat. Of the many admirable items, we would specify "The Ring of Polycrates," and "The Last Days of Cranmer," as particularly interesting. All the articles are pointed and brief.—The Tract Magazine (1d.) contains a capital paper by Rev. P. B. Power, entitled, "Make up your Mind to it," and a sketch of Dr. John Coldstream, the promoter of Medical Missions, by Rev. R. R. Thom.—The Cottager and Artisan (1d.) is now published in a coloured wrapper. There are attractive articles descriptive of the canning of vegetables, and on emigration to the colonies.—The Child's Companion and Our Little Dots (1d. each) are replete with illustrations and reading matter to interest and instruct the young.

MESSRS. S. W. PARTRIDGE AND CO.

A. 1. 6d. Here are serials to entertain, and articles to instruct. In the department of recreation, the cultivation of flowers and the art of photography are explained in popular language. Travel and adventure are represented by admirably illustrated sketches of Calais, and "The City of the Great White Tzar." Dr. Thain Davidson writes on "The True Gentleman"; J. Fuller Higgs on "The Weavers of Spitalfields"; and W. H. Davenport Adams on "Curious Remedies." This magazine is suited for young and old alike; its pages are always bright and interesting.

Our Own Gazette (1d.), edited by Mrs. Stephen Menzies, is a monthly which all young women would do well to read. A wholesome serial story is running, "Fine Gold; or Ravenswood Courtenay," by Emma Marshall, and the editor addresses words of encouragement to her readers monthly. The February issue contains an excellent article by Annie Marsden, on "Living in Lodgings," and some capital "Hints on the Making of Winter Comforts," by Ellen T. Masters. There is always a goodly body of news from Y.W.C.A. branches in various parts. All the features combine to make the paper attractive and useful.

The Mothers' Companion (1d.) has a good article on "Thrifty Cookery" by Gina Jones; Mary Cavalier tells the story of Paripuranum, a devoted Indian Bible-woman; and the initial article of a series on "Mothers at Home" is given.—The Family Friend (1d.) is a good monthly. Dr. A. T. Schofield gives "A Few Suggestions in Sickness," and some of the economics of making and mending clothes are set forth in a page of "Hints for Mothers."—The Friendly Visitor (1d.), with its large type and practical style, will be specially welcome to the aged.—The British Workman (1d.) contains a capital portrait and sketch of Dr. Samuel Smiles.—The Children's Friend and The Infants' Magazine are excelled by no competitors for popularity among the young.

The Century Dictionary.

THE CENTURY DICTIONARY. An Encyclopædic Lexicon of the English language. Prepared under the superintendence of William Dwight Whitney, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of Comparative Philology and Sanscrit in Yale University. In six volumes. Vol. i. £2 2s. T. Fisher Unwin. In this large quarto volume of 1200 pages, the work is carried forward to the word "Conocephalitidæ." While not professing to be concentrated perfection, this dictionary claims to be the most complete compilation of the kind yet published. The claim is assuredly made good by the admirable performance of the editor, and his numerous collaborators, representing the various fields of science, literature, and art. There will be in all six volumes, with an aggregate of about 7000 pages. It will be some years before the great work upon which Dr. Murray is engaged in England is completed. In the meantime this product of American scholarship will be largely used, and the succinctness of the plan on which it is constructed will assuredly secure for it a substantial and permanent reputation. The "Century" contains a more complete collection of the technical terms of the various sciences, arts, trades, and professions, than has yet been attempted: and the addition to the definitions proper of such related matter as is commonly relegated to encyclopædias, constitutes the book a work of great value. About 200,000 words will be defined in the course of the dictionary; this will render it a practically complete record of all the noteworthy words which have been in use since English literature has existed. Words peculiar to American speech find a place, and in cases of variations in orthography and meaning, the Old World style is given as well as that which prevails across the sea. Illustrations are numerous and artistic; as are also explanatory quotations from all periods and branches of literature. The pages, each with three columns in excellent type, are good reading, full of instruction for all, and having great spoils for the student of philology as it throws light upon the English tongue. Words commonly found in religious literature have received special treatment at the hands of theologians. Various views of doctrine and practice are set forth with clearness and precision. The words "atone" and "baptize" with their derivatives, both alone and in combination with other words, are comprehensively explained. If the "Century" is completed on the same scale as it has been begun, its publication will assuredly rank as an important literary and educational event.

MISCELLANEOUS.

FROM MOUNTAIN TO MOUNTAIN: Bible Readings. By A. W. Marston. 2s. 6d. Marshall Brothers. The mountains selected are, Moriah, Pisgah, Carmel, Horeb, and as we follow our devout guide, the pure airs of heaven refresh our souls. Not only are the various historical scenes eloquently described, but each reading abounds with precious teachings.

ECHOES FROM JAPAN. By M. McLean. New Edition. 3s. 6d. Passmore & Alabaster. We are glad to see that this work has already reached its second edition. Having lived in Japan a period of nine years, the author knows whereof she writes. For the sake of the interesting Oriental people who are at present learning so much from Western nations, we trust the book will have many readers, and that, through perusing it, some may imbibe a measure of Miss McLean's spirit of devotion to work for God.

"IN REMEMBRANCE." Discourses by Rev. Robert Naismith, minister of Free Church congregation, Chirnside. McNiven & Wallace. It is well that these able and spiritual addresses will speak to a larger circle than the congregation who first heard them delivered. On fundamental truths, such as "Regeneration" and "God's Redeeming Love" the writer speaks with clearness and force, avoiding sameness, yet never straining after effect. In "Believers God's Jewels," and "Crucified with Christ" deeper facts of Christian experience are skilfully set forth.

Another new monthly candidate for public favour is The Field Club: "a magazine of general natural history for scientific and unscientific readers." It is edited by Rev. Theo. Wood, and the contents of the initial number are of varied interest to devotees of what is termed the study of "nature." (3d. Elliot Stock.)

THE SOWER. Volume for 1889. Houlston & Sons. These pages contain many articles of great experimental value. The letters for the young are as deeply interesting as the appeals to anxious inquirers are admirably direct and forcible. Some very significant incidents, illustrative of God's providence and the way of salvation, are given in this compact little volume.

THE LITTLE GLEANER FOR 1889. 1s. 6d. Houlston & Sons. This monthly magazine for the young deserves a wide circulation; and the volume will be welcome in many a home. Christian parents wishful that their children should grow up with a wholesome horror of everything Romish will highly appreciate this magazine, which very effectively, and in a proper spirit, exposes the errors of Popery.

GROWTH OF GRACE. By Rev. R. G. Ambrose, rector of St. Michael's, Kingston, Jamaica. 1s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. In a treatise on so fundamental a subject as grace, clear definition of terms is all-important; but in the first chapter, "Grace defined," no serious attempt at definition is made. A similar vagueness continues throughout the book. The writer professes to treat only of "the grace that saves," yet never states the difference between the grace of God external to man, and the grace that after faith and repentance, dwells and develops in the believer. Such a statement as "faith is the seed sown, perhaps born in us," is hard to reconcile with "God hath concluded all in unbelief."

THE BARBARY CORSAIRS. By Stanley Lane-Poole. 5s. T. Fisher Unwin. Another volume of the admirable "Story of the Nations" series. From the sixteenth to the beginning of the present centuries, the trading nations of Europe were very much at the mercy of the North African pirates. Nothing but the creation of the large standing navies of the present age crippled the Corsairs; nothing less than the conquest of their too convenient coasts could have thoroughly suppressed them. This effectually reversed their mastery of the narrow seas, and put an end to the régime under which they dictated their own terms to all comers. These well-illustrated pages present, in a very interesting and compendious form, a large amount of reliable information respecting the Turkish pirates and their haunts in the Barbary States.

THE FAITH MISSION IN SCOTLAND. Marshall Brothers, London; and J. G. Govan, South Park, Glasgow. This is an interesting account of the third year's work of the Faith Mission Pilgrims. The story is well told, and faithfully records the difficulties and discouragements, as well as the successes, which have attended the work. Evidences of God's blessing have been numerous. The most successful evangelistic mission was that held at Islay, the story of which is told in such a graphic and racy manner in Bright Words for November and December. Among the trials of the year special mention is made of not a few who "did run well," but who have disappointed the hopes once cherished concerning them. Ministerial opposition, too, is alluded to as having in more than one case hindered the work. We regret that such a complaint should have to be made. Where this results from the fact that the churches are worldly and asleep, the Pilgrims need not wonder. We think it just possible, however, that in some cases a mistaken method of teaching holiness may have provoked the hostility of those who desired to be friendly. A careful adherence to the words of Scripture on this subject is necessary to guard it from dangerous extremes. Certainly the churches have much to learn from this evangelistic organisation, and should therefore be "slow to speak" a word of censure. It is full of holy activity. The Pilgrims are moved to their service by the thought that souls are dying, and need the Gospel preached, not with the excellency of human speech, but with the power of the Holy Ghost. Holiness of life, as being both necessary and possible for Christians, is taught as practically and definitely as pardon for the sinner. The interest and advancement of the whole kingdom of God are sought, rather than mere denominational success. The mission is worked economically—the average cost for each Pilgrim during the year being only £25.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, FEB. 2.—2 Chron. XV.

THIS chapter tells the story of a great religious revival under Asa, king of Judah. It is instructive and interesting.

(1) The prophet's message (1-7).—Returning victorious from the conflict with the Ethiopians, Asa was met by Azariah (1, 2), an obscure prophet, whose name is not elsewhere mentioned in Scripture. His message was one of promise and of warning (2), enforced by a brief reference to the previous history of the nation (3-6), and concluding with an earnest exhortation (7). It was a timely message. Never more than after such a victory as that Asa has gained do we need to be roused to further action. It reminded him that his victory was due to the presence of God with him; that there were enemies at home as dangerous to the kingdom as those he had just defeated; and that to effect the needed reformation among his own subjects required strength and resolution.

(2) The revival which followed (8-19).—The message, though spoken by such an obscure prophet, bore excellent fruit. It inspired Asa with greater boldness (8), who immediately began to remove the hindrances from the way of the people's return to God. "Abominable idols" were taken away, and the altar of God was repaired (8). One of the first steps to every revival is the discovery and the removal of what is wrong among the people of God. This was followed by a national assembly (9, 10), in which the people pledged themselves to the work of reformation, and entered again into solemn and hearty covenant with God (12-14). They could neither subdue their enemies abroad, nor enjoy prosperity at home if they were not right with God. Some of the effects of the revival were abundant increase from the ten tribes (11); great joy among the people themselves (15); continuance of peace (15, 19); further resolution in correcting evils; even Asa's own mother was deposed, and her idol destroyed (16); and further faithfulness to God in bringing into his house the dedicated things (18). The chapter teaches us how entirely the Church's prosperity in every particular depends upon her putting away what is evil, and living in right relationship with God. Given these conditions, and no more would she appear before the world so impotent. When men see that the Lord is with his people, many will be won to Him (9).

MONDAY, FEB. 3.—2 Chron. XVI.

There is an apparent discrepancy between 1 Kings xvi. 8 and this chapter (1). As suggested in the margin, the thirty-six years may be reckoned from the beginning of the kingdom of Judah, which would make this incident take place about the sixteenth year of Asa's reign. Another, and perhaps more probable explanation is that instead of "thirtieth," both in xv. 19 and xvi. 1, we should read "twentieth." This would bring this incident to the last year of Baasha's reign.

It is not wonderful that Baasha should make this attempt to prevent his people passing over to Asa. The situation of Ramah was about six miles north of Jerusalem. That Asa should have adopted such a method of defeating Baasha is the more surprising after his previous history. Instead of trusting in God, he made a league with Benhadad, and purchased his help by bringing out gold and silver from the house of the Lord (2, 3). His plan was successful, at least in preventing Baasha accomplishing his purpose, and in securing other cities for himself (6). But it was a melancholy failure. Do not judge of the right or wrong of a policy from its apparent success. Asa had contradicted the principles upon which at first he began to act; had violated the covenant with God into which he and his people had entered; and had therefore failed to fulfil the condition on which God's presence with him depended (xv. 2). The loss of God's presence is one for which nothing can compensate.

The message of Hanani (7-9) convinced Asa of his folly. Proof that he was thus convinced is found in his treatment of Hanani (10). He could make no reply to the message, so he grew angry, and imprisoned the messenger, and oppressed others who perhaps had the courage to take the prophet's part. This was the action of a good man (xv. 17) to whom the nation was indebted for a most important and extensive reformation, and, therefore, for a season of great prosperity. How sadly even the best may fall! He could be emboldened to fearless action by a message of encouragement, but could not receive a word of reproof.

Still unhumbled, he was afflicted with a painful disease (12), which also failed to lead him back to God. And so the career, begun with so much promise, closes sadly enough. Yet the people did not forget his service, and honoured him with a funeral of unusual magnificence (13, 14).

TUESDAY, FEB. 4.—2 Chron. XVII.

Asa was blessed in having such a son as Jehoshaphat to succeed him on the throne. He was one of the best kings that ever reigned over Judah. His history is very fully recorded, and abounds with interesting and suggestive incident.

Note: (1) his prudence (1-2).—His reign began in the fourth year of the reign of Ahab, who had allied himself to the Zidonians by his marriage with Jezebel (1 Kings xvi. 31). Wisely, therefore, Jehoshaphat began by strengthening his kingdom against a possible invasion. His faith in God did not make him neglectful of the exercise of prudence.

(2) His piety (3-4).—The later example of his father had been bad, but his aim was to walk in "the first ways of his father and of David" (3, margin). He did honour to his godly ancestry by seeking to walk according to their best example.

(3) His prosperity (5-6).—This is connected with his piety (3, 5). The kingdom was established, the king himself was greatly enriched and honoured, and "his heart was lifted up" (6), not with pride, but with confidence and courage, to effect more perfect reformation.

(4) His efforts on behalf of the people (7-9).—He appointed priests and Levites (8, 9) to go through the cities of Judah instructing people in the law of the Lord; and princes (7), to see that the people were instructed. This was a wise movement on his part. Hitherto the people had been too ready to go as they were led, as though unable to judge what was right themselves. To teach them was to lay the foundation for a more constant obedience to God.

(5) His influence upon other kingdoms (10, 11).—Surrounding nations "made no war against" him; on the contrary, some of them paid him voluntary tribute. He experienced the truth of Prov. xvi. 7.

(6) His armies (12-19).—Among his officers is Amasiah, who is said to have "offered himself willingly to the Lord" (16). In serving the king he recognised that he was serving God. Of all the vast army, numbering 1,160,000, it is said that they were "mighty men of valour" (13, 14, &c.). Yet it was not these forces that awed the surrounding nations, but "the fear of the Lord" (10). We may learn wherein lies the safety of a kingdom, or the prosperity of a church.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 5.—2 Chron. XVIII.

The first serious wrong declared of Jehoshaphat was his alliance with Ahab, the wicked king of Israel (1-3). Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab, was joined in marriage to Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat. It was a sad mistake, and bore bitter fruit in after years. Nothing can ever justify the people of God in cultivating the friendship of the world.

Even in Ahab's company Jehoshaphat does not forget God (4). It is his proposal to inquire of the Lord before commencing the war. There can be no prosperity where God does not lead.

The difference between the two kings is very apparent. Ahab welcomes most readily those prophets who speak good concerning him (4), and hates Micaiah, because he prophesies evil (7). To him the question seems to be, not which message is true? but which is most agreeable? There have ever been those who have demanded "smooth things"; and, unhappily, there are prophets ready to satisfy the demand. Jehoshaphat, on the other hand, is not content (6). There was something about the testimony of Ahab's prophets that did not commend itself to him. The sheep know the shepherd's voice, and refuse to hear the voice of strangers (John x). Yet the evil of Jehoshaphat's intimacy with Ahab already appears. He was too gentle in reproving Ahab for his avowed hatred of the Lord's prophet (7); and was too timid to defend Micaiah against the attack of the false prophet (23), or to prevent his imprisonment at the command of the wicked king (26). The invariable effect of fellowship with the ungodly is loss of power to testify against sin.

In the battle which followed Ahab exposed Jehoshaphat to further danger (28, 29). He showed little care for the life of his ally, but took great precaution to secure his own. Deceived by the royal robes, the enemy pursued Jehoshaphat, whose cry to God brought him deliverance (30, 31). But the disguise of Ahab could not save him from his predicted doom. The destination of an arrow, shot at a venture, is determined by God (33, 34). None can secure those whom God means to destroy, nor destroy those whom He intends to save.

THURSDAY, FEB. 6.—2 Chron. XIX.

Jehoshaphat's return (1-4).—It is specially mentioned that "he returned to his house in peace" (1). He has been needlessly into great danger, and has come out of it more safely than he had reason to expect. How carefully God watches over his children even in their wanderings! Jehu, by whom God reproved Jehoshaphat (2), is probably the same who reproved Baasha (1 Kings xvi. 1, 7), and who has since then been driven into Judah. His message reveals the true character of the man with whom Jehoshaphat had been in fellowship—"ungodly" and "hating the Lord" (2). Jehoshaphat receives the reproof not as Asa had received the message of Hanani (xv. 10). Instead of getting angry with the faithful message, he at once addresses himself to the work of perfecting the reformation of his kingdom (4). This was the best method of proving his repentance.

His instructions to his judges (5-11).—Both for those in the defenced cities (5) and for the priests and Levites at Jerusalem (8) the same qualities were needed. Their first need was fidelity towards God (6, 7, 9). They were his representatives, and must judge as in his sight. This would give them caution before men. Twice they are exhorted to "take heed" (6, 7). Hasty judgments were not likely to be correct. Above all they needed courage (11). But the presence of the Lord with them secured all these qualities for them.

FRIDAY, FEB. 7.—2 Chron. XX.

Jehu had told Jehoshaphat that there was "wrath upon him from the Lord" (xix. 2); the invasion of which this chapter tells is the first fulfilment of that word. Yet note that even a chastisement, met in the spirit in which Jehoshaphat met this, becomes a blessing (Heb. xii. 11).

(1) Jehoshaphat's appeal for help (1-13).—The kingdom was threatened with a formidable invasion by the combined forces of Moab and Ammon and others. (1) They had reached as far as Engedi (2) before their advance was known. They were a great multitude (2, 12), so that Jehoshaphat had no hope of meeting them successfully by the mere strength of his own forces. He feared (3), hence his appeal to God, in which all the people united (3, 4). His prayer recognises God's power (6), and opposes that to the strength of the invading armies; claims God's covenant relationship with his people (7); recalls the prayer of Solomon at the dedication of the temple (8, 9), in which their present distress was anticipated; mentions the ingratitude of the invaders (10, 11), and then expresses the most entire dependence on God (12). They have reached their extremity, and have "no might." They can do nothing but look up. It is a model prayer for similar times of distress. Having presented it, all the people, with their wives and children, stood silent before the Lord, waiting for his reply (13).

(2) The prophet's message (14-18).—Jahaziel is not mentioned elsewhere, but the Spirit of the Lord chose him for conveying this message (14). It removed the fears of the people by the assurance that God made the battle his own (15). They have committed it to Him, and He has accepted it; fear must now give place to trust. It declares God's foreknowledge of the movements of the enemy (16); with such a Leader, the strongest enemy has no chance of success. It demands faith on the part of Jehoshaphat and his people (17). They were to be spectators rather than combatants. The very message recalled the experience of Israel at the Red Sea (Exod. xiv.), and an equally great deliverance was to be wrought. In the spirit of simple faith the message was received. The people first bowed in reverential worship (18), and then sang in exultant praise (19).

(3) The battle (20-30).—Jehoshaphat led them forth, not to fight, but to trust (20). See how faith goes into the Lord's battles. Victory is already anticipated; and the procession is arranged with the singers at the head (21). Not first the victory, then the praise; but first the praise, then the victory (Josh. vi. 20; Mark xi. 24). It is not faith that waits to see whether God will fulfil his word; nor is it Christian prudence, but God dishonouring unbelief. We "believe to see" (Ps. xxvii. 13). In response to their song of faith (22), the Lord began the conflict, and either by an ambushment of angels, or by sending confusion into the enemy's ranks,

He smote the enemy, and made them destroy one another (22, 23). So that faith, expressing itself first in a helpless cry, and then in a joyful confidence, changed an army so formidable that it terrified the people of God into a heap of dead men (24), and secured so much spoil that three days were occupied in gathering it (25). Praise closed, as it commenced, the battle (26-30). The close of the reign of Jehoshaphat was marked by another unholy alliance (35-37), which the Lord reproved, and the purpose of which He defeated. God is jealous of our confidence, for He alone deserves it.

SATURDAY, FEB. 8.—2 Chron. XXI.

In the reign of Jehoram the fruit of Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahab begins to appear. Jehoram's wife was the daughter of Ahab (6), who led him to imitate the kings of Israel, rather than the example of his excellent father. He slew his brethren (4), and restored idolatrous worship (11). Sad that Jehoshaphat should have such a son. Yet sadder still that he should himself have sown the seed of which Jehoram's sins were the very natural harvest. Parents who sacrifice religious principle in order to advance the social position of their children, are doing them incalculable harm. No consideration can justify the "unequal yoke" (2 Cor. vi. 14).

Terrible sin was followed by severe judgments. The peace of the kingdom was destroyed (9-10); other enemies came against Jehoram's house and desolated that (16, 17); and a terrible disease, foretold by God (12-15), at last visited him (18); and he died unhonoured and unwept. It is a terrible thing to live so that no one regrets our death.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, February 9.

CHILDHOOD AND YOUTH OF JESUS.—Luke ii. 40-52.

GOLDEN TEXT: VER. 52.

LUKE alone gives us this very interesting glimpse of the boyhood life of Jesus. It is a touching story, as remarkable for its naturalness and simplicity, as it is for its unlikeness to those absurd stories told in the Apocryphal Gospels.

Verse 40 summarises the life of the child Jesus up to the age of twelve, as verse 52 summarises the whole of his life from twelve to thirty. Both verses describe a perfectly real and natural development, first, of the body in stature, then of the mind in wisdom, while the favour of God rested upon Him, and gave Him also increasing favour with men. Though the Son of God, yet He began life as other children do, except that in Him there were no sins or failings to correct. As his body needed nourishment, so his mind needed instruction. Let no boy think that Jesus cannot sympathise with his boyish difficulties.

The incident gives evidence of the wisdom of Jesus, and is a kind of foreshadowing of his after ministry.

The first Passover of Jesus (41-42).—The Passover Feast—called the Feast of Unleavened Bread—lasted for seven days, and was intended to perpetuate the memory of the deliverance from Egypt (Exod. xii.). At this, and at the two other Feasts of Pentecost and Tabernacles, all men were required to be present (Deut. xvi. 16). At the age of twelve a Jewish boy became "a son of the law," and could take part in the celebration of the feast. Very naturally Mary accompanied her son on the occasion of his first celebration. It was an important event to Jesus. He had no doubt been carefully instructed into the significance of the ceremonial, and was, perhaps, prepared to see in it even more than his teachers had taught Him. To them it was chiefly a remembrance of an event of history; to Him it was probably a prophecy of an event to come.

Jesus missed from the company (43-45).—Luke does not hint that Jesus separated Himself from his parents intentionally. He was probably so absorbed with what he saw, and apprehended so much of the typical meaning of every rite, that He lingered long among objects so full of delightful interest, without knowing that his company had started for home. On the other hand, nothing is said of Mary and Joseph having neglected to take proper care of Him. They usually trusted his obedience and wisdom so much that they too readily concluded He was among their party (44), and did not discover their mistake until they had gone a day's journey. Not finding Him among their company, they returned to Jerusalem (44, 45). The incident reminds us that it is possible to "suppose" we have the presence of Jesus when we have not—that we may go a long way still under this delusion; that we may seek Him where He is not likely to be found, and that, until He is found, there can be no satisfaction and joy. Urge every scholar to be sure that he has the presence of Jesus with him.

Jesus found in the temple (46-51).—The "three days" include the day's journey (44), the return (45), and the search (46). In all probability they found Him during the day following their return to the city. According to Lightfoot there was a synagogue in the south-east part of the inner court of the temple, where the Rabbins explained the law. It was probably here that Jesus was found. The description of Jesus, "in the midst of the doctors," does not attribute to Him any unseemly forwardness. "A lecturing, demonstrating child would have been an anomaly, which the God of order would never have exhibited." No doubt his intelligent and spiritual insight was manifest alike in his questions and his answers; but He was among them as a learner—"hearing them, and asking questions." He was making the most of his opportunity. His ear was open to learn (Isa. l. 4). His parents, as well as the doctors, were astonished at his understanding (48). Was there a tone of reproach in the words of Mary (48)? The answer of Jesus suggests some astonishment that they should have had difficulty in finding Him. Where else could He be but in his Father's house, and about his Father's affairs (49)? The words were a further mystery to Mary (50). She remembered the significant words of the angel to her (Luke i. 32). But probably she had not yet endeavoured to teach Him the meaning of these words. Had He learned without her teaching? She had said, "Thy Father" (48); He had replied, "My Father." Was the consciousness of his Divine Sonship just dawning upon Him? But the words are important, as giving the keynote for the whole of his after-life. Comp. John iv. 34, viii. 29, ix. 4. How significant that, after uttering such words, He should at once go down to Nazareth with his parents, and be subject to them! Was He not thus for another eighteen years, during which He was known only as "the Carpenter," or "the Carpenter's Son," still about his Father's business? Not among learned Jewish doctors, but in the quiet of the home of Joseph and Mary, in meditation on the Sacred Word, and in prayerful fellowship with his Father, He was to be trained for his great work.

What an example Jesus is for boys. Let them imitate his love for the house and service of God; his eagerness to learn Divine things; his devotion to his Father's service; and his readiness to express his devotion by subjection to his earthly parents.

SANDWICH MEN.—In the large hall of the Theatrical Mission Institute, Covent-garden, a meat tea was given last week to theatre sandwich men. Addresses were given by various friends, and at the close, warm woollen comforters made by friends, and Gospel portions were given to each.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN SAILORS' SOCIETY.—The annual re-union of this Society was lately held, when agents from the East India, Milwall, and Victoria and Albert Docks were present. After tea addresses were delivered by Rev. J. P. Millar, Captain George Clarke, by the other agents of the Society present, and by several of the workers at the Institute. Mr. D. Carnegie, chaplain, stated that during the past year he had addressed 693 meetings, visited 1917 vessels, and given out of the Samaritan Fund 1440 free beds, and 4692 free meals. The headquarters are at the Sailors' Institute, Shadwell, London, E.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.—At a farewell of missionaries recently held at the Jubilee Chapel, East-road, Hoxton, leave was taken of two young ministers—John Carter and William Tremberth—who are proceeding to Yun-nan, Western China, to augment the staff of six agents of the Bible Christian Missionary Society in that province. Rev. John Orchard, general superintendent of the missions of the Bible Christians in New Zealand, is returning; Rev. John Herridge Batt, of Bristol road Chapel, Brighton, put in a plea for greater enthusiasm in the Lord's work. Mr. Baller, of the China Inland Mission, with whom the young missionaries-designate are about to sail, bore testimony to the gifts and services of the devoted agents of the Bible Christian Missionary Society already in the field.

PRAYER AND MISSIONARY WORK.

As intimated last week, Mr. B. Broomhall has edited, in pamphlet form*, Dr. Maclaren's recent address in the Metropolitan Tabernacle on "The True Source of Missionary Zeal," and a paper by Dr. Alden, of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, on "The Main Instrumental Force of Missionary Work." Some very inspiring items on prayer are also given. Dr. Alden's paper is largely devoted to a recital of the testimony of twenty-six missionaries labouring in different fields. That testimony may be summarised in the words of the Psalmist: "I called upon the Lord, and He heard me." We give a few sentences from some of these deeply interesting and spiritually instructive pages:—

One missionary writes:—"The missionary has not the social and ecclesiastical supports of the pastor of a church at home; hence, even if his own inclinations do not lead him to communion with his heavenly Father, he is often brought to such extremities that he feels obliged to seek Divine help and guidance. My own experience has been that while there is no miraculous intervention, there is direct and positive help, and while there is no overruling or setting aside of human peculiarities or imperfections, if any man lack wisdom he has simply 'to ask God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him.'"

Another says: "My strong conviction is that our success in the missionary work depends chiefly on our keeping in close union and fellowship with Christ; and that this union, effected and maintained by the Holy Spirit, is nourished on our part by constant watchfulness and prayer. I could no more think of a fruitful spiritual life without frequent prayer than of a vigorous physical life without breathing."

A third writes:—"To myself prayer is a positive force, a real power; the throne of grace is my place of refuge, and without it I could not have endured thirty years of missionary life. I am convinced, too, by abundant observation, that in the opinion and conviction of the evangelical Christians of Turkey, prayer is a vital power. I have personally known many poor women, many distressed brethren, and not a few dying saints, who have been sustained both in life and death by the access they have had to God in prayer."

From China a worker writes:—"No Christian is born without prayer; no one makes progress in the Christian life without prayer; no Christian work is successfully accomplished without prayer. The spirit of prayer is the infallible thermometer by which the spiritual life of the Church may be known. Our own little mission church was born of prayer, and every bud and flower of promise has been watered with prayer."

Yet another:—"When the missionary ceases to live by prayer, he had better go home. I shrink from giving much personal experience in particular cases, but I do desire to say gravely and earnestly that my missionary life has been successful so far as I have been prayerful, and non-successful so far as I have been lax in prayerfulness. What difficulties I have been carried through, what burdens I have been able to bear by the help of God obtained through prayer, simple and direct!"

A beloved and honoured sister testifies:—"Daily, hourly communion with the eternal God can alone sustain. It is thus we learn what it is to pray always. God often has to give us the lesson to learn over, but if we are to succeed, we must learn this lesson by heart. Why, prayer is our great Corless engine, which moves all the smaller machinery; the fulcrum that Archimedes sought, on which to rest the lever to move the world. We do mean that we need your prayers when we ask for them, though many may think they are but pious words."

* THE TRUE SOURCE OF MISSIONARY ZEAL AND THE MAIN INSTRUMENTAL FORCE OF MISSIONARY WORK. 3d. London: Morgan & Scott.

BETHANY HALL, WOODSIDE, was opened a few days ago by a public meeting, presided over by Rev. E. A. Kempson, vicar of St. Mary's, Merton. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. W. Bond, pastor of Penge Tabernacle, Messrs. W. Olney, W. Ewen, and others. The work is quite unsectarian, Christ and Him crucified will be the Gospel alpha and omega of the message. Mr. King will trust the Lord for his support. His address is 4, Crowther-road, South Norwood, Surrey.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Bishop Moorhouse has achieved the distinction of founding a School of Divinity for literates in his diocese, by means of which young men in business, who may have a vocation for the ministry, can receive a thorough theological training under the Bishop's own supervision.

On Sunday week at a special service in Trinity Church, Cambridge, Bishop Crowther ordained Mr. Eric Lewis, for special missionary service in the Soudan. The ordination sermon was preached by Rev. H. C. G. Moule, from Acts xiii. 4; Rev. F. E. Wigram also took part in the service. In the evening Bishop Crowther himself preached, and after the service Mr. Moule addressed a large congregation of University men.

On Wednesday, last week, the annual gathering was held of those clergymen who have been ordained by the Bishop of Liverpool since 1880. A large number gathered together, some coming from different dioceses. In the course of the day practical papers were read by Rev. W. H. Barlow, vicar of Islington, London, and Rev. H. James, rector of Livermere. The object of those gatherings is for the promotion of devotion, mutual edification, and brotherly intercourse.

At Westminster Abbey, on Saturday afternoon, Archdeacon Farrar delivered, before a large congregation, the last of a series os four addresses on missions. In the course of his address Dr. Farrar remarked that even if missions had never won a single soul over from heathendom—whereas they had won two million converts in this century alone from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God—it could still be shown that even the indirect, the secondary, the reflex blessings had been incomparable and astonishing in regard to the interests of empire, of science, of civilisation, and the improvement of the conditions of all men. He proceeded to enumerate some of these reflex results, and in closing expressed the earnest hope that he might have been able to cause some of those who had listened to his words to take their share in fulfilling the command of Christ—"Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature."

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Z. B. Woffendale has completed twenty years of labour at Somers Town Presbyterian Church, Ossulston-street, N.W. At the annual meeting of the congregation, last week, it was stated in the report that 8100 souls had professed conversion to God during Mr. Woffendale's ministry, and that no less than 3000 of these had joined the fellowship of the church. The past year had been a prosperous one, 169 members having been added to the roll, the total membershi p being now 1010. The Institute, Kings-cross Theatre, and other evangelistic agencies are all in good and promising condition.

CONGREGATIONAL.

In connection with Westport Church, Malmesbury, there is a "Christian Band" with a membership of 125, including young people of almost every denomination in the town.

Rev. Joseph King, of Melbourne, has been appointed deputation agent of the London Missionary Society for the whole of Australasia and New Zealand, in place of the late Rev. J. P. Sunderland.

"Pleasant Sunday Afternoons" have been inaugurated at Westminster Chapel, James-street, Buckingham-gate, S.W., the first address of the series being opened by Rev. J. Guinness Rogers. The addresses each Sunday afternoon in February, at 3.30, are to be delivered by Rev. John McNeill.

METHODIST.

Two missionaries have been ordained at Chapel-street, Luton, for work in India—Messrs. Alfred Dumbarton and C. T. Winters. The service was conducted by Revs. Marshall Hartley and J. M. Walmsley, and the charge given by Rev. John Walton.

A convention and meeting on behalf of the London Mission were held at Canterbury on Monday, last week, Rev. W. D. Walters having preached on the previous day. In the evening addresses were given by Revs. Peter Thompson, J. H. Hopkins, and W. D. Walters. Great interest was aroused in the various branches of the work.

There has been an encouraging revival at Hull. At Jarratt-street Primitive Methodist Chapel, Rev. J. T. Parr, of Leeds, has just concluded a second mission, and over one hundred persons have professed conversion to Christ. At Holderness-road and Williamson-street Chapels Mr. J. Flannagan has been holding successful revival services, and more than a hundred persons have professed conversion.

Rev. C. H. Kelly, speaking at a meeting at Louth, affirmed that the Methodist Church had the largest membership of any in the English-speaking community. But size was nothing, or next to nothing, so far as goodness was concerned; and the first want of Methodism was not her twenty or thirty million members so much as a continuance of that grace of God which would make them holy people, earnest for the spread of Scriptural holiness throughout the land.

The Liverpool Wesleyan Mission, of which Rev. Charles Garrett is superintendent, does not come much before the general public, but it is by no means the least successful of the great Wesleyan missions. The late Mount Pleasant Wesleyan Chapel, now the Central Hall, stands at the head, but besides there are five vigorous branches, planted amid dense and needy populations, some of them of the most degraded type. Mr. Garrett is assisted by a minister and six or seven lay agents of special fitness for the work.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Bristol and Somerset Quarterly Meeting, held last week in Bristol, was favoured with the company of Addison White and wife, of Iowa, who have been liberated to visit the families of Friends in Great Britain and Ireland. They are now engaged in Bristol Meeting, and their services are spoken of with satisfaction by many in the districts where they have laboured. The problem of poverty was discussed with ability and earnestness at the Quarterly Meeting, and its further consideration was commended to Friends.

Wales was once the home of many congregations of Friends, but persecution here and an open door in America resulted in their reduction. Recently, however, revival has come in Radnorshire and elsewhere, and John Owen Jenkins is now feeling Pembrokeshire on his heart, and spent Sunday last at Milford Haven in pursuit of his concern. The Christian conduct of early Friends left an impression on the public mind which is still a goodly legacy to their successors.

The Christian Worker of the 9th inst. gives interesting and encouraging missionary reports from Ramallah, in Palestine, Alaska, and Tokio, in Japan, and urges the necessity of occupying the wide and open fields in Western America. The Church there is increasingly active and successful in its grapple with ignorance, carelessness, and sin.

J. T. Dorland, of Canada, accompanied for the first few days by Dr. Thorpe, of Liverpool, held meetings last week in Nottingham—Bible-readings in the afternoons, and Gospel meetings in the evenings. All these were well attended, the interest deepening from day to day. Many were truly blessed.

BAPTIST.

The sad intelligence has been received of the death at sea of Rev. J. G. Brown, who was returning to England from the Congo. Mr. Brown, who was leaving the Mission, was on his way home with Mrs. Brown, whose health had recently been failing. Mr. Brown went out from the Pastors' College to Africa about two years ago.

At the annual church meeting of the Baptist Church, Westbourne, Bournemouth (Rev. Geo. Wainwright's), the reports of the various agencies were of a most encouraging character. The nett increase of the members during the year was twenty-eight. Towards the fund for the new building over £1230 have been given or promised.

Of the £5000 asked for on behalf of the Baptist Forward Movement—henceforth to be known as the "Mid-London Forward Movement"—four-fifths have been subscribed. Dr. Lush, a son of the late Lord Justice, gives free medical advice to the poor three days a week in connection with the movement, whose centre is at John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.

A series of meetings for spiritual conference among the members of the Nottingham Tabernacle (Rev. H. E. Stone, pastor), was commenced three weeks since. So well attended were these, and so much blessing enjoyed, that they have been carried on for three weeks. Different but practical subjects were discussed, such as, "Obligations of Church members, Sabbath-school teachers, parents, children," &c.; and the pastor is now considering a general request for the establishment of a 7 o'clock morning service once a week.

Rev. F. B. Meyer has been interviewed on the subject of the Baptist Forward Movement. It was proposed to have as a working centre a house which would serve as a residence for seven or eight ladies who will devote their time to visiting the homes of the poor, rendering personal help in domestic life, and nursing the sick; and who will not only give their time, but pay for their own maintenance. It is also proposed to establish in the district between St. Pancras Station and Holborn, a central institution for training and organising a band of lady and general workers for service amongst the poor.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Mountpottinger Y.M.C.A. has had a prosperous year, and has now 300 members.

The Adelaide-road Presbyterian Church, Dublin, of which Rev. R. McCheyne Edgar is the esteemed pastor, has had one of the most successful years in its history.

The Dublin Presbyterian Association has had a fairly prosperous year. It began the year with 541 members, and closed with 563. The Association has carried on successful evangelistic work during the year, and its hall in Sackville-street has been a central meeting-place and well equipped club for Presbyterians throughout the south and west of Ireland, as well as a meeting-place for the young men and young women of the Church in Dublin.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

The Edinburgh Free Church College committee is recognising the importance to students of practical advice and instruction in the art of preaching. The first of a special series of lectures has been delivered by Dr. Walter Smith.

Rev. Mr. Paterson, of Newcastleton, who is still pursuing his temperance mission to school children, has been refused permission to address the children attending the Portobello Board Schools. It is to be hoped that no such rebuffs will deter him from energetically carrying forward the work to which he has set his hands.

At a social meeting of evangelistic workers in connection with Cowcaddens Free Church, Glasgow, the pastor, Rev. Wm. Ross, stated that over 600 workers were actively engaged in their district, while sixty services were held every week at four different centres. During the past six years they have added 1683 souls to their fellowship.

NOTES FROM WALES.

In a recent letter Sir Pryce Pryce Jones has urged that the churches in Wales, established and unestablished, instead of doing anything that would be mutually harassing, should stand shoulder to shoulder in promoting the common cause.

A Nonconformist Congress for Wales is being promoted. Mr. Owen Owen, Oswestry, has been in communication with about a hundred leading ministers and laymen belonging to the four denominations—Congregational, Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Wesleyan Methodist—in Wales, and nine-tenths of the replies received are favourable to a movement in the direction of closer relations between the Nonconformist bodies.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Wm. Bridges, vicar of Holme St. Cuthbert's, Maryport.—Rev. Charles King, for many years pastor of the Congregational Churches at Templecombe and South Cheriton, at Zeals, Wilts, in the 93rd year of his age.—Rev. Dr. Witherow, Professor of Church History and Pastoral Theology at Magee College (Irish Presbyterian), Londonderry.—Rev. Robert Stephens, Congregational minister, of Stockport.—Rev. A. Matheson, parish minister of Glenshiel, N.B.—Rev. John Phillips, Primitive Methodist minister, Woolwich.

A SOLDIERS' HOME IN LONDON.—The Secretary of State for War, Mr. Edward Stanhope, M.P., performed an interesting ceremony last week in declaring open a new Home for Soldiers at 155B, Buckingham Palace-road. The movement on behalf of the institution has been undertaken in their private capacity by a few gentlemen belonging to the Wesleyan body, in the interests of the soldiers of all denominations. The Home consists of a shop, which has been converted into an attractive coffee-bar and refreshment-room, with a small concert-hall adjoining, a library and smoke-room, and two comfortably furnished bedrooms.

MISS MACPHERSON'S CANADIAN HOME.—Letters from Mrs. Wm. Merry at the Stratford (Ontario) Home give a very encouraging and gratifying account of the Christmas and New Year's doings there. There were goodly gatherings of such of the children as were near enough to pay a holiday visit to the Home which has so nobly befriended them. Mr. and Mrs. Merry were cheered by the accounts of prosperity and progress received from their young proteges, while much good counsel and admonition were given to the visitors in turn, by hosts and friends who had come to swell the chorus of rejoicing. In the well-known Trans-Atlantic phrase, everybody had "a good time."

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—On Thursday evening last week the New Year's Devotional Meeting of the London Female Preventive and Reformatory Institution was held in Exeter Hall. Mr. C. H. Marten presided. Rev. G. W. M'Cree having given a practical exhortation, Mr. E. W. Thomas said that during the past year there had been 1360 new applications by and on behalf of young women and girls at 200, Euston-road. In every case efforts were made to promote the permanent welfare of those received. It had been again resolved to admit all suitable cases, irrespective of any fluctuations of income. Colonel Wraugh encouraged the workers, and earnest prayers were offered by Mr. Barnes, Mr. Drysdale, Mr. Ireton, and other friends.

SOLDIERS' HOME, WINCHESTER.—During the past few months God has been blessing the work carried on here, in a very marked way. Besides the work at the Soldiers' Home, there are several halls and mission-rooms, where the Gospel is proclaimed almost every evening, and where a rich harvest of souls is being ingathered. The changed characters and reformed lives witnessed make the workers desire to reach other dark places around. Colportage work has done much good, but the homes in the rural districts are so wide and scattered, that it has necessitated the employment of a Bible-carriage, which will greatly enlarge the sphere of usefulness. These varied agencies of course entail considerable expense. The superintendents of the work are Misses Perks.

Old Southgate, N.—The Mission in connection with the Metropolitan Tabernacle Country Mission is in charge of Mr. C. Wickerson, whose labours have been greatly owned of God. A church is now formed with Bible-classes, Sunday-school, week night meetings, &c. An effort, however, is about to be made to replace the iron building, in which the work has hitherto been carried on, by a permanent brick one, with schoolroom, &c., to cost about £1500. Mr. C. H. SPURGEON is acting as treasurer to the fund.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

MESSRS. MIDDLETON and HOGBEN are prepared to conduct evangelistic missions in town or country.—Apply to Mr. William Baker, Lancaster House, Lancaster-road, West Dulwich, S.E.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, Leadenhall-street, E.C.—Missionary Conference, Thurs., Feb. 6. Subject—"The Foreign Field and its Call to Young Men." 6.30. p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun. Feb. 2, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. J. Williams. On Thurs., Feb. 6, lecture by Rev. James Neil, on "Picture Language of the Bible." Meeting for prayer, Suns., 7.45 a.m., Weds., Fris., and Sats., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30, public, Mr. John Jackson. Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2. Mission to men, nightly at 8, from Feb. 9—17. Speaker—Rev. H. Montgomery, of Belfast.

Y.M.C.A., HACKNEY, 275, Mare-street, N.E.—United Mission, by Mr. Henry Thorne, to Feb. 10.

Y.W.C.A., 14, FINSBURY-SQUARE, E.C.—Feb. 2—9 (week of prayer for young women), special services conducted by Miss B. Pigott. Suns., 3.30 p.m.; week evenings, 8 (Sat ex.).

Y.W.C.A., PRINCESS HOUSE, Brompton-road, S.W.—A quiet day will be held in the Mission Hall, on Sat., Feb. 8. Meetings at 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. Mr. Reader Harris, Dr. Stoney, Mr. Cootee Collis, and others are expected to speak.

REV. DR. PIERSON'S ENGAGEMENTS during Feb.:—2 and 3, Aberdeen, N.B.; 4, Fraserburgh; 5, Peterhead; 6, Aberdeen; 7, Brechin; 9 and 10, Perth; 11, Dundee; 12, Forfar; 13, Arbroath; 14, Montrose; 16 and 17, Dumfries; 18, Lockerbie; 19, Moffat; 20, Glasgow; 21, Coatbridge; 23, Melrose and Galashiels; 25, Hawick; 26, Selkirk; 27, Kelso and Jedburgh; 28, Berwick.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Mr. Herbert R. Francis, each Sunday in Feb., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Feb. 2, 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7, Ned Wright. Tues., Feb. 4, 7.30 p.m., lecture by Mr. E. L. Hamilton, of the North Africa Mission. Subject—"Moorish Life."

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE.—Ten lectures on this subject will be given by Dr. E. W. Bullinger, at Conference Hall, 143, Clapham-road, S.W., Thurs., at 4 p.m., beginning Jan. 30.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Piccadilly: Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. Dr. Lunn. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—A Quiet Day, Portman Rooms, 32, Dorset-street, Portman-square, W., Fri., Jan. 31. Morning, 11.30, Revs. F. B. Meyer and C. A. Fox; afternoon, 3.30, Revs. Nevile Sherbrooke and Evan Hopkins; evening, 8, Revs. F. H. White and H. J. Berguer.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C.—Subject for Jan. and Feb.—"Christ's own Exposition of his Mission," by Rev. Dr. Allon. Tues. next, at 12 noon—"The Responsibility of Faith."

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, Park-square East (near Portland-road, Station), N.W.—Weekly Bible-class for workers, Fri., 8.15 p.m., conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Sun. services, 11 and 7.

WESTMINSTER CHAPEL, James-street, Buckingham-gate, S.W.—Sun. afternoons in Feb., at 3.30, Rev. John McNeill. All seats free.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Feb. 7. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Address by Rev. Marcus Rainsford, jun., on "Ambassadors for Christ." Mr. E. H. Glenny will give an account of his recent visit to Morocco and Algiers.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Feb. 7, all-day meetings, 11 a.m., prayer and testimony, 3 p.m., Rev. W. Fuller Gooch; 7 p.m., Mr. Reader Harris.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Regent-square, W.C.—Rev. John McNeill, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 7.30, p.m.

[120]

PARIS DAILY INTERNATIONAL PRAYER-MEETING—9 a.m. at Miss de Broen's Temperance Refreshment Rooms and General Inquiry Office, 205, Rue Saint-Honoré, within easy reach of most of the English and American hotels.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, Ratcliff-highway, London, E.—Monthly muster of the "Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., Feb. 4, at 7 p.m.

OPEN-AIR MISSION (South London Auxiliary).—Annual meeting, New Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars-road, Tues., Feb. 4. Chairman, Sir Douglas Fox. Speakers—Revs. W. Fuller Gooch, W. Mottram, James Roberts, and G. D. Wyatt. Tea at 6 p.m; meeting at 7.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—Monthly prayer-meeting, 200, Euston-road, Thurs., Feb. 6, 6.30 p.m.; workers in missions on behalf of young women and girls are earnestly invited.

REV. F. D. SANFORD, Gospel Mission Hall, Kensal-road.—Feb. 2—12. Suns. 3 and 7.30 p.m.; week days (Sat. ex.), 3.30 and 8 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next at 11 and 6.30, Mr. William Nobbs.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services every Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. Russell Hurditch, Sundays, at 6.30, Fridays, at 7.30 p.m during Feb.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Lieut. Mandeville, during Feb., on Suns., 11 and 7, and on Weds., at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, at 8.

ST. JOHN'S HALL, Clerkenwell (Cow Cross Mission).—Mr. James Dight, every Sun. during Feb., at 7; Wednesday at 8 p.m.

DUNDEE.—Convention for the deepening of spiritual life, Kinnaird Hall, Feb. 26—28.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—C.C.F. L.E.C. A.J.N. K.P. A.W.S. O.M.S. T.J.C. J.W. J.F.J. Mrs. F. H.H. J.P. G.W.K. J.K. J.M. E.M.A.C. E.H. G.H. A.J.A. T.M. W.A.I. T.T.P. W.L. G.H.B. W.M.C. R.S. J.N. A.H.S. G.R. W.P.S. E.D. R.D.F. K.A.S. A.S.D. W.T. A.E.W. R.McN. A.D. J.H.O. R.H. J.H.C. H.M. E.L. G.H.A. J.P.L. C.T. E.R.H. J.B. F.A.S. E.K.J. D.O. E.T.E.P. W.S. P.F. J.A.F. G.M.D. E.M.J. W.M.O. J.P.H. G.J.H. H.K. J.J.J. J.G.R. R.C. J.A. J.H. J.B.S. W.H. P.T.F. J.W. A.M.S. J.O. W.P. M.McL. W.D. W.H.D. G.P. L.T. H.B. A.M.S. E.H.B. W.F.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. G. Clark, Hardingstone, near Northampton; Rev. T. Shankland, Baptist minister, Mold, N. Wales; R. Cottoe, 55, Beatrice-road, S.E.; Mrs. John Atkins, Fonthill, Welland County, Ontario, Canada; J. Harris, Rose-hill Villa, South Ford, Dartmouth; W. R. Clark, Albany, Stapleford, Notts; P. Lee, 14, Richmond-gardens, London, W.; Miss Morris, Yew Tree Cottage, Eymsford, Kent; A. Solloway, 127, Walton-street, Oxford; W. Hollins, 64, Holden-street, Shaftesbury Park, S.W.; Miss Juniper, 141, London-road, Brighton; W. J. Fleetwood, 99, Mill-street, Liverpool; B. Thomas, Merrow, Guildford; D. Newell, 3, Merton-street, Banbury; L. E. Clarke, 41, Commercial-street, E.

A STRANGE STORY comes from Finland. A regular slave mart still exists in many of the country districts. Once a year such paupers, lunatics, and aged people of each parish as cannot support themselves are put up to public auction, and consigned to those farmers or families who will board them at the lowest price offered by the parish authorities. The helpless creatures are made to work as much as possible by their owners, who have the right to chastise them, and are generally most inhuman in their treatment. Lunatics have been used even as cart horses.—Northern Advance.

A MISSIONARY BREAKFAST in connection with the Oxford University branch of the London Missionary Society was held at the Randolph Hotel, Oxford, on Saturday morning. The chair was occupied by Professor Legge, and amongst those present were Professor Sanday, Principal Fairbairn, Canon Cheyne, Canon Fremantle, Dr. Pope, Canon Christopher, Dr. A. T. Pierson, Rev. R. Glover, Bristol, and Rev. F. J. Chavasse, principal of Wycliffe Hall. Professor Legge said the promise with respect to missionary enterprise throughout the world was greater than it was at the beginning of last year—the various objections then rampant right throughout the country about missions in India, Africa, and other places, had been repelled most effectually during the past year; whilst help and encouragement had come from a rather unexpected quarter, and that was the experience and testimony of Mr. Stanley on the accomplishment of his great journey through Africa. A rousing address by Dr. Pierson followed. Rev. T. E. Slater, of Bangalore, also spoke, and gave some interesting details respecting the various methods employed in the conversion of the natives.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO MONDAY, JANUARY 27, 1890.

	£	s.	d.
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work—J.P.B. £50; Mrs. E.P.C. £2	52	0	0
Mission to Brazil (Mr. E. H. Soper)—S.Y.	2	0	0
Society Relief Persecuted Jews—J.O.	0	10	0
McAll Mission—J.O.	0	2	6
West African Mission (Mr. Johnston)—In Memoriam C.C.	0	7	6
China Inland Mission—E.W. £2; M.A. 10s; Ignotus, 7s. 6d.	2	17	6
Church Missionary Soc.—A.J.C. £5; K.R.H. 1s	5	1	0
Moravian Missions (London Association)—A.J.C.	5	0	0
Maloga Aboriginal Mission (Mr. D. Matthews)—H.M.	3	0	0
Livingstonia Mission (African Lakes)—T.H.C.	1	0	0
British & Foreign Bible Society—T.H.C. £1; Daisy, 5s	1	5	0
New Hebrides Mission (Rev. J. G. Paton)—S.G.	2	10	0
Mr. F. S. Arnot's Work, Central Africa—S.G.	2	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—S.G.	0	10	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—G.S.E.R.T. 5s; Anerley, £1; Little Aley, Travancore, 5s; J.M.L. £2; Inasmuch, 2s 6d; E.C. 2s 6d; Wilsey, £1; J.O. £1; Capt. G.H.F.M. £5; E.R. 2s 6d; M.B.P. 5s; T.H.C. £1; H.F.D. 5s; B.B. 10s	12	17	6
Friendless & Fallen—Miss L. 2s 6d; Alone and Forsaken, £1; M.G.T. 10s; Mr. C.M. £1 1s; T.H.C. £1; Daisy, 5s	3	18	6
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen—Unprofitable Servant, £1; Wilsey, 6s; B.G.M. 2s 6d; Capt. G.H.F.M. £5; T.H.C. £1	7	8	6
Cow Cross Mission—A.Y. £1; J.S.C. 10s 1d; T.S. £1 1s	2	11	1
Evangelistic Mission—J.F.E. 2s 6d; Mrs. W.A.P. 19s; A.Y. 5s; H. 5s; Sir G.B. £1; F.V. 2s 6d; J.O. 2s 6d; E.R. 2s. 6d; K.T. 5s	3	4	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—M.A. 5s; Mrs. E.P.C. £3; Ignotus, 10s	3	15	0
Miss Mittendorff's Orphan Homes—M.A.	0	5	0
Mr. H. L. Hastings, Printing Tracts—H.	0	2	6
National Lifeboat Institution—M.L. £2; Capt. G.H.F.M. £5	7	0	0
Scriptures for the Blind (Dr. Moon)—M.L.	1	0	0
Strangers' Rest, St. George's-street—M.L.	2	0	0
Church of England Temperance Society (Police Court Mission)—Alone and Forsaken	1	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses—L.N.	1	0	0
Home for Aged Blind Christian Men, &c.—L.N.	0	10	0
Home for Aged Poor—L.N.	0	10	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—L.N. 10s; M.G.T. 5s; B.B. 5s	1	0	0
Watercress and Flower-sellers' Miss.—L.N. 10s; Capt. G.H.F.M. £5	5	10	0
Miss Weston's Work (Royal Navy)—L.N. £1; T.H.C. £1	2	0	0
Miss Daniell's Soldiers' Home—L.N.	1	0	0
Miss Robinson's Soldiers' Home—L.N. £1; Mrs. E.P.C. £5	6	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Miss.—L.N. £1; Mrs. E.P.C. £3	4	0	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—L.N. £1; J.O. 5s; A.T.S. 5s; Collected, Mrs. C. 4s 6d; M.B.P. 5s; S.G. 10s; (Prison Mission), L.N. £1	3	9	6
Home of Industry—L.N. £1; T.H.C. £1; S.G. £1	3	0	0
Latymer-road Mission—E.M.	0	10	0
Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's Orphanage—M.R.McG.	0	2	6
Christian Community—Mrs. C.	2	0	0
King Edward Ragged Schools—Mrs. E.P.C.	2	2	0
Field Lane Refuges, &c.—Mrs. E.P.C.	2	0	0
George Yard Mission—Mrs. E.P.C. £3; T.S. £1 1s; F.F. £1; S.G. 10s	5	11	0
Distressed Irish Ladies—M.G.T.	0	5	0
Salvation Army—E.W.	2	0	0
London City Mission—G.F.E.	1	1	0
Home for Little Boys, Farningham, &c.—Capt. G.H.F.M. £5; A.D. 5s.	5	5	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—Capt. G.H.F.M. £5; A Merchant, £1	6	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Capt. G.H.F.M.	5	0	0
THE CHRISTIAN Tract Fund—Capt. G.H.F.M.	5	0	0
Miss Sharman's Orphans' Homes—Mrs. S.	0	0	8
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—K.R.H. 5s; S.G. 10s.	0	15	0
Dinners for Poor (Dr. H. G. Guinness) J.S.C.	1	0	0
Mr. Quarrier's Orphan Homes—J.S.C.	1	0	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—J.S.C.	0	10	1
Soc. Prevention of Cruelty to Children—T.H.C.	1	0	0
London Bible and Domestic Mission—T.H.C.	1	0	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—T.H.C.	1	0	0
Noon-Day Prayer Meeting—M.S.	5	0	0
Thames Church Mission—Clericus	0	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—A.D.	0	5	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—F.F.	1	0	0
Mrs. Smyly, Dublin, "Elliott's Homes"—S.G.	2	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation, THE CHRISTIAN, E.H.S.	0	5	0
Theatrical Mission—Collected, B.M.	0	3	6
	£204	0	10

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

The London Samaritan Society (Free Meals for Destitute Poor,—Miss A. £1; Mr. E.C. 5s; Miss C.P. 4s.

Evangelistic Mission—Readers of THE CHRISTIANS, twelve, 2s 6d each; Anon, 10s; Tunbridge Wells, 2s 6d; A.C., 2s 6d; M.A.G., 2s 6d; E.H., 2s 6d; Two Ladies, 5s; Kingsteignton, 2s; Reader, Edinburgh, 2s 6d; Clifton, 5s; Bayswater, 2s 6d; Exmouth, 2s 6d; M.M.C., 3s; Warrington, 2s 6d; Tewkesbury, 5s; Kinsale, 2s 6d; Portsea, 2s 6d; Bridge of Allan, 2s 6d; F.C.N., 2s 6d; Scarborough, 2s 6d; In the name of the Lord Jesus, 2s 6d.

Mission to Brazil (Mr. Soper)—Mrs. Deane Brown, £10.

Just published. Price 1s., Illustrated.

TEACHING TALKS.

the Author of "The Morte Stone." Post free from Mr. WILMSHURST, Blackheath, London.

The teaching is never tedious; the talk is never twaddle; not a k chapter in the book."—The Christian.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES

EVERY WEDNESDAY, HALFPENNY.

Contains each week an Outline Lesson by DR. SAMUEL Cox, besides Original Tales, Essays and choice Readings for School and Home.

The oldest and cheapest Sunday School paper.

London: JAMES CLARKE & Co., 13 & 14, Fleet-st., E.C.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS,

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY (Commenced 1863).

PRESIDENT—THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

THE COTTAGE HOMES AT FARNINGHAM

RE for 300 Little Boys, homeless or in danger of falling into crime. They are clothed, fed, educated, and taught Trades as Tailors, Shoemakers, Carpenters, Engineers, Bakers, Steam Printers, and Gardeners; and en provided with outfit and placed in situations, while they are looked after as "Old Boys."

THE ORPHAN HOMES AT SWANLEY

e for 200 Orphan or Fatherless Boys, who are wholly maintained and educated, and receive technical instruc- n in Lithography, Telegraphy, Photography, Chemistry, and other subjects, to fit them for a working life.

BASIS.—"The Institution is Scriptural, but Unsectarian; and the boys are educated in the fear of God and in e knowledge of the Holy Scriptures."

FUNDS are URGENTLY NEEDED to maintain the 500 Boys now in the Homes. Over 1,000 have eady been sent out into the world.

Annual Subscriptions, Donations, Congregational Collections, and Bequests are earnestly solicited, and will be ankfully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN; or the Secretary,

Offices—BANK BUILDINGS, LUDGATE CIRCUS, E.C. BENJAMIN CLARKE.

Bankers—MESSRS. SMITH, PAYNE & SMITH, 1, LOMBARD STREET, E.C.

MISSION TO LEPERS IN INDIA.

HERE are said to be about Half a Million of Lepers in India. The above Mission (founded in 1874) seeks to give them the Gospel, and to alleviate their sufferings by Medical aid. It at present carrying on work at Nineteen different centres, in connection with Ten different issionary Societies. The Annual Report and Pamphlets regarding the work may be obtained om the Secretary, ther of whom will gladly supply further information, and receive contributions.

WELLESLEY C. BAILEY, Esq., 17, Glengyle Terrace, Edinburgh; or from Miss C. E. PIM, Alma, Monkstown, Dublin;

£6 will support a Leper for one year. £20 will supply a Christian Teacher to an Asylum r the same period. About £150 to £200 will build an Asylum to hold Fifty Inmates the country districts. £50 will build a Home for the children of Lepers.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed nder carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in he large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where ermitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are ow seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings n board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is upported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, apt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the roprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

On 15th of each month

Price:

One Halfpenny,

24 Pages,

CONTAINING—

Short Spiritual Articles,

Reports of

The Faith Mission,

Testimonies, &c.

Published by

Marshall Bros., 10 Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

R. L. Allan, 143 Sauchiehall St., Glasgow.

Post Free for 1s. per annum, prepaid, from J. G. GOVAN, South Park, Hillhead, Glasgow.

"SANCTIFIED AND KEPT," 24 pp., ½d.; 3/6 per 100

"MY ANSWER TO GOD'S CALL," 1s. per 100.

"ROTHESAY CONVENTION REPORT," 88 pp., 4d.

MISS WESTON'S WORK

SAILORS' REST, DEVONPORT, nearly complete.

SAILORS' REST, PORTSMOUTH, wanted, 200 Cabins.

Donations for the Building Fund, please address—

MISS WESTON, Sailors' Rest, Devonport.

THE MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY.

PATRON—

ADMIRAL H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

Labours AFLOAT AND ASHORE, at HOME AND ABROAD, among 625,000 SEAMEN of the Mercantile Marine, Passenger, Emigrant, Light, and other Shi s, and Fishing-Vessels, &c.; and among 60,000 SEAMEN of the Royal Navy. Its work is SPIRITUAL, PHILANTHROPIC, and TEMPERANCE.

Increased FUNDS are URGENTLY REQUIRED.

Contributions and Offertories should be forwarded to Commander W. DAWSON, R.N., 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C.

SILENT SUFFERING IN EAST LONDON.—Few can realise the painful privation, together with the chronic and acute sickness, we are meeting with at present in our house to house visitation around our Mission Halls in the poorer quarters of East London. Nor is it confined to the homes of the dissolute and vicious—for these we have small compassion—but rather in those of such as would shrink from exposing their poverty or care to plead for charity. Worn clothes specially needed.

NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSION.

Contributions would be gladly received by Mrs. F. A. BEVAN, 60, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or by the Director, Mr. W. CHORLEY, 2, Marquess Grove, Canonbury, N.

WORK AMONGST MEN.

THERE are large bodies of men among the myriads of toilers in our metropolis who entirely neglect public worship.

Left to themselves, these masses of men become unchristianised, infidel and depraved, adding largely to the dangerous classes.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

in addition to its 393 Missionaries on ordinary districts, by its staff of 105 special and well-qualified Missionaries, is bringing large numbers of these men under the upraising influence of the Gospel of Christ.

Last year 72,827 visits were paid to poor Foreigners in our City, and 1,049 religious services were held for them in their various languages.

In upwards of 10,000 public-houses, quite 200,000 persons were reasoned with upon religion and temperance. Upwards of 85,000 factory people were instructed in the Gospel, and many attended the 1,782 meetings held for their benefit.

The Sabbathless tram-car, omnibus and railway-men received upwards of 200,000 visits in the public ways, at the stations, and in their homes.

The known results of this earnest seeking to save the lost is most satisfactory. Tens of thousands have been rightly influenced, and during the past year, 486 communicants have been won from amongst them, hundreds of drunkards have been reformed, and many thousands who have sunk back from the hard struggle of life have, in the time of sickness and approaching death, received consolation.

To support and extend this great work for the Lord Jesus, large funds are urgently needed. Contributions will be gratefully received by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or by the Secretaries, 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.; or by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54. Lombard-street, E.C.

MONTHLY, ONE HALFPENNY

THE

HERALD of MERCY.

ILLUSTRATED.

A Monthly Messenger for Humble Homes.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" gives—what is so much needed by Tract Distributors—a constant variety of Awakening Gospel Appeals, Invitations, and Encouragements. The Subscriber for the Year is thus enabled to furnish every month to the persons in his or her District a complete change of reading and religious instruction.

"THE HERALD OF MERCY" is supplied as follows:—

	For 6 Months.	For 12 Months.
8 Copies Monthly	2s. post free.	4s. post free.
12 "	3s. "	6s. "
20 "	5s. "	10s. "
52 "	13s. "	26s. "
100 "	25s. "	50s. "

Intermediate quantities at the same Proportionate Rates. Larger quantities on Special Terms.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

CONTENTS OF

THE HERALD OF MERCY FOR FEBRUARY.

AWAKENED BY A CHILD. With Full-page Engraving.
The Narrative of an ex-convict who was reclaimed by the sight of a child, reminding him of his own dear little one at home.

DO YOU KNOW JESUS? By C. H. SPURGEON.
A short talk on "THIS IS LIFE ETERNAL," or the knowledge of Christ's saving power.

THE HEN AND THE EGG. By H. L. HASTINGS.
Showing how an Infidel was silenced by a simple question on the origin of animal life.

COME HOME! A Poem by HENRY OVERY.

"Come home! thou wanderer, come home!
Though shamed, disgraced, and broken down;
His love will never cast thee from
The Father's house, which is thine own:
Come home! come home!"—Extract.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE. With Illustration.
Pussy's Purrs. | Read your Bible!

AUNT RUBY'S CURE FOR DUMPS. With Illustration.
An interesting story of a negress, who managed to be a help to her mistress while singing over her work.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME. With Illustration.
An account of the burial-places of the early Christians at Rome.

QUIET POWER.
On the forces of nature, and the working of God's Spirit in the heart.

 Send THREE STAMPS for Six Copies of THE HERALD OF MERCY for February.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

One Halfpenny Monthly.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES.

"The Christian who desires to give a bit of good reading along with a word in season to any fellow-traveller by road, rail, or river, could not do better than lay in a stock of this periodical. It costs only a halfpenny; but its contents are of a high spiritual quality, fitted to awaken the careless, and to lead to decision."
Christian Leader.

"Very good. Cannot be better. The very thing for distribution."—Sword and Trowel.

"It is profusely Illustrated, and full of instructive and profitable reading for old and young. The Gospel is presented in its most winning and attractive form."—Christian Age.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings,
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Important Work by Dr. A. T. PIERSON,
(Late Pastor of Bethany Church, Philadelphia; and at present ministering in London).

"MANY INFALLIBLE PROOFS."

The Evidences of Christianity;

Or, THE WRITTEN AND LIVING WORD OF GOD.

BY REV. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.

Tinted Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"A most masterly treatise on the Evidences of Christianity. The book is full of argument and of suggestion, and lighted up with striking illustration. The volume is a very 'readable' one, and those who have to do with 'honest doubters' could scarcely find a better to put into their hands."—The Church.

"Terse, trenchant, and suggestive."—Life of Faith.

"We have read the book with interest and profit, and we cordially commend it to our readers as a volume which is likely to gain a hearing where a more set and sober treatise would hardly be looked at. The writer has the faculty of expressing himself in simple language, and the almost raciness of style which he adopts, and his frequent illustrations, force the reader to go on."
Church Sunday School Magazine.

"A handbook of Evidences of Christianity by which the author found his way out of the deep darkness of doubt into the full light of day, and found that the Bible was the Book of God, and Christ the Son of God. May it help many others out of Doubting Castle!"
Methodist Times.

"Would that all our young men—and especially such as are exposed to sceptical influences—could get hold of this able work! It would fortify them in the faith of the Gospel, and supply them with powerful weapons against opponents."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

"For half-a-crown any one may obtain here all that is best in the way of fact and argument on prophecy and miracles, on the scientific accuracy and the ethical beauty and sublimity of the Bible, and on the person and teaching of Christ."
Methodist Recorder.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

Morgan & Scott's Cheap Edition of BUNYAN'S

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS. 6D.

With Thirteen Original Illustrations.

LIGHT TO THE HAND, and PRINTED IN A READABLE TYPE.

"This cheap edition of a book that will never wear out will be heartily welcomed."
Christian Commonwealth.

"It is tastefully got up, and deserves a large sale."
Teachers' Aid.

In ordering it will be needful to specify MORGAN & SCOTT'S Edition.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

UNIFORM WITH "BIRDS OF THE BIBLE."

PERCIVAL'S PICTURE GALLERY.

BY A. L. O. E.

With Carmine Borders and attractive Frontispiece, Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"A very striking work. Original, imaginative, and scriptural."—The Freeman.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Seventh Thousand. (Just Reprinted.)

BRINGING IN SHEAVES:

A Record of Evangelistic Labours

By REV. A. B. EARLE.

With Biographical Sketch of the Author.

Tinted Covers, 1/-; Cloth Boards, 1/6.

"There is much in this volume that could not fail to stimulate and encourage. It is prefaced by a singularly interesting sketch of the author, who appears to be a man of remarkable devotedness, combined with great earnestness."—Preacher's Lantern.

"Local preachers will find this book just the thing to help them in their work, and to all such we earnestly recommend it."—Primitive Methodist.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANACK

1890. A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. by 30 in.) 1890.

Printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting various Scenes in the Life of Jacob. Also containing a carefully selected Text for each Day of the Year; Postal Information; Phases of the Moon, &c.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Departure for Haran.
The Stone at Bethel.
Jacob Meeting Rachel.
Reconciliation of Jacob and Esau.
Dinah Leaving the Tent.
The Coat of Many Colours.
Joseph Meeting Jacob in the Land of Goshen.
Jacob before Pharaoh.
Jacob Blessing Joseph's Sons.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' ALMANACK for 1890, which Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT have issued, is quite worthy of its predecessors in the several features that have in the past proved interesting and useful."
Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, October 2, 1889.

"'THE CHRISTIAN' SHEET ALMANACK is beautifully illustrated. The Almanack is one that can be placed on the wall of any living-room."
St. John's Wood and South Hampstead Advertiser, October 14, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Newsagent or Bookseller in the Kingdom.

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
TRADE MARK.

ulvermacher's New Padded Belt
For the MILLION. Price One Pound.
ulvermacher's New Padded Belt
UPERIOR POWER. Price Two Pounds.
ulvermacher's New Padded Belt
AXIMUM POWER. Price Three Pounds.

PULVERMACHER'S APPLIANCES are invaluable all NERVOUS and PAINFUL DISORDERS, and ilst building up the debilitated constitution, they est that premature waste and decay which under- nes the whole fabric of the human body.
These MARVELLOUS CURATIVE APPLIANCES e now stood the test of Forty Years, and for com- t, efficiency, and cheapness they have no equal. The stion is often asked, "What is the difference between LVERMACHER'S BELTS and those of other kers?" and the answer is that Mr. Pulvermacher is only maker of Electric Belts who has ever been pported by the State Physicians of England and stria, and the only maker who has ever been allowed refer to our London Hospital Physicians.
Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician St. Mary's Hospital, says:—"I am satisfied that Mr. LVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet h every encouragement from the professional and entific men."
Dr. GOLDING BIRD, M.D., Physician to Guy's Hospital, s:—"I can hardly recommend Mr. PULVER- ACHER'S INVENTION too strongly to the notice of medical brethren."
ir CHARLES LOCOCK, Bart., M.D., says:—"PULVER- ACHER'S BELTS are very effective in neuralgia and umatic affections, and I have prescribed them largely my practice for other similar maladies, paralysis, &c.
PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent Street, London, W., is the oldest Elec- Institution in the world, and Pamphlets and Testi- nials may be had free of charge on application.

L. PULVERMACHER & CO.
194, Regent St., London, W.
ESTABLISHED OVER FORTY YEARS.

THE DEAF HEAR
WHEN THE DEAFNESS IS CAUSED BY SCARLET FEVER, COLDS, MEASLES, CATARRH, &c. BY THE USE OF THE INVISIBLE
SOUND DISC
which is the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes, and may be worn months without removal.
Sold only by
H. A. WALES, 18, Upper Woburn Place, Tavistock Square, W.C.

FITS.
EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS.
If you want to be permanently and speedily cured of this distress- complaint, discard prejudice, and write to THE SECRETARY, rwood House, Burwood Place, Hyde Park, London. He will send 'Gratis' full instructions for cure, and advice on diet.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS
For Walls of Mission Rooms, Hospitals, &c.
List of these Large Type Texts, printed in blue ink, e 31 inches by 20 (70 different Texts, 3d. each), will be nt on application to the Publishers,

To Tract Distributors.
THE HERALD OF MERCY
PACKETED IN ASSORTED NUMBERS AND LEAVES.

Packet A — Contains 100 assorted numbers of The Herald of Mercy.
AN EIGHT-PAGE ILLUSTRATED PERIODICAL.
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
THREE SHILLINGS PER PACKET.

Packet B — Contains 30 assorted numbers of The Herald of Mercy.
AN EIGHT-PAGE ILLUSTRATED PERIODICAL.
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.

Packet C — Contains 60 assorted (four-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.

Packet D — Contains 120 assorted (two-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.

Packet E — Contains 1,000 assorted (two-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GEMS OF PRAISE.
A Choice Collection of 288 Hymns and Tunes. Suitable for Gospel Services, Prayer Meetings, Sabbath Schools, Christian Associations, and Family Worship
Edited and Compiled by REV. E. PAYSON HAMMOND.

WORDS AND MUSIC, Old Notation or Tonic Sol-fa.	WORDS ONLY.
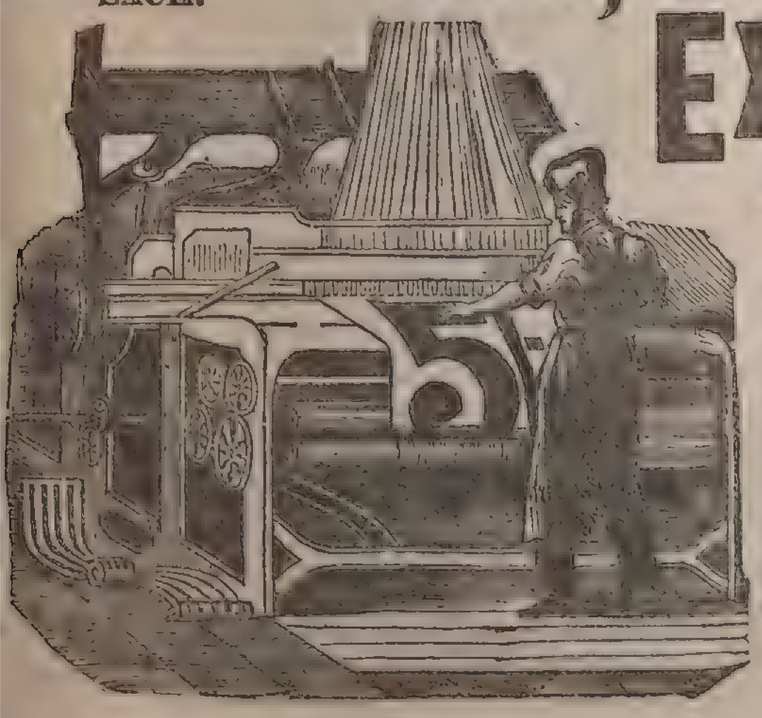
Paper covers .....1s. 0d.	Paper covers.....1d.
Cloth limp .....1s. 6d.	Cloth limp .....2d.

A large number of both Hymns and Tunes are original.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FRENCH DRESSES
JAQUES & JAQUES are French Dress Specialists, and their Patterns on approval sent Post Free all over the world. The system is unique—every Pattern is numbered. All orders are given from these numbers, and the Patterns are retained till the order is executed. The comparison thus afforded gives the purchaser absolute security against deception.
LOVELY NOVELTIES FOR THE SPRING are included in both Series, and they are equally complete in their choice and variety of Plain and Fancy Black Dresses, Serges, &c., as well as Coloured Fabrics.
WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.
THE SHILLING SERIES first introduced by JAQUES & JAQUES a year ago has now attained a wide reputation. This Series consists of an immense variety of Dress Materials at prices from Sixpence up to, but not exceeding, One Shilling per yard, and numbers many hundreds of Patterns.
WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.
THE TWO SHILLING SERIES contains Dress Materials above One Shilling, but not exceeding Two Shillings per yard, and is perfect for its variety of Plain and Fancy Fabrics at moderate prices.
WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.
Ladies can have both Series, by kindly stating their requirements, and also saying if Black or Coloured Patterns are wanted, on post-card, letter, or telegram, addressed to
JAQUES & JAQUES,
FRENCH DRESS HOUSE, DARLINGTON.
All Orders are sent Carriage Paid.

Suitable for a Birthday Present.
THE "GOLDEN TREASURY"
BIRTHDAY BOOK.
In this country very few books, except the "Pilgrim's Progress," have been so largely appreciated as
"BOGATZKY'S GOLDEN TREASURY."
This Edition, ARRANGED AS A BIRTHDAY BOOK, it is believed will be welcomed by many. In this BIRTHDAY Edition four additional pages are introduced at the close of each month's portions. These extra pages are arranged with blank square spaces, one for every day. Each space is adapted for receiving four entries, consequently, the total number of names which can be inscribed in the "Birthday" edition amounts to OVER FIFTEEN HUNDRED.
With Beautifully Illuminated Frontispiece.
Elegantly bound in Cloth Boards,
Gilt edges, 2s. 6d.
PRESENTATION EDITIONS.
French Morocco, gilt edges.. .. .. 3s. 6d.
Rich Coloured Leather, Padded, gilt edges .. .. 4s. 6d.
Each of the Leather copies is sent out in a neat card-board box, thereby securing safety in transit.

5/- EACH. 10,000 CARPETS. 5/- EACH.
EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.


Guaranteed Genuine Bargains. [FIVE SHILLINGS EACH.] Guaranteed Genuine Bargains.
THE BRITISH CARPET-WEAVING COMPANY will forward direct from their Looms to any address, on receipt of Postal Order for 5/- or 62 stamps, one of their GENUINE SEAMLESS WOVEN REVERSIBLE TRIUMPH CARPETS, with Handsome Border, and Woven in Six different Art Patterns to harmonise with surroundings in Drawing-room, Dining-room, Bedroom, Kitchen, Study, etc., and large enough to cover any ordinary-sized room. These Carpets will be sold as an ADVERTISEMENT FOR THE GOODS OF THE BRITISH CARPET-WEAVING COMPANY below the Actual Cost of Production, the price they have hitherto sold at being 8s. each. These Carpets are made of a material equal to wool, and, being a speciality of our own, they can only be obtained direct from our Looms, thus saving the Purchasers all Middle Profits (which are never less than fifty per cent.), by purchasing from the makers. 200,000 sold during the past twelve months.
Rug sent with Carpet, 1s. 6d. extra; or two Carpets and two Rugs for 10s. 6d.
THIS EXTRAORDINARY OFFER MAY NOT BE REPEATED. ALL ORDERS DESPATCHED SAME DAY AS RECEIVED.
Cheques and Postal Orders should be crossed "Union Bank," and made payable to J. HARGREAVES, at G.P.O.—Address
THE BRITISH CARPET-WEAVING COMPANY,
31, OLD STREET, ALDERSGATE, LONDON, E.C.

Just Published.

OLD MARGARET:

OR,

WITH STRIKING PORTRAIT. A SAINT AT LAST.

BY

Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.

In Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

Contents.

I.
"OUT OF THE MIRY CLAY."
II.
"HE SET MY FEET UPON A ROCK."
III.
"HE ESTABLISHED MY GOINGS."
IV.
"HE PUT A NEW SONG IN MY MOUTH."
V.
"EVEN PRAISE UNTO OUR GOD."

"A narrative taken from real life, and given to us in a very felicitous manner by the descriptive pen of Dr. Elder Cumming, of Glasgow. Dr. Cumming is well known to the religious public as one of the most attractive speakers at the Keswick Convention, and he uses the incidents, here so thrillingly sketched, of the experiences in the heart and life of a very remarkable woman to set before his readers the nature of sanctification and complete consecration. The whole picture is drawn by the hand of a master, and cannot fail in many ways to give great interest to the reader."
Dublin Evening Mail, Jan. 15, 1890.

EXTRACT.

"Instances of content and of faith were not uncommon in a life that seemed to others one of constant privation. Sitting in her place on the street, with the orange basket, while the rain poured down, a lady stopped to say:

"'How cold you must be to-day, Margaret, sitting there!'"

"'Feel my hand, Miss, she said; 'it is as warm as it can be!"

"'But the rain is so heavy!' was the reply.

"'Yes dear; but over the clouds the sun is shining, and the sky just as bright as ever. Praise the Lord!' . . . . . .

"She recognized an answer to prayer in almost everything! Sometimes it was finding a sixpence on the high road, when there was not a crust of bread in the house; sometimes it was a friend calling, and leaving the exact sum to pay the rent (which was due that evening, and must be paid), though the friend had no knowledge of the need. 'One left her room refreshed and rested by communion with her who communed so much with God. She spoke to God on all subjects audibly; and sometimes before she opened her door, one expected to find a visitor with her. It was Margaret speaking to God!'"

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Just Published.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

WITH MEZZOTYPE PORTRAIT. A DEVOTED LIFE.

BY

Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON,

Author of "Henry Moorhouse"; "Duncan Matheson"; "The Christian Hero"; "Revival and Revival Work."

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

PRESENTATION EDITION, Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is one of the most readable biographies we have had the pleasure of perusing. . . Christian workers will find in this biography a most helpful, stimulating, and instructive book. It is the history of a real woman, who in the course of her life spoke about the tremendous business of the soul to upwards of twenty thousand persons, one by one. . . . We have great pleasure in recommending this interesting work.'
Irish Congregational Magazine, December, 1889.

"The story of the life of Miss Macpherson, who devoted herself to the care and conversion of the most degraded classes. . . . Her character, as here delineated, is a very lovable one. There are many stories of her fearless intercourse with the diseased and the degraded."—Christian World, December 12, 1889.

"Truly this devoted woman did marvellous things in seeking to bringabout the Kingdom of God. Her holy boldness was something wonderful, but one must acknowledge that by God's blessing her success was something wonderful too. The history of such a consecrated life should be carefully and prayerfully read and considered."—The Freeman, December 20, 1889.

"In its subject and in execution this biography is of no common order. We have found the study of so sweet and noble a life, a joy to our heart and a stimulus to our zeal. . . . The sketch is a vade mecum for any who seek to be saviours of the sin-sick, and helpers of the poor."—Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine, Dec., 1889.

"This volume, which is both written and printed in good style, and well bound, will be a charm to many Christian families. It is worthy of a large circulation."
Primitive Methodist, December 19, 1889.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT.

Fifth Edition, Revised and Improved.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME:

THEIR CONTENTS AND TEACHINGS.

By BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S., Chamberlain of the City of London.

With Seventy Illustrations.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"There is no volume equally moderate in price giving to English readers so full and clear an account of those sepulchral remains of the early Christians."—Christian Leader.

BIRDS OF THE BIBLE. 5th Thousand.

Chats with Children about Bible Birds. By JAMES BOWKER, F.R.G.S.I. With Beautiful coloured Frontispiece, and numerous other Engravings. Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"This little book is a perfect gem. It is a luxury to handle, and a luxury to look at; and, we may add, most instructive to read. The skill of printer and bookbinder seems to have been exhausted in the get-up of this charming little gift-book."
Preacher's Analyst.

7th Thousand.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES:

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Readings and Study; and A PLAN OF CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"In a compact form, the work contains more valuable and varied information as to the Word of God and its connective teaching, than we have yet seen in any volume of a like size. We would earnestly urge every lover of the Word to procure and carefully read the book."—Word and Work.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS, OF EARLY CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD. By John Foxe.

With Twelve full-page Illustrations and Steel Plate Frontispiece. 1,083 pages. Handsomely bound in cloth, 10s. 6d.; Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are pleased to see the 'BOOK OF MARTYRS' well to the front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in the market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT an immediate sale of the present issue, which is marvellously cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, in The Sword and Trowel.

BY REV. GEO. F. PENTECOST, D.D.

"OUT OF EGYPT." 9th Thousand.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READINGS ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Dr. PENTECOST'S power as a teacher and expositor of the Word is anew displayed in these Addresses; and we are not surprised to learn that there has been an earnest demand for their publication."—Word and Work.

9th Thousand.

"IN THE VOLUME of the BOOK."

OR, THE PROFIT AND PLEASURE OF BIBLE STUDY. With Introductions by Revs. JOSEPH COOK and J. H. VINCENT, D.D. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"We have read this work with unusual pleasure. It is full of healthy thinking. It contains a large amount of information; abounds with wise counsels; is tersely and racily written; and is certain to captivate every reader who has even the least desire to be instructed in the many matters with which, in the preparation of it, the author had to deal."
The Baptist Magazine.

BY DR. JAS. CULROSS, M.A.

JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. With Eight Illustrations. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend this work."—Sword and Trowel.

"BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK!"

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea. Tinted covers, 1s. Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, boards, 2s. 6d.

"All who admire the author's grasp of great truths will welcome this volume."—The Freeman.

"THY FIRST LOVE."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"This work is instructive, suggestive, and full of spiritual force."—Sunday School Chronicle.

19th Thousand.

NOTES ON BIBLE READINGS.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects. By S. R. BRIGGS and JOHN H. ELLIOTT. Tinted covers, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible Readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

HOUSTONS

ESTD 1780 TRADE MARK A'OO

PRIZE MEDAL EDINBURGH 1886

A'OO HARRIS TWEEDS

or Suits, Ladies' and Gent.'s Jackets and Ulsters, and Boys' Clothing.

FASHIONABLE, MORE DURABLE, COMFORTABLE, and MUCH CHEAPER

han the Homespuns made in the Western Isles. Write or patterns. Orders carriage paid. Any length cut. Manufactured only by

R. HOUSTON & SONS, GREENOCK

Warehouse: West Blackhall St.; Mills: Rock Bank.)

The Trade Supplied.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.

EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.

Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.

J. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.

By Special Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Best Tooth Powder. Whitens the Teeth, Prevents Decay, Sweetens the Breath.

Ask anywhere for Rowland's Odonto.

HOUSEHOLD LINENS.

THE principle we adopt of holding as little stock as possible, and supplying all goods clean and fresh from the manufacturers, enables us to give the very best value for Sheetings, Pillow-Linens, Quilts, Table-Damasks, Huckabacks, Flannels, Blankets, &c., &c.

Samples with prices and full particulars on application. Any length cut. Sheets, Towels, &c., hemmed and marked free of charge.

Cambric and Hemstitched Handkerchiefs, &c. Price Lists of Underclothing, and all other goods on application.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,

263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

THE KING OF HOLLAND

IS HIGHLY PLEASED WITH

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

AND HAS GRANTED THE FIRM (Unsolicited)

THE RIGHT OF STYLING THEIR WORKS THE

ROYAL COCOA FACTORY.

(By deed of August 12, 1889.)

"Tired Nature's sweet restorer—balmy sleep."

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS BANISHED.

Bouillon Fleet.

A CUP LAST THING AT NIGHT BRINGS SLEEP SOFT AND REFRESHING.

BEWARE OF FLAVOURED IMITATIONS. SPICE IS OFTEN ONLY A CLOAK FOR INFERIORITY.

BEWARE OF BEEF PREPARATIONS THICKENED WITH PEA FLOUR, which, though nutritious, are indigestible and far from being the same value as animal nitrogenous matter, which alone forms the nutritious constituents of

Bouillon Fleet

TO BE HAD OF ALL GROCERS AND CHEMISTS.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME FROM THE AUTHOR

ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-Second Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

LETTER from MR. J. SMITH, BAPTIST MINISTER, CHIPPENHAM.

MR. SMITH, of 2, St. Mary's-place, is an occasional preacher in the "Gospel Standard" connection, and his case was introduced to me by Mrs. Prewett, a lady residing at Chippenham.

He had suffered for several weeks with chest symptoms, which developed into an aggravated form of Chronic Bronchitis, severe cough with much expectoration; he had also brought up pure blood and clots of blood. The breathing was very bad, and he became very weak.

He soon felt a little better. His friend writing me from time to time (I think about twenty letters altogether), reported a slow but certain improvement.

Cases differ very widely. With some persons long perseverance is required; others get rapidly well. None should be discouraged.

Mr. Smith is still taking my medicine. For any such patient to leave off before a perfect cure is established, would probably be the losing of the ground that has been gained.

October 25th, he writes me: "I believe your medicine has been the means of saving my life, by the blessing of God, for which I feel thankful, but as my chest is weak, and I easily take cold, I still use it, and find it do me more good than anything I have ever taken."

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is the most perfect emollient milk for preserving and softening the skin ever produced! It soon renders it soft, smooth, and white; entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, sunburn, tan, &c., and preserves the skin from the effects of the sun, wind, or hard water, more effectually than any other preparation. No lady who values her complexion should ever be without it, as it is invaluable at all seasons for keeping the skin soft and healthy.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free or 3d. extra by the Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide), Washes well. Useful for DRESSES, CURTAINS, BLINDS, DRAPERIES, SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

COMFORT FOR THE FEET.

WALKING IS NOW A PLEASURE TO ME.

Corns and Bunions may be removed, and Enlarged Toe Joints reduced by using THOMPSON'S NEW FRENCH CORN PLASTER. Those who are troubled with the discomfort of Corns, &c., will be glad to have attention called to this remedy, as it removes pain very speedily.

"It is a simple Plaster, thin as Silk, and comfortable to the Foot."—LADY MAUDE.

Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, Homœopathic and Dispensing Chemist, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.

Packets 1s. 1½d.; post free for 14 stamps.

☞ Ask for Thompson's Plaster, and Beware of Worthless Imitations.

SEND SIXPENCE

Can you read this?

Please NOTE that the Registered Word "COCOON" is on the Band.

For a Sample Box, containing 1 oz. Ball of

COCOON KNITTING WOOL,

And patterns of about 100 Shades, with Full Directions for knitting a number of useful articles with COCOON KNITTING WOOL.

The FASTEST POSSIBLE DYES used throughout. Apply to

COX & COMPANY,
99, New Oxford Street, London, W., or the Spinners,
WOOD & BURTT,
Holmfirth, Yorks.

TRY ALSO SUNFLOWER KNITTING WOOL for Hard Wear, a rather Stouter Yarn than Cocoon.

WHITE HEATHER, a Thick Soft Yarn for Knickerbocker Stockings, Petticoats, and Tam o' Shanters, both in 2 oz. packets 1 lb. and boxes.

LADIES AND CHILDREN SHOULD NEVER WEAR ANYTHING NEXT TO THE SKIN, BUT BARKER AND MOODY'S ABSOLUTELY UNSHRINKABLE FLANNELS

They are HYGIENIC, made from the softest & finest natural UNDYED WOOL, cannot chafe the tenderest skin & unlike other flannels, IMPROVE WITH WASHING.

CAUTION THE INITIALS B & M ARE PRINTED ON EVERY 5 YARDS

SCRIVEN. ASK FOR THEM. PERSEVERANCE MILLS, LEEDS.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS.

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
VEST WOOL
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.
If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKS.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD.

REGISTERED TRADE MARK
THE PADLOCK BRAND.
BURY'S Snowdrift CAKE FLOUR
TRY IT!

The wonder and joy of the tribe of Cake-makers,
The wonder and boast of the army of Bakers,
The wonder of Epicures—"Quite a new treat!"
The wonder of Invalids—making them eat;
The wonder of Doctors; the wonder of Nurses;
The wonder of Housekeepers, sparing their purses;
For saving Time, Money, Health, Temper, and Power,
The wonder of wonders is—

"SNOWDRIFT" CAKE FLOUR.

A DELICIOUS COMPOUND, combining every requisite for making Rich Madeira and Sponge Cakes. Raspberry Sandwiches, &c., without trouble, and at little expense.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

Highest Award "Universal Cookery and Food Exhibition," for "Snowdrift" Custard and Blanc-mange Powders.

Manufacturer—JOHN BURY, MANCHESTER.

NEEDLEWORK CABINET

SIZE 10 IN. × 7 IN. × 3 IN.
FREE BY POST 5s 6d

Invaluable to every Lady at Home or Abroad

5/-

Contains a Year's Supply of useful Haberdashery & Needlework Requisites, as follows:—Black & White Sewing Cotton, Coloured Sewing Cotton, Sewing Needles, Darning Needles, Bodkins, an assortment of Twilled Tapes, Hooks and Eyes, several Cards of Linen Buttons (different sizes), Pearl Shirt Buttons, Black & White Linen Thread, Mixed White Pins, Black Pins, Darning Cotton, a Measure, Silvered Thimble, &c.
In a HANDSOME WOOD CABINET, with Lock and Key.

Forwarded to any part of the Kingdom on receipt of P.O.O. for 5/6.

COX & Cº 99, NEW OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

THE GOSPEL FOR CHINA.

By Rev. HUDSON TAYLOR.

Page 12.

"APOSTOLIC WARFARE."

By Rev. J. DOUGLAS.

Page 21.

PRINCIPAL

Sign for the Scientists 8
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 9
The Brussels Conference 10
Some Scottish Missions.—XV.....13
Poem—"Amen" and "Ahem".....12
Oneness, Unity, and Reasonable Service 13
A Remarkable Conversion.....13
Among East End Postmen 13
The Village Tu-dee (illustrated) 14

CONTENTS.

A Unique Y.M.C.A. 15
Farningham and Swanley Boys 15
ISABELLA MACPHERSON'S Inner Life 16
Portrait and Sketch of BISHOP LIGHTFOOT ..17
Memorial to the late Mr. DENHAM SMITH ..18
Christian Blind at Tea 19
Lord ABERDEEN and Costermongers.....19
The Temperance Cause 20
The Story of a Picture 20

[The late Bishop Lightfoot.]

No. 1045.] FRIDAY, FEB. 7, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. [POST FREE, 1½d.

FOR TERMS OF ADVERTISEMENTS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS, SEE PAGE 2.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT.

Morgan & Scott's Unabridged Edition of

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE to the OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

All the Editions described below contain 757 pages, 2270 closely printed columns, and about 250,000 references. A special feature is the List of Proper Names, newly translated by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A. This portion of the work is strictly copyright, and can only appear in Morgan & Scott's editions.

PORTABLE EDITION. 3/6
STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

PORTABLE EDITION. 7/6
HALF CALF, MARBLED EDGES.

POPULAR EDITION. 5/-
PRINTED ON SUPERIOR PAPER.
STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH BOARDS.

PRESENTATION EDITION. 7/6
HANDSOMELY BOUND IN CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

LIBRARY EDITION. 10/6
STRONGLY HALF-BOUND IN LEATHER.

ILLUSTRATED EDITION. 10/6
With 12 Exquisite Steel-plate Engravings, and 6 Beautiful Coloured Maps.
CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, GILT TOP.

BIRDS OF THE BIBLE. 5th Thousand.

Chats with Children about Bible Birds. By JAMES BOWKER, F.R.G.S.I. With Beautiful coloured Frontispiece, and numerous other Engravings. Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s.

"This little book is a perfect gem. It is a luxury to handle, and a luxury to look at; and, we may add, most instructive to read. The skill of printer and bookbinder seems to have been exhausted in the get-up of this charming little gift-book."
Preacher's Analyst.

19th Thousand.

NOTES ON BIBLE READINGS.

A Collection of over Six Hundred Subjects. By S. R. BRIGGS and JOHN H. ELLIOTT. Tinted covers, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This is a book which every Bible student should possess. It will be of special value to the class teacher, and an assistance also to the preacher. It supplies valuable matter for private meditation; and those who conduct Bible Readings will find it most suggestive."—Christian Progress.

BY REV. GEO. F. PENTECOST, D.D.

"OUT OF EGYPT." 9th Thousand.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READINGS ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Dr. PENTECOST'S power as a teacher and expositor of the Word is anew displayed in these Addresses; and we are not surprised to learn that there has been an earnest demand for their publication."—Word and Work.

9th Thousand.

"IN THE VOLUME of the BOOK."

OR, THE PROFIT AND PLEASURE OF BIBLE STUDY. With Introductions by Revs. JOSEPH COOK and J. H. VINCENT, D.D. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"We have read this work with unusual pleasure. It is full of healthy thinking. It contains a large amount of information; abounds with wise counsels; is tersely and racily written; and is certain to captivate every reader who has even the least desire to be instructed in the many matters with which, in the preparation of it, the author had to deal."
The Baptist Magazine.

BY ANNA SHIPTON.

"THE LORD WAS THERE.

INCIDENTS FROM MY JOURNAL.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

"A book for quiet hours. It will leave a blessing with every reader."—Primitive Methodist.

"TELL JESUS:"

RECOLLECTIONS OF EMILY GOSSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.
A CHEAP EDITION for General Distribution, 6d.

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord."
Christian Times.

BY DR. JAS. CULROSS, M.A.

JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. With Eight Illustrations. Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend this work."—Sword and Trowel.

"BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK!"

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea. Tinted covers, 1s. Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, boards, 2s. 6d.

"All who admire the author's grasp of great truths will welcome this volume."—The Freeman.

"THY FIRST LOVE."

Christ's Message to Ephesus. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"This work is instructive, suggestive, and full of spiritual force."—Sunday School Chronicle.

7th Thousand.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES:

IN ORDER TO ABEDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Readings and Study; and A PLAN OF CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING. By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"In a compact form, the work contains more valuable and varied information as to the Word of God and its connective teaching, than we have yet seen in any volume of a like size. We would earnestly urge every lover of the Word to procure and carefully read the book."—Word and Work.

28th Thousand.

CHRIST AND THE SCRIPTURES.

The Living WORD and the Written WORD. By Rev. ADOLPH SAPHIR, D.D., B.A. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 3s.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"A book marked by freshness of thought, along with firm adherence to old truths; indicating a mind awake to the great vital questions of the present day, and viewing these with a most intelligent eye from the standpoint of established faith."
British Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving Toys and Scrap Books from V. M.; Clothing from "Mortimer"; Clothing, Anonymous.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Schools, Classes, and Meetings for Ragged Children. Infant Day Nursery. Toy Classes for Neglected little Ones. Children's Services, and other Missionary Agencies for Children. Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women of great importance. Mission work amongst Young Men and Lads. Mothers' Meetings. Bible Classes. Mission to Inebriate Women. Evangelistic Services. Prayer Meetings. Fresh Air Homes. Shelter for Children. Home for Motherless Girls, &c. See "Record of Work," sent free.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

CONTRIBUTIONS of money, clothing, coal and bread tickets, are earnestly solicited by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, in aid of the more destitute patients and their families. The smallest gifts will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

SICK NURSING. — A course of Lectures will be given to Christian educated Women, who are about to work in Medical Missions abroad. The classes will begin when a sufficient number of students are registered. Syllabus and terms will be forwarded on application to M.D., 143, Clapham-road, S.W.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION, Whitecross-street, needs funds. 150 patients seen weekly. Gospel services held. Subscriptions received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, 45, Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.
Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

DRUSE SCHOOLS, SCHWIFAT, LEBANON.—Four Ladies desirous of helping in Missionary work can be received at the above schools to study Arabic on moderate terms. One private lesson each day, besides joining the classes in the school, with other advantages of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the language.—For further particulars,
Miss STUBBS, 118, Newington Green-road, N.

Y.W.C.A. WEEK OF PRAYER.—A special Sermon to Young Women will be preached (D.V.), next Sunday evening, in the Talbot Tabernacle, Talbot-road, Bayswater, by Pastor FRANK H. WHITE. Service seven o'clock.

THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR OF LONDON.—For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a substantial meal. Help greatly required to supply widows and other needy people with Food, Coals, and Clothing. Bankers: L. & County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

THE BENEVOLENT OR
STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 104 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.
Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ASHLEY MISSION, BETHNAL GREEN.—Help is earnestly asked to assist the poor of this Mission, with bread, coals, &c. Cast-off clothing thankfully received. A large Mothers' Meeting, and various classes held every evening.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

A STRUGGLING CHURCH (Congregational) needs help. £1,500 required for reseating chapel and building new school. Friends attending Conventions at Keswick specially appealed to. Donations thankfully received by the pastor, Rev. W. DAVIS, Nantwich, Cheshire, who will gladly furnish full particulars.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

DINNERS TO POOR CHILDREN in Clerkenwell.—600 meals are provided weekly in Cow Cross Mission Hall. Funds urgently needed. Collecting cards on application. — WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

TORQUAY.—Sharon Convalescent Home is open to persons requiring salutary air.—For particulars apply to HON. SEC., Chelston Manor.

HELPING THE DESTITUTE.—Cast-off clothing, provisions, or cash will be thankfully received by the Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, London, E., to help in Relief work among the destitute, free meals to poor children attending Board Schools, soup kitchen, and other benevolent agencies. Offerings entrusted to us will be prudently and impartially distributed.

MARGATE. — Alresford House School, Queen's-avenue.—High Class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for University Local and Public School Examinations. Comforts of a Christian home. Special care taken of Indian and delicate children.—For prospectus, address, The PRINCIPAL.

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

High-class education for Gentlemen's Sons. Resident graduate and foreign masters. Excellent premises, laboratories, workshops, cricket-field. Decided Christian training, home comforts, moderate fees. For prospectus, honours' list, &c., address
Rev. G. H. JONES, F.A.S.

MANITOBA.—A Gentleman, experienced in farming, now living in one of the best English settlements in Manitoba, wishes to meet with one or two Pupils. Good practical teaching and happy Christian home. Terms 50 guineas per annum. Best references.—Address first,
Miss DOLTON, 39, Lee-road, Blackheath, London.

HIGH-CLASS PREPARATORY SCHOOL, well recommended by clergymen and parents, for kind Christian training, combined with sound elementary teaching. Preparation for all public schools. Home comforts. Maternal care. Healthy situation. Moderate terms.
PRINCIPAL, 1, Woodville, Gravesend.

£10 PER TERM.—Education at old endowed Grammar School in South-west of England. Successful at Locals. Scholarships, exhibitions.—SCHOLE, c/o Relfe Brothers, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

ORWELL HOUSE SCHOOL,
CHIPPENHAM.

Boarders from 6 guineas per term inclusive. French, shorthand, drawing, geometry.
Pastor H. B. BARDWELL, Principal.

HUNTINGDON HOUSE SCHOOL, Teddington, Middlesex. Thorough preparation for business life and for examinations. Ages of pupils about 7 to 17. The following gentlemen will testify to the Christian character and success of the School:—T. S. Marks, Esq., The Laurels, Whitstone, N. (sons boarders here many years); C. Allison, Esq., Rosebery House, New Hampton (sons in the School 16 years). Rev. Evan H. Hopkins, Richmond, Surrey, writes:—"I have much pleasure in recommending this school to parents requiring sound training and good education at a moderate cost."

MASTER WANTED.—Christian, abstainer, non-smoker.
Principal—Mr. GEORGE CUMES, F.R.G.S.

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCED EDUCATION at nominal fees. Two clever, hard-working young Gentlemen, of 16 to 18, can be received in a good school to prepare for first-class College Preceptors and London University matriculation. Athletes preferred.—Address first, with particulars, to EXAM., c/o Educational, 42A, Holborn Viaduct, E.C.

EDUCATION.—Seaside, adjoining Southwold. Vicar desires to receive two boys as companions to nephews, 7 and 10 years old, for tuition together. Comfortable home. £25 per term; brothers, £20 each.
Rev. T. HARRY R. OAKES, Southwold, Suffolk.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES, Companions, and Lady Housekeepers of high principle are frequently supplied to Ladies seeking such, by application to the Governess Registry, Soho Bazaar, Soho-square, London, W. Testimonials never dispensed with. Free of all expense to parents.

FOREIGN PROTESTANT GOVERNESS seeks re-engagement. French, Italian, music; speaks English. Disengaged at Easter. Experienced. School or family. Fond of children. Good references.—CIEL, c/o Mr. Pelton, Bookseller, Pantiles, Tunbridge Wells.

TWO GOVERNESS-PUPILS required in good school, at once. Premium £15. Advanced lessons in English and accomplishments.
PRINCIPAL, 5, Clifton-place, Newport, Mon.

GOVERNESS-STUDENT required, to assist with 1st and 2nd Forms. Thorough instruction given in accomplishments, with preparation for examinations. Small premium.—PRINCIPAL, High School, Albrighton, near Wolverhampton.

A CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS wanted. Thorough English. Three children, elder 9.—Apply, stating terms and sending testimonials, to T. T., Rostellan, Temple-road, Rathmines, Dublin.

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, to take entire charge of one little Girl age 3½, teach three children music, with care of wardrobe. Small salary and comfortable home.—Apply personally, F. F., 117, Finchley-road, S. Hampstead.

AS GOVERNESS in a Christian family.—A young Lady desires a re-engagement. Acquirements, English, German acquired abroad, music, French and elementary Latin. Good references.—Miss GOODMAN, Colwall, Great Malvern.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS wanted. Thorough English, good French, music. Pupils over and under twelve. Charge wardrobe. Family removing to the States. Open Brethren.
K., 2, Willow-grove, Grafton-street, Hull.

A FRENCHMAN, having from conviction left a Romish Seminary, desires lessons in French and Classics or au pair in English family before studying for Protestant Pastorate.—A. L., French Parsonage, Kildare-gardens, Bayswater.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS
"The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH
SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

Educational.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced January 21.

ORMONDE COLLEGE, KELVEDON.—High School system. Superior Educational Home for Girls. Pupils prepared for Cambridge exams. Resident English and foreign governesses. Visiting masters. Terms from 20 guineas. An Articled Pupil required. Principals: Mrs. JOHN HUMPHERY and Mrs. ALBERT SMITH.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms.—Apply to the PRINCIPAL. Term commenced January 21.

HOME SCHOOL FOR LITTLE GIRLS AND BOYS.—Large house and garden. Open situation. References to clergy, doctors, and parents of pupils. Terms from 25 guineas per annum.—The Misses COPE, St. Columb School, Forest-hill, S.E.

GERMAN AND FRENCH SCHOOL for Gentlemen's Daughters, 24, Saarstrasse, Friedenau, Berlin. Lady Principals, Frl. HOFFERS and Mademoiselle VIVIER. Earnest religious teaching. Thorough mastery of languages. Advantages for study of art and music. Home comforts. References in England and abroad. Pupils escorted at Easter.—Apply to Miss STUART, 29, Cornwall-gardens, S. Kensington.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester. Sloyd taught. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss Kofler; or to Rev. J. D. Libbey. For Boys' School, to Rev. W. J. Birtill.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references.
Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

AN ENGLISH FAMILY, residing in healthiest suburb of Paris (Vesinet), wish to receive two children of one family, between ten and fourteen, to educate with their own two children, born in France. German governess. fluent French and English, and music. Absolute family life and motherly care. High references from the French and English minister.—Write A. H. G., c/o Drexel Harjes & Co., Bankers, Paris.

PARIS.—An English Lady and Daughter, residing just outside the walls of Paris, are desirous of meeting a young Lady anxious to perfect herself in French. Purest Parisian spoken at home. Access easy to all the free and other cours by rail or tram. Amplest references.—Mme. STUART, 21, Rue Chevalier, Levallois Perret, Paris.

HAPPY HOME, and every educational advantage, offered to one or two Girls. Experienced, careful training, and individual attention. Only five taken. Very healthy locality. Highest references. Entire charge of Indian children.
Mrs. C., Selwood, Hornsey-lane, N.

ILKLEY COLLEGE, YORKSHIRE. Thorough preparation for commercial or professional life.—WALTER J. KAYE, B.A., T.C.D.

STANLEY HOUSE
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough modern education with decided Christian training. Delicate or backward boys receive special attention. Prospectus, references, &c., on application to the PRINCIPAL.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principals: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A. Trinity College, Dublin; G. E. W. CRANAGE, Esq., B.A. Trinity College, Oxon.

Dr. Cranage's constant, prayerful aim is to bring his pupils to Christ as their Saviour, and to help them to walk like Jesus as their example. He offers a refined Christian home and superior Education for Gentlemen's Sons.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

FEBRUARY 7, 1890.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving a portrait of ISABELLA MACPHERSON, the graphically told story of whose life is now appearing in our columns week by week.

We are requested to say that to the advertisement of the Trinitarian Bible Society, which, in the form of a four-paged inset, was inserted in our last number, the British and Foreign Bible Society is preparing a reply, which will be similarly inserted in our next. A letter from the secretary of the latter Society will also be found in our correspondence column.

Mr. Archibald G. Brown's "Record of Service during 1889," just published, forms an intensely interesting booklet. It is well calculated to make the reader mourn over the sins and sorrows of the great city, as well as rejoice over the successful efforts made by Mr. Brown and his fellow workers to banish the one and soothe the other. Next week we shall furnish some telling extracts.

The following touching notice of the funeral of Dr. Barnardo's younger son is from the pen of Mrs. Guinness, in this month's Regions Beyond. We are sure that amongst rich and poor alike much prayerful sympathy has arisen of late for Dr. Barnardo in the deep waters through which he has been passing.

Many thousands of loving and sympathising friends, mostly from among our East-end neighbours of the working classes, gathered around the moss-lined and flower-studded grave in which the remains of the dear boy were—with much prayer and praise—laid. A rich and spontaneous tribute of love and heartfelt sympathy was poured out on the occasion by the poor, showing how large a place Dr. Barnardo has found in the hearts of East Londoners. He has long loved and laboured for other people's children, been a wise and tender father to thousands of the fatherless, rescued multitudes of lost boys and girls, and bound up many a widow's heart; and he has, moreover, preached the words of eternal life to immense numbers, leading them from darkness to light. Could such a man suffer and sorrow alone? No, indeed! hundreds of hearts ached along with his own, and his grief showed him how he was loved. It must have been some slight comfort to the bereaved parents even amidst their tears to see how many eyes wept with them, and how many hearts were blended in tender intercessions for them. Seldom has a little lad of any rank in life had such a funeral; for the father's honour reflected on the child.

With reference to the decision in the Gossage case, on which we commented last week, Dr. Barnardo may be fairly congratulated on the altered tone of remark in many of the London daily papers. Some journals discreetly refrained altogether from editorial remark, but those that alluded to the decision did so in terms far more friendly to the Doctor's action than might have been expected. We should judge that they have at length estimated at their proper worth the discreditable tactics of the Romanists which drew forth such a scathing rebuke from the Master of the Rolls.

We would counsel the many friends of Dr. Barnardo's Homes not to accept as veritable history all the statements of a damaging nature that are made by certain applicants at the London police-courts. Last week a woman appeared before the Wandsworth magistrate, and declared that she could get no information from Dr. Barnardo as to the whereabouts of her son, who, she admitted, had been sent to Canada with her consent. Dr. Barnardo's secretary writes to The Times of Monday, and furnishes a copy of a letter written to the mother in October last, in which a report was given of the lad's progress and his full address notified. In the face of this fact it looks as though there were some outside influences being brought to bear on applicants, with the view of casting odium on the Homes.

In a very excellent paper in The English Illustrated Magazine, under the heading of "Competition and Co-operation among Women," attention is again called to the want of action which has followed the sitting of the Royal Commission upon the Housing of the Poor:—

While all is fair and picturesque to look upon, and stately streets and buildings rise around us, behind them, in the courts and alleys, men, women, and children are leading lives of degradation, infamy, and misery, too terrible to think of... We cannot alter the laws of supply and demand, and we cannot raise wages and destroy at one blow the suffering that exists, but we can do more than mitigate it. We can destroy one of its most important causes, if not the most important of all, in sweeping away the rookeries and dens in which their lives are passed from their cradle to their grave, and in their place erect wholesome sanitary dwellings, not as monuments of charity, but as paying concerns; and we ought to regard doing so as an obligation to them and a confession of the grievous way in which, as a nation, we have sinned against those whose weakness should have been the strongest claim on our protection and help.

We heartily commend these words to the attention of all who are able to help on a movement of the kind.

Two measures of social reform, it is gathered from The Times' Calcutta correspondent, have lately been started in India which deserve notice. It appears that though there are already about twenty local Acts in force for the prevention of cruelty to animals, yet, owing to limited powers or defective working, their operation is anything but effective. A Bill has, therefore, been laid before the Legislative Council embodying wider and more stringent powers for dealing with offences of this kind. To prevent cruelty of any kind to dumb animals should be the duty of any Government, local or imperial, calling itself Christian, and that some vigorous measure of protection to God's creatures is necessary, all who have observed life in the streets of an Indian town can testify.

Another vice of Indian society for which a reform is being attempted is one with the various forms of which we are only too painfully familiar in our own country. A Bill has been introduced into the Bombay Legislature for the more effectual suppression of gambling, especially that which takes the form of betting on the rainfall, which, says The Times' correspondent, is said to be very prevalent among the Marwari merchants of the Western Presidency. When it is considered by whose ordering it is that the rain comes, and that He has power to give or withhold the needed supply, that it should be made the medium for betting and gambling is peculiarly repugnant to all right-thinking persons. At the same time, in dealing with these and other social abuses, it may be borne in mind that it is not easy to combat moral evil by mere material means: statutes have their use and place, but they only touch that which is outward: real, lasting reform must work from within, and must be based upon the renewal of the individual heart and change of motive, which neither kings nor laws can accomplish.

Canon Driver contributes to The Contemporary Review an article on "The Critical Study of the Old Testament." The points which weigh with those who so analyse the Pentateuch as to bring it down to the level of a jumble of traditions, hardly to be relied upon as history, are very ably stated. In a note at the end, Dr. Driver deprecates the action of those who would view critical treatment of the Old Testament in the light of New Testament references. He says:—

It is a method of very doubtful expediency to oppose the New Testament to the results of critical inquiry; those who have wisdom, and an eye to the future, will rather seek to show, if possible, that the writers of the New Testament, and especially our Lord, were not concerned with these questions, and pass no judgment upon them.

We leave the ominous expression "eye to the future," and the parenthetical doubt as to whether it is "possible" to show that the New Testament writers did not concern themselves with such questions as the critics delight to parade. Our Lord's judgment is abundantly clear from his references to the writings of Moses. If, however, the Lord did not concern Himself with these questions, how can his disciples justify a course of inquiry which, far from helping on his work, is a serious stumbling-block in the way of such as are weak in the faith?

"Probation after death" is still a subject of warm discussion among the constituency of the American Board for Foreign Missions. We quote with satisfaction some wise words recently written by Dr. Storrs, a Congregational minister in Brooklyn, and President of the Board:—

I have never hesitated to characterise it, when occasion demanded, as in my judgment without authority in the Scripture, unhistorical—unless the Roman Catholic doctrine of purgatory may be thought to have some affinity with it—as out of harmony with the concensus of existing evangelical thought, and as a too daring attempt to add to the Gospel something which the Master had not put therein. It has seemed to me especially unfriendly to faithful, fervent, and patient missionary labour; since it appears, at least, to justify the expectation that if men do not hear the Gospel in this life they will have a vastly extended space for repentance in the ages beyond, under the immediate exhibition of Christ, and in utter separateness from all present temptations of the world and of the flesh.

These words should be weighed. The latent Universalism which is being preached is neutralising all the urgencies of the Gospel message. The Northern Advance of January 31 gives an address from an English Congregational minister, wherein the following words appear :—

We know from Christ's own mouth that Tyre and Sidon and Sodom were not reckoned unworthy of what might be called kindly mention when He administered a rebuke to Capernaum. Was not that kindly mention enough of itself to cause those old cities to look up and to feel that their redemption was still possible?

This appears to us very doubtful teaching. The obvious meaning of our Lord's words is that the cities of the heathen world were less criminal than those which rejected the Christ. Is it not adding to the Gospel something which the Master did not put therein, to twist this so as to make it mean a "possible redemption"? "He that hath my word let him speak my word faithfully, saith the Lord" (Jer. xxiii. 28).

A correspondent sends us the following :—

Even by those who try to keep clear of mere partisan politics, the opening of the Parliamentary session next Tuesday must be anticipated seriously. Apparently a troubled and stormy time is before the nation. In addition to urgent social questions, interests that bear upon grave territorial relations and upon the unity of the Empire must be considered. Freedom from acrimony, and from the bias of party spirit, and a calmly judicial mind, were never more demanded. May I suggest that public prayer for "The High Court of Parliament," and prayer for the nation, are required just now in an exceptional degree. Jehoshaphat, Nehemiah, and Daniel prayed for nations, and their prayer was heard. God may give now a spirit of peace and wisdom as his servants lift up their hearts to Him.

The Church Reformer for January has some verses, under the heading of "Parish Bell," with a refrain of

Hear the Parish Bell
Ring, ring! Sing, sing!
Our dear Lord is here.

The idea apparently is that of the doctrine of the Real Presence. The second verse ends

Our dear Lord is here,
By the priests He makes
He will dry the tear.

We pity the parish for which the composition has been written; and perhaps we may be permitted to doubt if the publication in which they appear is suitably named.

Professor Everett furnishes to The Forum, a leading American review, a paper on "The Natural History of Dogma." He urges that the ideas that control the politics of the world ultimately dominate and change its theology, and insists that most of the creed of Christendom, as the product of "monarchial and aristocratic ideas," must melt away beneath the democratic influences of the age. We seem to have heard this before, and the statement appears to lack something, inasmuch as it fails to recognise the fact that the religion of Christ is democratic. The grand "whosoever" of the New Testament is wide enough to admit all classes and conditions of men, and Christ's Divine assurance, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me," sweeps away into oblivion all the cobweb arguments of specious reasoners.

There is, however, we are prepared to admit, no little risk in some cases of the substitution of a creed, the intellectual statement of a truth, for the truth itself, and the Bishop of Ripon evidently recognises the danger, for in his recently published Bampton lectures on "The Permanent Elements of Religion" he has declared his belief that "unless we desire to have a cold religionism, instead of a living, moving religion," the "religion of the future" must be founded, "not on a creed or a code, but on a person." He adds :—

It is only in a person that a creed can be truly preserved. Sundered from a person the creed becomes a series of interesting speculations or a voiceless assemblage of lifeless dogmas....We can have a creed without a person, and a love without a person, but when we have the person we possess both a creed and a code.

All this is simply a dilution of the Divine utterance of Jesus that He is not only the Way and the Life, but that He is also the Truth.

We are not hearing quite so much just now about the imprisonment of the Pope within the ample and luxurious space of the Vatican, but the Romanist papers still have much to say about his poverty. It appears, however, that there has been a falling off in the amount of the "Peter's pence" for the year 1889, the total being £6000 less than that of the previous year. As, however, the sum received at the Vatican was nearly £130,000, perhaps the Pope is not quite so destitute as some of his dependants would make out, as "poor distressed Ireland" contributed over £6000, whilst England sent only £3800, a fact which may well give rise to some serious thought.

In Canon Diggle's recently published biography of Bishop Fraser there are some valuable remarks in which the late Bishop of Manchester gave his opinion as to the causes which lead to the absence of the masses from church. The Bishop seems to have considered that the most potent factor was unattractive preaching, sermons beyond the hearers in thought and idea, upon abtruse points of theology, and "upon things upon which the masses of the people do not think." That the people are willing to be taught Bishop Fraser firmly believed, and, like other observers, he could only come to the conclusion that where there was a wise choice of topics the hearers would be drawn. The preacher who holds up Christ and Him crucified, and who sets forth Christ's remedies for the sins and sorrows of humanity, will not lack hearers.

A fine story is told of Bishop Selwyn, the missionary Bishop of New Zealand and the Melanesian Islands. Being consulted by a young curate as to the sphere of labour which he would recommend him to take up, the Bishop calmly said, "Go where Christ is not, and take Him with you." Coming as it did from a missionary of a quarter of a century's experience, it is not necessary to say what its effect was.

Rev. T. Spurgeon has agreed to the proposal of the Baptist Union to undertake evangelistic work in New Zealand on his return from Tasmania. He has recently been preaching in Dunedin, N.Z.

Dr. Cuyler.—A telegram from New York says that Rev. Dr. Theodore Cuyler, the widely-known Presbyterian clergyman, of Brooklyn, has resigned the ministry of his church on account of his increasing age and infirmity.

Mr. Richard Cory, of Cardiff, has placed in trust, for the benefit of Mr. Spurgeon's Orphanage, £5000 of the Debenture Bonds of Cory Brothers. Mr. Spurgeon, in The Sword and The Trowel, heartily thanks his friend for such princely manifestation of care for the poor orphans.

A Sign for the Scientists.

Where is the city of Hygeia? By what precautions can disease be excluded, whether it be "the pestilence that walketh in darkness," or "the destruction that wasteth at noonday"? Has the rod of God once more smitten the dust of the earth, so that winds that should bring health on their wings waft poison to our shores? Are we to conceive that the plains bordering on the Yellow River, having become dry and arid after the floods, have been sending pestilential clouds across the Russian frontier, whence disease has spread over land and sea? The evil comes insidiously. Influenza does not appear to be a formidable foe, but it brings after it a train of maladies, raising the death-rate to a proportion like that of a veritable plague. Death comes as with a wand, and then mows down as with a scythe. Foreign experts profess to have found the germ whence the perilous sickness takes its rise. But who can destroy the microbe, or arrest its course?

London is reputed to be the most healthy city in the world. Yet recently there was a week in which it had more deaths than births. All over the land the epidemic spreads. The isolated hamlet, the pleasant village, and the carefully guarded health-resort, renowned for its restorative influence, suffer in common with the crowded city and the closest quarters of the great Metropolis. All Europe is attacked, and the regions beyond. The ocean is no barrier. The mysterious presence invades the ship, and the sailor is smitten in mid-ocean. Across the Atlantic the visitation extends itself, and both hemispheres are involved in one pervading calamity. When the death-roll is reckoned up, if ever it can be, the slaughter will appear little less than that of cholera, and the sickness far more general. Here is a disease which seems to defy all our discreet arrangements in the shape of pure water, fresh air, and healthful surroundings.

We may as well own that the sanitary science of the nineteenth century is baffled. Medical men are laid prostrate. The palace is not secure. The rich share the fate of the poor, and the warrior finds no defence in his valour. After we have expended millions to purify our habitations and exclude disease, we are stricken as though we had taken no precautions. This is no argument against using all the known means of preserving health. But it may well teach us that there is a vast unknown, containing forces beyond our ken, and capable of overriding our highest skill. All power, even on earth, is not given into the hands of man, and it is quite possible for the cry of "Peace and safety" to become the presage of disaster. In a scientific age, and in a land where sanitary legislation is supposed to regulate all that affects the public health, sickness and death travel on their way, as if to show that human wisdom, however profitable up to a certain point, must yet bow before an Intelligence greater than itself.

Mr. William Joseph Lewis, the founder and former superintendent of the Spitalfields Gospel Mission, is, we regret to learn, lying very ill at Ryde, Isle of Wight. He has been suffering with a severe cold, and the affection has taken a serious form of pleurisy. We commend our dear friend and brother to the prayer and sympathy of those who remember his long years of self-denying work in the East of London.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

XXI.—"ONE WITH HIM IN DEATH."

1 PETER iv. 1, 2.

"THE rest of his time in the flesh!" Who can tell how long that may be for any one of us? Shorter to some of us than we think, but, in a sense, short to all. The sand runs swiftly through life's hour-glass. The shadow hastens to go down upon the dial. The waves eat away so quickly the dwindling shoal of land which crumbles beneath us. And the years, with inexorable pressure, lay their hands on us, and urge us to flee towards the goal. Such thoughts were much in the Apostle's mind. In the next Epistle, he says, "the putting off of my tabernacle cometh swiftly" (R.V.).

The Christian finds nothing in such thoughts to make him sad. Every milestone marks the growing nearness of his home. The waves cannot be crossed too swiftly by the eager traveller who impatiently counts the hours that interpose between him and the embrace of wife or child. Before us lie the ages of eternity. Hark to the murmur of their waves, as the trained ear catches the beat of the ocean's music, borne on the night breeze! Ages filled with a blessedness of personal enjoyment and rapturous ministry which defy tongue to tell or heart to picture. The dim outlines already sketched stir the heart with ecstasy, but what will the completed picture be, when God fills in the details with his own hand! Take heart, fellow-sufferers and fellow-workers, our redemption draweth nigh. Day is breaking. "Now is our salvation nearer than when we believed."

But the blessed future must not divert our thoughts from the duties to be discharged during the rest of the time which we are to spend in the flesh. We must not be dreamers, but warriors. We must fill our shortening days with strenuous endeavour, like the weary toiler who hastens with redoubled energy to finish the garment at which she has been working with sore fingers, because the only candle she can afford is burning low, and must soon flicker out. There is therefore a noise of war in this verse. To arms! to arms! Arm yourselves with the same mind; and when we ask What mind? we are told to arm ourselves with the mind that took Jesus to his death.

In a venerable old church at Innsbruck, famous for containing the tomb of the great Emperor Maximilian, there is a magnificent bronze statue of Godfrey of Boulogne, the illustrious crusader. His head is covered with a helmet, and on the helmet rests a crown of thorns. Of course, there was a meaning in the mind of the artist other than that with which we now invest the strange conjunction. He doubtless designed to represent the sacred cause for which that helmet was donned. But we may discover an apt symbol of the teaching of our Apostle, who weaves together in these verses the armour of the Christian soldier, and the recollection of Christ's sore sufferings in the flesh.

This witness of the sufferings of Christ first takes us to the cross; and after gazing reverently on that spectacle of love, we are brought to a point where two ways diverge. And the only way of discovering and maintaining the right path is to imbibe the spirit of that wondrous death; nay, to bind it around us as a talisman of victory. In hoc signo vincas. And thus we shall "no longer live the rest of our time in the flesh, to the lusts of men, but to the will of God."

I. DIVERGENT PATHS.—On the one side the broad way, trodden by so many feet, of indulgence of the flesh. "The lusts of men." Lust is appetite run wild. There is no harm in any natural appetite, considered in itself. Each is implanted in us for wise and necessary purposes. Man is made as a self-acting machine, and he is not only reminded of necessary duties by the whirr of the alarum, but is driven to perform them by the goad of hungry appetites on the one hand, and by the attraction of satisfied appetites on the other.

But appetite has been spoilt by the Fall. It has become jarred and jangled, so that it does not work now as God intended it to, when He made man, and pronounced his nature very good. When man fell, appetite broke from the enfeebled grasp of the will, and began to seek after its own gratification, irrespective of those necessary uses and legitimate bounds which had been assigned by the Creator's love and wisdom. And so all down the ages, the appetites of man's nature have treated the Imperial will as the barons of the middle ages often treated their Sovereign Liege, whom they practically set at nought, following their own wild and lawless ways. And the mischief of this revolt has been manifested by the way in which the lawlessness of the flesh has infected the mind; so that mind and heart have followed its leadings towards unnatural and excessive indulgence, and men have "fulfilled the desires (or lusts) of the flesh and of the mind."

These habits have descended to us from the generations which have preceded us. Each one of us is therefore born into the world, subject to the action of appetites which are no longer in the same pure and holy state in which they came from the Creator's hand, but biassed strongly in the direction of lawless and unholy manifestation. And if we obey their promptings, as so many do, we become their slaves, sink to the level of the brute creation, which know no law but that of appetite, and come under the wrath of God (Eph. ii. 3).

Now, what we need is, not that these appetites should be eradicated, but that they should be controlled, kept only for necessary uses, deprived of all those evil gratifications which have become to them a second nature. It may be that never in this life will they cease at intervals to desire unholy gratification; but that desire, passing as a momentary thrill through our being, and failing to attract or master the will, is not necessarily sin; and it is surely possible to live in the flesh, which is very sensitive and evil-disposed, and yet not to gratify its demands to a single iota beyond the limits of the will and law of God.

This is what the Gospel promises. Not that we should be deprived of any part of our nature. Not that we should never feel the thrill of temptation, and the tendency on the part of our flesh to respond. Not that we should even reach a condition in which it would be impossible to sin. But that the unholy confederacy between the flesh and the spirit should be broken, so that whatever may be the passing spasms of the flesh in the direction of unlawful gratification, they may not be accepted or permitted by the moral nature—the will—the regal individuality of man.

What a glorious contrast to the will of the flesh is the will of God!—This was the food of Jesus. To do this He came to earth. It was the fire-cloud that lit his pathway, the yoke in carrying which He found rest, the Urim and Thummin, which dimmed or shone with heavenly guidance. There is no course more safe or blessed than to live in the will of God. God's will is good will. Where the will of God lies across the wilderness pathway, there flowers bloom, and waters gush from rocks of flint. Sometimes the flesh rebels against it, because it means crucifixion and self-denial, but under the rugged shell the sweetest kernel nestles, and none know the ecstasy of living save those who refuse the broad, easy road of the lusts of men, to climb the steep, upward path of doing the will of God from the heart.

II. THE SECRET AND POWER OF SELF-DENIAL.—It is not easy to refuse that broad, easy road. No effort is required to take it. Life tends to roll easily and luxuriously down its gentle slopes. The stream insensibly bears the boat, gaily decked with flags, and filled with careless or idle pleasure seekers, toward the fatal rapids. What is the secret which shall lead a man to say "No" to self, to turn a deaf ear to its solicitations, and to face the steep ascent? And, supposing he acquire the secret desire, what power is there strong enough to enable him to stem the torrent, beating and seething against him at every stroke.

The answer is found in the cross of our blessed Lord.—"Christ suffered in the flesh." "The pious contemplation of his death will most powerfully kill the love of sin in the soul, and kindle an ardent hatred to it. The believer, looking on Jesus as crucified for him, and wounded for his transgressions, and taking in deep thoughts of his spotless innocency, which deserved no such thing, and of his matchless love, which yet endured it all for him, will then naturally think: Shall I be a friend to that which was his deadly enemy? Shall sin be sweet to me, which was so bitter to Him, and that for my sake? Shall I ever lend it a good look, or entertain a favourable thought of that which shed my Lord's blood? Shall I live in that for which He died, and died to kill in me? Oh! let it not be."

All this is true, and yet there is a truth beneath. It must never be forgotten that Christ died in the likeness of sinful flesh. He died, not only for sin, but to condemn sin in the flesh. In his death an entire break was made between the life which He had lived in contact with sin, though Himself sinless, and that other life which He spends on the resurrection side of death. And since we are viewed in the mind and purpose of God, as having died with Him in his death, and being raised in his resurrection, we must also regard ourselves as having passed out of the life in which flesh and sense reign supreme, into that other life where they are for ever left behind, and have no foothold or abode. "In that He died, He died unto sin once; in that He liveth, He liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Let us take high ground in dealing with the solicitations and promptings of the flesh. Let us meet every thrill of passion with the complete indifference, the stony silence, of death. Let us say, as certain ladies are wont to say of acquaintances whom they do not wish to see, I am not at home to them. Let us treat them, as Peter treated his Lord, whom for many months he had known as his bosom friend, I do not know the man.

And so, when strong desires come through our bodies, and strive to send evil thoughts and passions through the heart and will, they will find the fire-proof iron door slammed suddenly in their face, so that the dread contagion may not spread. The flesh may have its desires, but the cleansed heart will refuse to yield to them. And thus the flesh will be crucified and mortified with its affections and lusts, and the conscience kept void of offence.

This power of refusing to harbour or consider the unholy promptings of the flesh is a very blessed one. But it is not of man, nor to be built up by holy resolution or endeavour. It is the power of God in man; the life of the risen Jesus; the grace of the Holy Spirit, who lusts against the flesh, so that we may not do the things that otherwise we would (Gal. v. 17, R.V.). Realise that as one with Jesus you have died in the purpose of God. Deliberately choose that death at once and for evermore as your portion and lot. Then look to the Holy Spirit to put the sentence of death into daily and hourly execution. And you will find that, though the flesh still lives, it will no longer govern you, but the Spirit of God will govern it through you, robbing it of power, and keeping it so utterly in subjection that you may be tempted to think that it is changed in nature. This, however, will be a mistake, for if the Spirit's power is relaxed for only an instant, the old fatal habits will re-assert themselves again with more than their former force.

III. A STIRRING INJUNCTION.—"Arm yourselves with the same mind." Drink into the spirit of his death till it be repeated in you, and you die to the flesh, as He died to it. Thus shall be repeated the ancient legend of the stigmata, which grew in the flesh of the saint engaged perpetually in meditating on the wounds of Christ. And every time you dare to refuse the lawless strivings of self, you will enter more into the meaning of his death and of his resurrection. Let us resolutely put this piece of celestial armour on. It will need resolution and determination, as the first shocks of battle will be trying and terrible. But victory is sure. And though there will be no cessation in the temptation, there will be cessation in the yielding to it, which is sin: "For he that has died is freed from sin" (Rom. vi. 7, &c.). And in time the bodily desires, long thwarted, will give less and less trouble, as if they were weary of the incessant defeat.

"Wouldst thou then have much power against sin, and much increase of holiness, let thine eye be much on Christ; set thine heart on Him; let it dwell in Him, and be still with Him. When sin is likely to prevail, go to Him, tell Him of the insurrection of his enemies, and thy inability to resist, and desire Him to suppress them, that they may gain nothing by their stirring but some new wound. If thy heart begin to move towards sin, lay it before Him, the beams of his love shall eat out that fire of those sinful lusts. Wouldst thou have thy pride, and passions, and love of the world killed, go sue for the virtue of his death, and that shall do it. Seek his spirit, the spirit of meekness, humility, and Divine love. Look on Him, and He shall draw thy heart heavenwards, and unite it to Himself, and make it like Himself. And is not that the thing thou desirest?"

CAPE DE VERDE ISLANDS.—For five years Mr. G. H. Eveleigh has been witnessing for Christ at St. Vincent. Service is held every Lord's Day, and a Sunday-school is conducted for the few English children. Tracts are distributed among the seamen, who are also spoken to on eternal things. An agency has been founded for the sale of Bibles and Gospel books. Mr. Eveleigh says: "The greatest discouragement the work has is the distressing violation of the Sabbath. We shall be glad if friends will pray for God's blessing on this work."

The Brussels Conference.

IT rejoices us greatly to be able to state that the important questions affecting the welfare of the African races, which will shortly occupy attention at the International Conference at Brussels, have at length been fairly laid before the Christian public of England. In association with the Aborigines Protection Society the Lord Mayor called a meeting, on Wednesday last, at the Mansion House, and, as it was influentially attended, the case presented for British sympathy and help was reported at considerable length in the daily newspapers.

M. EDMOND VAN ESTVELDE, writing on behalf of the King of the Belgians, said that his Majesty had done what he could to check the mischievous traffic in arms and alcoholic liquors in the Congo territories; but, in order that such measures may prove fully effective, it is essential that all the Powers having possessions in Africa should unite in a common endeavour. His Majesty expressed a hope that such an accord would result from the deliberations of the Conference. In some opening words the LORD MAYOR remarked that, as the pioneer of anti-slavery, England should not be misunderstood in regard to the protection which the poor aborigines of Africa now claim at the hands of Europeans.

EARL GRANVILLE moved a resolution expressing thanks to the King of the Belgians for having convened the Conference, and hoping that the measures to be proposed may largely conduce to the prevention of the appalling evils from which the natives are at present suffering. He maintained that the resolution would strengthen the hands of Lord Salisbury, and of Lord Vivian, who is representing Great Britain at the Conference. With regard to the King of the Belgians, he was undoubtedly the individual who had the greatest claim to the position he occupied in relation to this subject, not only on account of his position and personal qualities, and the attention he had given to the subject, but also because of the large pecuniary assistance he had bestowed on the movement he had developed in the creation of the Congo State. It had been a pleasant characteristic of recent years that persons of great wealth had made contributions of that wealth to objects of general philanthropy, but he would venture to say that none of these approached in width of scope or in sacrifice of pecuniary means to what the King of the Belgians had done. The annual cost of the Congo Free State had been £70,000, the whole of which had been found by the King of the Belgians, not as a Sovereign, but from his own private purse. Lord Granville had reason to know that beyond that sum hundreds of thousands had been spent by his Majesty on this work. It was therefore satisfactory that the King had accepted the presidency of the Conference, the object of which was to give practical effect to principles which had been sanctioned by the whole of Europe for seventy-five years.

The DUKE OF FIFE, who seconded the resolution, expressed hearty sympathy in the objects of the Aborigines Protection Society. He was a vice-president of the British South Africa Company, which, he was glad to state, was pledged to act in the spirit of the resolution. That Company, continued the speaker, is particularly anxious that it should not be considered as merely a trading association. Of course, it seeks in every possible way to develop the trade of the country, but it will never lose sight of the high functions it has undertaken—of the aborigines of that much-neglected country, who have too long been the prey of unscrupulous European traders, and of brutal Arab menstealers. The charter states that "The company shall, to the best of its ability, discourage, and, so far as may be practicable, abolish by degrees any system of slave trade or domestic servitude" in its territories; also, it "shall regulate the traffic in spirits and other intoxicating liquors, so as to prevent as far as practicable, the sale of any spirits or other intoxicating liquor to any native." To these obligations the Company are determined to adhere, both in the letter and the spirit. They are working in active co-operation with the African Lakes Company, and intend, among other things, to establish steam locomotion on the Zambesi and the Shiré, a monthly postal service, as well as a passenger service between the sea and the missionary stations. They are convinced that these measures will go a long way towards checking the raids of the slave-dealers and preventing the introduction of undesirable and objectionable commodities into the country.

THE CIVILISATION AND ELEVATION

Sir R. N. FOWLER supported the resolution, which was carried. Mr. W. S. CAINE, M.P., presented a motion affirming the importance of the stoppage of the indiscriminate supply of munitions of war and the suppression of the traffic of alcoholic liquors, "by which the people are grievously degraded, exposed to increased risks of conquest and enslavement, and rendered incapable of receiving the benefits of legitimate commerce and civilisation." He expressed a hope that Christian churches and societies would not be behind in forwarding memorials to the English representatives at the Conference. Mr. A. MCARTHUR, M.P., seconded, and Commander CAMERON supported the resolution, which was heartily carried.

The various addresses afforded abundant evidence of the pressing need of such repressive measures as are proposed by the friends of civilisation and Christianity in Africa. Sir T. FOWELL BUXTON having spoken, a short address was delivered by Sir GEORGE BADEN-POWELL, M.P., who had seen something of the terrible evils arising from the drink traffic in Africa. The natives themselves do not desire the drink. One of them, appealing that the traffic might be stopped, described the liquors as "the strong waters that bite—bite secretly, and then destroy us." Lieut. WERNER, recently returned from the Congo, said that when he was at Stanley Falls, just before Major Barttelot was killed, Tippoo Tib had a large quantity of ivory, which he would not dispose of for anything but gunpowder, and this he could not then get. Eventually he sold it to a trader, and Lieut. Werner afterwards met hundreds of barrels of powder being taken up to pay for the ivory. This powder would no doubt be used in raids upon the natives. As to the liquor trade, it was one of the greatest curses under which Africa was at present labouring. This question could be much more easily dealt with than that of arms, as the importation of intoxicating liquor could be prohibited or put under high duties—the more so as there were few articles of African commerce which would bear taxation. Sir R. Lethbridge, M.P., and Mr. A. Pease, M.P., also spoke a few words of sympathy and support.

BITE LIKE A SERPENT—

PLEASANT SUNDAY AFTERNOONS.—An effort of this kind, in connection with the Y.M.C.A. at Tottenham, is conducted in the Rubber Factory Institute. The report for 1889 states that ninety-nine men joined during the twelve months. The visiting of absent members has been very heartily taken up. Mr. W. G. Brown, 8, Moselle-gardens, Tottenham, is the hon. secretary.

A FOREIGN MISSIONARY CONFERENCE will be held at the Young Men's Christian Association, Whittington-avenue, Leadenhall-street, on Thursday, Feb. 6, when about seventy students of the Pastors' College, Newington, are expected to be present. The subject is, "The Foreign Field and its Call to Young Men":—(1) The Claims, introduced by Prof. David Gracey; (2) The Responsibility, by Mr. J. A. Stoneham; (3) The Qualifications, by Mr. Barrell. Dr. Baedeker will, prior to the opening of the Conference, give a short account of mission work in Russia and Siberia. Tea, 6 p.m.; meeting, 6.30.

Some Scottish Missions.—XV.

CHILDREN'S GOSPEL MEETINGS.

As has been evident from my last three articles, work among the children forms a leading feature of the United Evangelistic Association, at Glasgow. In this direction a very interesting method has been adopted for the last eight years by three of the directors—Messrs. Mackeith, Steel, and Pratt, the peculiar characteristic of which is the use of The Pilgrim's Progress for the purpose of evangelism. For the details that follow I am indebted to others, not having had the privilege of witnessing one of these gatherings myself.

The mode of procedure is to get a large church, and issue tickets to all the Sabbath-schools and kindred meetings in the immediate neighbourhood. This is found sufficient to fill the building with young people. A splendid lantern occupies the front gallery, a great white screen is stretched in front of the pulpit, and care is taken to seat the children only where each can get a full view. By half past seven the church is crowded in every part.

It is not every man who can hold in perfect command a church full of boys and girls drawn from the of Glasgow. Perhaps, with the aid of a thrilling story, the thing could be done for ten minutes; but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the buzz and restlessness would commence the moment the thrilling story was at an end, and its "moral" would drift wide enough. Not so when Mr. Mackeith is at the helm. The clear ring of his voice, and the decision of his manner, tell the rough young audience, without much verbal instruction to that effect, that here they must do as they are bid. And at the same time there is something so clearly genial about the man that they are attracted, and not bullied, into a most perfect subordination.

WILD WYNDS AND CLOSES

A hymn or two are sung as loud as a thousand children can sing; and only those who have gone through the somewhat painful experience know what that means. Then the musical voice rings out again a few words of command, and the last hymn is rendered a second time—girls taking one line; boys, the second; galleries, third; area, fourth; and the whole audience the chorus. By this time Mr. Mackeith has his battalions well in hand, and the crucial moment has arrived. Down goes the gas, and out on the sheet gleams one great circle of light. It is a supreme tribute to the genius of the leader that nobody stirs.

2000 EXCITED LITTLE EYES are riveted on that great white circle; but there is no burst of chattering. You could hear a pin drop. After a brief prayer, Mr. Mackeith's head and shoulders emerge from the darkness into the white circle, and he begins. "I want one of the boys to tell me who wrote 'The Pilgrim's Progress'?" Sharp and quick from a dozen voices comes the answer, "John Bunyan." "Thank you. Now we are going to show you a picture of John Bunyan lying in Bedford Gaol, where he was put, though he had not done anything wrong. There he is, fast asleep and dreaming his wonderful dream. When the dreamer awoke, he wrote down his dream, and called it 'The Pilgrim's Progress.' Boys and girls, they call 'The Pilgrim's Progress' an allegory. Can anybody tell me what an allegory is?" No response. "Well, I will tell you what I once heard it called: 'an earthly story with a heavenly meaning.'" After this picture the opening words of Bunyan's dream are shown upon the screen:—

I saw a man CLOTHED WITH RAGS,
STANDING in a certain place,
With his face FROM his own house,
A BOOK in his hand, and a
GREAT BURDEN on his back.

This sentence is called the key to the story, and from it is preached, with great skill and tenderness, truths fitted to convince of sin. Then, to fix the lesson on the memory, the following lines are shown on the screen and sung by all:—

Like GRACELESS, I was BORN IN SIN,
GUILTY OF SIN I am,
BLINDED BY SIN, CONVINCED OF SIN,
I also BURDENED am.

Then follows the first picture, representing Christian in an attitude of deep distress, with a great black burden on his back, and a book in his hand, surrounded by his wife and children and neighbours—making a group of seven in all. But of these only one carries the burden. This furnishes the opportunity for a characteristic bit of teaching, in the form of catechising. Mr. Mackeith asks: "What is the heavenly meaning of the burden on Christian's back?" From a thousand voices the answer comes, "SIN." He does not say they are wrong; but quietly responds, "Look at the picture. How many persons are in the group?" "Seven." "How many of them are sinners?" "All!" Then, as if by the touch of a magician's wand, the picture disappears; the following words stand out upon the screen, and are read distinctly, word by word, by every voice:—

ALL—HAVE—SINNED—AND—COME—SHORT—OF—THE—GLORY—OF—GOD.

When the text has been read, and its "heavenly meaning" expounded, it also disappears, and the group is seen again. Then the children are questioned: "If John Bunyan had intended the burden to mean SIN, how many burdens would there have been in the picture?" "Seven." Then follows a story of a boy who at one of the meetings answered correctly by saying: "Please, sir, that one sitting on the stool is burdened with a sense of sin!" Then the question is asked: "What does sin bring upon us?" "God's wrath." The idea of sin and guilt being clearly lodged in the mind of the audience, the group vanishes, and the following lines, shown upon the canvas, are sung to a familiar tune:—

SENSE OF SIN, AND FEAR OF WRATH,
Make the burden Pilgrim hath.
Art thou burdened with thy guilt?
Look to Him whose blood was spilt,
That the guilty might go free,
And the Judge still righteous be.

At the Slough of Despond, Mr. Mackeith takes care to explain to the children that falling in there is quite an unnecessary part of pilgrimage; and the following lines are given on the screen and sung by the children:—

Through Despond are steps for pilgrims,
Most securely laid.
On THE PROMISES of Scripture,
Venture all your weight.

After Christian has parted from Obstinate and Pliable, and been delivered from the Slough of Despond and the counsel of Mr. Worldly Wiseman, he is seen standing before the wicket gate, with his burden still on his back. Advantage is taken of this to point out the nature and necessity of conversion. The prayer of Christian as he knocks is interpreted as follows, and sung softly by the whole audience:—

A rebel, poor, vile, wretched, mean,
Oppressed with guilt and fear,
Too long a wanderer I have been,
May I now enter here?

Again the words disappear, and the gate and the burdened pilgrim are once more visible. The children have no difficulty in understanding that the grave person, named Mr. Goodwill, is the Lord Jesus, and that his loving hand, by which He drew in Christian, is almighty, and is ready to draw their hearts also into living union with Himself.

The great picture is the cross, with Christian embracing it, and his burden tumbling down into the empty tomb. There is no representation of the Lord Jesus. His person is considered too sacred to be exhibited in a picture; but the children have no difficulty in understanding whence the virtue comes that loosens Christian's burden. "Was it the wood of the cross?" From a thousand voices, "No." "Was it the nails?" "No." "Was it the ground on which the cross stood?" "No." "Was it all these taken together?" "No." "What, then, was it that removed the burden?" "It was Jesus." "Did Jesus Himself bear the burden?" "Yes." "Can anyone else remove it?" "No." "Why can none else remove it?" "Because none else bore it." Then, the idea of substitution being thus decisively enunciated, the picture vanishes, and the truth is clenched by such texts of Scripture as

THE LORD HATH LAID UPON HIM THE INIQUITY OF US ALL.

While Christian still remains at the cross, three shining ones appear. The first gives pardon and peace; the second gives the robe that heaven calls the best; the third puts the mark of a manifestly changed life in the forehead, where it is visible (meant to be seen by others), and gives the roll of an assured interest in God's promises—meant for himself. He is now a Christian in full development, and he journeys over a thousand difficulties into the kingdom of God.

In the same clever, simple, impressive way, Mr. Mackeith deals with all the principal incidents in Bunyan's allegory. Step by step he shows the children the way from beginning to end. It is next to impossible for them ever to forget either the views, texts, hymns, or the Gospel truth taught in connection with them. At the close of each meeting, all who wish to remain for conversation are invited to do so. About one-third usually wait. All under eleven years of age are spoken to in the church. Those above eleven are taken into halls, and dealt with personally by a large number of Christian workers who have come for the purpose. Many show deep concern about their salvation. Not a few profess to have found the Saviour. Those who have conversed with numbers at these after-meetings, record their deep conviction that by this evangelistic agency the Good Shepherd is effectually calling many of his lambs into the fold.

I warmly commend the plan to my southern readers, in the hope that the hint will be taken, and the example followed. G. E. M.

SOUL-WINNING AND PRAYER UNION.—Text for February 10 (2 Chron. vii. 15):—"Now mine eyes shall be open, and mine ears attent unto the prayer that is made in this place."

MISSIONARY BREAKFAST AT OXFORD.—The annual missionary breakfast, convened by Rev. Canon Christopher, took place on Saturday, at the Clarendon Assembly Rooms, Oxford, upwards of 300 senior and junior members of the University being present, including the Archbishop of York, Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop Designate of Travancore and Cochin (Dr. Hodges), the Archdeacon of Oxford, Sir Henry Acland, several heads of houses, professors, clergy, and leading citizens. The Archbishop of York delivered a stirring address in defence of missions, in the course of which he said the Church at home and the Church abroad acted and reacted on one another; they acted on one another to such an extent that if at this time of day the Church in England were to renounce the duty of spreading missionary enterprise, she would, he thought, have to renounce the duty of preaching at home. There had been very little done from the time of the Reformation until the present century in mission work among the heathen, and thus, when the work had been asleep for two centuries, was it wonderful that they should feel the effect of the gross and wholesale neglect? Referring to the liquor traffic abroad, he said they would wound no Mohammedan susceptibilities, they would wound the feelings of no Hindoo, if they made a law preventing, or even punishing, the sale of drink, and bad drink too, to the poor natives, on whom it acted like poison, and whom it doomed to destruction before they or their message of God could reach them. In closing, Dr. Thomson made a powerful appeal to the young men of the universities to devote themselves to mission work. Addresses followed by the Bishop of Oxford and others.

The Gospel for China.

IN China's Millions for February, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor refers to the article in the December number, showing that a thousand evangelists, each presenting the Gospel to fifty families a day, might, within three years of such work (a thousand days), reach every family in China. He then proceeds to ask, What may be the real value of a single proclamation of the Gospel to the millions of China? In answer he observes:—

(1) The command of the Lord Jesus will have been obeyed. If we could not see the benefit to be derived, our duty to every creature would still be plain, and if there were no other result, the reward of obedience would be ours. (2) The triumphs of the Gospel through the preaching of the Apostle Paul, were in many instances very rapidly accomplished, as he passed from place to place. (3) To turn to China itself, multitudes of examples of God's blessing on the first preaching of the Gospel are to be found in the history of its missions. In some cases the results have been immediate, in others they have not appeared till after many days. The thousand evangelists would, of course, avail themselves of their daily opportunities of circulating everywhere Scriptures and Christian tracts, and of posting sheet-tracts on walls in suitable positions, from which kind of work alone great blessing has already resulted. Time would fail to tell of scores of cases, which might easily be collected, showing the blessing received through once hearing, or through receiving a book. (4) Apart from cases of distinct conversion by visits of the kind proposed, the whole Chinese mind is being enlightened, and subjects for thought are suggested that cannot be forgotten, and will surely bear fruit in days to come. A single visit may set hundreds of people thinking and talking, and prepare the way for a great work later on, even where no immediate good is apparent.

But though so much may be effected by once hearing, the proposed work would give the opportunity, as a rule, for much more than a single hearing of the Gospel. Those who are accustomed to preaching the Gospel in the streets know how, frequently, interested hearers follow them from place to place, visit them in their inns or boats for further inquiry, and often, in the course of a few days, obtain a considerable amount of Scriptural knowledge. Our sisters, too, preaching the Gospel to the women, in their homes, or in the courts around which the houses are built, remark how some of their hearers follow them from court to court, and often carry on their inquiries and conversation till quite late at night. An evangelist would need to spend, at the rate proposed, four days in a village of 1000 inhabitants, or two such workers would need to spend ten days in a market town of 5000 people. In most parts of China the people are collected in towns and villages, clustered round some large mart or city of, perhaps, 20,000 to 50,000 inhabitants. Now, as an evangelist deputed to reach all the families of such city or mart would take four days to reach 1000 people, it would take one worker from three to six months to reach the people of such a city. During all this time the evangelists working in the villages around the city, when they left, could direct inquirers to the city in which one of their number would be found for weeks or months to come. The books and tracts sold, too, would contain the address of the nearest permanent mission-station, where inquirers might obtain help all the year round.

Such work as is here proposed is not only possible, but has been proved to be practicable in different provinces. So long ago as the year 1855, and 1856, the editor spent many months in work of this kind, in company with the late Rev. W. C. Burns. When visiting a village, town, or city, the Gospel was systematically preached in all the principal streets, first of the suburbs and then of the city itself. Every shop was visited with tracts and books; six to eight hours were spent daily in speaking, alternately, in the open air; and not less than 500 to 1,000, as a rule, had the offer of the Gospel each day. When night came on, at a previously announced tea-house, inquirers and those interested were met for conversation; while a few were received into our boats for prayer and still more personal dealing. Similar work has, no doubt, been frequently done by other evangelists; our missionary sisters located in some of our inland stations pay itinerant visits to villages around, and do precisely this kind of work; but, of course, not in the thorough and systematic way we here propose, because their district is too large, and the duties of their station limit the time they can give. For the work now proposed, workers must be entirely free, and their districts clearly defined.

It seems to us that the present is a peculiarly appropriate time to raise this question; in May next delegates and representatives of all the Evangelical Protestant Missionary Societies will meet together in Shanghai, and one of the subjects to be discussed is the division of the field. We would ask for much prayer that this Conference may be made a time of great blessing, and that such steps may be taken as shall hasten the day when the Gospel shall have been brought within the reach of every creature in China. Surely, ere the close of this century, we shall see this accomplished. We are thankful to find that the hearts of many of our correspondents have been stirred to prayer and effort; let us all persevere; a book of remembrance is kept, and our Lord has said: "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son."

MALOGA ABORIGINAL MISSION.

OUR readers have been informed, from time to time, of the progress of Mr. Daniel Matthews's work among Australian Aborigines at Maloga, Murray River, New South Wales. During his present visit to England Mr. Matthews has made many friends, and we trust that, with the additional sympathy thus enlisted, he will be encouraged, along with his devoted wife, to continue his endeavours to civilise and Christianise the poor blacks of the several colonies of the Island Continent.

The entire Aboriginal population of Australia is estimated to be about 300,000. Having no settled place of residence, they live a wild life, subsisting on wild animals, birds, fish, insects, reptiles, and roots. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews have trained many of them to lives of usefulness, and some have had their dark understandings enlightened, and been able to see themselves to be sinners, and to look to Christ as the Divine Saviour. Mr. Matthews has endured much for the Gospel's sake, and in order to present salvation to those whom he has regarded with pity, because they are a sadly neglected portion of the "world" which God "so loved" that He gave his Son to redeem it.

Ups and downs which would have effectually discouraged less persistent men have not deterred him from carrying on the Mission which he established fifteen years ago. His hands have been supported by friends in the colonies and in Great Britain, and we rejoice to learn that it is his purpose, in the near future, considerably to develop the Mission operations. Work has lately been begun in Queensland; but there are difficulties as to the choice of suitable sites for reserves. In certain quarters nothing short of the annihilation of the blacks seems to find favour. We hope that, far from such being the case, many will, through the instrumentality of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, not only prove useful citizens now, but also be numbered at last with the glorified in the heavenly city. While still in England, Mr. Matthews's address is 72, Cornhill, London, E.C.

"Amen" and "Ahem."

BY MRS. N. C. ALGER, CHATHAM, MASS., U.S.A.

Two friends, it is said, named Desire and Prayer,
Made a call upon Pocket, who lived o'er the way;
For the saving of souls these two saints had a care,
But they said, "It depends on what Pocket shall say."

"Now we wish," said Desire, "that throughout our whole land,
North and South, East and West, even once and again,
All the people may hear of our Gospel so grand."
Pocket seemed greatly moved, and responded, "Amen."

Then said Prayer, "For long years I have asked earnestly,
Foreign lands might be reached by the Gospel, and then Shall their heathen the beauty of holiness see."
With great eloquence Pocket made answer, "Amen."

"We would have the whole world love the name of the Lord,
So our prayer must be fervent, our faith firm and strong,
There is comfort and peace in obeying his Word—"
Pocket's rapt'rous "Amen" sounded out loud and long.

"And the earth must be filled with the knowledge of God,
Through all lands, as the waters now cover the sea."
Now Desire thought good Pocket's benevolence broad
And devout, for "Amen!" and "Amen!" shouted he.

"How the heathen must suffer till help to them come;
If we send no relief to their pain we but mock it;
Now we know you are ready to give a large sum."
"H——m! Ahem!" very solemnly, quoth Mr. Pocket.

'Here are papers—we ought to have asked you before—
As you may want your name upon each one of them;
And this year there's a call for a million or more,
'Tis a pleasure to give." Pocket answered "Ahem!

"There are those of my name who dispose of their store,
Who will give till their friends should their action condemn,
But I can't rob myself." Then he showed them the door,
As he bade them good-day with a "H——m" and "Amen!"

Christian friends, say "Amen" to each call from the Lord;
Let our prayers for the world rise again and again;
But remember, if we would have all hear his Word,
We must teach every pocket to echo "Amen!"

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN.—A generous supporter of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen (181, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.), who desires to be anonymous, has kindly offered a contribution of £1000, on condition that a similar sum is raised from the public, in order to enable the Council of the Society to wipe off existing liabilities, and to ensure the despatch of the fully-equipped new Mission and Hospital Ship Albert on her first cruise to one of the trawling fleets.

Oneness, Unity, & Reasonable Service

I.—ONENESS.

THE prayer recorded in John xvii. that Christ presented to his Father contains seven requests: two for Himself and five for his disciples; and even the two for Himself are requests in which all his disciples share.

The chief subject of this prayer is that all believers may be one in God—

"MADE PERFECT IN ONE!"

Six times this oneness is mentioned in the prayer. It is far too profound for us now to understand. John wrote: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He (Christ) shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is" (1 John iii. 2).

Though this oneness in God is very far beyond any illustration in nature, still, profit might be found in considering some analogies. Take, e.g., the human body; the head and the various members together make but one individual. "As the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body; so also is the Christ" (1 Cor. xii. 12). We see here that the Apostle Paul does not write, "So also is Christ and his disciples"; but he simply mentions Christ; showing that his disciples are all so many parts of Himself, many members, but one body.

In order that we may enjoy this precious, never-ending oneness in God, Christ prayed that we should be kept from the evil one (15), and be sanctified in the truth (17, 19); that is, set apart from the world for God Himself; and to secure this, He prayed that we should be kept in his name (6, 11, 12, 26). And we should specially seek to understand this being kept in his name; where we are separated from the world, and sanctified. For we are safe, and made one, only as we are kept in the covenant name of Jesus Christ our Lord (Acts iv. 13).

This oneness is all of grace, the free gift of God; and those who as little children humbly receive the grace of God in Christ Jesus will have a foretaste of this oneness even here, and will hereafter share the glory of God for ever! Each believer can now say to Christ, "Thou art mine, the eternal life is mine, all thine is mine (9, 10); and I am thine; we are one."

Wonder of wonders, that we who were so far off from God, should, by his grace, through faith, be brought so very nigh to Him; made, not only like Christ, but counterparts of Christ, or conformed (Rom. viii. 29) to his image, and so joined as to be no longer two, but one, yes, "made perfect in one!" G. K.

TO CHRISTIAN ART STUDENTS.—A booklet, entitled, "A Message to Art Students from God's own Word," shows the sad tendencies of the study of the nude. With brevity and force, it is shown that there is shame in nakedness and beauty in clothing. The writer concludes: "One thing God's Word clearly teaches—that we are not to live on this earth in a nude state. As to those who declare there is no danger in representing it (which entails the degradation of unclothing the model), I would remind them that the primary cause of David's great sin was—looking on the woman!" (2 Sam. xi. 2, R.V.). (6d. per dozen. Abraham Kingdon & Newnham, 12, Finsbury-street, E.C.)

MISS PRYDE'S WORK IN PARIS.—Situated in the most superb quarter of the city, Miss Pryde's Governesses' Home serves a highly useful purpose. Christian workers and lady art students find it a place of rest and blessing. The report for last year states that, though by the kindness of friends the work has been carried on satisfactorily, there is still a heavy debt upon the institution. The Home is as an oasis in the desert to many weary young pilgrims; comfort and love reign within its walls, and special facilities are afforded to such as desire to acquire the Français Parisien, so necessary for the fully equipped governess and teacher. The address of the Home is 23, Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, Paris.

A REMARKABLE CONVERSION.

A FEW months ago a young man, called Peter Donnelly, broke his arm, and, in consequence, was for some weeks an inmate of the Monaghan Infirmary. While there he met with an old, torn, coverless Bible, which he read at first from mere curiosity, but afterwards with a desire for spiritual light. On leaving the infirmary, however, his good impressions to some extent wore away, until they were recalled by overhearing a controversy between a Protestant and Roman Catholic at a wake which he was one night attending. He then procured a Bible for himself, and, in order to conceal it from his friends, hid it in a haystack. He soon found peace by believing on Jesus as his only Saviour. The following Sabbath, instead of going with the family, as had been his wont, to the Roman Catholic Chapel, he went to the Presbyterian Church, and consequently was immediately expelled from his father's house. He made his way to Belfast, sleeping, Jacob-like, one night in the open air, with a stone for his pillow, and called on a Presbyterian minister who received him very kindly and got him employment.

As, however, he could not refrain from speaking about Christ to all with whom he came in contact, he soon lost this and one or two other situations. For some time he has been connected with the mission which Rev. R. C. Johnson is carrying on in Hermon Hall, where he makes himself generally useful. He is full of zeal and is always ready to engage in Christian work either on the street or in the house. Those who know him have no doubt as to the sincerity and genuineness of his conversion.

MISSIONARIES WANTED.

THE Missionary Bureau invites applications from earnest devoted Christian men and women for responsible positions now vacant in the foreign mission field. Some of these posts could be held only by men of superior education and ability, capable of superintending the work of others, while for other vacancies ladies with a professional training in teaching are required. Two or three men are also wanted to work among seamen in large shipping centres, and there is an immediate need for several men, possessed of private means, to carry on mission work in South Africa, setting the present workers free for more aggressive efforts.

The Secretary will be glad to communicate also with any earnest worker who feels led of God to offer for the foreign field. For all who are chosen and set apart by the Holy Ghost, whatever their educational attainments may be, there is ample room and urgent need. The prayers of those who may be unable to go are earnestly desired, and the consecrated gifts of any who may feel led to help in sending missionaries out will be thankfully received and wisely administered.

The Missionary Bureau is entirely an unsectarian agency, and on its Committee are well-known representatives of every evangelical branch of the Christian Church. All communications should be addressed, "The Missionary Bureau, 186, Aldersgate-street, London. E.C."

LODGING-HOUSE MEN. — On Friday last the Exeter Hall Mission Band, by the help of kind friends, gave the third annual tea to the lodging-house men visited by them on Sundays. The tea was a very substantial one, the music was excellent, and the addresses, short, bright, and to the point. During the evening each man was presented with a Bible with his own name in it, and either a pair of socks or stockings. A number of the men availed themselves of the opportunity of signing the pledge.

AMONG EAST-END POSTMEN.

THERE was a goodly muster of postmen and their wives at the Home of Industry, Bethnal Green-road, on Friday evening last, on the occasion of the annual meeting of the members of the eastern division branch of the Christian Post-Office Association. A solemnity pervaded the proceedings, owing to the recent death of a local postmaster, leaving a wife and seven little ones to mourn his loss. This sad event formed the text on which Sir S. ARTHUR BLACKWOOD, who occupied the chair, founded some earnest remarks at the commencement of the meeting. Referring then to the blessed influence of the Association, he acknowledged the unremitting labour and interest of Miss Macpherson, Miss Gibbons, and Miss Edmondstone. What cause of thankfulness there is in the fact that God has raised up such friends, altogether outside the Department, to care for the souls of the members of the Service. During the past generation many things have been done of which Rowland Hill never dreamed. Certainly he never looked forward to such an agency as the Christian Post-Office Association, which is now going right through the country, and has also firmly planted itself in the new world.

Sir Arthur proceeded to urge a due appreciation of the blessings thus enjoyed, and also a realisation of the attendant responsibilities. Alluding then to a recent case in the Court of Appeal, in which it was held that the Queen's pardon not only clears a man from the penalty of a crime of which he may have been convicted, but removes disqualifications under which, as a convict, he would afterwards labour, he proclaimed in kindly terms the glad tidings of salvation from sin and death. In the case in question, the judges held that the Royal pardon makes one "as it were, a new man, giving him a new capacity, credit, and character." So, also, when God pardons sinners, they become new men, with new characters and powers.

Colonel MCGREGOR having shown that to as many as receive Christ the privilege is given to become the children of God, Miss EDMONDSTONE delivered a brief address. Driving home the fact that now is the day of salvation, she told of a quarryman who recently died from injuries sustained in his work. Towards the last he was spoken to about eternal things, but his reply was: "I am too bad to think about that now." Mr. E. TROTTER followed with a few words in which he pointed out that the Divine pardon goes beyond all this, in that God not only forgives but makes pardoned men and women members of his own family. There was some hearty singing, and a good spirit dominated the meeting.

AN INDUSTRIAL HOME.—A letter from Miss Davenport Hill that appeared in The Morning Post of January 29 draws attention to the Tre-Wint Industrial Home, 190, Haverstock-hill. It receives girls who are too old for the Industrial School, who are not qualified by crime for the Reformatory, and who are beyond the usual age for admission to Preventive Homes, the girls on entrance being from fourteen to eighteen years of age. The inmates are mainly engaged in laundry work, but are also thoroughly trained for domestic service, while elementary school instruction is systematically given. The fact that out of seventy-three sent to service between January, 1886, and September, 1889, fifty-five are conducting themselves very satisfactorliy, testifies to the excellence of the management. "Tre-Wint" has accommodation for forty inmates; and not only deserves the attention, not only of private philanthropists, but also of poor-law guardians, who may find in such an institution, certified as it is by the Local Government Board, a means of dealing with an occasionally perplexing class of applicants for relief. The average annual expenditure for each girl is estimated at £23, part of this sum, however, being defrayed by her earnings.

For the Young.

THE VILLAGE TU-DEE.

DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS,—Sz-ch'wan is the largest and most populous province of China, famous for its snow-capped mountains and sparkling streams. Idolatry is in full swing here, with all its many evils; priests of Buddha, fortune tellers, spiritualists, exorcists abound.

A most marked feature in Sz-ch'wan hill scenery is the prevalence of wide-spreading banyan trees, affording cool shade from the fierce rays of the sun. Everywhere convenient, the shrine of Tu-dee, the local or village god, is built under the protecting boughs of a banyan tree. May the reading of these simple verses lead you to pray and to do more for China's millions.—Yours in the Saviour,

R. GRAY OWEN.

C.I.M., Chen-tu, Sz-ch'wan, West China.

Under a spreading banyan tree
The village Tu-dee stands;
The god an ancient man is he
With small and useless hands.

Thus, day by day, the living dead
To dead clay Tu-dees go,
In search of truth they cannot give,
Of peace they can't bestow.

These burdened souls, by care opprest,
Can find no resting-place;
They live in sin, they die unblest;
Thus runs their earthly race.

Oh! what a joyous, happy day,
When these poor wandering sheep
Will cast their Tu-dees all away,
Repentant tears to weep;

Will learn to tread the heavenly way
That leads to glory's shore;
With peaceful hearts and joyous lay
Praise God for evermore.

To bring to pass the gladsome day,
Young Christians, rise, awake!
In Jesu's name no more delay,
The devil's kingdom shake.

* * * *

To Thee we cry, blest Harvest-Lord,
Send forth a mighty host,
To Sinim's land to preach thy word,
To seek and save the lost.

THE VILLAGE TU-DEE.

Though eyes he has and ears too,
Nought doth he see or hear,
When to his shrine the village folk
Their hopes and burdens bear.

The meat he cannot taste or see;
He cannot drink the wine,
That by the lowly devotee
Is offered at his shrine.

For harvests rich with golden grain,
To Tu-dee farmers go;
His aid to seek for sun and rain,
Their crops of rice to grow.

With opium oft they smear his lips,
His favour to obtain;
Burn incense sweet and candles red,
In hope of earthy gain.

The children by the old are led
To Tu-dee's sacred shrine;
There taught to bow and knock the head;
Adore him as divine.

Confucians, Buddhists, Taoists, all
Agree with one accord,
To give to Tu-dee worship due
To God the only Lord.

[128]

UNTIL TO-MORROW.

If you have a task to do,
That seems as if you'd ne'er get through,
Believe me that the wisest way,
Is to begin the task to-day.

If you have a word unsaid,
Spoken, would make one comforted,
Go, find that one, and say it straight;
It is a word that cannot wait.

If you can do a kindly deed,
Can heal the sick, or hungry feed,
Oh, do not leave the deed undone,
Until you see to-morrow's sun.

But angry word and selfish way
Are best put off another day;
And then another day again:
Postpone what gives another pain.

So keep the hasty speeches down,
And make a smile chase back the frown,
In silence let ill temper lie,
For an eternal by-and-by.

—New York Independent.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Feb. 9, Matt. ix. 1—13; Mon., Feb. 10, Matt. ix. 14—26; Tues., Feb. 11, Matt. ix. 27—38; Wed., Feb. 12, Matt. x. 1—15; Thurs., Feb. 13, Matt. x. 16—31; Fri., Feb. 14, Matt. x. 32—42; Sat., Feb. 15, Matt. xi. 1—15.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Wickham Brook, Feb. 6; Stansfield, Feb. 7; Mr. Alfred Armitage, Tewin, to Feb. 6; Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Hanbury-st. School, Whitechapel, to Feb. 7; Mr. T. L. Sayer, Harvey-st., Hoxton, Feb. 9—16; Mr. Edwin Arrowsmith, St. George's Church, Tufnell Park, Feb. 14—26.

INQUIRER'S COLUMN.

CAN BELIEVERS FALL AWAY AND BE LOST?

SIR,—Can you find space for another Scriptural view of the inquiry made by "J. A. S."?

The Lord lays down his own conditions, connected with the Great Gift of Eternal Life; and "scourgeth every son whom He receiveth" (Heb. xii. 6).

Christ, the Son of God, states (Luke viii. 13), "They on the rock are they, which, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away."

James, the Apostle, says (i. 12), "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life."

Peter, the first Apostle, says (2 Peter i. 10): "Give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things ye shall never fall."

Acts i. 17, we read of Judas, whom Christ chose as one of the twelve Apostles—after being all night long in prayer in the mountain—"He was numbered with us and had obtained part of this ministry" (and 25) "Judas by transgression fell." Showing how even an Apostle may fall — as angels are said to have fallen—through disobedience of God's word.

Our Lord states (Rev. iii. 5): "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life."

In Exod. xxxii. 33, the Lord told Moses: "Whosoever hath sinned against Me, him will I blot out of my book."

Christ says (Matt. x. 22): "He that endureth to the end shall be saved."

Is there not just as much fear of presumptuously believing that we cannot fall from grace as there is in cherishing the idea that we cannot sin against God, even after having received his word with joy.—Yours respectfully, JAMES HUNT.

Westbury Park, Bristol.

[We admit the relevance of these Scriptures. The only difference of view appears to be (1) that endurance is the condition of retaining eternal life, and (2) that endurance is the proof that eternal life has really been obtained. Peter and Judas were both backsliders, but Peter was a true believer who gave way for a while under temptation, and at the look of Jesus wept bitterly and repented. Judas was never a regenerate soul, and the word by which his repentance is described is not the word used by John the Baptist and our Lord of repentance unto life, but is the word twice translated in 2 Cor. vii. 8 (R.V.), "regret"; and "repented himself" in Matt. xxi. 29 and xxvii. 3 (R.V.). Judas "repented himself," that is, he regretted—felt remorse for—what he had done; but he did not repent—change his mind—toward God, and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is recorded of him with awful significance that he purchased a field with the reward of iniquity and went to his own place.—ED.]

BIRMINGHAM is to have a "Keswick Convention" this year. May 12—16 has been selected as the date. Mr. Robert Wilson, of Keswick, is to preside; while assistance is looked for from Revs. H. W. Webb-Peploe, Evan Hopkins, F. B. Meyer, and others long associated with work of this kind. The organisation of the Birmingham Convention is in the hands of Rev. C. G. Baskerville, F. S. Webster, and W. Searle.

NEWPORT, MON.—UNIQUE Y.M.C.A.

THE Y.M.C.A. at Newport, Mon., is a unique and very successful institution. There is no paid membership, nor are there associates; but any Christian man who desires may be enrolled as a member without pecuniary subscription. There is no gymnasium, nor are there literary classes of any kind. It is a Young Men's Christian Association with the third word writ large. There are prayer-meetings, Bible-classes, evangelistic services indoors and out, and other forms of Christian work. There is also a Daniel's Band, which is an important feature in the Association. Our dear friend, Mr. John R. Hall, who was a well-known figure in Mr. Moody's inquiry-room at Stratford, and who there established a Daniel's Band, inaugurated a similar company at Newport on his removal to that town about six years ago. It is a body of stalwart Christian young fellows who, to a considerable extent, answer the Apostle's description of men of God, throughly furnished unto all good works. They are grounded in the truth that "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness"; and as under their devoted leader they meditate on these things, and give themselves wholly to them, their profiting appears to all.

I had the pleasure of spending a few days recently among these zealous brethren, very much to my own refreshment. On Saturday night a few gathered at the house of Mr. Fawckner, architect, where a meeting has for many years been held weekly to pray for all saints on the coming day. On Lord's Day we found a number of the young men at the Association rooms in prayer before going out to work. They had just returned from the children's Sunday morning breakfast. In the afternoon Mr. Fawckner conducts a Bible-class of two to three hundred young men, and in the evening the Gospel is preached to a mixed audience of five to six hundred, with generally an overflow meeting in the room of the Y.W.C.A. overhead. This latter institution is also in a flourishing condition, under the direction of several devoted Christian ladies. Both Associations are in the same building, with entrances at opposite sides.

On Monday night Mr. Hall had invited a number of friends to meet his Daniel's Band, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, of which the key-note was, "One thing I do." Mr. H. Lloyd, and several more took part.

On Tuesday afternoon we met Mr. Hall's class of policemen; it was a very disagreeable day, but eighteen came, of whom ten were Christians. It is difficult to estimate the value of such a work as this among the guardians of the peace.

The aggressive work at Newport dates from the revival which God wrought through that man of God, Robert Aitken, of Pendeen; and Rev. J. T. Wrenford, in whose church he preached, abides faithful to the light then received. Mr. Wrenford was passing through a great sorrow during my visit, two of his brothers having just died. Mr. Fennell, a tradesman who has developed into a very energetic evangelist, and Mr. Baker, another successful man of business, with many others, help to stem the tide of sin at Newport. The town is this year blessed with a Christian Mayor, Mr. Mordy, who is also a temperance man, and true to his colours in both respects.

R. C. M.

London Lodging-houses.—The name of the London Evangelisation Society and Common Lodging-house Mission has been changed to "The Common Lodging-house Mission." A meeting on behalf of the work is to be held at Lady Louisa Ashburton's, Kent House, Knightsbridge, S.W., on Tuesday, February 18, at 3.30 p.m. The Secretary of the Mission is Mr John Harvey, 67 Imperial-buildings, Ludgate-circus E.C.

FARNINGHAM AND SWANLEY BOYS.

"SEEING is Believing!" So evidently thought Mr. Benjamin Clarke and his co-workers when they planned that at the conversazione on behalf of the Home for Little Boys, the lads should be there busy at work at their various branches of trade.

It was on Monday last that the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress gave another illustration of their interest in philanthropic and religious work, by entertaining at the Mansion House the friends of the "little boys"; thus affording an opportunity of seeing, without undertaking a journey into Kent, some of the faces and the work of those whom, by their liberality, they are fitting for lives of usefulness.

Right and left along the spacious Salon were placed groups of lads engaged in shoemaking, tailoring, lithography, carpentering, photography, &c., while ample evidence of the proficiency of their work was visible in the array of useful and fancy articles duly finished and presented for inspection.

In the Egyptian Hall the claims of the Institution were urged in suitable addresses by the Lord Mayor, Lord Aberdeen, its Secretary, and its Treasurer; while an excellent selection of vocal and instrumental music was given by the boys' choir and band, assisted by some lady and gentleman volunteers, which contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

We much regret to learn that some of the Cottage Homes are closed, owing to lack of support. This is an eminently useful and important work, saving we know not how many lads from perforce joining the "criminal" classes; and no more forcible illustration than this Institution could be found for the truth of a well-worn proverb—PREVENTION is better than CURE.

HOSPITAL AT MARSOVAN.—Madame Lucy Thoumaian, wife of Professor G. Thoumaian, delivered an address in the Conference Hall, Mildmay, a few days ago, on behalf of a Christian hospital for Marsovan, in Antolia, where the poor and needy of every creed and race may obtain desired relief in time of sickness. The story of the daily lives of the inhabitants of Marsovan and its neighbourhood was told with simplicity and fervour, and, though there was little that was novel in the account, the sympathies of the audience were fully enlisted. Rev. Dr. Edmond, Dr. J. L. Maxwell, and Prebendary Calthrop earnestly backed up the appeal of Mdme. Thoumaian for British help.

THE SHIPWRECKED MARINERS' SOCIETY.—The relief operations for the month of January, embracing those specially necessitated by the recent very severe and prolonged gales, show that the large number of nearly 800 shipwrecked mariners and fishermen, with other distressed seafarers, had been directly taken under care, clothed, forwarded home, and otherwise aided at the Society's hands. In addition, 273 widows and orphans, &c., including those suddenly bereaved through sea disasters, had had their immediate necessities promptly ministered to. The assistance and relief, given under these particular heads, within the month, represented a total of over £2350.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a Gospel mission in Glasgow, by Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh.——For blessing on a mission at Ripley-street Chapel, Bradford, Yorks., Feb. 4 to 18, by Mr. John Burnham.——For blessing on a mission at the Baptist Chapel, Erith, Kent, by Rev. F. C. Spurr, Feb. 10 to 14.——For much blessing on a mission at Bournemouth, to be conducted by Mr. George Clarke and Rev. Dr. Monro Gibson, commencing Feb. 11.——For blessing on a parochial mission by Rev. W. Haslam, at St. Paul's Church, Southsea, from Feb. 15 to 25.—— That God would graciously lead our legislators in the approaching Session of Parliament to enact the stoppage of the sale of intoxicating liquors throughout England during the whole of Sunday.——For blessing on a mission in Clarendon Villas Mission Hall, West Brighton, Feb. 8 to 16, by Mr. John McAuliffe.

WORK AMONG THE CREE INDIANS.

REV. EGERTON R. YOUNG has recently been having crowded meetings in Lancaster and Preston, also in Hoylake and West Kirby; the two latter places are villages near Birkenhead, where a number of Liverpool merchants, &c., reside. Mr. Reginald Radcliffe took the chair twice at Hoylake, and urged upon the people their responsibility in the matter of foreign missions. Mr. Young's addresses were full of thrilling interest, and it is a long time since so much interest was excited here. Three of the meetings were held in public halls: the one at Hoylake holding some six hundred, was crowded each night, and a smaller one at West Kirby, holding four hundred, when Mr. Thomas Matheson, J.P., presided, was also crowded. Mr. Young's last meeting was held in the West Kirby Presbyterian Church.

He expects to be in England until the last week in May, and his engagements are rapidly filling up. There are few men who have gone through such experiences as Mr. Young and his heroic wife. One year they had fish, and fish alone, as food twenty-one times a week for six months, and Mrs. Young was for five years without seeing a white woman. She is accompanying Mr. Young, and often sweetly sings a hymn in the language of the Cree Indians.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE.—Mrs. Hilton has received the following contributions for the Stepney-causeway Crèche and branches:—The Worshipful Company of Gun Makers, £5; the Worshipful Company of Mercers, 20 guineas; and the Worshipful Company of Merchant Tailors, 10 guineas.

MRS. MEREDITH'S WORK, remarkably varied and full of interest, is well described in a little book, entitled, "The Story of a Mission," just issued by Messrs. Partridge & Co. It is a story of loving service for Christ among the prisoners, combined with agencies for reclaiming the fallen, caring for the neglected, and lending a helping hand to the poor. Efforts of philanthropy are actuated by Christian principles, and from first to last the glory of God is sought. There is a medical mission, and evangelistic work is carried on both in South-West London and at Jerusalem. From these sympathetic pages Christian workers will learn much as to practical methods, while in a much wider circle the book will carry messages of encouragement in Christian life and testimony.

BAND OF HOPE.—The Committee of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union have resolved to hold a Great National Bazaar, at Exeter Hall, in July next, with the view of raising £5000 for further extension of their work. The work of the Union has, during the past few years greatly increased; indeed, it has grown to such an extent that the means at present placed at the disposal of the committee are totally inadequate. Gifts of useful or ornamental articles, or pecuniary aid to purchase such things as would command a ready sale, will be very acceptable. If any of your readers could form a working circle, it would be of immense use.

FREDERIC SMITH,
CHARLES WAKELY.

4, Ludgate-hill, London, E.C.

GAMBLING IN STOCKS AND SHARES.—One of the worst forms in which the gambling spirit is showing itself is in a certain class of transactions in stocks and shares. It is perhaps the least mischief of this bad business that its clients are so often deprived of all they possess at a stroke, and that it makes existing temptations to dishonesty ten times greater. The evil it works in teaching young men to dislike the "common task" by which they do their duty to God and man, and to seek rather to plunder society, if it can be legally done, than to take their places as useful members of it, is incalculable. Few things can do greater harm to society than that money, instead of being sought in mutual profit and helpfulness, should be sought in transactions of utter selfishness, in which the gain of one must mean the loss of another.—Methodist Times.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.*

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER XI.
HOUSEKEEPING AND HOME LIFE.

(Continued.)

HOME is the first, in some respects the most difficult, sphere of Christian work. In housekeeping there is room both for genius and grace. There is no discipline more severe; no test of character more searching; no result more excellent. To rule a kingdom may not be more difficult than to rule a house. Martha was in fault—not for serving, but for being cumbered in her service. To toil in household duties and not be unduly cumbered is a rare virtue. To keep the domestic machinery from creaking needs the oil of a gracious wisdom. There is a cheerfulness, a home gospel of kindness, that drowns every discord in its own sweetness. Much religion may be put into pounds, shillings, and pence: that is often a glorious meeting when the straitened housekeeper gets the two ends to meet. A Christian woman can put the finest intellect into cooking, the highest grace into cleaning. To address a meeting may need less virtue than to dress a collar. There may be no more glory to God in Bible-reading than in boiling potatoes. Godly women ministered to Christ of their substance; so perhaps it was that they were last at the cross, and first at the sepulchre. Care for a hungering Christ taught them to watch a dying Christ, and prepared them to welcome a risen Christ. The kitchen, the cross, and the grave, are three chief stations in the Christian woman's service. Christian work begins at home: the successful worker always begins there. There is no sphere on earth in which all that is beautiful and noble, all that is womanly and in harmony with God's purpose in woman, can find so perfect a development as home service. As the house is pre-eminently woman's kingdom, woman's world, so her first Home Mission field is home.

At home, Isabella was wont to spend much time in secret prayer...In her private records are found again and again lists of names of persons to be prayed for, including all her relatives from her husband to the remotest and least. Special petitions for each according to the situation and need of each; prayers about church debt; about dry rot, that it may not return; in short, about the most minute and trivial details of every-day life. Thus it was her habit to carry all her burdens to the throne of grace, and leave them there.

Her much-marked Bible tells the story of her love for the Word of God. The passages that speak of the personal Saviour and the redemption through his blood—such as "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world"—are deeply interlined. The words that bear on the forgiveness of sins and personal holiness have evidently studious attention. "Thou hast known my soul in adversities," and many such utterances, must have been as an inspiration of God in the time of her trouble. The promises and encouragments connected with prayer are numerously marked, and doubtless closely engaged her eager spirit. Exhortations to all Christian duties were not lightly passed over; to "watch and pray"; to "be careful for nothing"; to "be not weary in well doing"; to "abound in thanksgiving"; to "be kind and tender-hearted, forgiving one another"—and such texts as these, lay near her heart. "Study to be quiet" has a characteristic mark; for she hated busy-bodyism, and was wont to suppress tale-bearing with a strong hand. "We will go into his tabernacles, we will worship at his footstool," and similar portions bearing on public worship, are specially noted. She had observed with pain that certain young Christians were putting public work on the morning of the Lord's day in the room of public worship. Boldly calling them to their duty she would say: "God's order is—first worship, then work," and she carefully trained her own youthful assistants on that principle.

The Word of God was her meditation day and night, and she could truly say—

> O Book! infinite sweetness! let my heart
> Suck every letter, and a honey gain;
> Precious for any grief in any part—
> To clear the breast, to mollify all pain.
>
> Thou art all health; health thriving till it make
> A full eternity.
> Heaven lies flat in thee,
> Subject to every mounter's bended knee.
>
> Such are thy secrets; which my life makes good,
> And comments on thee.
>
> Stars are poor books, and oftentimes do miss;
> This book of stars lights to eternal bliss.

Her epistolary correspondence was of the simplest; mere notes of friendship, full, indeed, of her wonted kindliness, but little else...

In her home life two features were strongly marked; her habit of denying herself, and her practice in suppressing gossip. She always cared for herself least. She pinched nobody but herself. She would mend her own gloves till they were past mending, and at the same time send a present of new gloves to a friend. She could take her own tea without sugar and also carry tea and sugar to some poor creature in a garret. As to the evil tongue, she began early and sternly to deal with it. One day Mrs. —— said that "Miss So-and-So said."

"Then let us go at once and face Miss So-and-So."

"Oh, that would never do."

"Then am I to leave the lie with you?"

"No, no!"

"Well, go I shall."

Away they went to face one and another of the gossips. There was a thorough "redding up," and after that there was no more tittle-tattle so far as she was concerned, and her house was kept free from that nuisance.

Her chief recreation was in a little garden where she cultivated ferns and flowers. Her summer holiday for many years was spent at Ballater, on Deeside, in rambles among the heather; in climbing Morven and Lochnagar; in searching for curious plants and ferns in the corries and by the burnsides. Next to her love of souls was her love of nature—especially the birchen woods and heathclad hills. But whether work or play, evangelising or shopping, all was done in the spirit of the resolution to "take all to God in prayer." In her private jottings she says, "Prayer that we may be guided aright about the holiday: not a step without the Lord." It was this touch of prayer that turned everything into gold.

The even tenor of her home life was now and again broken by the usual incidents that add so tender a pathos to our earthly sojourn. Isabella had stood and ministered at many a dying bed; a new and more touching experience befel her in the death of her mother. Calm, serene, ready, the aged saint awaited the summons to depart with unruffled composure. Like another she could say, "I am not troubled about the question of living or dying; if I die, I will be with the Lord; and if I live the Lord will be with me." For long years she had seen enough of "the glory" to "rejoice in the hope," but while she was constantly sending up memorials to the King in reference to her home-going, she always "left the date blank," because "it belonged to the King to fill in that." As her children stood round her bed, the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel according to John was read at her own request. This portion had been the last spiritual meal of several generations of ancestors as they entered the valley. Each verse was followed by an expression of her delight. "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me."

"How beautiful!" she said.

"In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

"Oh, that's fine!" she said.

"And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."

"How blessed! how grand!" was the response.

"And whither I go, ye know, and the way ye know."

"Oh yes, yes, yes!" she said.

The reading done, the last fond glance given to each in turn, she finally said with mingled dignity, solemnity, and sweetness, "Don't weep; I am going home to God," and dropped into the perfect repose of them that sleep in Jesus.

Her mother's death was one of Isabella's deepest sorrows, and it added a mellowed tenderness to her character and work. Her heart lay empty, like Hagar's bottle on the burning sands; and in the intense longings of her affectionate nature, she turned more eagerly than ever to the Well that is never dry. Thus, the hallowed grief and the cherished memory became the means of a fresh inspiration for the remaining stage of her wilderness journey. And much as she enjoyed everything of real good in life, more than ever her song was—

> Pass away earthly joy,
> Jesus is mine!

* This deeply interesting and stimulating life history is now ready in book form; cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards and gilt edges, for presentation, 3s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.

[130]

Gathered Gold.

FORGIVENESS.

